But it is rather tough on the greatest industry that has grown up in several centuries of progress.

Anti-Censorship Campaign Grows

Women's organizations in several cities of Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut have been called upon to resist all moves to establish legal censorship by Director Rouillion of the Mechanics' Institute of New York, representing the national board of review, and Mary Gray Peck, chairman of the motion picture committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who is actively campaigning to defeat censorship legislation. At Portland, Maine; Providence, Rhode Island, and elsewhere, the co-operation of local club women was obtained in presenting special juvenile programs.

DEFEAT CENSORSHIP BILLS

Exhibitors of Hoosier State Score a Knock-out in Combined Attack on Two Drastic Laws of Legislative Ringside.

Concerted action by Indiana exhibitors in facing the censorship crisis in their state won the day. The two bills described in MOTOGRAPHY last week were killed in committee. Although another bill made its appearance immediately upon the death of the two preceding censorship measures, exhibitors now express themselves as confident that no harmful laws will go through at this session.

The first measure which the exhibitors laid out to rest was a bill providing for the appointment of a commission of three by the governor for the censoring of all films coming into the state and the licensing thereof if passed, for a fee which would go to a fund for the maintenance of the commission.

The second provided for Sunday shows and also censorship, the censoring body to be composed of three persons named by mayors of cities and trustees of towns. This bill stipulated that all Sunday shows should be prohibited unless half the gross receipts were given to charity. The measure failed to find favor with the committee of the legislature.

Another bill was introduced by Representative Johnson which is similar to the first named, providing for a commission appointed by the governor to censor all films and license them in the state for a fee.

At the recent convention of the exhibitors of the state, Governor Goodrich expressed the opinion that perhaps the Sunday picture shows were doing a good work, when properly conducted, for the reason that they provided profitable entertainment for a large number of people who otherwise might not spend their time to such good advantage.

Films Fight Censorship

The eloquence of the motion picture film will be the first aid enlisted by the Censorship Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in a plan of education which will cover the entire country for months to come. The work of appearing before legislative committees and fighting the bills now actually pending is going forward, but the necessity of education against future legislation is obvious and the committee is preparing for it.

The Censorship Committee will prepare short, crisp arguments against censorship, and will send them to all the producers of the country, who will make them up into short strips of film which will be attached to the films issued. Each company will have a quotation different from every other company, and new ones will be issued every week.

This plan has been tried out successfully on the Pacific Coast, and Chairman David W. Griffith of the Censorship Committee was instrumental in its adoption there.

HARKEN TO THE EXHIBITOR

Veteran Theater Owner Speaks Reminiscently and Gives His Views on Censors, Women, and the Censorship Question

"Censorship in any form whatsoever is a preposterous imposition," came the assertion from M. A. Choynski, exhibitor-director from Chicago of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, and member of the Chicago M. P. E. L. "Isn't it preposterous?" queried the speaker in unanswerable sarcasm.

"Can't a free people decide which newspapers they want to read, what books their own children shall read, and what pictures they or their boys and girls shall see?

"I believe in going out among the women of the city and co-operating with them. By helping them to have the class of pictures they want to see, I help myself as an exhibitor. When I hear that they are going to have a meeting on the censorship question, I get busy and attend that meeting. I did that once when the local censor board sent a man out who did not know what he was talking about. He admitted it and sat down. I won the day.

"What of the Pink Permit?"

"That reminds me of something else. Listen to me, Mr. Journalist, and some day when you want something to write on censorship, you can write this story.

"It was one day at the Odeon Theater, over on Halsted street. I had a 'pink permit' picture on that day and a notice out in front that no one under twenty-one years old would be admitted.

"A young married couple came up to the window with a child in their arms. 'You can't go in with the child,' I told them. When I said it was the law, they turned away and went down the street.

"Half an hour later they came back again, but this time without the child. 'But I can't let you in,' I said. I knew the couple too, and wanted to let them in the worst way. But you see they were both under age.

"Sorry, But It's the Law"

"I tell you, men, it isn't a free country that stops any man, young or old, from taking his wife to a moving picture show. Think of it. None of you can take your own daughter to see a picture if the censors do not like it.

"An exhibitor from another part of the city came to my theater one day when I was showing a 'pink permit' picture. He had come all the way across town with his daughter to see the picture.

" 'But I can't sell you tickets because it's against the law,' I told him. 'Your daughter is not of age.'

" 'But I want her to see the picture,' he said to me.

" 'Can't do it, I'm afraid. I'm sorry. But that's the law.'

"Say, men, you should have heard what that exhibitor said about censors because he was not allowed to take his own daughter to see that picture. Censorship is a preposterous evil. We don't want censorship! No!"

W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has added C. L. Filkins to his sales force.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews, Motography will each week hereafter print the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

OLIVER TWIST, with Marie Doro, (Lasky)—"The picture is good. It is not the kind that appeals to the general public, however."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Neptune's Daughter, with Annette Kellermann, (Universal)—"The best drawing card we had during the week, but the weather was bad and cut the attendance."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Victoria Cross, with Lou Tellegen and Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky)—"Lou Tellegen ought to be in the army. He would make a better soldier than actor. At least, the audiences thought so. I heard many remarks, and all about the same. The picture was not liked."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Ninety and Nine, with William Courtenay and Lucille Lee Stewart, (Vitagraph)—"The weather started to get extremely cold on the night we ran this picture. Consequently we did a small business. The picture is good."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Pidgin Island, (Metro) Harold Lockwood and May Allison—"This is a good feature but it had too many water scenes and not enough action .in it."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

The White Raven, (Metro) Ethel Barrymore—"With the exception of the first part, this is one of the most satisfactory pictures I ever ran. It will be a mighty good attraction for the average exhibitor. It did a splendid business for me."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

The Weaker Sex, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"The Chicago censors gave this a 'pink permit,' (no children allowed). The title is 'pink,' but not the play itself. It is a good production, well liked by the patrons, and I do not see why the censors thought it should be run as 'pink.' It proved a good box office attraction."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Redeeming Love, (Paramount) Kathlyn Williams and Thomas Holding—"The one great drawback to this picture is that it deals a little too much with church. It is a good idea for the producers to avoid such subjects, for the patrons do not like them. The picture is a very good one but it does not draw."—M. J. Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—Catering to a high class of people.

Redeeming Love, (Paramount) Kathlyn Williams and Thomas Holding—"This is not a good picture. It is weak and uninteresting, although Miss Williams herself is mighty good. I would not recommend the play as a box office attraction."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

A Girl Like That, (Paramount) Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore—"This is a very good picture, well directed. The work of the stars is good. The name, however, is against the picture. The producers might have found a better title. This one not only does not appeal, but it suggests some of the recent sensational productions instead of a high class picture."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

Lost and Won, with Marie Doro, (Paramount)—"This proves to be a high class society drama with an appeal for all patrons. A very good picture with good box office value."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

His Rival, with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, (Metro)—"A very good comedy. These Drew comedies are the cleanest and finest on the market today and are good for any audiences. Sydney Drew is popular with all classes."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown theater.

The Man Who Forgot, with Robert Warwick, (World)—"A very good picture with good box office value. It was well liked by the patrons. Warwick is becoming very popular in our neighborhood."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—Catering to high class audiences.

Wife by Proxy, with Mabel Taliaferro, (Metro)—"A very good picture, well produced. Was only a fair box office success because of the very cold weather."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Devil's Pay Day, (Bluebird)—"A very good picture, the best Bluebird recently released. A fair box office attraction."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Great Secret, (Metro) Bushman and Bayne—"This is holding up as well as could be expected from a serial. It keeps the interest up and is full of action. Bushman is still popular and of course Beverly Bayne is very well liked. Her parents live near my theater.

This serial, however, should be a good thing for any exhibitor's box office."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

Chicken Casey, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"A very pleasing picture which brought good business. Patrons liked it very much."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Chicken Casey, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"It was well liked. Dorothy Dalton is a top-notcher."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Chicken Casey, (Triangle) Dorothy Dalton—"Dorothy Dalton is not at her best in this film, although the picture itself is very good. In that I express my patrons' opinion, not my own."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

Charlie Chaplin Revue of 1916, (Essanay)—"It is not very often that I show a Chaplin picture. This one drew very well. He's funny every time."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Slave Market, (Paramount) Pauline Frederick—"Miss Frederick is an especial favorite in this neighborhood. Although this particular play was not very well liked, it was a fair box office attraction."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

The Evil Eye, (Paramount) Blanche Sweet—"This picture took very well here and did a fair business for me. Miss Sweet is a favorite among my patrons."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

The Americano, (Triangle) Douglas Fairbanks—"This is the greatest picture I have ever played in my house. It broke all records."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to the educated classes.

The Americano, with Douglas Fairbanks, (Triangle)—"This picture can't be beat; that is, the story itself. The photography is good as well. There's plenty of action. A splendid feature."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Perils of Our Girl Reporters, with Helen Greene and Earle Metcalfe, (Mutual)—"I can't imagine how a series could keep such a sustained interest. The crowds are larger at every performance. The more they see of the plays the more they seem to want them. I guess it is because each one is better than the other. Anyway, they have been a success at the Academy from the start."—Jules Michaels, manager Academy Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Jackie of the Navy, with Margarita Fischer, (Mutual)—"Miss Margarita Fischer in 'Miss Jackie of the Navy' broke all house records by over 250 paid admissions. I am arranging for return bookings on both 'Pearl of Paradise' and 'Jackie.'"—Ora O. Parks, manager Lyric Theater, Marion, Indiana.

The Crab, with Frank Keenan and Thelma Salter, (Triangle)—"An especially fine picture which shows Keenan at his best. Proved an excellent box office attraction and pleased the patrons."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Crab, with Frank Keenan and Thelma Salter, (Triangle)—"About the best thing Keenan has ever done. Very much appreciated and liked by all patrons."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Crab, with Frank Keenan and Thelma Salter, (Triangle)—"People all cried at this picture and enjoyed it. Little Miss Salter is great, and Mr. Keenan is, of course, very well liked. This picture is a very fine cash box tonic."—W. C. Lamoreaux, Lakeside Theater.—Catering to educated classes.

The Grab-Bag Bride, (Triangle Comedy)—"A pretty good laugh-maker."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Nina, the Flower Girl, with Bessie Love, (Triangle)—"A very good picture which would have been a good box office attraction except for fourteen below zero weather."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Image Maker of Thebes, with the Baroness De Witz, (Pathe)—"A pretty good picture. The featured player has not a very attractive name."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Foolish Virgin, with Clara Kimball Young, (Selznick)—"Not the kind of a picture one expects to see Clara Kimball Young in. Rather a morbid play. Would make a good two-reeler. Clara Kimball Young did not draw well."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young, (World)—"This is the picture formerly released as 'Hearts in Exile.' It is an excellent picture and was well liked."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Great Expectations, with Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, (Paramount)—"The picture is a fairly good one, but it did not seem to give entire satisfaction to the audience. It is an adaptation of the Dickens' novel."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Great Expectations, with Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, (Paramount)—"A picture that did well for two days. We had good houses. The picture is good."—Lawrence Cuneo, New Dearborn Theater.—Catering to students and better classes.

Great Expectations, with Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, (Paramount)—"Charles Dickens' novel has been admirably adapted by Famous Players. A fine production. Although the stars themselves have no great drawing power, the picture drew fairly well."—M. J. Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Slave Market, with Pauline Frederick, (Famous Players-Paramount)—"A very good picture of its kind but it did not draw well,"—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Easy Street, with Charlie Chaplin, (Mutual)—"Positively a riot. The laughter was so loud the building fairly shook."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

THE HUNGRY HEART, with Alice Brady, (World)—"An adaptation of the stage play, 'Frou Frou.' The picture is very good but would draw better under the original title of 'Frou Frou.' What Brady's idea was in changing the title I cannot see."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

THE HUNGRY HEART, with Alice Brady, (World)—"A very good picture, well liked by the audiences."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

THE HAPPINESS OF THREE WOMEN, with House Peters and Myrtle Stedman—"A very good picture, but it did not draw."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

THE EAGLE'S MATE, with Mary Pickford, (Re-issue)—"This proved to be a good box office attraction and the patrons enjoyed it, although it is an old picture and the photography in many places is poor."—D. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

WHOM THE GODS DESTROY, with Alice Joyce, (Vitagraph)—"A very good production but one which should not be presented in an Irish neighborhood."—D. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

THE HAPPINESS OF THREE WOMEN, with House Peters and Myrtle Stedman, (Paramount)—"This is a good picture. Business though was just ordinary."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

THE GUN FIGHTER, with W. S. Hart, (Triangle)—"An excellent production which played to good business in spite of below zero weather."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

OLIVER TWIST, with Marie Doro, (Paramount)—"This is an excellent production. Business fairly good."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

IMMEDIATE LEE, with Frank Borzage, (Mutual Masterpictures)—"I think this picture is one of the best western productions I ever saw. There isn't an audience in any house that wouldn't enjoy seeing it. Some picture!"—W. A. Walden, Majestic Theater, Billings, Montana.

Douglas Fairbanks with Artcraft

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has at last been captured and harnessed to a contract. He will form his own producing company and will release through Artcraft in every country in the world. The new company will begin work immediately. John Emerson, one of the most capable directors in the field, will pilot the productions and Anita Loos, the clever former Fine Arts writer, will be in charge of scenarios and will write the subtitles.

All exhibitors will be enabled to present the new Fairbanks pictures regardless of their program affiliations.

With Mary Pickford, George M. Cohan and Fairbanks, Artcraft is now in possession of an invincible trio of stars of the first screen magnitude.

Screenshine

BY MEL ODY

WE'VE always been mighty strong for the ability of film salesmen to sell features to homes for the blind. But even they have learned something from the heathen chinee genius who has been percolating through the Mallers building the last few days.

This weasened old Oriental has sold lily bulbs to a large number of the gullible picture men of the building, among them E. Swartz, the majestic Majestic manager. We won't mention that we also took advantage of the yellow man's sliding scale of prices—and took it too quick.

But the point is, a heathen bearded the film men in their dens and sold them lilies on their own grounds.

And most of 'em wouldn't know a lily from a squash blossom.

DON'T FAIL NOT TO MISS IT.

C'mon skinnay! C'mon over to the Essanay studio Sat'dy nite and see 'em fill up the fillums with actin'. It's open house at George's and some of the actin' folks are going to be at large, and at work. Then there's going to be dancing n' everthing.

Harry Miller, the gingery Madison street exhibitor, is the papa of the "open studio" party idea. Good dome, Harry. We're fur you.

PATRONLY THRIFT

"Pardon me, lady, why don't you let the boy carry you in?"

It was an exhibitor in the Polish section of Chicago addressing one of the thrifty matrons of his section who have the habit of folding youngsters up like jack knives and carrying them in to free seats.

In the above instance the boy, when unfolded, proved to be as tall as his mother.

Other domestic economists among these Polish mothers have been known to enclose three kidlets in their shawls and carry them into the house on one ticket.

ELECTION DITTY (CHICAGO M. P. E. L.)

Hopp and Heaney, Smith and Sweeney;
They're the ones that won
When the fight for official might
Was over and all done.

Bill S was sore—never before
Had he ever whipped a lady;
Heaney, we're told, is good as Gold;
And none of them is shady.

HOPP'S HOP.

Joe Hopp has proved that he is good at hopping. He has hopped into the president's chair at the Chicago branch of the M. P. E. L. of America.

Here's hopping he makes a good president and we guess he will. We were always strong for hops.

The other day Richard C. Travers of Essanay dragged an old man of crusty demien off the sure pathway of death in front of an automobile.

The saved one, without looking up at his savior, fished out a half dollar and proffered it to him. Mr. Travers accepted the coin and handed the donor back 20 cents in change. The latter pocketed it and went on his way, never realizing, probably, that he had reduced his own valuation on his life by 30 cents.

IS LOU OUT OF A JOB?

Here is a romantic extract from an exhibitor's newspaper ad of a Farrar feature:

"It was during the making of this picture that Geraldine Farrar met Lou Tellegen; their marriage followed shortly after. Wallace Reid supports Miss Farrar."

SAY IT QUICK

There's an exhibitor over in Michigan City, Indiana, who has the immortal name of M. T. Panty.

Never mind, M. T., there are a lot of others in the same fix.

PROTEST CARNIVALS

Indiana Organization Asserts That Cost of Public Expositions Is Tax on Theater Men Which Benefits the Few

While seeking some means of relief from the pressure of censorship agitation and harmful legislation in Indiana, theater men who are members of the Exhibitors' Protective Association of Indiana have joined in a letter to President William A. Brady, of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, urging that no expositions or balls be held in 1917, in order that funds so used shall not be diverted from more needful purposes. The communication follows in part:

My dear Mr. Brady: The exhibitors in Indiana are confronted with the menace of censorship and other adverse legislation. We are spending our time and our money to prevent it and will do our utmost in our power to save the day.

We have been members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America; helped organize it and worked for it for years. The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America have several thousand dollars in their treasury; are organized to help the exhibitor. We have asked them for help and they do not even reply. This money should be used for the benefit of our organizations.

The money that is in their treasury was made by giving balls and expositions which cost was added to the overhead of this industry and paid by every exhibitor in the United States. We figure that every exhibitor in the United States had an average of $50 added to his film service on account of the expositions and balls that were given in 1916.

We regard as unfair a system that allows a few men in New York and Chicago to run these expositions for their own profits and we hereby protest and request that you bring up before the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry the producers, especially the producers, this question and this protest, and that you take action in a united way that you will in no way, shape or form support a convention or exposition unless the proceeds thereof are placed where they will be used for the benefit of every state in the Union or wherever the industry is affected as a whole. We protest against any exposition or ball in 1917.

Exhibitors' Protective Association of Indiana.

Association Studies "Paper" Shipments

The transportation committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, of which William L. Sherrill, president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, is chairman, has, in the course of its investigations unearthed a general misunderstanding about "paper" shipments. The Interstate Commerce Commission ruling that "advertising or other matter" must not be "attached to the outside container" has been very generally understood to mean that posters, etc., must be shipped separately. This, however, is not the fact, as this ruling was meant only to prevent rolls of posters being attached by cord or strap to the outside of the case, making a bulky and unweildy package. There is no provision at all against packing "paper" inside the film shipping case.

The ordinary shipping case for a "show" will hold six reels, so that with the usual five reel "show" there is room for a folded package of two or three one-sheets and a three-sheet poster.

This interpretation of the Interstate Commerce Commission ruling has not been understood by many of the express employes heretofore, but any question has now been removed by the announcement of the traffic managers of the American, Wells Fargo and Adams companies with whom Mr. Sherrill conferred.

Charles Steiner, controlling the New Fourteenth Street Theater, New York, and who is building the new photoplay house on the East Side, has obtained first run service on Anita Stewart's latest production, "The Girl Philippa," paying a record sum for a four days' showing. He is showing the film on February 10, 11, 12 and 13.

New Association Members

The busy days of last week at the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry did not prevent the membership work from progressing favorably. The issues which face the industry as a whole this winter are drawing together individuals and companies interested in all phases of the business, who are realizing that the hope of the industry today is in organization.

Recent memberships in the Producer Class of the National Association are bringing that division up closer to 100 per cent efficiency, and other classes are following suit. David W. Griffith, who personally has been active in the Association from the beginning, entered his company as a member of Producer Class A, and Williamson Bros., for the Submarine Film Corp., sent in their application last week. From Los Angeles came the application of the Corona Cinema Co.

An important addition to the distributor's class was that of Pathe Exchange, who have heretofore participated in the councils of the National Association as a member of the Producer's division.

These additions to the membership of the Association are forerunners of the applications which have been assured from many individuals and corporations as a result of the great interest in the organization due to the great crisis now facing the industry.

Chicago Men: Don't Miss This

What will be one of the unique events in the history of the film business in Chicago takes place Saturday evening, February 10, at the Essanay studios on Argyle street. You, and anyone else interested, are invited.

A company will be at work making scenes before the eyes of the public. The whole studio will be an "open house." Then there will be cabareting and dancing, nourishment and refreshment.

The Reel Fellows Club of Chicago is staging the event. And it will use any profits from the event, if there are any, in perfecting its organization with a view to becoming an effective force in fighting the proposed increase in theater tax in Chicago and the pending censorship bills.

Be there, and bring your friends. You'll have a great old time.

To Repeal Sunday Law

The North Dakota Motion Picture and Theater Managers' Association has started a state-wide movement looking toward the repeal of the so-called Sunday "blue laws." Petitions have been distributed throughout the state, and they will be forwarded at once to the officials of the non-partisan league and various members of the legislature.

Each theater manager received copies of the petition, and, according to reports, residents have signed readily and in large numbers.

The theater men declare that they have the same right to open on Sunday as other business houses, and now that a movement has been started to repeal the bill, they are taking their part.

"Family Nights" Programs Succeed

CLUBS, EXCHANGES AND EXHIBITORS CO-OPERATE IN KANSAS CITY

ACCORDING to the Association of Collegiate Alumnae and the Parent-Teachers' Association of Kansas City, it has long been the custom and habit of allowing Johnnie, Edgar, Susie and Helen to obtain the necessary admission fee to the neighborhood moving picture theater on Friday evenings and allow them to attend the pictures. It is seldom that the parents accompany the children on Friday nights, it is believed. Not that the parents do not attend moving picture theaters but that the parents usually attend during other nights in the week than Friday.

It is to change this custom in the effort of establishing a parents' night at the neighborhood picture show, the Association of Collegiate Alumnae and the Parent-Teachers' Association, co-operating with the Screen Club of Kansas City, is endeavoring to enlist the aid of the theater owners and the exchange managers.

"The parents should go to the theater with the children partly to establish a closer interest between the children and the grown-ups and partly to make sure that the children are not seeing objectionable pictures," is the way Mrs. Paul A. Simonds explains the movement.

Last winter the Collegiate Alumnæ started the movement by asking a theater owner in the residential district to show "better" pictures on Friday nights. The women, who were members of the committee, found that the theater owner was more than skeptical about the plan. He believed that it would result in a financial loss to him on Friday nights, but decided to give the club women a chance to prove that it would be a success. The women, with the exhibitor's permission, went downtown and visited the offices of the film exchanges and selected pictures which they believed were particularly suitable for all ages. The very first trial proved to the skeptical exhibitor that he was wrong for his house from the very first showed a great increase in the box office receipts from the picked films.

This winter the Collegiate Alumnae enlisted the aid of the Parent-Teachers' Association in an effort to enlarge the scope of its work. Then, F. L. Newman, owner of the Regent and Royal theaters in the downtown district at Kansas City and president of the Screen Club, was visited and interested in the work. According to the club, there will be about fourteen theaters in the residential districts to install the Friday parent night at their theaters and it is expected that the number will rapidly increase.

Women Visit Exchanges

There is seldom a day passes but that a group of women visit the film exchanges, for the purpose of reviewing pictures that might be suitable for Friday night programs. The women have obtained the aid of the exchanges in this work and the films are submitted for their reviewing, a number of exchanges even sending out lists of films and other advance notices so that the women can be prepared as soon as the films are released.

The women do not call themselves censors and try to avoid all application of the word to their work. "We are not censors nor have we any of the characteristics that that word has come to include in its meaning," they say. "We are not sorting out the films in an effort to have the theater owners put on a lot of highbrow pictures or educational films, but just simply clean films that do not contain vampire or drunken scenes or scenes of too copious bloodshed.

"We try to balance a program that will interest the patrons the most and be of some likely benefit to them or rather we try to balance a program that will not be of any direct injury to anyone. The programs are just as large as those shown during any other night in the week. The comics we find give us the most trouble while the romantic films present very little that is unavailable.

Exchanges Co-operate

"We have found that the exchange and film companies are most liberal in their efforts to help us in the work. A large number of them, in fact nearly all in the city have suspended a rule that seems to have been of long standing, that is they allow us to present to the theater owner films from their service for this particular night during the week, although the theater owner does not patronize their services. That is, a Paramount or a Mutual film might be furnished to an exhibitor who does not patronize the services of the Paramount or Mutual and in the end this is but a good advertising policy on the part of these film houses at least."

It is said that the credit for winning the assistance of the film exchanges is due to Mr. Newman. The film exchange managers have been more than courteous, several having gone a great deal out of their way to be of service in this work. To date there is but one downtown house which has been placed on the lists of the association's committee for Friday night parent programs and that house was not solicited in the work but volunteered as it believes it is a good business policy. It is expected that the committee will later visit the downtown theaters in the hopes of securing their aid in the work.

List of Theaters Read in Schools

The Parent-Teachers' Association is the advertising department of this movement. Each week, the lists of the theaters giving Friday night programs reviewed by the association is read in the schools and the school children are urged to bring their parents to the theater for that particular evening.

The Collegiate Alumnae Association does the reviewing. At present there are twelve members on the board of reviewers of which Mrs. J. J. Vineyard is chairman. Mrs. Vineyard says the first difficulty that was encountered was criticism and other discouragement. But, oddly enough, the criticism came from the exhibitors, who declared, "why these films are no different from those that we show on other nights."

"We are not trying to promote any particular elevation in the moving picture business," say the women. "We are endeavoring to help the exhibitor to choose films that we may merely eliminate the unnecessarily offensive."

F. I. L. M. CONVENTION

Amalgamation of All Exchangemen's Local Bodies in a National Association Is Planned by Chicago Club

THE creation of a national F. I. L. M. organization which will centralize the F. I. L. M. clubs of the various cities and provide new credit protection to exchangemen has been undertaken by the Chicago F. I. L. M. club, through a committee, headed by Chairman W. H. Jenner of the K. E. S. E. office in Chicago. The plans for holding a national meeting of delegates from all cities during the week of the national convention of the moving picture interests at Chicago, next July, have been well advanced.

Almost every manufacturer in New York has consented to send a representative to the F. I. L. M. conference. A committee made up of two members of the New York exchangemen's organization, Messrs. I. von Ronkle and C. C. Plough, is bringing the eastern manufacturers into line.

The committee headed by Chairman Jenner has addressed letters to all the clubs in the country, asking each city to send two delegates and explaining the objects of forming a centralized body. It is believed that a national organization would be able to perform a function which the local branches cannot do for themselves, which would be that of informing exchangemen in any city of instances where an exhibitor might be in arrears in his accounts in a neighboring city and, by going to an exchange elsewhere, sought to obtain further credit. Co-operation is needed in other directions also, the communications state.

The legislative committee of the F. I. L. M. Club has secured the services of David T. Alexander, attorney, who is conversant with the censorship situation and an authority on theater tax and license ordinances. He was formerly connected with the corporation counsel's office of Chicago.

The committee at present is directing its combined influence toward defeating an ordinance now pending in the city council under which the license to exchanges for storage of films would be increased from $25 to $200 a year. The measure would prove a burden on the smaller exchanges and companies which book only one or a few features.

Exhibitors are Luncheon Guests

Following out the general Paramount policy of promoting good relations with its exhibitors, the Famous Players Exchange of Washington, D. C., recently held its third Exhibitors' Luncheon at the Hotel Dupont, Wilmington, Del.

The exhibitors present were: Messrs. D. Lee Short, William H. Warren, J. M. Ginns, T. M. Breeding, H. A. Newman, C. C. Hubert, H. P. Fennimore, L. S. Armour, C. C. Marshall, A. L. Heis. Representing the exchange were Messrs. W. W. Hines, G. M. Mann, E. R. Carr and H. P. Mulford.

W. W. Hines, general sales manager of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, and George M. Mann, manager of the Famous Players Exchange, addressed the meeting. Among the matters discussed were the relations of exhibitor and exchange, the deposit system, rebooking of pictures, advertising methods and details of house management.

Mr. H. S. Newman, of Middletown, Delaware, voiced the general sentiment of the exhibitors when he said, "This is the first time anything like this has been done up here, and we appreciate it."

An interesting feature of the meeting was the presence of W. H. Tunis, general traffic agent of the Adams Express Company for the territory. Mr. Tunis presented the company's side of the film handling question.

Exhibitors and Clubs Co-Operate

As a result of the work of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Washington, D. C., who have been interested in the motion picture industry for the past three years, practically every Washington exhibitor has arranged to give special matinee performances for children.

During one week recently, twelve theaters gave these special showings, and in seven of them, Paramount pictures were shown. In four of the theaters, Marguerite Clark appeared as the star, while in the others Marie Doro, Mae Murray and Vivian Martin pictures were run.

George M. Mann, manager of the Paramount Exchange in Washington, has been co-operating with the Federation for many months in an endeavor to instill into the minds of the exhibitors the advantages to be accrued by giving these special performances for the children.

Big Children's Matinee

Manager Bock of the Heights Theater on Upper Broadway, New York City, gave a special Saturday morning children's performance of "Snow White," with Marguerite Clark. Hundreds of children crowded in to enjoy the fairy tale. The special performance was scheduled to start at 10:15 a. m. and at nine o'clock the children had gathered in large numbers and were pounding on the doors, seeking admittance. By ten o'clock the house was crowded. The house seats 600 persons. Seven hundred were admitted, the smaller children sitting two in a seat. The children admitted were only a part of the large number who came to see the show and after 700 had passed through the gate, entrance to the house was stopped and hundreds of children were turned away.

This special Saturday morning performance for children has been a regular thing at the Heights Theater for several weeks past and the attendance has been increasing from week to week.

Reports received by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., from the various exchanges of his company show that "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is attracting the attention of many new theaters and is enjoying rebookings in a number of houses which have played this big ten-reel production to crowded houses once before.

"The Web of Desire," in which Ethel Clayton is the star player with Rockcliffe Fellowes leading the cast, will be released by World-Brady during the first week in March. The husband is a suddenly affluent water power expert from the West, whose New York associates seek to oust him from the company and ruin him. They very nearly succeed by getting control of the wife's stock through a subterfuge, but she realizes the true condition in time to avert financial disaster and the loss of the man she loves.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Four Screens Used at Big Show

APPROXIMATELY sixty-five thousand people saw "Snow White" shown on four screens simultaneously, January 27 and 28, in the huge Convention hall at Kansas City, which accommodates an audience of 20,000 persons. The Paramount version of the fairy tale, in which Marguerite Clark is featured, was selected for the exhibition by the Kansas City Star, one of the country's largest newspapers, and host to the public at the free photoplay party.

The big convention hall in Kansas City where half a million people saw a photoplay on four screens and the men who put the big show over. In the center, Frank L. Newman, manager of the Royal and Regent Theaters, managing director of the event, and (at left) Albert D. Flintom, Paramount manager, and (at right) Lee D. Balsly, Paramount publicity director.

Frank L. Newman, manager of the Royal and Regent Theaters of Kansas City, where Paramount Pictures are shown, was the man selected to stage and work out the details of this difficult undertaking. The use of four screens, each showing simultaneously the same production necessitated special precaution. In order that the action on each screen might synchronize perfectly with the special music arranged for the production and supplied by a full symphony orchestra inside the hollow screens, and conducted by Mr. Forbstein, each of the four projecting machines were perfectly timed to mechanical accuracy and the motors wired in series and driven from a single source and so controlled that in case of accident affecting one of them, all would stop and resume at the same instant and if for any reason one of the prints needed to be cut, the same change was made in the others, thus securing a smooth, even and identical projection viewed from any corner of the hall. Four prints of the production were necessary to accomplish these ends.

For the performance the Star had installed in the hall a large pipe organ which rendered the music in connection with the orchestra. Eleven performances were given.

Exhibitors regard it as significant that a leading metropolitan newspaper should conceive the idea of choosing a photoplay as the most acceptable form of entertainment, and to invite the entire population of a great city and the surrounding communities to attend its presentation.

At each performance there was read from the platform a telegram to the people of Kansas City from Miss Clark. Credit for the success of this party is also due to the efforts of Albert D. Flintom, manager of the Paramount exchange in Kansas City, and Lee D. Balsly, publicity director of the Paramount exchange, who was assistant to Mr. Newman, in the carrying out of this project.

The exchange which handles booking for "Snow White" in Kansas City took advantage of the immense advertising value of the affair by running a newspaper display advertisement calling attention to the quality of its pictures. It was addressed to exhibitors, but meant for the public who patronize the showhouses, as well. The Kansas City Feature Film Company handles the Paramount features. A. D. Flinton is president of the company.

Another advertisement which appeared in connection with the free entertainment was that of the Kansas City Machine & Supply Company, announcing that that firm supplied the machines for the performance, and giving the names of the Power, Simplex and Baird machines, which were used at Convention Hall.

How Exhibitor Exploits "The Crisis"

"The Crisis" opened at the beautiful new Grand Central Theater in St. Louis, to an audience that overflowed the theater at both matinee and night—this turnaway business prevailing continuously since the opening.

An elaborate stage setting was provided by Manager Sievers, including several patriotic drops, which ascended, one by one, following the overture, and concluding with a tableau in which two men dressed as Confederate and Union soldiers advanced to the center of the stage, clasped hands and marched off arm in arm, while "The Dove of Peace" flew over head. The ushers were garbed as soldiers of the opposing sides, and the lady attaches of the house attired in costumes of the "sixties." Captain Stanley Huntley Lewis, who has charge of the publicity for "The Crisis" for the state of Missouri under Mr. Sievers, during the past three weeks, has addressed the students of the various high and graded schools of St. Louis, his subjects being "Abraham Lincoln" and the "Crisis." His lectures are illustrated by rapid blackboard sketches.

Captain Lewis is the originator of this style of work, having used it successfully with "The Battle Cry of Peace," in Michigan last winter, and with the "Fall of a Nation" throughout Ohio. He has also been engaged to address the Federation of Women's Clubs of St. Louis, and the various branches of the Y. M. C. A. on "Lincoln," and has also decorated the plate glass mirrors in the lobbies of the Planters, American, Laclede and other leading hotels, and the windows of various local business houses, with large water color pictures of Lincoln, accompanied by appropriate lettering. His automobile, equipped with a rapid fire machine gun, a military bugle blown by the exhaust of the engine, and bearing the portrait of Lincoln and the advertisement of "The Crisis," is also an object of attention in the streets.

Captain Lewis obtained considerable publicity in St. Louis papers lately by offering the machine-gun equipped racer to the police department for the purpose of running down the gangs of auto bandits who are infesting the city.

Aschers Open Thirteenth Chicago House

Four brilliant clusters of lights flashed into view over the tops of other buildings one night recently, near Forty-seventh street and Grand boulevard, in a fashionable residence section of Chicago, and another in the chain of Ascher Brothers' theaters was open for business. Thousands of passengers on the Chicago elevated trains pass by one block away, every hour of the evening, and the lights effectively inform them that the new Metropolitan Theater is nearby.

The Metropolitan is the thirteenth showhouse in the Ascher Brothers' system. Having a location on one of the most-traveled boulevards of the city, it is becoming known rapidly. For a long distance up and down the boulevard the roof lights are visible. Upon approaching the theater the contrast of white tile against the red brick of the exterior, combined with the bright illumination, cannot fail to attract attention. The lights on the front of the building number 3,400, and the colors are varied.

The lobby is decorated in blue and gold, while overhead there rises a pretty concave dome. The lighting scheme centers in the dome. Italian Verdi marble finishes off the walls. The house has a seating capacity of 1,600. Twenty exists are provided. The theater is under the personal management of Harry E. Ascher.

An eight-piece orchestra and pipe organ furnish the music. Admission of 15 cents is charged. The programs consist of Triangle, Paramount, Metro, Fox, Clara Kimball Young and other features.

The public of Chicago always welcomes the opening of a new Ascher house and judging from the business the new theater is doing, this case is no exception.

Advertises on Silver Dollar

An entirely new idea of keeping the good old American dollar in circulation and at the same time attracting a great deal of comment and publicity to his theater was recently inaugurated by C. A. Goding, of the Grand, Genoa, Illinois.

Mr. Goding took a real silver dollar and on the face of it soldered the name of the city. This dollar he passed out to some patron of his theater and announced through the newspapers that he would admit the bearer and a friend to his theater if he but presented the dollar at the theater door.

The whole town was soon examining every silver dollar they got into their possession to see if it had the name of the town on it, and as soon as it had been passed back to the management it was immediately put into circulation once more. This idea was kept going for two weeks and created a great deal of newspaper comment and attracted much publicity to the theater. On Wednesday evenings the management allowed the bearer of the dollar to bring his or her sweetheart and on Monday evenings, to bring the whole family.

"The main object" the management said, "is to keep the dollar traveling at home. It should not be spent out of town nor given to a person who never spends a cent. We desire that everyone get action on this dollar. Keep watch for it."

The Metropolitan, splendid new photoplay house opened in Chicago by Ascher Brothers.

Evelyn Greeley is now with World Film, playing opposite Carlyle Blackwell in "Glass Houses."

Edwin Carewe has left Metro and is now with A. H. Jacobs, directing Jane Grey.

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

THE matter of Sunday pictures has been made an issue at the polls in the election about to be held at Sturgis, Michigan.

The proprietor of a Brooklyn theater has been fined $250 for discriminating against a United States sailor in uniform.

The Smith Amusement Company of Alliance, Ohio, owning the New Columbia and Ideal Theaters, has introduced the Triangle program at its two houses.

E. J. Merlin has been appointed manager of the T. and D. Theater, Berkeley, California, succeeding Mr. Northy. The T. and D. is the leading photo house in that city, seating over 1,000 people.

Oklahoma has placed the official ban on all "sex," "vampire" and "birth control" films. Hereafter films of the above mentioned types can not be shown in any part of the state under any circumstances.

In Johannisburg, South Africa, places known as the bioscope tea rooms are very popular and are crowded each noon hour with people who wish to have their lunch and see a film at the same time.

The Missoula Amusement Company of Missoula, Montana, has acquired control of three theaters in that city, the Empress, the Bijou and the Isis. The structures are being renovated and remodeled.

San José, the capital of Costa Rica, a city of 40,000 inhabitants, has six picture theaters, which are open to the public daily. In three of them there is a full orchestral accompaniment, and in the others a pianist only.

The City Opera House, Frederick, Maryland, will be taken over May 1 by a new firm, known as W. S. Bennett & Company, with William S. Bennett as manager. Vaudeville and feature pictures will be the policy.

The Entertainment Tax as passed in Australia included the tax on the sixpence tickets, but the government decided to exempt the tickets in this grade and to tax those selling for one shilling and more one penny each.

Now that the Lighting Board has removed all restrictions on the use of electric light and power, the theaters of Sydney, Australia, have taken on their old time appearance, the fronts once more being brilliantly illuminated.

A beefsteak dinner will be the object of attention at the first conclave of the Film Salesmen's Association of New York City. The film distributing aggregation will gather at Keen's chop house, in Forty-fourth street, February 17, to appease their appetites.

Under cover of a blizzard, safe blowers entered two picture theaters at Uniontown, Pennsylvania, and escaped with about $1,500 and some papers. The noise of the storm is thought to have prevented the explosions being heard.

In an address before the Cleveland Screen Club, the opinion was expressed by T. A. Robertson, managing editor of the Leader and News, that the problem of censorship will work itself out rapidly toward a settlement satisfactory to both the public and moving picture interests.

F. W. Bettes, a moving picture man of Buffalo, New York, went to Depew, New York, at the request of the school authorities to conduct a public picture entertainment at the high school. The films chosen for the occasion were "Enoch Arden" and "Ramona," and a Mary Pickford subject.

At least fifteen big picture companies are operating in Jacksonville, Florida, this winter, and some are headed by such stars as Ethel Barrymore, Pauline Frederick, Victor Moore and Mary Pickford. They not only advertise Jacksonville to the world, but all members are good spenders.

Plans for the construction of a $100,000 theater at Springfield, Missouri, to adjoin one of similar value now owned by them in that city, have been approved by Grubel Brothers of Kansas City. The new building will be used as a picture theater, while the present house will be used as a vaudeville house.

One of the largest fires in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in a decade destroyed the Grand Opera House block and the Lyric Theater, moving picture house. The two playhouses were operated by the Harry Davis Enterprises, of which Harry Davis is the managing director. The company's loss is placed at over $300,000.

It is reported that the compulsory closing of the picture theaters in France every Tuesday is causing much apprehension among those who desire to suppress excessive drinking. The experience of that country is that the exhibitor's loss is the tavern-keeper's gain, proving forcibly that motion pictures and drink are real enemies.

Commodore and Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton and a party were guests of New York's Rialto recently to see the first public presentation of "The Diary of a Puppy," one of Mrs. Blackton's country life series. The picture was taken on the Blackton estate at Oyster Bay and shows the "perfect day" of a mischievous collie pup.

About twenty picture stars, among them King Baggot, were in attendance at a testimonial and benefit performance given at the Colonial Theater, Boston, to J. A. Eslow, formerly New England manager of the Universal exchange in Boston. The benefit was given under the personal auspices of the Association of Film Exchange Managers of New England.

Postmaster Murphy, of Cleveland, Ohio, is encountering a new difficulty in handling films by parcel post, under a ruling that recently went into effect. The parcel post regulations provide that the packages shall not weigh over fifty pounds, while many of the films offered for mail transportation run as high as sixty-five pounds, and cannot be accepted.

Building Inspector W. D. Harper of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, has ordered an inspection of all moving picture theaters in the city to ascertain if there are any violations of the building laws. Inspectors, examining exits have found that access to some of the houses is not sufficiently easy. Motion picture exhibitors have been co-operating in the work.

The Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs, through its civic committee, is devoting February and March to a study of the moving picture as a fine art. Weekly bulletins are issued calling attention to productions deemed meritable beyond the ordinary. Mary Pickford's "The Pride of the Clan" and "Blind Justice" are features to which special mention has been given.

The public schools of Stone Mountain, Georgia, have gone into the exhibiting business. Programs are given for the public on Friday and Saturday of each week. The teachers and pupils do the operating, furnish the music and act as ushers. The purpose is to supply the community with a high class of entertainment and help the schools educationally and financially.

The first anniversary of the organization of Local No. 419, Stage Employes and Motion Picture Machine Operators' Union, of Decatur, Illinois, was celebrated recently on the stage at the Lincoln Square Theater. About one hundred were present, including members of the organization, owners and managers of theaters, members of the musicians' union and of the company playing at the Empress.

Negotiations looking to the erection of probably sixteen theaters in as many Oklahoma towns, to cost altogether $200,000, have been made known by L. W. Brophy, who will shortly build a theater at Claremore, Oklahoma. The Claremore house will have a seating capacity of 800. The theaters in the proposed chain will be located in towns of a size to support only one house and will cost about $12,500 each.

The main auditorium of the Majestic Theater, Jackson, Mississippi, one of the largest motion picture playhouses in the south, was completely gutted by fire January 29. The loss is estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The flames were confined to the auditorium and did not reach the offices of the theater. The film of "The Crisis," which was to have its first production in the theater, was destroyed.

Charles A. Pheeney, for the past eight years twenty-four-hour agent of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, has been appointed treasurer of the Paris Theater, Denver Colorado, which was purchased recently by Swanson, Nolan and Baxter. Mr. Baxter at present operates the Isis Theater here, and Swanson and Nolan control one of the largest picture supply houses in the West. The Paris will be renovated and redecorated throughout, and will show features, beginning with Annette Kellermann in "A Daughter of the Gods." Frank Hall is manager of the house.

Life is hardly worth while for Joseph Marovitch and Michael and George Gabey, three youngsters living at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. They were caught committing petty thefts and taken before Mayor Harvey of Hazleton for punishment and reprimand. They were sentenced not to visit a picture show in a year. They declared that they got the idea of stealing and afterward running away, while attending a picture show.

Because of its rapidly increasing size, the music library at the Rialto of New York has had to be moved to larger quarters on the third floor of the theater. The walls of a capacious room there have been lined with shelves from floor to ceiling and the task of moving the music from the quarters of Hugo Riesenfeld, the musical director, up to its new location has been begun. This library is the most complete of its sort in the country.

A bill regulating the operation of moving picture machines and licensing the operators, in Texas, to be advocated as a state law, has been completed by insurance men of Fort Worth, Texas. It is deemed an emergency clause to become operative immediately upon passage. Under its provisions every operator must procure a license, must have served six months' apprenticeship and undergo a severe examination.

The Strand Theater, New York, presented the Japanese actor, Sessue Hayakawa, on its screen during the week closing February 3, in the Lasky film, "Each to His Kind." A newly arrived lot of war pictures taken on the French front were also shown. These were official pictures of "The Battle of Picardie." A comedy and the Strand topical review completed the program.

The Paris Theater, Durham, North Carolina, has changed ownership, having been sold by the Piedmont Amusement Company to R. D. Craver, of Charlotte. The manager, Paul V. Phillips, will remain with the new owner. Mr. Craver owns a string of picture theaters, and it is his intention to remodel the Paris in the spring. The name will be changed from the Paris to the Broadway, that being the name of all of Mr. Craver's other theaters.

The national colors, together with a soldier defending the flag in battle, a background of bursting bombs, smoking cannon and fighting men, made up an exhibitor's page advertisement for "The Fall of a Nation" at its exhibition by the Knickerbocker Theater of Nashville, Tennessee. The display was run in the newspaper of largest circulation in the city. The two-color lay-out, with red, white and blue, was one of the most conspicuous things in the newspaper.

Notwithstanding that sixty-five thousand people of Kansas City, Missouri, saw the four-screen performance of "Snow White," the Marguerite Clark feature, at Convention Hall, under the auspices of The Kansas City Star, while many others saw the picture during its three-weeks' run at the Royal Theater, the film was shown again by the Warwick Theater, at Thirty-ninth and Main streets. A packed house paid to see the film which had been shown free for two days.

For the purpose of promoting industrial safety in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry will use motion pictures depicting the heavy penalties of unsafe practices in industrial work. This work will be carried on extensively. Labor Commissioner Jackson announces that more than 2,500 workers were killed and almost 250,000 others were injured in Pennsylvania alone during 1916 as a result of industrial accidents.

A parade of the Spanish-American War Veterans' Sons' Drum and Bugle corps held in Portland, Oregon, got so much publicity in the newspapers and attracted so much attention among the public, all in connection with the screen play, "Pearl of the Army," by Pathe, that its current presentation at the Hippodrome Theater is breaking all records for Hippodrome attendance. The parade was engineered for purposes of publicity by W. W. Kofeldt, of Pathe's Portland office. He is some engineer.

The half dozen theaters in Washington, D. C., which have co-operated with the Federation of Women's Clubs in conducting free model movie matinees during the last few weeks, now charge admission to these special children's performances. The success or failure of the experiment in future depends on the box office receipts. Charges at pay matinees are five cents for children and ten cents for adults who accompany them.

Judge A. P. Tugwell of Los Angeles, vice-president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and exhibitor director in the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Lee A. Ochs, president of the M. P. E. L. of A., and Thomas Furniss of Duluth, member of the executive board, were in Chicago during the week of January 28 in connection with League affairs and the Illinois exhibitors' election and the coming Chicago convention in July.

An injunction restraining the city of Fort Worth, Texas, from enforcing the local censorship ordinance to prevent a performance of "The Little Girl Next Door" was granted, and later withdrawn, upon request of A. Zucarre, a theater owner. Mr. Zucarre filed a suit for damages of $400 against the city also for stopping a performance of the picture. The damage suit was withdrawn after an agreement had been reached with the city, the owner of the theater consenting not to show the film pending a ruling on the case in the higher courts.

The Rialto's offerings to the New York public for the week of February 4 included "Polly Redhead," by Bluebird, and Charlie Chaplin in "Easy Street." The Bluebird picture is one of the "Pollyooly" stories by Edgar Jepson. E. Alexander Powell, war correspondent and photographer, lectured daily for two weeks on his experiences along the Italian front. New pictures from the war zone, loaned to Mr. Powell by the allied governments, were shown by way of introduction to each of his three daily talks.

Secretary of State Fulton of Ohio has authorized the incorporation of the National Society for the Suppression of Immoral Motion Pictures. The society is designed to create sentiment against the exhibition of "immoral, obscene, indecent and suggestive" motion pictures in public show houses throughout the United States. It is claimed that the society will be national in scope. Every State is to have its organization. Temporary headquarters are at the Hotel Metropole, Cincinnati. Officers are: Capt. Frederick F. Stoll, president; Louis G. Bernard, vice-president; Joseph Kolb, secretary, and Charles C. Maddox, treasurer.

The New Garrick Theater of Minneapolis, Minnesota, recently raised its prices from ten cents to fifteen cents and has made a thorough success with the move. The management instituted a carefully planned campaign of advertising upon the project and learned from the patrons that they were willing to pay the additional prices should the theater continue to run a high class of pictures. Despite strong competition, the New Garrick did capacity business at the new price, starting with Jack Pickford and Louise Huff in "Great Expectations," a Paramount film.

The testimony given before the legislative committee on moving pictures in New York, by Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, who cited figures to show the average profits or losses of theaters, has set exhibitors to asking "What are the facts." President Ochs contended that the average house in New York City merely "breaks about even, if it doesn't actually lose money." Here are the figures given for the average house with a seating capacity of 600:

Income (exclusive of summer) from $550 to $650 a week.

Total expenses from $496.16 to $588.16 a week, exclusive of money spent for coal.

Profit, $53.84 to $61.84 a week.

Mr. Ochs explained that in the summer many houses are closed and some kept open to run at a loss.

"Secret Kingdom" Box Office Asset

So great a drawing card has "The Secret Kingdom" proved in all the twenty-four Marcus Loew theaters, for which it originally was booked and where it has now been running for three weeks, that Mr. Loew has contracted for this new Vitagraph 15-episode adventure serial for three more houses.

"The Secret Kingdom" will hereafter be shown, for three days an episode, at the Murray Hill Theater, Forty-second street and Lexington avenue, New York; Loew's New Colonial, in Peekskill, New York, and Teller's Broadway, at Howard avenue and Broadway, Brooklyn.

Additions to Staff of Vitagraph Exchange

George Balsdon, manager of the New York Exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has engaged Harold Spector, formerly associated with the World Film Corporation and the International Film Service, on special statistical work, analyzing and tabulating the records of the New York branch.

Charles R. Letts, formerly salesman with the General Film Company, has been engaged by Manager Balsdon for Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. as salesman and will travel the up-Hudson cities in Mr. Balsdon's territory.

Ora Carew, the Keystone comedy star who is featured in the productions directed by Walter Wright, may soon desert the screen for the operatic stage.

Blockade Stops Film Exports

The big topic of the day among American producing companies is the situation developed by the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany. The Kaiser's announcement that unrestricted submarine warfare would be resorted to in attempting a blockade of allied shipping caused less apprehension among the exporting film companies than the break ensuing between the countries.

The existence of some American companies is threatened. Certain firms have depended almost wholly on foreign business, while most of the large producers have obtained from twenty to forty per cent of their gross business from abroad. If these companies find it impossible to export negatives, a loss of from thirty to forty per cent of their business may result.

A few producers believe that Germany will not be able to enforce the blockade and that enough films can be shipped to insure them retaining their business. Higher insurance rates must of course be paid.

Since the war, attendance at moving picture theaters abroad has greatly increased, due to the general need of some suitable amusement. Pathe's business with Germany has not been interrupted until now. Metro, Thanhouser and Universal have been large exporters. The outcome of the present exporting situation is wholly uncertain.

Frohman Gets Joe Farnham

President William L. Sherrill of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, is sponsor for the interesting news that there has been emblazoned on the door of an inner office of his organization, the name Joseph W. Farnham with the comprehensive titles of business manager, assistant to the president and director plenepotentiary in exploitation of super-feature productions.

In speaking of the acquisition of Mr. Farnham's servives, Mr. Sherrill said:

This is but the beginning of the activities of our company in the acquisition of a personnel such as will maintain and build further the prestige and standards which the Frohman Amusement Corporation has risen rightfully to enjoy through such past successes as "Jaffrey," "The Conquest of Canaan," and "The Witching Hour." "Joe" Farnham's career in the motion picture industry has been one especially befitting him for his new important duties.

Farnham has been associated with the All Star Feature Corporation as director of advertising and publicity and as general manager and director. He was also manager of advertising, director of publicity and assistant to the management of the Lubin Manufacturing Company. He later opened offices under his own name to exploit special motion picture productions upon the independent or territorial rights basis of sale. The broadening of the Farnham activities to include the exclusive management of theatrical and motion picture stars, the conducting of an advertising agency catering exclusively to motion picture clients, and especially designed stunts for players' personal publicity led to the merging of the Farnham interests with the Amalgamated Photo-Play Service Inc., of which corporation he became president and general manager from its inception. Mr. Farnham has numerous ideas under his hat for Frohman publicity.

VIGOROUS LINDER CAMPAIGN

Essanay Has Corps of Special Agents Who Will Aid Exhibitors Locally—Pay Half of Newspaper Advertising

Essanay announces the appointment of special representatives in all parts of the United States and Canada, who in close harmony with the K. E. S. E. organization will endeavor to bring about a closer co-operation between exhibitor and manufacturer.

E. R. Pearson, sales manager Max Linder comedies, is in charge of this exhibitor-producer campaign. Arrangements are being made with exhibitors whereby Essanay will pay for one-half of the newspaper advertising used by exhibitors on the first two Max Linder comedies. Mr. Pearson has issued a statement to exhibitors, in part, as follows:

The honest manufacturer's interest in the industry is identically that of the honest exhibitor. The patron must be amused, entertained, his intelligence catered to and broadened, not insulted, imposed upon or bored.

It shall also be the duty of the K. E. S. E. representatives to solicit suggestions. Exhibitors know a lot of things, which, if known to the manufacturers would curtail the making of poor attractions.

Since we announced Essanay's co-operative advertising plan, we have been visited by many newspaper men all of whom assure us for ourselves and our customers every co-operation and assistance.

ENID BENNETT'S DEBUT

First Showing Before American Audience Draws Praise of Writers and Critics for Australian Girl in New Ince Film.

Eight hundred writers, scenario folk and critics saw the initial showing of Enid Bennett's first starring vehicle, "Princess of the Dark," at the Strand Theater, New York, February 2.

The young Australian girl who will soon play to patrons of the Triangle-Kay-Bee program registered a genuine hit in the role of Fay Herron, the blind girl who lives in an ideal world of her own imagination.

Representatives of all of the important motion picture journals in the United States attended the performance, and there were also a number of staff writers from leading weekly and monthly magazines. One of the most interested spectators of "Princess of the Dark" was Basata Koomar Roy, the noted Hindu critic and biographer of Tagore.

"At the threshold of her career she has stepped into the ranks of the greatest drawing stars in the business," declared the manager of one of the world's best known motion picture theaters. "I could wish no better guarantee of capacity audiences in my house than Miss Bennett will give me—provided, of course, that she is properly advertised."

Dixie Producer in Field

A film of southern life, which will be the first production of the Dixie Film and Producing Company, is being made at Charlotte, North Carolina, where the new company has established headquarters. A studio has been equipped and the firm will operate permanently in North Carolina. The first film to be produced will be entitled "Down in Old Carolina." Nelson Harris, a northern moving picture man, is the director of the feature. It will be four thousand feet in length.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTNUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONOON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 6411 HOLLYWOOD BLVD., OON MEANEY, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00

Canada - -	Per year $4.00
Foreign - -	Per year 5.00
Single copy - - - -	.15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY. Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.
If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 17, 1917 Number 7

Permanency

EVEN today, in the midst of our extraordinary activities, we frequently hear some benighted layman exclaim, "Oh, this moving picture fad will be over one of these days, and something else will take its place!" Since logic has little place in the average person's habit of thought, we must sometimes contend with utterances of that kind, which are generally delivered in a loud and positive manner, as though the speaker had some inside information on the subject.

While most film men will have no difficulty in disposing of such assertions by reason of their superior knowledge of motion picture foundations, once in a while we actually find an exhibitor whose own mental attitude is doubtful. This occasional type of exhibitor, while perhaps he does not voice his pessimism, conducts his business as though he were determined to "make hay while the sun shines" and "get his while the getting is good." These business principles, while quite serviceable in extracting money from an easy patronage, do not establish an industry. The "clean up and get out" theory is successful only in fly-by-night enterprises. Therefore we must assume that a few exhibitors, and quite a number of laymen, still regard the motion picture as evanescent—a fad—something that will reach its height (if it has not already done so) and then recede into obscurity.

It is unnecessary to say, to the men who know, that this attitude is all wrong. And we say it is wrong not merely because we are in the business ourselves, and expect to continue in it for the rest of our lives, but because plain reason and logic prove it wrong.

There are certain forms of entertainment or amusement that are always popular and always will be. There are other forms that pass through waves of popularity, which may be repeated regularly at intervals of several years; between these waves are periods of depression during which the particular form of amusement almost disappears. Unthinking persons do not discriminate between these permanent and evanescent types; but study and analysis show that there is a sharp line of distinction between them, governed by the simplest of natural laws.

Roller skating is a good example of the faddish, temporary type of amusement. In spite of its athletic features, and the more or less palatial rinks devoted to its patrons, it cannot maintain interest for much more than a year at a time. Then it vanishes, and does not return until time has made it new again.

Dancing, though always popular, has distinct waves of favor, which are invariably occasioned by the "discovery" of one or more new steps. Leave it to itself, without any innovations, and it speedily settles down to a mere incident in a world of work and pleasure.

Even vaudeville, ever changing though it be, cannot keep its popularity without the constant injection of novelty. The vaudeville managers are kept ever at their wits' ends to provide new ideas; knowing that when the supply of new stuff fails, the entertainment itself will be through.

Story reading, on the other hand, is at once the simplest and the most permanent of entertainment forms. Who can doubt that stories short and long will still be written and printed and eagerly read twenty or a hundred or a thousand years from now?

And drama is just as permanent, being but the human presentment of the story form. Types of drama may meet disapproval and failure; dramatic producers may lose their sense of proportion and propriety and grow cynical about their art; but drama itself must persist forever, because by its nature it is but a vehicle for things forever new.

That is the secret of permanency in entertainment—perpetual newness. The form of amusement that endures forever must be but a vehicle—a medium—something that serves but to carry an idealistic impression that changes constantly. Such is the printed page; such is music; such is drama; such, most emphatically, is the narrow strip of photographs that we call a motion picture film.

The entertainment that depends upon repetition, that consists of one thing over and over again, must fail of perpetual popularity. The thing that is forever new is forever popular.

People who regard the motion picture as a definite, specific thing must be lacking in the very rudiments of analysis. As well declare that books and magazines and paintings and photographs are fads that will pass, as to suspect the permanency of the living screen.

There is too much pessimism, too much doubt, too much suspicion in the picture business. Those few who have abundant enthusiasm and clear vision should be given means to distribute those characteristics among their fellows.

Don't Feed the Green-Eyed Monster

"THEY want to cry a little, smile a little, and then go home."

That quotation, from one of the biggest and keenest producers in the business, expresses about the sum and substance of the problem of pleasing the public. There is, of course, more to it than that. The matter is an extremely complicated one. But his words express about all the pure fact that has come down through the sieves of time and experience. The biggest spectacles as well as the smallest plays are variations of that principle.

Exhibitors have stated to MOTOGRAPHY very seriously and emphatically that the more they ask their patrons what films to run, the more they are "up in the air" in regard to the question. Individuals do not seem to be able to help the exhibitor in determining the taste of the public as a whole.

But you can be sure of one thing in making your future bookings. Unless you are in a low-class down-town section, clean plays are the only ones that will make your house a permanent institution. "Morbid sex stories have lost their appeal," said a prominent exhibitor a few days ago. "They want thrills, yes, but they want clean adventure and plays that don't leave a bad taste in the mouth."

There is nothing particularly new in all this, but there are still many theater men who have not seen that their patronage depends in the long run on the plays of the better, cleaner, stronger sort, and not on the salacious and sensational showings that attract in the main the scum of the locality. And unless your locality is mostly scum you cannot afford to have that element in your house, even once.

Make your theater appeal to the better classes and the other people will come. But the reverse is never true. It all depends upon your neighborhood. Analize your clientele.

You probably remember the story of the lover of painting who asked Whistler what he mixed his paints with to make them so rich and beautiful. "With brains, sir."

If the producer mixes brains with his productions; if the exhibitor mixes brains with his bookings and his advertising, the business is bound for peace and prosperity, in spite of the rumblings of war. For brains see that clean pictures are the preventive of censorship and the insurance of business that endures. Present plays that are ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths pure and the women's clubs will back you, parents will send their youngsters, and your house will become a neighborhood institution instead of a dime-trap baited with canker-red paper and a gaudy lobby.

Mr. Exhibitor, stop and think. Are you feeding the green-eyed monster of censorship or are you helping to starve him?

Remember that, after all, "they want to cry a little, smile a little, and then go home." And that means that in the main and in the long run, they want to see plays that are CLEAN.

Advance glimpses of "The Courage of Silence," Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, starring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey, and released through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. February 12. The maiden performance of the play on a screen was at the Rialto in New York during the week of January 28.

Vitagraph Basis of Strand Program

The new Strand Theater in Philadelphia, considered one of the finest theaters in America, has signed a contract for Blue Ribbon features as the basis of its amusement program. The contract, which has just been closed by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., was obtained by J. S. Hebrew, manager of the Philadelphia exchange of that company.

This is said to be the first Philadelphia theater which has signed a yearly contract for at least a three days' run of any one picture program, so that when the Strand contracted for Vitagraph productions a notable exception in local customs was made.

Three days a week are to be devoted by the Strand to Vitagraph productions, with the other three for open booking. That is the contract arrangement; but there is a proviso that, if the Strand desires, it may retain the Vitagraph features for a full week.

The first Blue Ribbon release that will be shown at the Strand is "Indiscretion," featuring Lillian Walker. It will be followed by the E. H. Sothern film, "The Man of Mystery." All the special productions of Greater Vitagraph, the Strand has announced, will be shown there.

Piccadilly Runs "Skinner's Dress Suit"

For the first time in its history, the Piccadilly Theater, Rochester, N. Y., Walter Hoff Seeley, manager, has departed from its usual policy, shelved its regular program feature for three days and is playing instead, February 8, 9 and 10, Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit," released through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

Mr. Seeley is an ultra-progressive manager and Piccadilly shows to a class of spectators far above the point of mediocrity. The Piccadilly is the only motion picture theater in the state of New York charging a uniform admission price of 50 cents. Mr. Seeley is able to get this price of admission because he has established the reputation of showing pictures of super-excellence. When he saw "Skinner's Dress Suit," screened for him at the suggestion of Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay's New York Branch Manager, William Raynor, he decided immediately that he had a feature worthy of the Piccadilly and for the first time in the history of that noted theater, the regular program was put aside for a three days' showing of "Skinner's Dress Suit." The story of this play is by Henry Irving Dodge of Saturday Evening Post fame.

NEW RELEASING SCHEME

Williamson Brothers Announce Intention to Show Undersea Films Simultaneously in Cities Abroad and in United States

Long considered plans of the Williamson Brothers for establishing their own distributing organization to handle their submarine pictures have taken shape and the first announcement of the new release arrangements carries the information that in future the undersea films will be released simultaneously in cities all over the world. Representatives have already been sent to foreign countries to carry out the program.

In explaining the underlying principles of their innovation, George Williamson, secretary of the Submarine Film Corporation, and active business head of the Williamson Brothers' interests, said:

> Ever since my brother and myself have been identified with the motion picture industry, we have been impressed by the fact that American manufacturers almost invariably exploit and market their productions in this country for a period of time before they are released in the foreign field. We believe that this method reacts against the best results being obtained from the exploitation in foreign countries. Therefore we have decided to try the experiment of simultaneously presenting our future big productions in all the large cities of the world on a given date.
>
> We believe that the accumulative publicity effect and advertising value which will be derived from the simultaneous presentation of a big master picture in 25 or 30 of the world's largest cities, will have a decided financial advantage for everyone concerned. We intend to jump right over the group of middlemen, commission brokers, and buyers' agents.

Finkelstein & Ruben, controlling several of the largest motion picture theaters in Minneapolis and St. Paul, have just signed a contract with W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., for the use of Greater Vitagraph features and short reel subjects in all their houses.

SURGEON-ACTOR IS PRAISED

Dr. H. J. Haiselden, Eugenic Advocate, Receives Letters from Exhibitors and Public Commending Film, "The Black Stork"

As a result of the notices in hundreds of daily newspapers throughout the country that Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, the eminent Chicago surgeon, takes the leading part in the eugenic photoplay, "The Black Stork," Dr. Haiselden has been requested in the last few days by no less than sixteen anxious mothers and fathers to perform sterilization operations upon defective male children who are well along in years. In every case Dr. Haiselden has advised that the family physician be consulted and, if a sterilization operation is necessary, the regular family physician will perform the operation or will arrange to have it performed.

Dr. Haiselden is much elated over these requests as he looks upon them as proof conclusive that the public at large, and especially that portion of the public directly affected, endorses his eugenic stand that defective babies should be allowed to die at birth. This is the message carried to the public through the agency of "The Black Stork."

Exhibitor Commends Dr. Haiselden

Not only has Dr. Haiselden received requests to perform operations but he has received hundreds of letters from all over the country commending him for his courage in taking a radical stand in the face of criticism by many of his medical colleagues.

Aaron Brylawski, an exhibitor of Washington, D. C., writes:

> Your decision is appreciated by every one who has had experience in defective cases. I don't believe you will find one among those who have criticised you that would undertake the burden of raising such a child.

Professor Irving Fisher, of the Department of Political Economy of Yale University, says:

> I am greatly interested in eugenics and your stand on the defective baby question. I believe the custom you started will do good.

Adrian B. Smith, of the Packard Motor Car Company, Broadway and Sixty-fourth street, New York, writes:

> I admire you enormously for your courageous action. If we had more men like you among us far better this world would be. I hope the yelps of the ignorants will not affect your noble work to the human race in face of this bigoted opposition.

Announcing Harlequin Comedies

Harlequin comedies will shortly make their bow to His Excellency, the Exhibitor. Harlequin pictures will be comedies with counterplots, it is promised. The counterplot is there to please His Majesty's subjects, the Particular Picture Public, who are believed by the makers of Harlequin comedies to demand comedies without "slapstick" and "rough stuff." The Famous Stars Pictures Corporation will produce the new comedy films.

The forthcoming announcements of the company will name the actors who are to make up the company of Harlequin comedians and comediennes. A different diet in the matter of comedies will be offered the public, the advance press notices state.

Hyson, Derr & Company, a New York banking and brokerage house, is representing the company financially. The Famous Stars Pictures Corporation plans to produce a number of super-features.

Bessie Love Sings in Opera

Bessie Love, the Triangle-Fine Arts favorite, made her first appearances in grand opera recently, when she sang in "One Night in Venice," an opera written by Manfredi Chiaffarelli.

Her voice has been under the care of Constantino, the noted grand opera tenor, who has made his home in recent years in Los Angeles and the large audiences at both performances agreed with the little screen star's teaching that she is a distinct "find" in the musical world. Bessie sang the role of a milk boy in support of Constantino who took the leading part. In the cast there were also many noted musical artists.

Among the large resident group of picture players in and around Los Angeles, the advent of Miss Love into grand opera has been cause for felicitations.

The rehearsals of the opera were under the direction of Professor M. S. de Lara, a Spanish musician of much note. The ballet was made up of the prettiest high school girls from Los Angeles county—who have voices as well as pulchritude—while the chorus was recruited from the promising pupils in the musical conservatories of Los Angeles. The production of this opera was partially a municipal affair since the town of Venice has voted a sum of money to assist in its production, while the sale of tickets was very heavy under the patronage of local social leaders.

In front of your left eye is the captivating Clara Williams, Triangle-Ince luminary. Bessie Love of Fine Arts is in the center and in "The Doll Shop" and before your sparkling right eye is Margery Wilson, Ince sparkler, reflecting.

Goldwyn Starts Production

FIRST MAE MARSH AND MAXINE ELLIOTT PICTURES UNDER WAY

Mary Garden, internationally celebrated Grand Opera star, who has signed with Goldwyn Pictures.

MAE MARSH finds herself right at home in the new environment of the Goldwyn studios, at Fort Lee, New Jersey, where the first Goldwyn production is already well under way.

Nearly hidden in furs, Miss Marsh arrived at the studio among the earliest on a Monday morning recently when Director Ralph W. Ince called the first company of players into action. She was accompanied by her sister, Marguerite Marsh, who is to play the sister role opposite Mae Marsh.

It is now two months since the organization and incorporation of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and the initial production has been in the making for more than a fortnight, in the Solax studio.

Exhibitors accustomed to seeing Mae Marsh and Bobby Harron playing together on the screen will be eager to know the new leading man in her first Goldwyn picture.

His name is Vernon Steele; he is young, tall and handsome and he is already well-known in many parts of the United States where he played as leading man for Billie Burke in "Love Watches." Mr. Steele is in his twenties and first came to this country with Marie Tempest. In England he has played Shakespearean roles and in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's most ambitious musical production, "The Mind-The-Paint Girl."

Obtaining a leading man for Miss Marsh was much more difficult a task than some might imagine. Dozens of handsome young actors were interviewed. It is the producer's prediction now that Vernon Steele will prove popular in screenland.

Dwan Directs Maxine Elliott

Maxine Elliott began her career as a Goldwyn screen star when she faced the camera in the Fort Lee studios on February 15. For her debut on the screen she is playing under Director Allan Dwan.

Miss Elliott's first screen play is a work of Louis K. Anspacher, author of "The Unchastened Woman," one of last season's dramatic successes in New York. The theme or character of Miss Elliott's first picture is not revealed.

"I have gone literally through a breakneck experience," says Miss Elliott in telling of her preparations for her screen work. The requirements of the play in which I am to appear call for a very large number of costume changes and gowns. How many? Thirty-one gowns up to this moment and unquestionably there will be still others as the picture is developed. The task of obtaining these thirty-one gowns in twenty-seven days was one calculated to test the patience and endurance of anyone obliged to go through such an ordeal."

Noted Author Writes Elliott Play

Louis K. Anspacher, author and playwright, whose latest work has been the Maxine Elliott production, has taken the oath of allegiance to Goldwyn Pictures. He has written an original play for Miss Elliott.

Mr. Anspacher has a variety of affiliations with the theater. He has been identified with the dramatic course at Columbia University. In at least one of his plays he has had the courage to desert the more critical seat of authorship and become an actor. In addition, he is related by marriage to the drama, his wife being Katherine Kidder, the well-known actress. Mr. Anspacher's play for Miss Elliott has just been delivered into the hands of the Goldwyn advisory board of authors.

As announced by MOTOGRAPHY last week, Mary

A brand new picture of Mae Marsh, Goldwyn's mighty little star.

Garden, international opera star, is about to begin an engagement with Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Announcement of Miss Garden's contract with Goldwyn gave rise to speculation on the part of metropolitan editors and critics. Both the New York Herald and the New York Tribune ventured the prediction that her first Goldwyn picture would be Strauss' sensational "Salome," in which she achieved tremendous operatic success.

Photographs of Miss Garden making her contract were taken at the precise moment when she had written her signature and passed the paper to Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn. The acceptance and signing took place in Miss Garden's apartment in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Her plans for going to Paris to be fitted for the gowns she will wear before the camera have been interrupted by the breaking off of diplomatic relations of Berlin and this country.

Opera Singer's Publicity Stunts

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation in obtaining a contract with Mary Garden has obtained one of America's most admired personalities of grand opera. When Miss Garden came to America to be the chief star of the Hammerstein operatic ventures she was already established as a great operatic and dramatic artist in France. Immediately she challenged the attention and gained the friendship of Americans.

It has been said of Miss Garden that she possesses as keen a knowledge of how to hold the public's attention as the redoubtable Colonel Roosevelt.

Miss Garden's publicity escapades are historic, which certainly does not lessen her value in films. Her most recent exploit on the front pages followed her appearance at midnight in a tramps' retreat in Chicago, where she sang for several hundred specimens of bedraggled humanity.

Exhibitors Watch Madge Kennedy

Now that Goldwyn Pictures announces Madge Kennedy, the farce comedienne, in screen plays and prepares to have her begin work in the spring on her first picture, there is speculation among exhibitors as to the type of pictures in which she will be starred.

Goldwyn did not have to wait more than a few hours after announcing her engagement before receiving widespread confirmation of her popularity.

"Miss Kennedy is a remarkable farce comedienne on the stage, as everyone knows, but I venture the prediction that she will be one of the ablest comediennes the screen has ever had," says Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn. He has been asked if Miss Kennedy will appear in two-reel or multi-reel comedies.

Helen Holmes in Vaudeville

Helen Holmes and J. P. McGowan will appear at the Pantages houses in their respective roles of Helen Dawson and Jim Blake which they portrayed in "A Lass of the Lumberlands."

The Mutual-Signal fifteen chapter photo novel is being shown in a majority of the Pantages houses on the Pacific coast and Alex Pantages requested that Miss Holmes and Mr. McGowan make this personal appearance in the theaters of San Francisco and Los Angeles.

This was easily arranged as the Signal players are soon to be in San Francisco taking exterior scenes for the new railroad story, "The Railroad Raiders," and at this time will make their appearance on the vaudeville stage.

"Easy Street" Chaplin's Greatest

"Easy Street," the latest Chaplin-Mutual comedy, to be released February 5, cost more per foot of negative than the reported cost of Griffith's "Intolerance."

Of course, "Easy Street" is not so popular nor so fashionable a thoroughfare as was Belshazzar avenue,

There have been a lot of emigrants come over to our shores, representing some awful cheap labor. Here's one, from Merry England that doesn't labor quite so cheaply—but gee think of the laughs Uncle Sam would miss without him.

Babylon, but the people of "Easy Street" are a busy lot and, withal, expensive to do business with.

"Easy Street" is a far more pretentious production than any previous Chaplin offering has been, being one of those studio rarities—a Chaplin pet. To put it plainly, Chaplin himself was so obsessed with the merits of "Easy Street" from its first rehearsal, that he wouldnt' release it until it was up to his standard of excellence.

"Easy Street" has taken three weeks longer to produce than does the average Chaplin comedy, Mr. Chaplin's determination to have everything just right causing the delay, which appears to have been justified, because critics who have followed Chaplin from his beginnings on the screen insist that this is the best thing he has done.

Just how it is possible to get hit on the head with a red-hot stove tossed from a third-story window, and still survive, is one of the amazing problems developed in "Easy Street."

Chaplin's adventures as "The Sparrow Cop," who dons policeman's uniform to protect pretty Edna Purviance, organist of "Easy Street" mission, from insult by "Bully" Campbell, are excruciatingly funny.

"Cross Country" Triangle Play

Director Lloyd Ingraham is in the midst of the production of "A Young Gentleman of the Old School," by Frank E. Woods, manager of production at the Fine Arts plant, featuring Robert Harron. It is in this production, that Harron, in the role of one of Nature's noblemen, journeys from Los Angeles to New York with a number of the scenes being staged en route. The story originates in Los Angeles with scenes being staged at El Paso, New Orleans, Atlanta, Washington, D. C., and the final views taken in New York City. Sam de Grasse plays the part of the heavy. Colleen Moore has the leading feminine role. The other principals in the cast include Loyola O'Connor, Alma Reuben, Charles Lee, Wilbur Higby and Bert Hadley. Frank Urson is the camera man for this production.

A Tale of Broadway

"THE ACCOMPLICE," ART DRAMAS RELEASE, PICTURES SMART SET

THE current publicity notices of Art Dramas, Inc., provide exhibitors with a description and synopsis of the newest Art Dramas release, "The Accomplice," which is the feature scheduled for February 15. The interesting fact that the author has introduced into the story of "The Accomplice" the counterparts of a number of Broadway celebrities and members of the New York smart set, hints of realism.

The drama is described as a picturization of the manner in which the New York smart set, or a portion of its circle, spend money and time in their quest of life's pleasures.

Other news sifted from the Art Dramas' weekly announcements is the notice to exhibitors and the trade that Art Dramas will release a picturization of Upton Sinclair's novel "The Adventurer," to be filmed by the United States Amusement Corporation.

"The Accomplice" was produced by Ralph Dean for the William L. Sherrill Feature Corporation, from the story written by Anthony P. Kelly.

The Story in Synopsis

Jack Sherrill and Dorothy Bernard play the parts of Thomas and Alice Harcourt, a brother and sister. They are the children of a wealthy and influential New Yorker, whose greatest pride in life is his untarnished family name. Alice, having more time and money than she knows what to do with, takes to attending tango teas at Broadway cafes. She becomes involved in an affair with Antonio, a professional dancer. Tom, too, is a frequenter of the lighted ways, but through falling in love with Miriam Collins, his father's secretary, he reforms.

The play culminates in a murder and Antonio is accused. In order to save himself, he tells the police that he had spent the greater part of the night on which the murder took place, with Alice in his apartment. As the story unwinds, the truth of the matter is disclosed and the mystery explained.

Upton Sinclair's Work Picturized

Herbert Blaché, president of the United States Amusement Corporation, announces two important acquisitions of that company. The first is the securing of the picture rights to Upton Sinclair's well known novel "The Adventurer," which was one of the most successful novels of a few years ago. It was first published serially in a large national magazine, and later put out in book form. The first edition of the book was sold in less than three weeks, according to the publishers, and it went through three editions in less than four months.

Upton Sinclair is a national figure, well known for his sociological work and for his writing. His book "The Jungle" created a tremendous stir when it was published, and caused a country-wide investigation into the affairs of the packing industry.

Marion Swayne has been engaged to portray the central figure of the play. She is described as precisely the type called for by the story. "The Adventurer," like most of Mr. Sinclair's stories, is not only intensely dramatic but it also conveys a significant message.

Van Dyke Engages Director Davis

Will S. Davis has been secured by the Van Dyke Film Production Corporation to produce the features of that company, which are released on the Art Dramas program. Mr. Davis will shortly commence the production of a picture starring Jean Sothern.

The making of this production will mark a reunion between Mr. Davis and Miss Sothern, as both have previously worked together for the Fox Company. Mr. Davis directed the youthful star in "Dr. Rameau," the Fox picture in which she and Fred Parry were featured. Besides this production, Mr. Davis has directed several successful Fox productions.

Ballet in Selznick Film

Clara Kimball Young, whose third Selznick-Picture, "The Price She Paid," will shortly be released, has progressed rapidly under the direction of Albert Capellani in the production of her forthcoming screen version of Eugene Walter's famous drama, "The Easiest Way."

Evidence of the lavish style in which Director Capellani is putting on "The Easiest Way," was given last week when the Garden Theater was rented for three days and an entire musical comedy company engaged to present the stage scenes that are an essential part of the story.

Marion Swayne in scenes from Upton Sinclair's novel, "The Adventurer," filmed by the United States Amusement Corporation for Art Dramas.

Director Capellani duplicated some of the scenes in a leading musical comedy success. Thirty cabaret girls from the Strand roof garden and fifteen of the prettiest members of one of the big New York choruses provided the animated background before which Miss Young enacted the role of the musical comedy star.

"DEEMSTER" AT STRAND

Invitation Showing Introduces Son of Hall Caine to American Public as Star of the Photoplay

The first invitation trade showing of the Arrow Film Corporation's production of Hall Caine's story of the Isle of Man, "The Deemster," took place at the Strand Theater, New York, February 8. At this time Derwent Hall Caine, son of the novelist, who has held a prominent place on the stage in London for several years, made his first appearance in this country, both personally and as a screen player. The performance preceded the opening of the picture's run at the Strand Theater.

Mr. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Company, supervised this production from its inception. The cast surrounding Mr. Caine does work of widely varied sorts in the portrayal of the rather diversified characters of the story. The locales of the exterior scenes show all the picturesque ruggedness of the Isle of Man. The interiors are novel and artistic. Several of the sets, showing the homes of the Deemster and the Bishop of Man, and other interiors, are elaborate in detail. The picture is accompanied by a special score adapted to the dramatic action of the story.

Invitations were extended by Mr. Shallenberger to all state rights buyers and critics for trade and daily papers, and also to a large number of prominent writers, who are friends of Mr. Caine and his son, and to members of several literary societies.

All these writers and authors expressed the liveliest desire to see Mr. Caine's great story on the screen and his son in the powerful character of Dan Mylrea. Many of them recall the success made by the late Wilson Barrett, the noted English actor, in this part in his second tour of this country, when he made a long run in "The Deemster" at the Fifth Avenue Theater, New York, and at theaters in other cities.

Mr. Shallenberger has devised an original publicity scheme which he will put into operation in connection with the presentation of this picture. This plan, in the opinion of several experienced showmen who have been informed of its details, will have influence on the patronage of "The Deemster" in every locality where it may be shown.

$100,000 for Linder Ads

The branch managers of the K.-E.-S.-E. have been notified by George Kleine that an advertising appropriation of $100,000 has been made available for use in exploiting the Max Linder comedies of the Essanay Company. A national campaign will be put on with the aid of the branch managers. This $100,000 fund will be supplemented by a $25,000 appropriation to be expended with trade papers.

The total of the two funds is said to be in excess of any single appropriation ever made to market the productions of one individual star.

Mr. Kleine laid the plans for the campaign before the K.-E.-S.-E. representatives at a meeting held in Chicago. Fifty-five branch managers were present, and also thirty-one salesmen who will devote their time to the Linder comedies.

The coming Essanay feature, "Skinner's Dress Suit," with Bryant Washburn, which is being handled by K.-E.-S.-E., will begin a week's run at the Rialto, New York, February 18.

New Powell-Mutual Studio

Frank Powell last week took the first scenes in the new studio at College Point, L. I., which in the future will house the activities of the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, the photoplay productions of which are released through the Mutual Film Corporation.

This is the site known as "Donnolly's Grove and Pavilions," placed under a long-term lease, with the option of purchase, at the time of the formation of the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, of which John R. Freuler (president of the Mutual) is president, and Frank Powell vice-president and director general.

The Powell studio is one of the largest and best equipped in the vicinity of New York. The main building has a working floor space of 16,000 square feet. This is surrounded by smaller buildings, in which are the printing and developing plants, projection room, carpenter shops and the like. Every facility and aid that experience, efficiency and ingenuity can devise has been installed to aid in the production of the character of pictures with which Mr. Powell's name is inseparably linked.

There are now in process of production under Mr. Powell's direction two series of feature pictures. Marjorie Rambeau will make her screen debut as a Powell-Mutual star in one of these, while Nance O'Neil is the star of the other.

The studio was opened with the filming of the first scenes in "Motherhood," Miss Rambeau's second Mutual picture.

Moss to Produce Big One

It has been announced by both Little, Brown & Company, book publishers of Boston, and B. S. Moss Producing Company, of New York, that the latter company has acquired the motion picture rights to "The Sins of the Children," one of last year's best sellers and written by Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Blindness of Virtue," and a number of other prominent novels.

The Moss concern will, it is reported, enlist the services of one of the best known dramatists to picturize the novel into a seven-reel feature. The picture will, according to present plans, represent Moss' April release.

Actuated by recently proposed adverse legislation and the motion picture antagonists generally, particularly the criticisms of authors who have damned pictures for the insults they inflict upon human intelligence, Moss will endeavor to make his forthcoming production free from all alleged misgivings ascribed to pictures by the self-appointed critics. In this attempt he will utilize the best material possible from the story to the minutest detail.

After having worked at Universal City for a long period, Kingsley Benedict has been given a long term contract to play leading roles in Universal productions. Benedict was featured in the "Yorke Norroy" series recently produced at the Pacific Coast studios of the company.

Unusual scenes from that unusual and sensational melodrama, "The Whip," produced on an elaborate scale by Maurice Tourneur after eight months of strenuous labor.

Maurice Tourneur Completes "The Whip"

PRODUCER TELLS EXHIBITORS OF STRONG POINTS ABOUT FAMOUS DRAMA

WITH an alert eye upon the exhibitor, Director Maurice Tourneur is giving part of his attention to the stream of inquiries now coming in from state rights buyers who are bidding for the rights to "The Whip," his heralded melodrama, for which the Paragon Films, Inc., is receiving many offers from state rights buyers.

Director Tourneur has adapted "The Whip" to the screen after eight months of strenuous application. He has employed thousands of persons in some of the scenes and he has introduced realisms that critics advise him will make the feature one of the outstanding works of the season.

For the benefit of exhibitors who desire information about "The Whip," Paragon Films, Inc., has supplied the facts which are of importance in judging the production.

The incentive for the interest in the new production is said to lie quite as much in the fact that the big melodrama is the first state rights effort of its director as in the confidence that exhibitors will discover that "The Whip" has that appeal which makes box office attractions.

Everyone recalls the keen competition centering around the open territory for "The Birth of a Nation" when it was announced that D. W. Griffith was adapting "The Clansman." Similarly, when Thomas H. Ince announced preparations for marketing "Civilization" another market furor followed. The interest in the first Tourneur open-market release parallels the first occasions of the two big state rights projects of Griffith and Ince.

Those familiar with the personal ambitions of prominent men of filmdom have known that for a long time the producer of "Trilby," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and other successes has been impatiently awaiting the time when he could give his powers free play in a feature worth his while for exhibition throughout the world.

Only those on the very inside knew that as far back as last January "The Whip" was purchased for the sole purpose of enabling the director to fulfill his ambition. He himself selected the famous stage success to be the medium of his expansion. That the play is fully as well known in America and on the Continent as any produced within a score of years was one of the reasons for Mr. Tourneur's choice. Another reason was the fertile field it offered for exciting situations, suspense and character creation.

All who are familiar with the theater here and abroad know of "The Whip" as being written by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton and produced originally at the Drury Lane Theater, London, where it proved a success at once and packed the vast London auditorium for the greater part of two years. Brought to this country by William A. Brady, it was presented here at the big Hammerstein Manhattan opera house with a no less successful outcome. It drew houses that taxed the capacity of the great Thirty-fourth street theater in New York for a longer continuous period than had been the fortune of any earlier play, native or foreign.

Because of its massive effects, presentation of "The Whip" in any but the largest cities and on the largest stages was believed impractical. Despite these conditions, Manager Brady, it will be recalled, organized a road production and while "The Whip" was playing to its overflowing audiences in New York via the original company, a touring organization was playing extended engagements in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco and other metropolitan units. The advertising accruing to "The Whip" because of its genuine hit, probably equals that of any play produced during the entire career of Manager Brady.

It was in a measure an intimate knowledge of this transcontinental fame of the piece that relieved Tourneur of any hesitation when he came finally to make his choice of an initial state rights production.

The picture has just been finished and the work of cutting and titling is now in progress.

Replete with suspense and tense, irresistible thrill, Director Tourneur's associates boast that he has in "The Whip" bunched the greatest number of successive and harmonized realisms ever combined in a film. One of those effects is a head-on collision of two railroad trains with their subsequent submersion. The staging and photographing of the scene took Director Tourneur and his organization to many sections of the country. The railroad wreck effect was pictured just south of Greenwood, Maryland, along the line of the Southern Railroad. Permission to use two fully equipped passenger trains and other railroad appertainences was granted by the executives of the line. Four hundred and twenty-eight scenes are included in the picture, the units requiring eight reels. Director Tourneur selected the cast, principals and auxiliaries, and superintended all the equine and chattel material needed in the staging.

Interested buyers can get further information by applying to the Paragon Films, Inc., 924 Longacre building, New York.

"Captain Alvarez" Re-issued

What will come in the form of good news to lovers of motion pictures the country over is the information from Greater Vitagraph that it will shortly re-issue, in a de luxe edition, its famous production of "Captain Alvarez," in which Edith Storey is starred. The new edition will shortly be released through the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchanges.

In the role of the little Spanish girl, whose sympathies are with the revolutionists, Edith Storey is ideally cast. Her many friends will find her more pleasing than ever in the old-time hoop skirts in "Captain Alvarez," which was directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon from a dramatization of H. S. Sheldon's novel.

Briefly, the story of "Captain Alvarez" is that of an American who visits South America. There he falls in love with a Spanish girl who sympathizes with the revolutionists, although a man who is in love with her is a spy for the other side. In order to prove his devotion, he joins with the rebels under the assumed name of "Alvarez." Eventually, and after many daring escapades in which he and the girl join, the country is made a republic.

Edith Storey exhibits an amount of daring as a horsewoman that will bring a catch to the throat, and William D. Taylor, as "Captain Alvarez" is by no means behind her.

The re-issue of "Captain Alvarez" results from several thousand requests from theater owners to put out a new edition of this famous motion picture for the new audiences as well as for the old in photoplay theaters throughout the country.

Davenport with Metro

Harry Davenport has been added to the directing staff of the Metro Pictures Corporation, and will direct Lionel Barrymore in his next five-part screen production, a comedy drama by Juno Mathis. Mr. Davenport is a member of the famous Davenport family, being a brother of Fanny Davenport and of Edgar L. Davenport, his father having been the celebrated E. L. Davenport. The Davenports, Drews and Barrymores are closely related by marriage.

Mr. Davenport spent a year with Pathe and later went to Vitagraph, first as actor and then as director. In Roy McCardell's "Jarr Family" series he both directed and acted, but for some time has given all his attention to directing. One of the best-known pictures to his credit is "The Island of Regeneration."

He played in "The Belle of New York," both in America and in England. His most recent musical comedy appearance was in "Sari" with Mizzi Hajos.

Before stepping from the stage to the studio, he played in several famous dramatic successes.

We don't need to tell you that "Captain Alvarez," a new Vitagraph re-issue, is a spine-chiller. Edith Storey is the center of the delightful shivers.

General Film Plays a Trump

MAGAZINE SYNDICATE CONVEYS FILM RIGHTS TO ITS FICTION

THE General Film Company has linked up its film service and the producing facilities of its affiliated companies with one of the country's largest story publishing syndicates, whose publications include advertising mediums of large circulation.

Every story published in Ainslee's, The Popular, Smith's, Topnotch, People's, Detective Stories, and Picture Play Magazine becomes available at once for motion pictures through an arrangement concluded this week between the General Film Company and Street & Smith, publishers of this group.

Selecting from this plentiful mine of fiction, the General Film Company will release weekly a four-reel all-action photoplay, commencing about March 21.

Horkheimers to Produce Series

For the production of its dramati-screen fiction series, the General Film Company has chosen Messrs. H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer, of the Balboa Amusement Company.

The series will be swept into nation-wide prominence at once by a comprehensive advertising campaign. A page or double-page display will appear in every issue of every Street & Smith publication for one year. The General Film Company makes the following statement:

We have just brought to a successful culmination negotiations with Street & Smith, the publishers of the seven leading fiction magazines of today, by which we have secured access to the greatest field of motion picture material ever released for the screen.

Stories by the world's greatest writers, the pictures cut down to one hour screen-time to confine them to action only, and an advertising campaign that will reach every picture fan in the United States—this is a combination that should produce the greatest feature series in the history of the motion picture industry.

General Film's Plans

Changes and additions to the General Film Company's distribution system that will enhance the value of its service considerably are being planned by President B. B. Hampton and will go into effect shortly.

Two new series will be shortly issued by Kalem through the General Service. Marin Sais, the heroine of the famous "Girl from Frisco" now rapidly drawing to a close, is to be featured in a new series to be called "The American Girl." Helen Gibson, long associated with "The Hazards of Helen," is also to appear in a new Kalem series to be called "A Daughter of Daring." Like the "Hazards," it will deal with railroad life. The titles and dates of first release of both these new serials will be announced in a few days.

The hairbreadth escapes of "Grant, Police Reporter," will be continued by the Kalem Company in this series featuring George Larkin and Ollie Kirby. The Ham and Bud Comedies are to be continued.

General's Regular Releases

The Essanay series, "Is Marriage Sacred?" has just been extended by the addition of five units to the original twelve. The Essanay Black Cat Features are reported to be proving a strong drawing card for exhibitors.

Announcement has just been made by General that Lillian Walker, the famous "Dimples" of the screen, is to be featured by Vitagraph in a two-reel series to be distributed by General Film.

The Selig subjects to be handled by General are to be enhanced by a number of two-reel dramas featuring George Fawcett, a distinguished player who was for several years a star of the speaking stage. The Selig-Tribune offers a comprehensive review of currents events. The single-reel comedies will also continue on the regular Selig-General Service.

The Melies subjects will include the alternate weekly Knickerbocker drama and the popular Vim comedies "Pokes and Jabs," and the Kate Price and Babe Hardy comedies. "The War," General's new series of official British war records of the great European conflict, will soon be ready for release, the first episodes showing the actual fighting during the Battle of the Somme.

Women Told to Aid Exhibitors

The man who wrote the fanciful children's tale, "The Wizard of Oz," which succeeded so well in pictures, spoke recently before the Ebell Club of Los Angeles, upon the subject of moving pictures for children. He is L. Frank Baum, author of many fairy tales. He urged women to undertake to provide proper motion-picture entertainment for the children of Los Angeles, and proposed that the women's clubs divide the city into sections and arrange with theater managers, through rental or other sharing terms, to take over their theaters on Saturday forenoons and present under their own auspices, such pictures as a central committee of club women had approved.

The speaker declared that with the backing of the women's clubs these morning entertainments would be not only self-sustaining but profitable, and that the time is now ripe for such a venture. Mr. Baum said in part:

The theater managers are not generally interested in children's features, and their regular patrons prefer dramatic and more sensational films. The fact that the theaters are known to be largely devoted to problem and sex pictures and the lurid drama would render cautious parents suspicious even if the managers announced programs especially for children. Some of them, earnestly desirous of giving the little ones suitable entertainment, have already made the attempt, only to meet with financial disaster.

But under the management of the club women, a feeling of confidence would prevail and the Saturday morning shows be well patronized. It seems to me this work is as important a philanthrophy as any club could undertake, for children love pictures and need amusement as much as do their elders, but unless they have special programs their attendance at the picture theaters is likely to prove injurious.

Signal at New Serial

The Signal Film Corporation has started production on the second installment of the Helen Holmes serial, "The Railroad Raiders," entitled, "A Double Steal." Aside from the thrills that will be injected for good measure, this picture possesses plot whose originality has seldom been equalled in any production to date. It deals with the operations of two separate gangs of crooks each acting independently of the other and each thinking that it is getting away with the haul. It is a case of "Greek meeting Greek" and offers comedy and dramatic situations sufficient for the production of a five-reel feature.

As in the first installment, Helen Holmes is featured with a supporting cast including Leo. D.

Maloney, Paul C. Hurst, Thomas G. Lingham, William Brunton, William Buehl, Will Chapman, F. L. Hemphill, Florence Holmes and G. H. Wischussen.

ANNA LITTLE WITH SELZNICK

Heroine of Many Western Stories and Indian Plays to Take Lead Opposite Warwick as French "Apache" Maid

A Selznick coup of interest to exhibitors is the signing of Anna Little, the former American and Universal star, to play opposite Robert Warwick in the Selznick-Picture production of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "The Court of St. Simon."

It once happened that Thomas Ince was looking for a girl whose type of beauty would lend itself to the presentation of a lovely Indian maiden and Miss Little while on a visit to the noted director's studio offices at Hollywood, attracted his attention. For the next year she played leading roles in all of Ince's famous Indian productions.

Harry Rapf, president of the Robert Warwick Film Corporation, was attracted by Miss Little's work and engaged her by telegram to play the role of the French "apache" girl in "The Court of St. Simon." It is Miss Little's first picture in the East and although she finds the indoor studio work rather irksome, she expresses herself as "delighted" with New York and is ambitious to remain there and become a star for one of the big Eastern producing companies.

Vitagraph Issues "A Million Bid"

"A Million Bid," one of the most talked-of productions which have come out of the Vitagraph studios, will shortly be re-issued through the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchanges in a new de luxe edition with a number of changes in cutting, titling, and so on. Anita Stewart is the heroine of "A Million Bid," with popular Harry Morey playing opposite her.

In support of Miss Stewart and Mr. Morey is a cast of famous Vitagraph players. Ralph W. Ince directed the production.

The role played by Anita Stewart in "A Million Bid" offers her many opportunities to show her versatility and ability as an emotional actress. She is not slow to avail herself of all of these chances.

The story of "A Million Bid" is wound around a scheming mother who plans a wealthy marriage for her beautiful daughter. Desperate under her mother's constant pleading, the girl marries the man of her mother's selection. She does not love him. Their honeymoon is tragically interrupted when the yacht on which they are touring is wrecked.

Unknown to each other, the husband and the wife are saved. The man, through the shock and a number of complicating events that offer Miss Stewart exceptional opportunities for highly emotional work, loses his memory. These climaxes are surmounted by a terrific finale that makes "A Million Bid" one of the strongest dramatic stories yet filmed.

Site for "Masterpictures"

Five minutes' ride from Houston, Texas, on a sloping tract of ground covering about four acres, a site has been selected as a suitable home for the cameras of the Master Motion Picture Company, which has been organized to produce "Masterpictures."

The investment in realty amounts to $21,000, while studios and buildings costing an additional $10,000 will be erected at once, under the plans just made public. The buildings will include laboratory, dressing rooms, paint and paper rooms, projecting rooms, stage and other features.

H. J. Binney, for eleven years identified with the picture industry both as actor and director, and for a long period connected with Keystone, is at the head of the new enterprise. The company is incorporated for $45,000. Offices have been opened in the Scanlan building, at Houston.

Gail Kane at American

Accompanied by her mother, and bringing with her ten trunks and a packing case full of the latest in New York fashions, Gail Kane, newest acquisition of the American-Mutual program, is settled at the American studio at Santa Barbara, to begin work at the Coast studio. The vehicle which is to serve as her introduction to the American-Mutual program is to be directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon, and has the title of "Whose Wife?"

Views of the powerful Vitagraph re-issue, "A Million Bid," which will appear shortly, after careful revision.

The Man Inside the Booth

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT, CONDUCTED BY E. C. SCOBEY

THIS department is a permanent feature of MOTOGRAPHY. Its editor, Mr. Scobey, is a former secretary and treasurer of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 194, I. A. T. S. E., and was formerly associated with the Central Film Service Company of Indianapolis. He was recently elected vice-president of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, the first operator to be so honored. The idea is to make this department just as helpful as possible to operators and exhibitors. Send your questions and problems to Mr. Scobey. He is sure to give you some valuable information. Address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

The 23rd International Convention of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. of the U. S. and Canada, will be held at Cleveland, Ohio, the week of February 26, 1917. This convention will be one of great importance to all members of the I. A. and every local is urged to send delegates to it.

Kindly answer through your valuable department, "The Man Inside the Booth," the following: One of my Powers 6's which has been repaired by The Nichlos Powers Co. and has been in use about five months.. I have been losing the lower loop two or three times in each reel of film that is projected through same, in spite of my constant study and lengthy experience as to the product of The Nichlos Powers Co. have been absolutly unable to ascertain the cause of this trouble.

After seeing that there was no undercut sprocket teeth, no dirt on the face of the sprockets, belt not too tight, take-up idler having no play, take-up idler set away twice the width of the film, sprockets in perfect alignment, no play in the take-up sprocket and being quite sure that one side of the intermittent sprocket was not higher than the other and other various things that might have a tendency to cause loss of the lower loop, I decided to set the washers on the take-up roller spindle close up against the idler, so as not to cause it to revolve—and the result was I have not lost lower loop since. I appreciate the fact that this idler should revolve, but find that if it does, I lose the lower loop.

The intermittent movement of this machine makes a good deal of noise, and I ask if I can safely tighten up the same to eliminate the racket. Trusting to see your reply in an early issue of MOTOGRAPHY, and with very best wishes for your department, I am, Yours truly—J. A. M.

From the description you have given of the condition of your machine, I cannot offer much in the way of a remedy for your trouble, but would suggest that you be sure that the take-up roller spindle (655) is not sprung and that it sets perfectly true with the sprocket and that it has the large washer on the end of the spindle next to the roller. This washer will prevent the film from climbing. Also be very sure that the roller is not worn flat on one side as it will catch and cause the loss of the lower loop. The tention on the idler bracket should be enough to hold it firmly in place when the bracket is closed down, but not enough to cause the sprocket teeth to indent the film when it climbs the sprocket.

As to the noise in the intermtitent movement—if it is a knocking noise it is caused by the star and cam and they should be adjusted at once as it will cause trouble for you if it is allowed to go on. If the noise is caused from the film going through the machine then the trouble more than likely is in the adjustment of the apron. In adjusting the intermittent movement, be very careful to set the Geneva cross to the cam so that there is just a little circumferential play in the intermittent sprocket.

In the issue of MOTOGRAPHY of December 30, 1916, I noticed an article on the setting of the shutter in regards to the distance from the lens, and I have tried it out and have found that it works fine but I am having trouble with my shutter shaft and would like to have a little help from you. I ordered an extension shaft from the supply house and put it on the end of the machine shaft and adjusted the shutter as per your instructions, and found that it helped wonderfully in lessening the flicker in the picture, but the shutter did not run true. It seemed to wobble and after trying several times to adjust the extention shaft so that the shutter would run true, I wrote the supply house about it and they have sent me another shutter shaft, but it is a long one-piece shaft and I have to take out the original shaft and put in this one. Please give me instructions on the best way to do this. I am still using the extention shaft, but would like to change it as soon as possible. Hoping to see an answer in MOTOGRAPHY real soon and thanking you for the shutter suggestion. .

Unless you are a repair man with some experience, I would adivse you to take the machine to a first-class repair man and have him install the new shaft for you. If you want to do the work yourself, you can follow the instructions given below: Loosen screw in the lower take-up sprocket and remove sprocket and shaft. Loosen set screw in collar holding the large idler gear (No. 640) and remove idler gear shaft (No. 641); next remove crank and then drive out the taper pin in the crank shaft that engages the slots in the crank; this will allow you to remove the crank shaft and main driving gear. Drive out taper pin in gear (No. 680) and you can then remove the driving gear (No. 681), pulling it out to the left. Remove the shutter bracket by loosening screw in frame of machine and screw in shutter bracket that locks the bracket to the frame, the bracket may then be slipped off. To remove the shaft from the bracket, loosen the set screws in the two collars on the shaft and drive out the taper pin in the shutter gear (No. 635) and the shaft can then be pulled out of the bracket. In assembling the shutter shaft, gear and collars, you will have to use your own judgment and experience and I will tell you before you start that there is one adjustment that very few operators get right, through lack of experience, and while I am on the question, let me give you a good definition of the word experience: Experience is that experience which one experiences experiencing his own experiences.

I am using two Simplex machines and the intermittent movement in one of them needs adjusting. There seems to be too much lost motion in the intermittent sprocket. I have never attempted to adjust the intermittent movement so would like to have some help on the same. Thanking you in advance.

Loosen two screws (No. S-125-B) that hold the eccentric bushing (B-132-B), then grasp hexagon on the eccentric bushing (B132-B) with the wrench that is supplied with the machine or with a pair of pliers and turn the same slightly either way until the lost motion in the sprocket is almost taken up, leaving just a little bit of play. Tighten the two screws (S-125-B) again.

Operating Room Rules

1. When you enter an operating room, spit on the floor. They have water, mops, lye and brushes, and will clean up as soon as you leave, as they have nothing else to do.

2. Put your hands on all polished or bright work. You will then know if it is smooth, hot or cold. This will also give some one work and use up surplus polish.

3. Stay in the operating room as long as you please. The operator has nothing to do but to entertain visitors.

4. Be sure to tell the operator if his machine is pounding, or not running right. He will not know it unless you do. He will stop the machine and make repairs while you wait.

5. Don't tell the operator who you are; he is a mind reader and already knows you. Go anywhere in the operating room and it will please him.

6. Advise him what to do, as you know best. The operator is only there every day and does not have a chance to see as much as you will see in a few minutes.

7. If the operator is busy making repairs, tell him a good story, and if possible get in his way. This will be a great help to him.

8. The operator will lend you any of his tools, as he has no use for them. Keep them as long as you like.

9. Be sure to tell the operator all that you know. It will not take long.

25,000 See "Great Secret"

Newspaper coupons cut from The Chicago American brought 25,000 Chicago people to see a public performance of the opening two episodes of Vitagraph's new serial, "The Secret Kingdom." The gates of Riverview Amusement Park, where the exhibition took place, were opened wide to the surging thousands.

The performance was a sequel to a record-breaking exhibition of the picture the previous week in another section of the city. Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Chicago branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., supervised both events.

"All Chicago is talking about my stunt," declares Manager Abel.

He states that one hundred and forty theaters in the city have already started showing the serial.

In addition to showing the first two episodes of the serial, Manager Abel showed the prologue of "The Girl Philippa," which opened at the Ziegfeld Theater, Chicago, for a run on February 4.

Separate Seats for Women

Women are to have separate sections set aside in the theaters of New York. They are to be permitted to segregate themselves if they want to in all houses of public entertainment. They may refuse to sit alongside any male person, and if the house manager fails to isolate them in the female section they can have him arrested and punished.

A legislator named Schimmel of the New York state assembly introduced the bill which provides for "an act to amend the penal law in relation to reserving sections of amusement places for females." The proposed measure provides that:

The proposed measure, as offered by Mr. Schimmel, does not define the number of seats or the extent of the "section" to be made thus provided, and it may be different for the obliging and law-abiding house manager to decide what is to be the boundary and what the point of contact between the segregated ladies and the men in his audience. If the bill should become a law, probably it would be legal to specify the boxes as the segregated section and in that case there seems to be nothing in the bill to prevent the house managers from raising the price on box seats.

Three Added to "Shorty" Company

Frederick Robinson, E. J. Flynn and L. A. Darling are recent additions to the forces of the Monogram Film Company producing the "Adventures of Shorty" series featuring "Shorty" Hamilton for Mutual, and will direct their efforts toward adding to the artistic effect of the films.

Mr. Robinson is an artist, illustrator and author of international fame. He is also famous as the creator and producer of such spectacles as "The Battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac," "The Sinking of the Titanic" and "The War of the Worlds."

Mr. Flynn, recently assistant director and business manager with Mary Pickford, and before that time with D. W. Griffith and Jack O'Brien, will have charge of locations.

Mr. Darling, who has joined the camera squad, has had a long experience in this line, having been with the Lasky, Selig, Universal and Kalem companies.

New Keystones Bow

The week of February 11 will be a red letter one for the motion picture exhibitor, for it will be marked by the first release of the eagerly awaited Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies as Independent releases.

As has been several times announced in Keystone advertising columns, any exhibitor can get these two-reel Keystone comedies through the nearest Triangle exchange, but he does not have to take the whole Triangle program to secure them, or any other program.

The first of these independently released Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies is "The Nick of Time Baby," which is available February 15. The cast and a hint at the nature of the story have been given in a previous issue.

The following week's release will be "Stars and Bars," with Ford Sterling, Harry Gribbon, Gene Rogers, May Emory and Hugh Fay in the cast.

Harry Carey is being featured in a five-reel western Universal play.

Mary Pickford in her newest Artcraft feature, "The Poor Little Rich Girl," the appealing play which enjoyed great success on the stage.

"POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL"

Other Artcraft News—Mary Pickford to Los Angeles, While George M. Cohan Descends on Jacksonville, Florida

Seldom is such a continuous display of luxurious settings and furnishings required as in the case of Mary Pickford's newest Artcraft picture, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the well known Eleanor Gates' subject now being completed under the direction of Maurice Tourneur.

In keeping with the subject which tells of the extravagant display of wealth, many costly scenes were built for this photoplay including one of particular lavishness disclosing a beautiful conservatory with its lily pond, playing fountains, rare birds and immense botanical display.

Mary Pickford to Los Angeles

It has just been announced by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, that immediately following the completion of Mary Pickford's latest picture, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," now being produced at Fort Lee, she will temporarily forsake her Eastern studios and take up the production of several new Artcraft releases on the West Coast.

George M. Cohan made a successful advance upon Jacksonville, Florida, lately, and has begun the production of his initial Artcraft photoplay, "Broadway Jones." He has become one of the most important topics of the day. American flags are floating from every staff on the hotel where he is stopping.

Large crowds are attracted to the "location" which has been secured for "Broadway Jones" and in some of these scenes over five hundred people are being used. Hotels, stores and the railroad station have consented to have their signs changed to read "Jonesville."

The mails bring Mary Pickford many letters from Scotchmen who have seen her in the current Artcraft picture, "The Pride of the Clan." Dr. F. Houston Shaw, consulting actuary at Bloomington, Illinois, of the Caledonian Society of Lexington, Kentucky, writes that "she has pictured a combination of the charms of those Scottish lassies of whom Burns writes."

Manager C. M. Waterbury of the Palace Theater, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, sent a letter to the Artcraft Pictures Corporation recently declaring himself much gratified by the results at a performance of "Less Than the Dust," with Mary Pickford. He expects a capacity business on "The Pride of the Clan." He says:

> Sunday found us in the grip of the worst blizzard in many years. It seemed foolhardy to open the theater at all. One theater did close. But listen: The matinee was the largest the house has known and we had one full house in the evening while the competition exhibited to twenty-five patrons, actual count. Next evening it was our pleasure to show to one full house and a half, at the second show, with the thermometer registering 25° below zero. My competitors were clean out of luck.

June Elvidge is rapidly becoming the official vampire of World pictures Brady-made. She is wickedness itself in the new Gail Kane play, "The Red Woman," and when "The Social Leper" comes along later with Carlyle Blackwell as its star and Evelyn Greeley as the beautiful society girl object of her machinations, June will be found pretty devilish—and at the same time devilish pretty.

Latest "Perils" Story

A woman fights for her self-respect.

A man undergoes untold agonies of conscience believing he has convicted an innocent man to the gallows in trying to shield the woman he loves.

These are the two dramatic situations upon which are built the story of "The Smite of Conscience," seventh of the Mutual series, "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters."

"The Smite of Conscience," seventh story of Mutual's "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters."

Helen Greene portrays one of the most convincing roles in which she has been seen for some time in the character of Helen Girard, who seeks employment on a big city newspaper in order to be away from home and escape the insults of her drunkard husband and his ribald friends.

Earl Metcalfe, as Exton Manley, a New York lawyer, demonstrates his versatility first as the thoughtful friend trying to make life more pleasant for Helen Girard by his fostering care; next as a lover seeking to shield the woman he loves from an accusation of crime; then as a lawyer exerting all his legal skill to prove a man guilty of a crime of which he believes him innocent; and finally as a man driven almost insane by pangs of conscience and in a frenzy of self-reproach ready to renounce his profession.

W. H. Turner as Girard, the drunken husband, a queer millionaire insanely jealous of his pretty wife, is one of the finest things this capable actor has done for some time.

Laskyites Travel for Local Color

In order to get correct atmosphere for new Paramount pictures it releases on the Paramount program, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, producing "Each to His Kind," in which the Japanese actor, Sessue Hayakawa, is starred, is traveling to Hawaii. The story of the play centers around this picturesque mid-Pacific island and many of the scenes will be staged in and around Honolulu itself.

Another company, with Theodore Roberts as its star, playing in "The American Consul," under Director Rollin Sturgeon, will journey to Washington, D. C., where the action of the play takes place. Rather than do the obviously simple thing and "fake" the settings by using corners of some of the California state buildings and familiar colonnades which, though supposedly typical of the national capital, can be found in almost any large city, the company will travel across the continent from Hollywood, California, in order to get the real settings required in the story.

WORLD TO MAKE COMEDIES

Success Scored Among Exhibitors by "Tillie Wakes Up" Leads Producer to Introduce Farce as Regular Feature

William A. Brady and the other officers of the World Film Corporation have been in conference several times during the past week concerning the advisability of adopting a more elastic policy than heretofore in the company's productions. These discussions admittedly have been brought about by the recently released farce called "Tillie Wakes Up," in which Marie Dressler is the star and Johnny Hines, the lively young comedian, plays the "opposite" role.

This is the first comic picture made by the World-Brady interests in more than five months. The last previous experiment of this corporation in light entertainment upon the screen was called "The Summer Girl," successfully issued last August. Since then World pictures Brady-made have adhered to the serious side of the drama.

The reception of the Dressler farce has decided Mr. Brady and his associates to modify their exclusively dramatic output and manufacture a series of comedy productions to be released at stated intervals—say once a month—by way of responding to the demand so suddenly uncovered by "Tillie Wakes Up." Mr. Brady, in discussing this altered view of what the public wants, is quoted as saying:

> I am free to say that what happened to Miss Dressler's picture took me completely by surprise. A one-day theater in Brooklyn insisted on having the farce for a second day. Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and other cities fell to wiring for "Tillie," and of course it did not require a very extended continuation of this state of things to show my associates and myself that the public really desired our particular variety of screen fun.
>
> We shall start producing comedies as a regular thing along with our highly popularized serious plays.

V. M. Moses Writes for Goldwyn

Vivian M. Moses has resigned from the New York Times after a long connection with that newspaper and entered Goldwyn's scenario department. Mr. Moses is well known to authors, artists and writers through his connection with Harper's Magazine, Current Opinion, Hearst's and the Cosmopolitan and in London was associated in the editorial management of Nash's magazine with Perriton Maxwell.

That a man of his type and experience should abandon daily journalism to enter motion picture authorship finds its explanation in his coming to Goldwyn and again indicates the type of men Samuel Goldfish, Edgar and Archibald Selwyn, Arthur Hopkins and their associates are introducing into the picture industry along with themselves.

Clark Irvine is now on the job with the Yorke-Metro Film Corporation of Los Angeles, handling the publicity work on the coast.

Lois Weber is filming a five-reel drama featuring Ben Wilson and Mignon Anderson.

THE STATE RIGHTS PLAN

Most Capable of Distributors Will Get Big Features and Gain Prestige in Their Territory, Says H. A. Sherman

By HARRY A. SHERMAN.

Of the Sherman-Elliott Company.

Continual discussion of the state rights market by men who have dived into the shallow pools of that market to break their necks in the dive leads me to break a resolve and talk about my business. As the largest purchaser of state rights in the country my experience may be of value to other men in the business.

The state rights business, to my mind, is in its infancy. The time, I believe, is not a great way off when every really big picture will be marketed through capable state rights distributors. There are two business reasons for this—first by selling on the state rights plan the producer receives his money immediately and second because the real state rights buyer knows conditions throughout the country and in nine cases out of ten will force a picture to success where ordinary exchange methods fail.

Since I started purchasing state rights I have handled practically all the states west of the Mississippi river for such pictures as "The Birth of a Nation," "Ramona," "The Christian," and "The Crisis." All of them have been money makers for me and I expect they will continue to be so.

Future of Eugenic Pictures

A recent interview with a state rights purchaser, in which he declares that the day of the sex problem and eugenic picture has passed, has been called to my attention.

However, mere alleged eugenic pictures will not have the effect of killing a really good eugenic photoplay, according to my opinion.

To prove that I am willing to back my opinions recently I made an effort to purchase the world rights on "The Black Stork." I was a few hours too late. If there ever was a eugenic photoplay produced that play is "The Black Stork."

My prediction, as a direct contradiction to my friend who has tried to sound the knell of the eugenic picture, is that "The Black Stork" will be a tremendous money maker and that there will be other eugenic pictures to follow it that will make money. But they must be real eugenic pictures and not productions made to swindle the exhibitor and the public.

We must get back to the much talked about co-operation. Let co-operation prevail and the state rights will be the big distributing end of the motion picture business.

Big Theaters Take Vitagraph Service

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., on last Friday was in receipt of four contracts for approval and closing from different localities, the contracts in each case being for yearly feature and short reel service from Vitagraph in the leading theaters in the respective localities.

The Rialto Theater, Detroit; The Strand, Evanston, Ill.; The Grand, Madison, Wis.; and the Princess, Joliet, Ill., all have contracted for a Blue Ribbon feature once a week for a year, beginning at once.

"Off Again, On Again"

After a successful two weeks' run at the Strand Theater, Cleveland, during which time it was allowed to run without interruption, the Audrey Munson feature, "Purity," was booked at the Gordon Square Theater, one of the suburban houses in Cleveland, where it was stopped by the police after running one day. An injunction was immediately obtained by the Masterpiece Film Attractions, the owners of the film, but when the case came to trial, it was dismissed by the court upon the request of the city attorney. The picture resumed its run at the Liberty Theater, opening February 5 for a full week.

Box Office Value in "Where Love Is"

"Where Love Is," six-part Ann Murdock feature, released by the Mutual Film Corporation the week of February 5, presents a special opportunity to the exhibitor for advertising to his feminine patronage.

Miss Murdock, quite incidental to the dramatic factors in the piece, conducts a rare display of gowns—a regular motion picture fashion show runs through the picture. The gowns are the latest and costliest of the garb studios of New York and Paris.

"Where Love Is" presents Miss Murdock in the role and attire of the debutante, the young society miss, the horsewoman, the bride-to-be, and the bride—to remark nothing at all about flocks of evening clothes, morning clothes, afternoon clothes, traveling suits, etc. "Where Love Is" is good copy for the house program and advertising.

Here is "Where Love Is," with Ann Murdock as the captivating center of the story. Mutual released this feature the week of February 5.

Judge's Wife in Pictures

It is said, Mrs. Henrietta Brevoort Lindsey, wife of Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Colo., has gone to New York to sign a contract by which she will enter the ranks of the movie actresses.

When the juvenile court judge married three years ago he set all the reporters busy finding out what were his wife's views. She herself would not even admit that she was a suffragist. But she soon set doubts at rest by going into court with Judge Lindsey every day, sitting beside him and giving him a bit of woman's counsel.

Now she is going to help his work further by appearing in film plays based on the work and possibilities of the juvenile court. The judge wrote the scenarios, Miss Harriet Ford of New York and Harvey O'Higgins helping him, and William A. Brady is to produce them.

Cast of "The Hawk"

Earle Williams will be starred in Greater Vitagraph's forthcoming production of "The Hawk," the famous stage play in which William Faversham and Mlle. Dazian, celebrated French actress, were seen a season ago in New York. Supporting Mr. Earle Williams in the Blue Ribbon version of "The Hawk" will be Ethel Gray Terry, Julia Swayne Gordon, Katherine Lewis, Denton Vane, and Mario Majerone.

Paul Scardon will direct the production, which was adapted for the screen by Garfield Thompson.

"The Hawk" is a very powerful drama of today. When it first was produced on the Paris stage it caused such a furore as to lead to its immediate translation and adaptation for the American stage.

Specialize in Picture Posters

The Illinois Lithographing Company of Chicago has purchased the entire poster plant of the Goes Lithographing plants in the country and is in position to turn posters.

The Illinois has one of the most complete lithographing plants in the country and is in position to turn out work on short notice, which will be second to none.

The officers of the Illinois Lithographing Company were formerly connected with the Goes company. Arthur R. Tice, president, was the general manager for the Goes company for twenty-five years. Thomas H. Quill, vice-president, had charge of the poster department of that company for the past ten years.

Lois Meredith in Pathe Play

The Pathe Gold Rooster play for release the week of February 11 is "Sold at Auction," featuring Lois Meredith, supported by William Conklin and Frank Mayo. The production was made by Balboa.

"Sold at Auction" has a big message to every woman forced to fight her own way. Big situation follows big situation and there is a strong love interest that makes the conflict of the action all the more powerful.

Writers; Here's Your Chance

Thomas A. Edison, Incorporated, Bedford Park, New York City, will pay worth-while prices for stories suitable for and appealing to youth, as well as maturity. The company states:

> Send us stories in which the "heroic and triumphant" are the dominant notes. Ideals are natural to Youth and we want them in our pictures, but not the goody-goody negative and colorless ideals which it is sometimes assumed that Youth should cherish. We want stories that are wholesome, but in which there is danger and adventure and fighting towards a goal.
>
> We are searching for new Stevensons who can reveal the thrilling romance in the complexity of contemporary life. We do not want costume plays unless they are so exceptional as to stand with the accepted classics. There are plenty of pirate tales and fairy stories to be picturized. Give us something of the same spirit in stories of today.
>
> One and two-reel subjects are especially desired.

New Lockwood-Allison Feature

Metro's feature release for February 19 will be a new starring vehicle for Harold Lockwood and May Allison, a five-act picturization of James B. Hendryx's Novel, "The Promise." The screen version has been made by Richard V. Spencer by arrangement with the All Story Weekly, the original publishers of the book, are produced under the direction of Fred. J. Balshofer, president of the Yorke Film Corporation.

Life in a logging camp in the great Northwest is shown in "The Promise," and every detail of the work of a "lumberjack" is depicted, from the hewing down of the standing timber to the log drives in the spring. Contrasted with these outdoor beauties are flashes of Broadway's gayest cafe and cabaret scenes.

"Deemster" Posters Ready

A special and complete line of paper and advertising matter has been prepared for the Arrow Film Corporation's state rights picture, "The Deemster," featuring Derwent Hall Caine, son of the author, Hall Caine.

Two styles of 20-sheets, two styles of 6-sheets, three styles of 3-sheets, and three styles of 1-sheet have been prepared. Special press sheets, lobby display and other material have also been prepared.

Instead of utilizing pictorial or other forms of advertising now in vogue the Arrow Film Corporation has utilized a new font and set the titles in a novel typographical manner, which also takes account of the legibility and ease of reading. The titles bear very little decoration.

Violet Radcliffe Joins Fox

Violet Radcliffe, who made her first stage appearance at the age of eleven days, is now with the William Fox forces.

Miss Radcliffe is only eight years old, but she has been around the world already. Her earliest impersonation was done as Nero's baby in "Quo Vadis."

Violet is a native of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

$4,900 in Three Shows

Great success is greeting William Fox's million-dollar Kellermann picture, "A Daughter of the Gods," in every city where it is being projected.

In Detroit, where the spectacle opened recently, it played to $4,900 in the first three performances. This figure is regarded as all the more amazing because one of the three showings was at a matinee.

EXHIBITORS TURN HOSTS

New Jersey M. P. E. L. Does the Honors at Newark Ball Where Hundreds Flock for Frolic and Fun

Thursday evening, February 1, saw an enthusiastic crowd of film lovers numbering up in the fifteen hundreds flocking to the capacious Krueger Auditorium at Newark, New Jersey, with hopes high for a glimpse of their favorite star. That their hopes were realized is signified by the list of popular film luminaries in attendance. Anita Stewart, Vitagraph's fairest of the fair, led the grand march on the arm of Mayor Raymond, while the crowds wildly clamored their approval. Among those in the train following were Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew, Florence LaBadie, Leah Baird, Marguerite Courtot, Paul Panzer, Alice Brady, Edwin August and little Jane and Katherine Lee, who shone in Fox's "Daughter of the Gods."

After the grand march half a hundred New Jersey belles who were entered in a contest, the prize to be a try-out on the screen with chances good for a future career, displayed their feminine charms before a committee of judges, chief of whom was Florence LaBadie. After a series of eliminations the fair bevy simmered down to about six, Miss LaBadie picking from these the winner—Miss Hortense Berger, a lass of sixteen summers, hailing from Bloomsbury, New Jersey.

A stage name has already been bestowed upon her —Hortense Alden—and who can tell but what this euphonious name may some day become a household word? Everyone knows how much of a factor girlish beauty is in the movie actress' popularity, and this girl's brown eyes, dark curly hair, peaches and cream complexion, and so on, down a line too varied and numerous to detail, strike a lofty note in pulchritude. Miss Berger, since four years of age, has played minor parts on the speaking stage.

Chairman of committees in charge of the ball were: Floor committee, F. H. Mertens; press, Sam Spedon; reception, F. C. Cross; entertainment, Martin Singer. F. E. Samuels directed things generally and announced the stars. A little side entertainment sandwiched in between the bigger events was provided by Edna Fryling, Florence Bechler, Florence and Adeline Greenberg, singers, and Elwood and Theresa Cassidy, who executed some fancy dancing.

The affair was acclaimed a huge success by all present.

"Forget-Me-Not" Soon Complete

The public will soon be paying admissions to see the latest Kitty Gordon film, "Forget-Me-Not," upon which the final strokes of production are now being executed.

Director General William A. Brady, of the World Film Corporation, received a cable dispatch lately from Miss Gordon, who is finishing the "Forget-Me-Not" film in Cuba, requesting that the return of herself and her company to New York be postponed for forty-eight hours beyond the time originally set in order that she might accept certain unusual social attentions in Havana.

By way of reply to her query, Mr. Brady admonished his English star to "have a good time but hurry back to Fort Lee when it is over."

EIGHT-REELER IS POPULAR

Managers in All Cities Book "The Girl Philippa" for Extended Runs—Chicago Theater Has Big Advance Sale

Two days before "The Girl Philippa" began its run at the Ziegfeld Theater in Chicago, February 3, every reserved seat had been sold for a week ahead, according to word forwarded by the management to the New York office of Vitagraph. Manager Walter W. Irwin of Vitagraph V. L. S. E. declares that this is a record that has not been equalled.

Other large houses all over the country are running the film version of Robert W. Chambers' story, in which Anita Stewart plays the lead.

The Modern Theater, in Boston, often said to be the finest photo-playhouse in New England, made special arrangements to show "The Girl Philippa" for a two-weeks' run, beginning February 5.

The Orpheum Theater, Cleveland, which has become exclusively a Vitagraph house and is the largest downtown theater in Cleveland, began its run of "The Girl Philippa" on January 28 and, according to advices received at the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. home office, broke all records at the Orpheum for gross attendance and box office receipts.

In Seattle, where the Clemmer Theater began running the picture January 28, for at least a two-weeks' engagement, the people have talked so much over this production that a fashionable caterer in Seattle has invented an ice known as "The Girl Philippa" cream. Tacoma, always a rival to Seattle, booked "Philippa" simultaneously with its sister-city.

The Strand, Birmingham, Alabama, the largest house in the city and one of the motion picture palaces of the South, began its run of "The Girl Philippa," February 11.

The Majestic Theater, Des Moines, begins its engagement with "The Girl Philippa" on February 25, paying a rental price said to be the largest ever contracted for by any picture theater in Iowa.

Providence, R. I., will see "The Girl Philippa" at the Modern Theater, where it began a two-weeks' run February 12.

A special souvenir book on "The Girl Philippa," with a cover printed in three colors and its type matter on rich sepia paper, has been sent to all Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchanges for the use of exhibitors among their patrons. The book contains views from "The Girl Philippa," with excerpts from Robert W. Chambers' statement of the picture, Miss Stewart's ideas, the cast, etc.

"The Girl Philippa" souvenir book is supplied to the exhibitors at cost price.

In addition, a special 12-page booklet for the sole use of exhibitors in advertising and publicizing "The Girl Philippa" has been prepared.

The photoplay is as far from the stage on the one hand as it is from the novel on the other. * * * The photoplays of the future will be written from the foundations for the films. * * * What is adapted to complete expression in one art generally secures but half expression in another. The supreme photoplay will give us things that have been but half expressed in all other mediums allied to it.—Vachel Lindsay: The Art of the Motion Picture.

PARAMOUNT RELEASES

Fannie Ward and Mae Murray in Two Lasky Features to Head Program for Week of February 19

Two Lasky productions will head the Paramount program for the week of February 19. These are "The Winning of Sally Temple," in which Fannie Ward plays the leading role, and "On Record" in which Mae Murray will be the star.

"The Winning of Sally Temple" is based upon Rupert Sargent Holland's celebrated novel, "The Heart of Sally Temple." The story of "On Record" is that of a typical young girl reared in a small town, the most interesting incidents of her life being the falling of an aeroplane from the sky.

Surrounding the program for the week are four single-reel features, including the fifty-fourth edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen; the fifty-fifth of the series of Weekly Trips Around the World, personally conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he takes a visit to the Stony Indians; and a Black Diamond comedy entitled "Her Scrambled Ambition."

In the fifty-fourth edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, there are three interesting magazine articles dealt with, topped off with a very clever cartoon comedy. There is an unusual series of pictures showing the delicacy and use of the methods of the Japanese in their art of self defense, jiu-jitsu, while the second is a series taken at Wesleyan University by their giant telescope, showing how it works and what it does for the public. The last portion depicts the evolution of winter sport.

The cartoon comedy for the week features "Bobby Bumps in the Great Divide." This is one of those unusually odd and droll comics that make hearty chuckles grow where there was only a grouch before.

The chief Fox villain, Stuart Holmes, in an unusual role in "The Scarlet Letter," a powerful new Fox play.

AMERICAN'S SCENARIO NEEDS

Stories Suitable for Gail Kane and Mary Miles Minter Are Needed—Also Scripts for William Russell

A request made recently by President Samuel S. Hutchinson, of the American Film Company, that scenario writers send in their ideas suitable for photoplays for Mutual stars, brought a bombardment. Mr. Hutchinson asked not only for plays for the American stars but also for those of the other producing companies with which he is associated, and which are releasing through Mutual, Signal and Vogue.

The photoplays came. They came by the hundreds. They came from all parts of the world and from all classes of people.

Wants Subjects for Gail Kane

Letters were also received from people who say they do not feel competent to write scenarios themselves but would like to suggest various subjects which they know would be suitable to the players and prove very popular with the public. Mr. Hutchinson makes the following comments:

We never realized before how widespread is the popularity of these stars and what a personal interest the people take in their work.

The fact that we have received so many scenarios does not mean that we are not still and always in the market for any stories which are suitable for our stars. We prefer these submitted in synopsis form as it is seldom that the outside writer is able to understand the conditions in the studio well enough to make the writing of the detailed continuity worth while.

Stories for Mary Miles Minter

As to the subjects, we give the writer a wide variety. Gail Kane, who has recently been signed by the Mutual, will soon be established at the American studios and we are looking for suitable vehicles for her—strong dramatic plots which will afford this actress ample opportunity to display her exceptional talents. For Mary Miles Minter, we desire lighter stories with not such a strong dramatic tendency, to fit her youth. We can use for William Russell strong, virile plots replete with tense gripping situations, and for Helen Holmes more real railroad or industrial stories which will afford Miss Holmes an opportunity for her particular variety of tense action.

It should be kept in mind by all writers ambitious to furnish suitable photoplays for these stars that the scenarios chosen by the American company to be used as the basis for Mutual pictures must be of the highest caliber. Only the best obtainable will be used.

Loew Books "Big V" Comedies

Marcus Loew has contracted for forty days' solid booking on all of Greater Vitagraph's "Big V" comedies. This contract, which went into effect on February 2, beginning with the New York Theater, was secured by George Balsdon, Jr., at the New York exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

Twenty-seven of the Loew houses are now running "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new adventure serial, as a first-run attraction. The "Big V" comedies will be featured in the same way by the Loew chain.

V. E. Hampton, a well known newspaper and showman, has been appointed director of publicity and advertising of the Progressive Motion Picture Company of Los Angeles, California, distributors of Paramount Pictures in that district. Louis W. Thompson, who formerly held the position, has been named the general sales representative for the exchange.

Theda Bara To Florida

Theda Bara, the Fox star, has left for Florida where the exterior scenes of a Super DeLuxe production now under way are to be filmed. A special Pullman and baggage car attached to the regular train leaving for the southern resort, was hired by Mr. Fox to transport Miss Bara and the rest of the cast.

The picture was started a few weeks ago in the Fox Fort Lee studios, where some elaborate interior sets were taken. The exterior locations requiring southern atmosphere, Director J. Gordon Edwards made preparations to take a supporting company numbering more than forty, to Palm Beach, where most of the filming will be done.

The story is the picturization of a well known and widely read novel. After the finishing of these scenes at Palm Beach, Miss Bara and the company will proceed to Miami, where another picture will be started. In the supporting cast who left for the south, were Walter Law, Glenn White, Clifford P. Saum, Miss Marie Curtis, Miss Alice Gale, Miss Grace Saum, Harry Hilliard, Miss Callie Torres, Director J. Gordon Edwards, and Photographer Philip E. Rosen.

National Committee Meets

A meeting of the executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America was held at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago on February 6. The members of the committee present were Lee A. Ochs, of New York, national president; Judge A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles, national vice president; Thomas Furniss, of Duluth, and William J. Sweeney and Alfred Hamburger, of Chicago.

Among other matters pertaining to the national organization which were taken up, the committee decided to ask for the resignation of Louis Frank of Chicago as manager of the coming national convention and exposition to be held in Chicago in July. Mr. Frank was manager of the exposition last year. The reasons for this action have not been given out for publication.

McClure's Series Going Strong

McClure Pictures reports that the demand for Seven Deadly Sins, the series of seven five-reel features, is exceeding all expectations, and that the Triangle exchanges are being overwhelmed with orders for the series.

"They are booking in the East like a house afire," reports Joseph Partridge, Eastern division manager for McClure Pictures.

"Double the order for prints in all western exchanges," wired C. B. Price, Western division manager. "Everybody knows all about Seven Deadly Sins and everybody wants to book them."

McClure publicity has carried the news of Seven Deadly Sins to every corner of the United States and the motion picture fans are asking the exhibitors about the series, and the exhibitors, in turn, are clamoring at the exchanges.

In New York City, B. S. Moss, after seeing the first three of the series—"Envy," "Pride," and "Greed"—promptly made a big offer for a pre-release showing in each of his huge theaters.

Seven Deadly Sins is a new idea in motion pictures—a series of seven five-reel features. There is no doubt now that the exhibitors are eager to sieze upon this new plan—seven different stars in seven connected features. As the first serial was imitated the moment it was proved to be a success, so will Seven Deadly Sins be imitated by any producer who has the courage to try to put behind his pictures the enormous and overwhelming advertising campaign that is driving the motion picture fans to the theaters showing Seven Deadly Sins.

Fox Company on Islands

St. Thomas Island, in the one-time Danish West Indies, which have just been acquired by the United States by purchase from Denmark, will be the place where Virginia Pearson's forthcoming production for Fox Films will be made.

Miss Pearson's will be the first photoplay ever to be screened in these islands. St. Thomas is the largest of the group of three bought by the United States.

Before departing for St. Thomas, which is approximately 1,300 miles from the tip of Florida, Miss Pearson and the other members of her cast will spend about ten days in the Fox studios at Fort Lee, N. J., making interiors for the new subject.

At least five weeks, and possibly six or eight, will be required on St. Thomas for the photoplay.

Allen J. Holubar is directing and playing in "The Reward of His Government," a five-reel Universal.

Ruth Clifford is featured in "A Modern Mona Lisa," a five-reeler nearly completed at Universal City.

At the left is Ann Murdock, captivating star in "Envy," first feature of the McClure's Seven Deadly Sins series. Next is Nance O'Neil in "Greed," third of the list, and at the right is H. B. Warner in "Wrath," fifth of the remarkable series.

Doug was so anxious to show Charlie how well he can ape him that he forgot to take off his hat. And Charlie seems to enjoy the performance.

New Essanay Ready

What is claimed to be one of the best feature productions ever put out by Essanay is nearly ready for the screen. It is "Burning the Candle," Henry B. Walthall's latest play.

Only a few scenes remain to complete the filming process of "Burning the Candle." Not since "The Truant Soul," has Mr. Walthall been cast in a role as tensely dramatic as in this production. The story projects a powerful lesson on the liquor theme. It presents the great emotional actor as a young southerner whose lips have never before tasted alcohol, suddenly confronted with the death-dealing temptations of the saloon and cafe cocktail. He succumbs to the lure and his passion for drink, becoming suddenly inflamed, drags him to the depths of depravity. He loses his position in a New York cotton broker's office, and his young bride quits him.

A remarkable thread of love between the inebriate and his wife traverses the plot. In the end it lifts him from his depravity and restores the young couple to happiness.

Mary Charleson, who has won nation-wide praise in her support of Mr. Walthall in his past successes, is seen again as his leading woman.

Fox Pictures Puritan Village

In the picturization of Hawthorne's novel, "The Scarlet Letter," now being produced by William Fox, the scenery and general setting of the immortal story have been reproduced and copied into the celluloid with painstaking attention to the fidelity of the reproduction. A small village, typical of those of Puritan New England, like one which was shown in an old wood-cut, has been made, not merely a collection of house fronts. The buildings surrounding the town square are life-size and have been designed, in their more minute details, from old prints and descriptions gathered from books of the period 1630 to 1700.

6,000 Extras at Studios

What is probably a record for the number of persons appearing in any motion picture studio in one day was established last week in the William Fox plant at Hollywood, California, when six thousand men and women were used in three film productions.

There have been many scenes in many photoplays in which more than six thousand "extras" have been employed, for purposes of realism, but until now these, however, have been staged in the open country.

With platforms scattered about for camera men's machines, and assistants rushing about trying to assemble their respective flocks, the sight was for all the world very similar to that of a country fair.

Honor System Opening Postponed

The opening performance in New York City of R. A. Walsh's ten-reel motion picture melodrama, "The Honor System," has been postponed by William Fox from February 6 to the afternoon of Monday, February 12.

The continued success of the big Kellermann spectacle, "A Daughter of the Gods," now playing at the Lyric Theater, where "The Honor System" will be disclosed, was responsible for the change in the date.

Theater Licenses Raised

The city council of Dennison, Ohio, at a special meeting recently, boosted the license of picture and vaudeville houses in that city.

For some time the license fee for conducting a picture show or a vaudeville house in Dennison has been $10 a year. This ordinance was passed several years ago. The council thought that vaudeville houses should pay a license of $1 a day and picture show houses not less than $30 a year or just as much more as the committee should see fit to recommend.

Although several protests were made by the picture show and vaudeville men, council refused to meet with their requests.

A new brand of screen comedy is soon to be offered on the Foxfilm program. It is comedy of the Western type and the star is Tom Mix, cowboy, ex-Rough Rider, scenario writer, author and director. Mr. Mix is the most noted cowboy in pictures and his signing with William Fox marks his first change in eight years. He has spent all his screen career with the Selig Polyscope Co. His leading woman is Victoria Forde, who played opposite him for Selig.

Three Foxfilm comedians temporarily deserted the comedy stage to appear in character parts with William Farnum in the Fox Super De Luxe production, "A Tale of Two Cities." They are Lee Morris, Martin Kinney and Mrs. Walter Reed, wife of Director Walter Reed.

The Foxfilm Comedy releases for February are "The Cloud Puncher" with Hank Mann; "Chased Into Love" with Hank Mann; "There's Many a Fool" with Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips, and "The House of Terrible Scandals" with Henry Lehrman and Billie Ritchie.

Blind Man in Picture

Probably the only blind man now acting in motion pictures is J. Van Cortland, who is playing in "The Great Secret," Metro's new big serial. Mr. Van Cortland is an actor of culture and experience, and up to a little over a year ago was rarely out of an engagement. Then came his sad affliction. He had been working for the Essanay Company in Chicago and one night while leaving the studio he was held up by thugs and robbed.

Finding that all he had was $4 the robbers blackjacked and beat him so severely that his eyesight was permanently affected. He came to New York to consult specialists and suddenly went blind. He is just able to distinguish between light and darkness, and has to be led about the streets. Yet strange to say he moves about the stage at the Quality studios with remarkable accuracy as though he were gifted with a sixth sense.

Exhibitor Lauds Mutual Serial

M. C. Kellogg, manager of the Homestake Opera House, Lead, South Dakota, who has booked the Mutual-Signal Photo-novel, "A Lass of the Lumberlands," writes: "Wish to say 'A Lass of the Lumberlands' is certainly proving very popular with my patrons. The second episode has real punch and acting in both reels, and when you consider that it is following one of the best serials I had run and as 'A Lass' is using the same night that it did, I believe that you can realize just how good it seems to be going with my friends.

"Also want to compliment the producing company, through Mutual, on the excellent photography that 'A Lass' has contained so far. Tonight we cut down below 35 Amps., and it stood out as if painted on the screen."

"Beware of Strangers"

William N. Selig in announcing his latest special feature film, "Beware of Strangers," states that the production was made for no other purpose than the exposure of and the education of the public to the traps so cleverly laid by swindlers that they seem unbelievable. It is stated that it is from records of confessions and sworn testimony that "Beware of Strangers" was produced and that the only embellishment is the romance effected to build the individual incidents into connected narrative.

Briefly, the story deals with an International gang of crooks who through their schemes ruin the lives of men and women. That the wages of sin are death is proven in "Beware of Strangers."

The all-star cast includes Tom Santschi, Fritzi Brunette, Jack Richardson, Vivian Rich, Ed Coxen, Bessie Eyton, Eugenie Besserer, Will Machin, Frank Clark, Harry Lonsdale and others.

Vitagraph to Make Big Snow Pictures

Studio Manager A. Victor Smith, of Greater Vitagraph, has just returned from a trip to the Lake Champlain country in New York state. He has been seeking locations for three forthcoming Vitagraph productions which demand a setting of snow and ice. Mr. Smith, who spent several days at "Caribou Bill's" lodge at Port Henry, reports the snow there to be more than ten feet deep with prospects for plenty more of it.

The "huskies," the big dogs that "Caribou Bill" has trained to do either real or reel work in the snows, knew Victor Smith as soon as he showed up at the lodge and bayed their throaty welcome, though they had not seen him for more than a year.

Romantic Settings in Kay-Bee Plays

The interior of the office of "The Glory Hole Nugget," newspaper of a lawless Arizona mining town, is among the unusual settings for "Truthful Tulliver," the recent William S. Hart Kay-Bee release. The equipment of available newspaper offices being too modern, a setting was erected after rare photographs of the old time offices. An old time hand press and type racks bought in a Los Angeles antique shop are among the properties.

Another Triangle play requiring unusual settings is "The Bride of Hate," with Frank Keenan and Marjorie Wilson. Many scenes take place on one of the Mississippi river boats of the old days. The saloon in the big gambling scene is an exact replica of one on the finest boat of its day. Art Director Brunton planned it from old prints secured in New Orleans.

"The Clock" is the title of a five-reel comedy-drama being filmed at Universal City by Director William Worthington.

These views do not even hint at the wide variety and stirring scenes in De Mille's "Joan the Woman." In the glimpses above are seen Geraldine Farrar, Raymond Halton and Charles Clary in some of the more import ant roles.

Current Releases Reviewed

"Greed"

The Third of the "Seven Deadly Sins," Starring Nance O'Neil. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

IN "Greed," one of the "Seven Deadly Sins," is shown that while wealth is greatly desired, it is often the forerunner of misfortune. It is a remarkable story of Wall street, attacking the money question from a decidedly new angle. Every element necessary to make it an interesting picture, is found in this modern story dealing with present day temptations. "Greed" measures satisfactorily alongside of the previous productions and will greatly please the average amusement seeker. There is plenty of action in the plot. The lighting and settings are unusually fine and effectively used.

Nance O'Neil has a characteristic role as Alma, which she plays most successfully. Supporting her, Shirley Mason, as Eve, and George Le Guere, as Adam, are exceptionally good in this installment. Harry Northup as "Doc" Denton makes a fine villain. Robert Elliott and Alfred Hickman, also have important parts in the cast.

Seeing others winning large fortunes, Eve and Adam try to add to theirs. Tempted by the sin of "Greed," Eve becomes reckless and at first wins. When she begins to lose, she desperately tries to recover her losses. Alma, who had been a party to illegal stock dealings, but is now leading an honorable life, meets Eve. She is blackmailed by Denton, a stock gambler, with whom she was formerly connected. Eve and Adam become involved with their friend Alma. Denton promises to destroy the evidence he has against Alma if she will marry him. She refuses and so he turns to Eve.

A sensational party is given by Denton, during which the men put aside all their money, choose partners, and with ten cents to a couple go in search of an adventure. Eve is paired with Denton and Alma with Adam. As the evening advances we see Eve trapped in Denton's office and Alma and Adam returning to rescue her. In the excitement that follows, Denton is killed and Alma is wounded so that she loses her mind. Adam is arrested on circumstantial evidence. Alma is the only one who saw the crime committed, but is unable to testify.

In the final scenes, which seem to prove the truth of the old proverb that, "The (inordinate) love of money is the root of all evil," Adam's guilt is proven, but his life is saved and he returns to Eve, who is forever cured of this deadly sin.

"Skinner's Dress Suit"

Five-Reel Essanay Release Through K. E. S. E. February 5. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

AN interesting, amusing story, a director with originality and good taste, an attractive featured player who can really act, supported by an intelligent cast well selected, combine these ingredients and the result is very likely to be a better-than-usual film play. The combined talents of Henry Irving Dodge, author, Harry Beaumont, director, and Bryant Washburn, star, have in this case made of "Skinner's Dress Suit" (a visualization of a story published in The Saturday Evening Past), a thoroughly satisfactory entertainment to present to any audience. This is the sort of picture which brings patrons again to the theater, hoping to see another play as good. Because of its cleverness and cleanliness, its good taste and its amusing, always human story, it is exactly the play for a family program. There are not too many of this kind.

The work of Bryant Washburn as Skinner is an especially pleasing character study. His gradual change of attitude toward the world with his increasing self-confidence, due to the recently acquired dress suit, is shown with much skill. This is aided by many subtle touches of fine direction. Harry Beaumont's brief directorial career has already brought him into the front ranks. Hazel Daly is very pleasing as Skinner's wife. Harry Dunkinson, the well known comedian, rather disguised by his make-up, makes the role of Willard Jackson stand out vividly. James C. Carroll and U. K. Haupt are well cast as the business superiors of Skinner.

The photography and settings of the picture are good throughout.

The Story: Skinner is an attractive chap and capable, but so lacking in self-confidence that he is known as "the worm" at the office of a mercantile concern where he is employed and underpaid. Only "Honey," his wife, appreciates his ability and she urges him to ask for raise of salary. Skinner does so, with much fear and trembling, and is refused. He dreads disappointing "Honey" and finally decides to declare that he got the raise, making up the difference from his private account.

To the credit of the dress suit—partnership in the firm.

As a result of the supposed increase "Honey" plans a social campaign and insists that Skinner purchase a dress suit. Skinner opens an account with the dress suit. He finds that the social life is financially expensive but that he is recompensed by increased self-respect and acquaintance with influential men. His change of attitude is noticed in the office and his superiors become suspicious. They decide to check up his books and to gain time send him to St. Paul to interview an important business prospect. Skinner puts his newly learned social skill to work and in this way gains the business of the man, whose wife was socially ambitious. As a result Skinner is not only given a raise but a partnership in the firm.

"The Golden Fetter"

Five-Reel Jesse L. Lasky Photoplay Released January 25. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THERE are plenty of chances in this picture for the spectator to wonder "How?" "Why?" and "Wherefore?" because there is a certain misty indefiniteness about the action. Because of this condition the wings that might have carried the story to a fair dramatic altitude are clipped. But even if one pulls the story out of its shrouds for a clear examination it doesn't present a plot very far removed from the trite in pictureplays. Its situations are melodramatic, largely, although we find a slight comedy relief now and then. Those who enjoy the sensational will find the climax suited to their taste. The story does not evolve at all smoothly.

Wallace Reid, for a portion of his interpretation, has to be a sort of half-witted country boy. To remain near his sweetheart he has to keep up this deception. Mr. Reid handles this with good effect and makes a generally likeable hero during the balance of the picture. Anita King, who plays opposite him, gives evidence, through what slight channels she has that she can do emotional work. Tully Marshall is exceptionally well cast as a smooth-tongued deceiver. He leaves nothing to the spectator's imagination. Others in support of the stars are Guy Oliver, Walter Long, Mrs. Lewis McCord, C. H. Geldert, Larry Payton and Lucien Littlefield.

The usual Lasky good taste in art direction and the fine photography help to make the picture attractive. Wallace Reid's name has a good advertising value, the fact that he played the part of Joan's lover in Cecil B. DeMille's "Joan the Woman," helping to augment this. If there are regions where, more than others, Wallace Reid is the "rage" in these places "The Golder Fetter" will be decidedly playable. The film, however, is not a striking one.

Faith Miller, a school teacher in an Eastern town, true to her Christian name, allows herself to be "taken in" by a slick deceiver from the West. He sells her a bogus mine, collecting nine-tenths of the $10,000 fortune just left her. Finally, in the interest of her health, Faith travels West, only to learn that her mine is worthless. James Ralston, a young miner, joins the others of the settlement in their determination to secure redress for the girl. The mine is salted and in this way is Slade, the villain decoyed back to the town. Believing the mine valuable he buys it back at his original selling price. From this time on the story occupies itself with an adventure of Faith and Jim. Circumstances so form themselves that the girl has to run the risk of losing her reputation in order to prove an alibi for her lover, who is thought to be a robber. But in spite of this Jim is about to be hanged—when news establishing his innocence arrives.

"The Swamp Adder"

Ninth Episode of Vitagraph's "The Secret Kingdom" Reviewed by Geo. W. Graves

THERE is melodrama a-plenty in this installment, the hero being saved from a terrible death in the quicksand and Julia from a death equally as horrible when she is trapped in the hold of a sinking hulk by Mme. Savatz and left to drown like a rat. Princess Julia, too, has experiences at the hands of the dread Swamp Adder which would be enough to make any human girl quake with terror. The Swamp Adder, by the way, the bloodthirsty pirate who lurks in the offing ready to spring upon helpless castaways or boats not too large for his limited number of men, has been made a very repulsive creature indeed. With one eye he surveys his victims, while the other, sightless, is fixed in a frightful stare.

The story of this episode, being melodramatic and full of action, holds the interest in a very creditable manner and the direction seems particularly painstaking. Most of the action transpires on the water and water scenes have a peculiar fascination in the movies. Charles Richman, Dorothy Kelly and Arline Pretty all render acceptable serial performances. All in all, "The Swamp Adder" makes a very attractive addition to the foregoing eight episodes.

When the party find themselves at the mercy of the Swamp Adder, Ramon assures the robber that he will give him one thousand dollars if he will kill Phillip and Juan and let the rest go free. But Phillip immediately offers the pirate five thousand for his safety. The cunning outlaw soon ascertains, however, that neither have the funds on their person and sets them adrift separately, promising that the one who brings money first will win his favor.

The Adder assaults Julia, who is saved by the arrival of a band of Cuban settlers, determined to exterminate the Swamp Adder forever. While the terrific fight is in progress Juan and Phillip rescue Julia from drowning between the decks of the Swamp Adder's old hulk, where Savatz had left her. The episode closes with the death of the terror of the seas, the escape of Savatz and Ramon by boat and Phillip and Juan left in the care of the dead pirate's octoroon wife.

"The Red Woman"

World Film Drama in Five Parts. Released February 12. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THIS story, by H. R. Durant, features Gail Kane in the role of an Indian girl who has a romance with a wealthy young man of the East. With its adobe dwellings, delightful Western exteriors, etc., an atmosphere sans reproach has been created by the director. The story at its best is an old theme, with only a few novel twists, but it is clearly told and suitably acted. The events passing on the screen generate a fair interest in the mind of the spectator, but the picture is devoid of any continuously sustained dramatic punch, partly attributable to minor inconsistencies and partly to the lack of a real big situation. No character creates a prodigious amount of sympathy.

Gail Kane is seen as an Indian girl who is coveted by Sancho, a cattle rustler and all-round desert pirate. She falls in love with Dean, an Easterner who has come to the district to work his mine. Before coming West the boy had been the victim of a designing fortune-hunter, who, on learning of the supposed loss of his fortune, had shown her true colors.

A later will of his father puts the millions back into his hands, and Dora, the adventuress, comes West. At first Maria, the Indian girl, forces Dean to go to his white "sweetheart," but later, not being able to contain her love, she goes to his cabin and throws herself into his arms. Dean returns to New York to take care of his fortune and turns a cold shoulder to Dora for good and all. He finally returns to Mexico just in time to claim the Indian girl as his bride and save her from being forced to marry Sancho, who claims he is the father of Maria's baby, although he cannot explain the baby's blonde hair and white skin. After a hot skirmish between Dean's men and the Mexican's outlaws, Sancho meets an end which will make the spectator exclaim, "serves him right."

Ed. F. Roseman makes as venomous and vindictive a Mexican outlaw as one would wish, while Mahlon Hamilton is good as the lover and June Elvidge equally so as the fortune-hunter.

One of the unique scenes in "The Red Woman."

While "The Red Woman" is limited in its story appeal, the acting (of the star in particular) helps to redeem the shortcoming, and it is likely that the theater-goer who is not particular about story values in films will be satisfied. However, this offering has nothing distinctive enough to elevate it above the ordinary run of five-reelers.

"One Touch of Sin"

William Fox Melodrama in Five Parts Released January 29. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THIS release leans toward the sensational, and in some cases sacrifices probability on the altar of the thrill. But it can boast of a stormy, breath-arresting climax as well as some scenes of dramatic intensity in a story which is of the continuous interest variety, due to its handling. Gladys Brockwell has a part which, more than any other we remember her in, is conducive to the exercise of her alleged "thousand expressions." She portrays violent, scornful wrath with as much conviction as she does the happy attitudes of the contented wife. At one time she is a repulsive woman weighted down with the incubus of an unjust shame and at another she is the ideal of purity. The star handles her part very convincingly, easily rising to the melodramatic heights called for by the story.

Richard Stanton, the director, had charge of some good thrills. Pre-eminent among these is the flooding of a mine, which occurs at the climax and gives the hero a chance to rescue his enemy. This was very well handled. Jack Standing is a fine "heavy," and Willard Louis affords a refreshingly new type of portrayal. Others in the cast are Sedley Brown, Carrie Clark Ward and Frankie Lee.

The picture's main drawback is that the author has not made his characters act all the time as ordinary people would. Because of very good acting on the part of the star and a story of undoubted melodramatic force "One Touch of Sin" is bound to find a patronage.

Mary Livingston, deserted and left with a child, meets some years afterward the man who betrayed her, in the West. In a saloon in the Western town she falls lower and lower, meeting with various melodramatic experiences until finally a kind-hearted fellow, Tabor, marries her merely to save her from jail. How she gradually grows to love the man and he her, in spite of the fact that he discovers her past, and how the villain, aroused to jealousy at the sight of the happiness of the girl he ruined and intended to keep down, is arrested by fate brings the story to a climax. When Mary's persecutor, on his dying couch, tells his secret to Tabor, the woman is in mortal dread lest her husband repudiate her. But the kind-hearted fellow, who has already learned the secret and sent for Mary's child, reassures her and tells her his love is big enough to forget the past.

"Where Love Is"

Mutual Five-Reel Feature with Ann Murdock. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

ANN MURDOCK, the popular ingenue from the speaking stage, should give to this picture a certain drawing power. Also the fact that the play is a dramatization of a novel by William J. Locke will attract many.

The picture itself is remarkable chiefly for a number of exterior scenes of unusual beauty. Many of the scenes resemble paintings rather than photographs. Pictorially the offering is delightful. It has other points of appeal, the hunting scenes, for instance. And audiences who like the ingenue type of actress will be pleased with Miss Murdock.

As for the story itself, there is not much to be said. The plot is not over-convincing, and the delightful style of Locke's telling of his stories entirely lost. The characters are rather broadly drawn, especially the leads. The artist is the conventional dreamer and will not make a very strong appeal. The villain is villainous, the society people heartless. Shirley Mason as the artist's protege, Raymond McKee as her boyish lover, and Mabel Trunelle as a friend of the artist, are in their roles more human than the more prominent players.

In general, the picture is acceptable but not remarkable.

The Story: Norma Hardacre (Ann Murdock), daughter of social climbers, destined to be sacrificed to a rich suitor, meets and falls in love with Jimmie Padgate (Henry Stanford), a struggling artist. In spite of her growing love for Jimmie she consents to an engagement with Morland King (Biglow Cooper), a wealthy man-about-town.

Jimmie and Morland are close friends and Morland confides that he has wronged a little country girl and gets Jimmie to see the girl for him and try to straighten matters out. The attempt is unsuccessful, however, the girl commits suicide and her father comes to the city to be revenged on the man responsible for her death. He arrives just as the wedding ceremony is to be said over Morland and Norma and Jimmie assumes the dishonor to save Morland's name from disgrace.

Norma, unconvinced of Jimmie's guilt, and sure of her own love for him, denounces the hypocrisy of the life she has been leading and declaring that she would rather live in a hovel where love is, rushes from the house. She goes straight to Padgate's studio. Her parents and Morland follow and Morland confesses his guilt and clears the name of Padgate.

Selig Program Offerings

Two Short Length Plays for Week of February 5. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

A STRANGE ADVENTURE. This single-reel picture has Jack Pickford and Bessie Eyton in its leading roles and Marshall Neilan as its director. It is an extravagant adventure episode which ends as a dream Jack has while under the influence of an anaesthetic in a dentist's chair. Of its kind, the picture is well done and will entertain any audience, the surprise ending coming before the wild events lose their interest. Jack Pickford is well cast in the role of the youthful adventurer, and Bessie Eyton appears very foreign and very pretty as the mysterious princess. The photography and settings are beautiful.

In the story, Jack with much haste falls in love with a pretty girl he meets at a summer resort. After various mishaps in his efforts to attract her interest, he learns by means of a mysterious note that she is a princess in the power of a secret enemy. He follows her to an appointment with her enemy and attempts to save her. In the general struggle which follows, the girl is killed. Then Jack awakens in the dentist's chair.

CUPID'S THUMBPRINT. Should a fastitious patron, accustomed to pictures of the better class, chance into a theater showing this melodrama he will find more things to appeal to his sense of humor than in the majority of releases intentionally comic. For, in its unreal acting and improbable story, the picture goes so far below standard that it ceases to be annoying and becomes entertainly funny.

The picture contains two reels of action. It tells a story with more or less clearness. Its heroine is pretty and although of marriageble age, wears her hair in tight curls which do not become disarranged even when she sleeps. Its hero is a good looking burglar who admits he comes of fine family and who does a lightning reformation act, saving the heroine and foiling the villain-in-disguise. The picture has those elements of popular appeal, and on the strength of them will entertain some patrons.

But the others, who may be skeptical about the burglar's sudden conversion when he enters the room of the sleeping heroine and about his return as a butler to the home he attempted to rob, and the series of remarkable coincidences which form the progress of the plot, these others will enjoy the play only if they see the humor of it.

Otis B. Thayer directed the picture from a story by L. V. Jefferson. Players in the cast are Frank Hamilton, Maybelle Spaulding, Ward Wing, Willard Burke and Roy Sutherland.

The plot of the picture follows. Irma is the daughter of Dean Fairchild, wealthy manufacturer. Leonard Prewitt, a suitor who covets Irma's fortune, is favored by the father but not by the daughter. During a house party at Irma's home, Prewitt, in need of money, decides to rob Fairchild's safe. A professional burglar, Breen, is already at work at the safe. Prewitt drives him away and takes the jewels. Breen chances into Irma's room. Her beauty arouses in him a desire to be worthy her. A few moments Prewitt enters the room but the burglar saves Irma from injury.

In the morning the only clew to the burglary is the imprint of a thumb on the safe door. Later Irma receives a note from the reformed burglar, signed only by a thumb print. Then Breen enters the Fairchild home again and gets a position as butler. He is able to prove the guilt of Prewitt and is rewarded by the love of Irma.

"The Hoodooed Story"

Essanay Black Cat Feature Released February 6. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS comedy drama is an entertaining short length offering, with action, surprise and comedy. Its story is well away from hackneyed themes, and still is not extravagant or impossible. Pleasingly produced, interpreted by a popular cast of players, lead by Richard Travers, Gertrude Glover and John Cossar, the picture is one suited to any class theater.

The Story: Smith (Travers) is a short story writer. His stories are returned with much regularity, even the one he considers his masterpiece. One day he is held up by robbers, who take his last thirty cents and the manuscript of the story. On the next mail he receives a letter from the publishers, stating that the story was returned by mistake and that they will buy it at their usual rates. Smith offers a reward for the return of the stolen story and in the meantime borrows money from all his friends on the strength of the promise of the publishers.

The robbers return the story and Smith again submits it to the magazine. The editor again returns it, declaring that the letter of acceptance was a mistake. Smith is overwhelmed with trouble. Then the editor's secretary, Perth Barlow (Gertrude Glover), calls upon Smith to apoligize for her blunder. She reads others of his stories and submits them to the editor. They are purchased and Smith finds himself again prosperous. The story ends with a love affair between Perth and Smith.

"The Argyle Case"

Selznick Pictures' Seven-Reel Subject Is Excellent Detective Drama. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A WELL-TOLD, convincing detective story always has its place. People have their likes and dislikes in problem plays, light comedy-dramas, melodramatic thrillers, etc., but the majority come to an agreement of taste for the well prepared and well garnished detective story. And since there has been a general dearth of good plays of this nature lately, "The Argyle Case," an adaptation of the successful stage play by Harvey J. O'Higgins, Harriet Ford and William J. Burns, one of the best known detectives of modern times, is to be welcomed with open arms.

The story is extremely methodical in its telling, affording one the greatest ease in keeping the different developments clearly in mind and offering him just enough of a clue to keep him keenly interested. From the flash of the first scenes to the fade-out at the end of the seventh reel the film keeps the attention riveted. And this speaks well for the value of the story itself, as well as for the expert scenario and remarkably fine direction. Ralph W. Ince created excellent atmosphere for the story and instilled punch into all the big scenes. As per the prime requirement of a play of this kind he was particularly careful of detail. The collaboration of William Burns with the authors insured the authentic introduction of Twentieth Century methods in sleuthing practice, and so the impossible detective of the antiquated story-book is done away with.

In this Robert Warwick achieves his greatest moving picture success. He lives the part of this modern, shrewdly methodical unraveler of villainous plots and does not overact in the least. His cool and contained methods of probing for truth convince one that if the problem is susceptible of solution he will solve it. If the spectator is not already a Robert Warwick fan he is pretty sure to be one after viewing "The Argyle Case." As the woman unjustly accused, who helps in the solving of the mystery, Elaine Hammerstein makes an appealing character. Frank Evans is a splendid "heavy," and J. B. Fleming is just the type for Inspector Dogherty. Other convincing interpreters of the piece are Frank McGlynn, H. Cooper Cliffe and Mary Alden.

"The Argyle Case" is among the finest detective plays yet to find its way to the screen. The story itself is ingeniously treated in all respects and its interpretation by the cast and its convincing direction are above reproach. We heartily recommend it for an acceptable feature for any character of audience.

"The Wax Model"

Five-Part Pallas-Paramount Drama Released February 1. Reviewed by George W. Graves

Hermineux begs Julie to allow him to make a wax model of herself.

VIVIAN MARTIN was never more alluring, more utterly captivating, than she is in this heart-interest drama, written by G. Vere Tyler. The petite star is seen in the role of a successful artists' model, whose purity is white as fresh-fallen snow. But, pathetic to relate, the one man in her life who has not proven a flat disappointment, misinterprets her character and the story relates throughout the operation of the fate that keeps the narrow-minded but noble Britisher from looking through the veil of appearances. The story is a thoroughly entertaining one, well told and finely produced. Vivian Martin has caught the true tone of French vivacity and mannerisms, so one need not rely on the evidence of the subtitles with their substitution of the impossible (to a French mind) English "th" for the easy-sliding "Z," to have the fact conveyed that she is French.

A suitable cast was chosen to support the star. Thomas Holding plays the part of the immaculate English lover with all the dignified reserve that is requisite. His performance is a very polished one. George Fisher, playing the part of an artist whose morals are decidedly shaky, is good. Others in the cast are Helen Jerome Eddy, Kathryn Vaughn and Senor Buzzi, an excellent store-keeper type.

E. Mason Hopper, the director, erected deep, effective interior sets and took the most charming "shots" out of doors. The atmosphere of London, the story's locale, is faithfully drawn. In the direction of the actors, too, Mr. Hopper's efficiency is strongly in evidence.

"The Wax Model" with its depiction of the noble things in human nature, is one whose moral effect is of the best. A thoroughly attractive offering, with winsome star, capable cast, human story and convincing direction, it embodies all the requisites making for popularity.

Julie is the daughter of a French dancer. Her mother, the victim of a relentless, cold-blooded male, commits suicide, poisoning Julie's mind against men. Eventually Julie becomes the most popular model in Paris. Hermineux, a vendor of fashionable gowns, has a wax model of her face and form made for the display of his wares. Julie meets Melville Ilchester, a man she recognizes at once as being distinctly different from the "ordinary run." Ilchester, who knows little of life outside of books, feels the first call of romance when he sets eyes on the dainty model, but an unfortunate circumstance later blinds the unreasoning Britisher to her virtues. Ilchester, in a moment of rage, demolishes the wax model of Julie at Hermineux's shop. Julie saves the Englishman's sister from a profligate artist, an act which the man she loves misinterprets, since he does not imagine his sister's weakness. Because of her love for Ilchester, Julie renounces her work as model, and is finally reduced to utter desolation. She makes a last impassioned appeal by letter to her lover (her other letters had been returned unopened) and Ilchester, his eyes at last opened by his sister's testimony, hastens to the girl. So the story closes with the fruition of all the fond hopes of Springtime.

"The Gun Fighter"

Five-Reel Triangle-Kay Bee Featuring William S. Hart. Reviewed by George W. Graves

WILLIAM S. HART is an out-and-out ruffian, a "killer" in the strictest sense, in his latest picture. In fact, he is a monomaniac in this respect. According to the "Killer's" code it is not murder to slay a murderer, and he at least has the just habit of allowing his opponent a fair, and sometimes more than fair show. He even has a note-book in which he keeps a complete record, neatly arranged, of the deaths of his unfortunate victims. The story follows the usual course of Hart-Ince pictures, but is poignantly melodramatic, where some of its predecessors have only been normally so. The consensus of the opinion of its viewers among the fans will no doubt yield a product of which this is the essence—"Too much gun-play." But even then there is a certain charm in the reckless daring of the characters, and the wild events of the piece in general.

As per custom of the Hart picture, the Western atmosphere and the Western types are unsurpassed. Roy Laidlaw is a splendid Spanish-Mexican outlaw. Margery Wilson is again a demure, sympathetic heroine. Others in the powerful cast are J. J. Dowling and Milton Ross.

All in all, this makes a very virile and pleasing subject. It is full of action and has many interesting touches, some new, and some drawn from the regular stock of Hart sure-fires. The fact that the Killer is not all bad, just a primitive type with an erratic individuality, opens the channel for plenty of sympathy to flow through. "The Gun Fighter" is not the best vehicle Mr. Hart has had, but it is "different" and therefore partakes of the nature of a diversion from the beaten path.

Cliff Hudspeth is "The Killer," a leader of a band of outlaws. His most powerful rival is El Salvador, a half-breed desert pirate, who sends his men, under the leadership of "Cactus" Fuller to the town of Desert Pass, where the whole party makes a triumphant "haul." At the very time "Cactus" is boasting to his men in the town saloon how he would annihilate the Killer, the latter strides into the saloon and holds him to his threat. The result is that the bully, trying to play unfairly in a duel, is shot.

William S. Hart in "The Gun Fighter."

Norma Wright, the pretty little milliner of Desert Pass, sees the shooting and denounces Cliff as a cold-blooded murderer. Incensed at the reproach he would not take from any male, and not being able to apply his regular formula of killing, he snatches her off her feet and gallops away to his "headquarters," where he locks her up. During the night Cliff has a terrible nightmare, in which all his victims of bygone days pass in review before his vision. So with the dawning of the day he is more ready to be influenced when the girl expounds to him some principles of right. He finally promises her he will never kill more and takes her back to her home.

Hardly has he made this pledge, however, than he is commissioned to "get" El Salvador for the government, the latter realizing that it takes an outlaw to get one. El Salvador raids Desert Pass, kidnaps Norma and takes her into the wilderness with him. But the Killer is hard on his trail. The latter finally locates the two in a lonely mountain cabin, and, in a sensational fight in the darkness, slays the Spaniard as he is about to assault Norma. The Killer, wounded, dies, with the consolation that his last killing has been in defense of the girl, who has escaped on his horse.

Enid Bennett in "Princess of the Dark."

"Princess of the Dark"

Five-Part Triangle-Kay Bee Released February 25. Reviewed by Geo. W. Graves

ENID BENNETT makes her first bow on the screen in this as a blind girl endowed with a fanciful imagination of almost unbelievable scope. It is a story similar to the Fine Arts offering of several weeks back, "Nina the Flower Girl," but much more convincing. In this the hunch-back lover, beyond the skill of the surgeon, does away with himself, while the girl, true to her worship of the prince of her dreams, falls in love with the material image of that concept, her other lover, when her sight is restored. Of course, the girl intends to do the kindest thing by the poor hunch-back, but his elimination through suicide leaves the way her love dictates clear, without any tormenting regrets.

The star has a part that is trying, and capable of much interpretive effect, and she acquits herself in an entirely commendable manner even for one not new to screen art. She has a winsome personality and gentle charm, her work in this picture predicting an auspicious future. The cast is an efficient one. Jack Gilbert as the hunch-back, an extremely sympathetic figure, gives a good performance, but there doesn't seem any occasion for his being bent over double. This detracts from realism, for how could the blind girl, with her other senses more acute than ever, remain ignorant of the fact that he is a cripple? And the human voice is not taken into account either when the girl fails to recognize her lover. But the story itself runs in the channels of probability.

A novel twist is introduced through the means of a telegram. Rockwell, the engineer lover who offers to finance an operation to restore the girl's sight, has sent for the New York specialist. "Crip" Halloran, fearing that this operation will lose to him the girl forever, confronts Rockwell behind a revolver and tells him that if he does not immediately telegraph to the doctor not to come he will kill him. Rockwell incorporates in the telegram a sharp rebuke to the cripple's selfishness, so when the latter reads it he quiets down and acknowledges his weakness.

The doctor arrives and performs his operation which is successful. Of course, the first person Fay wishes to see is her "prince," whom she believes to be strong and handsome. "Crip," attired in his "Sunday best," is standing before her in a cold sweat waiting for the bandages to be removed from her eyes. Fay, seeing, but still blinded by her fairy concept, refuses to believe that "Crip" is her prince. She goes to the big, attractive Rockwell and hails him as her prince. Fay finally realizes the truth and sets out to comfort "Crip," but the poor, misshapen creature, anticipating the absolute void of his future, does away with himself. In the cave formerly illuminated with the romantic fancies of imagination, but now sombre and in all of its actual ugliness, the two lovers find "Crip"—dead.

The scenario for "Princess of the Dark" was written by Lanier Bartlett. Charles Miller's direction is a prominent feature of the picture.

"A Square Deal"

Five-Part World-Peerless Drama Released February 19. Reviewed by George W. Graves

EVEN if this subject does not convince one entirely as being in rapport with life as it really is, it is very interesting entertainment, partly because of the work of the four actors in the prominent parts and partly because of some new wrinkles in plot construction. As the picture opens we see three "pals" located in the bohemian quarter of a large city—Hugh Eltinge, an artist, Mark Dunbar, an author, and Doris Golden, a reporter. The three have vowed eternal vows of friendship. Mark finally becomes very successful, but, wishing to share his money with his proud friends, he secretly pays a merchant to buy Hugh's paintings, and arranges things so that an inheritance will seemingly fall to Doris from her uncle.

But with Mark's rise to fame, he is caught by a fortune-hunting girl, Ruby Trailes, who lures him into an immediate marriage. Doris really loves the author, but hides her pain when she congratulates him. Soon after his marriage he realizes the terrible truth that his wife cares about nothing but his money. Doris, learning that Mark is back of her "inheritance," writes a letter to him, telling him that she intends to pay back every cent. The missive falls into the hands of Ruby, who, with her designing mother, visits Doris' studio and finds her in a compromising position with Mark. An interesting twist is given the story's ending showing how Hugh, to bring the true lovers together and separate his chum from his vulgar wife, beats the latter at her own game of deception, pretending he is a millionaire. This is a perilous procedure, since it brings the momentary hate of Mark, who thinks him his wife's lover. But the goal is won, the fortune-hunting mother and daughter receive the shock of their lives, and the true lovers are united.

Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Henry Hull and Muriel Ostriche are seen to advantage in the prominent parts, and the work of each, on the whole, covers requirements. Since the cast contains names well known among film audiences, this is a salient feature to draw upon in forming advance notices of the picture. L. V. Jefferson's story has a great deal of good material in it, and, with the exception of the first two reels, something is happening all the time. Harley Knoles' direction strikes an even note of quality. All told, the picture is "just fair" because of lack of conviction.

A real home scene from "A Square Deal."

"The New York Peacock"

Five-Reel William Fox Subject Released February 5. Reviewed by George W. Graves

VALESKA SURATT is a vampire de luxe in this fast moving melodrama dealing with a young country fellow's fall into the snare and his subsequent extrication. If a garish display of jewelry and eccentric manners and dress are the substance of the fatal lure of the "vamp" we must unreservedly hand Miss Suratt the prize for attaining the supreme rung of vampiredom in this picture. Peacock is a suitable name for the relentless "spider" of this play, but a peacock's display of glory was never like this. It is at least in good taste, while the pounds of jewelry and wild costumes that adorn this relentless seducer of men can hardly lay claim to that. However, without these embellishments we suppose the "vamp" would lose her serpentine hold on her victims, as well as her hold of fascination upon audiences. But we wonder how many people take portrayals of this kind seriously.

The story, by Mary Murillo, tells of how the young married son of a cutlery manufacturer (recently resolved to make ammunition) comes to New York and falls into the web of the spider, who is working with a band of foreign spies. She helps the men get possession of the draft entrusted to Billy by his father and starts him on the precarious road of the gambling fiend. The woman, falling in love with Billy and he with her, although he has a wife and little child in the country, sets about to double-cross her companions. But she finally realizes that the "boy" can never be hers and sacrifices herself for him.

Fearing his father's wrath, "Billy" dares not return home, but the elder gentleman at last comes to town and is easily ensnared by the woman—part of her plan to bring about a reconciliation. The result is that the father, being caught in the same position as his son, can do no other than forgive the boy, and they both return to the loved ones at home, to begin things afresh, while the vampire falls back into the ways she has tried to renounce since the awakening of her first real love. Also, much to the delight of the mother of the family, the cutlery factory still continues to make weapons of no greater harm than the knife and fork.

The star plays her part with all the realism necessary, and has plenty of melodramatic scenes. As a "vampire lady" of the extremest type, she has them all beat. She appears in this picture to nearly as much advantage in some of her real human attitudes as she does in the exhibition of unreasoning heartlessness. The picture was ably directed by Kenean Buel. Harry Hilliard is good at all times, and Claire Whitney is at home in her part.

Despite its overdrawn story, "The New York Peacock" will go well with Valeska Suratt's admirers, for she is at her best in her own peculiar line. The picture at least does not lack action and has a fair amount of interest and suspense.

Pictures for Schools

The Haverhill, Massachusetts, board of education is contemplating the use of motion pictures for educational purposes. The Lincoln and Parker Co. of Worcester, Massachusetts, manufacturers of motion picture machines, gave a demonstration of the machines supplied and designated for this purpose, before the superintendent of schools, the teachers and principals. The machines differ somewhat from those used in the theaters in that they are more simple in construction and operation. They can be stopped at any point in the picture for an indefinite time without injury to the film. This stopping of the film permits necessary explanation by the instructor. A motion picture machine has been installed in one of the churches there, and pictures are used in connection with the sermon.

Harry Reichenbach is writing a series of slang articles for the Photoplay Magazine.

Territory Added to Omaha

A goodly portion of the state of Iowa has been taken out of the territory of the Minneapolis branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. and placed in the territory served by the Omaha branch, which is under the management of Denham Palmer.

It was found that this territory could be served better and faster from Omaha than from Minneapolis particularly in the matter of express shipments and costs. Included in the new arrangement is the northern part of Iowa lying north of Plymouth, Cherokee, Buena Vista, Pocahontas, Humboldt, Wright, Franklin, Butler, Bremer, Fayette and Clayton counties.

Theater Entertains Metro Stars

Traveling in a special train from Rochester, New York, to Buffalo, New York, Beverly Bayne and Francis X. Bushman cut off twenty minutes from the best previous record of the Empire State express between the two cities. The Picadilly Theater at Rochester filled all of its 2,500 seats at three shows on account of the presence of the two Metro players. The stars were the guests of E. D. Bennett, a railroad official, while in Buffalo. The trip on the flyer was made in the evening from Rochester in order that Miss Bayne and Mr. Bushman might attend the Screen Club ball in Buffalo.

Photo Frames Issued by Artcraft

The Artcraft Pictures Corporation has just issued to its exhibitors and exchanges unusually attractive photograph frames for lobby display. A large space is left open for the exhibitor at the top of the frame in which can be inserted the name of the theater and other matter of local interest. Three styles of frames have been prepared accommodating eight 8x10, six 8x10 and two 22x28 photos. They have been gotten up in a most artistic manner and are of the double folding variety.

Over there in your right hand is a glowing grate and before it are two gleaming stars. We don't need to tell you who these American-Mutual celebrities are.

Roadmen!

WE WILL PAY YOU LIBERALLY

IF you are constantly in touch with motion picture exhibitors we want your spare time and will pay you well for it.

EACH year there are over 9000 subscription renewals besides new orders, to be secured from exhibitors and it costs us about $15,000 to obtain them. A good sized portion of this figure is yours for the asking.

MOTOGRAPHY is the most popular trade paper in the field. Consequently orders are easy to get.

A post card to the circulation manager will bring you full details.

WRITE RIGHT NOW!

MOTOGRAPHY

1253 MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO - ILLINOIS

Phonodict is Detective's Aid

"The Argyle Case," the new Selznick feature, is declared to be "bullet-proof" in the details of crime detection, which form one of the most fascinating features of the picture drama.

The latest form of the earlier invention called the dictograph, or detectophone, is the phonodict, an instrument so highly developed and sensitized that the listener at the other end of the wire can hear the slightest whisper in the room where it has been installed. It is this device which is employed by the detective, Asche Kayton, in "The Argyle Case," a role impersonated by Robert Warwick in his first appearance in Selznick-Pictures.

Barrymore in Egyptian Play

Ethel Barrymore, whose great success on the stage is being repeated on the screen, is now engaged in the making of the first of a series of special productions for Metro, each to cost a minimum of $100,000, each to be built upon a far-reaching theme and produced upon an elaborate scale. Miss Barrymore's first special attraction picture will be "The Voice of Her People," contrived from Edward Sheldon's play "Egypt." Attraction pictures of large caliber will form a part of Metro's productions during the year. Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., Columbia Pictures Corporation, Quality Pictures Corporation, Popular Plays and Players, and the Yorke Film Corporation, all have productions now in the making. The Metro-Drew comedies will be continued.

Change in Title

In order to avoid confusion, the Ivan Film Corporation has changed the title of its new production from "The Promise" to "Two Men and a Woman." This story—written by Willard Mack, the author of "Kick In" and other famous stage and screen successes—was produced by the Ivan Film Corporation, under the direction of William Humphrey. When ready for release, it was learned that the Metro Pictures Corporation had ready for release a picture under the same title, and upon request of the officials of the Metro Pictures Corporation, the Ivan Film Corporation readily agreed to change its title.

A couple of hundred pistol shots are fired in a tong war which is the feature of "A Jade Necklace," one of the fifteen screen stories making up the Niagara-Mutual sensational serial "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters." The tong battle was fought at night in Brooklyn's Chinatown. Permission for the shooting was obtained of the police department.

Alice Brady plays a mother and daughter in "The Dancer's Peril," a forthcoming World picture Brady-made. By means of singularly effective "double exposure," both personages are in the picture simultaneously during several scenes, when the separate characterizations stand out with quite remarkable distinctness—the more striking as Miss Brady employs no apparent artifice of make-up for differing the two roles.

Ann Murdock has joined the list of prominent players who have severed their connection with the Charles Frohman company since the death of the theatrical manager in the Lusitania sinking.

FOR SALE

New Prints of D. W. Griffith—Biograph Releases Starring Mary Pickford, Blanch Sweet and Henry Walthall and other big money makers—With Posters

EDWARD M. ROSKAM 1003 Candler Building NEW YORK

EXECUTIVE

thoroughly experienced in Producing and Exchange ends, also Expert Organizer and Efficiency Expert, with highest record and references, seeks new connection.
Address M. F., Care Motography, Chicago

ADVERTISING
By Motion Pictures
By ERNEST A. DENCH

This subject is one on which there is scarcely any information available, so this work, by Mr. Dench, is the first in the field. The author, who is a recognized motion picture authority has covered every phase of this fascinating theme in an easy, understandable manner.

The value of the motion picture screen as an advertising medium, is becoming more pronounced every day. Hence, you will be sure to gain much practical assistance from a study of this book. Send check or stamps for $1.50 today.

MOTOGRAPHY, Monadnock Block, Chicago

A scenario department

considers only type-written manuscripts—others are too hard to follow.

Your audiences are interested in clear pictures only—for the same reason.

The clearest pictures are on Eastman Film—identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

"EASTMAN"

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

An Arrow Sharpshooter

Henry Cronjager, chief camera man of the Arrow Film Corporation, is one of the real veterans of the motion picture business. For the last 20 years photography has been his profession.

When the Edison company built its Bronx studio, Frank L. Dyer, then president of the company, engaged Henry Cronjager, captain of Arrow camera infantry.

Cronjager as Edison's first camera man. He stayed with them five years and then went to Biograph. Two years after, he was engaged by C. J. Hite. He remained with Mr. Hite until W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow company, secured his services.

In addition to Cronjager's regular work with the camera he succeeded in inventing and perfecting a camera case which was designed to reduce, or even eliminate, static flashes on the film. So well did this work that Cronjager succeeded in getting pictures in Northern Canada and Maine in the winter time when the thermometer was at the bottom of the bulb; yet none of these pictures was marred by static. This invention he patented three years ago, and it has been a source of constant profit to him since.

Exhibitor's Appreciation of "Faith"

W. A. Mustard, manager of the Blue Mouse Theater, St. Paul, Minnesota, was so pleased with the Mutual-American Star Production of "Faith," starring Mary Miles Minter, that he sent the following letter of appreciation to the local Mutual exchange:

We had the pleasure of exhibiting your feature entitled "Faith," with Mary Miles Minter in the lead, at the Blue Mouse Theater here the first half of this week and it was such a good production that I cannot let the opportunity pass without telling you how much the management of the Blue Mouse and its patrons appreciated it. Miss Minter is now one of the foremost movie stars of the day and this vehicle, "Faith," will add new laurels to her crown wherever it is shown.

Howard Estabrook, who has won an enviable reputation on the stage and on the screen as a leading man, has been engaged by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company in the capacity of director and will supervise Vivian Martin's next production following "The Wax Model," which is scheduled for release on the Paramount Program in February.

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in booking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's booking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Monday.

D	1-29	Lost and Found (Geo. Fawcett and Vivian Reed)..2, Selig	21678–79
D	1-29	The Battle Hymn of the Republic (Ralph Ince)..1, Vita	21680
T	1-29	Selig-Tribune, No. 9 .....1, Selig	21681

Tuesday.

C	1-30	Three Ways Out (Harry Dunkinson).....2, Essanay	21682–83
C	1-30	The Safety Pin Smugglers (Ham and Bud)...1, Kalem	21684

Wednesday.

C	1-31	Mr. Wright in Wrong.....1, Essanay	21685
D	1-31	The Dominion of Fernandez.....2, Kalem	21686–87

Thursday.

T	2-1	Selig-Tribune, No. 10.....1, Selig	21688
C	2-1	The Other Girl (Babe Hardy).....1, Vim	21689

Friday.

D	2-2	Crossed Trail (Marguerite Landis) .....3, Knick.	21690–91–92
D	2-2	The Net of Intrigue.....1, Kalem	21693
C	2-2	A Job for Life.....1, Vim	21694
C	2-2	A Lady in the Library (Sydney Drew).....1, Vita	21695

Saturday.

D	2-3	Shifting Shadows .....2, Essanay	21696–97
D	2-3	Mystery of the North Case.....2, Vita	21698–99
D	2-3	The Death Siding (Helen Gibson).....1, Kalem	21700
D	2-3	The Saddle Girth (Tom Mix).....1, Selig	21701

Monday.

D	2-5	Cupid's Thumb Print .....2, Selig	21702–03
C	2-5	The Hall Room Girls (Claire McCormack)....1, Vita.	21704
T	2-5	Selig Tribune, No. 11.....1, Selig	21705

Tuesday.

D	2-6	The Hoodooed Story (Richard Travers)....2, Essanay	21706–07
C	2-6	Ghost Hounds (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21708

Wednesday.

T	2-7	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24.....s, Essanay	21709
		(Alaska) .....s

Thursday.

T	2-8	Selig Tribune, No. 12.....1, Selig	21710
	2-8	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21711

Friday.

D	2-9	The Trap (Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin)..1, Kalem	21712
	2-9	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21713
D	2-9	The Suitor from Siam (Mary Anderson).....1, Vita.	21714

Saturday.

D	2-10	Desertion and Non-Support (Marguerite Clayton).....
		.....2, Essanay	21715–16
D	2-10	The Prima Donna's Special (Helen Gibson)..1, Kalem	21717
D	2-10	A Strange Adventure (Jack Pickford).....1, Selig	21718

V. L. S. E. Program

1-8	Captain Jinks and Himself (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-15	Indiscretion (Lillian Walker)	5,000
1-15	Jolts and Jewelry (Hughie Mack and Patsy De Forest)....	1,000
1-15	Captain Jinks' Stingy Spirit (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-15	The Hon. Mr. Oxenham (Fourth Episode of the Secret Kingdom)	5,000
1-18	Captain Jinks' Widow (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland).....	5,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Trial Balance (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Blind Justice (Benj. Christie).....	5,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels).....	1,000

Mutual Program

Monday.

D	2-5	Shorty Joins the Secret Service (Shorty Hamilton)....
		.....2, Mono	05311–12

Tuesday.

T	2-6	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05313

Wednesday.

T	2-7	Mutual Weekly, No. 110.....1, Mutual	05314
	2-7	See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont	05315

Thursday.

C	2-8	Jerry's Big Raid (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05316

Friday.

T	2-9	Bull Dogs of the Deep.....1, Mutual	05317

Saturday.

D	2-10	The Old Sheriff (J. Warren Kerrigan).....1, American	05318

Sunday.

C	2-11	A Musical Marvel (Ben Turpin).....2, Vogue	05319–20
T	2-11	Reel Life .....1, Gaumont	05321

Monday.

D	2-12	Shorty Turns Wild Man (Shorty Hamilton).....
		.....2, Monogram	05322–23

Tuesday.

T	2-13	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05324

Wednesday.

T	2-14	Mutual Weekly, No. 111.....1, Mutual	05325
	2-14	See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont	05326

Thursday.

C	2-15	Jerry's Big Mystery (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05327

Friday.

	2-16	Title Not Given	05328

Saturday.

	2-17	Title Not Given	05329

Universal Program

Monday.

D	2-5	The Purple Mask, No. 6 (Francis Ford).....
		.....2, Universal (Special)	02143
C	2-5	His Wife's Relatives (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor	02145

Tuesday.

D	2-6	Won by Grit (Lois Wilson).....1, Gold Seal	02146
C	2-6	The Valley of Beautiful Things.....1, Victor	02147

Wednesday.

	2-7	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	2-7	That Dawgone Dog (Sammie Burns).....2, L-Ko	02148
T	2-7	Animated Weekly, No. 58.....1, Universal	02149
D	2-7	Red Vengeance.....1, Big U	02150

Thursday.

D	2-8	The Melody of Death (Douglas Gerrard).....2, Rex	02151
	2-8	No Release This Week.....Big U
T	2-8	Giants of the American Forest.....1, Powers	05152

Friday.

D	2-9	Avarice (Claire McDowell).....1, Imp	02153
	2-9	No Release This Week.....Rex
C	2-9	The High Cost of Starving (Eilleen Sedgwick).1, Victor	02154
D	2-9	Title Not Decided .....2, Big U	02155

Saturday.

D 2-10 The Outlaw and the Lady (Louise Lovely)....2, Bison 02156
2-10 No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C 2-10 Out for the Dough (Wm. Franey).....1, Joker 02157
D 2-10 A Studio Cinderella (Matt Moore).....1, Laemmle 02158

Sunday.

2-11 No Release This Week.....Rex
D 2-11 When Thieves Fall Out (Harry Benham).....2, Imp 02159
C 2-11 Fearless Freddie in the Woolly West; Joys and Tears of China .....s, L-Ko 02160
D 2-11 In the Shadows of Night (Wm. Shay).....1, Rex 02161

Monday.

C 2-12 A Hasty Hazing (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor 02164

Tuesday.

D 2-13 The Indian's Lament (Marie Walcamp)....1, Gold Seal 02165
2-13 No Release This Week.....1, Victor
C 2-13 The Girl of the Hour (Hubert Brennon).....1, Victor 02166

Wednesday.

D 2-14 The Girl Reporter's Scoop (Irene Hunt).....2, Imp 02167
C 2-14 The End of a Perfect Day (Hank Mann).....1, L-Ko 02168
T 2-14 Animated Weekly, No. 59.....1, Universal 02169

Thursday.

C 2-15 The Losing Winner (Carter De Haven).....2, Victor 02170
2-15 No Release This Week .....Big U
2-15 No Release This Week .....Powers
D 2-15 The Half-Breed's Confession .....1, Big U 02171

Friday.

D 2-16 The Fourth Witness (Louise Lovely).....2, Laemmle 02172
T 2-16 Screen Magazine, Issue No. 7.....1, Universal 02173
C 2-16 Brave Little Waldo (Fatty Voss).....1, L-Ko 02174

Saturday.

D 2-17 John Osborn's Triumph (Murdock MacQuarrie)..... .....2, Bison 02175
2-17 No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C 2-17 Mule Mates (Gale Henry).....1, Joker 02176
D 2-17 Broken Hearted (Wm. E. Shay).....1, Laemmle 02177

Sunday.

2-18 No Release This Week.....Rex
2-18 No Release This Week.....Imp
C 2-18 Mr. Fuller Pep and Drama of the Orient.....s, Powers 02178
2-18 Robinson Crusoe (Marguerita Fischer) Universal (Special) 3 02179
2-18 The Purple Mask (Francis Ford) (Special) 2, Universal 02180

Miscellaneous Features

Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal.....Monmouth Film Corp. 32,000
Robinson Crusoe .....Universal
The People vs. (John Doe).....
Are Passions Inherited?.....Warner Bros. 7,000

Art Dramas

1-4 The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard).....Wm. L. Sherrill 5,000
1-11 Infidelity (Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong)..Erbograph
1-18 God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon).....Apollo
1-25 Her Good Name (Jean Sothern) .....Van Dyke
2-1 Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana).....Apollo
2-8 The Accomplice (Dorothy Bernard).....Wm. L. Sherrill 5,000
2-15 The Adventurer (Marion Swayne)..... 5,000
2-12 The Reward of the Faithless (Betty Schade)..... 5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

1-1 Black Orchids (Cleo Madison) 5,000
1-22 God's Crucible (Geo. Hernandez)..... 5,000
1-29 The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum)..... 5,000
2-5 The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford).....Bluebird 5,000

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of

1-15 Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson) 5,000
1-15 Noah's Ark (Hank Mann) 1,000
1-22 Her Father's Station (Anna Luther)..... 1,000
1-22 The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara) (Special)..... 5,000
1-22 The Primitive Call (Gladys Colburn)..... 5,000
1-29 There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann)..... 1,000
1-29 The Siren (Valeska Suratt) 5,000
1-29 The Bitter Truth (Gladys Brockwell)..... 5,000
2-5 The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt)..... 5,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of

12-25 The Truant Soul (Henry B. Walthall).....Essanay 8,000
1-8 The Master Passion (Mabel Trunelle).....Edison 5,000
1-15 Little Shoes (Henry Walthall and Mary Charleson).Essanay 5,000
1-22 Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed).....Selig 5,000
1-29 The Adventures of Buffalo Bill..... 5,000
2-5 Skinner's Dress Suit (Bryant Washburn).....Essanay 5,000
2-12 The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton and George Fawcett) .....Selig 5,000

McClure Pictures

1-29 Seven Deadly Sins, "Envy" (Ann Murdock, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) 5,000
2-5 Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) 5,000
2-12 Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) .....McClure 5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of

1-22 Married, But Single (Ralph Herz).....Metro-Rolma 5,000
1-22 Threads of Fate (Viola Dana).....Columbia 5,000
1-22 The Promise (Mabel Lockwood).....York Film 5,000
1-29 Bridges Burned (Mme. Petrova).....Popular 5,000
1-29 The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew).....Metro 5,000
2-5 Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew).....Metro 5,000
2-5 The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore).....Columbia 5,000
2-12 Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz).....Metro-Rolma 5,000
2-12 One of Many (Frances Nelson).....Arthur James 5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of

1-22 The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter).....5, American
1-29 Where Love Is (Ann Murdock).....5, Mutual
2-5 Pardners (Charlotte Walker).....5, Mutual
2-12 Damaged Goods (New Edition) (Richard Bennett)..... .....American 7,000

Mutual Serials

Birds of Prey .....
Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 8 (Helen Greene and Earl Metcalf) .....

Paramount Features

Released Week of

1-29 His Sweetheart (Geo. Beban).....Morosco 5,000
2-1 The Wax Model (Vivian Martin).....Pallas 5,000
2-5 Regina to the Rockies (Burton Holmes)..... 1,000
2-5 Each to His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa) .....Lasky 5,000
2-8 Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich).....Pallas 5,000
2-12 Beautiful Banff (Burton Holmes)..... 1,000
2-12 The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen).....Lasky 5,000

Pathe

Released Week of

2-11 Pearl of the Army, No. 11 (Pearl White).....Astra 2,000
2-11 Sold at Auction (Wm. Conklin) .....Balboa 5,000
2-11 Skinny's Love Tangle (Fatty Lampton).....Rolin S
2-11 Schemer Skinny's Scandal (Fatty Lampton).....Rolin S
2-11 Patria, No. 5.....International 2,000
2-11 Florence Rose Fashions, No. 18.....Rose S
2-11 Childish Delights .....Pathe S
2-14 Hearst's News, No. 14.....Pathe 1,000
2-17 Hearst's News, No. 15.....Pathe 1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of

1-8 Fighting for Love (Jack Mulhall and Ruth Stonehouse).... 5,000
1-15 The Double-Room Mystery (Hayward Mack and Edward Hearn) 5,000
1-22 Allan Holubar in "Heart-Strings" with Maud George..... 5,000
1-29 Love Aflame (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall)..... 5,000
2-5 Me and M' Pal (Edna Flugarth)..... 5,000
2-15 The Terror (Jack Mulhall)..... 5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of

1-21 The Iced Bullet (Wm. Desmond).....Kay-Bee 5,000
1-28 The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks).....Fine Arts 5,000
1-28 Chicken Casey (Dalton).....Kay-Bee 5,000
2-4 Jim Bludso (Lucas).....Fine Arts 5,000
2-4 The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan).....Kay-Bee 5,000
2-14 The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge).... ..... Fine Arts 5,000
2-14 The Gun Fighter (Wm. Hart).....Kay-Bee 5,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of

12-20B Lost in the Shuffle.....1, Hippo 1146B
12-21 The Voice in the Night.....2, Utah 1147A
12-21 Blowing Up Broadway.....1, Jockey 1147B
12-22 The White Man's Squaw.....2, Hiawatha 1148A
12-22 Algernon's Affinity.....1, Gaiety 1148B
12-23 Shackles of Conscience.....2, Supreme 1149A
12-24 Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont..... 1, Judy 1150A
12-24 The Prodigal Son.....2, Buffalo 1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of

12-1 Land Just Over Yonder.....6
12-15 Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
1-15 Glory 7

World Features

Released Week of

1-22 The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton).....World 5,000
1-29 Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler)..... 5,000
2-5 The Hungry Heart (Alice Brady).....World 5,000
2-12 The Red Woman (Gail Kane).....World 5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

The Trap—Kalem—"Grant, Police Reporter," Series—February 9. George Larkin as the reporter. Brandon, a police lieutenant, has made it extremely unhealthful for Mulball and his partner Letson, to continue their gambling operations, They plan revenge. Mulhall hires Benny, a gangster, to "plant" his I. O. U. for $2,500 on the person of Brandon. At the gambler's trial, Mulhall accuses the policeman of raiding his place because he was unable to collect hush money. The I. O. U. is found in Brandon's hat and he is stripped of his authority and held for trial.

Grant, police reporter on the Chronicle, suspects that Brandon is the victim of a frame-up and trails the gambler to his quarters. Climbing the dumbwaiter shaft he overhears Mulhall outline a plot to his accomplice for enticing the disgraced lieutenant to that room and then confronting him with detectives. Myrta, the lieutenant's daughter, is also afraid that her father is the victim of a hoax, and follows him when he starts to keep his appointment, dressed in boy's clothes. Mulhall decides to double cross his partner and hires Benny, the gangster, to finish him while the policeman is in the room. How Grant at the risk of his life saves Myrta from mortal injury at the hands of the gangster and brings Mulhall, the plotter, to justice, provides a wonderfully thrilling climax.

The Prima Donna's Special—Kalem—"Hazards of Helen" Series—February 10.—Featuring Helen Gibson. Helen, station agent and telegraph operator at Lone Point, is in despair over a broken sounder when Morley, who has dropped off a passing freight, offers to fix it for her. As he does this she recognizes in him a gentleman of better days. She encourages him and promises to get him the job of relief operator if he cares to accept it. Morley had given up his last position as an operator at the death of his wife. His little daughter had been turned over to the care of a rich brother. He has never seen her since. Morley is soon installed as Helen's relief. Later she discovers him in conversation with some tramps, shaking his head in positive denial. A wire has come in that Mlle. Gazie, traveling on her special, will pass through Lone Point. The tramps make things exciting, but Helen and Dad Morley take an automobile. Helen leaps to the runaway train in time to save Mlle., who proves to be Dad Morley's daughter.

Cupid's Thumb-Print—Selig—February 10.—Frank Hamilton, Mayhelle Spaulding, Ward Wing, Willard Burke and Roy Sutherland in the cast. Reviewed in this issue.

A Strange Adventure—Selig—(One Reel)—February 10.—Bessie Eyton featured, with Jack Pickford and Harry Lonsdale. Reviewed in this issue.

Selig Tribune, No. 9—February 1.—New York, N. Y.—The Rules Committee of the House of Representatives hold first hearings as to the alleged leak to Wall Street. Washington, D. C.—Rear Admiral William G. Benson is appointed to succeed late Admiral Dewey. Denver, Colo.—The Y. M. C. A. conducts a department where women are being taught remedies for motor troubles. Berkeley Hills, Cal.—Fresh air devotees meet at the home of Mrs. C. C. Boynton. Seattle, Wash.—The Takoma, the first of the big four-masted schooners constructed here, is launched. St. Paul, Minn.—Town and Country Club members unite in making the Winter Carnival the most joyous occasion. New York, N. Y.—Miss Louise Sachen, aged 19 years, travels 15 days by dog sled out of northland on her first lap of a New York journey to complete her education. Boston, Mass.—The annual ice harvest produces thousands of tons. Belleville, France.—Targets for months for heavy artillery fire, very few buildings remain unscathed. Verdun, France—Dugouts furnish warm and not uncomfortable quarters for French artillerymen. Newport News, Va.—Our new battleship Mississippi is launched.

Selig Tribune, No. 10—February 5.—Near Verdun, France—Germany has renewed activities around this battered fortress. Beaver Dam Lake, N. Y.—The social elite of Long Island have a glorious carnival day on the ice with Mr. Irving Brokaw. Brookline, Mass.—The "Young Old Fellows" of the Brookline Country Club "tune up" in preparation for their curling match. Red Bank, N. J.—Philip E. Greene demonstrates his new motor ice boat. Brighton Beach, N. Y.—The mermaids of Long Island insist on using the old "Palm Beach Sea House" for recreation and exercise. New Orleans, La.—Miss Pauling Thurston creates a new dance known as the "Aeroplane Glide." Phoenix, Ariz.—Hundreds of thousands of sheep migrate, some a distance of 200 miles. Seattle, Wash.—Battalion Chief Fred C. Gelham dies when the roof of the Grand Theater caves in during a fire. Denver, Colo.—Thousands attend the stock show. Oakland, Cal.—Sheriff Barnet has invented this new weapon. By combining the former inefficient revolver and club he produces a rifle of deadly precision. Winnipeg, Man. (Canada)—Louis Hill, of the Great Northern Railroad, witnesses the start of the Red River Derby dog race.

"The Reward of the Faithless," a new Bluebird, with Betty Schade and Claire Du Bray, is at the top. Then comes the Joker, "Mule Mates," and "The Fourth Witness," a two-reel Laemmle drama.

Mutual Pictures

Damaged Goods New Edition—(Seven Reels)—February 12.—Richard Bennett, with Adrienne Morrison, Olive Templeton, John Steppling and Louis Bennison. "Damaged Goods" tells the story of a young man, who against his own desires is forced into circumstances which end in a night of debauchery with a girl of the streets. Later he comes across a college friend, who is a horrible beggar of the streets and learns that is the result of the disease ensuing from a life of license. He is seized with the dread that he may have become a victim of the disease. The drama further shows the methods of real specialists in handling the dread disease and the way that the thousands of quack doctors make themselves rich by preying on young men and boys.

Shorty Turns Wild Man—(Two Reels)—Monogram—February 12.—"The Adventures of Shorty Hamilton." Shorty receives word from Anita informing him that she wants him to go out into the Arizona hills and find one Professor Wade, who has discovered a radium mine, but is in a bad way, as his guide has died. Shorty sets out for the hills at once. The professor meets with a stranded actor and they set out together to reach the town. They are attacked by Apache Bill, and the actor is killed, but the professor manages to crawl over to a bunch of cacti and secretes a phial of radium in an old skull he finds. Shorty comes upon the actor's make-up kit and decides to make up as a wild man and scare Apache Bill and his pal, who have found the radium mine. The bandits run away and tell the manager of a side show of the terrible wild man they have seen out on the desert. Shorty's horse runs away and he is found by a scouting party and taken to the circus. Here he is exhibited as a wild man and because of a cold contracted is unable to speak. Later his horse manages to help Shorty escape and he causes the arrest of the two bandits.

Jerry's Big Mystery—Cub Comedy—(One Reel)—February 15.—Featuring George Ovey. Jerry's landlord, tiring of his failing to pay the rent, turns him out. He throws Jerry across the hall and he lands in the lap of a woman. The husband finds Jerry in this compromising position and a fight ensues which ends in the arrival of the police and much trouble. Jerry escapes and begins to make love to Tiny. Later, to escape one Hank, Jerry squeezes into a headless dummy form and after scaring numerous people he returns to Tiny, scares Hank away and then is free to carry on his love-making unmolested.

Birds of Prey—(Two Reels)—February 18.—With Helen Greene, Earl Metcalfe and Edith Sinclair. Claire Bristow, the girl reporter, answers an advertisement for a lady's companion, hoping to get a story. She becomes the companion of a wealthy widow, Mrs. Durkee, who has a wonderful collection of jewels and a great love for champagne. Helen learns that two foreign crooks are trying to get possession of the widow's jewels and she attempts to frustrate the plans. The crooks get Mrs. Durkee intoxicated and are on the point of making their escape with the jewels when Claire's lover, a detective, comes upon the scene, arrests the crooks and regains the jewels.

Universal Program

The Crimson Arrow—(Two Reels)—Big U—February 9.—With Mona Darkfeather. Becoming restless after many years of peace, the Indians decide to make war on the whites. The Commandant of Fort Dearborn, however, makes light of the warning, and Rawlins, a black sheep among the officers, attacks Singing Bird. The red men gather their forces and fall upon the whites. Nearly all are killed, but Singing Bird shows a way of escape to her favorite officer and his wife. Singing Bird in a last encounter with her people is fatally wounded. She willingly gives her life for the officer, whom she loves, but has a white wife.

The Purple Mask, Episode Eight—FEBRUARY 12.—Kelly fails to find the pearls in Pat's room and she leaves the boat for the house that the Apaches built. Private detectives find that Pat has secreted the pearls in the bottom of a box of chocolates and go to her home. While Kelly is talking with them she leaves by means of a secret passage and Kelly is again baffled by the clever girl.

A Hasty Hazing—NESTOR—FEBRUARY 12.—With Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts. The one big moment of Eddie's life is when he arrives at college. The boys are up to their hazing and Eddie gets his share of it. Lee and Edith have just been married and are awaiting the forgiveness of their parents. Eddie, trying to elude the fellows, climbs through the open window of Lee's apartment. He bumps into mother and father, who threaten him for marrying their daughter. Eddie breaks away and runs madly out of the building. In the meantime Lee, who has been taken for Eddie, finally makes his getaway, rushes in, followed by the crowd of boys, just as a policeman returns with Eddie. The boys grab Eddie and drag him down the hall. Lee explains and father relents.

The Indian's Lament—(THREE REELS)—GOLD SEAL—FEBRUARY 13.—With Lee Hill, E. N. Wallack and Marie Walcamp. The Indians, in search of hunting grounds, are ordered back to the reservation by John Adair, the game warden. His deputy, Jim Young, and he have a heated argument over the brutal treatment of them. Later Young prevents "Sleepy Horse" from shooting Adair. Bess favors young's suit and Adair determines to win the girl for himself. Young resigns and goes to work for a man trapping wolves for the zoos. One of the old squaws moving about in the bushes is killed by some hunters from the city. "Sleepy Horse," thinking that the warden was responsible, determines to have revenge. Bess, while out riding, finds "Sleepy Horse," who has met with an accident, and binds up his wounds. Meanwhile her horse has wandered away and Adair, who has followed her, comes up. He forces his attentions on her and is about to overcome her when they are interrupted by Young, who gives Adair a severe beating and takes Bess home. On their way to the town Young and Bess are taken prisoners by a party of braves. "Sleepy Horse" hears the fighting, he orders the Indians to return home, and thus saves the lives of Young and Bess. Adair has been pursued by wolves and meets his just deserts. Later, Young is offered the place of warden and he asks Bess to be his assistant for life.

The Girl of the Hour—VICTOR—FEBRUARY 13.—With Herbert Brenon and Vivian Prescott. William is told by Vivian's father that he can have his daughter if the Varsity crew, of which William is coxswain, wins the race. A few hours before the race, Will receives word that his mother is dying and goes to her. This is a frame-up by some fellows who have a large bet against the Varsity crew. On the road he is knocked unconscious by two men who are connected with the frame-up. Vivian goes to the captain and tells him she can act as coxswain. Upon gaining consciousness, William learns that the missive was a frame-up. He arrives in time to see the Varsity crew win the big race. Vivian's dad gives them his consent.

The Girl Reporter's Scoop—(TWO REELS)—IMP—FEBRUARY 14.—With Irene Hunt, E. P. Evers and Roy Stewart. Returning from her vacation, Helen Dale, a reporter on a big daily, finds the office excited over some daring robberies. A reward is offered for the apprehension of the thief. She notices that the supposed robber resembles a chap with whom she carried on a flirtation at the seashore. With the good wishes of the staff, and accompanied by Dick Bayless, another reporter, she returns to the beach city. There Helen makes the acquaintance of John Howard, who believes her to be a thief, and introduces her to his gang. They plot to rob a certain manufacturing establishment, but Helen phones Bayless, who follows with the police. The crooks are caught with the loot and taken into custody. The reward goes to Helen and we are left to assume that she gets a husband into the bargain, in the person of Bayless.

The End of a Perfect Day—L-KO—FEBRUARY 14.—With Gertrude Selby and Hank Man. Gertie is an incorrigible flirt. She throws a rose in the lake and tells two of her admirers contending for her favor, "Who gets the rose, gets me." Her sweetheart comes along and takes her for a ride. Reggie and Gertie, in the tonneau, have a lovely spoon, while Hank, as chauffeur, drives them all over the town. Finally, he drives right off the end of a pier and the joy ride ends in the ocean.

The Half-Breed's Confession—BIG U—FEBRUARY 15.—Clifford is convicted of murdering his employer, on circumstantial evidence. While drifting down the river, Alice, Clifford's fiancee and the dead man's daughter, rescues an Indian. Believing he is dying he confesses to murdering her father. Alice drags the Indian to an automobile and hurries to the scaffold, where Clifford is to be hanged. She is just in time, the Indian confesses and Clifford is declared innocent.

The Losing Winner—(TWO REELS)—VICTOR—FEBRUARY 15.—With Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven. Jack Bruson, a young clerk, thinks himself in love with Maizie, but when the daughter of his employer, Penelope, calls at the office, he falls a victim to her charms. Henry, the secretary, is also in love with Maizie, who really loves Jack. In order to win Penelope, Jack finds he must have a certain sum of money and trics getting this by gambling. When he has secured the right sum he chances to meet a beautiful chorus girl named Daisy, with whom he promptly falls in love. She, however, demands twice the sum that Penelope did, and he starts gambling again in an endeavor to get that amount. Henry, who has persuaded Jack to try gambling, takes Maizie to the gambling house that she may see what sort of a chap Jack is. Fate is against him and he loses all of his winnings, whereupon Daisy turns him down. Maizie is the only one faithful to him and they go, leaving Henry a sadder but a wiser man.

Universal Screen Magazine, Issue No. 7—FEBRUARY 16.—The first number shows a remarkable device for the stabilizing of a bicycle, particularly useful to military bicycle corps. The second shows the profitable industry of silver fox raising, a pair of skins having brought as much as $2,500. An object lesson for those working in the safety of a modern office is given in thrilling pictures of the handling of dynamite. Feats of strength are performed, including the bending of inch gas pipe. Food inspection by the Board of Health of New York follows, and illustrates the untiring efforts to keep the public foods clean and sanitary. Inspection of meat and condemnation of that which is unfit for use is of interest to all consumers. The selection and packing of oranges for market form an interesting strip. The wonderful result of persistent endeavor is shown by the skill and strength developed by a man who lost both his legs in a street car accident and was pronounced a hopeless cripple. The extraordinary feats which he has taught himself to perform are a lesson to the normal.

The Fourth Witness—(TWO REELS)—LAEMMLE—FEBRUARY 16.—With Lee Hill, Charles Mailles and Louise Lovely. William Bryant, a hopeless cripple, refuses to be nursed by any one but his wife, Margaret, and endeavors to make her life as miserable as possible by his sneers and taunts. One evening Dr. Cameron arrives just in time to intercept a blow which Bryant is about to give his wife. The two men struggle and Bryant is finally thrown upon the bed unconscious. Margaret beseeches Dr. Cameron to take her away, and he, having secretly loved her for some time, consents to her request. Bryant regains consciousness in time to see Dr. Cameron and his wife drive away. He resolves to avenge himself and hastily writes in his diary, then he draws a revolver with the intention of killing himself. Later, Margaret and Cameron are arrested and accused of the murder. Bryant's aged butler confesses to having accidentally killed his master while attempting to wrest the revolver from him to prevent his committing suicide. His testimony is corroborated by the chauffeur, who testifies to having seen the whole of the struggle. Dr. Cameron continues his professional visits to the home of Margaret, but fails to charge her for his services.

Brave Little Waldo—L-KO—FEBRUARY 16.—With Fatty Voss. Colonel Bingo had arranged with Major Godfrey that his son Waldo should per. The cure is successful and Waldo returns college to cure him of his wild and fighting temper. The cure is successful and Waldon returns a "sissy." His father is disgusted and sends him West to become a man or die. He togs out in Wild West garments of the early eighties, and is irresistible to the women. The cow-punchers select a "gentle" horse for him to ride and he just manages to survive the ordeal. He writes home what a daredevil he has become and his parents come out to see for themselves. Their disappointment is so acute that the result lands Waldo at the bottom of a cliff. Then father repents and goes after his offspring.

John Osborne's Triumph—(TWO REELS)—BISON—FEBRUARY 17.—With Murdock MacQuarrie, Arthur Moon, Edna Payne and Albert MacQuarrie. John Osborne, a power of Wall street, is forced to the wall by his enemy, David Merrill. When all the debts are cleared, there is nothing left but a small plot of land in the West, and he and his daughter move out there to live. Condon, an old admirer of Shelah, finds indications of oil on Osborne's land. Believing that Merrill holds a note against her father, and as he is now paralyzed, she consents to marry him to save her father. Complications arise and the missing note is found. Merrill is ordered from the house and Condon wins Shelah for his bride.

Mule Mates—JOKER—FEBRUARY 17.—With William Franey and Gale Henry. William finds fault with his breakfast and his wife drives him from the house. On the street an Italian is beating a mule unmercifully. Bill is enraged at the cruelty and knocks the driver completely unconscious. The mule follows him. He tries to elude the animal, but without success. Bill goes to his office, the mule still following, and his wife finds

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	70	78
Biograph Company.	5	15
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.	90	125
Lone Star Corporation, pref..	98	101
Lone Star Corporation, com..	36	41
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	33	39
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	24	28
North American Film Corporation, com.	24	27
States Film Corporation, com.	25	31
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.).....	75	90
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2¼*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company.	150	..
Triangle Film Corporation..	1¾	2¼*

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to MOTOGRAPHY)

Trading in the film shares this week has been limited, due to international troubles and uncertainties.

Empire All Star Corporation: Is being offered for subscription at the rate of one share of preferred and one share of common (each $100 par value) at $100 combined, and is said to be selling well. Has closed contract with Ann Murdock.

Frank Powell Producing Company: Is also selling on same basis and is now about all sold.

Famous Players Lasky Corporation: Is very inactive as recent buyers have withdrawn from market and stock has been offered down to 105 without takers. Reported that this company has signed Zoe Ray for a series of children's plays.

Mutual Film Corporation: Fair demand for common stock around 25. Has closed contract with Crane Wilbur.

New York Motion Picture Corporation: Stock has been very active, selling from 40 up to 70 and back to 55. There are rumors of dividends, but latest rumor says this company will be absorbed by Triangle.

Signal Film Corporation: Has secured W. G. Gilmour as business manager. Helen Holmes has completed serial "A Lass of the Lumberlands" and started a new railroad serial. No trading in stock.

General Film Corporation: President Hampton is quoted as saying: "The motion picture industry at the present time is going through a reorganization because profits are not satisfactory to those engaged in it."

Triangle Film Corporation: After selling up to 3¾ the price dropped back to around 2¼. Reported this company intends to absorb several producing companies.

him with his arms around his stenographer. The mule saves him from the ferocious assault of his wife. Bill and the animal then go to a saloon and both become so intoxicated that they cannot stand up. They go to Bill's home, but Gale throws them into the street, where they go to sleep, Bill with his head pillowed on the mule's shoulder.

Broken Hearted — Laemmle—February 17.—Leonard Dare, a play producer, finds himself without a player strong enough to enact the part of Philip Dawany, one of the most important characters of the cast. His company is temporarily dismissed and he returns home. Hall's wife is sick and the doctor has ordered better food and medical attention. Dare interviews Hall and listens to the most absurd line of talk he has ever heard, but is greatly impressed with his fine acting. He writes him a check and says he will make him the greatest actor living. Hall is cast in the part of Philip Dawany and wins the cheers of the audience. In this moment—his hour of triumph—he receives word that his wife is dead.

Mr. Fuller Pep—He Does Some Quick Moving —(Split Reel)—Powers—February 18.—Mrs. Fuller Pep decides to move because there is a girls' school across the street which distracts her husband's attention. After a hard day's moving, Fuller arrives at the new house first. He looks out of the window. Oh, joy!—a charmer. Mrs. Fuller arrives and decides to move. After several other changes, they are finally established in the middle of the Sahara Desert. On the same reel is:

Drama of the Orient as Seen by Dr. Dorsey.—Unusual views of the native Chinese theater are shown. A pantomime of a servant seeking employment, in which all the actors are male, as there are no actresses in China, begins the reel. Then follows the pantomime of the pottery mender, and the street pantomime of the sacred lions. Then comes a burlesque on the Ming dynasty and after that a pantomime describing the Chinese New Year. A novel dance performed on stilts closes the reel.

Robinson Crusoe—(Three Reels)—Universal Special—January 29.—Robinson Crusoe runs away to sea. The vessel arrives in the South Seas and a terrible storm arises which makes a total wreck of the ship. Crusoe is the sole survivor and reaches shore more dead than alive. The next morning he swims to the wreck and secures supplies and provisions, but what pleases him most is in securing a cat and a dog. As the years pass he adds to his friends, in the form of goats, parrots and other animals, and is daily on the outlook for a friendly sail. One day the cannibals visit the island and Crusoe rescues Friday, who becomes his companion. For two years Friday is Robinson's constant friend and learns to talk his language. Again the cannibals visit the island, and this time Crusoe and Friday rescue a Spanish castaway and an old native, who proves to be Friday's father. Their peace of mind is broken by the arrival of Captain Hardy and his daughter, who has been deserted by his men. Crusoe and his natives attack and defeat them, but Friday is killed. On his return to his native town, Robinson is received as a hero and later marries the captain's daughter.

Feature Programs

Blue Bird

The Man Who Took a Chance—February 12.—Featuring Franklin. "The Man Who Took a Chance" is a comedy melodrama about an enterprising young American, just back from the Orient, who falls in love with a girl and decides to pose as an English nobleman to satisfy the ambitions of her title-loving mother. The biggest chance he takes is by wearing a monocle. The girl is suspicious and puts him to a test. She makes him rescue her from a half dozen wild cowboys. The man comes out unscathed and the cowboys come out badly injured, so the girl knows that he is no Englishman, but a real, genuine, Stetson-hatted American, and forthwith gives him her hand and heart.

Fox

One Touch of Sin—(Five Reels)—William Fox—January 29.—Featuring Gladys Brockwell. This offering deals with a deserted woman's reascending the road to happiness. She finally marries a man who enters into the contract simply to keep her out of jail but gradually a love interest forms between the two. The craven deserter tries to force Mary to divorce her husband so that her child may have a name. After the two rivals have had a fight in a flooded mine, the girl's betrayer is bested. The secret he tells Mary's husband, however, doesn't affect the latter in the least, since he has learned the state of affairs and sent for the child. So the story ends with a defeated villain, a forgiven woman, and a happy reunion.

Red Feather

Me an' Me Pal—Red Feather—February 12.—With Gerald Ames and Edna Flugarth. Failing as an artist and rejecting an offer of a job, Harry Masterman, is cast off by his rich uncle. Harry cannot find buyers for his pictures and as things get so bad with him he seeks employment. Leaving a note for Kitty Kingsland, he sets out and gets a job with Labby, an old Coaster. With the help of Harry, Labby regains all the custom which he had lost to his rival, Hawkins. Trying to get revenge, Hawkins pushes against a crate which falls on Harry's leg and is badly injured. Kitty has witnessed the accident and goes to his aid. Harry soon recovers and is given a set of artist's materials, but he has done with art forever. Through the persuasion of Kitty and Labby he finally agrees to paint a picture of Labby and his donkey. Unknown to Harry, Kitty sends the painting to the Academy, where it is accepted and hung. When the Academy opens, they visit it and Harry is surprised to see his picture there. Here they meet Harry's uncle and his new wife, who is Kitty's mother, and learns that Harry is the one who has painted "Me an' Me Pal." He hears all about Harry's struggles and of Labby's kindness to him. And, as a reward, he not only sets up Labby in a regular grocer's shop, but makes peace with his nephew, who shortly marries Kitty.

Paramount

The Golden Fetter—(Five Reels)—Lasky-Paramount — January 25. — Featuring Wallace Reid and Anita King. The story tells of a New England school teacher, who, led to invest her all in a bogus mine by an unscrupulous individual, comes west for her health and learns the true state of affairs. She becomes interested in a youth who is unjustly accused of robbery. He is about to be "strung up" when she proves an alibi for him by sacrificing herself. But, being really innocent, she, realizing the worth of blind popular condemnation, doesn't let herself suffer, and a happy marriage closes the picture. Reviewed in this issue.

The Sleepwalker—Klever Komedy—February 12.—Victor Moore featured. The story of a young fellow, who, employed by a Wall Street broker during the day, walks in his sleep at night. He and his wife are both lovers of tangoing and Welsh rarebit at late hours. Higgins, by whom Vic is employed, is about to be sued for breach of promise by an actress, who has some compromising letters received from Higgins. He offers Vic $5,000 a year if he obtains the letters. He uses a ruse to get permission from Vera, the show girl, to call, and finds that she lives in the same apartment building. He doesn't succeed in getting the letters, but later, walking in his sleep, accomplishes what he failed to do while awake.

Triangle Program

Princess of the Dark—(Five Reels)—Triangle-Kay Bee—February 18.—Featuring Enid Bennett. This picture, featuring Thomas H. Ince's new "discovery," tells of a blind girl's romance. On being healed of her blindness and ushered into the stern realities of life, she finds that her "prince" is but a hopeless cripple. Jack Gilbert and Alfred Vosburg are in the support. Reviewed in this issue.

HARRY SHERMAN OF EAST AND WEST

Harry A. Sherman, the state rights magnate with headquarters at Minneapolis, Minn., is rapidly entering the class of the Rockefellers, Vanderbilts, Morgans and Goulds with his numerous homes and stopping-off places. Since he has entered into the wholesale end of the state rights business he not only keeps his home at Minneapolis, where he does his voting, but also maintains suites at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, and Hotel McAlpine, New York. In the two hotels he keeps complete outfits including several trunks and all the paraphernalia necessary in his business.

Besides maintaining these establishments, Mr. Sherman also has become one of the greatest long distance commuters in the country. During nineteen sixteen he made thirty-seven round trips between Minneapolis and New York City. He is keeping up this pace during nineteen seventeen, already having made two round trips.

CAWS GETS WEST

Billy West signed a contract with the Caws Comedy Corporation for a period of five years at a salary approximately $25,000 per year. These pictures will be distributed by the Caws Comedy Corporation to the film industry on the state right basis.

While there has only been three pictures of Billy West Comedies put on the market, the demand for same has been so great that a special company was formed to promote these pictures exclusively with sufficient capital to make the best comedies ever released on the market.

The Caws Comedy Corporation has one of the best organizations in the film industry, having such men as Arthur M. Werner, N. H. Spitzer, Charles Feature Abrams and Samuel Cummins. These pictures will be released single reels, two a month. The first release will be put on the market the first of March.

NEW UNIVERSAL RELEASES

Topping the Universal program of the week of February 12 is the Red Feather five-act feature "The Terror," a novel photoplay of the underworld. Jack Mulhall appears as a young gunman whose finer qualities are brought out by the love of a Salvation Army lassie. "The Terror" is the Monday release.

The comedy element of the program consists of "A Hasty Hazing," Nestor, February 12; "The End of a Perfect Day," a two-reel L-Ko, for release February 14; another L-Ko, "Brave Little Waldo," featuring Fatty Voss, the hundred-weight favorite comedian, coming February 16; and the Joker aggregation headed by Gale Henry and William Franey appear in "Mules Mates," to be released February 17.

The Gold Seal of February 13, entitled "The Indian's Lament," lends three reels of heart-interest drama to the week's program. Marie Walcamp is featured with Lee Hill. In the one-reel Victor picture released the same day, bearing the title, "The Girl of the Hour," Herbert Brennon and Vivian Prescott are seen.

"The Girl Reporter's Scoop," a two-reel Imp drama of newspaper life, is scheduled for February 14.

Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven appear in "The Losing Winner," a two-reel Victor of February 15. This is a comedy-drama. "The Half Breed's Confession," a Big U western drama is the companion picture for the same day.

"The Fourth Witness," released February 16 as a two-reel Laemmle, is a picture with a touch of mystery.

"Robinson Crusoe," in three reels, will be released as a special feature. Special advertising has been prepared for this subject.

The Bison of February 17, is a two-reel melodrama entitled "John Osborn's Triumph." This is a story of Wall Street. "Broken Hearted," a one-reel Laemmle for release February 17, starring William Shay, and a "Mr. Fuller Pep," cartoon—"Mr. Fuller Pep—He first comedy now ready

MAX LINDER'S

"MAX COMES ACROSS"

Released February 26—
Book the entire series of 12 now.

ESSANAY will pay half of your advertising in newspapers on Max Linder comedies. We have decided on a national advertising campaign and desire to place it where it will do your box office the most good. For particulars get in touch with your Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay branch or our special representative in your territory at once.

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., CHICAGO

Does Some Quick Moving," which is split with a Dr. Dorsey educational, released under the Powers brand on Sunday, February 18, add variety to the program.

The eighth episode of "The Purple Mask," "The Secret Adventure," is the remaining picture of the week.

SOME NEW THEATERS

California

K. A. Adelberg announces he will build a theater at Marysville costing $22,000 with seating capacity of 950.

Illinois

The New Strand Theater, a picture house with a seating capacity of 600 and costing $40,000, has just been opened at Robinson.

Balaban & Katz, 5 South Wabash avenue, will erect a three-story theater at 3531-9 West Twelfth street, Chicago, to cost $100,000.

Indiana

The Bankers & Merchants Theater Co. of Fort Wayne, which was recently formed with the purpose of establishing a chain of Orpheum Theaters, has purchased the Varieties Theater at Terre Haute and will erect a new $65,000 building in its place.

Kansas

J. F. Tourney and C. E. Oelrich will erect a new theater on the present site of the Grace Theater at McPherson.

Louisiana

A. Wilbert Son's Lumber & Shingle Co. will erect a $50,000 opera house at Plaquemine.

Missouri

Chas. H. Elliott will erect a picture theater at Tenth street and Lydia avenue, Kansas City, to cost $5,000.

New York

Messrs. Steiner, Weisner & Schwartz will erect a $225,000 theater at 139-143 Houston street, New York City. The house will seat 1,600.

Barney Estate Company, 61 Broadway, New York City, will erect a two-story theater at 748-54 Seventy-seventh avenue, to cost $250,000.

Edward F. Bush has awarded the general contract for the construction of a one-story theater at 148-52 West Forty-eighth street, New York City, to the Extensive Building Company of Manhattan. It will cost $100,000.

Pennsylvania

The Stanley Realty Co. will erect a new theater at Nineteenth and Market streets, Philadelphia, to cost $500,000. Hoffman Co. are the architects.

Work will commence April 1 on the remodeling of the Jackson picture house at North George and Philadelphia streets, York, seating capacity for more than 1,000 persons. Architect J. A. Dempwolf is preparing the plans. F. E. Barry, manager.

Geo. J. Higgins and Son have purchased a site on Independence street, Philadelphia, and will erect a $75,000 theater.

Ground has been purchased on Center street, Pottsville, and projectors contemplate the erection of an elaborate new theater in the spring.

South Carolina

A new theater, to cost $20,000, is to be built on East Main street, Spartansburg. C. I. Henry, who is proprietor of the Rex Theater, designed the plans and it will be the largest in the state. The seating capacity will be over 1,000 and the auditorium will measure 50 by 100 feet, with a balcony in the rear and a large stage in front. The new building will be fireproof and will be one of the most handsome and attractive buildings on Main street, and will be one of the longest in the city.

CHANGE IN MUTUAL FORCES

W. H. Rippard, formerly manager of the Wilkes Barre branch of the Mutual Film Corporation, has been appointed assistant manager of the Philadelphia office. Mr. Rippard is succeeded by Bert King as manager of the Wilkes Barre Mutual Exchange.

L. B. Skeffington is the new publicity manager for the Strand theater of Rochester, New York. Mr. Skeffington is giving Rochester a shower of ideas. One of his newest is a movement to get a half holiday in the public schools so that all of the children might see "Silas Marner," the Mutual classic under this name, presented at the Strand. This picture has played several return engagements at the Strand at the request of teachers and educators.

EVERETT TRUE COMEDIES

Featuring BOBBIE BOLDER as the Champion Pest Squelcher. Single reels that are reely funny You can purchase one or all. Beat your competitor to it. Write us for particulars. Our Studios Can Be Rented by the Day or Week.
Broadway at Granville Avenue, Chicago, J. E. Willis, General Manager, AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY

Chicago News

PRESIDENT JOHN R. FREULER of Mutual has gone to Los Angeles for a month on business.

All the news about the big exhibitors' election will be found on the first page in this week's issue of MOTOGRAPHY. It was a great meeting and the "poets" won.

R. H. Hadfield, formerly connected with the production of "The Black Stork," has left Chicago for Ithaca, New York, to become manager for Wharton Brothers, Inc., who are to produce and market special features on a state rights basis.

The Reel Fellows Club held an informal "house warming" at its new quarters on the fifth floor of the College building on Wabash avenue on Saturday, February 3, and also a special officer's meeting on February 6. The new rooms are taking on an attractive appearance. Remember the Essanay party on Feb. 10.

Hal Roach, who signs the mail of the Rolin Film Company as president and general manager, put foot in Chicago not many days ago, but only between trains. With his wife, Mr. Roach was enroute to New York from California. His company makes the "Lonesome Luke" comedies for the Pathe program.

Chicago newspapers announce that Janet Oakley, a member of William Hodge's company now playing in "Fixing Sister" at the Princess Theater, has accepted an engagement with the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company to appear in a feature production.

Geo. Hines, manager of the Auditorium, South Bend, was in Chicago last week and put his John Henry on a contract calling for the twelve Max Linder Comedies. Mr. Hines also visited the Essanay studio, where he saw Linder working. The result of his visit was that "Max got him."

Suburban citizens living in Oak Park do not relish the idea of riding downtown on Sunday to a Chicago theater simply to see the pictures they would like to have shown at home, if it weren't for a pesky ordinance which forbids them seeing pictures on the Sabbath. Petitions have been posted at the theaters and 4,100 signatures obtained, asking that the Sunday closing ordinance be repealed.

The populace of the mid-west shall have one more opportunity to see Mary Pickford's train go through, if not to see her. But the lucky ones may catch another glimpse of her, since a wire has been received by Manager Goldstine of the Chicago office of Artcraft, stating that she will pass through Chicago, Sunday, February 18, on her way to California.

The American Bioscope Company, whose studio in north Chicago has been a point of interest in the neighborhood of 6242 Broadway since Bioscope's pioneer cameramen first took up headquarters there, passed another year post recently when the annual meeting took place. The officers of the company were re-elected without change. J. E. Willis sits in the vice president's and general manager's chair as usual. Wilbert B. Kurtz is treasurer. Edmund P. Kelly was re-elected secretary.

William Rayner, New York branch manager of the K. E. S. E. service, and secretary of the F. I. L. M. club of New York, exchanged greetings with F. I. L. M. men of the big town by the lake, and made himself famous with a speech delivered in their midst at a recent meeting. His presence in Chicago came about through the holding of a meeting at the K. E. S. E. offices, which was attended by the branch managers from the United States and Canada.

UNIVERSAL BOOK IT PROGRAM

NO program on earth begins to measure up in any detail with the Mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, pronounced by thousands of shrewd Exhibitors all over the country as the biggest and surest year round Box Office Attraction on the market—If you can get it now BOOK IT—if you can't get it now, watch your first opportunity. Write your nearest Universal Exchange or the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO., CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - - NEW YORK

PACIFIC COAST NOTES

Marjorie Daw has returned last week from a two months' engagement with the Great West Film Company as lead in its first feature, "The Golden Goddess." The making of this picture took Miss Daw into snowbound sections of Montana, where she lived in a tent and, together with her mother, roughed it with cowboys and the rest of the company. The picture was finished in St. Paul and it was from that city that sixteen-year-old Miss Daw has just returned.

Jassalyn Van Trump, for three years leading woman for J. Warren Kerrigan and one of the best known of American motion picture actresses, has recently signed a contract with Kalem.

Alma Reubens, the dark-eyed young woman who played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The Americano," spends her spare time studying Greek and French.

Hamlin Garland journeyed to Los Angeles to assist in the direction of the film version of his novel, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," which William Wolbert is producing for Vitagraph. Garland supervised the designing of the costumes for the Indians and soldiers, the building of the "sets" and the presentation of the customs and manners in the epoch of the book.

Noah Beery recently set a record for diverse roles. While playing in "The Spirit of '76" in the role of George Washington, the savior of his country, on alternate days he gave a too-true characterization of Francisco Villa, the attempted destroyer of the United States, in the Hearst photodrama "Patria," in which Mrs. Vernon Castle is starring.

A complete set of stills and portraits of all the stars who took part in the American-Mutual feature, "The Twinkler," have been sent by Edward Sloman, the American director, to Henry Leverage, a convict in Sing-Sing prison, who is the author of the story.

Three years ago Harry Pollard was in China with Roscoe Arbuckle and Ferris Hartman's musical comedy players. While there he met a Hong Kong importer who sent him for Christmas a fine handmade smoking set, of teak-wood, trimmed in silver and inlaid pearls, which he is proudly exhibiting at the Rolin comedy studio.

William S. Hart, the Ince star, has received a letter addressed "William S. Hart, New York City." Among the notations on the back of the envelope was one "Not the Banker's Trust Co., Try the movie actor."

That Thomas H. Ince, by having produced "Civilization," has made himself eligible to take his place alongside the name of President Wilson on the great honor roll of peacemakers, is the opinion of E. E. Naugle, the well-known Southern writer and dramatic critic.

Chester Conklin, the well-known Keystone comedian, ran away from home to become a comedian. He worked his way across a continent selling newspapers, working as bellhop, doing odd jobs, acting in small time vaudeville and lots of other things, but he persisted and finally reached the Keystone and Mack Sennett. Everybody knows the rest of the story.

Thomas Jefferson, formerly a member of the Triangle-Fine Arts playing force, has returned to the studio after an absence of more than a year. Jefferson is a character actor of distinction and is the son of Joseph Jefferson, the celebrated interpreter of the part of Rip Van Winkle.

Nearly all studios have animals, either maintained for picture purposes or merely as attaches of the studios. A coach-dog on the grounds of the American studio at Santa Barbara is on the studio pay-roll just as any other actor or other employe. The dog is nameless, for he has been deaf from puppyhood and, of course, could not recognize a name. Frequently, however, he is called upon to do atmosphere, and each pay-day solemnly is given credit for five bones a week.

Helene Rosson, who formerly played in American pictures, is at present learning how to use a motion picture camera on her ranch, the cows and other animals and the chickens being the actors in her pictures. She believes that the more she knows of the mechanical and photographic end of the business, the more she can be of value all around and she hopes one day to be a full-fledged directress.

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 24, 1917 No. 8

MARGARET LANDIS, WITH GENERAL FILM

OVER 9000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED

Goldwyn Pictures

Lend Us Your Brains —and Two Cents

GOLDWYN is ready to begin organizing its distribution—the point of daily contact with thousands of exhibitors.

No company should attempt this without the full co-operation and support of the exhibitors who are to present a producer's pictures.

How would YOU organize the Goldwyn distribution and conduct it if you owned this company?

Write us your ideas and opinions on this most important detail of our and your business.

Instead of running the risk of building an organization that might not conform to your own valuable ideas, how much better it will be if you assist us to build and organize correctly from the start.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation

16 EAST 42d STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

ADVISORY BOARD:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

TRIANGLE

Fine Arts

SUNDAY FEB., 25TH

Dorothy Gish
in
"Stage Struck"

is intense in her human appeal, and true in the portrayal of a country girl drawn into the maelstrom of the Big City by alluring promises of a "fake" theatrical agency.

Then there is a man—and the swirling life of the stage, the struggle of these two children against fate, the sheer humanness of the whole release, make a story absorbing and unforgettable.

Also
A Triangle Komedy
"A Bachelor's Finish"

Mack Sennett-Keystone

SUNDAY FEB., 25TH

One Hundred Laughs!
One Hundred Thrills!
in
"Maggie's First False Step"

It's one continued gasp of excitement and merriment from start to finish.

Charles Murray
and Louise Fazenda
are the principal laugh and thrill producers.

Watch For The Next One!

Ince-Kay Bee

THURSDAY MARCH 1ST

William Desmond
as
"The Last of the Ingrams"

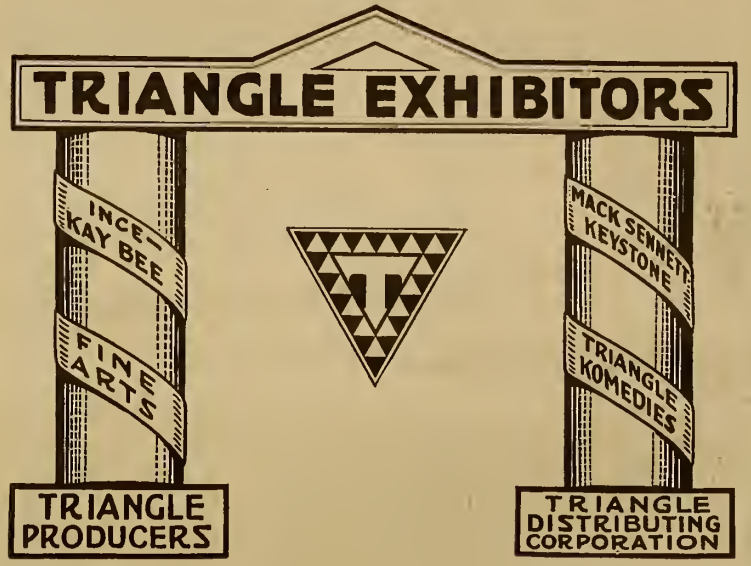
a race of hardy New England fishermen stern and granite-hearted. But—Jules Ingram, is a dreamer, and into the melting pot of the town Shylock goes, bit by bit, his inheritance, and tighter and tighter draws the noose of poverty. And then—a girl who, in innocence has erred—the bond of sympathy and the combating of evil with a strength born of love and righteousness and regeneration. The play teems with action and thrills; laughs and sobs.

Also
A Triangle Komedy
"Done In Oil"

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

THE TRIANGLE IDEA



New Triangle policies and plans assure firm foundation, an enduring structure, absolute stability and permanence.

Triangle Producers are now concerned solely with production. This means continually better pictures; always the best.

The Triangle Distributing Corporation, free to devote all its energies to service, is enabled to guarantee the exhibitor complete and satisfying co-operation in all problems of distribution.

Triangle Distributing Corporation
Wm. W. Hodkinson, President
1457 Broadway, New York

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

Sheriott's unusual feature, "The Black Stork." Elsie Esmond, as Annye Schultz, and one of the defective children shown in the picture. The film features Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the noted eugenics advocate.

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 24, 1917 No. 8

The High Cost of Amusements

NEW YORK THEATER'S EXPENSES CLIMB FROM $6,000 TO $10,000 WEEKLY

THE weekly expense of running the Strand Theater of New York has risen from $6,000, at the beginning, to $10,000 a week at the present time. Mitchel H. Mark, head of the Strand Theater Corporation, disclosed the operating costs of the big metropolitan show house in his testimony recently before the committee of the New York legislature which is investigating the motion picture business.

Besides Mr. Mark, two other prominent exhibitors were summoned by the committee. Samuel Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto Theater of New York, and Marcus Loew, who said his theater interests extend to eighty houses, gave facts and figures which go to show that running a theater is not the easiest way to make a fortune. He said:

Marcus Loew Tells the Reasons

But the price of entertainment has increased enormously. Where I used to spend $150 on entertainment, the cost has now increased to $3,000, owing to the education of the public and more strenuous competition. As an example, my Seventh avenue house earned $100,000 seven years ago, whereas, last year it made but $6,000. And this with the same amount of patronage and the same admission price. The increase in the number and popularity of motion picture houses has hurt the vaudeville theater somewhat, but to no great extent.

At present the small film house is being practically wiped out of existence. The number of exhibitors failing right along is larger in proportion than the failures in any other business. As for the producers they are profiting by hard experience. The industry needs business training and experience, and these qualifications are coming slowly. Better business methods are being adopted all the time.

Rothapfel Points to Inflation Menace

Manager Rothapfel of the Rialto Theater of New York was the principal witness of the day on the occasion when he testified. He was asked about censorship and about the financial status of exhibitors. Mr. Rothapfel gave this testimony:

I think the industry is going to cleanse itself. No amount of censorship can stop it. Like a baby growing too fast, it is as yet hardly able to toddle on its feet, but it will broaden, and is bound to be a great influence in the amusement world. It now lacks ethics and business judgment. A reorganization is bound to come, but the beneficient results, financially speaking, will not be felt for four or five years. I believe the inflated companies are bound to burst within the next twelve months, for there is no hiding the fact that a war is on.

Mr. Mark testified that he is part owner of seven picture theaters. He declared that the stability of the exhibitors' business is not to be questioned, citing the fact that in Buffalo six years ago there were only fifteen theaters where now there are ninety-three. Theaters will be closed, he admitted, but he puts the blame on the short-sightedness of proprietors who exhibit a class of pictures which so often prove objectionable. He estimated that eighty-five per cent of the producers are making no money.

Selznick Made $105,000 in Ten Weeks

Several large producers and their representatives have been called to testify, among them Lewis J. Selznick, of the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, Inc. He told the committee that the Selznick Enterprises started with $1,000 capital and in ten weeks increased its holdings to $105,000.

"It takes less brains to make money in the film trade than in any other business," he remarked.

He told of the secret agreements entered into with exhibitors at the time he was head of the World Film Corporation. He resigned because he felt that the program system was doomed to ruin and meant failure for him, he declared. Thereupon he established the special feature system, which he says has proved to the exhibitor that a special production at $100 can be more valuable than program films at $25 each.

"Secret Agreement with Exhibitors"

A secret agreement was in order among the program distributors, Mr. Selznick testified, by which any exhibitor using his pictures forfeited the program contract. Now the exhibitor who wanted his product had to pay for that and the program in addition, and still made more money than under the old system.

The financial history of the Vitagraph Company was related by Albert E. Smith, president. With a capital of $6,000 to start, in 1904, the company grew until in 1916 a re-organization was effected with a capitalization of $25,000,000, of which $7,000,000 in common and preferred stock has been issued. The business is in such a state today, however, Mr. Smith contended, that it cannot shoulder a tax such as the New York legislature purposed.

Samuel Goldfish, of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, replied to some questions concerning the high salaries of stars. He said:

Really great personalities are worth all the money motion picture producers pay for them. The Goldwyn organization, I assure you, will engage every great artist on whom we think we can make a profit.

The witnesses and producers who have testified recently include:

Emmanuel Heidenham, treasurer of Klever Pictures, Inc.; F. G. Bradford, general manager of the Gaumont Company; Isaac E. Chadwick, vice-president Ivan Film Corporation; Mrs. Margaret Bray, treasurer of the Bray Studios; Theodore Wharton, president of Wharton, Inc.; William Wright, general manager of the Kalem Company; Richard Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation; William Fox, Fox Film Corporation; Edwin Thanhouser, Thanhouser Film Corporation; Elizabeth Huber, treasurer Modern Feature Photoplays, Inc.; Allan Kander; Benjamin Goetz, secretary and treasurer Erbograph Company; W. W. Hodkinson, president Triangle Distributing Corporation; Abraham Finch, Astra Film Corporation; Briton Busch, treasurer World Film Corporation.

BIG REEL FELLOWS PARTY

Chicago Film Organization Stages Extensive Affair at Essanay Studios—Nearly Three Thousand Present and $1,000 Cleared

The Reel Fellows Club of Chicago staged a big and successful motion picture-dancing-cabaret "party" at the Essanay studios on the evening of February 10.

Between two and three thousand people were present, including a number of socially prominent folk and practically all the film men in the city. Harry Miller, the lively treasurer of the club and the well known Madison street exhibitor, stated to MOTOGRAPHY that the Reel Fellows will clear approximately $1,000 on the affair. This money is to be used in fitting up the new club rooms in the College building on Wabash avenue and in taking care of the lease.

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, courteously gave the Reel Fellows carte blanche in the use of the studios. Practically all of the Essanay stars were present. The crowd, in relays, was ushered into Studio B, where Bryant Washburn was being filmed in a forthcoming Black Cat feature, "Aladdin Up-to-Date." It was the initiation of a majority of the visitors into the mysteries of studio life, and they enjoyed it greatly. All the sets in Studio C were cleared away for the other features of the entertainment.

On the platform behind the palms a thirty-piece orchestra furnished lively dance music. One-half of the floor was given over to the pastime of Terpsichore. President Ralph O. Proctor with Mary Charleson and Henry Walthall with Mrs. Proctor led the grand march, piloted by Attorney David T. Alexander. Some of the novelties in the dancing numbers were "George K. Spoor's Making 'Em All Step One Step," "Reel Fellows Stepping Some Fox Trot," "Henry B. Walthall's Burning the Candle Fox Trot," and "Max Linder's Max Comes Across Hesitation Waltz."

Henry B. Walthall made a farewell speech to Richard Travers, who has left Essanay, then presented him with a diamond-studded Masonic watch charm in token of esteem from the club.

Vaudeville numbers interspersed the dancing. "Rob Reel," photoplay editor of the Chicago Evening American, got out an "Extra" on the ball which was sold to the guests.

A great deal of credit for the success of the big party is due to the live and hard-working committees:

Ways and means: D. T. Alexander, chairman, John G. Haag, David Russakov, W. D. Burford. Reception: Richard C. Travers, chairman, Henry B. Walthall, M. G. Watkins, Wm. J. Sweeney, Mack Edmonds, Fred W. Wild, Jr. Floor committee: David T. Alexander, chairman, W. D. Burford, G. W. Booth, Jas. S. McHenry, John E. O'Toole, Harry Weiss. Refreshments: David Russakov. Entertainment: Harry C. Miller, Wm. E. Heaney. Publicity: John G. Haag, Buck Slavin.

The officers of the club are Ralph O. Proctor, president; Richard C. Travers and M. G. Watkins, vice-presidents; Eugene A. Hamburg, secretary; A. E. Curtis, assistant secretary; Harry C. Miller, treasurer; R. T. Nehls, William J. Sweeney, Don J. Bell, Fred W. Wild, Jr., and David Russakov, directors.

Universal Director Allen Curtis is filming a one-reel photoplay, "The Man From Bombay."

IT'S UP TO EXHIBITORS

Cure for Censorship Ills in Hands of Theater Men if They Play the Game Wisely, Says License Commissioner

The exhibitor is the man of the day in the problem of censorship—the man in whose power it lies either to fasten the fetters of censorship securely upon the business, or loosen them completely and free the industry of the hampering hands laid on it by the censors. One class of men, the exhibitors, according to the state license commissioner of New York, can accomplish the cure of the censorship plague.

"It seems to me, from what I have learned in the last three years, that the whole future of the industry is in the hands of the exhibitor," said the commissioner, in urging the theater men to keep their screens free from objectionable pictures.

How to Overcome Censor Troubles

Commissioner George H. Bell thus made his observations known to exhibitors in a speech before the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the state of New York. President Samuel Trigger, in presenting the speaker, declared that the commissioner has been a greater help in the fight against censorship in New York than any other one person, because he has proved that clean pictures are possible without legalized censorship.

The lurid type of posters which many theaters display in their lobbies produce misleading impressions on the minds of people who do not attend the theaters, he said. The commissioner declared that his investigations had convinced him that the posters alone are the cause of much of the existing prejudice against pictures not really deserving the criticisms made against them. He said:

Just now the industry is not a great industry, but just a big one. It has the possibilities of greatness, but it lacks the settled, fixed purpose and growth of a great industry. It has had a mushroom growth and it is still a mushroom. If the exhibitor isn't farsighted, it will be doubly hard to put the industry into the high place it ought to hold.

The manufacturer can't control the industry. He can control his own pictures, and that's the end of it. If he can't dispose of indecent pictures to the exhibitor, he won't manufacture them.

Freuler-Chaplin Deal On

President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation is in California visiting the Mutual's west coast studios—and incidentally calling on Charles Chaplin at the Lone Star-Mutual studios in Los Angeles.

Mr. Freuler is taking up with Mr. Chaplin the completion of arrangements for the new series of Chaplin comedies to follow the series of twelve now being released by the Mutual.

There is considerable speculation as to the terms of the new Chaplin deal, but nothing has been given out from the Mutual offices. Mr. Chaplin is now being paid $670,000 for his first year of work under his contract with Mr. Freuler.

While in California Mr. Freuler will visit Mutual exchanges, and probably will find time for excursions to San Francisco, Santa Barbara and San Diego.

Jack Vosburgh has completed his first engagement at the American studio as the juvenile heavy lead in William Russell's company making "My Fighting Gentleman," and has been cast in support of Mary Miles Minter under the direction of James Kirkwood.

Traps Film Thief and Unmasks "Gang"

DETECTIVE AND PRODUCER ENACT A REAL MELODRAMA IN CAPTURE

LIKE a melodrama of the screen runs the story of how a moving picture producer and a Burns detective trapped a film thief in New York and, in catching their man, discovered evidence which indicates that a fully organized syndicate of film thieves has been operating in the United States. The first indictment in the anti-theft campaign has been obtained before a grand jury in New York.

William Bowen is the defendant. He is held on the charge of having received stolen goods and is accused of selling a stolen film to the Burns detective who worked on the case.

Fox Company Baits the Trap

The case on which the test is being made has to do with a six-reel picture, "The Wonderful Adventure," a copy of which was stolen from the Fox Film Corporation on January 4, and which was sold, together with a Metro film "A Million a Minute," on January 9, to a Burns detective. Bowen asked only $100 for the two features.

Film thefts have been going on for a considerable time, ever since the market abroad came to be a recognized outlet for American films. The Universal has been a heavy loser, and some months ago announced that it had lost $200,000 worth of films. The probable total of losses in the past year will be near half a million dollars and is shared by Universal, Fox, World, Triangle and others.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has been active in arranging for the prosecution of Bowen, following the activities of the Fox Film Corporation in setting and springing the trap.

Detective Starts an "Office"

The breadth of the activities of the alleged gang of film thieves was brought out in the court in the testimony of the detective, and was confirmed later at the National Association offices. An elaborate trap was laid by the detective agency under instructions from the Fox Film Corporation.

The testimony of sheriffs, detectives and film employes went to prove that the film, a six-reel picture called "The Wonderful Adventure," was stolen from the sidewalk in front of the Fox exchange at 130 West Forty-sixth street, January 4th, while an express wagon was being loaded. The same film was later sold by Bowen to the Burns detective, it was testified. The Burns operator had established himself in an office in the Columbia Theater building at Forty-seventh street and Seventh avenue and had represented himself as a film exporter. The price agreed on, $100, was paid by a marked $100 bill, which was produced in court. A deputy sheriff testified that he had taken the bill from Bowen's roll a few minutes after the sale had been made.

The Burns men gave evidence to show that Bowen had sold them other films, from time to time after the establishment of the "Office" on December 11, 1916, and had offered to furnish World and other films as wanted. The prices paid varied from $50 to $100, the price of the six reels of "The Wonderful Adventure" being $50. These films were sold only on the understanding that they were to be shipped abroad. A Greek detective posed as the buyer of some of them for use in Greece. It was stated also that Bowen said his system was "tied up tight."

Thefts Have Reached $200,000

At the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry it is believed that the whole elaborate thieving and selling system would now be cleared up. District Attorney Lazarus said that the first of these cases that had come to his attention was about a year ago, when the World Film Corporation was the sufferer. Since that time, a dozen or more companies have had films stolen and sold abroad, the largest thefts that have gotten into the press having been those from the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, whose losses were said to be over $200,000.

The losses by the Fox company in the present case, which includes other films than "The Wonderful Adventure," is estimated at from $35,000 to $50,000. The actual cost of merely printing the six reels of "The Wonderful Adventure," which was sold for $100, was $240, aside from the value of the picture and the loss of revenue occasioned.

URGES FIRE CAUTIONS

Disaster at New York Studio Bring Strong Protest from Fire Commissioner—Response Asks Industry to Heed Law

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has adopted a resolution repudiating those members of the industry who, by neglect of fire prevention cautions, invite such disastrous fires as that which destroyed the studio of the Popular Plays and Players Company at 226 West Thirty-fifth street, New York, January 30.

The committee on fire prevention regulations and insurance has received a letter from Fire Commissioner Adamson of New York City in which he states that the vast amounts of film stored in the studio were absolutely without the permission or knowledge of the department and were handled in a manner at complete variance with the regulations of the department.

This committee, on the basis of Commissioner Adamson's statements, adopted a set of resolutions, placing the National Association on record as condemning "most vigorously the handling of motion picture films in the premises of its members and all others without endeavoring to obtain the necessary permit from the fire department and without maintaining the proper safeguards for the elimination of fire hazards and fire waste."

The resolutions also pledged the whole-hearted support of the National Association to Fire Commissioner Adamson "in his efforts to reduce fire hazards in the film industry, to the end of conserving property and protecting human life." The committee will issue a new bulletin shortly on fire prevention.

Text of the Resolutions

The text of the resolution was in part as follows:

WHEREAS the Fire Commissioner has called to the attention of the National Association the fact that the continuance of such conditions in the film industry will only lead to more stringent regulations and possibly new legislation, therefore be it

Resolved that the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry condemns most vigorously the handling of motion picture films in the premises of its members and all others without endeavoring to obtain the necessary permit from the fire department and without maintaining the proper safeguards for the elimination of the fire hazards and fire waste.

The executive committee of the committee on fire prevention regulations and insurance is headed by Jesse L. Lasky of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, as chairman of the whole committee, and its members are Charles M. Biscay, Insurance Press, chairman of executive committee; J. F. Ancona, Eastman Kodak Company; J. E. Brulatour, Eastman Films; Maurice Choynski, Chicago, Illinois; John R. Freuler, Mutual Film Corporation; Arthur Eames, Metro Pictures Corporation; William L. Sherrill, Frohman Amusement Corporation; William Sistrom, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; J. F. Skerrett, Nicholas Power Company; Samuel H. Trigger, Tremont Theater, New York; Judge A. P. Tugwell, Los Angeles, California.

IT'S ALL ABOUT LOVE

Exhibitors—Here's Chance to be Tutor on Cupid's Art and Charge Admission from All Who Worship at Love God's Shrine

Some one has estimated that a printing press would be kept running twenty-four hours a day and on Sundays if an attempt were made to print in a single publication all the reems and pages that press agents write in description of love scenes, and in magazine articles on how the great stars make love. But who can read it all?

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has a better way of presenting a complete story of the arts of Cupid as practiced by the stars of the photoplay world. It is told in films of course. The association announces that the first reel of its All Star Review of the most popular pictures of the past year, entitled "How the Great Stars Make Love," has been assembled and shown to the executive committee. Some who have seen it say that it will upset the state censorship regulations on the footage allowed to a kiss and still meet with approval.

The picture is made up of short scenes from over a dozen plays, with as many stars, and was voted a clean, fine feature sure of success throughout the country. The other reels are to be similar in composition, and all will have the same appeal to the vast public which is interested in motion pictures.

The Review is to be issued in five reels, on five consecutive weeks, and it was recommended by the executive committee that the feature be sold on a states right basis, the National Association preparing uniform posters and advertising matter. The five reels have been finally decided upon as follows: "How the Great Stars Make Love," "With the Funny Stars," "Great Fights of the Films," "Daredevil Stunts of the Films," and "Great Moments in Great Plays," this last including tense dramatic situations shown in short footage.

Bookings on "The Ne'er-Do-Well," the famous Selig production of Rex Beach's equally famous novel which now is being released through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchanges, by special arrangement with Sol Lesser, have increased tremendously in the last few days, particularly in the central west.

PURSE FOR FILM BOUT

Harry A. Sherman Bids $40,000 for Fight Between Les Darcy and Mike Gibbons, to Be Staged Secretly Before Camera

A purse of forty thousand dollars for a ten-round battle before the camera, between Les Darcey, the Australian fighter, and Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, the outcome of the bout to be kept absolutely secret until the last reel was run off on the date of the first run, covers the terms of an offer made a few days ago by Harry A. Sherman, of the Sherman-Elliot Company. The fighters hesitated at acceptance of the purse when it was learned that the offer meant the bout would take place without an audience.

Mr. Sherman now says that he purposes making a bid for a twenty-round fight between Jess Willard and Fred Fulton and, that if he can get the men to accept terms he will specify that a motion picture camera will be the only active spectator and that the fact even that the fight was held will be a secret until the picture is thrown on screens all over the country.

Another provision of the agreement submitted to Les Darcy and Gibbons was that all the principals to the affair, with the exception of Sherman, his advertising man and his press representative were to remain in absolute seclusion for one month after the fight or until such a time as necessary to get the picture in condition for release simultaneously all over the country.

The entire plan providing for the greatest possible secrecy had been worked out. The date of the fight was to have been kept secret. When the picture had been finished at least one hundred prints were to have been made all of which would be released simultaneously in one hundred cities of the United States.

"A picturized fight between Darcy and Gibbons would draw a straight fifty-cent admission price," said Mr. Sherman in discussing his plan. "The spectators at the original show would see a real battle with all the uncertainty as to the victor as when the fight took place. The name of the winner would be carefully protected, so much so in fact that even the sporting editors of the daily newspapers would have to write their story of the fight from the picture."

Mastbaum in Baseball Deal

Stanley V. Mastbaum, managing-director of the theater enterprises in Pennsylvania and New York, controlled by the Stanley Company of Philadelphia, has climbed into the bandwagon of the baseball fraternity and now is one of the owners of a full-fledged cast of ball tossers.

Together with Hiram Abrams, president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, and Archibald Selwyn of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Mr. Mastbaum is one of the purchasers of the Portland Eastern League team, of Portland, Maine. Mr. Mastbaum is now giving his attention to the difference in meaning between "releases" in his two different fields of activities.

Mr. Abrams, who is president of the newly-formed club, declares that he is going on tour with his new club in the summer and the chances are that he will be flanked by movie cameras. At any rate he states that before he gets through with it, the Portland team will be the Paramount team of New England.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews, MOTOGRAPHY will each week hereafter print the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request MOTOGRAPHY will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.)

A CONEY ISLAND PRINCESS, with Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore, (Paramount)—"This did a very good business for us and pleased our patrons very much. Personally I consider it a very good picture."—N. H. Cinberg, The Magnet Theater, Lincoln, Neb.

PATRIA, with Mrs. Vernon Castle, (Pathe serial)—"With the first episode we did the biggest consecutive four days' business ever played at this theater. If the remaining episodes will pull anywhere near the first week's business, and we believe they will, we will be assured of a ten strike."—Fred J. Dolle, Broadway Amusement Enterprises.

PATRIA, with Mrs. Vernon Castle, (Pathe serial)—"Business picked up wonderfully with the first episode of this serial. I am more than glad I have it."—Don. P. Trent, Bijou Theater, Knoxville, Tenn.—High class vaudeville theater.

THE LASH OF DESTINY, with Gertrude McCoy, (Art Dramas)—"A commendable feature. Plenty of action of the intense and gripping variety. A good story, well told. Miss McCoy appears to good advantage. She is ably supported by McRae and Houseman and the rest of the cast. Photograph could be much better. Direction and detail good. It ought to go well in any neighborhood. If Art Dramas keep up this standard, there will be no kicks."—George Moore, Bridgeport Theater.—Catering to a middle class patronage.

WHEN THE MAN SPEAKS, (A unit of "Is Marriage Sacred" series. Essanay)—"Featuring Edward Arnold, Marguerite Clayton and star cast. One of the best pictures I ever had the pleasure of reviewing. The kind of acting that makes the exhibitor happy and the public crazy for more. Arnold flashes on us suddenly the kind of a role that William Farnum has had a monopoly on for years. Miss Clayton shows versatility. Splendid support by the rest of the cast. Captain Calvert is outdoing himself in his masterly direction. This series gets better each succeeding unit."—George Moore, Bridgeport Theater.—Middle class audiences.

THE VICTIM, with Valeska Suratt, (Fox)—"A fair picture. The title has drawing power. Business was good."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

THE END OF THE TOUR, with Lionel Barrymore, (Metro)—"Equals the average of Barrymore's pictures. A fair production."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

THE GIRL OF THE TIMBERCLAIMS, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"A good picture."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

MELTING MILLIONS, with George Walsh, (Fox)—"Picture good, star, story and photography all good."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

THE SQUARE DEAL, with Carlyle Blackwell and Doris Kenyon, (World)—"A very good picture with good drawing power."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

ONE OF MANY, with Frances Nelson, (Metro)—"Good picture, good title, business great."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

THE MYSTERIOUS MRS. M., with Mary MacLaren, (Bluebird)—"One of this company's very best productions. Miss MacLaren is featured to good advantage. It is a good box-office attraction."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

THE LAST SENTENCE, with Mark MacDermott, (Edison)—"A pretty good picture but the audience did not care for it. Fair box-office value."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

TWIN KIDDIES, with Baby Marie Osborne, (Pathe)—"A pleasing picture enjoyed by all patrons. Good box-office attraction."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

THE CRAB, with Frank Keenan (Triangle)—"A fine picture. Brought good business."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

THE CRAB, with Frank Keenan, (Triangle)—"One of Mr. Keenan's best roles. The picture pleased everyone. Very good box-office value."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

THE ROAD AGENT, (Triangle Comedy)—"Another of those comedies worth about a dollar a reel. No where near the Keystone standard."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.— High class patronage.

THE BONDAGE OF FEAR, with Ethel Clayton, (World)—"A very good production, well liked by patrons. Fair drawing power."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

THE AMERICANO, with Douglas Fairbanks, (Triangle)—"Greatest picture Mr. Fairbanks ever made. It was enjoyed by all and my patrons are asking to see it again. Business was very big."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

Among Those Present, with Richard Travers and Gertrude Glover, (Essanay Black Cat Feature)—"A good comedy drama. An amateur detective story that is refreshing. Cleverly acted. Detail, direction and photography good."—George Moore, Bridgeport Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Hungry Heart, with Alice Brady, (World)—"A good picture well liked by patrons. Brought good business. The acting of the star is good and the story is good."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Indiscretion, with Lillian Walker, (Vitagraph)—"A very pleasing picture, not wonderful but all patrons liked it. Brought fair business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Jim Bludso, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"A picture which all patrons on going out declared very good. Star's acting is good, and so is that of the rest of the cast. Story is good. It proved only a fair drawing picture because the title is not very good."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Jim Bludso, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"Although this is a very good picture it did not draw, possibly on account of the title."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young, (World re-issue)—"Well liked by patrons. A good story, and the star's acting is very good."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young, (World re-issue)—"This is the picture originally called Hearts in Exile. It seemed to satisfy all my patrons. However, I think it is a bad idea for World to change the title of these re-issues. It rather deceives the public and will not pay in the long run."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young, (World re-issue)—"The picture is good and this star always draws. Some patrons declare they like her better in these re-issues than in her later productions."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

A Lass of the Lumberlands, with Helen Holmes, (Mutual)—"My 450-seat house accommodated 1,529 people on the Sunday I showed the fifth chapter of 'A Lass,' although a blizzard raged all day."—F. E. Wolcott, Majestic Theater, Racine, Wisconsin.

The Innocence of Lizette, with Mary Miles Minter, (Mutual)—"We had a heavy opposition the day we ran this film but in spite of this we did a very good business and packed houses was the rule for the day and night. We were very much pleased with this production and can vouch for our patrons also. Not a kick was registered throughout the day regarding any point of this performance, and everyone, to the most captious spectator, was well pleased with the picture. Mary Miles Minter is a big drawing card here."—Manager Bloomberg, Strand Theater, Asheville, North Carolina.

The Gun-fighter, with William Hart, (Triangle)—"This brought good business. A pretty good picture."—Harry Miller, Rose Theater.—Downtown house.

The Gun-fighter, with William Hart, (Triangle)—"Heart's best production. Proved a big drawing card."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Gun-fighter, with William Hart, (Triangle)—"The greatest of all Hart pictures, my patrons declared. I showed this picture on a Sunday and broke all records. I think it an excellent Sunday offering."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Pride of the Clan, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"A fair picture. Opinion about it among the patrons was divided. Some liked it very much, some did not."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Happiness of Three Women, with Myrtle Stedman and House Peters, (Paramount)—"About the best picture Morosco has ever made. The story is good and played up strong."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

The Matrimaniac, with Douglas Fairbanks, (Triangle)—"A very good picture. I played a repeat of this on a very cold night and business was better than would be expected."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Betty to the Rescue, with Fanny Ward, (Lasky-Paramount)—"Instead of making a picture like this, Lasky should spend more time and money and put out one that would be worth while. This looks as though it were made in too great a hurry."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Trilby, with Clara Kimball Young, (World re-issue)—"Very good, brought big business."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Idle Wives, with Lois Weber and Phillip Smalley, (Universal)—"A good picture. One of the best Universal productions I ever saw."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

One Touch of Sin, with Gladys Brockwell, (Fox)—"A good picture."—Harry Miller, Alcazar Theater.—Downtown house.

The Scarlet Letter, featuring Stuart Holmes, (Fox)—"This is a very good picture. The work of the star is fine."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Easy Street, with Charlie Chaplin, (Mutual)—"The best thing Chaplin has ever done. The plot is good, the photography is good and a number of new stunts are introduced. As a whole, clean. It broke all house records at the Rose Theater by $1,000. It brought $3,200 in seven days in a 298-seat house at ten cent admission prices, which I think a 300-seat theater record.

I am considering rebooking it for another week. Chaplin may be dead, as some claim, but you'll have to prove it to me!"—Harry Miller, Rose Theater.—Downtown house.

EASY STREET, with Charlie Chaplin, (Mutual)—"The funniest of all Chaplin pictures. The patrons went into spasms of laughter. The house fairly shook."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

EASY STREET, with Charlie Chaplin, (Mutual)—"Chaplin at his fuuniest. Liked by all patrons. Brought record business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

THE WHITE RAVEN, with Ethel Barrymore, (Metro)—"A splendid picture, well put together. Brought good business and was liked by the patrons."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

HIS SWEETHEART, with George Beban, (Paramount)—"A very good production, full of thrill and containing some great character work. Patrons are well satisfied."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

UNCLE SAM'S DEFENDERS, (Mutual Series)—"These releases in this series, one reel each, are very novel and especially timely during this war agitation. The people are interested in them."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

THE GOLDEN FETTER, with Wallace Reid and Anita King (Lasky-Paramount)—"My patrons do not care for western pictures and this is a western. They declared the offering belonged in a five-cent instead of a fifteen-cent theater. Business, however, held up pretty well."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

THE LOVE THIEF, with Gretchen Hartman and Allan Hale, (Fox)—"I haven't had a better picture on my screen for some time. I have not shown a picture for weeks which pleased the audience as well. The title is good. The attendance was very satisfactory.—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

THE CRAB, with Frank Keenan, (Triangle)—"Very dramatic. A good enough picture for any theater. It was satisfactory as a drawing card."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

THE VICTORIA CROSS, with Lou Tellegen and Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky)—"Only fairly good. It is not up to the usual Paramount standard. I heard one 'fan' say that Lou Tellegen tries to be a second Francis Bushman, as if he did not like it. Only fair crowds."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

LESS THAN THE DUST, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"A fairly good one. As to attendance it did well. We were holding the crowds back from 7:30 to 9 o'clock."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

JIM BLUDSO, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"A good picture which has a strong story. The house was very satisfactory. We did capacity business with it."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

THE PRICE OF SILENCE, with William Farnum, (Fox)—"Fox releases this as a super-picture, and it is one."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

SNOW WHITE, with Marguerite Clark, (Famous Players)—"This picture kept the house crowded for two days and we did a better business on the second day than on the first."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

THE CRAB, with Frank Keenan, (Triangle)—"A first-class picture which did very good business."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

THE RIGHT DIRECTION, with Vivian Martin, (Paramount)—"The story lacks punch. I find that my audiences like something with stronger dramatic element. In the vicinity of this theater, Paramount pictures are not as popular as in some neighborhoods. This picture did only a fair business.—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

THE PRIDE OF THE CLAN, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"A fine picture, which brought good crowds."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

SIMILAR TITLES LEGAL

Mutual Film Corporation Wins Long-Drawn-Out Suit Brought by Selig Company Anent "House of a Thousand Scandals."

The long and tedious litigation in the action of the Selig Polyscope Company, Inc., vs. Mutual Film Corporation in a suit for injunction against the Mutual's use of the title, "The House of a Thousand Scandals," has ended in Mutual victory. The title stands and judgment for the defendant has been signed by Judge Pendleton in the supreme court of New York.

The action was brought by the Selig Company on the theory of an infringement on its rights and the title of its production called "The House of a Thousand Candles." Among the Mutual's witnesses were Fred Mitchell, head booker for the Loew houses, and Fred Dollinger, who operates the Claremont theater. They testified as experts that they booked both pictures and that their titles were not confusing or of detriment the one to the other. The court said:

> There is nothing, either in word or similarity of design in defendant's advertisements of its play outside of and apart from the alleged similarity in the name or title, tending to show or suggest that defendant's play was taken from the novel or is in any way similar to plaintiff's play, and there is no evidence that any one has been misled or any confusion occasioned between the two productions. In fact, there is some evidence that there has been no such confusion, and that the two plays have been exhibited in the same theaters at different times, a circumstance going to show that they have been regarded and treated as distinct and different exhibitions.

Kenneth Harlan who plays the principal masculine role opposite Constance Talmadge in the Triangle Fine Arts melodramatic-comedy, "Betsy's Burglar" was well known in vaudeville and was with Gertrude Hoffman in Sumurun before joining the Fine Arts.

ODDITIES OF CENSORSHIP

Bits of News From Everywhere—Local Board in Illinois Town Reviews Film Three Times—Charges Three Fees

Viewed from the vantage point of a swivel chair in the office of any local censor board, censorship of films quite likely becomes a simple matter, involving only a blue pencil, scissors, a pair of eyes able to stand the strain, and infinite wisdom. But a visit here and there among censors of many localities places an aspect of complexity over the procedure that would make a censor's head swim, as surely as it staggers some of the exhibitors and producers who are trying to please a thousand and one censors, each with a thousand and one ideas.

Some random bits of news gathered from many sources are presented below. The simplicity of censorship as seen by any one local censor disappears when the horizon is widened.

New York, N. Y.—Canvass of three boroughs of Brooklyn, Richmond and Queens, by the New York World fails to develop that the public approves opposition to Sunday pictures.

New York—Society for the Prevention of Crime exercises its function and undertakes prevention of Sunday moving pictures.

Freeport, L. I.—Congregations of two churches go on record as opposed to bills in legislature legalizing Sunday performances. Clergymen foster the issue and one pastor takes rising vote.

Madison, Wis.—Bill to legalize Sunday shows specifies that the common council of any town shall have the right to permit or forbid performances.

Columbus, Ohio—An effort to abolish the Ohio censorship law is anticipated by the Central Philanthropic Council, which will fight any such move.

Denver, Colo.—Representative Hutchins introduces a censorship bill in the House and makes the statement that he does not know its provisions and does not know who really is behind the measure.

Topeka, Kans.—A board of censors who will earn $1,800 each, the chairman to draw $2,000, will censor moving picture advertisements and posters as well as films, under terms of bill now before legislature.

Dover, Del.—Legislation is proposed which would allow exhibition of films bearing seal of the censors of either Pennsylvania or Maryland. All other films would be scrutinized by a Delaware censorship board.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—"A state board of censors, consisting of three members, is urged. If it's up to three to look over all the films, it ought to be easy to sneak in a few reels of the popular kind."—Grand Rapids News.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Board of censors in annual report regards standard of theaters as above the average, a result achieved through close co-operation with exhibitors. White slave films will be barred in Milwaukee after April 1.

Spokane, Wash.—The censorship bill introduced in the state legislature of Washington provides that one woman and two men shall be the members of the proposed board of censors. Why such discrimination against feminine censors?

Chicago, Ill.—Deleted by censors, from travelogue picture shown with lectures of Dwight Elmendorf: Five Javanese children under six years old, sans clothes; chubby specimen of a Javanese girl, age four years, standing in a bath tub; slide of five-year-old urchin, in his usual attire in Java, dancing. Mr. Elmendorf was accommodating enough to paint an apron on the boy to conceal whatever it was that needed concealing.

Rockford, Ill.—Censors require all exhibitors to submit their films daily and pay fee of fifty cents per reel. A Rockford theater showing a five-part feature, first-run, would pay $2.50 for having it passed upon by the local board. A week later another theater showing the same picture would be required to pay the same fee. If the film was later booked by a third Rockford house, or by one of the two which previously showed the picture, the censors would charge the theater owner for passing on the feature a third time. At least one case of this kind has occurred.

Motion pictures taken by the Hearst-Pathe news at the time of the recent riots on the International bridge connecting El Paso, Texas, and Juarez, Mexico, are to be used to identify the men and women who led the rioting Mexicans in attacks upon United States troops guarding the bridge.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

OVER at the Essanay studio at the big Reel Fellows party Saturday night Henry Walthall made a valedictory speech to Dick Travers. They were up on the platform before the proverbial sea of noisy faces.

Henry is a little man, but he has a big voice. And he roared his touching speech. After Dick had gulped a few words and it was all over a feminine fan rushed up to the "little Colonel."

"Why, Mr. Walthall, what a wonderful voice you have. You filled this whole great studio. How did you ever cultivate such a wonderful big speaking voice?"

And Henry was excusably a bit disgusted.

"Aw," he drawled, "I used to holler a lot at the hawgs down in Alabama."

The writer of this patch of persiflage put sugar and cream in his soup and swallowed a half dozen olive pits at lunch at the Sherman Hotel Sunday.

It was Max Goldstine's Pickford party and yourn truly was sitting right next to Mary.

Gosh!

DIS-SECTION OF A SCANDAL

If Al Cohn of Photoplay Magazine took his Pickford, I guess it would be Lottie.

Al and the Pickford party left for Califilmia on the same train Sunday night. All the afternoon during the festivities at the Sherman House him and Lottie were conniving and telling each other what a good time they would have on the trip. When I last eared them they were arranging a poker game.

Then at eight o'clock the train pulled west in two sections. The gingery Lottie was on the second and Al was booked on the first.

Another scandal killed by a coupling pin!

The editor of that unusual house organ of the classy Stillman Theater, Cleveland, must be a mighty fine man. Look what he prints, under the head, "If He Sees It":

"If the editor of Motography (Chicago) happens to see this modest notelet he'll discover that we are thanking him for the compliments he pays the Stillman and its programs in a recent issue. It's always pleasant to be noticed that way, isn't it?"

And it's pleasant to have it noticed when you notice somebody.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY—REVISED

A. L. Einsteen, publicity director for the Stanley Theater Company of Philadelphia, ran the following in his newspaper ads last week. The French doc referred to is chairman of the state censor board:

> Dr. Oberholtzer, secretary of the State Board of Censors, declares that Charlie Chaplin is a fool! This censor receives $2,400 per annum. Chaplin receives $2,400 every day. See Chaplin in "Easy Street." "Who's Who?"

THE PERSPIRED STENOGRAPHER.

Paragraph in publicity just sent out by the National Board of Reviews:

> "Last year the National Board of Reviews caused a great deal of trouble through the making of pictures known as the white slave films."

Eight Cincinnati youngsters who were caught stoning the Hippodrome Theater, were publicly spanked by order of the Justice Court. We're glad they don't treat bull throwers the same way as stone throwers.

If they did, we might have to stand up most of the time.

British Views on Educational Films

LONDON CONFERENCE DISCUSSES PICTURES FOR CHILDREN

THE educational influence of motion pictures was one of the leading questions for discussion at the recent meeting of the Conference of Educational Associations at the University of London, England.

"The Control and Direction of Cinemas" was discussed by Mrs. Allan H. Bright of Liverpool, who declared that the aim of the reformer should be to direct the control of shows so that they would not be likely to harm the great audiences of both sexes that flocked to see them. Mrs. Bright, however, warned the too zealous reformers against condemning the vulgarity of a cinema since theater managers had to please large audiences of different classes and the sense of humor might be cruder in one spectator than it was in another.

Use Theaters for Matinees

Professor R. A. Gregory stated that the great educational possibilities of the motion picture must be acknowledged. He believes that in the future there will be free cinema galleries as well as free libraries and suggested that educational authorities might arrange with theater managers for special exhibitions of films to school children.

Opposed to these views was the address of Dr. Lyttelton, late head master of Eton, who saw only evil in the popularity of the film and declared them an indication of spiritual disease.

The question of children and the pictures also arose for discussion at the last session of the Cinema Commission of Inquiry held at Central Hall, Westminster, under the presidency of the Bishop of Birmingham. Cecil M. Hepworth, representing the manufacturers, pointed out the immense and unexplored field for the industry in the domain of education. In explaining the manufacture of pictures which might be offensive, Mr. Hepworth stated that the demand for pictures had increased far more rapidly than the supply. As a result, a great many producers had stepped in, and some of the films they had produced had been crude and unsympathetic. Thoughtless people, seeing these pictures, had condemned the entire industry in consequence.

Regarding the selection of subjects for children's pictures Mr. Hepworth did not think it a proper view that no pictures dealing with any kind of crime should ever be shown to young people. The works of Dickens dealt almost entirely with crime and its results, yet found a place unquestioned on the book-shelves of young people.

Read Stories of Pictures

It was incorrect to state that that which the child might with advantage read about he might not also see in pictures, provided that the subject was delicately and sincerely treated. The famous burglary in "Oliver Twist" was no more likely to incite a desire to burgle when its tragic consequences were shown on a picture than if they were merely described in print. Such incidents as the murder of Nancy could, it had been proved, be far more effectively shown by suggestion than if crudely and disgustingly portrayed in the full view of the picture.

Probably it would be realized that in the future that there was practically no subject which could not be effectively and properly dealt with by a producer who was sincere and earnest, and who had sufficient knowledge and control of his craft. It was not the subject which mattered, but the treatment.

J. G. Legge, director of education in Liverpool, who also gave evidence, declared that cinema houses did not realize how popular with children would be films giving pictures of the interior of factories, agricultural operations, and the life of a sailor. Boys had a perfect passion for watching men at work. In Mr. Legge's opinion, the educational value of motion pictures had been exaggerated, and he regarded its recreative aspects as the strongest justification for its existence.

Evidently England has at present a tendency to blame juvenile crime to the influence of motion pictures. With this opinion, the chairman of the grand jury for the West Riding, Mr. Sheepshanks, does not agree. He says:

> No doubt the picture palace is at times a stimulating cause, but my idea is that the seed of evil-doing generally finds receptive grounds in the minds of boys who have a tendency to lawlessness. While the picture palace may be the cause of crime in many cases, yet there is no doubt of its good influence in others. The stricter control of films, and the shutting out of children from picture palaces, are among the remedies suggested, but, although these might be effective, I should again like to point out the immense possibilities for good which are contained in the picture palaces.

CHURCHES SHOW FILMS

Unlicensed Competition of St. Louis Turnvereins and Societies Rouses Exhibitors to Action Against Unfair Practice.

St. Louis exhibitors are combating a neighborhood handicap in the form of direct competition thrust upon them by certain St. Louis churches, Turnvereins, societies and clubs, which are permitted to give performances without the payment of licenses, without the need of employing union musicians or operators, and without complying with the city ordinances.

Complaint was made at a regular weekly meeting of the Theater Managers' and Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of St. Louis. The practice was declared unfair. The complaint was placed in the hands of the legislative committee with instructions to take immediate action with the city authorities and make it plain that an injustice is being done the theaters.

The grievance committee reported that the operators' union, after a joint conference, had consented to withdraw for the present the demand for an increase in wages to certain classes of operators, owing to the critical situation facing the theaters as the result of adverse legislation now pending.

A large delegation of exhibitors and exchange managers recently went to Jefferson City, where they met a committee of Kansas City exhibitors and a delegation from St. Joseph, all bent on side-tracking the objectionable legislation which would mean added taxes on theaters. The ways and means committee of the legislature held a conference with the exhibitors and heard their protests against the pending censorship bill.

Speeches were made against the bill by Mr. Fay of the Arsenal Theater, Mr. Stone of the operators' union, Miss Sarah Edwards and Mr. Pasmezoglu of the Congress Theater. Permission was granted for Miss Mary Peck, chairman of the motion picture committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, to appear before the committee.

The following new members have been accepted: Active member, Marry M. Worack, Hudson Theater; associate members, R. D. Dickson, Dickson Film Company; E. A. Kaiser, manager moving picture department of the St. Louis Star; Richard Wilder, Seeburg Pipe Organ Company.

THEATERS RAISE PRICES

Ten-Cent Houses Go to Fifteen—Larger Houses Set Scale of Twenty-five to Fifty Cents and Hold Business

Several large Detroit theaters have increased their admission prices and still play to as many people as before. The Drury Lane, the Broadway Strand and the Majestic, one by one, have tried the experiment and found their public willing to pay the new prices.

With hardly an exception the theaters along Monroe street have increased the admission from ten cents to fifteen cents. For a few days in each case, a falling off in attendance followed, but gradually the patronage returned to approximately its former level.

The Majestic was the first to announce a change. The best seats were increased from twenty-five cents to fifty cents. Shortly afterward the Broadway Strand advertised reserved seats at fifty cents.

The Drury Lane is a theater seating only 500 people. A fifteen and twenty-five-cent scale has been put into effect with success. The higher-priced seats in the rear are distinguished by means of seat coverings.

Mrs. H. W. Smith, wife of Manager Smith of the Drury Lane, has been placed in charge of the Duplex Theater, which is well-known because of the unusual arrangement of the two auditoriums which give it the name Duplex. While a multiple-reel feature is showing on one side, late arrivals are seated in the other auditorium. where the short subjects are being run off.

Author Works with Director

"Sweetheart of the Doomed," an original photo drama by Monte M. Katterjohn, and the next Louise Glaum feature to be offered Triangle exhibitors, is said to be the master achievement to date of Director Reginald Barker. Though produced in less than four weeks, working hours of twice that time were actually expended in making the picture, night and day being utilized from the hour the first scene was made. Excepting Sunday nights, twenty-three days and nights were required for the making of the story.

Director Reginald Barker illustrating a tense spot in "Sweetheart of Doomed" for Louise Glaum.

This photoplay marks the first time at the Ince-Culver City studios that the author of the scenario was requested to work with the director on all sets and locations throughout the production period. This arrangement permitted star, director and scenario writer to discuss every scene before and after rehearsal, and the result is more than gratifying. The accompanying photograph shows Director Barker illustrating a tense situation before Miss Glaum. Katterjohn stands at the extreme left with the script in his hands.

Revise Kansas Censor Law

By Wm. Noble.

Pictures shown in Kansas are to be censored in Kansas City, Kansas, if the senate follows the lead of the house, which, on February 2, adopted in committee of the whole, a new censorship law. It provides for a board of three censors to be named by the governor. It is to have its headquarters at Kansas City, Kansas, and will charge $1 for each reel.

The headquarters of the censors now is in Topeka, and a fee of $2 is charged for each reel. The film exchanges were anxious to move the headquarters to Kansas City because of the saving of expense in having films censored. The new law removes the present appeal board and makes the appeals direct from the board to the courts, without any intermediary board.

Removal of the headquarters to Kansas City is one of the things the Kansas-side mothers' clubs have been working for in order that educational films might be brought into the state from the exchange in Kansas City, Missouri, and censored without the cost being prohibitive. The bill reduces the fees on educational films.

Exhibitor Uses Hotel Ballroom

H. S. Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer Theater at Spokane, Washington, set the whole city talking with a publicity feat which was unlike anything ever attempted in Spokane before. Preparatory to the first performance of the Pathe feature, "Patria," at the Clemmer, the fashionable set of Spokane were entertained at a pre-release showing of the first five chapters, the performance being given in the ballroom of the Davenport, the new $3,000,000 Spokane hotel. The hotel is the rendezvous of the city's fashionable folk. Many who never attend a theater were in the audience. Men and women of prominence were present in evening dress. The Clemmer Theater will show "Patria" three days a week during the series.

Freuler at Signal Studios

John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, last week visited the Signal Film Corporation's plant at Los Angeles. While at the studio he held a long conference with Director General J. P. McGowan and Miss Helen Holmes regarding plans for future productions, the outcome of which conference will be made public later.

A number of short stories of railroad life will be produced in one-reel on the Conquest Pictures program.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM FOR EXHIBITORS

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Four-Page Ad for Theater Opening

AN entire section of a New Orleans newspaper was reserved for the new Globe Theater in that city by Herman Fichtenberg, the proprietor, when the playhouse opened its doors recently. The Fichtenberg section comprised four pages of advertising space and appeared in a special edition of the New Orleans Item.

The Globe Theater was designed by an architect who received these instructions from Mr. Fichtenberg: "Build me a moving picture house that will excel anything that has been built in the South." The architect has done his best. The Globe is a monument to the motion picture business in the South. It was intended as such by its builder, who has been an exhibitor since films came into commercial use; before the time of five cent shows, he catered to the public's taste for amusement by conducting a penny arcade, which he calls the parent of moving picture shows.

The Fichtenberg section of the New Orleans Item is not only an advertisement of the Globe Theater. It is the story of Herman Fichtenberg also, and his ambition to be the builder of such a showhouse. The story is told of his boyhood days in Chicago, his early experience as a newsboy, his business failures as a young man, and his steady, successful climb toward the top of the exhibitors' ladder to fortune and fame, which began in the penny arcade.

Then is related the story of the theater itself in a manner unique and unusual. Architects, electrical contractors and electrical equipment firms, wood-workers, hardware dealers, lumber dealers, manufacturers of moving picture projectors and accessories, and all who contributed service or materials, have mention in separate paragraphs, each under a special headline. Each dealer or contractor has a display advertisement also, telling what supplies he furnished for the Globe, or what part he had in the erection of the building. They combine to let the public know that the Globe represents the best that each could give.

The ornamental exterior is dignified by its proportion and simplicity, obtained through the fact that the structure rises four stories over the sidewalk, allowing room for ornamentation without crowding. A flaming electric sign occupies the two-story space above the entrance and another huge sign on the roof extends across whole frontage. The interior decorations are of Caen-stone work, which closely follows the early type of Greek architecture as it has been introduced in several New York hotels.

The advertisement calls attention particularly to the comfort of the seats, which are of the air cushion type. The Minusa gold fiber screen is used. Hanging in long folds on either side and above the screen are draperies of blue velvet, which lend a pleasing contrast to the cream-colored plaster and ornamental stone-work.

W. H. Gueringer is general manager of the Globe. Gaston Dureau, Jr., publicity chief of the older Fichtenberg theaters, has taken charge of this work for the Globe. The Fichtenberg company is the biggest operating company in the South. Besides having several houses in New Orleans, among them the Alamo, Picto and Plaza, it owns the Isis and Bonita, at Pensacola, Florida; the Isis, at Houston, Texas; and the Alamo, Bijou Dream and the Dreamland, at Vicksburg, Mississippi.

For his opening bill Mr. Fichtenberg showed "The Common Law," with Clara Kimball Young. Several other Vitagraph features are announced for the near future. The second week's showing was "Idle Wives."

Mr. Fichtenberg is one of the stockholders of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. He is now conducting other important negotiations which will increase his interests.

Governor in Opening Ceremony

Everybody in Montana has heard about the theater owned by State Senator A. W. Miles. Ask them where it is located and they will tell you. Ask them where Senator Miles lives and they will tell you that probably his home is in Livingston, because his theater is there.

Ask the governor of Montana, too. He made a speech in Senator Miles' new Strand Theater on the opening night last August. That is the reason the playhouse has become known all over Montana.

Governor S. V. Stewart urged community pride in a laudable enterprise and said that he was pleased to represent the state in the opening of the finest theater in Montana. Mayor Bradford of Livingston also took part in the opening ceremony and complimented Senator Miles for his public spiritedness and faith in the future of Livingston in constructing a theater as capacious and expensive as the Strand.

Modestly seated over in the third row, center, is Herman Fichtenberg, of New Orleans, one of the prominent exhibitors of the South. The "box party" is at the recent races conducted by the Business Men's Racing Association of New Orleans. J. Warren Kerrigan, on tour through the South, is holding the trophy for the jockey winning the race dedicated to the screen star.

And with what result? Immediately the citizens of Livingston, the future patrons upon whom the theater must depend for support, began to look upon the Strand as a semi-public enterprise and felt a civic pride in it that only Governor Stewart's speech or Mayor Bradford's words could have created in just a brief moment.

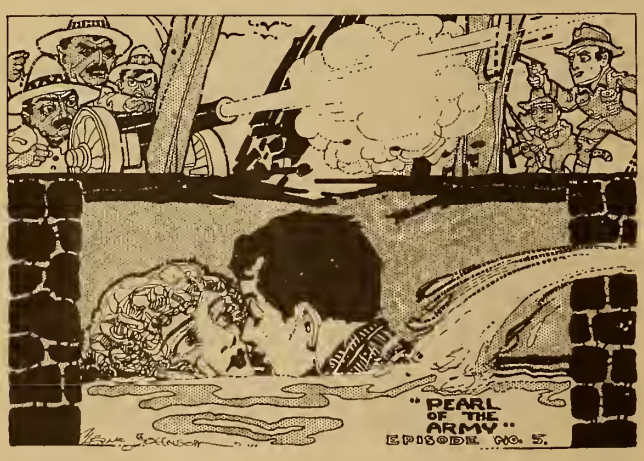
The Strand Theater has the good will of the public—not simply that portion of the public which regularly attends picture shows, but the big majority. Censorship troubles ought to be nil in Livingston. Public service corporations and industrial companies of all kinds capitalize this element and many of them estimate it as worth tens of thousands of dollars.

The proprietor of the Strand has set an example that many exhibitors in the future might take a hint from. All new theaters have "opening nights." The pitifully small attendance on some of these occasions leaves an ache in the exhibitor's inner self which he might have avoided if his opening had taken place under different conditions.

The quick popularity won by the Livingston showhouse was due to one thing. The public is not much interested simply in the opening of a new playhouse, but if the governor is to make a speech there, most of the people want to hear him if possible. By going to hear him, or other men of prominence, they acquire a live interest in the "opening." It is worth trying in other cities or towns.

The Strand Theater benefits from the tourist travel into Yellowstone national park. Livingston is the gateway to the park from the west. Adapted in size to the population of the town, the house has a seating capacity of 750. The features of this theater include pipe organ, two-manual and echo; automatic fire control booth, vanishing lights, and color scheme of pale blue and light pink shades. The ceiling is thirty-six feet above the floor. The ventilation system consists of two three-horse power motors, which force air in at two intakes. Five outlets are provided.

In the booth is a telephone connecting with all parts of the theater. The machinery consists of two of the latest model Simplex machines, motor driven, with transverter.



All you live show men will be interested to know that you can get mats for the above cut free by applying to the Pathe Exchange, 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York City. There is one of these drawings for each episode of "Pearl of the Army" and they make mighty good illustrations for your newspaper ads.

The booth is built of concrete six inches thick. The automatic fire control is so regulated that if a film caught fire, instantly a film fuse stretched immediately above the machine would burn. This fuse would release an automatic attachment and a No. 16 gauge iron door or shutter would close tightly. The machine booth then would be nothing but a furnace. The smoke or blaze would be fanned by air admitted from the outside through a chimney built from the booth. The booth would be in no more danger than a furnace in the home. There would be the draft to force the fire and smoke up the chimney.

The Strand is conducted under the direction of E. P. White, manager. A five-piece orchestra furnishes an attraction in addition to the Kimball echo organ. The Strand changes its programs daily, and is running Triangle, Fox, K.-E.-S.-E., Vitagraph, World, Chaplin Specials, Selznick and Artcraft productions. In addition, Manager White runs about two serials a week.

Exhibitor's Unique Chaplin Display

A unique lobby display advertising the Mutual-Chaplin comedy "The Pawnshop" was used by Mr. Gore, proprietor of the Liberty Theater, Los Angeles. Across the bottom of a large frame, conspicuously placed in the lobby of the theater, ran a banner reading "Charlie Chaplin's latest hit, 'The Pawnshop.'" On the right was a cardboard set of a pawnshop with its typical three balls, and at the left other stores, while at the back was a drop on which was painted scenery and running legends describing Charlie Chaplin in general and his actions in "The Pawnshop" in particular.

As the machinery is started from the door of the pawnshop emerges a miniature Charlie Chaplin with his familiar hat, cane and shoes, next a policeman hurries in pursuit and after him comes the proprietor. The three figures rush across the street and exit through the door of the store opposite. At the same time the drop is moving and displaying new announcements regarding the Mutual-Chaplin production. Soon the figures appear again from out the pawnshop.

Mr. Gore plans some similar display on each Chaplin comedy and with this combination of a Mutual-Chaplin and a clever lobby display the Liberty is not large enough to hold the crowds.

Higher Admission Price

The Picture Play News of Rochester, New York, has the following to say editorially about raising admission prices:

There is strong pressure among all the managers of the outside motion picture theaters to follow the lead of the downtown houses in charging 10 cents admittance every night in the week. Most of the houses have been charging that price on Saturday and Sunday, giving special features on these days, while one outside manager has been successfully running a 10-cent show for nearly a year. Several meetings of the managers have been held, when the subject has been informally discussed. It will not be surprising if the formal announcement follows in the near future.

There can be no complaint at this prospective increase in price. All the downtown houses have been charging 10 cents for some time. Many of the outside houses have been giving programmes almost as extensive and as expensive, while they have shorter hours and a smaller seating capacity. The cost of films has been increasing. Features have been added on all programmes. A much better entertainment is given than was presented when the 5-cent rate was fixed at the inception of the picture business.

Twenty-six companies in all are now busy at Universal City.

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

AN escalator is the newest thing in theater construction. Charles Steiner's $225,000 house, which is being built on East Houston street, New York, will boast of this innovation.

More than 2,000 persons signed petitions for Sunday pictures which the exhibitors of Tonawanda, New York, posted in the theater lobbies.

The Praha Theater at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has been purchased by Mrs. Anna Soucek and re-opened under the management of Frank Krejci.

The Princess Theater, Calgary, Alberta, keeps up the interest of the neighborhood by holding a "Baby Popularity Contest" once each week.

John C. Green, manager of the Temple Theater at Galt, Ontario, has taken the Ontario rights for the Kineth advertising clock and is introducing it into Canadian theaters.

Miss Bertha May Laforet, a high school girl of Somerville, Massachusetts, ran away from home lately because her mother forbid, for the first time, her going to picture shows.

Toronto, Ontario, is to have a new $200,000 picture house. The new theater will be erected at Victoria and Richmond streets, under a twenty-eight-year lease. The seating capacity will be 2,500.

O. F. Gould, manager of the Majestic Theater at Fort Worth, Texas, pleaded guilty in the county criminal court, February 1, to violation of the Sunday amusement law and was fined $20 and costs.

The manager of the Forsythe Theater, Atlanta, Georgia, has found the idea of selling season tickets to his house a most successful one. More than 2,700 of these tickets have been purchased since the beginning of the year.

The printing trade unions of the country have offered to co-operate with motion picture men in fighting adverse legislation. A protest has been filed already against the proposed New York State tax, now in course of investigation by the Wheeler Committee.

The Savoy Theater and the Alamo Theater Number Two, of Atlanta, Georgia, co-operated with the management of the Rogers chain of grocery stores in acting as host to twenty thousand people who attended performances as the guests of the grocery firm.

The proprietors of the Algona opera house, at Algona, Iowa, co-operate with a citizens' committee, known as the Better Films Club, which believes in teamwork. Eighteen members of the club join each week in selecting the programs for two performances.

Another Canadian exhibitors' organization, the Maritime Provinces Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, has joined forces with the Montreal association, which recently adopted the policy of refusing to make advance deposits to the film exchanges on features or serials.

The success of his first children's matinee for the boys and girls of Toronto, Ontario, caused Manager Roberts of the Regent Theater to institute weekly children's programs, which are given every Saturday morning. The Regent is one of Toronto's down-town houses.

Miss Mary Gray Peck, chairman of the motion picture committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, made a trip recently to Jefferson City, Missouri, where she appeared before a committee of the Missouri legislature to state the objections of the Federation to legal censorship.

Adele Howells, a special correspondent of the Morning Telegraph, New York, writes that exhibitors and exchanges of Java are suffering from the evil of film pirates and "junk" dealers who are flooding the country with second-hand films bought in England, Australia or America.

Excellent results came of a popularity contest conducted by Manager "Pop" Phillips of the Grand Theater, Kitchener, Ontario. The winner of the greatest number of votes handed in was entitled to appear in the leading role of a one-reel photoplay which he made arrangements to produce.

The Las Plumas Theater at Las Plumas, California, draws its audience from a town having a population of thirty-five persons. The management has had the cooperation of the Paramount company, which serves theaters in many western towns of one hundred, two hundred or five hundred population.

An automatic curtain saved the audience when the Ohio Theater, Alliance, Ohio, was endangered by a fire in the projection booth. Freed by the heat, the curtain shut off the booth from the audience and everyone marched out in safety. Four reels of motion pictures, valued at $6,000, were destroyed.

The Bridge and Edmondson Theaters, Baltimore, Maryland, devoted to films, are to be rebuilt into one large theater for motion picture exhibitions. Louis Schlichter is president of the Edmondson Amusement Company. There will be a frontage of 78 feet and the new theater will have a seating capacity of 1,000.

A $75,000 fire, the third in three years, destroyed the building occupied by the Colonial Theater, South Bend, Indiana. The loss to the Colonial is placed at $30,000 and insurance was carried only on a $6,000 pipe organ, recently installed. The theater was owned by Gabriel R. Summers and managed by Frank E. Chapman.

The Majestic Theater, Jackson, Mississippi, was totally destroyed by fire, recently, a valuable music library, a number of instruments and the twelve reels of "The Crisis" being also lost. Robert Kennington, the lessee, says he will have it rebuilt at once, larger and better than before. The theater was erected only two years ago.

To all children between five and ten years old, living in Edmonton, Alberta, whose fathers are fighting in the trenches across the sea, Manager John Hazza of the Empress Theater gave tickets for a special children's program, which was conducted under the auspices of the Edmonton Patriotic Society. About eight hundred tickets were distributed.

The women's clubs of Vancouver, British Columbia, have caused a taxation measure to be introduced before the city council, under which a tax of one cent would be levied on all theater tickets. The funds collected would be used for war needs and hospital relief. The provincial legislature will be asked to make the tax apply to all theaters in British Columbia.

The Third Street Theater at Easton, Pennsylvania, broke all its box office records with a week's showing of "Oliver Twist," by Lasky, as a result of letters mailed to the educators and teachers of the community by the proprietor, Charles F. Oldt. The interest aroused among the educators who were invited on two days was sufficient to bring crowds to the theater daily.

Charles F. Hunt, a foreman of Ingersoll Milling Machine Company, has purchased the Princess Theater, Rockford, Illinois, of John Morrison. The theater will be thoroughly remodeled and will carry high-grade pictures from the best film makers. The Princess will be under the direct management of Mr. Hunt's brother-in-law, Robert S. Hoppe, who had many years of experience in the motion picture business.

At an open meeting attended by several St. Louis exhibitors and exchange men, at which were present members and representatives of the Woman's Federated Clubs of St. Louis, Mother's Congress, Parent-Teacher's Association, St. Louis board of review and clergymen and social workers, a resolution was unanimously adopted protesting against the passage of the censorship measure which has been introduced in the Missouri legislature.

The Orpheum Theater of Oil City, Pennsylvania, benefited recently by a visit of "Snapshot Bill," a St. Louis photographer, who took about a thousand photographs of people on the streets of Oil City and co-operated with the theater in a "come and see yourself as others see you" performance. The pictures were flashed on the screen. The photographer is W. W. Metcalf.

With the authority of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood and at his request, E. Alexander Powell, the war correspondent, is revealing in his daily talks at New York's Rialto some astonishing facts as to the actual condition of unpreparedness in which this country finds itself. An excited Englishman called up Mr. Rothapfel Monday night and protested that Mr. Powell's revelations were "a disgrace" and that it was criminal to make them public.

Two large, up-town New York houses, the Olympia and the Adelphi, on February 1, began running their pictures three days. Beginning with a short run, they have gradually increased putting on one day at a time. Paramount pictures are run in both theaters. For the last few months each house has run three days on one Paramount picture and two days on the other. Since February 1, each house has run each picture three days.

W. S. Simeral, until recently associated with the Simeral Amusement Company of Clarksburg, West Virginia, as president of the company and manager of the Bijou Theater at Clarksburg, has accepted a position with the Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company of New York. He has established headquarters at 248 North Third street, Steubenville, Ohio. He will represent the company in territory including parts of five states.

Theodore Roosevelt, Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood and other notables were the guests of Manager Rothapfel at the Rialto Theater, New York, last week, after the last regular performance, to witness a private showing of "Womanhood," the sequel to the Vitagraph Company's "Battlecry of Peace." The story of the picture is by J. Stuart Blackton and Cyrus Townsend Brady. It is powerfully patriotic in character and most timely under the present conditions. Alice Joyce and Harry T. Morey play the principal roles.

Exhibitors and exchange men of Kansas City, Missouri, are planning a big motion picture ball, similar to those staged each year in Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York. At a meeting of the Kansas Screen Club, held recently, it was voted to stage the screen ball in Convention hall early in March. The list of stars to appear has not as yet been definitely settled upon, but will include several popular players. A contest also is being considered to offer opportunity for young women of Kansas City to go into pictures.

Fairy Tale Week has been placed on the calendar in St. Paul, Minnesota, and will be celebrated each year. The Sunshine Club of that city is responsible for the idea. The efforts of this club were made particularly successful this year by reason of the co-operation they received from the civic associations, school teachers and the new Princess Theater which, during the celebration, exhibited the Famous Players' production of "Snow White" from the fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm.

They tossed a coin to see which exchange manager would deliver the film on a contract which both claimed. They were two rival state rights men. The Wigwam Theater at Muskogee, Oklahoma, had booked the picture. It was a picture of the Adam and Eve variety. Several cities have barred the film and it has had much notoriety as a result. The rivalry between the state rights men had reached its height. The date arrived for the performance and both salesmen arrived on the ground. The coin fell a "head." L. Santikos, who is a Greek, thereby was acclaimed victor and his film was put on.

Special matinees for school children were conducted by the West End Theater in Chicago on two days recently when the Marguerite Clark feature, "Snow White," comprised the program. Manager Edward Trinz personally visited the principals of two public schools, telling them about the film version of the fairy tale and inviting them to attend. The principals and fifty teachers availed themselves of the complimentary tickets provided. Eighteen hundred school children attended the two matinees.

William Sievers, a St. Louis, Missouri, exhibitor, has been packing crowds into his theater during his run of "The Crisis," the Selig production, and has gained an unusual amount of publicity for the feature in the newspapers. "Old Veterans," "Those Who Remember Civil War Days in St. Louis," and "Men Who Knew Lincoln," have been utilizing the columns of the St. Louis newspapers in arguments pro and con concerning details in the picture. Sam D. Drane as Abraham Lincoln and George Fawcett as Judge Silas Whipple score in the press notices.

J. A. McNear, Jr., manager of the Mystic Theater, at Petaluma, California, keeps the class of productions on his program constantly before the public by the continued use of each producing company's trade mark in his printed programs. A small zinc etching of the proper trade mark is placed at the beginning of each day's announcement. The public learns to watch for the producer's name and associate it with the Mystic Theater. The program folder is simple in most respects and not over-crowded with reading matter, showing that folders may be attractive without being expensive.

The public buys season tickets to grand opera, lyceum entertainments and chautauquas. Why not moving pictures also? The Forsyth Theater, of Atlanta, Georgia, ran a quarter-page advertisement recently in the Atlanta daily papers, announcing a sale of season tickets to the weekly performances of "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new serial. More than 2,700 season tickets, good for fifteen episodes, were sold the first three days. C. W. Sawin, manager of the Atlanta branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., co-operated with the management of the Forsyth in making the plan a success.

Stock of the Paris Theater Corporation, Denver, Colorado, has been purchased by S. L. Baxter, W. H. Swanson and H. T. Nolan and the Paris Theater is to be converted into a high class picture house, with admission prices ranging from ten cents to a dollar, depending on the quality of the production shown. An orchestra of from twenty to thirty pieces will be engaged. Contracts have been made for appearance on the screen of such artists as William Farnum, Theda Bara and Charley Chaplin. "The Birth of a Nation," "The Garden of Allah," "Daughter of the Gods," and other equally famous productions will be shown.

Fireproof theater construction has proven itself all it was meant to be in two fires of the last month. In the Nixon Theater at Erie, Pennsylvania, a cloud of smoke burst over the audience when a film in the operating room caught fire. August Marlow, the operator, threw his coat over the flames and locked the operating booth. One hundred persons were in the house. They rose and went out quietly. The Ohio Theater of Alliance, Ohio, experienced a similar mishap. The automatic fire shutters proved an effective safeguard. The film in the machine and three other reels were destroyed by fire with a loss of $600, while about $50 damage was done to the machine and booth.

A two-year-old baby boy chanced to be in the audience at a performance of "Inspiration" in a theater at Ossining, New York. The picture portrays a sculptor moulding the form of a woman in clay, with Audrey Munson posing as his model. The censorship committee of a local women's organization, the Civic League, bore down upon the theater and discovered the two-year-old spectator. The women filed a complaint against Louis Rosenberg, manager of the theater, basing their charge on the fact that the child was allowed to see the picture. Manager Rosenberg testified that one member of the League, Dr. Anna Voorhis, left the theater before the film was finished and that she saw only the model's legs up to the knees.

The Isis Theater, Lynchburg, Virginia, one of the finest exclusive photoplay houses in the state, controlled during the past year by Jake Wells, will shortly pass into the hands of Charles M. Casey, owner of the Belvedere Theater of that city. The Isis closed February 3 for one week and reopened February 12 under the personal management of Guy Barrett who has been in charge of the Belvedere Theater for Casey for the past two years. Mr. Casey proposes to convert the house into a high-class five cent theater and switch his regular program to his new stand, offering Metro, Paramount, World and Greater Vitagraph productions, with the special Mary Pickford and Clara Kimball Young features, on the plan of daily change.

An especially important transaction in theatrical and real estate circles in Philadelphia was consummated when Alexander R. Boyd, manager of the Arcadia Theater on Chestnut street, below Sixteenth, became the owner also of the Family Theater, located on Market street, below Thirteenth. Mr. Boyd has won esteem in the eyes of the amusement lovers of this city. He succeeded in making the Arcadia Theater one of the handsomest for photoplay presentations of its size in the United States and the character of the entertainment furnished has attracted society leaders of Philadelphia in large numbers. The Family Theater has for some time been one of the most successful of the motion picture houses on Market Street. It is Mr. Boyd's intention to expend $50,000 more in improvements, to make the house still more popular in every form.

George Cohan—spelled with an "a"—got in the habit years ago of doing things to startle the metropolitan public. George Cohen—spelled with an "e"—who is manager of the Good Theater at Beacon, New York, has the same habit, although he lacks a "Great White Way" upon which to carry on his operations. Manager Cohen has demonstrated that he can stay right in his own home town of Beacon and still do things in a metropolitan way. Therefore he announced a private showing of "Patria" as a starter for the opening of the Pathe serial at the Good Theater and invited members of the press, the mayor and other city officials and socially prominent men and women of the vicinity. He stimulated local pride to its heights by making the most of the traditions and historical lore of the vicinity, which form a part of the story of "Patria." All of which counts up in the box-office totals.

Allen J. Holubar is directing and playing the featured lead in "The Reward of His Government," a five-reel military drama, at Universal City. Dorothy Davenport and Joseph Girard are his principal supporting players.

ON THE WAY MUTUALS

Mary Miles Minter Plays Role of Kindly Companion to Old Lady in "The Gentle Intruder," a Coming Release.

Mutual releases the sixth of the Mary Miles Minter features, February 19. This picture, in five reels, is entitled "The Gentle Intruder." It will be a fit companion piece to the preceding pictures in which the young American star has appeared, and affords her a wide opportunity in a difficult role.

A bit of a girl in a great big room—Mary Miles Mutual Minter in her newest American play, "The Gentle Intruder."

In "The Gentle Intruder" Mary Miles Minter—as Sylvia—is the companion of an elderly woman in the home of the lawyer who has defrauded the girl of her fortune. Her presence is unwelcome to the lawyer's family, but the influence of the gentle girl is soon felt. Realizing that the son of the family is becoming very dissipated through the social whirl in which he lives Sylvia tries to hold him to his better self. His mother, however, misjudges the girl's actions and denouncing her as a designing adventuress.

Shorty Falls in Love

The sixth of the "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" series, "Shorty Promotes His Love Affair," is dated for release February 19 also. Shorty gets mixed up with a gang of counterfeiters. He is arrested for "shoving the queer" and has a very difficult time persuading the guardians of the law that he was trying to break up the gang and not assist them.

In "Misjudged," the ninth of the Mutual-Niagara series, "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters," Grace Calvert, a reporter for the Mercury, the role played by Helen Greene, finds herself in a dilemma when the editor, not knowing she is married, professes his love for her just at the time she has discovered that her artist husband is a murderer.

The American company contributes two short dramas, "Calamity Anne's New Job," featuring Louise Lester, released February 23, and "Mouth-Organ Jack," in which J. Warren Kerrigan is starred, ready February 24.

From the Horsley Studios comes a Cub comedy, "Jerry's Brilliant Scheme," scheduled for February 22. Vogue offers "The Butcher's Nightmare," on February 25, in which Ben Turpin poses as the proprietor of a futuristic butcher shop where goat meat is sold as lamb chops.

Monte Carlo in "Tours" Film

"Mutual Tours Around the World," Number 16, reaches the screen February 20. It has scenes of Old Heidelberg, Germany, the Scottish Highlands, Monaco, the World's Smallest Principality, showing scenes at Monte Carlo and the neighboring watering place at Mentone, France.

The Mutual weekly comes on February 21. On this date also is released "See America First," Number 76, showing scenes around Vicksburg, Mississippi, and the National Military Cemetery. On the same reel is one of the Gaumont Kartoon Komics, "Polly's Day at Home," dealing with the escapades of a parrot.

Reel Life No. 43, scheduled for February 25, shows four topics, "Dainty Perfumes," "Teaching Children to Swim," "Logging in Louisiana" and "Making Bottles at Home."

FACING WAR PROBLEM

Shipment of Films by Parcel Post Still Possible if War Comes and Causes Suspension of Shipments by Express

With the spectre of war hovering over the United States, theatermen all over the country are interested in the steps taken by the National Association of the Motion Picture industry to insure delivery of films from producer to exchange, and from exchange to exhibitor, in the event that the government is obliged to take over the operation of the railways, or interrupt express service through the necessity of commandeering railway equipment. The ruling of the postoffice officials admitting films to the mails as parcel post is the thing that has put to rest the fears of the industry.

At a meeting in New York the transportation committee of the National Association, plans were discussed for delivering films locally by motor cars working for all the exchanges. The use of the parcel post for delivery from producers to exchanges was declared essential, as the mails would be the only shipments which could get through in case of a tie-up of the railway equipment with war orders and troops.

In a letter to the postoffice department the committee gave consideration to the natural limitations of the parcel post as to guaranteed time deliveries, charges collect, etc. The committee stated that the chief difficulty, after the time element was removed, was that the shipments are limited to twenty pounds except within 150 miles of the shipping point, where fifty pounds are taken.

A superb production of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped" has just been completed at the Edison studios for the Conquest Pictures brand.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTHUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONOON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 6411 HOLLYWOOD BLVD., OON MEANEY, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00

Canada - -	Per year $4.00
Foreign - -	Per year 5.00
Single copy - - - -	.15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY. Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.
If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 24, 1917 Number 8

Brains in the Picture Business

A CERTAIN producer of prominence, testifying in the matter of taxation before a legislative committee, declared that the making of money by picture production required less brains than any other business. He did not, as the newspaper headlines claimed, say positively that brains were not needed at all, but he intimated pretty strongly that their high development was the least important of producer attributes.

It is perhaps fortunate that the term "brains" is so vague. Nobody knows exactly what you mean when you say a man has, or hasn't, brains. And close observers of the human race are about ready to deny that the thing ordinarily called brains has very much to do with the faculty of making money. College professors, engineers of all kinds, are good examples of the highest degree of intellectual development without money-making ability. Any member of industrial and mercantile occupations prove the opposite—that it is possible to make a great deal of money without a great deal of intellect.

The charge has frequently been brought against picture producing companies that they were not efficient institutions. It has seemed to those who watched them that a great deal of waste was manifest—waste of time, material and opportunity. Generally the less familiar the observer was with the business, the more waste was apparent to his eyes.

Waste, of course, is always a serious charge in business—and it grows more so with the modern cry for efficiency. Yet even waste is only relative. The packing industry today is a marvel of hundred per cent utility; but only a few years ago nothing came from the packing houses but meat, and the tremendously valuable by-products were thrown away. A hundred industries right now are discarding waste products worth millions to the genius who discovers how to extract them.

Industrial history shows that in every case the elimination of waste and the development of high efficiency, those achievements that carry the credit of "brains" to their executives, come only when circumstances force them. When fierce competition, close regulation by the authorities, and increasing prices of raw material cut away the profits, efficiency becomes a matter of life and death—the very mainspring of business existence. Then it is that desperate executives come to the necessity of squeezing their profits out of hitherto unconsidered places. And then it is, when they have succeeded in the effort, that we give them "brains." Commercial adversity, and not prosperity, brings out the brilliant flashes of executive intellect.

Picture production so far has not descended to the needle point niceties of manufacturing efficiency because it has not had to. It has been able to enjoy the freedom of a large disregard for waste. It has succeeded in subordinating industry to art—an achievement really greater than picking profits out of scrap piles.

But the days of big profits in picture making are over. Already the hard-working producers are beginning to resent the intimation that their business ever was very profitable. Soon, like other human occupations, it will face the inexorable laws of business, and systema-tization and efficiency will take their places as they have in the less romantic industries. Then we will have concrete evidence that the picture business needs—and has—as much "brains" in its constitution as any other business.

On Being a Public Institution

"WHY, go right after the women and the clubs and schools in your neighborhood and offer to co-operate with them and make them think you are taking their advice. That's the way to get a stand in, and then you won't have much censor trouble either."

That was the informal but emphatic manner in which a Chicago exhibitor expressed his ideas of co-operation with his community. And more and more exhibitors every day, if they have keen business eyesight, are following some form of the procedure suggested above.

Every picture house should strike the roots of its influence deep down into the life of its community.

Give every patron a sense of ownership in your theater. Make him think he is helping run it. Make it HIS theater; make the neighborhood speak of your house as "our theater" with the same respect and pride with which a library or school is mentioned.

We admit that this is easier to advise than to accomplish. But the fact remains that many at-the-peak-of-the-times exhibitors are now doing that very thing. They are sending their programs—particularly when there is a subject of educational interest to be presented—to the schools. They are consulting with superintendents of schools, in small towns, and with principals and teachers of grade schools in the cities. They are interesting women's and parent-teachers' clubs in the same manner.

One exhibitor who can detect the direction of the breezes of public opinion advertised for the help of his community in making his house of the greatest possible service to the neighborhood. He didn't get much practical aid but it started public confidence his way and laid the foundation for the hearty co-operation which now exists between his house and the various sources of influence with which he later put himself in contact.

And here's another mighty good example of an exhibitor who is building his house into a public institution as reliable as the post office and so solid that a competitor could not pry him loose with free grand opera.

This man secures all the possible information concerning the features he is going to run and lays it before the ministers, the mayor, the superintendent of schools and other influential persons. Then he prints in the two local papers the endorsements of some of these people. He also insists that the endorsers be his guests at the first showings of the pictures to show them that their faith in him and the information with which he has supplied them has not been misplaced. It is now getting so that these men will endorse any picture the exhibitor recommends to them simply on his say-so. This method has stilled all complaints, for even when a poor or objectionable picture gets into his house, patrons have come to realize that nobody regrets it more than does the showman himself, not mainly because of the effect on the metal in the cash box but because it injures the fabric of the public confidence he has so carefully woven.

Ask the advice of mothers and fathers. Issue a special invitation to a group of mothers to come, free, to some picture of especial merit for children. Tell them that you are going to endeavor to secure more just such films. Get their suggestions, whether you follow them or not. Use your good judgment about that. If anyone comes back at you for not carrying out his or her advice you can always find a satisfactory explanation in the technicalities of securing bookings or the difficulty of securing accurate information about pictures in advance.

Start now to plant some roots in the community life of your locality. Strike them in deep among the families, the clubs, the schools and the churches. And water them well with the juice of good judgment and absolute reliability. And in the course of time your business will take on the solidity of an oak, able to withstand the winds of perversity and shedding its green leaves into your safe.

"Sounds fine," you say—"on paper."

At any rate, the wisest exhibitors are working along that line, and we're betting on them.

Just a vague idea of some of the striking spots in the final episode of "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's adventure serial, which is attracting much attention.

"Secret Kingdom" at National Capital

"The Secret Kingdom," Greater Vitagraph's new adventure serial, is receiving great attention in Washington, D. C., both from exhibitors and the general public. The Washington Post, which started publication on February 8 of Louis Joseph Vance's inimitable stories of "The Secret Kingdom," reports unusual interest in these novelettes.

G. F. Lenehan, manager of the Washington exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has reported a large number of bookings on the new serial throughout his territory. Baltimore exhibitors have taken to it very well, and Charles Richman, Dorothy Kelly, Arline Pretty, Joseph Kilgour, and the other Vitagraph players in "The Secret Kingdom" have made many friends in that territory.

South of Washington, throughout Virginia and North Carolina, "The Secret Kingdom" is establishing new records on prices and length of run for serials released to date.

What is believed to be the largest order ever placed by a motion picture theater for posters on any serial released to date was entered last week by the Grand Opera House, of Syracuse, N. Y., with F. F. Hartich, manager of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchange in that city.

One hundred three-sheets, 250 one-sheets, 100 six-sheets, and huge quantities of heralds, etc., were ordered for the first episode of "The Secret Kingdom" which begins its run at the Grand Opera House this week.

A standing order for a similar quantity of paper was entered for the remaining episodes of the serial. The manager of the Grand Opera House informed Manager Hartich that he believed thoroughly in the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. policy of generous advertising to the public.

25,000 See "The Secret Kingdom"

Newspaper coupons cut from The Chicago American brought 25,000 Chicago people to see a public performance of the opening two episodes of Vitagraph's new serial, "The Secret Kingdom." The gates of Riverview Amusement Park, where the exhibition took place, were opened wide to the surging thousands.

The performance was a sequel to a record-breaking exhibition of the picture the previous week in another section of the city. Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Chicago branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., supervised both events.

"All Chicago is talking about my stunt," declares Manager Abel.

He states that one hundred and forty theaters in the city have already started showing the serial.

In addition to showing the first two episodes of the serial, Manager Abel showed the prologue of "The Girl Philippa," which opened at the Ziegfeld Theater, Chicago, for a run on February 4.

"Fortune Photoplays" New Series

"Fortune Photoplays" is to be the title of the new series of four reel features now being produced from the Street and Smith stories. This series as announced last week will be based on the pick of the thousands of stories that have appeared and will appear in the Street and Smith group of popular fiction magazines. The title has a peculiar significance from two standpoints—first, in typifying the extreme good fortune of the General Film Company in securing from a score of competitors the exclusive motion picture rights to these stories, and, second, from the exhibitors' standpoint, who will be fortunate in being able to exhibit such splendid money-getters and should reap a fortune from the patronage they will attract since he will have a ready-made audience of the millions of readers of the Street and Smith magazines who will want to see their favorite stories on the screen.

In selecting the four reel length instead of the usual five, Street and Smith seem to have been fortunate enough to satisfy public taste.

"Fortune Photoplays" will be four reel dramas. They will be based on stories from such magazines as Ainslee's, Popular, Smith's, People's, Detective Stories, Topnotch and Picture Play Magazine. These publications publish more fiction annually than all other magazines combined. They reach 15,000,000 readers.

The first release, to be on or about March 2, will be based on "The Inspirations of Harry Larabee," by Howard Fielding. This story is the recognized masterpiece of this greatest of all short story writers. It has enough action to make several usual length features.

General Film has found the winning combination—"Big stories told plainly with an eye to good acting." The four reel length limit allows no room for "padded footage."

TITLES SELL ADMISSIONS

William A. Brady Changes Film Name of "Frou Frou" to "The Hungry Heart"—Says Poor Selection Means Small Audiences

The difference between a good title and a bad one, according to William A. Brady, director-general of the World Film Corporation, is in the number of admissions which each will sell. A title easily understood by all who see it is more desirable, he believes, than one which has a meaning which might be hidden from some persons.

In connection with the change in title of the World Brady-made picture, "The Hungry Heart," which was substituted for "Frou-Frou," the name under which the play was originally known, Mr. Brady offers some practical and interesting comments. Alice Brady stars in "The Hungry Heart." When the name of the play was changed, the reviewers set to speculating. Mr. Brady answers them as follows:

I put titles on pictures to sell them. If you select a name that not everybody understands and all cannot pronounce, you are placing your picture under just that much of a handicap. When "Frou Frou" was played as a drama upon the speaking stage numbers of persons called it "Frow Frow" and I do not suppose very many knew the significance of the name.

But it is a sure thing that everybody of ordinary intelligence will get a suggestion from "The Hungry Heart," which carries a direct meaning in plain, homely words.

It is a dangerous thing to tag a picture, or a spoken play, with a name in a foreign tongue or one that is not universally familiar. I recall that the late Augustin Daly produced a drama which he called "Pique," and what the public did with that title was almost beyond belief.

People called it "Pike," "Pick-wee," "Pee-Kay," and almost everything that can be imagined. The subtle meaning of the word in association with the story did not occur to them at all, and Mr. Daly's drama was greatly injured in consequence.

When I switch the titles of World pictures, as I frequently do, the idea is to provide something that will enter every mind and stick there. Take the instance of "The Parasites," which has been changed to "A Square Deal."

The definition of the word parasite might be difficult to some persons—those for instance who had not been long in this country.

Beecroft Buys Foreign Rights

Chester Beecroft announces from his office at 71 West Twenty-third street, New York, that he has purchased all foreign rights to two pretentious productions: "Pardners" and "Where Love Is" (both made by the Edison Company), at a cost of $65,000.

"Pardners" is by Rex Beach, author of some of the greatest film successes such as "The Barrier," "The Spoilers," etc., and features Charlotte Walker.

"Where Love Is," was written by Wm. J. Locke, the eminent English author, best known in this country perhaps through his "Septimus" and "The Beloved Vagabond," works which have achieved world wide popularity. This picture features Ann Murdock, the well-known dramatic star who is regarded as one of the greatest screen actresses disclosed in the last year.

That Mr. Beecroft's judgment of the quality and value of these productions was correct is evidenced by the fact that the American rights were immediately snapped up by the Mutual Film Corporation, and are now being advertised in a manner so elaborate and extensive as to bear ample testimony to the unusual merit of the productions. Mr. Beecroft announces that he has already sold both "Pardners" and "Where Love Is," as well as "The Running Fight," a former Paramount release of which he controls the foreign rights, to the United Kingdom and India, and is being kept busy by the buyers for other foreign territories.

Max Linder Release Date

"Max Comes Across," Max Linder's first Essanay comedy, had its general release February 26. The preliminary blasts of a whirlwind campaign of advertising, which is to be kept up during the run of the Linder-Essanay series, preceded the noted European comedian's initial American-made comedy.

Trade showings of "Max Comes Across" were held at the New York roof and in the branch offices of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service throughout the country. This organization is to handle all the Linder comedies. Thousands of exhibitors saw the comedy and, according to reports from the K. E. S. E. headquarters were more than pleased with its prospects. The film is booking strong.

Meanwhile Max Linder is in the midst of the production of his second comedy, "Max Wants a Divorce." The story has to do with Max's flirtatious disposition and is a corker.

Everton Supports Marjorie Rambeau

Paul Everton, one of Broadway's best-known "heavy" men and character actors, has been engaged by Frank Powell for a prominent part in the support of Marjorie Rambeau in "Motherhood," the second of the series of Marjorie Rambeau pictures now being made by the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, to be distributed through Mutual.

Mr. Everton's artistic activities have been many and varied, and he has appeared prominently and frequently in both the spoken and silent drama. In the world where the camera is king Mr. Everton has made a name for himself through his work in Metro and Pathe productions.

In "Motherhood" he will play opposite Miss Rambeau in a role for which he is admirably adapted.

Injunction Against Fairbanks

Following the announcement that Douglas Fairbanks will make pictures for Artcraft comes the report from New York newspapers that the Majestic company, with which Mr. Fairbanks was previously allied, will seek an injunction preventing the star from appearing in pictures for any other concern.

The fact that D. W. Griffith had withdrawn as director for the Majestic company made Mr. Fairbanks' contract with that company void, the actor declared. Triangle and the Majestic company feel different about the matter and the affair is in the hands of counsel, Walter N. Seligsberg.

Compiles Canadian Directory

Coupons are being circulated in the official publication of the Canadian Universal Film Company, of Toronto, for the purpose of obtaining the names of all persons and firms interested in the picture business in the Dominion. A directory will be compiled in this manner.

Goldwyn Wants Exhibitors' Ideas

SEEKS THEIR OPINIONS, THROUGH MOTOGRAPHY, ON MARY GARDEN PLAYS

THROUGH MOTOGRAPHY, the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation wants to learn the ideas of exhibitors in towns and cities of every size upon the plays or class of plays which the exhibitor considers best adapted to production as a vehicle for the film appearances of Mary Garden, famed grand opera singer, who will shortly begin her engagement with Goldwyn.

Goldwyn and the editor of MOTOGRAPHY join in inviting each exhibitor among its readers to send his suggestions, with answers to the questions below, to the editor of MOTOGRAPHY, who is co-operating in this team-work between exhibitor and producer. Mail answers to MOTOGRAPHY, Monadnock building, Chicago.

Exhibitors' Knowledge an Aid

Now that Mary Garden is about to have her dramatic personality projected upon motion picture screens throughout the world, her managers have determined to invite, besides the exhibitors, motion picture audiences also, to have a voice in the selection of her photoplay productions. Owing to the exhibitor's knowledge of the public tastes, however, Goldwyn attaches considerable weight to his impressions and ideas. Many showmen like to suggest stories to producers and this is a good opportunity.

Mary Garden, celebrated grand opera star, with Goldwyn.

Opera lovers have spent millions of dollars for tickets and season rentals for the privilege of hearing and seeing Miss Garden in "Thais," in "Salome," in "Louise," in "The Juggler of Notre Dame." She is as versatile and electric as Roosevelt; as gentle and repressed as Maude Adams, and as winsome. Goldwyn says to exhibitors and their audiences:

It is desirable that you write about your choice of a play for Miss Garden quickly, as she will be departing for Paris in a few weeks and while there she will select her costumes for whatever production the majority of you decide upon.

Personal Opinion and Ideas Sought

Shall this production be a gigantic picture presentation of "Salome," the opera that made ticket seekers stand in lines two city blocks long in the bitter cold?

Shall it be "Thais," a story known to hundreds of thousands?

Would you prefer that she appear for her screen debut in "The Juggler of Notre Dame," a pathetic and wonderful story calling for a splendid display of versatility?

If you have still other plays in mind, there will be no way for the Goldwyn officers to divine your thoughts unless you write to them or to Miss Garden herself.

This is the first time in the history of screen production that exhibitors and public, which ultimately is to see and sit in judgment on a picture, have been asked to pick the picture in which a great artist is to appear. The final determination of her first Goldwyn play rests with the majority vote of photoplay audiences.

Maxine Elliott Writes a Book

Maxine Elliott, the world-famous beauty who is now entering motion pictures for Goldwyn, is busily completing her first important literary work, which will embody her reminiscences and comments upon notables of two continents. This volume will receive publication in the late summer or fall of the present year.

Such a story as Miss Elliott is telling is certain to receive the attention of thousands of Americans who will be her audience before the screen. In the long and sleepless nights during her war relief work in Flanders, Miss Elliott began to arrange the fabric of her material.

Cast for Mae Marsh Play Selected

Goldwyn Pictures has assembled a cast of capable players to support Mae Marsh in the first picture she is making for her new employers.

Miss Marsh and her sister, Marguerite Marsh, are also sisters in their picture roles. George Cooper is playing the part of their screen brother.

Vernon Steele, the new leading man playing opposite Mae Marsh in her first Goldwyn picture, now in the making, is not merely a handsome young actor selected for his screen values, but an experienced actor in the fields of the spoken drama. He played Romeo opposite Phyllis Neilson Terry as Juliet in London, and also Orlando in "As You Like It." Then he played in Pinero's "Mind the Paint Girl."

Mae Marsh will be the honor guest of the Theater Assembly at their monthly luncheon at the Hotel Astor, New York, February 23. Marguerite Marsh and Director Ralph W. Ince will be Miss Marsh's guests at the Assembly luncheon. This will be Mae Marsh's first personal appearance before a New York audience since her entry into pictures with David Wark Griffith.

Goldwyn Partner Produces Play

Arthur Hopkins, partner in and producer for Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, presented for the first time to the American public this week a new play, "A Successful Calamity," starring William Gillette. The New York newspapers united in their approval of the new production and had much to say in behalf of the producer himself.

The comments of the metropolitan newspapers that are usually most frugal in their praise of producers, encourages the belief of Samuel Goldfish, Edgar and Archibald Selwyn and their allies, that the older and established dramatic organizations will bring with them into pictures a great deal of knowledge and many benefits which film production has sorely needed.

The Goldwyn star, Mae Marsh, in triplicate, the settings on either side being in her home.

TWO SELZNICKS A MONTH

February, March and April Will Bring Notable Productions—Director Herbert Brenon Returns to Studio Activity

With the recovery of Herbert Brenon from the illness which incapacitated him for the past five weeks, activities in the Selznick-Picture studios resumed their normal aspect. Mr. Brenon, whose first Selznick offering was Nazimova in "War Brides," was taken suddenly ill with typhoid fever in Wilmington, Delaware, and for a time was not expected to recover.

Mr. Brenon is now completing the Selznick-Picture, "The Eternal Sin," starring Florence Reed. This production was nearly completed at the time of the producer's illness so only a few days' studio work remains.

Meanwhile the other three Selznick-Pictures stars are rapidly completing their new productions.

Clara Kimball Young, under the direction of Albert Capellani, is completing the adaptation of Eugene Walter's drama, "The Easiest Way." Her third picture under the Selznick banner, "The Price She Paid," founded on the novel of the same name by the illustrious David Graham Phillips, has been cut and assembled by its director, Charles Giblyn, and is now ready for release. Messrs. Jones, Linick and Schaeffer of Chicago immediately closed with Mr. Selznick to run "The Price She Paid" at the Studebaker Theater in Chicago. Simultaneously with this pre-release showing the picture will be played in New York at a Broadway house.

The Norma Talmadge company, under the direction of Julius Steger, is in the South filming the exteriors of her next Selznick production.

Robert Warwick, whose first appearance as a Selznick-Picture star will be made in all the Marcus Loew houses next week in the adaptation of "The Argyle Case," is progressing famously under the direction of Leonce Perret in the production of E. Phillips Oppenheim's unusual and stirring novel, "The Court of St. Simon." "The Argyle Case" will be reviewed elsewhere in MOTOGRAPHY.

With "The Argyle Case" and "The Price She Paid" as February releases; "The Eternal Sin" and "The Easiest Way" for March and the new Talmadge and Robert Warwick Productions for April, Mr. Selznick feels that the first six months' output of Selznick-Pictures on the open market will firmly establish the triumphant success of his policy both with the exhibitor at large and the picture-going public.

Frisco Sees "Civilization"

It has taken seven months for the Ince spectacle "Civilization" to reach San Francisco although New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, have already seen it. Perhaps the reception accorded the picture by the Pacific coast metropolis outdoes all others in enthusiasm. The spectacle was produced on February 5 at the Alcazar Theater. Sol. Lesser, who has the local rights, wired J. Parker Read, Jr., general manager of the Harper Film Corporation as follows:

Your overwhelming and wonderful "Civilization" opened at the Alcazar to-night, at twenty-five, fifty and seventy-five-cent prices, to an enthusiastic audience. House packed from top to bottom. Hundreds turned away unable to gain admission.

Lucille Younge at American

Lucille Younge is the latest arrival at the studio of the American Film Company at Santa Barbara. Miss Younge has been engaged for the feminine heavy role in the next William Russell production, "High Play."

Miss Younge's last appearance on the screen was in the character of Mary Magdalene in "Intolerance."

First Aid to Theater Men

PRACTICAL HELP ON THE PROBLEMS OF RUNNING A PICTURE HOUSE

HERE is a tip.

An exchange man stated to MOTOGRAPHY last week that there are some exhibitors that he has to watch "like a cat does a mouse," because he couldn't trust them and that this class of exhibitor seems to have no sense of business responsibility. And he told how all his best service and his favors go to the other class of show men—those who are absolutely businesslike in their dealings, who are absolutely honest and who do their share in co-operation to make things go smoothly.

There's a big hint in that statement.

It may indicate the reason for the complaints some exhibitors continually make in regard to the service an exchange gives them or the way exchanges in general treat them. The exchange manager mentioned above seemed to indicate without realizing it that he is the cat and the exhibitor the mouse. And we all know what happens to the mice that cats get hold of.

But his statement deserves consideration. If you expect the best that an exchange can give you in every way, do business upon a strictly businesslike and co-operative basis. Be absolutely honest. When an exchange finds it can depend on you to do your part, and perhaps more in time of need, if the exchange is what it should be, you are going to get the best service that the film distributors can produce.

Dressing Up the "Stage"

129—I have just bought a theater that has been running for two years, and doing good business. But it was a remodeled building and the stage setting is poor. There is nothing around the screen to make it attractive. I can't afford a great deal of expense. How is the best way to go at it to fix it up?

It is, of course, a good thing that you want to improve the looks of your "stage setting" and it probably means that you will gradually improve the whole house wherever you can, and that in turn ought to mean that you will be able to hold your patronage and gain new ones all the time.

But be very careful how you put things "around the screen to make it attractive." There have been a lot of mistakes made in decorating around the "sheet." Your screen and the setting around it is very seldom, probably, seen in a bright light. Therefore any money you spend there is likely to be wasted, unless it is of a character to improve the front of the house in a general way. In other words, there should be no detailed decoration immediately about the screen because it is lost in the dark, and should be. The screen must be kept the center of interest in your theater. That means that it must be, of course, the brightest spot and there should be nothing to take the eye away from it.

I know one house where patrons are considerably inconvenienced by the glare of a red-faced clock placed near the screen. The manager thought he was giving his patrons a service and he was, but he did it in the wrong way.

I know another fine little theater in which a great deal of money was spent on decoration around the screen. And it is never seen now, for the way the schedule is run, the lights are never up.

All this is introductory to the advice that your money and labor near your screen should be aimed to improve the front of your house in general, even if you have brightly lighted intermissions. The latter are short in any event.

However, you know your own particular problem better than I do, so I might mention that there are a large number of houses using settings made "at home." One good and economical form of setting is a lattice work proscenium covered with artificial trailing vines and flowers, backed with heavy black cloth of some such material as cambric. A pillar of good colonial style, painted white can also be erected on each side of the stage if you have room. The tops of these should be made in imitation of the top of a pergola column, the roof leading back out of sight or supporting an arch over the screen. Parts of old curtain drops can also be utilized at times, if care and taste is used in handling them.

Above all, have your changes neat, worked out very carefully and as good as you can afford. Avoid cheapness so far as possible; and remember that "simplicity is sublimity."

Dealing with "Rowdies"

130—My house is located near a high school and on Friday and Saturday nights a large number of the boys come into my house. A good many times I have had trouble making them behave like gentlemen. I need their trade, but have fired a lot of them out because they didn't know how to behave themselves. This has set some of the people in the neighborhood against me. I want to get your opinion on the matter.

Not so very long ago, an exhibitor from St. Paul, Minnesota, was in MOTOGRAPHY's office and discussed this same case. He has about the same number of boy patrons as you seem to have. His method of handling them is typical of a number of exhibitors with whom we have talked regarding the matter of keeping order. He never loses his head nor his good nature, but makes the boys understand that he means what he says and that he will keep the proper amount of order in his house, even if he has to get along without the patronage of some of his audience.

This exhibitor recently told certain boys who had been disturbing his audiences, that they could not come back into the theater until they promised to behave. They returned night after night, but he good-naturedly refused to admit them. The boys finally acknowledged that he was right. They came back and controlled their mischievous impulses.

If you do not lose your temper and maintain simply a dignified, good-natured attitude toward your "rowdies," you will probably win out in the end, and gain the confidence of your entire patronage. Of course, in spite of anything you may do, it may be impossible to keep the good will of every person. Some unreasonable people are bound to take sides in the case such as you mention. Do not be too particular in regard to silence or conduct in your house. Simply use good judgment in the moderating all displays of rough house. Be careful to do this in such a way as not to offend the culprits. Most audiences will agree with you in your well-intentioned efforts to keep order.

Write again.

COHAN RETURNS FROM SOUTH

Banquets Tendered to Popular Comedian by Prominent Southerners—Star at Present Working at Mary Pickford Studio On "Broadway Jones"

George M. Cohan has just returned to New York from Jacksonville, Florida, where the exteriors for his initial Artcraft Picture, "Broadway Jones," were staged. Several immense sets are now being built at the Cohan studio on West Fifty-sixth street, New York, and while the work on the erection of these sets is going on the popular star is appearing before the camera at the Mary Pickford studio in Fort Lee. When it was found that the big sets at the Cohan studio would not be completed for several days "Little Mary" offered the facilities of her studio to her brother Artcraft star upon completion of her own picture, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," which was promptly accepted.

During his stay in Jacksonville George M. was the guest of various banquets given in his honor, including a very pleasant reception tendered by Mayor J. E. T. Bowden. The dinner was served in the magnificent roof garden dining room of the Hotel Mason, the decorations representing a typical jungle scene, behind which a large portrait of Mr. Cohan stood upon an easel. When the guests were assembled the portrait was unveiled in honor of the principal guest.

As soon as the sets at the Cohan studio are ready George M. will continue his screen work there. At the Fort Lee studio one of the largest sets used in "Broadway Jones" presenting an exact replica of the Hotel Knickerbocker dining room is now being screened.

D. A. R. Works with Exhibitors

Mrs. William Cumming Story, president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has personally interested the 95,000 members of the D. A. R., in the United States, in co-operating with exhibitors in endeavoring to show "The Eagle's Wings," Bluebird's special five-part picture, dealing with constructive patriotism, to every man, woman and child in the country.

Mrs. Story has invited President Wilson, his cabinet, members of congress and Washington society to view "The Eagle's Wings" at a special showing. The performance is set for February 21, in Memorial Continental hall, at the national capital. More than 1,500 invitations have been accepted.

In a special message directed to the regents of 1,500 chapters, the president-general of the D. A. R. urges the members to bend every effort in getting the lesson of "The Eagle's Wings" known in every community in the Union.

Camera Catches British Fleet

Great Britain, always rigidly secretive as to her war operations, has sanctioned motion pictures of the Battle of the Somme, and the grand fleet in the North sea. Uncensored films of these pictures will be sent to America, for exhibition for war relief purposes. Charles Urban, the man for whom the British Navy posed, is now in this country acting as one of the directors of Official War Films, Inc., the corporation controlling the American rights for the pictures.

This corporation, of which William K. Vanderbilt is president, will devote all its gross profits to war relief. It controls, in addition to the pictures named above, those of the American Ambulance Corps in France and the American Aviation Corps. All these pictures are now being arranged and captioned, and will shortly be released through the distributive channels of the General Film Company.

A destroyer was placed at Mr. Urban's disposal, which raced along within the proper distance of the big ships. From the point of vantage it was possible to secure pictures of salvo gun firing while under full headway.

REPORT CAPACITY BUSINESS

Chicago's Ziegfeld Theater and Orpheum at Cleveland Surpass Their Old Marks for Attendance with "Girl Phillipa"

Another record week has been passed by the Ziegfeld Theater of Chicago, where Vitagraph's special eight-reel feature, "The Girl Phillipa," is running in its third week. Since the first day and during a spell of zero weather, the entire reserved section in the orchestra has been sold out days ahead, according to advice forwarded to New York by Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Chicago exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

The picture is doing similar business for theaters in the New England district where it has been shown. The Poli circuit has booked it in all its houses, following a week's engagement in Poli's New Haven theater to capacity business.

A $2,000 Sunday Attendance

In Cleveland where "The Girl Phillipa" opened for a run at the Orpheum Theater, it duplicated its box-office record breaking performance at the Rialto Theater, New York. The Cleveland total is reported as just short of $2,000 for the first Sunday, thus smashing all records for any theatrical performance of any kind in that city.

Manager Woda, of the Orpheum Theater, stated to the Cleveland Leader that "The Girl Phillipa" and "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new adventure serial, has proved the greatest drawing-cards he ever had had in his theater.

The Colonial Theater, Tacoma, Washington, reports unprecedented interest among its patrons regarding this Vitagraph production. Manager H. T. Moore says that never has any picture which he has announced created such interest among people who never before have been in a photoplay theater.

Palm Beach Theater Books It

Wealthy New York society people, who had attended the premier of "The Girl Phillipa" at the Rialto in New York, asked that it be booked at the Rialto Theater, Palm Beach, Florida, for a run there, so that their friends might also enjoy this unusual production, according to Mr. Irving.

At Birmingham, Alabama, where it is said that no picture ever has played for more than four days, the Strand Theater has booked "The Girl Phillipa" for a week, with the option of continuing its run for two weeks.

Charles Steiner, who controls the new Fourteenth Street Theater, New York, is building another large picture palace on the east side of the metropolis, and has booked "The Girl Phillipa" as the attraction with which he will open his new house.

Fairbanks Forms Own Producing Company

ENGAGEMENT WITH ARTCRAFT DESTROYS FERTILE FIELD OF RUMORS

We don't need to tell you who's back of this famous smile. Its immensely popular owner hereafter will be secured only in Artcraft productions.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS is not the kind of person who frets about the future. Now, to quiet the rumors and doubts that have blown on all the breezes of screendom, making it seem that his future has been a source of worry to others, though not to himself, he sends an announcement to the press stating that he will form his own producing company and release his productions through the Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

Under the terms of his engagement with the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, which also releases Mary Pickford subjects and George M. Cohan's pictures, Mr. Fairbanks is to form immediately his own producing company. He will himself produce all the photoplays in which he will appear. Work on the initial production under the new association will be commenced immediately in the east, other subjects being staged in whatever locale best suits the story.

Retains John Emerson as Director

John Emerson, who has directed several of Mr. Fairbanks' most successful pictures, will have entire charge of the future productions. Bennie Zeidman remains with Mr. Fairbanks in the capacity of special representative. The scenarios will be written by Miss Anita Loos, who is responsible for many of the stories he has acted in the past. The first picture will be made in and near New York.

The releasing of the Douglas Fairbanks productions through Artcraft has created wide interest not only in film circles. The value of Fairbanks as a box-office attraction is apparent to exhibitors. Under the Artcraft system of distribution, the productions may be handled in small towns as well as in the metropolis.

Artcraft announces that production of Mary Pickford's newest, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," by Eleanor Gates, has been completed so far as the star herself is concerned. Several scenes in which "Little Mary" does not appear are now being taken, after which the final cutting and assembling will be commenced under the supervision of Director Tourneur at the Fort Lee plant.

" 'A Poor Little Rich Girl' is undoubtedly one of the very best subjects in which I have yet appeared," said Miss Pickford shortly before her departure to Los Angeles where she will appear in further Artcraft releases. "I just lived the part of little Gwendolyn, the neglected little daughter of wealthy parents who seek personal prominence rather than the love of their child."

Soon after Miss Pickford's arrival on the west coast she will commence work on her newest effort for Artcraft Pictures at a big studio of modern design which has been taken over for her in Los Angeles.

George Cohan Back from Florida

The trip of George M. Cohan to Jacksonville, Florida, enters him into the "Inner Circle" of honest-to-goodness filmites, he contends. His journey in behalf of the silent art presents the final hurdle over the fence of the "legit" stars and after that has been accomplished he declares he automatically and immediately becomes a full-fledged motion picture actor regardless of past career, history or record. He has lately returned to New York.

Inclement weather prevented Mr. Cohan from commencing activities before the camera immediately and allowed him and Mrs. Cohan ample opportunity to visit Riverside, Pablo Beach, the alligator and ostrich farms and other places of interest. Several spectacular scenes involving over 500 howling extras and presenting factory strike views for "Broadway Jones" under the direction of Joe Kaufman, afforded him additional education in the moving picture art.

N. C. Lund of the West End Theater, Bridgeport, Connecticut, deserves the distinction of being known as one of Connecticut's ultra-progressive theater managers. Mr. Lund was first in Connecticut to sign a contract with Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service.

Her Majesty, the Queen of Screenland, as the central character in Artcraft's "The Poor Little Rich Girl," just completed and ready for release March 5.

Mystery in "Seventh Sin"

"The Seventh Sin," last of the Seven Deadly Sins, McClure series, contains a mystery. McClure Pictures has announced no details of this last feature and only admits some of the most important features of this climax to the series of seven five-reel photoplays.

George Le Guere and Shirley Mason in "The Seventh Sin," last of the remarkable McClure Seven Deadly Sins series of features.

George Le Guere is billed as the star of "The Seventh Sin," but Mr. Le Guere is not the only star therein. Ann Murdock, Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason, Nance O'Neil, H. B. Warner and Charlotte Walker complete the astonishing cast.

The theme of "The Seventh Sin" is being kept a secret. It is described as being "the biggest sin of all; the sin that incites all other sins."

It is expected that exhibitors will find a strong box-office value in the mystery element in the final photoplay, as well as in the all-star cast.

McClure Pictures is holding its biggest "punch" for the finish. Shirley Mason has conquered the other six sins, one by one and by her battles with them is strengthened for the final contest. A novel method is used in presenting "The Seventh Sin" and the mystery is withheld until almost the last turn of the fifth reel.

New World Coming

The next release of World Pictures Brady-made will be "A Girl's Folly," which is mostly comedy with a very pretty love story for background. The entire play revolves around a moving picture star played by Robert Warwick and a little country girl who falls in love with him and runs away to join the company. Doris Kenyon fulfills the requirements of the little country girl. There are numerous scenes in the studio and "on location," and the making of motion pictures is shown in detail. The main idea is fun as supplied by authentic episodes in the lives of the movie players.

The government school where dancers are trained for the Russian Imperial Ballet is shown, together with the training itself, in "The Dancer's Peril," the next Alice Brady picture for the World Film Corporation. For these scenes Alexis Kosloff and his entire ballet corps were engaged and Mr. Kosloff himself superintends the training, with Miss Brady as one of his many pupils. Later in the play Miss Brady, Mr. Kosloff and his troupe of 100 interpret the ballet "Scheherazade," as a part of a supposed opera performance in the Imperial Opera House, Petrograd, reproducing the stage and the crowded auditorium.

COMING ART DRAMAS

"Pride and the Devil," with Alma Hanlon Next Apollo Play—Anna Nilsson, Jean Sothern in Early Releases

"Pride and the Devil" is the title of the next Apollo picture to be released on the Art Drama program. Richard Ridgely is directing the production, in which Alma Hanlon is starred, and Bigelow Cooper, Leo Delaney and Pamela Vale are seen in the principal supporting parts.

"Pride and the Devil" tells of the life of a young couple who come to the city soon after their marriage. The wife becomes engrossed in the social activities of the so-called "society" set. An estrangement springs up between husband and wife which eventually leads to the divorce courts and, despite the fact that each loves the other, neither is willing to take the initiative toward a reconciliation. Both are possessed of a stubborn pride, and neither is willing to humble it.

Anna Nilsson in "The Moral Code"

Ashley Miller is directing Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock in "The Moral Code," a feature now under production by Erbograph Company, to be released shortly on the Art Dramas program. Mr. Miller also wrote the story of the photoplay.

"The Moral Code" is described as a powerful screen presentment of a very real, vital problem of every-day life in America and England, where the marriage relation is looked upon in accordance with the laws and traditions of the past, and not the living present.

Jean Sothern's New Play

Will S. Davis, the former Fox director, who was engaged by the Van Dyke Film Production Corporation for the production of that company's pictures, is at work on his first picture at the Van Dyke Studios. Jean Sothern is playing the lead in the production which is being made under the working title of "The Cloud." The story is said to be an effective mixture of the light, pretty "business" that Miss Sothern does so well, and the heavier dramatic action which she demonstrated was well within her range in "Whoso Findeth a Wife," a previous Art Dramas release.

Edith Storey in "The Long Fight"

When Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. releases "The Long Fight," the five-reel production it is making at its western studios from Hamlin Garland's famous novel, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno, who are co-starred in this Blue Ribbon feature, will be seen to unusual advantage in a typically American play.

William Wolbert, who is directing "The Long Fight," is responsible for the splendid new Vitagraph production, "Aladdin From Broadway," in which Miss Storey, Mr. Moreno, and William Duncan are co-starred.

H. A. Barrows, R. E. Burns, Edward Cecil and Hattie Buskirk are also seen to advantage in "The Long Fight." Studio Manager William S. Smith has provided some magnificently big sets of streets and camps for the production, and there is every promise that "The Long Fight" is a well-met member of the Vitagraph family of Blue Ribbon releases.

CENSOR STARTS "CLEAN-UP"

Twenty-five Chicago Theater Owners and Four Exchanges Hailed into Court Under "Pink Permit" Law

The strong-arm of police censorship reached out over Chicago in the last fortnight and caught twenty-five theaters and four exchanges in a tangle of the law. The act of one man in the city hall has brought a crop of litigation to exhibitors and a harvest of lawyers' fees to the Chicago attorneys who will have the task of defending the theater men. It means that a crisis has come in the notorious censorship regime of Chicago, and the validity of the "pink permit" law will be questioned.

At much expense to the city, investigators are being employed to spy on the film exchanges and theaters. The two dozen or more prosecutions just begun are based on evidence collected by the investigators in clandestine visits to theaters in many districts of the city.

The theaters are charged either with admitting children to shows where "pink permits" have been issued, or with showing the pictures without posting the permits. In the latter cases the difficulty has resulted from the neglect of exchanges to send the permit to the exhibitor with the film. Four exchanges are charged with distributing films without obtaining the required permits.

The "pink permit" law, forbidding the admission of minors to performances of pictures judged in this class by the censors, is the root which nourishes the present activities of the censor board. Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, second deputy superintendent of police, who exercises supervision over the censor board, personally set the recent investigations on foot. His action is in line with the threat which he recently voiced against the film men and which MOTOGRAPHY printed.

He has since corroborated his statement, though denying that it is in any sense a threat. He said at that time:

> If the theaters persist in their disregard for the law [pink permit law] and continue to admit children to see these pictures, there will be a public movement started to bring about a change in the ordinance which will entirely prevent the showing of films that our censors do not consider fit for juvenile audiences.

A prominent Chicago exchange manager, upon having his attention called to this challenge from the police official, made this significant reply:

> There is going to be a change over at the city hall some day and it will be impossible for any one man to stand in the way of progress in the whole field of the picture industry. Our one-man censorship in this city is acting as a handicap on the free and proper development of the motion picture art.
>
> It acts as a decided detriment to the improvement of motion picture standards, simply because the producer never knows how to present a picture which will pass all censor boards. It is a national question not to be juggled about and meddled with by one man. He retards the very step toward better pictures which he wishes taken. If the fight is coming, I am glad of it. It is high time to settle it and let the industry breathe naturally again.

Mary Pickford in Chicago

"I hope I make as good with Chicago as Chicago made with me."

This is the wire sent by that American institution, Mary Pickford, back to the Zephyrous Village from somewhere in Illinois after she had departed on February 11 to continue her way to the coast.

For Mary and her mother and her sister, Lottie, and the latter's baby, Mary Pickford, were well entertained during their Sunday in Chicago by Max Goldstine, manager of the local Artcraft office. He gave them a luncheon at the Sherman Hotel, at which were present representatives of most of the Chicago newspapers and trade magazines and various film men. Visitors percolated through the Pickford suite all day and a large group saw the party off for the sunny coast at night.

Perhaps the most startling declaration that Mary made in Chicago was that she intends to retire in about two years. This however, is interpreted by her friends to mean that she will make fewer plays instead of retiring into total eclipse. Her first play in the west is to be a western story. She will later return east for the filming of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Chicago people were again impressed with the simplicity, charm and genuine qualities of the personality of the industry's most universal drawing card. Her Majesty of Screen land is still unaffected "Little Mary," in spite of the fact that she will be half a million richer by the end of this year.

And one of the wisest remarks that Mary made in Chicago was this:

"I read MOTOGRAPHY every single week."

The merry Pickford luncheon given by Max Goldstine, of the Chicago Artcraft office, at the Sherman Hotel, February 11. From the left the names and attachments are: W. C. Benson, Exhibitors' Herald; C. W. Brown, Exhibitor's Trade Review; Oma Lawrence, Chicago Post; Mrs. Max Goldstine, Ralph Kettering of Jones, Linick & Schaefer; Louella Parsons, Chicago Herald, and her husband; and Little Miss Goldstine. At the end of the table are Mrs. Pickford; Max Goldstine; Mary Pickford; A. E. Curtis, MOTOGRAPHY. Then come Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Hollander, Daily News; Lottie Pickford; Al. Cohn, Photoplay Magazine; L. Y. Crump and W. C. Cook, Artcraft; M. M. Simon and Bob McKnight, Examiner. M. M. Rubens, Rubens Theaters, Joliet, isn't "all there." But he might have been if the lens had cut wider.

Three of the tremendously interesting scenes from De Mille's great drama "Joan the Woman," with Geraldine Farrar. At the left the crowd kneels in allegiance to the king. In the center is the scene in which Joan is made commander-in-chief of the armies. The cell scene shows the wonderful Joan near the hour of her death.

New Open Market Concern

Benjamin Friedman, one of the foremost exchange men in the country and a prominent figure in film circles in the northwest, has recently organized a company to be known as Friedman Enterprises, Inc., incorporated for $250,000, with headquarters at 923 Longacre Bldg., New York City, and 300 Film Exchange Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

The purpose of this concern is to handle larger film productions in the open market. The first of these was shown at the Strand Theater last Wednesday morning. It is entitled "A Mormon Maid," and is a powerful photodrama of early Mormon days. The picture is five reels in length, and presents Mae Murray and Hobart Bosworth in the leading roles.

Although this production is not propaganda, it is offered at a moment when more than a thousand branches of a new Anti-Mormon League are in process of establishment throughout America, and it will naturally meet with great demand. "A Mormon Maid" hits the inside of the bull's-eye imperative essentials in a states rights offering, combining a wonderful story, celebrated cast, and beautiful photography with a sensational topic and great advertising possibilities in making a production that is magnetic, stirring and gratifying.

Originally taken in eight reels, with its scenes in Utah, California, Colorado and contiguous Mormon territory, the new feature compressed into five thousand feet for the better accommodation of the schedules of exhibitors. The plot is punctuated with intensely dramatic situations, thrilling incidents, and immense scenes. In the name part Mae Murray runs a picturesque gamut of her mimetic powers.

Thrilling pageantry in the attack of the early Mormons on invading caravans of pioneers is included in the spectacular elements of the production.

Hiller and Wilk, located at 924 Longacre Bldg., are the New York representatives of the Friedman Enterprise, Inc.

Wharton, Inc., to Distribute

Wharton, Inc., of Ithaca, New York, has begun the distribution of its own films. The company announces that hereafter it will market all its productions independently and will also make all the pictures bearing the Wharton name.

R. H. Hadfield, of Chicago, has been appointed general manager of Wharton, Inc. He will assume the responsibility of carrying out the new policy. Other details of the new distribution plan will be supplied to exhibitors in an early announcement. Inquiries from exhibitors will be answered by Manager Hadfield upon request.

Jap Sub-Title in "Honor System"

Sub-titles which few persons can read are certainly not an accepted part of most photoplays.

Yet there is just such a one in R. A. Walsh's "The Honor System," which William Fox opens at the Lyric Theater, in New York City, on February 12.

This particular sub-title is in Japanese—and there's a reason.

A morning visitor is entering at the left. The other picture shows "the avenging angels on guard."—Scenes from "A Mormon Maid," with Mae Murray, released by Friedman Enterprise, Inc.

The Man Inside the Booth

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT, CONDUCTED BY E. C. SCOBEY

THIS department is a permanent feature of MOTOGRAPHY. Its editor, Mr. Scobey, is a former secretary and treasurer of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 194, I. A. T. S. E., and was formerly associated with the Central Film Service Company of Indianapolis. He was recently elected vice-president of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, the first operator to be so honored. The idea is to make this department just as helpful as possible to operators and exhibitors. Send your questions and problems to Mr. Scobey. He is sure to give you some valuable information. Address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Carbon Trouble

My carbons, both lower and top, burn straight down to a cone from three to four inches. I am using 5/8-inch soft cored Bio American made carbons, using A. C. current with 60 amperes. My arc works fine for about 3,000 feet of film then begins to cone and grow red, giving no light whatever. I also lose my crater. Is this in the make of the carbons or is my amperage too strong for the size carbons? I have used the Bio carbons foreign make and got good results until I changed carbons. Let me hear from you in your next issue.—Fred Null, Owl Theater, Lebannon, Kansas.

Your trouble is caused from using too high amperage for the size of carbons that you are using and I would advise you to either cut down the amperage or use 3/4 inch cored carbons both in the top and lower carbons. Be sure that the carbon jaws are kept clean and that they make a good tight contact with the carbon. Take the jaws out and file or scrape them at least once a week, and by doing this you will find that you get better results with the carbons, no matter what make you are using. Try out the brand you are using with the 3/4 inch carbons and if you still have trouble then change to some other brand. There are several brands "made in America" that are good.

A Family of Questions

Would consider it quite a favor if you would give me some information upon the following items:

What advantage has a direct current equipment over an indirect one, if there is any, in the projection? What changes would have to be made in changing from an indirect equipment to a direct one? What changes would have to be made in the projection equipment, if the distance from the machine and the screen is increased 25 feet? Sometimes when I am running a picture the light seems to wave all over the screen and will do this for five minutes at a time, and then it will not bother me again for maybe a week. What is the cause of this? It is not the fault of the shutter as I have adjusted it several times without doing any good. Am using 110-volt alternating current, 60 cycle and 60 amperes. Am using 5/8-inch soft cored carbons top and bottom. When I put a new carbon in the bottom or top holder, it takes almost five minutes before I can get a suitable light, and if I put a fresh carbon in the top and bottom I cannot get any light scarcely at all. What is the cause of this? I have noticed in several theaters the picture on the screen has a slight up-and-down movement; it takes a close observer to notice this, and the same thing is wrong with my picture. I have tried two machines and have tried three sets of new tension springs but cannot stop it at all. Do not know what it can be unless it is the whole machine moving. My machine is a new one.

I have made some improvements on the machine I am running, to whom shall I write to find out whether there are any like the ones I have made? —R. E. G., Operator, Palace Theater, Wellston, Ohio.

In using direct current in projection there are several things that are to be considered, and for that reason D. C. is a more desirable current for projection than A. C. (Alternating). In using D. C. the crater is formed on the positive or upper carbon. In using A. C. the crater is formed on both carbons as both carbons are alternately positive and negative. It is a known fact that practically all the light used for projection comes from the crater or craters, and that the combined craters on A. C. will not equal in size the D. C. crater where equal amperage is used. In using D. C. current in the average theater very good results are obtained with 35 amperes of current and very few theaters using A. C. current use less than 60 amperes and many of them use 70 and 75 amperes. The use of D. C. current not only gives you better results on the screen but means a saving in light bills and a saving in carbon bills. I would advise anyone who owns a theater using projection to use D. C. current. If you cannot get D. C. from your local company then I would install a motor generator set, mercury arc rectifier, or a converter set.

In asking what changes would have to be made in changing from A. C. to D. C. you do not state what you are using in the way of resistance, a rheostat, or a compensarc. If you are using a compensarc you will have to change from it to rheostat, but if you are using a rheostat you will not have to change anything in the way of equipment, unless your machine is motor driven and then you will have to change the motor on it. The only change that would have to be made by increasing the distance from the machine to the screen, would be in the lens, both M. P. and stero., taking it for granted that you want the same size of picture at the increased distance. By increasing the distance 25 feet you will find that the picture is considerable larger. You do not state in your question whether you have a two or three-wing shutter on the machine, but you should have a two-wing shutter on it as you are using A. C. current.

I think that the wave that you see in the picture is caused by the shutter getting in synchronism with the cycles of the A. C. current. You will notice that the waves appear when you are running at a certain speed only. Several of the operators have complained of waves being in the picture but they have had them in the picture all the time and they show up in the light colored film such as snow scenes and letters and the operators have found that that is caused by heat waves coming from artificial heat used in the theater but in your case where you are having the trouble only once in a week, I think that it is caused by the shutter getting in synchronism with the cycles of the current and if you should have a three-wing shutter on the machine, change it at once for a two-wing one.

In your carbon trouble, be sure that all connections from the switch to the lamp are tight and making good contacts, that the terminals on the wires leading to the lamp are making good contacts and that they are not corroded. Lots of the operator's light troubles are caused by bad terminals and lead wires at the lamp. Be sure that the carbon jaws and clamps are kept clean and make a perfect contact with the carbon. These jaws and clamps should be taken out and cleaned at least once a week. From the way you have described your trouble with the carbons, I have every reason to believe that you are not getting 60 amps. at the arc and if I were you I would have the local electric light company put an amp. meter on at the lamp and see if you are getting that much amperage. In setting the carbons, have the top carbon set ⅛ inch in the rear of the lower carbon and be sure that they are in line vertically.

The up and down motion that you have noticed on the screen may be caused by the intermittent movement not being set close enough allowing circumferential play in the intermittent sprocket or it may be that the whole machine is moving up and down. Have someone stand close to the screen while the machine is running and they can very soon tell which it is that is causing the trouble. If the machine is causing it, you can tell it by watching the edge of the picture and the edge of the screen and you will see the entire picture move up and down. This can be remedied by locking the machine firmly to the floor of the booth. Get two turn-buckles at the hardware store (the kind that are used on the old-fashioned saw), also two large screw eyes; fasten the screw eyes in the floor of the booth, one directly under the head of the machine and one under the lamp house. Fasten a short piece of No. 12 iron wire to the front of the machine and a piece to the screw eye in the floor under the head; fix the turn-buckle between these two pieces of wire. Do the same at the back of the machine with the other turn-buckle. By tightening the turn-buckles you can lock the machine securely to the floor of the booth.

As to the improvements you have made on the machine, I would advise you to consult a good patent attorney if you want to make them a money proposition, but if you care to have the operators have the benefit of the improvements, send them in, and if they are something new I will be glad to give the operators the benefit of them through the pages of the department, or you can write to me personally and I will give you all the information I can on the subject.

The Curse of Bad Films

The editor of this department has had his attention called twice during the last few days to the condition of film, coming from two of the largest feature film companies of Cincinnati, and shipped to Indianapolis, Indiana, for use. One was a five-reel subject. Two of the reels were not rewound and two of the reels had no leader or subtitle on them. The operator had no way of telling which was part 3 or part 4 and, as might be supposed, got part 4 on instead of part 3. Loudly did the manager roar at the mistake the operator made. He could not see any excuse for an operator making a mistake like that. When conditions were explained to him he swore that he would cancel service with the firm, which he should do and not only do that but warn every other exhibitor of the condition of the film coming from that firm.

In the other case there was six reels in the feature and below is the shape they came in: Five frames in the title, Ohio censors, five frames. No title or subtitle in the second reel. Subtitle but no part number on the third reel. Twelve frames of part 4, but no subtitle. Ten frames in part five, but no subtitle. Eight frames in part 6 with no subtitle. From six inches to a foot of leader on each reel and one reel had a "part follow" leader on the end of the reel, the other five did not have a tail piece of any description on them. The film was covered with oil from one end to the other and some one must have rewound it and thought that he had inspected it. A firm that will send out film in that condition does not deserve to have the patronage of any exhibitor.

Many After "The Black Stork"

The biggest state rights men in the country have requested screenings of "The Black Stork," the eugenic photoplay aimed to spread the propaganda that unhealthy babies should be allowed to die at birth, and to force the passage of eugenic marriage laws in all the states of the union.

Within ten days after the first advertisement announcing the release of the photoplay to state rights buyers had appeared in the trade papers twenty-two of the really big buyers had either written or wired requesting a showing of the picture.

Besides these messages three hundred and seventy-two picture theater managers had written the Sheriott Pictures Corporation asking for information as to where the picture could be booked. These managers were informed that they would be notified as soon as the territory in which they are located is sold in order that they may arrange for their dates with the purchaser of the territory.

The Sheriott Pictures Corporation has arranged for a magnificent line of paper consisting of from one to twenty sheets upon each of which appears a smashing statement by Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, the star of the picture and the leading exponent of "death to defectives."

Hitchcock with Art Dramas

Walter Hitchcock, who has done so much creditable work on the screen since he deserted the legitimate stage a short time ago, has been engaged by the Erbograph Company to play the leading parts in that company's productions. Mr. Hitchcock will share the stellar honors with Anna Q. Nilsson in his first picture for his new association. The production will be called "The Moral Code," and was both written and directed by Ashley Miller, and will be released on the Art Dramas program.

On the legitimate stage, Mr. Hitchcock was featured for number of years in the support of America's most celebrated actors and actresses. He has appeared with such players as Henry Miller, Nat Goodwin, Margaret Anglin, William H. Crane, Otis Skinner, and Kyrle Bellew.

Some of his more important screen plays have been "Destiny" and "The House of Tears" with Emily Stevens, "The Celebrated Scandal" with Betty Nansen, "Vera the Medium," with Kitty Gordon, and "The White Raven" with Ethel Barrymore.

Director George Cochrane of Universal City has commenced the picturization of a one-reel underworld drama, "The Ruse," featuring Molly Malone.

NEW ESSANAY SERIES

Group of Short Dramas Under General Head of "Do Children Count?" to Appear Featuring Remarkable Child Star

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, announces the forthcoming inauguration of a new series of short dramatic productions, the general title of which will be "Do Children Count?"

Essanay's cycle of matrimonial complications, "Is Marriage Sacred?" has met with great popularity among exhibitors and patrons alike. This cycle, however, will be concluded early in April. It is to provide a suitable substitute that "Do Children Count?" will be offered.

There will be twelve in the forthcoming series, each one to have a screen time of approximately thirty minutes. Each will be a separate photodrama in itself, and if the exhibitor desires, can be booked and run apart from the others.

Little Mary V. McAlister, Essanay's celebrated child star, will be featured in each production. This little girl, though only six years old, has won a place in the hearts of photoplay patrons. She has developed a remarkable dramatic talent. Among the recent feature productions in which she has appeared were Henry B. Walthall's current drama, "Little Shoes," "The Little Missionary" and many others.

Underlying these problem plays will be a direct appeal for the children in the home. The General Film Service will handle the releases.

Several powerful dramatic offerings are ready for release under the "Is Marriage Sacred?" title. "The Extravagant Bride," to be presented February 24, presents the problem growing out of the marriage of a rich girl, used to every luxury, to a youth of moderate means. "The Vanishing Woman," for release March 3, draws a contrast between the old-fashioned woman and the college girl of today, whose modern ideas get her into trouble. "The Pulse of Madness," to be offered March 10, reveals a young woman who stops at nothing to win the man she loves.

One of the most novel ideas ever put into a short production is offered in "The Five-Dollar Bill," a Black Cat Feature to be presented March 6. It demonstrates that much money can bring happiness, despite the high cost of living and loving. "Aladdin Up-to-Date," to be released March 13, is another decidedly interesting photodrama of this series.

Kalem Series Ready in March

For the benefit of those exhibitors who have not had an opportunity to get into communication with their exchanges since it was announced that the Kalem Company would shortly market two new series productions—a two-part and a single-reel series—we are authorized to state that the initial episodes of both can be booked now for showing about the first of the month.

The title selected for the first complete story chapter of "A Daughter of Daring" is "In the Path of Peril," from a story by Herman A. Blackman, featuring Helen Gibson.

New Enid Bennett Play

Enid Bennett, Thomas H. Ince's radiant new star, soon will be seen in her second Triangle Kay-Bee vehicle, when she is presented in a drama of childhood and romance, entitled, "The Little Brother." It tells the story of Jerry Ross, the bright, lovable daughter of the East Side tenement, and home-maker for her two brothers, who masquerades as a boy and becomes a "newsi" in order to make both ends meet. Miss Bennett, as Jerry, is said to portray the character in such a manner as to win the applause of the most exacting audience. Her beauty, which was nurtured in Australia, is understood to be beyond comparison, and this, combined with rich natural talent, at once places her in the foremost ranks of screen favorites. While a mere girl, Miss Bennett, in this, her second Ince starring vehicle, evinces the ability of a veteran in stage craft, stepping from one difficult character to another with charming simplicity.

Miss Bennett is ably supported by William Garwood, who was engaged to play opposite the youthful star as a mineralogist.

William S. Hart, Triangle-Ince.

Jack Livingston, Triangle-Kay Bee.

Olga Grey, Fine Arts

In the dark at the left is Dorothy Gish in Fine Arts' "Stage Struck," and at the right stands "Glorious Gloria" Swanson, of the Keystone chuckle-factory.

Lillian Walker in "Kitty Mackay"

"Kitty Mackay," the stage play of gladness by Catherine Chisholm Cushing which was a great Broadway triumph and now has been made into a five-reel picture by Greater Vitagraph, shows Lillian Walker, in the title role, in a most delightful and happy series of events and surroundings. "Kitty Mackay" is released as a Blue Ribbon feature through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. on February 19.

Perhaps Miss Walker never before has played a part in which she has been more charming and admirable than she is in "Kitty Mackay." She is actually the author's whimsical brain-child, full of laughter yet always near to tears. Forgetting her own personality entirely, Miss Walker has made bonny "Kitty" a lovable character who will delight all audiences.

Wilfrid North directed the production. Don Cameron plays opposite Miss Walker in "Kitty Mackay." Charles Kent is seen as the nobleman. Others in a very capable cast are Jewell Hunt, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, Beatrice Anderson, Mrs. West, William Ferguson, and several popular Vitagraph players.

The story is the sort that always wins with audiences because it is simple and direct. Living with Scotch people where she is a Cinderella to their own daughter, Kitty is sent for on her eighteenth birthday by a wealthy nobleman. She becomes his ward. She falls in love with his son and, when they are about to marry, the nobleman tells his son that Kitty is his daughter by another marriage. Kitty merely is informed that she cannot marry the son. But it is all cleared up a little later when an imposture is disclosed and it is learned that Kitty is unrelated to the nobleman. How this is worked out is one of the charming bits of "Kitty Mackay."

These views are all taken from "Kitty Mackay," the new February 19 Vitagraph feature starring Lillian Walker and based on the popular stage success.

"GOD'S MAN" IN FILMS

Novel Which Shows Gay and Sad Phases of New York Social Whirl to Be Made in Pictures by Frohman Corporation

The next offering of the Frohman Amusement Corporation will be a nine-part picturization of a present-day literary success, "God's Man," written by George Bronson Howard. William L. Sherrill, president of the company, recommends the feature to exhibitors as a presentation of one of the most successful works of a master writer of the day.

"God's Man" is a story which presents wide latitude for screen purposes. The author has thrillingly narrated the vicissitudes and trials of a wayward college youth; the quagmire, the dark abyss, the degradation and despair arising through the tremor of New York's gay life, until the ultimate coming of the dawn of righteousness. It is a vivid tale of New York in both its somber and gay moments; of its truth and hypocrisy and the pitfalls and underhand methods of Broadway.

"The Witching Hour" Popular

The Frohman Corporation reports an unusually rapid sale of the territorial rights to its master-production, "The Witching Hour." Within six weeks, to a day, the entire territory of the United States had been contracted for, with the single exception of that northwestern territory of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

The picture has been repeatedly played before faculties of various universities and before students of mental science. It is one of those pictures which have enjoyed sufficient prestige to warrant third and fourth time return engagements.

Jack Sherrill, popular star of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, whose latest appearance was in the character of "Joe Louden" in Frohman's "The Conquest of Canaan," has accepted an invitation to address the audiences of the Criterion Theater, Atlanta, Georgia, for a full week, beginning February 19.

At the time of the pre-booking showing of "The Conquest of Canaan," the management of the Criterion wired their offer to Mr. Sherrill to appear in person with the picture.

Director Beaudine, of the Universal Joker Company, is filming Universal Joker, "What the——?"

The Big Feature in the Small Town

BY WALTER E. GREENE
PRESIDENT ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

Walter E. Greene, President Artcraft.

IN days gone by when the release of a master-photoplay presenting the super-star was announced, the small town exhibitor read the news with longing eyes and either hoped for the day when his town would be large enough to warrant his engagement of such productions shortly after their release or that he would soon be in a position to take over a theater in a big city where he could afford to book these latest accomplishments in the photoplay art, rather than wait until the film had become old before he could finally secure it for his limited patronage.

One of the chief foundations upon which Artcraft had been built was its idea of stepping into this breach and making it possible for the small town exhibitor to play these big stars in their newest offerings before his patrons had forgotten about them, this despite the impression that occasionally evidenced itself, that Artcraft was directed at the big-city manager only.

Aids Small Town Exhibitor

The manager of the metropolitan theater immediately realized that Artcraft made it possible for him to show productions that heretofore were never offered to him but were shown at a regular "legit" theater. The small-town exhibitor on the other hand, did not understand just where Artcraft would benefit him until its policy in this direction was explained. He then promptly learned that Artcraft meant just as much to him as it did to the big-town manager and that it filled the very gap which had always kept him far behind regardless of how progressive a showman he might have been.

As may be expected it has taken time for the smaller exhibitor to fully appreciate just what Artcraft meant to him, but I can safely say that its importance to his success is now fully appreciated. I can only judge from the letters and reports which we daily receive from managers in towns that, in some cases, I have never heard of and the countless endorsements that have been voluntarily sent us readily prove that our efforts in behalf of the small-town exhibitor have met with the success they deserve.

What Exhibitors Say

The drawing power of such stars as Mary Pickford, George M. Cohan and Douglas Fairbanks is really more wonderful than many can appreciate. For instance, every day we receive reports from out-of-town managers who announce that despite adverse weather conditions, Mary Pickford attractions drew more than capacity and established new box-office records. Manager C. M. Waterbury of the Palace Theater, Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, in a letter concerning his remarkable success with a Pickford subject, writes: "Sunday found us in the grip of the worst blizzard in many years, in fact it seemed foolhardy to open the theater. One theater did close. But listen! The matinee was the largest the house has known and we had a full house in the evening while the competition exhibited to 25 patrons, actual count."

Manager C. H. Cookingham of Ayreshire, Iowa, a town of less than 300 inhabitants, reports: "A terrible sleet storm raged all afternoon and evening. Notwithstanding this I came out fine on it financially and it sure pleased my patrons. No town is too small to handle your pictures and I will take all your releases."

From Mullen, Nebraska, Manager John J. Motl writes: "The production went over big and in spite of blizzard weather I made good with it. I guess my patrons like Mary Pickford as well as I do. You sure did put Mullen on the map. The next important item after getting the contract was to make good with it and I certainly made good, even under adverse weather conditions. I like the way you co-operate with the exhibitor. It makes a fellow feel that after all, no matter where one happens to be one can now offer the best there is. I have seen the so-called big features but there is none that appeals to us like Mary Pickford, and when they named her 'America's Sweetheart' they named her right."

Another communication from Manager Joe C. Fox of the Holland Theater, Wichita, Kansas, reads: "I have just closed the Pickford picture and can truthfully say that we ran by far more in the four days than we ever did before in a week. We packed our house at every performance and had people standing in line for hours waiting to get in."

Many letters of similar nature present the most gratifying knowledge that our efforts in behalf of the small-town exhibitor have taken hold. Mullen, Nebraska, for instance, is a very small town of 105 people and the adjoining country is sparsely settled. If Manager Motl can make good with Artcraft productions there seems to be no reason why our subjects should not be shown in every city, town and hamlet in the country in the very near future.

Schulberg General Manager of Paramount

Kenneth Hodkinson has resigned the position of office manager of the Paramount Pictures Corporation and Benjamin P. Schulberg has resigned as director of Paramount advertising and publicity, the duties of both offices having been combined under the title of general manager, which Schulberg has been appointed by President Hiram Abrams. The change takes effect immediately.

This realignment in the Paramount personnel places in the general managership of the giant distributing corporation a man who has been identified with the motion picture industry since a time long preceding the advent of the first feature.

B. P. Schulberg has probably been associated with fewer companies than any other man who has been in his branch of the business during the same period of time. Mr. Schulberg made his entrance into the film business as associate editor of one of the earliest trade papers and the first mouthpiece of the "independent" manufacturers, "Film Reports." He joined the Rex Company upon its formation as scenario editor and advertising and publicity manager, remaining with that company until it affiliated with the Universal, when he was transferred to Universal as scenario editor. When Adolph Zukor organized the Famous Players Film Company in 1912, Mr. Schulberg became identified with that pioneer feature producing company as scenario editor and advertising and publicity manager, until the overwhelming growth of the company made it necessary for him to devote all his time to the advertising and publicity departments, becoming known as "the man who delivered Adolph Zukor's message to the world." With the formation of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Mr. Schulberg occupied the same position in the combined organization and continued in that capacity after the absorption of Paramount by Famous Players-Lasky.

Notable Fox Director

John C. Adolfi, the Fox director, had no royal road to screen direction. He traveled the long, hard road of the legitimate stage, with Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, both here and abroad, Dustin Farnum, Julian Marlowe, Ethel Barrymore, and many others.

It was in 1909 that the screen claimed him as a leading man. He was one of the first actors of international reputation to work for the Vitagraph company.

Mr. Adolfi is the one director who takes the full responsibility for his productions, story, the work of his actors, accuracy of detail and atmosphere, and believes that when the picture reaches the screen, if anything is wrong, the director alone is to blame. In fact, according to Mr. Adolfi, no actor or actress is really to blame if he or she misinterprets a thought or makes a false move.

This is a safe belief, however, for his pictures are a harmonious combination of the necessary elements and are wholly pleasing to the eye and mind, as followers of his June Caprice pictures will testify.

Jack Adolfi, Fox director, and Kellette, his assistant, doing a turn with June Caprice during the winding in of "A Child of the Wild."

Four years ago he began directing after having played many parts at the Griffith coast studios. He directed for three years with Reliance, then came east to the Universal, where, besides others, he produced "The Sphinx," with Herbert Kellsey and Effie Shannon; "The Man Inside," with Edwin Stevens, and "The Path of Happiness." In November, 1915, he went under the William Fox banner. Mr. Adofi adapts all the stories given to him for production, because he demands the three cardinal requisites—sympathy, suspense and surprise—in every story he screens. He prefers, however, to work upon original matter, and his genius has given to the screen some wonderful stories.

FILM TEACHES EUGENICS

"The Black Stork," Dr. Haiselden Picture, Owned and Released by Sheriott to Be Used by Medical Men

The screen is to be used almost exclusively in an effort to force the passage of eugenic marriage laws in every state in the Union. After numerous consultations some of the best known members of the medical profession have decided that the one way to place before the lawmakers of the different states the disastrous effects of mismated marriages is by showing moving pictures of the offspring of these marriages.

It was decided at a meeting of the Medical Society last week that the first onslaught would be made on the members of the legislature of Illinois, following the introduction next week of a eugenic marriage law which seeks to prevent marriages until after a medical examination of the parties to the prospective marriage and after blood tests as well.

The legislative halls, according to the plans of the physicians, for the moment will be turned into a motion picture theater and the lawmakers will be requested to view the eugenic photoplay, "The Black Stork," through which Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, the eminent Chicago surgeon, attempts to convey the message that all deformed, unhealthy children should be allowed to die at birth.

Members of the medical profession throughout the country are divided as to the advisability of supporting the plan as advocated by Dr. Haiselden, many of them taking the stand that the duty of a physician is to save life under every condition and without taking into consideration whether the saving of the life is advisable.

But the physicians are unanimous is declaring that "The Black Stork" is the best agency obtainable to drive home the point they desire to make with the lawmakers of the various states.

Recently a committee of physicians from the medical society called upon Dr. Haiselden to make arrangements for the showing of the picture before state legislatures now in session. Through an agreement with the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, which owns the picture, arrangements were made by which a clause is to be inserted in the contracts with state rights purchasers, in which the medical societies of the various states are given the privilege to show the picture before the state legislatures provided no admission is to be charged and that the picture will be confined to one showing to the lawmakers.

According to the plan, as outlined, a committee of three physicians will carry the film from state to state and the state medical societies of each state visited will provide for the showing and the hearing.

PARAMOUNT RELEASES

Marguerite Clark Comes Again in "The Fortunes of Fifi"—Blanche Sweet as Southern Girl in "Those Without Sin"

Theaters which recently have shown Marguerite Clark in "Miss George Washington" or in "Snow White" may soon present the Paramount favorite again, this time in a fanciful comedy-drama entitled "The Fortunes of Fifi." This is a Famous Players production which will be released as the leading feature of the week of February 26.

In "Snow White" Miss Clark played the role of the delightful little princess. "Fifi," though equally charming, is quite another character. She is a little minx of a French actress whose colossal conceit makes her believe that she is a great actress despite the failure of the first company with which she becomes connected.

The other five-reel Paramount features of the week will be "Those Without Sin," a Lasky production, in which Blanche Sweet plays. In the character of Melanie Landry, a Richmond girl, prior to the time of the War of the Rebellion, she has a character which fits her in every particular.

The Short-Reel Features

Surrounding the program for this week are three exceptional short-reel features; the fifty-fifth edition of the Paramount-Bray-Pictographs; the fifty-sixth of the series of "Weekly Trips Around the World," personally conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he takes his fellow travelers to visit exquisite Lake Louise; and a Klever Komedy entitled "Some Doctor," with Victor Moore in the title role. "Some Doctor" will be released February 26.

In the fifty-fifth edition of the magazine-on-the-screen there will be shown for the first time the Quacky Doodle family. Quacky Doodles, Danny Doodles and little Doodles, of comic paper fame, will appear regularly in the Pictographs in connection with "Colonel Heeza Liar" and "Bobby Bumps."

"How Cathedral Windows are Made" and "Putting Rivers to Work" are two particularly interesting subjects treated in the screen magazine.

Detective Aids in Mystery Film

Detective methods of the most scientific and modern sort play such an important part in "The Argyle Case" in which Robert Warwick will make his first appearance as a Selznick-Pictures star, that it was considered advisable to obtain the best technical advice necessary, so that the picture might be perfect in every detail. William J. Burns, the internationally famous detective, was consulted by Harvey J. O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, when they wrote the original play, and he consented to act in a similar capacity of advisor to Robert Warwick. He made several visits to the Selznick Studio when the important scenes were being photographed, and as a consequence "The Argyle Case" is the first detective film which will stand the closest scrutiny.

Burns was the first to use the dictograph to obtain evidence from the criminals themselves direct. He invented the "prepared blotter" by means of which finger prints could be obtained without arousing the suspicions of the subject. With a trick pen, the fingers of the subject are smeared with ink, and in a moment the evidence of identity is recorded. Both of these important devices of the modern detective are employed in "The Argyle Case" exactly as Detective Burns has used them in many of his big cases.

ANOTHER McCLURE SERIAL

President F. L. Collins Declares Bookings for "Seven Deadly Sins" Beat Any Previous Series—Plans Similar New Production

Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures, is planning to duplicate the success of "The Seven Deadly Sins" and has decided to begin the production of a new series of similar form.

So instantaneous has been the success of "Seven Deadly Sins," McClure series of seven five-reel features, each with a star of wide reputation, that Mr. Collins says "I told you so" to many persons who had predicted disaster, just as did many when McClures launched the earlier serial—"What Happened to Mary."

The early bookings, he says, have established the fact that "Seven Deadly Sins" will outbook any series or serial ever offered to the public.

By the time the last of "Seven Deadly Sins" has been released, McClure Pictures will be at work upon another series of features. Details of the new series are not to be announced for several weeks.

Chaplin-Mutuals Sold to Japan

The rights to the Chaplin-Mutual Series of twelve two-reel comedies have been disposed of for Japan for a fancy price which includes a cash payment of $10,000. This sale was made by Chester Beecroft of 71 West Twenty-third street, New York, and was arranged by him through Fred Bolton of the Anglo-Italian Films, Ltd., London, the man who last autumn purchased the same series for the United Kingdom for a sum closely approaching the half million dollar mark.

The extraordinary popularity achieved by Charlie Chaplin since the signing of his $670,000 contract with the Lone Star Corporation has been signally demonstrated by the seemingly fabulous prices which have been obtained for the Chaplin-Mutual Series from the foreign markets.

Thus far the United Kingdom, India, Africa, Scandinavia, Spain, Australia, New Zealand and Japan have been closed. All of these sales were made by Chester Beecroft, who states that negotiations covering nearly every territory on earth, are well under way and will soon be concluded.

Theater Rented for Filming

In producing "The Easiest Way," in which Miss Young will make her fourth appearance as a Selznick-Picture star, Director Albert Capellani rented the Garden Theater for three days and engaged an entire musical comedy company assembled from the choruses and principals of several current Broadway shows. Among other spectacular scenes in this picture will be the reproduction of one of New York's gayest "early morning" resorts, with Hula-Hula dancers and other popular appurtenances, including a characterization of "Diamond Jim" Brady.

Pretty Ruth Clifford is playing the featured role in "A Modern Mona Lisa," a five-reel photoplay nearly completed at Universal City.

Arrow Shows "The Deemster"

The Arrow Film Corporation made the first exhibition run of their photo-dramatic version of Hall Caine's "The Deemster" at the Strand Theater, New York, February 8. A large audience of people prominent in literary, dramatic and picture circles gathered to witness the presentation, and although the run started at the unusually early hour of 9:30 o'clock this circumstance had no effect on attendance. The picture was enthusiastically received and applause was frequent during its presentation. The general comment of everyone leaving the theater was in effect that the Arrow company has a genuine, smashing hit in this picture play.

One of the many unusual scenes in Arrow's "The Deemster," screen version of Hall Caine's novel.

The principal role of Dan Mylrea is played by Derwent Hall Caine, the son of the author, who for the past ten years has been a prominent figure on the English stage, and has been frequently referred to by the London press as the leading romantic actor of England. Mr. Caine's interpretation of the trying role of Dan was remarkably convincing. The other characters were well played, and the dramatic interpretation of the story was singularly well balanced and effective.

State right interests were unusually well represented in the audience at the Strand, and every state right buyer of prominence was present or represented. Mr. Shallenberger's plans for release of the picture in connection with state right purchasers have been so far advanced that a very early presentation of "The Deemster" in the metropolitan centers will be made.

Many Book "Skinner's Dress Suit"

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay report record shattering business for Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit" in which Bryant Washburn is featured.

Manager Rothapfel, of the Rialto, New York City, was one of the first exhibitors to see "Skinner's Dress Suit" screened and he immediately substituted it for another feature and will show it at the Rialto during the week beginning February 18.

The Piccadilly at Rochester is reported to have shelved its regular program for three days, presenting instead, "Skinner's Dress Suit;" the Strand at Hartford, Connecticut, has contracted to show it three days. The Strand at Syracuse has also signed for it. These are only a few of the more important bookings in the New York territory. From the western K.-E.-S.-E. branches come flattering reports regarding this same picture.

No other picture in recent years has received more publicity than "Skinner's Dress Suit," the story having been published in The Saturday Evening Post, then issued in book form, and the book is now said to be the third best seller on the market and rapidly overhauling the leaders.

Adolph Zukor on Tour

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, has left New York on an extended tour of the country, during which he will make his first visit to the Lasky studio in Hollywood since the merger of the Famous Players and Lasky concerns. On his way west Mr. Zukor stopped off at Chicago, Kansas City and several other of the principal cities, where he conferred with exchange men and exhibitors on important questions incident to production and distribution.

Mr. Zukor will also complete the detailed arrangements for the marketing of Famous Players-Lasky productions in Japan, negotiations for which were closed some time ago, prior to the entry of the company into Argentine, Uruguay and Paraguay.

Exhibitor Joins Vitagraph

S. M. Bowers, formerly a Vitagraph exhibitor at Pocatello, Idaho, who recently sold his theater to Archibald and Caruthers, has been appointed city salesman in the Salt Lake City exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. He succeeds J. Deitch, who was forced to resign because of ill health. Mr. Bowers is devoting himself almost exclusively to booking "The Secret Kingdom," on which his first five days netted him eighteen new accounts.

Several promotions have been made by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. George Balsdon, Jr., who until recently was assistant manager of the New York exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has been appointed to the position of manager of the St. Louis branch of that company.

J. M. Tally, for some time road salesman in Montana for Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has been appointed branch manager, in charge of the Salt Lake City exchange, succeeding F. A. Wagner.

Earl H. Arnold, formerly salesman for the Triangle company, has been appointed salesman in the Syracuse branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., to cover north-eastern New York state.

H. L. Andress is a new salesman in the Minneapolis exchange, succeeding C. L. McVey, who recently came to New York to enter business for himself.

Ben Braasch, formerly booker in the Omaha office, has been made a salesman in that branch, covering Omaha city theaters; this makes the sales force of the Omaha office total four men.

Circus Strong Man with L-Ko

Frank Klein, one of the world's strongest men, has joined the L-Ko forces and will do all the heavy work in these comedies which are released on the Universal program. Among the feats of strength Mr. Klein performed was lifting a horse with his teeth, breaking rocks with his bare fists and juggling half ton weights.

Mr. Klein makes his debut in pictures in the L-Ko comedy, "Defective Detectives," in which he allows a fully loaded automobile to run over him.

DISPLAY PRIZMA PICTURES

Formal Demonstration of Color Photography to Scientists Reveals Commercial Value for Exhibitors' Uses

The reproduction of natural colors on the screen by the modern processes evolved in Prizma pictures, made by Prizma, Inc., of New York, was studied and demonstrated in a formal presentation of Prizma productions under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History and the New York Academy of Sciences, February 8. The development of color photography and relief was the subject of discussion.

The practical possibilities of Prizma films were also explained. It was shown that Prizma pictures differ in several ways from those previously developed by other processes. In these pictures there are used four colors made up of two pairs of complementary colors. The first pair is composed of red and green-blue, and the second of yellow and blue. These four shades photographically cover the entire range of visible colors.

Films of Standard Size

In taking Prizma pictures the camera controls a single strip of film. Two shutters are employed, one to cover the film during the period when the film is moving and the other carrying the color filters through which the light rays must pass before reaching the film exposure. Film of standard width and having the standard perforations is used in both the taking and the showing. The positives may then be exhibited on any standard projector after equipping the projector with a color wheel attachment.

Great Authors' Works for Mutual

A list of literary masterpieces has been secured as screen vehicles for Nance O'Neil and Marjorie Rambeau in the series of pictures they are making at the Powell-Mutual studios.

To the literature of the screen will be added the classics of such writers as Ibsen, Charles Dickens, Gertrude Atherton, Algernon Boyesen and Frederick Arnold Kummer.

"Mrs. Balfame," the first vehicle chosen for Nance O'Neil, has been completed at the studios of the Frank Powell Producing Company. The production is an adaptation of the novel of the same name by Gertrude Atherton. This is the first of her stories Mrs. Atherton has permitted to go to the screen.

"Hedda Gabler," on which Miss O'Neil is now working, is a picturization of the Ibsen play. "Hedda Gabler" was one of Miss O'Neil's most famour roles on the speaking stage and a part she has played over seven hundred times. Her first appearance in "Hedda Gabler" was in Australia. She then made a trip through South Africa, and later returning to America appeared in practically every city in this country in the same famous play.

"Bleak House," the third of Miss O'Neil's productions, comes from the pen of Charles Dickens.

"The Greater Woman," chosen for Miss Rambeau's first appearance on the screen, is a picturization of Algernon Boyesen's play which was presented extensively on the stage in Europe. This production has also been completed at the Powell studios.

"Motherhood," the second production on which Miss Rambeau is now working, is a film version of the play by Frederick Arnold Kummer, author and playwright.

"The Debt" will be the third offering featuring Miss Rambeau. This is a success from Europe.

"The Second Wife" is an original story by Caroline I. Hibbard which was written especially for Miss Rambeau.

Another of Ibsen's plays will be given to the public in "The Doll's House," in which Miss Rambeau will portray the character of Nora. This is lighter than most of Ibsen's plays and for that reason proved more interesting to many theater goers when shown on the stage.

Wilfred Lucas in New Drama

Wilfred Lucas is being featured in the Triangle Fine Arts drama, "A Love Sublime" (temporary title), adapted from the short story, "Orpheus," by Samuel Hopkins Adams, appearing in Collier's Weekly. In this production Lucas portrays the role of a Herculean Greek. He works in the steel mills and falls in love with a French waitress but she refuses to accept him because of heart trouble. She leaves to go to another city and is taken to the hospital suffering from a heart attack. Lucas follows later.

While searching for the girl he is espied by a famous sculptress. In Lucas she sees the exact type for which she is searching for a model. He is engaged to pose for her. While the girl is in the hospital she changes rooms with another patient. This second patient, a woman, dies and the Greek is informed that his sweetheart is dead. When Lucas is informed by the hospital authorities that the girl is dead he gives a very good imitation of a wild man on a rampage. He cleans out the hospital in rapid fire order and receives a jail sentence for his efforts.

Advance glimpses of "The Greater Woman," the first Powell Mutual production featuring Marjorie Rambeau. The popular stage star was pilated in her screen debut by Frank Powell.

While the girl is in the hospital she receives some cigarettes from Lucas and gives them to a well known crook who has been denied the privilege of smoking. Later in the story, just before the lovers are re-united, this kindness on the part of Lucas in giving the crook cigarettes is responsible for saving the big Greek's life.

Carmel Myers plays the leading feminine role opposite to Lucas. Other principals in the cast include Fred Turner, Alice Rae, George Beranger, Jack Brammall, James O'Shea and Bert Woodruff. "A Love Sublime" is being directed by Ted Browning.

Big Campaign for Next Clark Picture

One of the greatest publicity campaigns ever given a five-reel program picture has been launched in advance of the Famous Players-Paramount production, "The Valentine Girl," in which Marguerite Clark, the idol of the screen public, is to star.

By arrangement with six great newspapers in the east and middle west, there was issued on February 11 a total of 1,500,000 beautiful art supplements to these papers showing an exquisite reproduction of Miss Clark as the Valentine Girl, the issue being particularly timely because of the coming of St. Valentine's Day on the fourteenth of the month.

Every Paramount exhibitor will profit by the issuing of this art supplement because of the fact that Miss Clark is mentioned on the picture not only as the Valentine Girl but also as a Famous Players-Paramount star. The circulation of these million and a half art copies is so timed as to arouse interest in the Famous Players production, "The Valentine Girl," and is scheduled well in advence of the release day which is set for April 9.

Ragnar Omtvedt, the "gentleman skier" of Norway and Chicago, broke the world's ski-jumping record in 1916, with a leap of 196 feet, and he probably would have jumped farther if Ann Murdock had been practicing on top of the next hill. No, this is not Ragnar; it's Ann, up in Tom Furniss' territory somewhere, practicing how to fall gracefully. Miss Murdock has been signed by Mutual to play in Frohman productions.

EXHIBITORS CHRISTEN FILM

Theater Managers Favor "Battle Cry of War" as Name for Commodore Blackton's Sequel to "Battle Cry of Peace."

Exhibitors in all sections of the United States have been asked for an expression of what, in their opinion, is the best title for the special Vitagraph production which is the sequel to "The Battle Cry of Peace." Answers to these inquiries are now pouring in on Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

For purposes of identifying the picture while it was in production at the Vitagraph studios, this sequel to "The Battle Cry of Peace" was called "The Battle Cry of War."

The production is now ready for release. It may have its premier on Broadway within the month. Alice Joyce, Peggy Hyland, Naomi Childers, Mary Maurice, Harry Morey, Joseph Kilgour, Walter McGrail, James Morrison, and other Vitagraph players are in the cast.

Manager Irwin telegraphed 500 exhibitors, selected to a great extent at random from an alphabetical list, in all sections of the country, asking their opinion as to the right name for the production. Within twenty-four hours more than 275 telegraphic replies had been received, with fifty letters.

Almost without exception, the theaters—through their owners or managers—said that "Womanhood; or, The Glory of a Nation," is the best title that could be bestowed on Commodore Blackton's second big picture.

Exhibitors Who Sent Replies

George E. Simpson, president of the Regent Theater Co., Rochester; William Sievers, of St. Louis; Stillman Theater, Cleveland; Strand Theater, Milwaukee; Emery Theater, Providence; Alhambra, Cincinnati; Hippodrome, Toledo; T. A. Abernathy, Birmingham; L. A. De Hoff, New Theater, Baltimore; Frank J. Rembusch, Shelbyville, Ind.; W. S. Butterfield, Battle Creek; Cabrillo Theater, San Diego; Apollo Theater, Peoria; Finklestein & Ruben, Minneapolis; Tom Moore, Washington; George A. Whitney, Springfield, Mass.; Crescent, Nashville; Regent Theater, Ottawa; S. E. Greenebaum, Davenport, Ia.; Strand Theater, Toronto; Jacob Lourie, Beacon Theater, Boston; Buckingham Theater, Chicago; Strand, Tampa; H. C. Farley, Montgomery, Ala.; L. G. Bissinger, Dallas; Josiah Pearce & Sons, New Orleans; E. W. Lynch, Worcester; H. H. Ellison, Salt Lake City; J. L. Morrissey, Duluth; Carl G. Ludwig, Columbus, O.; Turner & Dahnken, San Francisco; Strand and Walnut Theaters, Philadelphia; Thomas D. Soriero, Park Theater, Boston; Alexander Pantages, Seattle; Ed. C. Paull, Springfield, O., and many more.

The cast surrounding Clara Kimball Young in the Selznick-Picture version of Eugene Falter's drama, "The Easiest Way," includes Joseph Kilgour in the role of Brockton which he created in the original Belasco production starring Frances Starr. Another well-known Broadway player in the cast is Rockliffe Fellows, who plays the part of Madison.

FOUR MONTHS OF METRO

Three Novels, Two Poems, and New Play by William Christy Cabanne, Among Spring Releases—New Barrymore Play

Among the pictures which it announces for release in February, March, April and May, the Metro Pictures Corporation calls the exhibitors' attention particularly to three features picturized from great novels, two plays based on famous poems, and a sixth play written and directed by William Christy Cabanne. The complete schedule of Spring releases follows:

Following the release on February 5, "The End of the Tour," with Lionel Barrymore as star, comes "One of Many," for release February 12. "One of Many" is presented by Arthur James, with Frances Nelson as star. The drama written and directed by William Christy Cabanne. "The Promise," based on James B. Hendryx's novel of the same name, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison, begins its appearance February 19, while on February 26, "The Secret of Eve" with Mme. Petrova as star, will be released.

"The Barricade," with Mabel Taliaferro as star, goes on the screen March 5. "The Beautiful Lie," an adaptation of the poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with Frances Nelson as star, will be presented March 12. "The Hidden Children," from the novel of the same name by Robert W. Chambers, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison, will follow on March 19. "The Mortal Sin," with Viola Dana as star, for March 26, will complete the March offerings.

"The Waiting Soul," with Mme. Petrova as star, will be released April 2. One week later, April 9, comes "The Power of Decision," with Frances Nelson, and on April 16, "His Father's Son," with Lionel Barrymore. April 23, "The Secret Spring," an adaptation of "The Hidden Spring," the famous novel by Clarence Budington Kelland, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison, is scheduled for April 23. "God's Law and Man's," with Viola Dana, will be the feature of April 30.

"The Belle of the Season," an adaptation of the poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with Emmy Wehlen as star, will lead the May releases, on May 6. "The Millionaire's Double," with Lionel Barrymore as star, will follow on May 13, and "To the Death," with Mme. Petrova, May 20.

Besides these features four comedies are announced for March as follows: March 5, "A Modern Romance," with Max Figman; March 12, "Handy Henry," with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew; March 19, "The High Cost of Living," with the Drews as stars; and March 26, "The Awakening of Helena Minor," with the Drews as stars.

Following the list just announced will come the chief Metro feature of the season, Miss Ethel Barrymore in "The Call of Her People," an adaptation of Edward Sheldon's play, "Egypt." This is the first of a series of attraction pictures in which Miss Barrymore will appear and which will cost not less than $100,000.

"Courage of Silence" at Rialto Theater

"The Courage of Silence," the new Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature starring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey, which had its premier at the Rialto Theater, New York, played to unusually large business and excited unbounded admiration from the dramatic critics and the theater-going public of the metropolis.

Samuel L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto, at the close of the run of "The Courage of Silence" in his palatial house, wrote the following letter to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.:

"The Courage of Silence" has finished its engagement at the Rialto and did a splendid week's business. It proved to be up to the Rialto standard in every way, and made capital entertainment and was very much liked.

Paul Scardon, directing a scene from "The Hawk," an on-the-way Vitagraph feature. From the left, Garfield Thompson, who picturized the story; Director Scardon, Robert Vaillard, Denton Vane, Ethel Gray Terry and Earle Williams.

Detroit Vitagraph Exchange

The newly created Detroit branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., located at 40 East Larned street, under the management of J. M. Duncan, has now been formally opened with an exceptionally well balanced and chosen staff of salesmen, bookers and shippers.

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has approved all of Mr. Duncan's selections, and on February 1 the Detroit branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. became a full-fledged exchange instead of, as in the past, operating as a sub-branch of the Cleveland branch.

William M. Elliott, formerly associated with Cohan & Harris and then as road salesman for John H. Kunsky, has been appointed city salesman and assistant manager under Mr. Duncan. Mr. Elliott has been identified with the industry for many years.

George M. Rowell, who has been a member of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. sales force for some time, and Alexander Y. Glennie, whose home is in Detroit and has, for some time, been with the local Pathe exchange, are road salesmen for the Detroit branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

M. C. Miller, Paul Kreps, and Felix P. Streicher, all of whom have been in the employ of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. or with the General Film Company, are, respectively, the new bookkeeper and cashier, booker, and shipper of the new Detroit branch. Miss Helen Stegman remains as stenographer and Miss C. Claeys is billing clerk.

A gathering of Canadian moving picture men was held at Windsor, Ontario, recently, at which the Canadian Motion Picture Association was formed. Protection for its members in their commercial relations is one of its purposes. If found to be of advantage to members, the association will buy and sell supplies and equipment. The association may also, if its members so desire, produce, import, buy and sell films for the benefit of its members.

Current Releases Reviewed

"The Honor System"

William Fox Presents P. A. Walsh's Master Drama. Reviewed by Charles R. Condon

BIG pictures come, and big pictures go, but some of them stay. William Fox's "The Honor System" belongs to this latter class. This statement frankly admits to be a prediction, but it is based upon the reception tendered this production at its opening at the Lyric Theater, New York, on Monday, February 12, and upon the film itself, so it is surrounded with safety.

First night attendances are easily lured into applause, but it takes a picture that is good to hold the people in absolute silence in the tense moments and move them to sob or gasp for breath in the highly dramatic or thrilling scenes. And "The Honor System" does just that.

The only time when its monopoly upon the spectators' emotions is threatened is in the middle of the last act. At that period the prison reform work begins a sanctimonious procession of sweet kindnesses, but it is interrupted in time by the dramatic thread of the story, which, while punctuated at proper intervals with illustrations of how a prison can perform its proper functions and be fit for human beings at the same time, still maintains the strength and interest necessary to drive these facts home.

"The Honor System" is about ten reels in length, and is presented in three acts, all good ones. Shortly after its start it goes into high, and doesn't vary a hair's breadth in its speed to the end of the first act. After Stanton's mother, a pathetic little figure, aged, loving and self-sacrificing, gives way before her son's ambitions, and bids him farewell and good luck in his new appointment in the far west, the spectator is thrilled by a daring Mexican raid upon a frontier town, the subsequent hard-fought battle, and a rescue which made us all feel glad and got some applause.

On the heels of this hard riding and fierce fighting, which brought about some comedy touches in the treatment of the perniciously active Flynn kids, comes the funeral of a man who died that others might live. Here Trixie Bennett, the belle of the town's social mecca—a cheap saloon, introduces herself as a girl who might live right with the proper amount of moral support. Stanton is fooled according to the plans of "Three-Fingered Louis," Trixie's accomplice, and is finally delivered from the girl's trickery by the law, which tries him for the murder of Louis. Although the act was committed in self-defense, evidence and an aspiring district attorney succeed in having him sent to prison under a life sentence.

It is here that the picture gets in its best work for prison reform by recording some sensational conditions said by the subtitle to have been fact in a certain prison at one time, and which may still exist in some degree in prisons not subjected to the searchlight of investigation. A close-up shows Stanton, seated in the prison dining room, breaking open a loaf of bread whose interior is considerably alive. Other atrocities flashed upon the screen are the practices of flogging and of consigning offending prisoners to a blood-curdling dungeon.

In one scene a cockroach, laden with a pencilled message giving the hour set for a "break," comes to a guard on its way from one cell to another, crawls over his shoulder, around his collar, and, just as discovery seems inevitable, turns off, crosses the other shoulder, and moves on along the wall to warn the next prisoner of the time to join in the concerted break for liberty.

This review has already gone along too far without mentioning the name of R. A. Walsh, the producer of "The Honor System." His reputation as a director to date has built a suitable pinnacle upon which to rest his achievement in making this masterful photodrama. Mr. Walsh has combined in this picture the necessary elements of a great production. It is sensational, thrilling, beautiful, impressive, destructive in the subject it attacks, and yet a wonderfully human story well told. The script is by Henry Christeen Warnack.

It is not with any intention of detracting from Mr. Walsh's credit that we mention that the staging of some of the scenes and the work of members of its cast show touches which have become known as the fingerprints of Griffith.

It would be possible to go on here and relate at length notable incidents and gripping scenes in this picture, and still miss many of them. It is crowded with things that people like to see, and in its realism contains some that are not pleasing to the eye. But in that lies its power to do good. A state hiding a prison like the one shown here will lose no time in renovating and humanizing it after viewing "The Honor System."

Governor George W. P. Hunt of Arizona did much to make this picture possible, and is introduced in it. Milton Sills, Charles Clary, Miriam Cooper and Gladys Brockwell have a little the best roles in the picture, with Arthur Mackley, James A. Marcus, George Walsh, P. J. Cannon, Mrs. Cora Drew, Roy Rice and Johnny Reese not very much behind them in their importance as characters.

To dwell upon their merits would only mean a series of individual eulogies to the effect that each plays a part perfectly. The above mentioned, and others who go unnamed on the program, worked earnestly and effectively to the end that the picture is big in a big sense, and is a reward in itself for their efforts. The titles, by Hettie Gray Baker, and the photography, by George Benoit, are in accord with the general excellence of "The Honor System."

"The Black Stork"

Sheriott Pictures Production Deals with Eugenics. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

DR. HARRY J. HAISELDEN of Chicago, the featured player in this picture-with-a-purpose, came into prominence throughout the whole country about a year ago when he refused to perform an operation to save the life of a defective infant. The newspapers "played up" the story from both the scientific and the heart-interest standpoint and the case was widely discussed. Dr. Haiselden and his belief that a physician has no right to prolong a useless life aroused a storm o f protest and of praise. Through this case Dr. Haiselden's advanced theories regarding eugenics and allied subjects received immense publicity.

This five-reel production is a statement in motion pictures of Dr. Haiselden's views. Dr. Haiselden appears in the play in his own role of a physician. His opinions regarding the prevention of marriage of persons unfit for parenthood, and that defective children should be allowed to die, form the theme of the production and the story introduced and the types shown are the instances by which the physician seeks to prove his cause.

There can be no doubt of the interest the picture will arouse, both because of the theme and because of the wide publicity the doctor and the story, founded on the original Chicago case, have received. And the production will doubtless satisfy the audiences it attracts, since it argues its case well and fulfills its purpose. The picture is depressing and unpleasant. One is overwhelmed with a sense of futile pity for the unfortunate children and older persons shown, and agrees that any methods which would alleviate such sorrow are commendable, and that if wider publicity, through print and through motion pictures, will aid in decreasing the amount of disease and deformity in the world, that this production and others of its kind are justified. On the other hand there is always the danger that much of the interest aroused is morbid and hysterical and may have a harmful effect on too sensitive individuals.

Defective types shown in "The Black Stork."

The story which forms the background of the play was written by Jack Lait, the well-known Chicago author. The leading roles in support of Dr. Haiselden are taken by experienced screen players, among them Hamilton Revelle, Jane Fearnly, Allan Murnane, George Moss, Elsie Esmond, Henry Bergman and Edgar Davenport. Revelle plays Claude Leffingwell, a young man who although tainted with hereditary disease and advised against marriage, weds Annye Schultz. Dr. Haiselden, in an effort to dissuade the young man, takes him through a hospital ward where he is shown many types of defective children, who pay for the sins of their parents.

But the marriage takes place, and the child born is defective. Dr. Haiselden believes that it should be allowed to die, but leaves the final decision with the mother. In a vision, the mother foresees the probable life of the crippled infant, and in this connection all the horror and sadness of a defective's life is shown. She decides to let the child die.

In contrast with the reckless attitude of the man who marries in spite of warning is shown the sacrifice of a young woman who refuses to wed because she fears that she too bears the mark of "The Black Stork," a fear later proved to be unfounded.

"Beware of Strangers"

Selig Special Feature Reveals Crime Syndicate Methods. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THE reports of police committees which run to ground criminals of various sorts and break up crime combines served as the basic material for this production. It is not primarily a play. It is rather a translation into picture form of the actual workings of an underworld gang which existed in real life. Their various achievements have been linked together by a fictitious romance which serve to give form to the material.

The production is handled in an admirable fashion by Director Colin Campbell. A cast which is really "all-star" interprets the roles, for each player has played leads in former productions. Each part in this play is important and difficult, and requires an experienced interpreter, and every member in the cast does exceptionally good work. Thomas Santschi plays John Mentor, chief of the syndicate, in a strong, convincing fashion. Fritzi Brunette does unusually good work in the most prominent woman's role, that of Bertha Gibson, who becomes "The Lure." Vivian Rich and Edward Coxen, formerly prominent in American-Mutual pictures, do brilliant work, the former in a short but intense role of "The Lorelei," the latter in the important role of Harry Lyttle, the unwilling tool of the trust. Jack Richardson is excellent as clairvoyant. Others wholly satisfactory are Bessie Eyton as Mentor's daughter, the only really sympathetic role in the play, Frank Clark, Al Filson, Harry Lonsdale and Eugenie Besserer.

The events are interestingly presented. The attention is easily held throughout the eight reels. The photography and settings are good.

Considered from the box-office angle, the production will undoubtedly draw since there is usually a certain fascination about underworld stories. The picture is intended as a warning and in revealing crime tricks will fulfill its purpose. Crime is certainly not made attractive in the picture, but good taste is used in presenting a sordid phase of life. The offering will interest and satisfy the audiences it attracts and will offend no one, but it is primarily a preachment and is not intended as a diverting amusement.

Rights to the picture for Illinois and Indiana are controlled by the Central Film Company of Chicago.

The Story: John Mentor, supposedly an upright business man is secretly the head of a crime syndicate. This is run on principles as efficient as any well managed legitimate business. Through their information bureau they learn that a young banker, Henry Lyttle, in a certain small town is a likely "prospect." Accordingly several members of the gang set to work on the case. The first to arrive in the town is the clairvoyant, Professor Russburg. Bertha Gibson, secretary to the banker and engaged to marry him, consults the fortune teller about her fiance's business troubles and through her Russburg learns that Lyttle is about to go to the city to borrow funds. He forwards the information to the gang.

As a result, when Lyttle arrives in the city, he falls into the hands of others of the trust who trick him into robbing his own bank to gamble with the funds. He loses and is set adrift, a fugitive from justice. In the village, the savings of the townspeople have been swept away when the bank fails and as a result, Bertha's father commits suicide. Knowing that Lyttle has robbed his own bank, Bertha's love turns to hate and her one object becomes revenge.

After going to the city, Bertha again meets the clairvoyant, who puts her in touch with the crime syndicate. She meets and drags him, against his will, into the sordid business.

After working many unpleasant blackmailing schemes and extorting money from high and low, the entire gang comes into the net of the government officials. Chief witness against them is Mentor's own daughter whom he loved, but who had left his home when she became suspicious of his business. She had assumed another name and, not knowing her identity, Mentor's gang had succeeded in getting her fortune away from her. In turn, she aided the government, ignorant of the fact that her father headed the trust.

The story ends with the arrest or suicide of the members of the gang and the advice "Beware of Strangers." Walter Howie, a Chicago newspaper man, is the author.

"The Deemster"

Arrow Feature Nine Reel Drama—On State Rights. Reviewed by George W. Graves

WITH Charles A. Taylor and E. A. Bingham back of the scenario and Howell Hansel at the directorial tiller, an immensely powerful screen interpretation of Hall Caine's extensively read novel has been moulded into shape. However compelling the subject may be in the book form, it would seem to one seeing the film version and not having read the book that the picture must be an acutely graphic visualization of the latter and that in its own field of appeal it must measure up to the book's standard of power. Its every situation has been handled with the consummate art of a director who understands his work thoroughly, keeping the action in a continuous flow of interest and bringing out the dominant notes of the story in sharp relief. The picture truly is crowded with impressive scenes, and all these dramatic apexes have been linked together without any break in continuity or suspension of interest.

Derwent Hall Caine's work as Dan places him at once in the front ranks of our screen portrayers. The larger part of the sympathy flows directly to him and this, of course, is not due wholly to the story, powerful as it is, but is in a large measure attributable to the actor's realistic impersonation. To be explicit, Mr. Caine makes us feel continually the full power of the agony he experiences. This feeling of anguish "got over" so well, with the help of Marian Swayne and the fine cast, that the people in attendance at the initial showing at the Strand Theater, New York, were moved to real tears. Most were ready to testify that the picture's deep pathos got the best of them.

Others being appropriately cast and doing splendid work are Sidney Bracy, Albert Froom and K. Barnes Clarendon. The quality of acting in this piece leaves little to be desired, and the character types prove to be perfect.

One of the many unusual scenes in Arrow's "The Deemster," screen version of Hall Caine's novel.

The general atmosphere, contributed by excellent locations, realistic interiors and quaint costuming, is one of conviction. Superior photography has a large part in this.

Hall Caine's name banishes from thought all doubt as to the value and power of the picture's plot. In fact the name Hall Caine is one the exhibitor can count on to bring him business. Like a true story, "The Deemster" gradually develops with big moments to a stirring final two reels. Unlike anything ever before shown on the screen, is the judgment scene on the traditional law mount on the Isle of Man. The return of Dan Mylrea, the cast-off, in the guise of the rescuing priest brings about a series of gripping scenes.

"The Deemster" is another picture to go on record as evidence of what the screen at its best is capable of. It stands head and shoulders above the ordinary run of features and exhibits very little for even the most fastidious to find fault with.

Daniel Mylrea is the fisherman son of the Bishop of Man, the supreme ruler of the isle. The Deemster, or governor, is next in authority. Dan is in love with Mona, daughter of the Deemster, but he is vehemently opposed in his love by both the latter and his son Ewan, with whom he has had a quarrel. The Deemster forbids Dan entrance to his house, but in spite of this, the lover comes at night to see his sweetheart. Ewan, led by his father to believe that Dan has dishonored his sister, sets forth to kill Dan. But in the terrific struggle on the cliffs Ewan himself is bested, falling to the rocks below. Dan and his friends, who promise to "stick by" him, take the body to sea, weight it and consign it to the depths. But the body becomes dislodged and next morning it is cast up on the shore. Dan, suspected of the murder, is put in prison. His father, the Bishop, gives him a chance to escape, but the youth voluntarily decides to atone for his sin. At the trial he pleads guilty.

Instead of pronouncing the expected sentence of death, the Bishop sitting at the trial, sentences his son to complete banishment—"no tongue to speak to him, no hand to touch him, and in death, no hand to bury him." For seven years Dan lives in desolation in a hut by the sea. At the end of this time a plague ravages the island. The people look for deliverance to an Irish monk who has the antidote for the pestilence. The monk, sole survivor of his wrecked ship, staggers to Dan's cabin, tells of his mission and expires. Dan puts on the priest's garb, takes the curative powder and goes forth among the people on his holy mission. The last person requiring treatment is the Deemster. With only enough medicine for one, Dan, himself stricken, faces his enemy. Realizing the hoplessness of his sentence, Dan prefers to die. So, revealing himself to the Deemster, he gives him the cure and then stumbles back to his shore hut. Here his last moments are brightened by the arrival of Mona, and the lovers, cruelly separated for seven years, and about to be separated again, enjoy a brief embrace.

"The Adventurer"

Art-Dramas Release Produced by U. S. Amusement Corporation. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A STORY with a novel plot, involving mystery and thrills, is this Art-Dramas release, which takes its place among the most powerful offerings yet circulated by this company. Not only are the characters on the screen held in mystery, but the audience itself is forced to do some guessing, though not enough to become burdensome. The story, from a novel by Upton Sinclair, has to do with a ruse practiced by the heir of a large fortune, to get evidence against a so-called charitable institution which is consuming his father's funds but not dispensing material charity. The fact that we do not know he is the millionaire's son makes matters the more interesting, forming the groundwork for a good surprise later. Mme. Blache, directing, has shown remarkable ability in all five reels.

Marian Swayne, an actress who is coming to the front lately, does splendid, wholly natural work in this, lending both charm and power to the picture. Pell Trenton, as her lover, the millionaire's son, is both a fine type for the part and a splendid actor. In the support Kirk Brown, Charles Halton, Ethel Stanard and Martin Hayden figure strongly.

"The Adventurer" is a splendid mixture of the detective drama, the melodrama and the heart-interest drama. Its two prime factors are action and suspense. The film is of the kind that will not disappoint wherever shown.

Jim, in appearance a product of the slums, saves from death a girl who would rather commit suicide than resort to dishonor to save her life. He and Dorothy become fast friends, and finally lovers. Margaret Adams, sister of Jim, who is in reality the son of the late millionaire Adams trying to discover the enormous leakage in the funds of the Adams charitable institution, happens to run across a clue pointing to her brother's whereabouts, and has Dorothy arrested as implicated in his disappearance. Margaret accidentally hears enough in her own home to be convinced that her guardian is guilty of defrauding the charitable institution. Caught spying, she is about to be put out of the way by the conspirators, when Jim comes to the rescue. Having accumulated all the evidence he needs, Jim has the whole gang arrested, and the story closes with Dorothy's release and the happiness of all.

Marion Swayne in "The Adventurer."

"The Gentle Intruder"

Mary Miles Minter in Five Reel American-Mutual Drama. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

"THE Gentle Intruder" is a gentle sort of a story, which moves along smoothly to a pleasant conclusion. Mary Miles Minter is the chief attraction and is as appealing as usual. She is slightly more grown up than in previous plays and for a change wears her blond curls pinned up sedately instead of floating about her shoulders.

Miss Minter's work is entirely satisfactory, and she is given a capable supporting cast. George Fisher, a newcomer to the American studios from the Ince forces, appears opposite Miss Minter for the first time. He is a youthful player of a popular type and is well selected for this part. The story does not give anyone a chance to display unusual acting ability. Marie Van Tassel as Aunt Rebecca creates a very good character role and will share honors with the lead in the attention of patrons. A number of prominent players appear in the cast, including Eugenie Forde, George Periolat and Franklyn Ritchie.

Sylvia insists on leaving the Baxter home.

James Kirkwood directed the picture from a story by Clifford Howard. The story material proves slight for five reels and as there is little complication of plot, there is a noticeable amount of padding. This somewhat lessens the dramatic value of the play. As a whole, however, the offering will please and interest audiences weary of thrills and problem plays and will prove a very good number for a family program.

The Story: Mrs. Baxter and her daughter are social climbers, discontented because of their lack of fortune. Baxter, an attorney, is released from his financial worries when an old friend makes him his heir in a will. The Baxter family finance their social campaign on money borrowed on the strength of this will. Then, just before his death, the old man learns of the existence of a niece, and changes his will to leave her the bulk of his fortune. Baxter destroys the will and keeps the fortune, but sends for the girl.

Sylvia (Miss Minter) becomes a member of the Baxter household as companion to Baxter's sister, Aunt Rebecca. The Baxters' social career is proving disastrous to Arnold, the young son of the family. Sylvia secretly falls in love with the boy and for that reason decides to go away. Her determination brings about a confession from Baxter, who had grown to hate the ill-gotten wealth, that Sylvia is the real heiress. Sylvia prefers Arnold to the fortune and insists that Baxter shall control it. She and Arnold are married and the rest of the family are cured of their snobbishness.

"A Goat Without Horns"

Episode 10 of "The Secret Kingdom" Released February 26. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THE bringing of the wild negro Voodoo worshipers into this release provides a stable basis for melodramatic action of high tensity. When they finally get Arline Pretty on the sacrificial altar and start to fry and cut her up at the same time, most in the audience will feel the cold shivers running up and down their backs. Some of the incantations and black magic used by the cruel priestess, whose heart is as black as her body, may start the waves of wonderment and incredulity circulating through the audience, or that portion of it hailing "from Missouri," but even then these things help to lend a touch of mystery and occultism, a touch which never seems to fail to meet with response.

This episode is not very convincing in its action. But before we have a chance to wonder "How?" and "Why?" something else is being quickly enacted before the gaze, usually something in the nature of a thrill, so the interest is not lost. The required exotic atmosphere is not there at all. It is all too evident that the picture was taken in the good old U. S. A., in the midst of civilization, and far from the land of palm trees and poisonous reptiles. We only remember seeing one palm tree, very much isolated, as opposed to forests of New York state trees.

There is a very exciting climb down a sheer cliff on a rope-ladder, the ladder being severed by a vicious looking savage. This is "old stuff" but it always has its appeal.

Charles Richman is much better in this episode than in the last, while Arline Pretty, too, is quite prominent and convincing. There is not quite enough of Dorothy Kelly in this to satisfy her admirers.

The octoroon wife of the dead "Swamp Adder" betrays Julia into the power of a Voodoo priestess. However, for a large sum of gold, Ramon buys back Julia. A goat bound for sacrifice is stolen and as a result the natives decide that Princess Julia is forced to "be the goat." Phillip shoots her executioner just as the fatal blow is about to fall and consternation reigns in the ceremony.

The episode ends with the escape of the white captives from the terrorized natives.

"The Heart of Texas Ryan"

Selig K. E. S. E. Release of February 12. Five Reels. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

TOM MIX is featured in this unusually realistic western drama. With a supporting cast including several popular players, Bessie Eyton, George Fawcett and Frank Campeau among them, with plenty of action and a story which holds the interest, the release is a satisfactory one, especially for audiences which like "westerns." It will be liked best by admirers of Tom Mix, for it is an elaboration of the sort of short length picture Mix has played in.

The best feature of the picture is its realism. The various episodes are dramatically and vigorously presented. Credit for this is due both to the director, E. A. Martin, and the players, whose work is good throughout. The least good feature is the story itself, the plot of which is occasionally lost among irrelevant episodes. However, there is enough excitement in the events to make up for the plot shortcomings.

Texas is brought safely home.

The Story: Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton) returns to her father's ranch in Texas after attending school in the East. Jack Parker (Tom Mix), a cowboy in the employ of her father (George Fawcett), is in love with the girl. Jack, early in the play, gets into a fight with "Dice" McAllister, marshall (Frank Campeau), who is really in league with Antonio Moreno (William Rhino), cattle rustler.

Moreno wishes to marry Texas because of the Ryan fortune. When he is rejected, he kidnaps the girl in order to demand ransom. But Jack foils the plot and saves Texas. Next Moreno and his gang "rustle" a large number of Ryan's cattle, and again Jack comes to the rescue, captures Moreno and forces the gang to return the cattle. Moreno escapes and Jack follows him across the border. There he is captured by Moreno and is about to be shot when Texas and her father, having learned of his danger, arrive after a thrilling race in their automobile and with a large sum of money ransom him. Jack then realizes that the girl's love is given to him and not to her eastern suitor, as he had supposed.

"The Black Wolf"

Lasky-Paramount Drama in Five Reels Released February 12. Reviewed by George W. Graves

MARGARET TURNBULL has based her script for this picture upon the play by Jean Barrymore. It is a story of the knights of old variety, with Lou Tellegen cast as a bold adventurer and robber of the Robin Hood school, an enemy of the rich, but friend of the poor. The part is an attractive one of itself and the star is earnest enough in his efforts to portray the character indicated by the story. But the fact in the matter is that the part does not fit the star, for although his emotional work is good one cannot easily accept him as the reckless, wild-blooded Black Wolf. And so this is a serious handicap to all his efforts. Nell Shipman, playing opposite him, makes her debut as a Lasky star. She does fit her part as the Dona Isabel. It is not an extremely emotional role, but there are chances for her to shine, and those who have seen Nell Shipman's previous work know that she is a dainty, winsome figure on the screen and an actress of no mean power. H. J. Herbert, playing the heavy, is the best performer in the support, which is only fair.

Lou Tellegen in "The Black Wolf."

The play has not enough illusion to be taken as a fairy story, and not enough reality to be taken seriously. The most attractive thing about it is the gorgeous Lasky "upholstering." The story has a few good situations, to be sure, but these usually concern the star, and so take on a lustre of unreality. To the fastidious this piece will not appeal, but to a class less exacting it will no doubt offer an hour's pleasant entertainment. Lou Tellegen's name means much to the exhibitor, since his stage work is popular, and the mention of Nell Shipman's name, too, is valuable to the exhibitor in an advertising way, since she has been seen in some strong roles.

Although a price is on the head of the bold, dashing robber, Black Wolf, he visits the lady of his love at her castle, always evading the search of the guards. Don Phillip, a hard sort of character, wishes to marry Dona Isabel, but, luckily, he has not the power to force her to comply with his wishes. On one of his visits, Black Wolf is captured. He is spared death only when Isabel pleads with Phillip and promises to marry him. The Black Wolf becomes the personal property of the Duke, but the time comes, not soon after, when it is discovered that the Black Wolf is the real Duke del Miras. In a pistol duel in which the two men participate, the vicarious Duke is killed, so a happy ending results for the lovers.

"Sloth"

The Fourth of McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" February 19. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THIS was originally on the schedule as the sixth release of the "Seven Deadly Sins," but because of its timely note of patriotism it has been "shoved forward" two numbers. Its theme is the supplanting of sloth in the mental constitution of a young girl of modern times with energetic patriotic action, when she realizes that the girls of today owe their heritage of happiness and freedom to the heroines of the past as well as to its heroes. After reading of some of these dauntless heroines she realizes the sin of her own lolling lethargy and goes to the front to become a modern idol of feminine courage (Uncle Sam is represented as being embroiled in a 1917 war).

Three separate stories depicting the deeds of valor of these women from out the past provide the interest for about two-thirds of the picture's length, while their reflection in the life of the modern girl makes up the other third. In these three entertaining and graphic portrayals Charlotte Walker is featured, each time supported by a different cast, and the players every time, too, are very strong. Miss Walker's most forceful characterization is in the third story, where she is seen as a stirring figure of Revolutionary days. She works with zest, feeling and conviction. In the modern story Shirley Mason makes a very appealing figure, with George Le Guere at her right hand.

Charlotte Walker in "Sloth," fourth of McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" series.

Some very realistic touches in direction lend emphasis to the production. As entertainment this picture is good. The first two tales are a little hurried in their telling, and are not over-clear, due to this and the difficulty encountered in identifying characters. But all will feel the force of the Revolutionary story and the impressiveness of the whole picture. Action is always a predominant element. "Sloth" makes a worthy successor in the line of the "Seven Deadly Sins" productions. Photography and settings are adequate, while the costuming ranges from fair to very good. Theodore Marston directed.

"The Last of the Ingrams"

Triangle-Kay Bee, Featuring William Desmond. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

"THE LAST OF THE INGRAMS," is a drama tense with interest, depicting life of the old Cape Cod inhabitants. It shows vividly the narrow-minded and unsympathetic spirit of the sanctimonious New England villagers. The action is smooth but not quick, until the auction scene is introduced; then things move swiftly.

William Desmond in the powerful Triangle, "The Last of the Ingrams."

William Desmond, taking the part of Jules Ingram, is the last of his race. The villagers and their ways have no interest for him and he seeks pleasure in strong drink. He craves it more and more and finally parts with most of his treasures to satisfy his desire. At last there is nothing left but his home, which is heavily mortgaged. Rufus Moore, a miserable skinflint and a big man in the town, forecloses, and Jules' few remaining things are auctioned off. But Jules has some fighting spirit left, and causes much excitement when he breaks in by offering to allow himself to be sold with his household goods.

Mercy Reed, portrayed by Margery Wilson, has erred in the one way unforgivable to her neighbors, and leads a solitary life. Between Jules and Mercy there is a bond of sympathy, and when he is forced to leave his home, Mercy takes him to her cottage. He is successful in fighting the drink habit and takes a new interest in life.

The villagers conspire to drive Jules and Mercy from the place and, headed by Moore, they attack the little home, but Jules is able to calm the wild crowd.

Accidentally, Jules learns that Rufus Moore was the cause of Mercy's wrongdoing, and forces him to apologize before all the villagers. The people are ready to tar and feather Moore, but he is seized by the authorities for other wrongs. Some land in the west that still belongs to Jules, but is thought to be worthless, proves to hold valuable oil wells. With a promise of a bright and happy future before them, Jules and Mercy set out for the west.

The picture has been elaborately and artistically produced and is one that should take well with the public. The acting of William Desmond and Margery Wilson is excellent, and, with the help of intelligent support, a wonderfully effective play is made.

"One of Many"

Metro Offering in Five Parts Presented by Arthur James. Reviewed by George W. Graves

Frances Nelson in "One of Many."

THE girl who makes a supreme sacrifice for a loved one of her family is seen again, taking her unmerited punishment in this story, written and directed by Wm. Christy Cabanne. The story has the advantage of following along the lines of life as it is, not in remote cases, but in the majority of cases where a complication of its kind comes up. The characters generally are made to act as every-day men and women do. The plot suffers a little from being hackneyed, but not from conviction or realism. Its holding power is a little weak at the outset, but subsequent to this the interest accelerates until the climax, which is quite strong, but a little over-acted.

Frances Nelson, a the head of a good cast, proves that she not only has a charming personality but that she can portray emotion. She has a number of chances to bring her powers into play, and none of them are wasted. She was not at all unfortunate in having a part so much the center of sympathy. Niles Welch, whose work in the boarding-school Marguerite Clark picture, "Miss George Washington," created quite a furore, is opposite Frances Nelson. While the part doesn't give him a fraction of the opportunity he had in the Clark picture to display his real talents, (which lie a little more along the line of comedy) he makes a realistic character of the "black sheep." Much commendation is due Richard Dix, who handles a heavy part with splendid effect. Caroline Harris and Harold Entwhistle are the two remaining prominent characters. All of the types selected by the director are singularly good.

"One of Many" makes good entertainment. It points to a good moral, has a charming star, is well acted and capably directed. Its only serious drawback is a story, which in its general form, we have all witnessed or heard told before.

Shirley Bryson, to gain money to send her sick mother into a different climate, sacrifices herself to a wealthy man, Templeton, who, taking advantage of her plight, makes a bargain with her. Shirley leads her mother to think she has married the man whose money they enjoy. Lowry, the butler of the house, tries to force his attentions upon Shirley, whereupon he is discharged. The girl's mother at length learns the true state of affairs, and gives up her battle for life. Shirley, hearing of her mother's death, becomes a cabaret dancer. She meets Harold Templeton, and, not knowing he is the disowned son of the man to whom she sacrificed herself, she marries him. Harold has continually protected Shirley from the designs of Lowry, who has ever haunted her steps since she left the elder Templeton. Finally the latter decides to pardon his son; Shirley and Templeton, Sr., come face to face, and their actions betray them before Harold. The young husband is at first unforgiving, but considering that Shirley took the downward road to save her mother, and that she is really pure at heart, he forgives her.

"Red Saunders Plays Cupid," a five-reel Central America comedy-drama, is under production at Universal City.

FOR SALE

New Prints of D. W. Griffith—Biograph Releases Starring Mary Pickford, Blanch Sweet and Henry Walthall and other big money makers—With Posters

EDWARD M. ROSKAM 1003 Candler Building NEW YORK

EXECUTIVE

thoroughly experienced in Producing and Exchange ends, also Expert Organizer and Efficiency Expert, with highest record and references, seeks new connection.
Address M. F., Care Motography, Chicago

ADVERTISING
By Motion Pictures

By ERNEST A. DENCH

This subject is one on which there is scarcely any information available, so this work, by Mr. Dench, is the first in the field. The author, who is a recognized motion picture authority has covered every phase of this fascinating theme in an easy, understandable manner.

The value of the motion picture screen as an advertising medium, is becoming more pronounced every day. Hence, you will be sure to gain much practical assistance from a study of this book. Send check or stamps for $1.50 today.

MOTOGRAPHY, Monadnock Block, Chicago

BOUND VOLUMES OF
MOTOGRAPHY

We have on hand the following volumes of MOTOGRAPHY, bound in black cloth, leather backed and tipped, and gold lettered, which we offer at $3.00.

Volumes XI and XII, 1914
Volumes XIII and XIV, 1915
Volumes XV and XVI, 1916

Motography :: Monadnock Bldg.
CHICAGO

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in hooking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's hooking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Monday.

D	2-5	Cupid's Thumb Print .....2, Selig	21702–03
C	2-5	The Hall Room Girls (Claire McCormack)....1, Vita.	21704
T	2-5	Selig Tribune, No. 11.....1, Selig	21705

Tuesday.

D	2-6	The Hoodooed Story (Richard Travers)....2, Essanay	21706–07
C	2-6	Ghost Hounds (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21708

Wednesday.

T	2-7	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24.....s, Essanay	21709
		(Alaska) .....s

Thursday.

T	2-8	Selig Tribune, No. 12.....1, Selig	21710
	2-8	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21711

Friday.

D	2-9	The Trap (Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin)..1, Kalem	21712
	2-9	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21713
D	2-9	The Suitor from Siam (Mary Anderson).....1, Vita.	21714

Saturday.

D	2-10	Desertion and Non-Support (Marguerite Clayton)..... .....2, Essanay	21715–16
D	2-10	The Prima Donna's Special (Helen Gibson)..1, Kalem	21717
D	2-10	A Strange Adventure (Jack Pickford).....1, Selig	21718

Monday.

D	2-19	The Great Treasure .....2, Selig	21741–42
D	2-19	The Meeting (Bobby Connelly).....1, Vitagraph	21743
T	2-19	Selig Tribune, No. 15.....1, Selig	21744

Tuesday.

C	2-20	A Four-Cent Courtship (Bryant Washburn)..2, Essanay	21745–46
C	2-20	A Flyer in Flapjacks (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21747

Wednesday.

T	2-21	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 25.....s, Essanay	21748
T	2-21	British Columbia .....s, Essanay

Thursday.

T	2-22	Selig Tribune, No. 16.....1, Selig	21749
C	2-22	The Newlyweds' Mistake (Irene Wallace).....1, Vim	21750

Friday.

D	2-23	The Screened Vault (Ollie Kirkby).....1, Kalem	21751
C	2-23	Art and Paint .....1, Vim	21752
D	2-23	The Gang (Mary Anderson).....1, Vitagraph	21753

Saturday.

D	2-24	Is Marriage Sacred? 11th—The Extravagant Bride (Marguerite Clayton) .....2, Essanay	21754–55
D	2-24	A Brother's Sacrifice .....1, Selig	21756

V. L. S. E. Program

1-8	Captain Jinks and Himself (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-15	Indiscretion (Lillian Walker)	5,000
1-15	Jolts and Jewelry (Hughie Mack and Patsy De Forest)....	1,000
1-15	Captain Jinks' Stingy Spirit (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-15	The Hon. Mr. Oxenham (Fourth Episode of the Secret Kingdom)	5,000
1-18	Captain Jinks' Widow (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland).....	5,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Trial Balance (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Blind Justice (Benj. Christie).....	5,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels).....	1,000

Mutual Program

Monday.

D	2-12	Shorty Turns Wild Man (Shorty Hamilton)..... .....2, Monogram	05322–23

Tuesday.

T	2-13	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05324

Wednesday.

T	2-14	Mutual Weekly, No. 111.....1, Mutual	05325
	2-14	See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont	05326

Thursday.

C	2-15	Jerry's Big Mystery (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05327

Friday.

	2-16	Title Not Given	05328

Saturday.

	2-17	Title Not Given	05329

Monday.

D	2-19	Shorty Promotes His Love Affair (Shorty Hamilton).. .....2, Monogram	05333–34

Tuesday.

T	2-30	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05335

Wednesday.

T	2-21	Mutual Weekly, No. 112.....1, Mutual	05336
	2-21	See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont	05337

Thursday.

C	2-22	Jerry's Brilliant Scheme (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05338

Friday.

C	2-23	Calamity Ann's New Job (Louise Lester)..1, American	05339

Saturday.

D	2-24	Mouth-Organ Jack (J. Warren Kerrigan)..1, American	05340

Universal Program

Monday.

C	2-12	A Hasty Hazing (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor	02164

Tuesday.

D	2-13	The Indian's Lament (Marie Walcamp)....1, Gold Seal	02165
	2-13	No Release This Week.....1, Victor
C	2-13	The Girl of the Hour (Hubert Brennon).....1, Victor	02166

Wednesday.

D	2-14	The Girl Reporter's Scoop (Irene Hunt).....2, Imp	02167
C	2-14	The End of a Perfect Day (Hank Mann).....1, L-Ko	02168
T	2-14	Animated Weekly, No. 59.....1, Universal	02169

Thursday.

C	2-15	The Losing Winner (Carter De Haven).....2, Victor	02170
	2-15	No Release This Week .....Big U
	2-15	No Release This Week .....Powers
D	2-15	The Half-Breed's Confession .....1, Big U	02171

Friday.

D	2-16	The Fourth Witness (Louise Lovely).....2, Laemmle	02172
T	2-16	Screen Magazine, Issue No. 7.....1, Universal	02173
C	2-16	Brave Little Waldo (Fatty Voss).....1, L-Ko	02174

Saturday.

D	2-17	John Osborn's Triumph (Murdock MacQuarrie)..... .....2, Bison	02175
	2-17	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	2-17	Mule Mates (Gale Henry).....1, Joker	02176
D	2-17	Broken Hearted (Wm. E. Shay).....1, Laemmle	02177

Sunday.

	2-18	No Release This Week	Rex
	2-18	No Release This Week	Imp
C	2-18	Mr. Fuller Pep and Drama of the Orient	s, Powers 02178
	2-18	Robinson Crusoe (Marguerita Fischer) Universal (Special)	3 02179
	2-18	The Purple Mask (Francis Ford) (Special)	2, Universal 02180
C	2-18	Lured and Cured (Paddy McQuire)	2, Vogue 05330-31
T	2-18	Reel Life	1, Gaumont 05332

Monday.

C	2-19	Down Went the Key (Eddie Lyons)	1, Nestor 02182
D	2-19	The Purple Mask (Grace Cunard)	2, Universal 02199

Tuesday.

D	2-20	The Great Torpedo Secret (Herbert Rawlinson)	3, Gold Seal 02183
C	2-20	The Fireman's Bride (Mat Moore)	1, Victor 02184

Wednesday.

	2-21	No Release This Week	Laemmle
C	2-21	After the Balled Up Ball (Phil Dunham)	1, L-Ko 02185
T	2-21	Animated Weekly, No. 60	1, Universal 02186
D	2-21	Sin Unatoned (Margarita Fischer)	1, Laemmle 02187

Thursday.

D	2-22	The Heart of Mary Ann (Ruth Stonehouse)	1, Victor 02188
D	2-22	The Keeper of the Gate (Douglas Gerard)	1, Rex 02189
	2-22	No Release This Week	Powers
D	2-22	The Man Who Saved the Day	2, Big U 02190

Friday.

D	2-23	The Folly of Fanchette (Mae Bush)	2, Imp 02191
	2-23	No Release This Week	Rex
C	2-23	A Bare Living (Eileen Sedgwick)	1, Victor 02192
C	2-23	The Heroes of the Plains	1, Big U 02193

Saturday.

D	2-24	The Comeback (Chas. Van Loan Story)	2, Bison 02194
	2-24	No Release This Week	Laemmle
C	2-24	Rosie's Rancho (Gale Henry)	1, Joker 02195

Sunday.

	2-25	No Release This Week	Rex
D	2-25	A Dangerous Double (Sydell Dowling and Sidney Braccy)	2, Imp 02196
C	2-25	A Day in the Life of a Dog	s
	2-25	Buried Treasures of Ceylon	s 02197
D	2-25	Lost in the Streets of Paris (King Baggott)	Rex 02198

Miscellaneous Features

Jimmie Dale. Alias the Grey Seal	Monmouth Film Corp.	32,000
Robinson Crusoe	Universal
The People vs. (John Doe)
Are Passions Inherited?	Warner Bros.	7,000

Art Dramas

1-4	The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard)	Wm. L. Sherrill	5,000
1-11	Infidelity (Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong)	Erbograph
1-18	God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon)	Apollo
1-25	Her Good Name (Jean Sothern)	Van Dyke
2-1	Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana)	Apollo
2-8	The Accomplice (Dorothy Bernard)	Wm. L. Sherrill	5,000
2-15	The Adventurer (Marion Swayne)		5,000
2-22	The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilson)		5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

1-1	Black Orchids (Cleo Madison)		5,000
1-22	God's Crucible (Geo. Hernandez)		5,000
1-29	The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum)		5,000
2-5	The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford)	Bluebird	5,000
2-12	The Reward of the Faithless (Betty Schade)		5,000
2-12	The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Norwell)	Bluebird	5,000
2-19	The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum)	Bluebird	5,000

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of

1-15	Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson)	5,000
1-15	Noah's Ark (Hank Mann)	1,000
1-22	Her Father's Station (Anna Luther)	1,000
1-22	The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara) (Special)	5,000
1-22	The Primitive Call (Gladys Colburn)	5,000
1-29	There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann)	1,000
1-29	The Siren (Valeska Suratt)	5,000
1-29	The Bitter Truth (Gladys Brockwell)	5,000
2-5	The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt)	5,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of

12-25	The Truant Soul (Henry B. Walthall)	Essanay	8,000
1-8	The Master Passion (Mabel Trunelle)	Edison	5,000
1-15	Little Shoes (Henry Walthall and Mary Charleson)	Essanay	5,000
1-22	Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed)	Selig	5,000
1-29	The Adventures of Buffalo Bill		5,000
2-5	Skinner's Dress Suit (Bryant Washburn)	Essanay	5,000
2-12	The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton and George Fawcett)	Selig	5,000
2-19	The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore)	Edison	5,000

McClure Pictures

2-5	Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere)		5,000
2-12	Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guere)	McClure	5,000
2-19	Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere)	McClure	5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of

1-29	Bridges Burned (Mme. Petrova)	Popular	5,000
1-29	The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew)	Metro	5,000
2-5	Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew)	Metro	5,000
2-5	The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore)	Columbia	5,000
2-12	Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz)	Metro-Rolma	5,000
2-12	One of Many (Frances Nelson)	Arthur James	5,000
2-19	The Promise (Harold Lockwood)	York Film	5,000
2-19	Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)	Metro	5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of

1-22	The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter)	5, American
1-29	Where Love Is (Ann Murdock)	5, Mutual
2-5	Pardners (Charlotte Walker)	5, Mutual
2-12	Damaged Goods (New Edition) (Richard Bennett)	American	7,000
2-19	The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter)	5, American

Mutual Serials

	Birds of Prey
	Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 8 (Helen Greene and Earl Metcalf)
2-19	"Misjudged" (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 19) (Helen Greene, Earl Metcalf)		2,000

Paramount Features

Released Week of

1-29	His Sweetheart (Geo. Beban)	Morosco	5,000
2-1	The Wax Model (Vivian Martin)	Pallas	5,000
2-5	Regina to the Rockies (Burton Holmes)		1,000
2-5	Each to His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa)	Lasky	5,000
2-8	Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich)	Pallas	5,000
2-12	Beautiful Banff (Burton Holmes)		1,000
2-12	The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen)	Lasky	5,000
2-15	The American Consul (Theo. Roberts)	Lasky	5,000
2-19	With the Stony Indians (Burton Holmes)		1,000
2-19	Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward)	Lasky	5,000
2-22	On Record (Mae Murray)	Lasky	5,000

Pathe

Released Week of

2-18	Her Life and His (Florence La Badie)	Thanhouser	5,000
2-18	Pearl of the Army, No. 12 (Pearl White)	Astra	2,000
2-18	Patria, No. 6 (Mrs. Vernon Castle)	International	2,000
2-18	Lonesome Luke—Lawyer (Harold Lloyds)	Rolin	1,000
2-18	Florence Rose Fashion, No. 19	Rose	S
2-18	Picturesque Algeria	Pathe	S
2-21	Hearst-Pathe News, No. 16	Pathe	1,000
2-24	Hearst-Pathe News, No. 17	Pathe	1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of

2-12	The Terror (Jack Mulhall)	5,000
2-19	The War of the Tongs	5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of

1-28	Chicken Casey (Dalton)	Kay-Bee	5,000
2-4	Jim Bludso (Lucas)	Fine Arts	5,000
2-4	The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan)	Kay-Bee	5,000
2-14	The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge)	Fine Arts	5,000
2-14	The Gun Fighter (Wm. Hart)	Kay-Bee	5,000
2-18	The Princess of the Dark (Enid Bennett)	Ince	5,000
2-18	The Bad Boy (Robert Harron)	Fine Arts	5,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of

12-20B	Lost in the Shuffle	1, Hippo	1146B
12-21	The Voice in the Night	2, Utah	1147A
12-21	Blowing Up Broadway	1, Jockey	1147B
12-22	The White Man's Squaw	2, Hiawatha	1148A
12-22	Algernon's Affinity	1, Gaiety	1148B
12-23	Shackles of Conscience	2, Supreme	1149A
12-24	Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont	1, Judy	1150A
12-24	The Prodigal Son	2, Buffalo	1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of

12-1	Land Just Over Yonder	6
12-15	Humanizing Mr. Winsby	5
1-15	Glory	7

World Features

Released Week of

1-22	The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton)	World	5,000
1-29	Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler)		5,000
2-5	The Hungry Heart (Alice Brady)	World	5,000
2-12	The Red Woman (Gail Kane)	World	5,000
2-19	A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell)	World	5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

The Model Janitor — Kalem. — Presenting "Ham," "Bud," Ethel Teare and Henry Murdoch. Henry Clay Debris is a famous sculptor, with a fair daughter, Flossie, who has little use for the clay men her father makes and much prefers live ones. Tommy Keefe, the model of "The Indian Chief," is in love with Flossie. Ham, the janitor, is playing hide-and-seek with Bud, when the artist sees in him the ideal "chief." As art proceeds, the lovers steal away.

Winged Diamonds—(Grant, Police Reporter, Series)—Kalem.—George Larkin featured. Micky, a boy of the tenements, discovers a strange pigeon in his coop atop the ugly tenement where he lives. Attached to its leg by a string is a valuable diamond ring. Micky takes the bird to the police station. Grant, police reporter on the Chronicle, is there to pick up a story. He writes a note requesting an audience with the owner of the bird, ties the note to its leg and sets it free. Meanwhile, Natalie, Mrs. Grandon Rice's French maid, has rifled her employer's wall safe, using a stethoscope to determine the fall of the tumblers. We see Natalie go to her room and take a carrier pigeon from the lower compartment of her washstand. Around its neck she places the pendant and chain and sets it free up a flue hole. She is searched and questioned about the robbery, but there being no evidence she cannot be held. Daddy Greelick, a notorious "fence," shows up at the appointed meeting place in answer to the blind message carried by the pigeon earlier in the day. When he makes a getaway Grant hurries to the "fence's" pawnshop and finding it locked, mounts to the roof by the most convenient way—a rear fire escape. He and Greelick have a desperate fight on the roof and Grant is left senseless. When he recovers he slides down a rope to an adjoining building just in time to help capture the crook who had locked all doors behind as he fled.

The Seventh Son—Vitagraph (Re-issue).—Ralph Ince, Mary Maurice, and James Morrison. The story of a widow, with seven sons, six of them strong and well, but the seventh, because of a shock received when young, an over-sensitive, high-strung child. Now comes the Civil war, and three of them fall in the first battle, that of Bull Run. Later two of them die in a skirmish and the sixth succumbs to fever. The last lad, restless under the strain, enlists also and soon there comes to the lonesome mother a letter. Thinking that it is the announcement of honors that have home to him, she is happy over it, but it proves to be the bearer of the news that he has been court-martialed and condemned to be shot. The afflicted lad, in a moment of hysterics, has tried to run from the battle field. The mother, aided by friends, goes to the stalwart, gentle Lincoln, and asks for the life of her son. She, who has given six sons to her country, is given back the seventh and her tears of joy and relief fall upon the hands of the President.

Selig-Tribune, No. 13—February 12.—Hunter's Point, Cal.—The S. S. Minnesota, America's largest merchant marine, goes into dry dock. New York, N. Y.—Count Tarnow Tarnowski, the new Austro-Hungarian ambassador, is now in the public eye. Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Illuminated ice palace of the ice carnival. Berkeley, Cal.—U. S. army officers inspect aeroplane motors. New York, N. Y.—A mysterious fire partially destroys the Spanish steamship Isla de Paney. St. Paul, Minn.—Alfred Campbell and his team of "huskies" win the 500-mile dog race from Winnipeg, Canada. Hoboken, N. J.—Interned German ships are being carefully guarded by U. S. authorities. Philadelphia, Pa.—Fire destroys Gimbel Bros. warehouse. Capetown, Africa—The S. S. Rena, after being buffeted by terrific storms, arrives here with a shifted cargo. Columbus, N. M.—Troop L of the Fifth U. S. Cavalry arrives here.

For Reward of Service—Selig—February 17.—George Fawcett, with Mrs. Evelyn, Charles Gardner and Charles Le Moyne. "Cross Allen" is a grouchy old bookkeeper. All the other clerks in the office take delight in tormenting him and when they are given a day off to prepare for Christmas they bundle up a lot of sawdust, bricks, etc., and present him with them. The chief clerk protests, but he is outnumbered. The old bookkeeper takes his gifts home, and he and his old wife plan a good time with the things they think have been given them by the office force. In the meantime the story of the cross old fellow is being told at the office, and the clerks listen thoughtfully as the tragic death of each of his sons is related. Remorse follows and all the clerks hasten to get real gifts and go to the home of the aged couple, where they substitute the real presents for the bogus, which fortunately have not been opened. Then the Christmas spirit fills the air.

A Four-Cent Courtship—Black Cat Feature—Essanay—(28 Minutes Screen Time)—February 20.—Featuring Bryant Washburn and Hazel Daly. To have your room-mate touch you for your last cent when you are dated up to take "the one and only" girl to the opera, then supper and home in a taxi cab on the very evening you intended to propose to her, is no particular joy. When it happens to Emmet Payne he gets carfare by politely tearing two tickets from a fat man's hand, opera tickets by posing as a dramatic critic, and the money for the supper by selling the tickets to a speculator. Of course, in an expensive restaurant, the fat man, the dramatic critic and the speculator are having supper. There is considerable row and arrest stares Emmet in the eye, when in comes Friend Room-mate with the money to settle all accounts. Miriam, having had a lovely time, and innocent of trouble, says "Yes" to Emmet's great delight.

Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 25—Essanay—(Screen Time, 15 Minutes)—February 21.—The Canimated cameraman was fortunate enough to catch the latest shipment to John D. Lotsadough. Under heavily armed guard, the special train stopped at Chicago, Ill., momentarily and its treasure was filmed. It was a dozen fresh eggs. At Be-Swell Beach, Cal., the sons and daughters of wealth are shown airing their pet pigs, pet monkeys, Angora goats, etc. It is difficult to tell which are the pets. A valuable hint is given to husbands coming home late at night on how to find the keyhole. A string with a cat at the other end makes the job easy. The recent baseball game in Honk-Honk, China, between the Chop Suey nine and the Washee-Washee team is depicted. Ty Cobbee saves the game in the ninth inning by slamming out a homer. Scenes in the lake region of Western Canada complete the film.

The Extravagant Bride—(Is Marriage Sacred? Series)—Essanay—(Screen Time, 27 Minutes)—February 24.—Featuring Marguerite Clayton, with Lillian Drew, Edwin Arnold, Sydney Ainsworth, and Thomas Commerford. Edith Ralston, reared in luxury, weds John Allison, of moderate means. Her extravagances finally drive Allison to the brink of bankruptcy. Harold Spencer, whom Edith rejected to become John's wife, is revengeful. He learns of Allison's financial straits and at a reception places a wallet containing a large sum of money on a table where it will tempt John to become a thief. Allison finds the wallet and takes it up to seek the owner. Spencer proclaims that he has been robbed and discovers the wallet in John's pocket. Edith believes her husband guilty and declares it was her extravagance that drove him to theft. Mrs. Gaynor, a gay divorcee, who has been spurned by Spencer, has witnessed a part of his trap for Allison and tells the truth. John is exonerated.

Selig-Tribune, No. 12—February 8.—Chicago, Ill.—Sixty persons meet death in an explosion of gas which destroys a tenement. Chicago, Ill.—Automobiles are hauled into the Blackstone Hotel as overflow exhibit of the automobile show. El Paso, Texas.—Mexicans entering the United States, are obliged to take compulsory baths to prevent the spread of typhus fever. Laramie, Wyo.—The worst blizzard in twenty years sweeps over this state. Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Society turns out for the Mid-Winter Carnival. Paris, France.—Services are held at the Church of Etoile in memory of a member of the French Aviation Corps.

Mutual Pictures

Lured and Cured—Vogue Comedy—(One Reel)—February 18.—Featuring Paddy McQuire and Lillian Hamilton. Lillian, a country girl, loves Paddy, a neighbor. A city chap comes into her life and then things begin to hum. He happens to be the head of a band of gangsters and persuades Lillian to return to the city with him. Lil is placed under the care of a creature of the vampire type. Paddy arrives in the city and manages to gain entrance to the house where Lil is kept prisoner. He is robbed of all of the money he possesses, $2,000, and dropped into a cellar. Lil is told that there will be no wedding and is also dropped into the cellar. They manage to escape, by strange methods, and Lil asks Paddy to take her back to the farm.

Shorty Promotes His Love Affair—Monogram—(Two Reels)—February 19.—Featuring Shorty Hamilton. Shorty and Anita set out to arrest a band of counterfeiters. Ruby, the daughter of the head of the gang, is forced to pass out bad money, and upon being discovered leaves for the Arrowhead ranch country to become the school teacher. Shorty asks Anita to marry him, but she demurs and tells him that love and work do not harmonize. Shorty returns to the ranch and here finds that Ruby is about to be married to Ralph. Shorty and Ruby go to town and there the head of the counterfeiting gang sees the girl and demands that she pass more bad money. The girl, frightened because he might tell Ralph about her, takes the money. She tells Shorty of the trouble after he has passed some of it over the counter. Anita has come to talk things over with Shorty. He is arrested for passing money, but is freed through the persuasion of Anita. Ralph and Ruby decide to get married at once, as do Shorty and Anita, but Shorty forgets the license.

At either end are scenes from "The Seventh Son," special edition, with Ralph Ince as Abraham Lincoln—a Broadway Star on the General program February 12. In the center is "The Suitor from Siam," of "The Dangers of Doris" series featuring Mary Anderson. This Broadway Star series also appears under the General pennant.

Tours Around the World—(ONE REEL)—GAUMONT—FEBRUARY 20.—A travel reel picturing Old Heidelberg, Germany, the Scottish Highlands and Monoco.

See America First—(ONE REEL)—GAUMONT—FEBRUARY 21.—Showing scenes around Vicksburg and the mission of San Juan de Capistrano. On the same reel with Kartoon Komics.

Jerry's Brilliant Scheme—(ONE REEL)—CUB COMEDY—FEBRUARY 22.—Featuring George Ovey. Jerry hires four burly ruffians to kidnap his sweetheart's father, who has had him kicked off the place. Father is taken to a deserted cabin and there divested of his clothes, while one of the ruffians makes up to represent him. The ruffian goes to Tiny's home and there is put to bed, as he is under the influence of liquor. Now it is easy sailing for Jerry to make love to Tiny. Her father, however, also imbibes some liquor and returns home. Then much excitement follows as they are all sure that they see ghosts when the two men appear on the scene.

Misjudged — NIAGARA FILM STUDIOS — (Two REELS)—FEBRUARY 22.—Featuring Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe. Grace Calvert, a young woman newspaper reporter, is secretly the wife of an artist. She is loved by the editor of the paper and keenly desired by the sporting editor, neither of them knowing that she is married. She returns to her husband's studio one night and finds that he has murdered one of his art patrons who had sneered at his work. Later the murdered man is found by the janitor, and it is discovered that he is the brother of the editor. Grace had been seen in the studio by the sporting editor and is assigned to cover the story, but pleads sickness. Later it is found out that Gray has committed suicide and that the reason for Grace's being in the studio was that the murderer was her husband.

Calamity Anne's New Job—AMERICAN—(ONE REEL)—FEBRUARY 23.—Featuring Louise Lester. Calamity Anne is given the job of parcel post clerk at the postoffice. The first package she receives is a big box with a little pickaninny in it. Then she receives a sack containing a rooster. Everyone laughs at Calamity as she starts out with her parcels. The rooster escapes and Calamity chases it and captures a bandit. She brings the bandit back to town and gets a reward, the rooster and also the pickaninny.

Mouth Organ Jack—AMERICAN—(ONE REEL)—FEBRUARY 24.—Featuring J. Warren Kerrigan. Mouth Organ Jack is the foreman of a big ranch. Phyllis, the ranch girl, loves him dearly. One day an Eastern girl comes to see Phyllis and instantly a bond of love springs up between her and Jack. A greaser decides to kidnap the Eastern girl. Phyllis overhears the plot and cannot decide what to do. She, however, warns the girl in time and the gang are brought to justice.

Universal Program

The Heart of Mary Ann—With Ruth Stonehouse and Lydia Yeaman Titus. Mary Ann gets a "big idea." With the help of two boy pals, she builds a shed in a vacant lot and puts a sign on it which reads: "Mary Ann Free Milk Station, No. 1." The next morning she follows the milk man and steals every bottle of milk he delivers. Then she returns to the shed. Mary Ann gives a bottle of milk to a colored woman. The neighbors miss their milk and soon a crowd gathers. The negress tells them about the new milk station and the crowd rush to the shed. A cop, noticing the confusion, goes to see what the trouble is. Mary Ann confesses to having taken the milk and the cop tells her that she must take the milk back to the places where she got it. She sadly goes the rounds.

A Dangerous Double—(Two REELS)—IMP.—With Sidney Bracey, Sydell Dowling and Nellie Slattery. Marjory Norwood, a popular graduate of Vassar, is reported to be engaged to Prince Eric of Maurania. A cub reporter, Stuart Warren, rushes out in the hope of getting a good story. Owing to a striking resemblance, Marjory takes him for her fiance. Unaware that he is taken for the Prince, he seeks an interview, but is denounced as an imposter and is ejected from the house. Warren is taken prisoner by some conspirators, but is able to make his escape. He attempts another interview with Marjorie and this time is successful. She tells him that the dying king of Maurania dispatched Prince Eric to come to America and marry her, but she didn't tell him that she is the king's daughter. The conspirators lure Marjorie to their den, where she is rescued by Warren and they make their escape in an automobile. Later Warren bids her a sentimental farewell and she sails for Maurania.

A Strange Discovery—NINTH EPISODE OF THE PURPLE MASK—FEBRUARY 19.—Featuring Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Pat is engaged by a wealthy manufacturer to ferret out a plot against his commercial welfare, that seems to exist among his employes. Many exciting events occur in this instalment in which Kelly also figures. It finally closes with Kelly trapped in the cellar of the Apaches' house and Pat winning the race for the Golden Cup.

Down Went the Key—NESTOR—FEBRUARY 19.—With Eddie Lyons, Lee Morgan and Edith Roberts. Edith plans a surprise for Eddie's birthday. She has Lee paint a picture for her to give him. Eddie notices the smiles of the two and becomes suspicious. In hanging the picture, Lee falls against Edith, causing her nose to bleed. She faints and Lee remembers an old remedy—to place a piece of cold metal on the sufferer's neck. He gets the door key, but in his hurry drops the key down her back. Eddie arrives and rushes in at Lee; he chases the artist with a cutlass, through the house, over beds and the roof, down skylights and fire escapes. Lee is hidden in a trunk by Edith, but is discovered by Eddie. The painting is brought forth as evidence of her innocence, and Eddie humbly begs forgiveness.

The Great Torpedo Secret—(THREE REELS)—GOLD SEAL—FEBRUARY 20.—With Herbert Rawlinson and Neva Gerber. Henry Olmstead, head of the great war munitions plant, pretends to be dead, so that the women from the Society for Universal Peace won't be able to bother him. He puts Billy, his nephew, in charge of the plant, but as Billy knows nothing about it, he is soon in trouble. He buys inventions and explosives that are absolutely worthless. Marion goes to his aid. They become involved with the peace women again, who get hold of the invention of the "Magnetic Governor." Marion secures the blue print and hands it over to Billy. The women find that they have been beaten and slump wearily into their chairs.

The Fireman's Bride—VICTOR—FEBRUARY 20.—With Jane Gail and Matt Moore. Jane, a stage-struck girl, scorns Moore, an honest young fireman. He secures her an opportunity on amateur night. The gallery pelt her with vegetables and Jane rushes to her dressing room in tears. Fire breaks out and Jane is rescued by Moore. Jane is cured and renounces the stage to be the fireman's bride.

Sin Unatoned—LAEMMLE—FEBRUARY 21.—With Robert Leonard and Margarite Fischer. Bob is a gambler, but upon his marriage gives it up. An old pal enters his house and promises not to betray Bob to his wife if given some money. Bob leaves the room for the money and his wife enters. The man catches her by the arm and kisses her. Bob returns and a fight ensues, in which Bob is victorious.

After the Balled-Up Ball—(Two REELS)—L-KO—FEBRUARY 21.—With Phil Dunham and Lucille Hutton. Lucille goes to Mrs. Highlife's ball, but her husband stays home. Phil decides to go too, and puts a flask in his pocket to refresh himself from time to time. The fat lady dresses up in her best and goes to the ball. She bumps into Phil and he falls on her train. He rides around on it, and it is finally torn off. The fat lady goes home, but is arrested by a policeman for not being properly dressed. Lucille's husband relents after she has gone, and turns up at the ball. He is jealous of the attentions which his wife receives. Phil, Lucille and her husband, and the fat lady, all return to the apartment house where they live. A mix-up ensues in which everybody gets in the wrong room. The police are called, a chase follows, and at last they all land in the river.

The Keeper of the Gate—VICTOR—FEBRUARY 22.—With Douglas Gerrard and Ruth Clifford. Fra Bennoni is the keeper of the gate of a large monastery, whose monks daily give food to the poor, who come begging to the door. One night Fra hears the music of the street carnival, and unable to resist its lure, he hurries to the village. The revelers think he is one of them disguised as a monk and receive him with open arms. All night he makes merry with Floretta, who is kind to him. In the morning he realizes what he has done and returns to the monastery conscience-stricken. He kneels in humble adoration before the Christus, who vanishes as the monks pass by on their way to the day's work.

Heroes of the Plains—BIG U—FEBRUARY 23.—A man and his wife, with their little daughter, Doris, while crossing the plains are attacked by Indians. Blue Mountain is wounded and is cared for by the strangers. He and Doris become friends and when he goes back to his tribe, he gives her a necklace. She wanders away and is found by the chief, who recognizes the necklace. The years pass; Blue Mountain wants to marry White Hawk, but she is in love with Jack. White Hawk is killed in a fight with Jack. The Indians attack the ranch, but are defeated. The chief recognizes his old friends, and tells them that Doris is their daughter. The chief is killed in the encounter.

The Folly of Fanchette—(Two REELS)—IMP—FEBRUARY 23.—With Mae Bush and L. C. Shumway. Rayburg is district attorney and a very busy man. Fanchette, his wife, cannot understand his neglect, and accepts the attentions of Mr. Rhodes, who is a clever crook. The city has been overrun by a gang of thieves and Mr. Rayburg and the head of the detective bureau have many conferences on the subject. On the same night that Mrs. Rayburg plans to elope with Rhodes, her husband invites some friends to dinner. She meets Rhodes and he presents her with a stolen necklace. Byron and his men are on the trail of Rhodes and comes to the house shortly after Fanchette enters. In the fight which occurs she escapes to her room. The detective is one of the guests and Mrs. Rayburg frantically signals him to be silent. She begs him not to disclose her secret, as she has now learned a lesson. Feeling certain in his mind that she really is sincere, he promises not to do so.

A Bare Living—VICTOR—FEBRUARY 23.—With Ralph McComes and Eileen Sedgwick. The high cost of living discourages Ralph, but his wife thinks him a miserly sort of husband. They try the plan of living like the South Sea Islanders, and the next day finds them located in a tent. Eileen clads herself in grass clothes, while her husband goes hunting. Seeing a turkey, he shoots an arrow at it, but is chased by a farmer. He is forced to pay the man for the bird. Two tramps see the roll that Ralph has; they slug him and take the money. Eileen invites them into the tent and urges them to clothe themselves in the grass. Ralph comes home, and his wife tells him the women of the South Sea Islands have as many husbands as they wish. The sheriff arrives, and, shocked to see people in such attire, he takes the tramps prisoners.

The Comeback—(Two REELS)—BISON—FEBRUARY 24.—With L. O. Pierson, L. M. Wells, George Berrill and Jack Walters. The remaining citizens of a dead mining town gather daily at Cunningham's bar. One day a tenderfoot by the name of Quackenboss arrives in town. Noticing his wad, they plan to fleece him. Uncle Jimmy, who is always broke, arrives and sees the game. He is put out when he tries to interfere and later tells Quackenboss the "frame up." They outline a plot. The tenderfoot goes prospecting and returns with some ore samples. The old citizens immediately fall for it and persuade Quackenboss to sell out for twelve hundred dollars. When they arrive at the canyon, instead of gold they find a note saying that there are other skin games as well as faro. In the meantime Quackenboss and Uncle Jimmy divide the money and ride away from the place.

Rosie's Rancho—JOKER—FEBRUARY 24.—With Gale Henry and William Franey. Rosie, the owner of M. T. ranch, is a masculine individual. Her neice, Barbara, comes to visit her and she warns her cowpunchers to keep away from her. They all fall for her charms and Rosie, in anger, pays them all off. The Mexican takes Rosie prisoner and builds a fire that will reach her soon. Bill hears the racket and entering holds up the fellow. The result is a double wedding between Milt and Barbara, and Rosie and Bill.

The Man Who Saved the Day—(Two REELS)—BIG U—FEBRUARY 22.—With Wallace Reid and Pauline Bush. Ethel Warren, the prettiest girl in town, has many suitors for her hand. She cannot decide between Anson Pryce, a lawyer, and John King, a journalist. John has an accident and loses the use of an arm. War is declared, both men hasten to volunteer. Anson is accepted, but John is rejected on account of his arm. Ethel, not knowing the reason, thinks that John failed to offer his services to his country. She denies herself to him and he is hurt by her decision. At last he succeeds in being sent to the front as a correspondent. One day his heroism saves the Union army from defeat. In writing the story he gives the credit to Anson, so that Ethel may be proud of her lover. After the war, Anson is received as a hero by his town. He is finally engaged to Ethel, but finds it impossible longer to accept the praise he has not earned. He confesses that it was John and not himself who saved the day. John is then declared the real hero and marries Ethel.

A Day in the Life of a Dog—(SPLIT REEL)—POWERS—FEBRUARY 25.—Having read a book about dogs, Sammie goes to sleep and dreams that he is one. He has many thrilling adventures and finally ends up in a fight with a cat, in which the feline has the best of it. Sammie wakes up and is mighty glad he's not a dog. On the same reel is:

The Buried Treasure of Ceylon—As seen by Dr. Dorsey. Wonderful tombs and temples, hidden until a recent investigation revealed them by the luxuriant growth of the jungle, are shown in the "Buried Treasures of Ceylon." Ruins of a city more than 2,000 years old, found by the British thirty years ago, rock tombs, hidden by vines until recently, shrines of Buddha built of brick work which have withstood the weather for 2,000 years, houses of the priests, and other interesting views were obtained by Dr. Dorsey in the island of Ceylon.

Lost in the Streets of Paris—Rex—February 25—King is separated from his wife. Later a child is born unknown to him. The years pass. King becomes a successful stock broker in Paris. His wife and child are visiting in France. One day she is kidnaped and is forced into the streets as a beggar. Her father finds her, who is unaware of her identity, and gives her a home. Later the mother finds her child, she meets her husband, and they are reconciled.

Feature Programs

Art Dramas

The Accomplice—(Five Reels)—Art Dramas.—Starring Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill. This photodrama exploits an interesting phase of night life among New York's smart set. A rich man provides his son and daughter with too much money, but little personal attention. The girl drifts into the Tango Tea set and becomes involved in a rather unpleasant affair with a professional dancer. The son is brought to see that his life is being wasted, by his father's secretary, with whom he is in love. The father will not consent to the marriage, but when she makes a sacrifice to save his daughter, the father sees she really loves his son. The daughter is cleared of the guilt and the father favors the marriage. Reviewed in this issue.

The Adventurer—(Five Reels)—Art-Dramas.—Featuring Marian Swayne and Pell Trenton. An exceptionally fine mystery story, telling how a youth disappears to the public and makes investigations which lead to the conviction of a band who are fraudulently operating his father's public bequest—an institution of charity.

Blue Bird

Polly Redhead—Bluebird—(Five Reels)—February 19.—Featuring Ella Hall. With but one ambition—to support her little brother, Edgar, "The Lump," and keep him out of the poorhouse—Polly Redhead fails to report the death of her aunt, hoping to retain the latter's position as housekeeper. When her deception is discovered she is dismissed by one of her employers, but one of them, John Ruffin, a rising young lawyer, takes her into his home. Lady Caroline, with whom he is in love, sees in Polly a marked resemblance to her neice. Marion, the daughter of the Duke of Westerly. The Duke is separated from his wife, and Polly gets nicely mixed up in the little family row, when they persuade her to impersonate Marion for a short time, until Marion can be safely taken away by her mother. Polly and Marion exchange clothes and all goes nicely, until Ronald, the Duke's heir by a former marriage, suspects the truth. Polly confesses to him on his promise not to tell. She leaves the home of the Duke a day too soon and when out walking with Ronald is confronted by the Duke, who takes her home in spite of her protestations that she is not Marion. Lady Westerly and Ruffin and Lady Caroline hurry to the Duke's home in response to Ronald's 'phone call. A reconciliation follows between the Duke and his wife, much to the surprise of Ruffin and Lady Caroline, who have also reached a happy agreement. There is a happy ending when Polly and Ronald also come to a youthful understanding.

Fox

A Child of the Wild—Fox—(Five Reels)—February 19.—Featuring June Caprice. June Griest is raised in the mountains of Tennessee and for that reason she doesn't love school. When Frank Trent comes to the wilderness to teach, she is one of the first problems he has to handle. June sees the new school-master coming up the road and introduces herself by falling from a tree unon his shoulder. Bob Gale, Trent's mountain rival for the hand of little June, scores when the teacher's sister and little child arrive in the village to visit Frank. June believes in him, however, until Frank brings his sister and little neice to see June. She orders them from the house. Frank and his sister leave, but the baby remains behind to play with some puppies in the house. When June tries to pet her she runs away calling, "Uncle Frank, Uncle Frank," and then the repentant June sees a great light.

The Scarlet Letter—(Five Reels)—William Fox—February 12.—Featuring Stuart Holmes. A realistic and gripping interpretation of Hawthorne's masterpiece. Reviewed in next issue.

McClure Pictures

Sloth — (Five Reels) — McClure. — Featuring Charlotte Walker. A story which, to be brief, treats of the overcoming of sloth by patriotic zeal. Shirley Mason has an important part in the cast. Reviewed in this issue.

Metro

One of Many—(Five Parts)—Metro—February 12.—Featuring Frances Nelson and Niles Welch. A true-to-life story telling of the experiences that await a girl who sacrifices her honor to save her mother from death. Reviewed in this issue.

Paramount

The Black Wolf—(Five Reels)—Lasky-Paramount—February 12.—Featuring Lou Tellegen and Nell Shipman. A story of the days of chivalry, with its locale in Spain. Black Wolf, a notorious robber, is finally revealed as the real Duke del Miras. Reviewed in this issue.

Red Feather

The Terror—Red Feather—February 12.—(This Red Feather takes the place of "Me an' Me Pal," previously announced for this date.) With Jack Mulhall and Grace MacLean. Chuck Connelly discovers his sister in a compromising situation with one of the gunmen. He kills the man and thinks that he has made a clean getaway. The protected organization attempt to kill Chuck, but he kills three of the gunmen, and with the help of a detective gets away. After this Chuck is forced to become a member of this organization and takes his orders from the "man higher up," the same as the other gunmen. Chuck falls in love with Annie Mangan, who is quite religious. His sister, in the meantime, has become the mistress of Jim Canford, a gambler. Word is passed to Chuck to kill the district attorney. He sees the attorney's little daughter and cannot do the deed. In the meantime, he goes to Annie and tells her he has thrown the gang down. Since Chuck has failed to do his mission, other gunmen are given the job. He sees that this is the chance "to square himself with God" and goes to save the district attorney's life. In the encounter that follows he is mortally wounded and dies feeling that this was the only way in which he could atone.

The War of the Tongs—Red Feather—February 19.—With Tom Hing, Lee Gow, Hoo Ching and Lin Neong. Suey Lee and Wong Wing are lovers, but as Ching Ting is wealthy and the leader of his Tong, he is favored by Lee Hoy, the girl's father. Wong declares his love for the girl and is told if he can raise the dowry of nine hundred dollars, he may have her. He tries his luck at lottery, but his luck is against him. Next he tries gambling, with the same result; as a last hope, he plays Chinese dominoes. Chin Ting, seeing him winning, instructs the dealer to cheat him, and Wong loses all which he has staked on the last throw. He becomes furious and declares that he has been cheated. Chin and he struggle together, but he is finally overcome by Chin. The Tongs hold a meeting and the lot falls to Lee Gow to murder Wong. Wong has been forewarned and is successful in escaping. He goes to the home of Suey Lee and is in time to rescue her from Chin Ting. We are left to suppose that the course of true love runs smooth after the rescue.

Triangle Program

The Last of the Ingrams—(Five Reels).—With William Desmond in the leading role. Jules Ingram is the last of his race. Unlike the other inhabitants of the little fishing village, he is dissatisfied with the narrow outlook and the cramped lives of his townspeople. He seeks pleasure in strong drink and it soon becomes his master. He gradually becomes penniless. Moore, who holds a mortgage, forecolses, and his home goes for a song. There is another in the village who is leading a solitary life. Mercy Reed, as a girl, erred in the one unforgivable way in the eyes of her Puritan neighbors. When Jules is forced to leave his home and face the world penniless, Mercy takes him to her home and watches over him. He succeeds in fighting the drink habit and starts anew in life. In the meantime, the villagers conspire to drive both Jules and Mercy from the place. Headed by Rufus Moore, they attack her cottage, but are repelled by Jules. He accidentally learns that Moore was the cause of Mercy's early transgression and dramatically forces him to apologize before the villagers. Jules and Mercy set out for the West, with the promise of a bright and happy future. Reviewed in this issue.

World

A Girl's Folly—(Five Reels)—World Film—February 26.—With Doris Kenyon and Robert Warwick. An enjoyable story, dramatic, with comedy touches, telling of the experience of a girl who takes the wrong path but reverses her footsteps at the last moment. Maurice Tourneur directed. Reviewed in next issue.

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	72	79
Biograph Company	5	15
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation	90	110
Lone Star Corporation, pref.	97	99
Lone Star Corporation, com.	35	39
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	32	40
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	24	27
North American Film Corporation, com.	25	30
State Film Corporation, com.	26	32
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.)	60	75
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2¼*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company	150	..
Triangle Film Corporation	2¼	2¾*

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to Motography)

Film stocks during the past week were inactive.

American Film Company, Inc.: Earnings of this company are said to be gradually increasing. Regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent is expected in March. Will shortly release through Mutual exchanges, Gail Kane's new play, "Whose Wife," Mary Miles Minter in "The Gentle Intruder," and William Russell's two new plays.

General Film Corporation: Stock remains inactive, but management has shown unusual activity in securing film rights to all of the stories published in seven magazines printed by Street & Smith.

Lincoln Films Corporation: Reports bookings of between $250 000 and $300,000 which insures satisfactory returns to stockholders.

Mutual Film Corporation: Market for stock of this company has become inactive, but it is believed the intrinsic value of the shares is slowly but surely increasing.

New York Motion Picture Corporation: Recent activity in this security has died out and market is now rather flat at between 50 and 55.

North American Film Corporation: Rumors of an early distribution to stockholders are persistent. In England, "The Diamond from the Sky" is now in about the middle of the series.

Randolph Film Company: Official notice has been given that 10 per cent of preferred stock will be redeemed at 110 on February 26.

Recent publicity regarding large salaries may result in less pay to star actors and better returns to the stockholders of various companies.

MAX LINDER'S

first comedy NOW READY

"Max Comes Across"

BACKED BY A GIGANTIC NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

Read what Aaron J. Jones, President of Jones, Linick & Schaefer Co., says both of the features and the advertising campaign:

Chicago, February 12, 1917.

George K. Spoor, President Essanay Film Mfg. Co.

Dear Mr. Spoor:

We desire heartily to commend the Essanay Co-operative Advertising Plan offered in connection with the MAX LINDER COMEDY FEATURES. As soon as we SATISFIED ourselves on the QUALITY of these subjects, we booked them because of the unusual opportunity for exploitation offered by this unusual plan.

Very truly yours, AARON J. JONES.

See this feature at any K. E. S. E. office and ask for particulars on our newspaper advertising campaign. WE PAY HALF FOR YOU.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K Kleine Edison Selig Essanay

Chicago News

H. L. GUMBINER has purchased the Broadway theater at 5206 Broadway. The former proprietor, Emil Meyer, has removed to Wisconsin.

Dorothy Gish hesitated a few moments in Chicago last Monday. She was on her way to join Lillian on the sunset coast.

Altogether there are about one hundred Chicago theaters now on the list of those which will run McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins."

The local Triangle office is now booking the new Keystone fun films, personally directed by Mack Sennett. They will be released about April 1.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, William A. Pinkerton and District Attorney Clyne recently viewed a private exhibition of "Beware of Strangers."

O. L. Winslow and E. Mitchell have joined the sales force of the Fox Chicago branch. Mr. Winslow is traveling in Indiana and Mr. Mitchell in Illinois.

The chain of theaters operated by Lubliner and Trinz are scheduled to run the Pathe feature, "Patria," which experienced an extended downtown run.

Exhibitors who are using the educationals released through Metro and produced by the Educational Film Corporation have assured Cresson E. Smith, Chicago branch manager for Metro, that the pictures are well liked.

I. H. Kuh, formerly general manager of the Chicago E. L. K. exchange, has disposed of his interests in this company. He is planning an extended trip through the Panama Canal Zone.

The Chicago Theatrical Protective Union, Local No. 2, announces its fourth annual ball, February 19, at the Coliseum. The proceeds will be devoted to the sick fund. Johnny Hand's big band will furnish the melodious rhythms.

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, was in Chicago for a day last week on his way from Manhattan to visit the Lasky and Morosco studios in California. He conferred with Manager Rutledge of the local Paramount office.

Joseph Skrivoll, middle western district manager for Metro, stopped in Chicago one day recently and looked the town over, said "Hello" to his friends, transacted some business, and said "Goodbye."

With a thousand seats in readiness to serve who may come, Messrs. Meyer and Flower, proprietors of the Prairie Theater, now have their new Owl Theater in running order and have begun taking in the silver. The new showhouse is located at State and Forty-seventh streets.

Richard Travers, Essanay star, vice-president of the Reel Fellows' Club, and generally known man about town, has left Essanay and gone to New York. Before he went, however, he took to himself a wife. When seen by MOTOGRAPHY, Mr. Travers said he had no future plans to announce.

Aaron Jones, of Jones, Linick and Schaefer, is trying to arrange with President George K. Spoor of Essanay to have Max Linder appear in person at the Rialto and McVicker's Theaters at the opening pre-release performance of "Max Comes Across," February 19.

V. H. Hodupp, district manager for Pathe in the mid-west, shook hands all around with Branch Manager C. W. Bunn and his staff of multi-speed salesmen at Chicago recently and left suddenly for Milwaukee, where he planned to spend a week before proceeding to Minneapolis and other branch offices.

Ludwig Schindler, well known film man of Chicago, has been appointed by the executive committee of the M. P. E. L. of America to succeed Louis Frank as chairman of the exposition committee for the coming big show in July. Mr. Frank, who was the chairman last year, it is said will contest the appointment.

Good old Fatty Arbuckle is to roll into Chicago on February 23, and he is to be royally entertained, along with the press and a number of exhibitors, by Paramount Manager Rutledge. A big banquet is planned and the festivities will be wound in on a film and later the prints

TRAVELING SHOWMEN, GAMERAMEN AND EXHIBITORS—DON'T MAKE A MISTAKE—Have your Printing, Developing and Coloring done by experienced men. GOOD PRINTING and Developing make GOOD PICTURES GOOD PICTURES GET THE MONEY. Years of experience, backed by a knowledge of your wants, makes our work the best. Our facilities are complete and prices lowest. OUR STUDIOS CAN BE RENTED BY THE DAY OR WEEK.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY J. E. WILLIS, Vice-President and General Manager 6242 Broadway, CHICAGO

will be furnished theater men so they can see themselves act in their own houses.

M. M. Rubens, the handsome and gingery exhibitor of Joliet, had the nerve to go to the officials of the Santa Fe and have the California limited stopped for five minutes in Joliet Sunday night so his fans could greet Mary Pickford from the observation platform. He may even have blown up the bridges in order to accomplish his crass commercial ends. Rube is sure on the job.

"Lafco Comedies," fresh from the new studios of the La Salle Film Company, a new Chicago corporation, are about to begin their public career. The first subjects have just been put in the hands of exchanges. Eight one-reelers are ready for release. The company has been in the field four months and will issue a "Lafco Comedy" each week.

The film "Ivanhoe," which has enjoyed continuous demand for many months, being exhibited in co-operation with the Brotherhood of American Yeomen, is being handled with success on a percentage basis by the E. S. Film Service of Chicago, according to Manager E. Schwartz. Theaters pay 50 per cent of gross receipts. Mr. Schwartz has the state rights in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri.

Thirty-two below zero and fifteen people in the house. There was real sorrow in the words as Manager Jack O'Toole, sitting by the radiator in the Fox offices in Chicago, spoke thus, and recalled the hour he spent in a small Iowa theater during the recent cold spell. He had just returned from a trip through eastern Iowa, Illinois and Indiana. How it happened that he left a warm office during the coldest week of the winter to make the trip was not explained by the Fox manager, but he seems to enjoy the thawing-out process.

The official moving pictures of the United States army, which Uncle Sam is using in an effort to tempt the youth of the country into joining the military, were first exhibited in Chicago in the theaters of the Lubliner & Trinz chain. The films will be shown in many parts of the country. The pictures were made by the Laurence Rubel Service Company, 20 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, who spent four months in the production. The pictures were taken at various army posts throughout America.

R. H. Fulton, the youthful and genial vice-president of the E. E. Fulton Co., suddenly disappeared from his accustomed place of business on a recent Friday afternoon. Every effort to locate him by messenger, phone and wire proved fruitless. Days passed and the mystery deepened. But as Shakespeare says —"All's well that ends well"—so the following Tuesday morning the lost one reappeared and smilingly admitted that Dan Cupid had led him—a willing captive—to Battle Creek, and had tied him for life to the loveliest princess of the realm. The bride was Miss Undine Farrington, one of the most popular girls of the pure food belt. Needless to say, the interesting adventure brought to the happy young couple a shower of congratulations and good wishes from a host of friends.

R. H. FULTON

"Everybody's happy" at the K. E. S. E. office, and Manager W. H. Jenner wears the biggest smile of all. It's on account of Linder bookings. The Jones, Linick and Schaefer Company is showing the introductory Max Linder comedy in pre-release runs during the week of February, at its two downtown houses, the new Rialto Theater and McVicker's. The entire list of comedies will be shown in pre-release runs at these two vaudeville houses. Among out-of-town exhibitors who have booked the series are George Hines, Auditorium, South Bend, Indiana; J. Ditman, Strand, Freeport, Illinois; Edward Bostick, Merrill, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; J. A. Camer, manager Avon Theater, Decatur, Illinois.

On Tuesday, February 13, that ominous bird of allegorical descent which has been christened "The Black Stork" for film purposes, settled down upon Chicago, in the realistic manner of a reelistic production. An advance showing of "The Black Stork" took place in the projection room of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company. On Friday, February 16, the exhibitors' showing was held. Whether Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, surgeon, and actor pro tem., and his associates chose the thirteenth day of the month for the first show with a premeditated intent to invoke the powers of the supernatural in spreading the knowledge of the surgeon-actor's crusade against the malignant bird that is pictured as the foe of eugenics and healthy babies, has been left for others to guess.

Douglas Fairbanks gave a party at the New York Hotel Algonquin last Saturday evening, in honor of Mary Pickford, who departed a few days later for the Pacific Coast. Everyone of prominence in the theatrical and screen world, were guests of smiling Doug, who entertained with some of his new athletic stunts. Mary had a new frock for the occasion.

Coming Universals

An all-Chinese cast plays in the novel feature, "The War of the Tongs," which is the leading release on the Universal program for the week of February 19. The story was written by a Chinese author and the leading roles are taken by Chinese actors of the Imperial Chinese players. It is one of the first screen productions portrayed entirely by native performers.

"The War of the Tongs" and also a Nestor farce-comedy, "Down Went the Key," are the releases of February 19.

"The Great Torpedo Secret," a Gold Seal three-act comedy-drama featuring Herbert Rawlinson and Neva Gerber, is the chief offering for February 20.

An L-Ko two-part comedy, "After the Balled Up Ball," and the Universal Animated Weekly go upon the screen February 21. On the same date the Laemmle drama, "Sin Unatoned," with Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer, will be released.

The first of a series of Mary Ann stories, entitled, "The Heart of Mary Ann," and written and produced by Ruth Stonehouse, who also plays the principal role, reach the screen on Washington's birthday, February 22. This is a one-act comedy-drama with wide human appeal, and typical of the forthcoming Mary Ann photoplays. The Big U two-part war drama, "The Man Who Saved the Day," with Wallace Reid and Pauline Bush as the featured players, and the Rex drama, "The Keeper of the Gate," with Douglas Gerrard and Ruth Clifford are also scheduled for release on Washington's birthday.

"The Folly of Fanchette," a two-act Imp drama of society and the underworld, is the leading offering of February 23. The Victor comedy, "A Bare Living," and the Big U Indian drama, "Heroes of the Plaine," will also be released on the same date.

Charles E. Van Loan, noted short story writer, is the author of the Bison two-act Western drama, "The Comeback," which will be presented February 24. Mr. Van Loan is famed for the ingenuity of his plots. The Joker comedy, "Rosie's Rancho," with Gale Henry and William Franey, will appear on the same day.

The feature release for Sunday, February 25, is the Imp two-part drama, "A Dangerous Double." This is a story of newspaper life with Sidney Bracey and Sydell Dowling playing the leads. The Rex drama, "Lost In the Streets of Paris," with King Baggot and Leah Baird the Powers split-reel, "A Day In the Life of a Dog," a comedy cartoon, and "The Buried Treasures of Ceylon," a Dorsey travelogue, complete the week's program.

"A Strange Discovery," is the ninth episode of the Grace Cunard-Francis Ford serial, "The Purple Mask," which will appear during the week.

UNIVERSAL BOOK IT PROGRAM

NO program on earth begins to measure up in any detail with the Mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, pronounced by thousands of shrewd Exhibitors all over the country as the biggest and surest year round Box Office Attraction on the market—If you can get it now BOOK IT—if you can't get it now, watch your first opportunity. Write your nearest Universal Exchange or the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO., CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - - NEW YORK

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 3, 1917 No. 9

WILLIAM S. HART, TRIANGLE - INCE

OVER 9000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED

The $500 MOTION PICTURE IS HERE

"JOAN THE

THE SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT OF

TRIANGLE

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 4TH

FINE ARTS

Constance Talmadge

in

"Betsy's Burglar"

is a little "slavey," who dreams of princes and royal purple. A grocer's boy who is a correspondence school detective dreams too, and in their conjuring up of adventure and riches and priencely men and women, they stumble upon a mystery that takes them through all sorts of thrilling situations and—Betsy is not a "slavey" at all.

There are five reels of mirth and tenderness and mystery and breath-taking thrills.

and

A Triangle Komedy

"Her Cave Man"

INCE-KAY BEE

Dorothy Dalton
as Ellen Holton in
"Back of the Man"

is a woman such as all men hope to win.
This is the story of a country boy who wins success in the marts of a big city, who is torn between love of woman and love of power.
He is drawn into the meshes of plot and intrigue and then—
Ellen Holton steps forward with all the sacrifice and love that only woman can give.
A play of thunderous action, thrilling, appealing.

and

A Triangle Komedy

"A Film Exposure"

MACK SENNETT-KEYSTONE

Ora Carew

in

"Her Circus Knight"

has a play from the master fun-maker that adds just one more to the list of the Funniest Plays in the World.

Every Mack Sennett-Keystone is better than its predecessor. Each one is veritable kaleidoscope of thrills and shrieking comedy.

They are released independently and—

Can Any Exhibitor Afford To Be Without Them?

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

$100 A Day Increase

Booking of the new Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies went into effect the week beginning February 11th.

We received a wire from an exhibitor Friday (he couldn't wait to write) telling us what the first new Keystone had done for his business—he uses the Keystones an entire week.

His box office receipts have increased, so his telegram says, over $100 per day.

We do not feel that there is anything we can add, Mr. Exhibitor, regarding the advisability of booking Mack Sennet-Keystones.

Released independently through Triangle exchanges.

Triangle Distributing Corporation
W. W. Hodkinson, President
1457 Broadway New York City

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

Captivating Mae Murray in the new Lasky production, "On Record."

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 3, 1917 No 9

Mr. Citizen Wants Sunday Pictures

EVERY-DAY FOLKS TELL WHAT THEY THINK OF SABBATH SHOWS

ALL over the map are towns and cities where the cry against Sunday pictures has been taken up by a handful of persons who, guided by their own peculiar form of Puritanic conscience, make attempts to exclude motion pictures as a Sabbath day entertainment of their fellow citizens by shutting the theater's doors. Exhibitors in hundreds of communities are struggling against the interference of a few well-meaning people who believe that pictures on the Sabbath are unorthodox and therefore improper.

The true feeling of the people, however, may be discerned in the opinions expressed by two hundred New York citizens among whom the New York World has lately conducted a canvass to determine the general sentiment of the public. The persons questioned were chosen at random by the reporters of the World among people of their acquaintance in all walks of life. Only ten were against Sunday shows. The majority desire them if clean, wholesome pictures are presented. Excellent reasons were advanced in favor of Sunday performances.

Traffic Policeman Sees Good Effects

Opposed to the theories of an educator who sees humanity from afar and considers moving pictures as a foe of the church, is found the opinion of a traffic policeman who deals with men and women at close range. He finds much to praise in the effect of pictures on public morals.

Among those making statements were nineteen clergymen, fifteen of whom favored Sunday motion pictures; twenty-three prominent women, twenty of whom favored them; eight physicians, all favoring them. The remaining interviews were obtained from men and women lawyers, teachers, stenographers, clerks and laborers. The general sentiment is represented in the opinions of the following:

WILLIAM H. HANVEY, traffic policeman—Movies clear the corners of fellows who would get into mischief on the streets. They have done much toward breaking mud-gutter crap games and have taken a shot at the gin mill frequenters.

A Bootblack's Opinion

DANIEL ANTONY BARN, bootblack at the Borough hall subway station—Sunday movies for grown-up folks, but none for kids. Little kids may learn bad things from them. Grown folks are less easily led.

B. CANTON manufacturing jeweler—The Sunday movies have been a refuge for fellows who used to hide in the rears of saloons. Movies are a good form of recreation and are usually educational and moral.

FRANK WARD, ammunition inspector—I am very much in favor of Sunday movies. I work six days a week and Sunday I favor recreation.

TIMOTHY SCANNELL, restaurateur—Sunday movies have done much for the betterment of the young. It keeps them from loafing around corners.

JOSEPH HUDES, clerk—Sunday moving pictures have been a source of much recreation to me. There is nothing so pleasing as a good movie. It is, in my opinion, a very good way to pass a Sunday evening. There is no disrespect shown the Sabbath by looking at a moving picture.

DR. ARCHIBALD C. McLACHLAN, principal Jamaica Normal and City Training School—I disapprove of motion picture shows Sunday because they attract people from church services and make the day more of a holiday than a Sabbath day. Few, if any, churches are as well attended as motion picture shows.

A Reporter's Viewpoint

CHARLES McNALLY, reporter, No. 197 Havemeyer street—Sunday movies have shown the value of diversion. Sunday evening at the movies is grateful to a man or woman who has worked six days of the week. Sunday these folk need a reasonable priced amusement.

GEORGE J. RYAN, real estate broker, civic worker, member of the last Constitutional Convention from Queens, of No. 236 Lincoln street, Flushing—I am opposed to granting Sunday licenses to moving picture houses for the reason that the third commandment of God, "Remember that thou keepest holy the Sabbath day," is just as binding on the people of today as in ancient times.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY DENIS O'LEARY of Queens, living in Douglaston—I favor the opening of the moving picture show houses Sunday, provided the pictures presented are properly censored and the play houses are properly regulated and policed.

WILLIAM ZIMMERMAN, Deputy City Clerk and Chief of the Queens Marriage License Bureau, living in Corona—From the crowded play houses which I see every Sunday in the section where I live I believe there is popular demand for the Sunday movies. I favor them provided they are properly regulated.

CHARLES S. HABERMAN, manager of Paul Gesche's saloon, Jamaica—I believe the movies should be kept open on Sundays. They keep many people out of mischief and are good for everybody.

HERBERT S. HARVEY, of Flushing, formerly Sheriff of Queens—I am in favor of the Sunday movies. They keep some people out of mischief, and every picture I have seen shows some good lesson.

ASSEMBLYMAN PETER J. McGARRY, Second Assembly District, Queens, hotel keeper living in Laurel Hill—I favor giving the public good, wholesome Sunday recreation; church services to take precedence in all cases. I see no harm in Sunday moving pictures.

ASSEMBLY WILLIAM H. O'HARE, Third Assembly District, Queens, attorney, Glendale—I am heartily in favor of Sunday moving picture shows under proper regulations. They provide healthy and innocent entertainment for thousands at a nominal expense.

Sees Gain Morally

JOSEPH FLANAGAN, Secretary to the Borough of Queens, former Alderman and Assemblyman of Corona—Under proper regulations I favor the Sunday moving picture shows because they can be made advantage of intellectually and morally.

CHARLES KLEIN, student—Moving pictures on Sunday do not violate the Sabbath. There is nothing so pleasing as a good, clean, lively moving picture show on a Sunday.

BERT W. SCHOLTZ, clerk—You can't stop the Sunday movies. After church the movies come next on Sunday.

JAMES GARVEY, stenographer, Court of Special Sessions—I believe that it is a matter of personal liberty and we all should have personal liberty.

ABE MILLER, switchboy—I think it's foolish to close movies Sunday. I'd have to stick home Sundays if not for the movies.

JOHN E. MINNEHAN, feed merchant of West New Brighton—I am in favor of having the movies open Sundays. To close them Sunday would be a crime. It is the only day the working people have for amusement and recreation.

ALDERMAN JOHN J. O'ROURKE, of Stapleton—I am in favor of the movies Sundays. It is harmless amusement for the people.

LEWIS H. DENTON, principal of public school—I am not opposed to the movies if they are educational, clean and under proper supervision—the kind that will not desecrate any day.

Labor Leaders Favor Sunday Shows

H. G. COZZENS, business agent for the Carpenters' Union on Staten Island—The workingman is so busy through the week that the only time he has for amusement is Sunday. That is the reason he is in favor of the movie Sundays.

MATTHEW J. DONEGAN, organizer and business agent for the Stationary Firemen's Union—Keep the movies open Sundays, provided they give us educational and clean films.

ALDERMAN FINK, West New Brighton—I am in favor of the movies Sundays, the only day working people have to get a little pleasure.

HENRY PETERS, clerk, cigar store—A good movie is a good lesson. To take the movies away Sunday would be to take away a service of infinite education.

RALPH KAPLAN, salesman in hat store—When movies are kept clean by a reliable board of censors they are educational, moral, and a necessity. To close them would drive men back to saloons and pool parlors.

PERCY G. JAMES, hardware merchant, Jamaica—I consider the whole movie business a glorious field very badly abused. I think that those who attend Sunday movies might find something better to do, although I am no prude. Many of the pictures shown are an insult to our intelligence.

ALFRED J. ENO, real estate broker, Jamaica—I am for the Sunday movies. They keep young men and women off the streets and teach them many a good moral lesson, whereas, without the attractions, they might be spending their time flirting.

CHARLES R. ZIPSIN, caterer—Let the people stay home Sunday. Let the children study their school books or go to Sunday school. I was trained to go to Sunday school and it would benefit the children of this nation if all children were trained so.

Sunday Pictures Petition

There is no let-up in the campaign throughout New York state for signatures to the petition against the closing of motion picture theaters on Sunday. The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is receiving petitions every day from all over the state, and the total of signatures is mounting up steadily.

One of the signs of the times last week was the enlistment of the Marcus Loew theaters in the movement, and petitions with thousands of names are coming in from the long list of big houses controlled by Mr. Loew. These Loew petitions include thousands from every section of greater New York from the New York theater in the heart of the "rialto" of Broadway to the big neighborhood theaters where the real "motion picture fans," congregate in the Bronx and in Brooklyn.

Director Rupert Julian is filming at Universal City "A Dime's Worth of Philosophy," featuring Mignon Anderson.

IOWA ENFORCES CLOSING

Injunction Against W. E. Waterhouse of St. Charles Shuts Theater on Sunday—Other Sidelights on Sabbath Restraints

Earnest-minded men and women in various communities who have become convinced that motion picture performances should be curbed on Sundays, have succeeded in closing many theaters in recent months. Among the theaters whose Sunday shows have been repressed by law is the Hildreth Theater, of Charles City, Iowa. A temporary injunction directed against Manager W. E. Waterhouse has just been made permanent by a court that expressed reluctance in giving a decision manifestly unpopular with the public.

Judge Springer of New Hampton, Iowa, ruled on the case, saying that while he would like to please the people of Charles City wishing to attend Sunday picture shows he could not without a direct violation of the state law, but that the shows could be operated free without violation.

"Who Will Be Next?"

From all over the country come reports of Sunday closing agitation. Exhibitors can only ask, "Will we be next?" Some interesting sidelights on the situation in various localities are presented below:

Fort Worth, Texas.—Four theater managers have been fined for opening their theaters on Sunday. The city attorney's office has regularly arrested every exhibitor who has shown Sunday pictures.

For Wayne, Indiana.—Managers of theaters at Glens Falls, Indiana, in which moving pictures have been shown on Sundays during the last few years, have applied for a court injunction to restrain Sheriff C. H. Baker and his deputies from interfering with the showing of pictures on Sunday.

Cohoes, New York.—The convention of the Baraca-Philathea of Hudson Valley North, held recently at the First Baptist church of Cohoes, went on record against Sunday pictures.

Albany, New York.—Women representing the Y. W. C. A. and practically every church in Albany have organized a movement to wage a state-wide fight against Sunday pictures. Petitions are being circulated by a committee.

Mandam, North Dakota.—Exhibitors are circulating petitions in North Dakota in anticipation of a Sunday closing movement. H. L. Hartman, of Mandam, president of the North Dakota Exhibitors' League, is actively aiding the efforts of the exhibitors.

Schenectady, New York.—In contrast with the court decision in Iowa, restraining a theater from showing pictures on Sunday, a New York court recently granted a temporary injunction restraining the city of Schenectady from interfering with Sunday shows. The moving picture interests in Schenectady are awaiting with interest the decision of Justice Borst on making permanent the temporary injunction.

Madison, Wisconsin.—The Sunday moving picture bill came from the corporations committee of the legislature with a recommendation for passage of a substitute offered by Senator Skogmo. The substitute does not mention any specific recreation or entertainment as legalized on Sunday, but it states in general terms that Sunday diversions are permissible if they tend to the moral or physical upbuilding of the people.

Sues Trade Review

Papers in a libel suit against the Exhibitor's Trade Review, Inc., of New York City, brought by William A. Johnston, editor of the Motion Picture News, were filed in the New York county clerk's office on February 15. Mr. Johnston is suing for $50,000 damages on account of two editorials alleged to have been published by the Exhibitor's Trade Review on January 20 and January 27.

Admission Prices and Taxation

STATE'S REVENUE MEASURES HURT THEATERS AND INJURE PATRONAGE

By Benjamin B. Hampton
President General Film Company

EDITOR'S NOTE—The special taxation memorandum submitted by President Benjamin B. Hampton of the General Film Company, to the joint commission of the New York legislature to investigate the motion picture industry, covers many points that vitally touch the business of every exhibitor, in whatever state his theater is located. Motography reprints the principal portions of the memorandum in the article below, in which Mr. Hampton gives a statistical analysis of the business from the exhibitors' standpoint. The principles of taxation set forth by him for the perusal of the New York legislators' commission apply with equal force in every other state. As Mr. Hampton says, all states are likely to pass special revenue measures taxing the moving picture business if New York does so. Therefore the article by Mr. Hampton, Motography believes, is of more than ordinary importance and value to exhibitors.

THOUGHTFUL men appreciate the problem confronting legislatures. Costs of government are increasing steadily. The people demand more of government, and every additional item adds a burden to the annual budget.

Nor is it surprising that a well advertised business such as motion pictures should come to the attention of those whose duty it is to provide revenues for government.

The purpose of the proposed special taxation is to raise money. If a general or horizontal tax is levied the result will defeat the purpose of the measure. Producers and distributors as a class cannot bear any new burdens. Taxation will be passed to the consumer in the form of increases in prices of admissions to theaters. Thousands of theater goers will be unable to pay the increased price.

How it Hits Exhibitors

A large percentage of small and medium size houses are now on the thin edge of bankruptcy. Any reduction of income will cause them to close their doors. Many theaters will be driven out of existence before the state can collect the tax and therefore as a revenue measure the plan will prove a failure.

The only result will be to cripple—perhaps to ruin—one of our most useful industries, and to withdraw the only theatrical entertainment possible to millions of people.

I cannot claim to be a student of taxation, but the history of revenues in this country proves that unwise taxation defeats its purpose. For example, after many years of experiment the federal government has learned that the largest amount of revenue can be secured by a tax of eight cents per pound on tobacco. If the tax is raised to twelve sents or sixteen cents per pound, the consumption of tobacco is decreased to a point at which the total revenue is less than that collected by a tax of eight cents.

Applying an Old Principle

This principle of taxation applies to all products and to all industries.

If the state of New York is to adopt the policy of special taxation, and if the picture industry is to be the first business upon which to try the experiment, we beg to urge that the work be done skillfully so that the patient may escape permanent injury.

The industry cannot exist in its present form if a horizontal tax is levied, nor will the state succeed in raising money by this method.

The industry can exist in its present form if taxation is confined to those elements that can afford to pay. In other words if a tax is laid on profits instead of a flat tax on production, distribution or admission, and if the tax is skillfully apportioned, the industry as a whole will not be crippled.

If we analyze the facts concerning the leading pioneers of the industry we find that four of them have quit producing; three of them have completely reorganized their businesses, probably at great expense and likely with the addition of outside capital; one of them is completely finished; and only two have continued approximately as they were a few years ago.

One of the great distributing concerns which for years made money for its owners has been on a losing basis for some time and is now being reorganized by an outsider.

Outside Capital Supports Production

It is not unlikely that an absolutely thorough examination into all companies would prove that this condition prevails generally. Those of us who have had occasion to dig into the facts concerning many of the large concerns know that, in one way and another, they are facing very grave commercial and financial difficulties.

As a matter of fact, outside money has kept the industry active in the last two years. Stories of quick, easy profits have attracted scores of men, and capital from these sources has been used to produce pictures and distribute them at costs that are entirely out of keeping with possible returns.

No man can estimate the millions of dollars sunk in the industry within thirty months, but I have no doubt that at least ten million dollars would not cover the amount put into the business by bankers, publishers and investors lured into the game by the get-rich-quick stories which sadly enough have not materialized.

If the facts can be established they will probably prove that less than five per cent of motion picture corporations are making real, bona fide profits.

I am sorry that I cannot produce the facts. I am basing my statement on my daily experience. The idea that I represent large capital has sifted through the industry and every week I am visited by owners of picture concerns desiring assistance. My week by week experience convinces me of the soundness of my statements.

Other States will Follow Example

The gravity of this proposed special taxation cannot be over-estimated. All the states will follow New York if this law is passed and as surely as that takes place thousands of little theaters will be compelled to close their doors.

May I ask the members of this commission if they are fully prepared to accept a responsibility so serious as this?

Legislators—in nation, state and city—authorize the expenditure of great sums for parks and playgrounds, for schools and colleges, that the people may be entertained and educated. While these expenditures are for the benefit of the whole public those of limited income are the chief beneficiaries. They are those who most need the aid of government—and they are the ones who will suffer most if the small theaters are closed. The well-to-do will continue to see pictures—an admission of 25c to $1.00 will not deter them—but the family that counts its pennies will be denied this great means of entertainment and education.

Incomes of Families

How many of us know the facts relative to the incomes of families in the United States? A study of the statistics of the last year available (1913) is very valuable in this connection.

Here are the figures:

Annual incomes of the families of the United States:

27.8 %	have under		$400
18.5 %	"	$ 400 to	$ 600
18.7 %	"	600 to	900
8.6 %	"	900 to	1,200
10.4 %	"	1,200 to	1,800
9.2 %	"	1,800 to	3,000
4.59 %	"	3,000 to	6,000
1.70 %	"	6,000 to	15,000
.465%	"	15,000 to	60,000
.045%	"	over	60,000

To put it briefly, seventy per cent of the families of this country have incomes of $1,200 per year or less. About eighty percent of the families have incomes of $1,800 per year or less.

When we consider these facts we realize that the slightest increase in the cost of the motion picture will place them beyond the reach of millions of the very people who need them most.

Take the family of any workingman of your acquaintance, any clerk, any widow who is supporting herself, or any other typical American family—calculate the annual income of this family, see what it costs them to go to the theater, and then you will soon learn that if you close the little picture house, the finest, greatest, most helpful form of entertainment ever offered to them will be taken away from them.

A Typical Family

Here is a typical case—father, mother, brother, sister—a total income as follows: Father $18.00 a week, daughter $6.50 a week. Total $23.50 a week. This family attended a neighborhood picture house on an average of twice a week. The admission was five cents, sometimes when an expensive picture was shown it was ten cents—four admissions at five cents means twenty cents—four admissions at ten cents means forty cents.

The neighborhood house was compelled to close. Now to see movies this family must go down-town and the cost figures thus:

4 street carfares down and back	$0.40
4 admissions at 25c	1.00
	$1.40

Compare this $1.40 with $0.40.

Sometimes the family goes to a fifteen cent house downtown. The cost is as follows:

4 street carfares down and back	$0.40
4 admissions at 15c	.60
	$1.00

Compare this $1.00 with the usual forty cents or twenty cents charged by the neighborhood house.

Make a few comparisons of this kind and you will soon see that the industry will lose its power and efficiency to accomplish great good if the small neighborhood house goes out of existence. Make inquiry among any picture men of your acquaintance and they will give you details that will convince you that the slightest increased cost of operating will cause thousands and thousands of small houses to close their doors. These small houses now are barely making a living for their proprietors. If these exhibitors are compelled to raise the price of admission their patronage will leave them.

Excessive Salaries of Picture Players

Nothing in the world's history can compare with the craziness of the salaries paid in producing pictures. The men at the head of the producing and distributing companies and the owners of theaters are compelled to risk large investments in plants and organizations in order to make reasonable profits. As I have stated, most of these men are not making money in proportion to their capital and responsibility.

But the actors and actresses are reaping a gorgeous harvest. An actress with an earning power of perhaps $20,000 a year on the stage reluctantly accepts $100,000 a year in the movies. Another earning perhaps $40,000 a year in the drama is said to receive $200,000 in pictures.

Those conditions cannot last forever. They will correct themselves as soon as the present crop of "outside money" is exhausted. It is growing more and more difficult for the mushroom concerns to finance themselves by hiring a famous player at an uncommercial salary.

In talking of motion pictures I have sometimes found it useful to briefly review the history of the industry, and if you are willing to give a moment to the subject we can quickly outline the various stages through which pictures have passed and that may give us a better light on the present and the possibilities of the future.

The first stage was that of invention and discovery. Capital was timid—progress was made very slowly—many legal troubles surrounding patents, infringements, etc., held back developments.

Second—After the legal fighting was ended and the inventions and discoveries became practicable, pictures were actually created. The novelty was so great that the public flocked to pictures. Anything in motion was good enough—that of a horse eating hay, or a fireman playing a stream of water on a burning building was enough to earn the producer money.

Third—The novelty wore off—people ceased to go to pictures—producers' profits slumped, often disappearing entirely.

A Slump of Earlier Days

Fourth—The pictures in the earlier days were fifty or one hundred feet long. The fourth period came when the producer created pictures four hundred or five hundred feet long, presenting real little plays. Again the public was startled and pleased. Little theaters sprang up like mushrooms and everyone in the business made money.

Fifth—The novelty of the 300-foot to 1,000-foot picture dropped off and the business began to slump again. Here again came losses to distributors, producers and exhibitors. Many who had made money lost it or retired from the business.

Sixth—The three to five reel play came into existence with better story, better acting and better technical work than had been seen in the shorter product. A development in this period was reached in the great success of the five-reel picture which came to be known as a "feature." Specially built theaters began to spring up throughout the country and the little store shows began to die because of the competition of the larger houses.

Seventh—The five-reel picture was overdone—even longer subjects came into the market—great disorganization and confusion existed.

Eighth—This is the period in which we find ourselves now. The business has drifted steadily towards a substantial, permanent basis. The unstable elements are disappearing—the commercial side of the industry is rapidly shaping itself definitely and intelligently. The producers are not making the enormous profits of a few years ago. The star system with its exaggerated salaries—the over-production of features—and other similar errors must be corrected.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews Motography publishes in each week's issue the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

THE BAD BOY, with Robert Harron, (Triangle)—"A good picture, quite up to the Triangle standard."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Where Love Is, with Ann Murdock, (Mutual)—"A satisfactory picture that drew average crowds."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Rosie O'Grady, (Art Dramas)—"A picture with situations different than the average. The local censors cut out the prize fight, but the story is strong enough to carry itself over, even with such an important change. It is a shame the way it was cut. It is unusual in so many ways that it is well liked. It is one of the cleanest underworld pictures I have seen."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Princess of the Dark, with Enid Bennett, (Triangle)—"Very good, but the picture is too similar to another recent Triangle picture, 'Nina, the Flower Girl.' 'The Princess of the Dark' is a very good picture for an exhibitor who did not run the other. Enid Bennett is certain to be a favorite."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Man of Mystery, with E. H. Sothern, (Vitagraph)—"A picture that drew fairly well. A very good production."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Pride, "Seven Deadly Sins" series, (McClures)—"Better than the first of the 'Seven Sins.' The series has certainly been well advertised and ought to draw well. We had a fair audience."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The End of the Tour, with Lionel Barrymore, (Metro)—"A good picture."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Man of Mystery, with E. H. Sothern, (Vitagraph)—"Quite a good picture, but in the neighborhood of this theater people do not know Sothern well enough. Consequently it is not as good a drawing card as it would be otherwise."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Man of Mystery, (Vitagraph), E. H. Sothern.—"The acting of Mr. Sothern is wonderful. The characters are good, but the picture lacks story. The audience was divided in opinion."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—Catering to a high class of people.

The Man of Mystery, (Vitagraph), E. H. Sothern.—"This is a great picture. It is E. H. Sothern at his best. It brought only fair business, but all the patrons on leaving the theater said they liked it."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Wax Model, with Vivian Martin, (Pallas-Paramount)—"Proved to be a successful picture at the Castle. We did as good business as with a Mary Pickford or a Marguerite Clark offering. The title is appealing and the posters were very good. The story is very good."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

Each to His Kind, with Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky-Paramount)—"A well made picture which went over well with our patrons. Hayakawa is fine. His wife is not so popular and I think the audiences would have liked an American girl better as heroine. But the picture was enjoyed as it is."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

Tillie Wakes Up, with Marie Dressler, (World)—"Patrons were well pleased with this offering, and business was good."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Threads of Fate, with Viola Dana, (Metro)—"A very good production. The patrons enjoyed it thoroughly. It drew good business."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Pride of the Clan, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"This is a pretty good picture, well liked by the audiences. It drew only fair business because of strong competition."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Pride of the Clan, (Artcraft), Mary Pickford.—"Somehow or other the audience did not seem to care for this picture. I, myself, thought it very good, but we have to please the public."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—Catering to a high class of people.

The Witching Hour, with C. Aubrey Smith, (Frohman)—"A fine production, well liked by all the patrons. Business fair."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

A Girl Like That, (Paramount), Owen Moore and Irene Fenwick.—"The picture itself is fair, and the photography good. The acting of Owen Moore is very good but Irene Fenwick was not so good."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—Catering to a high class of people.

Nanette of the Wilds, (Famous Players), Pauline Frederick.—"A fair picture. Some of the patrons liked it and some did not. It brought fair business."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Greed ("Seven Deadly Sins" series), Nance O'Neil, (McClures)—"This is the best of the three in the series so far shown. Photography is good. It is well acted and well produced. Brought good business."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Bad Boy, (Triangle), Robert Haron.—"A good picture well directed; good photography. Pleased the patrons. It is great for a Sunday show."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Lost and Won, (Lasky-Paramount), Marie Doro.—"Fair picture which brought fair business. The patrons were undecided in their opinions."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Soul of Kura San, (Paramount), Sessue Hayawaka.—"A very good Japanese picture. All the patrons on leaving the theater said it was a very fine production. It is well directed and well acted."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Square Deal, (World), Carlyle Blackwell.—"A very good production which pleased the audiences completely."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—Catering to a high class of people.

Patria, Number One, (Pathe serial), Mrs. Vernon Castle.—"Fair business. A good picture liked by all the patrons."—E. Dloughy, Vitagraph Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Patria, with Mrs. Vernon Castle, (Pathe serial)—"This is going to be a good drawing card all the way through the series. We receive many inquiries about it at the box office."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Traveling Salesman, with Frank McIntyre, (Paramount)—"A very good picture and well liked by the audience. It hasn't the pulling power that Paramount pictures had in the beginning."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Official Pictures of the United States Army, (Series of five single reels)—"Used for recruiting purposes. The first reel is a very good and entertaining picture. There are many comical situations."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

His Sweetheart, with George Beban, (Paramount)—"A really good picture."—James B. Heaney, Crawford Theater.—Middle class patronage.

The Red Woman, with Gail Kane, (World)—"A picture in which Gail Kane takes the part of an Indian. She is good in the Indian role. It was our Sunday picture and drew well."—James B. Heaney, Crawford Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Truant Soul, with Henry Walthall, (Essanay-K. E. S. E.)—"A great picture which went over exceptionally big. In my opinion Walthall's best. It proved a good box office attraction."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The Last Sentence, with Marc McDermott, (Edison)—"This is a strong play and our patrons were pleased with it. The acting of McDermott is noteworthy. It drew large houses."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

A Message to Garcia, with Mabel Trunelle and Robert Conness.—"A very good picture and taken from a story which nearly every one is familiar with. Played to good business three days."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Little Shoes, with Henry Walthall, (Essanay-K. E. S. E.)—"A picture showing Walthall in an entirely new role. I advertised this fact strong and played to capacity business with it. The play was well liked by our patrons. Walthall is especially popular here."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The Golden Fetter, with Wallace Reid and Anita King, (Lasky-Paramount)—"Very good. We ran to good houses with it for two days."—James B. Heaney, Crawford Theater.—Middle class patronage.

The Rain Maker, (Fox comedy)—"It seems that the producers try hard enough but are not able to find new comedy ideas. 'The Rain Maker' is unusual, but there is much of the same old slapstick in it. The plumbing breaks and floods the house. The guests are washed out through a storm sewer. I don't see how it was done, but the picture is funny just the same."—James B. Heaney, Crawford Theater.—Middle class patronage.

A Girl of the Timberclaims, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"A very good picture. Business was fair."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

A Modern Monte Cristo, (Pathe)—"An excellent production. All the patrons liked it. Business was very good."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Envy, "Seven Deadly Sins" series, (McClures)—"Not as good a picture as we were led to believe by the publicity. It is a disappointment. It may succeed if the other stories of the series are good, because of the advertising it has had."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Idle Wives, with Lois Weber and Phillip Smalley, (Universal)—"A real picture that gets the money. It has the kind of a title that fills the house. We showed it to capacity business and were holding people out as late as 10 o'clock."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young, (World

re-issue)—"This is a re-issue of 'Hearts in Exile.' We played it to the biggest matinee we ever had. This was a Saturday matinee. Milder weather helped some."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Jim Bludso, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"A good picture. I think it would go better under another title. People don't care to see pictures about some character that they know nothing about besides the name."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Envy, "Seven Deadly Sins" series, (McClures)—"Too much like a good many other pictures. Publicity put it over and we filled the house with it."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Gun Fighter, with William S. Hart, (Triangle)—"Used on the program with 'Patria.' People seemed to like it."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Gun Fighter, with William S. Hart, (Triangle)—"A fine picture. Brought good business and was well liked by the patrons."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Americano, with Douglas Fairbanks, (Triangle)—"All I have to do to get a crowd into the house is to put Douglas Fairbanks' name out in front. He sure pulls big houses. I had the biggest attendance of the week to see this picture. The weather was mild."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

The Enemy, with Peggy Hyland, (Vitagraph)—"Three saloonkeepers asked me if I was trying to put them out of business after I showed this picture. The story tells about whisky and the effects of it. It is a good prohibition subject. It is the second picture of the kind I have shown in a week and I guess the saloonmen think I am trying to drive them out. The picture certainly was a success so far as the box office is concerned. It was a popular subject."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

A Coney Island Princess, with Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore, (Paramount-Frohman)—"I did not see this picture and cannot comment on it, except to say that it brought a fairly good attendance."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

The Battle of Life, with Gladys Coburn, (Fox)—"I saw only the beginning of this picture. What I saw of it I did not like. It is another story of the underworld and I think people are tired of that sort of thing. Zero weather kept the attendance down."—Max Schwartz, Halfield Theater.—Catering to the better classes.

Reel Fellows Club in Omaha

The Reel Fellows' Club of Nebraska was permanently organized and officers elected a short time ago at Omaha. It is an organization including exchange managers, exhibitors, supply men, etc. The object is to promote the business throughout the state and create better feeling between all who are connected with the industry. It is the object of the club in time to embrace the entire state and it is rumored that there might even be arranged a motion picture week covering both business and pleasure and topping it off with a big ball.

The following officers were elected:

C. W. Taylor, Omaha manager of the General Film office, president; H. M. Thomas, manager of the Strand, vice-president; R. D. Shirley, Muse, secretary; J. E. Kirk, Pathe manager, treasurer; S. H. Goldberg, Sun Theater, J. W. Rachman, Grand, and H. B. Watts of the Bee were elected on the board of directors.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

TANTALIZING

PILSENER, the beloved beverage now practically unobtainable by the masses in Austria, caused a riot in a Vienna Theater when the play called for the famous fluid and the genuine article was brought out on the stage. When an actor drained glass after glass of the precious liquid, the audience became enraged and men broke through the orchestra and rushed upon the performers.

We will let the Neuer Wiener Journal of Vianna tell about the little diversion.

"Meanwhile the commotion in the theater grew indescribable. After twenty minutes of fearful din and uproar, armed police entered the house. Three seriously injured men lay groaning on the floor and dozens bore blood-stained faces, while two women and a lad were removed in an unconscious condition from the wrecked pit."

David Horsley has a brand new actress—one that is said to be so temperamental that even David steps around to her whims, and her stomach ache. She weighs eight pounds and has newly taken up her residence at the Horsley home at 987 Gramercy place, the City of Angels.

"EASY" MONEY

Harry Miller, the all-night movie man, raked in three thousand kopeks on "Easy Street" last week.

Then the last day one man came out and said he "didn't care a dam for it."

Harry shoved a dollar into his hand and said:

"Say, man, go see a doctor. You're sick!"

BOMB EMPTIES THEATER

The villain was almost at the end of his rope, the hero was winning the fair hand of the heroine and the picture had a strong grip on the spectators of the Ideal Theater, Baltimore, when a "bomb" exploded.

The explosion didn't hurry the villain's fall or the hero's heart conquest. It wasn't that kind of an explosion. But soon the spectators were sniffling, holding their noses and hurrying for the exits, regardless of what happened to the villain or who finally won the hand of sweet Arethuse.

The next morning Clarence Buell said in the Juvenile Court that he had a very vivid recollection of it all. Clarence had one of those "odor bombs" in his pocket and said the trouble was all due to a premature explosion of it. He was fined $1 and costs.

TRAGEDY IN WAYNESBORO

The city of Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, has issued an order forbidding patrolmen to enter picture houses while on duty.

YOU'RE RIGHT, SAM

Sam Trigger of New York says that the next president of the M. P. E. L. of America should be a western man. Motography told the industry that last year.

But then, we always expect to be a year or so ahead.

And a couple of giddy fans over in one corner caught a glimpse of Harry Miller's wavy hair.

"Oh, there's Bryant Washburn!"

"No, it ain't! He's that fellow that always takes them villain parts."

EXHIBITORS PLAN MERGER

Three Local Branches of New York League Take Up Question of Forming a Central Body by Linking Units Together

A merger of the Bronx, New York City and Brooklyn local branches of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League is being considered by a joint committee of the three bodies. The proposal was submitted for discussion at a meeting in New York, February 13, at which representatives of the three organizations were present.

The plan as first outlined does not mean that the unit organizations will be combined in a single body, but will retain their present status, only that they will be brought together under a central, co-operative arrangement. The reason advanced for consolidation is that mutual benefit will result by the better co-operation and the stronger influence of the main body.

A ways and means committee consisting of the chief executives of the branches was appointed to go deeper into the matter and report their decision to the members of the locals. Samuel Trigger, Thomas Howard, Maurice Needles, John Wittman, Henry Cole, Samuel Suchman, John Manheimer, William Brandt and J. J. Loeb are serving on the committee.

Mr. Trigger offered figures to show that the recent motion picture ball cleared about $2,000 instead of $6,000 as first stated. An audit of the accounts will be made. This brought up the question of profits realized on the exposition held under the auspices of the League at Chicago, last July. President Lee A. Ochs presented a statement. Ludwig Schindler, Chicago exhibitor, will manage the exposition this year. The meeting passed a vote of confidence in Mr. Ochs's conduct of the Chicago affair as president of the national organization.

Twin Cities Plan Convention

An outline of the plans for holding a convention of exhibitors at Minneapolis, May 1, 2 and 3, was presented at the regular meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest, by David Rodgers, chairman of the convention committee.

The organization is going to pay the bills and relieve the exhibitors of the bother of paying for their own fun. There will be a banquet, grand ball and cabaret entertainments, at the expense of the corporation. But no exposition will be held, owing to the disfavor in which expositions are held by some exhibitors.

The meeting took place at the Bijou Theater. The day's discussion centered on "clean" pictures. Those leading the debate were Messrs. McClenaghan, Deeth, Hoppenrath and Hitchcock.

Exhibitors Bear Express Charges

The F. I. L. M. Club of Minneapolis has taken the stand that exhibitors should pay express charges on films both ways instead of only one way, as heretofore. The club voted on the question at its last regular meeting and has notified exhibitors of its action.

The main argument upon which the exchange men cite in support of their move lies in the extra expense entailed in their bookkeeping departments through the necessity of posting small sums for express on all film shipments. Exhibitors have also received notice that paper and photos will be charged for as well, and that these must be paid for in advance.

Practically all of the exchanges in the city were represented at the F. I. L. M. meeting and concurred unanimously in the plan. At the same time it was decided to engage the services of the Hoy Reporting Agency for the purpose of establishing a new collections system.

EXCHANGES CO-OPERATE

Live Denver Distributors Gain Good Will of Mothers' Congress and Women Pledge Support of All Clean Pictures Shown

A friendly agreement has been entered into between the Film Exchange Board of Trade of Denver and the Denver district of the Mothers' Congress by which virtually every moving picture agent in the Rocky Mountain district is bound to handle no objectional films.

In turn the Mothers' Congress have pledged themselves to support the better pictures shown.

The letter of agreement in part states:

Every film exchange in this city (Denver) agrees and pledges itself that all eliminations ordered by the national board of review and Mrs. Margaret B. Conway, city inspector of amusements, shall be permanent. The eliminations will be made before the films are shown in Denver and the actual film cut out and be preserved and held subject to the order of Mrs. Conway at all times. The eliminations shall not under any circumstances be reinserted in the film. We will use our influence, and feel that we can safely promise, that exactly the same action will be followed by a similar organization very closely affiliated with us in Salt Lake City.

As a matter of fact, most of the film exchanges in Salt Lake City are branches of the Denver exchanges and subject to our orders. Our territory extends from the middle of Nebraska to the middle of Nevada and from Canada to Mexico, some of us furnishing films in a few towns in northern Mexico. Roughly guessing, we would say that this agreement covers practically one-fifth of the United States and is not limited to Denver or Colorado alone. We will also use our influence with similar organizations in Kansas City, Dallas, Omaha and Chicago. As a matter of fact, we have already done this with most encouraging results. Each individual of the committee whose signatures appear below desires to congratulate you on actually accomplishing more and better practical results along the lines of your work than has been achieved anywhere in the United States.

This has been done without expense and we feel that the results will be permanent, because under the somewhat novel system you adopted, the returns to the moving picture proprietors will be increased, which naturally will in itself strengthen the movement until it becomes universal. The above agreement, of course, covers all the regular films released, but in addition to this, we will use or influence with, as well as adopt drastic measures against any theater that willfully shows an objectionable states' right picture contrary to the wishes of the national board of review and Mrs. Conway. Yours very truly, Film Exchange Board of Trade of Denver, by H. H. Buckwalter, president; approved by H. A. Hicks, counsellor, K. E. Fair and W. E. Scott, committee.

The method employed by the Mothers' Congress and referred to in the letter was to obtain signatures to petitions from hundreds of mothers and fathers in Denver, agreeing to aid in the betterment of films shown there. A meeting with the film exchange men and the managers of theaters was held. Plans to set certain days aside when delegates from the Mothers' Congress would see the films to be produced and pass upon their moral tone were made. Those that are considered proper will receive the indorsement, then, of the members of the congress.

The Children and Family Problem

THE "children's matinee" and the "family program" are among the worst afflictions of the exhibitor—as far as his relations with his patrons are concerned. It is largely a matter of the relationship, too, because almost any exhibitor would be willing to try to suit the people who demand these programs if he knew how, but the people think that his refusal is the result of a deep contempt for a crying public demand.

At the offices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry last week a scheme was worked out for one of the Club Women's Magazines which will be advocated to the club women of the country and seems to have a chance of bringing results. However, even where the club women do not suggest it, an exhibitor might find it a good way of getting together with the "better pictures" movement in his town to his real advantage. Here is the scheme:

Poster for children's shows, winner in the contest held by the National Committee on Films for Young People.

Plan of Co-operation

Suppose that the exhibitor is getting service for a daily change house from Paramount, Vitagraph, Metro and World, besides short subjects from Universal. He is using pictures some time after release, so that a month after he has shown them, he could re-book practically any of them without trouble.

He explains this to the town federation of club women, and tells them that in a month he can give a special matinee or performance made up of almost anything they select from this week's program. The club women then appoint a committee of two or three to attend the theater every day that week, and out of all the things he shows, they select a full program, feature, comedy, travelogue, film magazine, etc., with second choices in case the first program cannot be re-booked, and this program is given a month after its various parts have been shown as one of the seven regular programs of a week.

It does not matter if the interval is two months, or more—in some ways it would be better. The club women will get back of a program like this, which they selected, and will pack the house, at low film rentals for the re-bookings and at an off hour.

The committee of women who select the films can be changed each week, if the clubs wish it, and the scheme kept alive indefinitely. The club women's magazine is planning to go into this scheme quite extensively and the publicity department of the National Association has worked out for the magazine a system of reports which will make the investigations of the club women in every town available to those in other towns.

For instance, the reports of the women in a first-run city like Chicago on all the program and non-program services of every week will be made available for the information of women in towns which are showing pictures two weeks or a month after release. If the plan works out as devised, a definite start toward the children's matinee and the family program will be made with the pictures which are now being produced in the regular line of business.

Plays That Children Like

By Lucille Lee

A fourteen-year-old picture-goer

Probably the most popular type of moving picture play that appeals to children is the "Snow White" kind. This has as its theme a simple little scenario ("Rags," "The Foundling") or some well-known story, ("Jewel," "Good Little Devil") or fairy tale ("Cinderella," "Beauty and the Beast") presented by young actresses, preferably gifted child-stars. These plays are usually three and four reels in length and must have simplicity throughout the picture, in scenes, sub-titles, and especially in plot.

Another salable type is the comedy. If presented rightly it is a drawing card, but if made up of some worn-out love story it is a "dead one."

The "Charlie Chaplin" and "Ham and Bud" slapstick stuff is good. It need not have much plot but good actors are necessary, ones who fall and kick skillfully, and not only grimace grotesquely, but act naturally, and are real live wires. Comedians who are abnormal physically, i. e., fat men, are especially popular and bound to make pictures they are in popular. The main thing, however, in a comedy is not to stretch it, for the best of comedies cannot keep one laughing through two reels and in fact the best taking ones are the one-reelers.

The third and last type of picture that appeals to children is the two- or three-reel drama. It must have a good plot, not too complicated, and should be full of pep. The most attractive kind are the exciting railroad, western, arctic, etc., stories, such as John Drew, etc., and the scenarioized books. The latter are always welcome and, when well staged and well acted (preferably with child actors or Mary Pickford kind), they make the most popular pictures on the screen.

Influence of Pictures

The influence of motion pictures comes under consideration in the 1916 report of the Society for the Prevention of Crime.

The report says:

Pictures exert a powerful influence upon the community. There is no child but is eager to attend the "nicklet" as often as the nickel can be had. Adults are but older children, and especially in the poorer neighborhoods they yield to the attraction. It is all important, therefore, that this great influence shall be good.

The evil of too frequent attendance, breeding indolence, and its consequent vices, is due perhaps to the novelty and accessibility of the "fad." If so, it may largely right itself as soon as the novelty is passed.

On the other hand, the active influence of improper pictures cannot be too quickly or firmly resisted. Often lurid posters outside the theaters are of worse character than the films themselves. Public confidence in the purposes of the film producers would be enhanced if they would voluntarily abate this condition by refusing to furnish posters at all.

ILLINOIS LAW RADICAL

Wide Scope of Proposed Injunction and Abatement Act Alarms Exhibitors—Chicago Theater Managers Oppose Bill

So far-reaching is scope of the injunction and abatement act recently introduced in the Illinois legislature that not only lewd and immoral exhibitions are subject to its provisions, for which it is intended, but also moving picture houses and other theaters are within its range. It permits any citizen or a person acting for others to begin proceedings for a temporary injunction, which might afterward be declared permanent in the discretion of the court. Moving picture shows, theaters and other exhibitions subject to regulation under it may be classed as nuisances.

The Chicago Theater Managers' Association is leading the fight on the measure. Under the direction of President Harry J. Ridings, the association is canvassing the state in an effort to bring exhibitors and theater managers to a realization of the radical nature of the bill. The text of the measure in part is as follows:

Section 1: Be it enacted that all theaters, moving picture houses, gardens, buildings, rooms, places or structures in which public entertainment of a lewd or indecent character or tending to corrupt morals is given, are hereby declared to be public nuisances, and shall be abated as hereinafter provided.

Section 2: The state's attorney or any citizen of the county in which such a nuisance exists, may file a petition in the name of the people of the state of Illinois to enjoin any person or persons from maintaining or permitting such nuisance, and to abate the same, and to perpetually enjoin the use of such theater of one year. Upon the filing of a verified petition therefor in any court of equity jurisdiction, the court in term time, or a judge thereof in vacation, if satisfied that the nuisance complained of exists, shall allow a temporary injunction, with bond, unless the petition is filed by the state's attorney, in such amount as the court may determine, enjoining all persons from maintaining any such nuisance; provided that no such injunction shall be granted unless it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that notice has been served upon the owner, lessee or agent of said premises prior thereto. But no such notice need be served if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that upon diligent inquiry such owner, lessee or agent could not be found within the state of Illinois for the service of such notice.

Section 3: The defendant shall be required to answer the allegations of the petition within five days after being served with summons. The cause shall be heard immediately upon issue being joined.

Section 4: If the existence of the nuisance is established, the court shall enter a decree perpetually restraining all persons from maintaining or permitting such nuisance.

Minnesota to Levy Tax

On top of the federal and city licenses paid by theaters in Minnesota, the state is urged to authorize another license fee under the state building laws and fire regulations. An amendment to the building laws is sought by State Fire Marshal Hargadine, who wishes to guarantee adequate powers to municipal officers whose duties include supervision of public buildings. The fire marshal should be given authority to require all reasonable precautions against fire before a license could be obtained for a motion picture theater, he declares. Some of the smaller towns of Minnesota have no ordinances covering the subject. State supervision should be extended to such localities, says Mr. Hargardine.

GRIFFITH IN MICHIGAN

Censorship Fight at Lansing Gets Active Aid of Producer Who Champions Cause of Film Industry

With David W. Griffith backing up their fight on a proposed censorship law, Michigan exhibitors went on the firing line at Lansing, February 14, before a committe of the Michigan legislature which has the bill on its desk.

The Detroit Exhibitors' League sent William H. Shiek and F. A. Schneider to appear in behalf of Detroit exhibitors. Mr. Griffith wired in advance that he would be on hand. Several exhibitors and exchangemen accepted the suggestion of the Michigan Film Review and attended the session to register their disapproval of the measure.

The bill provides for the creation of a board having three members who would receive $1,500 a year each. A fee of $1 a reel for 1,000-foot lengths and $2 for longer films would be assessed.

Open Way to Uniform Censorship

In one of its features the law conforms with the ideas of many exhibitors, producers and exchangemen. It makes provision for the co-operation of the Michigan board with any other state or federal board, a plan sometimes favored as being a means toward obtaining uniform censorship in all states. The bill defines the class of films to be approved as follows:

Only such films as, in the judgment and discretion of said board, are of an interesting, amusing, educational, artistic or moral character, shall be passed and approved by such board. They shall be stamped or designated in an appropriate manner, and consecutively numbered.

Exchange Men Fight Censorship

By A. R. M. Sutton,
Special Correspondent for Motography

At a recent meeting of the exchange managers' club of Seattle, Wash., it was decided to put up an organized fight against the bill providing for a state board of censors, which has been introduced in the Washington state senate. Frank S. Fountain, manager of the Seattle Progressive office, was appointed as the exchangemen's representative to go to Olympia and lobby against the measure.

The bill is one which, if passed, would hit the producing companies pretty hard, by adding a great deal to their expenses. Under its provisions each film producer must pay a fee of $1 for each 1,000 feet or less of film viewed by the censors.

The board is to consist of three members to be named by the governor, one of whom must be a woman. Each member is to receive an annual salary of $1,800 per year, and a secretary-treasurer is to be employed at an annual salary of $2,000. The headquarters of the board is to be in Seattle.

The kind of pictures to be passed by the censors must be, so the bill stipulates, moral, entertaining or amusing, and of a harmless character. Each film so approved is to be stamped, and thereafter may run the gauntlet of any number of municipal boards or critics throughout the state.

Henrik Ibsen's famous play, "The Doll House," is to be picturized as a five-reel feature by Director Joseph De Grasse at Universal City.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM FOR EXHIBITORS

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Exhibitor Builds Ship in Lobby

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES said: "C'est le dernier pas qui coute,"—whatever that means, Anyway a Frenchman told us that it means, "It's the last step that counts."

And there are not too many exhibitors who take the "last step" in service, in advertising, in lobby display, in success. In other words, as Roosevelt says, "You can't have any real success without strenuous effort."

Manager C. P. Merwin, owner of the Circuit Theater of Seattle, Washington, realizes that truth. And he is willing to make the effort, and take the results. He is energetic enough to make the "last step" in his service, his displays and his advertising as good and as effective as the first. He doesn't carry a plan part way then "lay down." He does a little more than the other fellow, and, other things being equal, he will enjoy more rewards than the other fellow, who doesn't take so much pains.

A splendid example of this spirit of effort which doesn't pause till the best is accomplished, is found in Mr. Merwin's excellent lobby display for "The Sea Wolf." The accompanying photograph gives a hint of its striking qualities, its completeness and its pulling power.

No one could pass an attractive display like that without pausing for a look and probably a visit to the "wonders of the screen" inside.

Not every exhibitor can afford to spend so much money and care on a lobby stage setting and conditions do not always warrant it. But there are a great many cases where showmen complain of poor business, from one cause or another, when an effort like the above would bring different results.

The very unusual and attractive lobby display made by Manager Merwin of the Circuit Theater, Seattle, for his showing of "The Seal Wolf."

Manager Merwin ran "The Sea Wolf" three days, after it had been shown nearly a score of times before in his city, and his results were a great deal more than he had hoped.

Mr. Merwin was formerly manager of the General Film Company and later V. L. S. E. representative in the Seattle territory. He left the latter position to become an exhibitor, and if this lobby work is any example of his methods, he must be a "hundred point" show man.

Here's more power to you, Merwin. You've proved that you can not only paddle your own canoe but can build your own show-ship. Keep up the good work and don't give up the "Ghost" till you're all pumped dry of ideas. And by that time you'll be rich enough to retire.

Exhibitors of Five States Combine

A new concern was recently organized at Kansas City which incorporates representative moving picture exhibitors in five states. The new business is known as the United Theaters Company with offices at 103 Finance Building.

Richard Robertson, who recently resigned as manager of the World Film Corporation's Kansas City exchange and Ted L. Morse, are heading the new organization of exhibitors. The plan of the company is to buy feature productions from the open market outright and book these productions through its membership houses in the principal cities of Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska and Oklahoma. The company already has a large membership and its list is constantly increasing. Road men have been placed on the road for the purpose of signing up new exhibitors in territory still open, only one house in each city being selected excepting the cities where the population is large enough to justify two or more houses such as Kansas City, St. Louis, Oklahoma City and so forth.

It is believed that by buying the productions on the open market outright and booking them exclusively over the membership circuit on a co-operative plan the cost of the feature productions to the exhibitor will be greatly decreased. At the present time the United Theaters Company is planning to release one feature production each week. The company is owned and controlled it is understood by the exhibitors and not by exchange men.

Richard Robertson, president and manager of the company, announces that several productions are already the property of the company and that the booking of these productions is already in progress thus giving the charter members the advantage of first run over those that are being accepted. The booking is planned on order in which the exhibitors have joined the cause. Mr. Robertson at present will not make public just what productions have been arranged for. However, he declares that it is likely that the company will get under direct operation within the week.

The company reports that it is in the market for feature productions for one or more days running at the theaters irrespective of trade name and solely on their merits. Mr. Robertson recently said: "The exhibitors forming this company are not endeavoring to destroy or attack the business of film exchanges or producers in this section of the country. They merely plan to find a way of avoiding the spasmodic and occasional feature production wished on their hands by some company furnishing their regular program. The reason for this is self evident, for these program exchanges have often forced such productions on the exhibitor that have proved so unsuitable for this locality although they may have made hits elsewhere, that have also proved disasterous from a financial point of view. Only such productions as are particularly suitable for exhibition in this section of the country will be considered. These pictures are booked in the membership houses on dates that are held open from contract by the exhibitor. We have already received a large demand for releases of more than one picture a week and it is likely that such will be gone into much quicker than was expected."

Feeling the Public Pulse

Joseph Grein knows his public. If he did not, he would not be proprietor of a theater in a residential district of Chicago where the theater-goers are wise enough to know their own tastes and go elsewhere if the program at his theater, the Clark, is not what they desire. Mr. Grein knows the public in more ways than one. As a newsboy during his youth he learned that the public is fickle, and when the "old boys" turned out in Chicago a year or so ago and sold papers, Joe sold $1,200 worth in a day. His finger is always on the public's pulse.

"Joe" Grein, exhibitor, state representative, "newsboy," city sealer and director of the Clark Theater, Chicago. He gives dancing lessons in his theater and it draws the crowds.

In his programs he prints "feelers" and asks such questions as these:

Who are your favorite stars?
Which class of pictures do you prefer?
Would you enjoy vaudeville?
What newspaper do you read for motion picture programs?

His house was the first outside of the downtown district to show the Vernon Castle picture, "Patria." If a film has a strong run in a downtown house, at high prices, Mr. Grein books it for the Clark Theater. Recently he has shown Universal's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," and other special features. His coming attractions have the names of big stars attached to all. The list reads something like this: Mary Pickford, Clara Kimball Young, Annette Kellermann, Marguerite Clark, Edith Storey, Louise Glaum.

A novelty designed to draw a full house for the last performances each night is dancing, for which the stage of the theater is used. The Clark was formerly a vaudeville house and has a large stage.

Mr. Grein has served one term in the legislature as representative from his district. He has held positions as court bailiff and city sealer in Chicago. A few years ago he owned an interest in the Forest Park Amusement Company of Chicago.

New Jacksonville House Opens

The S. A. Lynch Enterprises, operating in several cities of the southern states, has lately opened the new Imperial Theater, at Jacksonville, Florida. The Lynch interests have recently expanded their field of activity to no little extent and has taken on a list of high class legitimate road show attractions, vaudeville acts for variety and moving picture theaters and has assumed control of the Keith franchises in several cities.

Offices are operated by this organization at Atlanta, Dallas, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Asheville and several other cities and the personnel of the staff is constantly increasing.

The S. A. Lynch Enterprises controls the release and exhibition of Paramount Triangle and World Film Corporation pictures in eleven southern states, which is one reason for the tremendous popularity of houses controlled by this organization, as such houses exhibit these pictures, which always assure substantial entertainment and the best in the moving picture producers' art.

Officers of the organization are: S. A. Lynch, president; C. E. Tandy, vice president and general manager; Fred Kent, secretary-treasurer, and E. J. Sparks, general representative. Directors are: S. A. Lynch, Fred Kent, C. E. Tandy, Freeman and R. W. Lynch.

Something New

Manager Meyers of the Palace Theater, Waterloo, Iowa, is one of the quick witted, up-to-the-minute managers.

During the run of the Metro production of "Romeo and Juliet" at his theater a large and attractive half page ad ran in the daily papers announcing this attraction at his theater.

One afternoon at about theater time, it snowed about three hours so that persons waiting to enter the Palace were plastered with snow flakes. Manager Meyers quick to think of the comfort of his patrons, called his ushers and arming them and himself with brooms he met his patrons under the glass canopy under his entrance and with a laugh and repartee to aid, brushed each one free of snow before they even bought their tickets. This was highly appreciated by one man who expressed himself as follows: "This is what I call genuine service and it catches me for all time."

Alma Reuben, who appears in the Triangle Fine Arts production, "Womanhood's Awakening," wears some classy riding clothes.

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

THE Bedford Theater, Port Huron, Michigan, is one of the attractive new houses of the northern country.

Mrs. Leona Deakin is manager of the new Lafayette Theater which is about to open at Great Falls, Montana.

The Rialto of New York featured the five-part Essanay play, "Skinner's Dress Suit," during the week of February 19.

The new owners of the Princess Theater, of Fort Madison, Iowa, have re-opened the showhouse, using the Universal program.

The Gem Theater at Hankinson, North Dakota, has been sold by A. E. Pfeifer to William Mefers and A. J. Withnell of Jamestown.

A boy musician sixteen years old directs the orchestra of Young's Theater, of Greenville, Pennsylvania. He is Master Emmanuel Steel.

The Crown Theater, at Hastings, Michigan, has been sold by Messrs. Miller and Phelps to R. A. Goshorn, proprietor of the Bijou, also a Hastings theater.

Fire starting in a picture theater at Blairstown, Pennsylvania, swept over the business section of the town and did damage of $100,000. Robert Roy owned the ruined theater.

The Dayton Theater Building Company has been incorporated in Ohio with capital of $250,000 and has opened offices at Dayton. Frederick H. Rike and associates are the incorporators.

The Bankers and Drovers Theater Company of Chicago has leased a building site in Terre Haute, Indiana, and will erect a theater. The ground is now occupied by the Varieties Theater.

J. L. Shaw, an exhibitor of Washington, has taken over the Liberty Theater at Whitefish, Montana. He reports good success in showing Pathe and Vitagraph features. He is a consistent advertiser.

Shipments of films into Montana during two weeks of February have been delayed by blizzards and floods in states farther east. In consequence many theaters have been inconvenienced and their programs upset.

The right of the management of the Victoria Theater of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, to show moving pictures on Sunday, for the relief of war sufferers, has been disputed by the Harrisburg Ministerial Association.

Wyman and Wyman, new men in the theater business, have taken over the Lyric Theater at Glendive, Montana. Among the features are three Pathe Gold Roosters each week. They report a good business by showing features only.

The main auditorium of the Majestic Theater at Jackson, Mississippi, one of the largest motion picture playhouses in the South, was completely gutted by fire recently. The loss is estimated at $10,000, with $5,000 insurance. It is being rebuilt.

A fine of $50 was assessed against a young man arrested at a Fort Worth, Texas, picture show on the charge of attempting to force his attentions upon a young woman in the audience in violation of the city ordinance against "mashers."

James B. Heaney, banker, and manager of the Crawford Theater, of Chicago, has discontinued the use of printed programs and now uses the money so spent in newspaper advertisements in the picture show columns of Chicago newspapers.

Manager Edel of the New York Strand has informed its uniformed employes that any who joins the national guard in defense of the colors will receive his full pay from the theater while on military duty and also be guaranteed his position.

The Auditorium Theater, of San Bernardino, California, has passed from the management of D. F. Eselin to Carl Ray, a well known western amusement manager. The house will be remodeled and will open as a first class moving picture theater.

Dr. Scott P. Child told the friendly visitors of the Provident Association at Kansas City, Missouri, that undesirable motion picture films in five years had worked more injury to the morals of young people in Kansas City than a generation could repair.

The beauty and the chivalry of the stage and screen will be much in evidence at the Actors' Fund fair to be held at the Grand Central Palace in New York from May 12 to 21, practically all of the stars having volunteered their services at booths.

A charter has been issued to the Ampere Theater Corporation of New Jersey. Its offices are at 380 Main street, East Orange. The concern is capitalized at $150,000. The incorporators are William B. Grimsey, James Tyrrell and Henry C. Brown, all of East Orange.

The Derrick, a daily newspaper published at Oil City, Pennsylvania, commends the management of its local theaters for the quality of their programs, saying:

> The managers of the Oil City theaters are putting on their screens a better class of pictures than those of any nearby town, and the theater-going public appears to appreciate the showings.

The New York Strand achieved a maximum of variety in its bill for the week of February 19. Max Linder in the first of his pictures by Essanay, "Max Comes Across," was a pre-release offering. Some unusual pictures taken in Alaska, showing a sea lion rookery and the capture of whales, provided a travel feature. Fanny Ward's new vehicle, "The Winning of Sally Temple," was the principal dramatic picture.

Robert E. Deady has purchased the Trocadero Theater, 1003-05 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, from the J. Bolton Winpenny estate for $175,000. He has leased the property for the last four years. It has an assessed valuation of $125,000 and a lot measuring 50 by 175 feet.

The Russell, Detroit's new 1200-seat theater, is now running in its third week. It is equipped with two ventilating systems, one of which is designed to cool the house in hot weather. The proprietors are H. T. Hall and N. W. Mitchell, who own a smaller theater in the same block.

The Park Theater, of St. Louis, Missouri, until recently the home of a musical comedy stock company, will be re-opened shortly as one of the best equipped photoplay theaters in St. Louis. Louis A. Cella and Frank Tate, associated in amusement enterprises, have acquired control of the Park for twenty years at a rental of $8,500 a year.

Four exhibitors of Trenton, New Jersey, have joined hands with a local organization which is seeking better pictures for the children. The Trent Theater, Strand Theater, Taylor Opera House and Bijou Theater have arranged to introduce juvenile programs every Saturday, beginning April 7.

Harvard is to have a chance to study the charms of Mrs. Vernon Castle, the naughtiness of Theda Bara and the loveliness of Anita Stewart without leaving the college confines. A theater and business block will be built on the Reed estate by Boston men, recent purchasers of the property, which is located in the heart of the Harvard square section.

The theater managers of Idaho have lately held the first theatrical convention ever held in the state and have organized the Idaho Exhibitors' and Theater Managers' Association. The work of bringing the managers together has been in the hands of H. J. Brown, manager of the Majestic Theater at Boise.

The Rowland and Clark theaters of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, sent a cameraman to the scene of a recent fire which was one of the worst the city has known. The pictures were announced for showing in twelve houses, in addition to the scheduled features. The loss in the fire reached $2,000,000. One of the properties destroyed was the Grand Theater.

The new Rialto Theater at Butte, Montana, now nearing completion, is a concrete structure four stories in height. The exterior is faced with white terra cotta. In appearance it is said to compare favorably with the finest in the West. It will be operated by the Greater Theaters Company, of Seattle, Washington, controlled by Messrs. Jensen and Von Herberg. Artcraft, Paramount, Vitagraph and Pathe pictures will be part of the program.

The Wollard Theater Company has been organized at Washington, D. C., and will build a motion picture theater and vaudeville house on the property from 510 to 520 Thirteenth street. The capital stock of the concern is $175,000. The incorporators are Charles M. Casey, of Lynchburg, Va.; Anson T. Babcock, George M. Mann, Alexander Wolf and Charles H. Galliher.

The Madison Theater and the Palace Theater, of Allentown, Pennsylvania, Catasauqua, have been taken over by the Madison Amusement Company, which proposes to extend its operations throughout this section. The new company is made up of John Karedes, who came from Washington, N. J.; William Manley, of Catasauqua, and Chris Kirias, manager. The retiring member of the firm is S. Chararas.

Sounds like Pennsylvania picture shows are doing a thriving business when the authorities remind theater men that in a crowded show only twenty per cent of the seating capacity of a theater is allowed to stand in the rear of the last row of seats. Factory Inspector C. H. Caler, of Rochester, Pennsylvania, recently warned theater owners that none but ushers may stand in the aisles. Others must stand behind the last row of seats.

During the week between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, the Strand Theater of New York presented an all-American patriotic bill. The concert orchestra played "The Evolution of Dixie" as an overture. Irene Audrey, draped in the Stars and Stripes, sang "America," while on the screen was "The American Consul," with Theodore Roberts in the title role, and "The Seventh Son," a story which deals with an event in Abraham Lincoln's life.

The American Theater, Butte, Montana, used a half-page ad in each of the daily newspapers to tell of what Manager Paul Noble said was a one hundred per cent program for the week. It consisted of "Truthful Tulliver," William S. Hart, Triangle; "Her New York," Gladys Hulette; "Kick In," Pathe Gold Rooster; "The Common Law," Clara Kimball Young, Selznick. Sunday, "Her New York" went over big; Monday and Tuesday "Kick In" stood them up.

It takes a day's pay to attend a picture show at Fort Yellowstone, Wyoming. Only five persons reside there. For several weeks each has contributed three dollars toward a film feature which is exhibited in one of their homes. They operate the machine by turns and hold a performance every Saturday. C. E. Schmidt, manager of Pathe's office at Butte, Montana, heard the story of Fort Yellowstone's entertainment from Fred R. Springer, of the United States engineering corps, stationed there.

When R. E. Washington, a hotel man of Charleston, West Virginia, went into a theater there recently, he learned the whereabouts of his 20-year-old son, Lawrence, who had disappeared from his home two years ago. The film on the screen showed a picture of the dreadnought Pennsylvania in target practice in the Hampton Roads proving grounds, with Lawrence Washington manning one of the guns. The father recognized his son instantly. The picture showed honors being conferred on the young man who made three hits without a miss.

Since February 12 the Lyric Theater of New York has been running the William Fox drama, "The Honor System." The Lyric thus broke a precedent and became the first large New York theater presenting stage productions to depart from its rule and offer screen features for two consecutive runs. The Kellermann picture, "The Daughter of the Gods," also a Fox production, ran through almost two hundred and fifty performances, being followed by "The Honor System."

The life of Abraham Lincoln was the timely theme about which the New York Rialto's program for the week beginning with Lincoln's birthday. While the orchestra played as an overture Lucius Hosmer's "Southern Rhapsody," a characterization of President Lincoln by Benjamin E. Chapin was flashed on the screen. Ida M. Tarbell's "He Knew Lincoln," as done by Ralph Ince, with the musical score of accompanying patriotic airs, was a companion picture. The dramatic element of the program was chiefly present in Vitagraph's "Arsene Lupin."

An advertising stunt that has been tried hundreds of times since bagpipes were invented succeeded again when the Princess Theater at Oil City, Pennsylvania, showed Mary Pickford recently in the Scottish story, "The Pride of the Clan." A Scotchman with a set of bagpipes skirling the tunes of bonnie Scotland, in which country the picture story is staged, played some of the national Scottish airs and a companion danced the highland fling. A crowd that extended from the doors of the theater to the curb stood in line to see the performance.

BIG WAR SERIES

General Film's Big Series "The War" Now Released—Its Lesson Extremely Timely in View of Present Crisis

The General Film Company has released at an extremely timely date its big series of official government pictures of the European conflict, "The War," which is now ready for the exhibitor. At a moment when America faces the greatest crisis in her career, these wonderful pictures with their gospel of preparedness and its results should prove a splendid object lesson. The United States must do just what England and France and the other allies have done. War stares us in the face.

"The War" brings home to the spectator as no other medium could, the methods and results of preparedness. The pictures were taken by official British government photographers under the direction of the war office. In logical sequence they show England's stormy struggle to equip herself for conflict, and the result in her successful offensive on the Somme. They are a tremendous lesson in results, the kind of results the United States may find herself striving for in a few months.

They sum up every branch of England's fighting forces, her drill camps at home, her great army "somewhere in France," her sea fleet keeping its stormy vigil in the North Sea and the actual fighting in the battle of the Somme.

Never before have official motion picture records of a war been taken by one of the governments participating. The General Film Company has the exclusive rights to all of the official war films that have been taken.

Following upon the many faked war pictures this series should prove of inestimable value to exhibitors. They are exclusive and bear the official stamp of the fighting nations. The charge of an English regiment against heavy machine-gun fire shown in the first episode is the most sensational scene ever filmed. It is not realism—it is real. It is the first time that a picture of men actually fighting and dying has been shown on the screen.

"The War" is released by the General Film Company for Official Government Pictures, Inc., of which W. K. Vanderbilt is president and H. P. Davison, treasurer. All of the gross profits from the showing of these pictures in America will be devoted to deserving war relief funds.

One of the first important showings of "The War" was at the Monster War Relief Benefit of the Philadelphia North American at the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia, February 17.

"Sister Against Sister" March Fifth

"Sister Against Sister," the newest of Virginia Pearson's subjects for William Fox, will be released on March 5. Miss Pearson plays a dual role in this production, and does what is without doubt the best work of her long career in the silent drama.

The main story is preceded by a prologue in which Katherine Lee impersonates the two girls whose parts are taken by Miss Pearson a score of years afterward. This is perhaps the first photodrama in which a child of little Katherine Lee's slight age has ever acted for double-exposure work. Katherine's famous sister, Jane, is also in the cast.

Other members of the company are Maud Hill, Walter Law, Irving Cummings, Calla Torres, William and Archie Battista.

Mary Murillo wrote the 'script. James Vincent was the director.

Irving Cummings makes his bow as a Fox player in "Sister Against Sister."

Exhibitors at Coney Island

Coney Island is the haven, for a night, of a hundred or more Brooklyn exhibitors, members of the Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn and Long Island, Local Number 3, of the M. P. E. L., who are holding a carnival at Stauch's, Coney Island, February 21. Several thousand guests are coming to the affair. The Brooklyn Eagle has co-operated with the exhibitors by holding a voting contest to select the King and Queen of the carnival. Anita Stewart and Douglas Fairbanks gave their consent to grace the occasion with their presence.

Prizma Colored Pictures

The large audience in attendance at the first showing of the new Prizma color pictures given in New York under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History and the New York Academy of Sciences, composed of scientists, mechanical experts, and photographers as well as a representative gathering of interested people, acclaimed the new process a distinct step in advance of anything yet accomplished in colored photography and projection.

The House of Representatives voted for the indefinite postponement of the Johnson bill providing for the creation of a motion picture commission for censorship. It is the third bill of a similar character which had been killed in committee during the session. A bill was also introduced through the instrumentality of Indiana exhibitors and exchange managers to legalize Sunday exhibitions.

Some of the unusual scenes from "A Mormon Maid," featuring Mae Murray and released on the open market by Friedman Enterprises, Inc.

"A MORMON MAID"

Unusual Production Featuring the Captivating Mae Murray Is First Series for Open Market Offered by Friedman Enterprise

Benjamin Friedman, a prominent film man of the Northwest, has recently organized a company to be known as Friedman Enterprises, Inc., which is said to be incorporated for $250,000. The corporation headquarters are at 923 Longacre building, New York City, and Hiller & Wilk, Inc., are the representatives.

The purpose of this concern is to handle large film productions in the open market. The first of these is entitled "A Mormon Maid," and is a photodrama of early Mormon days. The picture is five reels in length and presents Mae Murray and Hobart Bosworth in the leading roles. One million post cards, one thousand twenty-four sheet stands, a nation-wide newspaper campaign agitating afresh the unusual character of the production, and several other as direct and pertinent circulation and publicity stimulations are among the ammunition with which Mr. Friedman is bombarding the eye and ear of the trade and lay public advertising "A Mormon Maid." Details will be supplied to exhibitors on request.

Hiller and Wilk expect to shortly close with one of the big New York theaters now in consideration and have settled down to the active work of marketing.

Crystal Photoplays Buys Studio

All of the property of the bankrupt Barker-Swan Film Company, both real and personal, including the studio located at Peoria, Illinois, has been sold to Merrick A. Whipple, a Chicago attorney, for a total consideration of nearly $75,000.

Mr. Whipple's bid was for the payment of $2,493, the waiver of fees, costs, and expenses aggregating $51,-615, and the assumption of liens and encumbrances amounting to $18,991.

Mr. Whipple has acted throughout the involuntary bankruptcy proceedings instituted against the Barker-Swan Company as attorney for the petitioning creditors and for the receiver and trustee.

The new owners will incorporate as the Crystal Photoplay Corporation and will produce Crystal Classics and Crystal comedies. The capitalization announced is $150,000. Frank Z. Ames, of Rutland, Illinois, president of the Rutland State bank, has been elected treasurer of the new company. With him will be associated Dr. A. H. Shields, of Chicago, vice-president and general manager; Charles H. Dixon, of Peoria, vice-president and manager of production; Willis B. Troy, of Chicago and New York, vice-president and manager of the commercial department; Merrick A. Whipple, secretary and general counsel; and P. W. Swan, of Peoria, assistant secretary. General offices will be established in Chicago at 740 Fort Dearborn building.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTHUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONDON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 6411 HOLLYWOOD BLVD., DON MEANEY, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00

Canada - -	Per year $4.00
Foreign - -	Per year 5.00
Single copy - - - -	.15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY. Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.
If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 3, 1917 Number 9

Better Music as a Price Booster

NATURALLY, the exhibitor who finds ten cents admission easy to get with good pictures has a more or less vague ambition to raise his price to fifteen cents. He has established himself at ten cents, however, with the best pictures he can get. He knows his patrons do not want a longer show and he cannot well offer them a better one. He is hard put to it to find a legitimate excuse for a raise in prices—a reason that will be accepted by his patrons and that will not lose business.

A certain ten-cent theater on Chicago's south side recently dispensed with its four-piece orchestra and substituted an extremely poor piano player. The result is far, very far indeed, from satisfactory. We hope the exhibitor made the change with a plan in the back of his head for restoring the orchestra and, with its restoration, raising his price to fifteen cents. For we haven't any doubt that the majority of his patrons would prefer to pay more and get good music.

A picture accompanied by a half-baked pianist does not look the same as when it has orchestral accompaniment. That may sound nonsensical—or psychological, which is nearly as bad—but it is true. It is not exactly the music that the patron is willing to pay more for; it is the fact that the impression of the picture is twice as good with the better accompaniment.

The piano, properly played, is the king of instruments. For some reason it is seldom properly played in picture theaters. We do not doubt that an expert piano player, on an adequate salary, can add grace to the best of picture shows. We would like to see the experiment tried more often than it is.

An orchestra, even so small as four pieces, is the most impressive means of accompaniment—and also the most expensive. Ten cents does not justify an orchestra in any house. Fifteen cents does. And we are firmly convinced that the vast majority of picture theater patrons, particularly of the "better" classes, would rather pay fifteen cents for a show with a good orchestra than ten cents for the same show with a careless piano pounder.

Make the League Represent All the Exhibitors

Editor's Note:—The following editorial is reprinted from MOTOGRAPHY of November 18, 1916, at the request of Thomas Furniss of Duluth, Minn., director and executive committee member of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and other prominent exhibitors. Mr. Furniss says, "This was so good I read it to a large body of exhibitors at a luncheon in Minneapolis, and I am confident it will bear repeating."

MOST exhibitors agree that organization is a necessity. Theoretically they like the idea of an exhibitors' association. Practically, when they have one, they don't join it—at least not in very encouraging numbers.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America is popularly supposed to represent the will of the exhibitors of this country. The tasks it undertakes are assumed to bear the stamp of approval of the exhibitors as an industrial unit. And that assumption is justified by the fact that no exhibitor is barred from membership except for some extraordinary reason. They are all welcome. The League was made for them. It should have ninety per cent of them as its members. The distressing fact is that it has but five per cent of them.

The total membership of the League is less than seven hundred and fifty. That is one member for every twenty motion picture theaters. When the League expresses an opinion or takes action in any direction as the official voice of the combined exhibitors of America, every one of its members carries the burden of twenty men. The fact that the other nineteen might not approve of the measure does not signify, for the nineteen are not members and the one is.

That fifteen thousand motion picture theater men should be willing to let themselves be impersonated by one-twentieth of their number is deplorable. And that is exactly what happens when a big industry is represented by a small membership in its association. The things the League says are bound to be hailed as the utterances of the entire exhibiting body. The things the League does are bound to be regarded as "of, for and by the motion picture exhibitor."

This condition is not the fault of the League, or of any of its officers, or of any of its members. It is the fault of the non-members; of those fourteen thousand odd exhibitors who are too indifferent to the unification of their power to get together, even when the way is made clear for them.

It is common to hear the non-member of an association declare "I will not join because I don't like the way they run things. When they change their ways I will come in." The protest is so familiar we seldom stop to think how illogical it is. The members of an association are really the ones who "run things." They appoint directors and officers who will conduct affairs as they want them conducted. Staying out of an association never made it change its ways to suit the one who stayed out, and never will. The only possible way to get improvement is to get inside and fight for it. The man on the outside has no right even to ask for a change of methods.

Yet the man outside the association, the non-member, cannot shirk his responsibility or avoid the consequences of his indifference. He is assumed to stand behind everything the League says and does. The League speaks and acts for him, since he is unable to speak and act for himself. He may not agree with it, but he is powerless to say so. As a non-member he is a nonentity. He is merely one of the fifteen thousand that constitute "the voice of the exhibitor." And that voice is expressed by five per cent of its strength, which assumes authority to speak for the other ninety-five per cent.

What kind of a government would we have in this country if only one million voters instead of over twenty million were allowed to express their choice? The case is more nearly parallel than the casual observer may think; for the exhibitors' association is assumed by most people to represent all the exhibitors. Under that assumption the actual members of the association gain power; the non-members lose.

There is nothing wrong with the plan of the League. It is a good organization, equipped to do excellent work. With a membership big enough to express the real sentiments of the exhibiting body, to get the approval of a consequential number of exhibitors for its activities instead of a mere handful, it would accomplish wonders.

The whole industry needs a stronger League. The exhibitors who are not members need it most of all. It is to them that we appeal for an effort to make the present association—which is as good as any that could be organized—represent a majority of the exhibiting end of this business.

Every motion picture theater man ought to join the League and help to run it the way he thinks it should be run. As a member he can protest the things he does not like, and vote for the people he does like. As a non-member he can do neither, but must permit the weight of his profession to be used in any manner the actual members see fit to use it.

The National Association's organization work will be completed shortly, and the officers and committees of the Association will have some time which can well be given to the assistance of the League. "Class 2" is bound to be the most difficult division of the Association, so far as securing members is concerned. The exhibitors are not only slower to appreciate the benefits of organization than the other classes, but they are inclined to suspect the sincerity of those who take active part in such work. Therefore we are sure the League organizers would welcome the assistance of the whole Association in converting that five per cent membership into ninety-five per cent.

Convert Hughes Bill to Postal Censor Law

COMMITTEE PLANS REGULATION THROUGH MAILS

WITH the idea of converting the Hughes federal censorship bill in congress into a postal regulations measure and empowering postal officials to exercise supervision over film shipments through the mails, the committee on interstate commerce having the measure in charge, is considering the adoption of the substitute bill instead of the proposed federal censorship proposition. In effect the control of film shipments would constitute a form of censorship in itself, the intention of the committee being to class motion picture films under the postal regulations applying to matter of an "obscene, indecent, lewd, lascivious, libelous, scurrilous, or defamatory nature."

The Hughes bill as it was introduced will not be passed, nor will it be allowed to die in committee by not being reported out, according to information obtained by the press.

Question of State Rights

The objection of the committee to the Hughes bill arises from the contention that each state should have the right to pass upon the question as it chooses. The desire of the motion picture interests that the federal censorship plan be abandoned it seems has not had much weight with the committee.

The Hughes bill, it will be recalled, provides for a body of five commissioners appointed by the president with the advice of the senate. One of the members would be designated as chairman and all of the first appointees would continue in office for terms varying from two to six years. Their successors would have a tenure of six years, each of them to receive a salary of $7,500 a year with the exception of the chairman, who would get $8,000. The principal office would be in Washington, with bureaus established wherever else deemed necessary by the commissioners.

A charge of $2 is proposed for each applicant for a license or a permit for the first thousand feet or fraction thereof and fifty cents for each additional copy made by the manufacturer. From the decision of the commissioners no appeal is provided, except to the Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia. A fine of $1,000 is the punishment for the violation of any of its provisions.

Club Women Oppose Censorship

"We believe in constructive criticism of motion pictures as worked out in the 'Better Films' movement rather than censorship," was the consensus of opinion as expressed by prominent club women at the conference held on February 10 by the Federated Clubs of Wheeling, West Virginia.

Helen Duey, one of the originators of the "Better Films" movement, editor of the motion picture department of the Woman's Home Companion and member of the national committee on Films for Young People, affiliated with the National Board of Review, was the speaker of the occasion. Miss Duey stated that censorship of any kind was not in keeping with the new spirit of tolerance which has spread over America; that democracy meant primarily the right to think as one pleased and to live according to the dictates of his own conscience. Therefore any attempt to coerce any form of expression whether the printed page or the screen was out of joint with the times.

"You can help the exhibitor stabilize his business," she said, "in building up a steady patronage for clean, wholesome pictures. You are the people he is interested in attracting to his theater. Help him to give you only the best.

"Censorship is far-reaching. Laws are not flexible. Let us be patient until the industry cures its own sickness assisted by the nursing of public opinion. It is better to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of, as Shakespeare says. And who would come more under the censors' ban than our greatest dramatist?"

Miss Duey suggested as the remedy for present unsatisfactory conditions the special program for boys and girls.

Accompanied by Mrs. John Garden, president of the Federation, Miss Duey called upon Mr. Charles Feinler of the Court Theater who agreed to start the "Better Films for Children Movement" in his theater. He expressed his willingness and pleasure in co-operating with the Federation of Women's Clubs.

A number of New York City clergymen, representing several denominations, visited the Thanhouser Studios at New Rochelle the other day. They had been specially invited by Edwin Thanhouser, president of the corporation, to view the recently completed picture, "The Vicar of Wakefield," in which is featured Frederick Warde, acting president of the Actors' Church Alliance.

Senate Passes Sunday Bill

By a vote of twenty-seven to nineteen the senate of the Indiana legislature has put its approval on the measure of the Hoosier State exhibitors to legalize Sunday pictures. The measure now rests with the house for final passage. That it will be signed by the governor if the law goes through both branches of the legislature is a foregone conclusion, since Governor Goodrich has shown consideration for the exhibitors' problems throughout the session.

MOTOGRAPHY has received a letter from Frank J. Rembusch, exhibitor at Shelbyville, Indiana, who asks, "Are we happy? YES."

"We'll be more pleased when the bill gets through the house," he adds.

MOTOGRAPHY congratulates the exhibitors and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the state for the good fight they have put up.

Seena Owen in New Story

Director Chet Withey has started the production of "Womanhood's Awakening" (temporary title), written by Frank E. Woods, manager of production at the Fine Arts studio, and featuring Seena Owen. This is Miss Owen's first appearance in silent drama since she had the role of Attarea, the Princess Beloved, in D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance." A. D. Sears plays the leading masculine role opposite Miss Owen. The other principals in the cast include Kate Bruce, Spottiswoode Aitken, Charles Gerrard, Alma Reuben and Alberta Lee.

CHICAGO GETS MRS. CASTLE

H. A. Spanuth Brings "Patria" Star from London to Begin Engagement with Commonwealth Pictures Corporation

Mrs. Vernon Castle, whose appearance in "Patria" is now a weekly event in theaters of all states, has taken a role that calls for real daring. Unless her plans have unexpectedly conflicted with the wishes of the Kaiser, she is now aboard an ocean liner on the Atlantic, bound from London to New York. The submarine peril caused a delay of several days in her sailing, but cables received by her New York agent, Elizabeth Marbury, state that she will be in New York early in March.

Upon her return she will begin an engagement with the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, with which she has just entered into a contract. Other stars recently engaged by this company are Elsie Mackay and Sir Herbert Tree.

Exhibitors Share Ownership

While Mrs. Castle was at work on the production of "Patria," H. A. Spanuth, former general manager of the Jones, Linick & Schaefer Company, of Chicago, was busy organizing the Commonwealth Pictures with "exhibitor first" as his motto. The plan was to organize exhibitors of the highest class introducing them financially in a producing company, giving them first call on the box-office productions that hitherto had been purchased or rented through exchanges. The plan worked out as well as Mr. Spanuth had expected. Exhibitors from all over the country liked the idea of getting a share of the profits of producing.

Then Mr. Spanuth went gunning for Mrs. Castle. The position that she had won on the stage seemed to be increased as "Patria" was released. Mrs. Castle, however, had gone to London to complete some of the scenes in "Patria" and also to get in touch with her husband who is now a member of the British Flying Corps.

Seven Sunday Bills Up

Seven bills designed to legalize the exhibition of motion picture films on Sunday are now before the New York legislature. They include Senator John J. Boylan's bill which specifies that Sunday shows be permitted after 12 o'clock noon. Senator Edward J. Dowling has introduced a bill allowing the motion picture theaters to open on Sunday and no restrictions are placed upon the hours. Another bill provides for the opening of picture theaters on the Sabbath day. The Welsh bill puts the proposition up to municipalities for them to decide whether they want moving pictures on Sunday or not. Hearings have been announced to be held before the senate codes committee March 7 on the Boylan and Dowling bills.

An Ethereal Plot

Plucking a plot out of space for a star 1,200 miles away is as easy as picking potatoes out of a bag, as it is done by the newest scenarioist to knock at the doors of the Universal company. He wrote a letter to Carl Laemmle in which he confided that a friend, one William Williamson, freight agent for the southern Railway at Selma, Alabama, possesses occult powers which were available for the scenario writer's assistance in devising stories.

Would Mr. Laemmle inform the writer of the name of one of his stars and the date and hour at which she would be at some stated address? The scenarioist, with the aid of Mr. Williamson, would at once furnish her with the sort of story she desired for her next production.

Mr. Laemmle decided to extract some publicity from the scheme and perhaps a scenario. He turned the letter over to Nat Rothstein, advertising manager of Universal.

At the appointed time Violet Mersereau appeared at the place appointed. A party—Shhh!!!—it cost Mr. Rothstein $300. Newspaper writers and friends from the trade papers were on hand. The type of plot desired by Miss Mersereau was decided upon and described on a piece of paper, which was then laid on a table, according to instructions. In the mail Friday morning came the promised scenario from Edward Cayce, the first and only psycho-scenarioist. "From the Sublimal" it is called.

Lauds Motography Editorials

Paul Woodruff, Motography: I want to thank you for your many good editorials. You have been hitting some very vital points.—C. J. Verhalen, Famous Players Film Service, Minneapolis, Minn.

SUNDAY INJUNCTION QUASHED

New York Supreme Court Throws Out Exhibitors' Case and Denies Order to Stop City from Closing Theaters

The temporary injunction obtained last December by the Schenectady Motion Picture Exhibitors' League to restrain the city authorities from attempting to close theaters on Sunday and prevent performances on that day has been vacated by an order of Justice Borst of the supreme court.

In the first few paragraphs of the decision Justice Borst points out that a trial term of supreme court is to be opened in Schenectady February 26, and that there is no apparent reason why the case should not be tried at that term.

The dismissal makes the status of the Sunday moving pictures in Schenectady the same as before the temporary injunction was granted. Schenectady city officials state that they expect to prohibit the showing of pictures on Sunday pending the trial of the case.

Prominent Exhibitors:--Notice

All prominent theater managers will be interested in knowing that some prominent person will be invited to attend each meeting of the Motion Picture Directors' Association as a guest of the studio men. Men from various lines of business outside the picture industry will be asked to attend and address the meetings. The plan was suggested by Director Allan Dawn at a meeting held this month at the Astor Hotel, New York.

William Fox in Chicago

William Fox journeyed to Chicago while enroute to California and stopped off at the city on the lake shore to be present at the showing of his new production, "The Honor System," before the Chicago board of censors. He made arrangements also for the first public presentation of the feature in Chicago following the run of "A Daughter of the Gods."

Maxine Elliott Enacts First Cinema Scene

SECOND GOLDWYN COMPANY BEGINS WORK FOR NEW PRODUCER

Maxine Elliott, noted beauty, and now a Goldwyn star, who has begun her first work before the lens.

MAXINE ELLIOTT has played her first cinema scene for the cameraman of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Her first screen production will reveal her in an emotional role which the Goldwyn managers declare is one calling for big acting. The name of her first picture and the nature of the play, are not made known, although the advance notices state that Roi Cooper Mergrue, author of several recent stage successes, is the author of the Maxine Elliott vehicle.

Miss Elliott's company is the second to begin production for Goldwyn. Director Allan Dawn worked with her as she began her career before the motion picture camera, February 19.

She Chats with Mae Marsh

Each of the other Goldwyn stars had sent their good wishes and flowers. Mae Marsh, who was the first star to be announced by Goldwyn at its formation in December, was working in a studio on the same floor and she at once visited Miss Elliott and together they had a long talk about screen make-up.

Goldwyn has assembled a number of well known players to support Miss Elliott. Allan Dwan, director of several of the most successful Douglas Fairbanks pictures for Triangle, brings a skilled technical staff with him for the making of Miss Elliott's picture. Rene Guissart is the cameraman for Dwan. Mlle. Georgette Merthier will aid in the costuming.

The critics of American newspapers and the big journals of the film industry may account themselves responsible for the initial role to be enacted by Miss Elliott in the films, says Goldwyn, In signing Miss Elliott the Goldwyn officers kept an open mind about the type of picture she would be given to do.

Should she remain a light comedienne in her journey from the stage to the screen? The critics answer "No." There are hundreds of personalities suited to such roles, they insist, and almost as a unit they suggest that Miss Elliott become an emotional star of the cinema.

A study of the comments by critics in many states will perhaps be useful to exhibitors. A few of them follow:

What Critics Say of Maxine Elliott

Seattle Times: Maxine Elliott . . . one of the most brilliant of all the stars.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram: Miss Elliott's entry into pictures for Goldwyn is one of the big events of the year.

Pittsburgh Dispatch: Maxine Elliott is one of the most beautiful women of whom the stage can boast.

New York Tribune: Maxine Elliott, more beautiful than ever, is a welcome addition to the Goldwyn family of film notables.

Portland Oregonian: Maxine Elliott's capture by Goldwyn is an event of much significance. She will immediately appeal to a tremendous following.

Boston Evening Record: Maxine Elliott as a screen star will be a great favorite in New England, as well as everywhere else, we imagine. She is perhaps the most beautiful woman New England has ever given to the stage.

Boston American: There seems to be no limit to the Goldwyn ambitions. Maxine Elliott will rank at the very top among the screen favorites.

Chicago Journal: Goldwyn knows how to capture the gold-winners. Maxine Elliott is the latest.

New Orleans Item: Every woman in America will await with eagerness the first appearance on the screen of Maxine Elliott, the famed beauty just signed by Goldwyn.

Cleveland Press: Goldwyn succeeded where others failed.

Some of the very latest views of Mae Marsh, taken with her sisters in their home in New York.

Maxine Elliott is a big prize for the picture producers who have now announced her.

Detroit Times: We cannot imagine that there is a woman, or man either, for that matter, in Detroit who will not hasten to see the beautiful Maxine Elliott on the screen.

The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation renews its appeals to theater managers and photoplay patrons all over America to send in written opinions as to the type of play in which Mary Garden should be introduced to the screen. To interest the theater-goers of the country Goldwyn offers to send each person writing a suggestion on this question an expensive autographed photograph of Miss Garden.

"Mary the Magnificent"

As dynamic as Mary Garden is on the operatic stage, as remarkable as she is as a dramatic artist, it is a safe prediction that she will retain her power to charm and fascinate American audiences when she "fades in" on the screens of the world as a star of Goldwyn Pictures.

Kenneth Macgowan in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger hails Miss Garden as "Mary the Magnificent," and all over the United States newspapers and the dramatic reviewers are recalling the many off-stage exploits with which Miss Garden has captured and held the interest of the country.

Mary Garden has an infinite capacity for change. A dozen persons in the same room with her have a dozen differing descriptions to offer of her appearance and her personality. Send her to a dozen photographers and no two negatives are ever similar. It is not a matter of clothes or costumes, but of that innate gift within her which has made her famous.

"When I step from my dressing room to the stage," says Miss Garden, without attempting an explanation, "the Mary Garden of the dressing room remains there and the character I have assumed goes to the stage. I have drawn the curtain on myself and no longer exist as such. I am the role I play." This recalls the celebrated Stevensonian duality embodied in "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde. Here are further parallels of similarity. Her managers declare they have not the faintest idea how the motion picture camera will catch and hold a woman like Miss Garden.

See the poor little factory girl coming out of the employes' gate. Her name is Francelia Billington. She toils in the American studios and her pictures are rudely taken from her and sold by the Mutual Corporation, while the poor factory girl only takes home a few hundred dollars in her handbag each Saturday night.

Trade Directory Has Branch

Lawrence W. Boynton, representing the Motion Picture Trade Directory as western district manager, has established a western headquarters in Chicago, at 2105 Mallers building. Associated with him in the western field is L. S. Honiss. The opening of the new office lengthens the list of motion picture companies, exchanges and supply concerns who already form a good-sized colony in the Mallers building.

The directory covers all branches of the picture business and its allied industries. It is published by the Motion Picture Trade Directory Company, Inc., 105 West Fortieth street, New York, of which A. B. Swetland is president and M. J. Swetland, secretary and treasurer. J. G. Normann, of the New York office, is advertising manager.

Mr. Boynton, a graduate of Cornell University, class of 1900, and a former football coach, has moved to Chicago to live. He will cover the territory west of New York and Pennsylvania.

The next quarterly issue of the Motion Picture Trade Directory will be circulated about March 1. Chicago has a good representation of advertisers in the new issue, declares Mr. Boynton. All preferred positions have been taken.

World Play Aids Prohibition

Persons interested in the movement for prohibition regard the Brady-made World picture, "The Man Who Forgot," as an exceptionally powerful document in behalf of their cause. The gathering of prohibitionists in Washington from all parts of the country gave material assistance in making the photoplay by participating in the great parade and mass meeting on the capitol steps which form the big climax, and since the actual public production Mr. Brady has received large numbers of letters of commendation and thanks from the party leaders in all parts of the country.

Vitagraph V. L. S. E. "The Christian"

Through an announcement just made by the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. Incorporated, it has been decided to distribute the remarkable film version of Hall Caine's great story, "The Christian," through that organization. It will be remembered that "The Christian" made one of the greatest successes of any of the Vitagraph features.

The story is one that has been read and re-read by thousands of admirers of Hall Caine's works, and the life of the feature cannot be overestimated in its intensity and soul-inspiring interest.

Motion Pictures as an Influence for Peace

BY JOHN R. FREULER
President Mutual Film Corporation.

IN the February issue of The World Court appeared a forceful and timely article by John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, entitled "The Motion Picture as an Influence for Peace."

The World Court is the official organ of the World's Court League whose purpose is to prepare the way for more just and harmonious relations after the war. The officers of this League are such well known men as John Hays Hammond, Nicholas Murray Butler and Albert Shaw.

Mr. Freuler's article follows:

What would have been the effect on the world now at war had the motion picture attained its present power for the promotion of international amity, say fifty years ago?

I do not hesitate to say that the educational influence involved would have been so valuable in general dissemination of international friendliness and understanding, that war would have been unthinkable.

This suggests the probable influence of the motion picture in promoting international understanding for the future, provided due liberty is permitted by governments for the proper development of this tremendously powerful instrument.

John R. Freuler, president Mutual.

There appears excellent ground for the conviction that the rapidly growing universality of the motion picture, through interchange of the best productions, their world-wide exhibition in cities, towns, villages and hamlets, is rapidly bringing about a feeling of international fellowship such as has never hitherto been approached.

Films Develop Internatianal Fellowship

In fact I am impelled to the paraphrase: "Let us make the world's films—I care not who wages its wars."

We desire heartily to commend the Essanay co-operative greater than that of the press in composing international differences. The press of each country reflects its biased point of view and therefore aggravates rather than ameliorates.

I believe that the long existent and ever menacing hatreds of the Balkan peoples for each other have always been and are still due to ignorance, superstition and exaggerated tradition, causes which could not have persisted except for the insularity of the peoples involved—the fact that whole nations, separated perhaps by a mere range of hills, knew nothing of each other except that which had been learned through the ferocities of war, and had been encouraged for centuries by scheming rulers to regard each other with fear and loathing.

The principal trouble with the world has been a lack of neighborly feeling—an aloofness toward the family next door. It is the tendency of human nature to be suspicious of and antagonistic to the unknown—to attribute all sorts of evil practices to such as are, by racial or local custom, offenders against certain preconceived motions of correct human conduct.

The work that is being done by the motion picture is the very great work of breaking down false barriers, smashing imaginary embargoes—making neighbors of peoples immemorially at enmity—displaying them to each group, to its intense astonishment, that the other doesn't wear horns. This is the educational process which, carried to its proper extent, will abolish war.

If it is the desire of the nations, as they all insist, to have the truth about themselves spread before the eyes of the world, what medium exists so ready to their hands as that of the motion picture?

There has been wide use of the film in glorification of the blood science of war. Suppose the crying necessity for peace, illustrated from a mass of material available in every warring country, could be brought to the attention of humanity through world-wide resources of the motion picture industry—would not public opinion force peace?

Pictures will Prevent Future Wars

The motion picture film attained its world-wide circulation just too late to be decisive in prevention of this war. I believe that it will, if sanely used, prove the deciding influence against wars for the future. That it has had a large influence in redirecting public opinion in all countries toward peaceful ideals, cannot be doubted.

The persistence of superstition in the minds of men is a phenomenon of human history. It is worth noting that we now have in our hands a tool that shall dig the grave of superstition and also that of political greed, which has used it and battened on it to the detriment of human progress since time immemorial.

This tool, I say, is the motion picture. It will show one-half the world how the other half lives. It will create sympathies, establish friendships, abolish fetishes, destroy idols. It will be the world's schoolmaster in a time when the world is more eager than ever before to learn. It will sweep away, ultimately, the "royal rights" of hereditary incubi.

The potency of the motion picture's influence has already been recognized by powers that thus far have controlled the world's governments. It is to be hoped that for the future this vast force will be used to extend knowledge and suppress ignorance—to educate humanity in the arts of peace and to emphasize the criminal folly of war.

THEY LIKE MAX

Essanay's Team-work with Exhibitors in Paying Half of Local Newspaper Advertising Bills Readily Wins Favor

While "Max Comes Across" is winning ovations from the exhibitors and theater patrons of the country, Max Linder, its creator, is already at work in the production of his second Essanay-Linder comedy. "Max Wants a Divorce" is to be its title. Announcement of its release date through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service will be made shortly.

Monsieur Linder boasts that there is not the slightest touch in "Max Comes Across" of anything that might prove offensive, even to the most circumspect audience.

Exhibitors have praised the co-operative plan of advertising the Linder series. Aaron J. Jones, president of the Jones, Linick and Shaefer Company of Chicago, has written Essanay as follows:

We desire heartily to commend the Essanay co-operative advertising plan in connection with the Max Linder comedy features. As soon as we satisfied ourselves on the quality of these subjects we booked them because of the unusual opportunity for exploitation offered by this unusual plan.

By terms of this plan, as previously announced, Essanay agrees to split "fifty-fifty" with the exhibitor on all cost of newspaper display advertising which he may use on his Linder showings.

Bessie Love, Triangle Fine Arts star, has been in pictures just one year.

FIGHT ON IN LEAGUE

Sam Trigger of New York Starts Action in Chicago to Prevent Change in Managership of Coming M. P. E. L. Convention

Trouble has been brewing for some time within the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, in connection with the managership of the coming national convention to be held in Chicago, July 7 to 15.

Louis Frank of Chicago, last year's exposition manager, was regularly made manager for this year's show. Then at a recent meeting of the national executive committee, Frank's resignation was asked and Louis Schindler, also of Chicago, was chosen to fill the position. Sam Trigger, president of the New York Local No. 1, and national vice-president for New York, declares the above mentioned meeting of the national executive committee was illegal according to the M. P. E. L. by-laws, and indicates that he is ready to go through the matter to the finish to see that justice is done to all concerned and to Frank in particular.

Mr. Trigger's wire to his Chicago attorneys, Sonnenschein, Berkson and Fischell, instructing them to take the matter into the courts, is as follows:

I hereby authorize you to start suit and injunction proceedings against Louis Schindler, the National Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and any person or persons who may attempt to usurp the authority of Louis Frank as manager of the Seventh Annual Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, to be held in Chicago at the Coliseum July 7 to 15, as I consider such action taken illegal and contrary to our National Constitution and By-Laws.

In substantiation of his claim that the action was illegal, Trigger declared that ten days' notice is necessary for an Executive Committee meeting, and places in evidence the telegram summoning him to the meeting, which he received only three days previous. The telegram, sent by Lee Ochs, declares:

National Committee meeting called for Chicago, Tuesday, February 6, and Ochs, Tugwell, Furniss, Jeup, Hamburger, Sweeney here now, and concur on the removal of Louis Frank. You will have to advance your own traveling expenses, as League cannot at this time. If you cannot come, wire your decision.

Trigger replied as follows:

Your telegram received, saying that Ochs, Tugwell, Furniss, Jeup, Hamburger and Sweeney concur on removal of Frank, so why call on me at this late hour? Am for a square deal for Frank, and know he will make a successful exposition, and it's finances we need. Can you get an exhibitor more capable? Owing to the short notice and important business engagements, cannot come. The break with Germany and absence of Lee Ochs from the city make it imperative that I remain.

Interesting sidelights on the hurry-call meeting are furnished by Trigger, who declares that Mr. Jeup was not in Chicago for the meeting as stated in Lee Ochs' telegram, and that Judge Tugwell was not on hand in response to an official notice, but that his presence in Chicago during the meeting was on account of another matter.

TRIANGLE'S HERO SQUAD

Twelve of Fine Arts Players and Studio People Have Served Uncle Sam or John Bull in Times of War

The player folk, directors, and cameramen at the Triangle-Fine Arts studio have developed a pronounced appetite for war news. A dozen soldiers have been discovered among them and they eagerly absorb the daily quota of war stories.

Lloyd Ingraham, director of Robert Harron in his present picture, "A Young Gentleman of the Old School," served in the Third Illinois State Militia in the early '90's. Bert Hadley, his assistant, enlisted for the Spanish-American war, as did Ben Wilson, who played the colored valet to Douglas Fairbanks in "The Americano." Cameraman J. W. Leezer served in Battery K, Fifth U. S. artillery, in the Spanish-American war.

Three of the players who have seen service are Scotty McKee, Curt Rahfeld, and Fred Hamer, all Boer war veterans. Here is the record of a few more:

J. Warwick Hull, character heavy actor, was in the United States navy on the Oregon when she was flag ship for Admiral Swan on the Asiatic station. He was on the New York when she was flag ship for Admiral Phelps.

Hal Wilson, who appeared recently in "Jim Bludso" with Wilfred Lucas, saw service in the Seventh Regiment of the New York militia.

J. C. Richardson, time-keeper and chief dispatcher of the Fine Arts automobile service, was once first sergeant in Battery A, First Kentucky. He served in Company F, First Illinois infantry also.

Monte Blue, character heavy, served four years in the United States navy, besides a period in the reserves.

We are now giving some of the interesting feminine Triangle stars the o. o. Dorothy Gish in "Stagestruck" is at the left and over on the other side, laughing at us, is Fine Arts' Alma Reubens.

Ora Carew, Keystone.

Louise Glaum, Ince.

Bessie Love, Fine Arts.

"Arsene Lupin," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon for February 26, starring Earle Williams, is a tense and powerful story.

BIG EXHIBITOR CONTRACT

Ascher Brothers Sign With Vitagraph for Seven Big Chicago Houses, Covering Blue Ribbon Features and Comedies

What is said to be the biggest annual contract for program service ever entered into in the city of Chicago has just been signed between Ascher Brothers, owners of the largest chain of motion picture theaters in that city, and Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., distributors of Vitagraph productions.

The contract calls for the complete Vitagraph service, including special features, Blue Ribbon program features, comedies, etc.

Seven of Ascher Brothers' theaters will immediately begin to use Vitagraph productions weekly for the next year. These houses cover every section of Chicago. They are:

The Cosmopolitan, 7938 South Halsted street; Oakland Square, 3947 Drexel boulevard; Frolic, 947 East Fifty-fifth street; Milford, Crawford street and Milwaukee avenue; Columbus, 6238 South Ashland avenue; Lane Court, 322 Center street, and Calo, 5404 North Clark street.

All of these theaters have a seating capacity of between 1,000 and 1,400, and are the last word in motion picture presentation and public patronage.

Ascher Brothers desired to contract for four more of their theaters for Vitagraph service for a year, in addition to the seven just named. But contracts were already in force between Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. and houses in immediate opposition to these four Ascher Brothers' theaters, and so the present contract is for only seven of these big houses.

But all eleven Ascher theaters have booked "The Girl Philippa," Vitagraph's new and colossal dramatic presentation of Robert W. Chambers' literary masterpiece, with Anita Stewart in the title role, which last week broke all theatrical records in Chicago, when it made its bow in fifteen-below-zero weather to a crowded house.

The "Captain Jinks" Vitagraph comedy series, starring the inimitable Frank Daniels, and the "Big V" comedy series, which now are produced at Vitagraph's Los Angeles studios, will also be used in the Ascher theaters in addition to the Blue Ribbon feature releases.

Largest Chicago Year's Contract

Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Chicago exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., who closed the contract with Ascher Brothers, is thus credited with the largest individual contract ever entered into in Chicago for program features for a year.

Ascher Brothers' houses are looked upon as, in general, perhaps the most representative and the largest motion picture theaters in Chicago. They have been notably reluctant in the past to sign any long-time contracts for feature service, and that they now have decided to use Vitagraph productions as their box office attractions for the next year is ample evidence of what they think of the famous Vitagraph service.

In reporting the contract to the home office, Mr. Abel wrote:

> This is another triumph for Vitagraph productions and Vitagraph service as a whole. The same causes that impelled the Rialto Theater in New York, the Marcus Loew circuit, the Alexander Pantages circuit, the Orpheum in Cleveland, the America in Denver, and other famous houses throughout the country to contract for Vitagraph productions are those which led Ascher Brothers to enter into this annual agreement with Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.
>
> High standard of production, with eminent stars, stories that are exceptional in their value as real entertainment for all audiences, unequalled settings, and the square deal in their distribution—these Vitagraph assets have now been made box-office assets of these big and important theaters in Chicago.
>
> My main reason for speaking especially about this contract with Ascher Brothers is that it is another instance of the exhibitor who is self-convinced of the high standard of Vitagraph pictures. We never have to convince a man twice. Once a Vitagrapher, always a Vitagrapher.

Essanay Star Visits Theaters

Bryant Washburn appeared in person at several theaters in Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis where "Skinner's Dress Suit," his current Essanay feature-success, was shown. An exhibitor in Milwaukee dispatched fifty newsboys in a serpentine dance through the main thoroughfares, each "kid" attired in a dress suit with silk hat, and bearing aloft a sign-board advertising "Skinner's Dress Suit," and the fact that the creator of the screen Skinner would appear at the theater.

Mary Charleson in New Play

Mary Charleson, the little actress whose work as Henry B. Walthall's leading woman in "The Truant Soul" and "Little Shoes" won her nation-wide praise, is soon to be seen in an Essanay feature production of her own.

"Truth Triumphant" is to be the title of this photodrama, and it will be released some time in April. Filming of preliminary scenes already are under way.

Supporting Miss Charleson in "Truth Triumphant" is Webster Campbell, the latest addition to Es-sanay's staff of stars. Mr. Campbell is a graduate of the University of Michigan. After three years in dramatic stock, he entered motion pictures, and within a short time scored hits which have won him a permanent stellar position on the screen.

"Truth Triumphant" will be released through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. Its screen time will be approximately 1 hour, 15 minutes.

"DOUG" TO EXHIBITORS

In Becoming an Artcraft Star Fairbanks Sees a Chance to "Make Himself Solid" with Man in Box-office

Immediately following the announcement last week that Douglas Fairbanks had joined the Artcraft fold in company with Mary Pickford and George M. Cohan, exhibitors and exchange men all over the country sent wires, letters and messages of congratulations to the Fairbanks offices and to the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. After signing the agreement with Artcraft, Mr. Fairbanks had a few words to say to exhibitors. He expressed his appreciations as follows:

To the exhibitors throughout the United States, I want to say that I'm very grateful for the kind treatment they have accorded me in the past. I appreciate the fact that the destiny of a screen actor lies in their hands, and sincerely trust that I can continue to count on them as friends, in my new venture.

My first story will be even more novel than "Manhattan Madness," which is proving to be a best seller. I expect to start on this production in the near future, under the direction of John Emerson.

I hope some day soon we will have established in the industry a perfect chain of co-operation, linking together more closely the producer, the exchange and the exhibitor. Then, harmoniously, we will all attain greater heights and personal gratification.

That Artcraft may be regarded as the logical organization to handle the Fairbanks productions is acknowledged by members of the industry. The large number of enthusiastic messages which have flooded both parties to the contract indicate that the arrangement is pleasing to exhibitors.

Just prior to leaving for Saranac Lake, where he will enjoy a short vacation before commencing work on his initial Artcraft subject, "Doug," expressed great enthusiasm over his new alliances. "I feel that I am extremely fortunate in being able to close favorable negotiations with the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, to distribute my productions," he said. "There must be myriads of people in the industry, who will agree with me, that proper exploitation is as necessary for the success of a picture, as the production itself. After careful investigation, I decided to enlist under the Artcraft banner.

Special Showing of "Black Stork"

Motion picture editors of the Chicago daily newspapers who attended the trade showing of "The Black Stork," on February 13, expressed their surprise over the excellence of the picture. Oma Moody Lawrence, in charge of the department for the Chicago Post, said:

When we came here we had expected to see just an ordinary picture, like so many of the alleged eugenic photoplays and instead we saw a powerful five-reel picture in which there is action in every foot of film. We were even more skeptical as to the value of the picture owing to the fact that Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, a surgeon, and as we supposed not an actor, was in the leading role. The doctor has proved to us that he is an actor as well as a surgeon.

My personal opinion is that the picture will cause a sensation. It certainly should pack every house that books it, and this is a real eugenic picture to which not a censor board in the country can object. The subject of preventing the living of deformed, imbecile babies is handled admirably and with the touch of a master.

Following the trade showing Nat S. Stronge, advertising manager of the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, which is selling the picture on the state rights plan, was the host at a luncheon to the press folk.

Alice Brady Risks Fire

For several days Alice Brady has been receiving the congratulations of friends upon not having been burned as badly as at first supposed in a fire episode which forms the spectacular climax of a motion picture in which she is to appear as the star player late in April.

"After it was over," said Miss Brady in recounting her experience, "I took an inventory and discovered that I had lost a big bunch of hair from the very top of my head, together with a part of one eyebrow, the sleeve and shoulder of the waist I wore and about a third of my skirt."

The scene of this exciting incident in Miss Brady's photoplay, which is called "Maternity," represents the exterior of a large hospital, in which the heroine, with her child, is among the patients. The structure takes fire late at night, many of the inmates throw themselves from the windows and roof, and the mother and child are trapped upon an upper story. At the critical moment the flooring gives way and they fall through the flames to safety.

Meantime an unexpected situation arose. The fire companies in neighboring towns had perceived the atmospheric reflection of the conflagration, and engines, hose carts, hook and ladder trucks and other apparatus began to come on the run from every direction.

"Skinner's Dress Suit" Fits

Alfred Hamburger, the Chicago exhibitor, has booked "Skinner's Dress Suit," the Essanay five-part special, in his fourteen houses for an indefinite run.

The K. E. S. E. exchanges report the picture on a steady rise of popularity.

Manager Rothapfel of the Rialto, of New York, displaced another picture to show "Skinner's Dress Suit," during the week beginning February 18, and the Piccadilly Theater at Rochester, New York, for the first time in its history has shelved its regular program to make room for three days of "Skinner's Dress Suit."

Now comes the announcement from K. E. S. E. information department that Guy A. Graves has signed it for three days each at Proctor's in Albany, Troy, Schenectaday, Yonkers, Mount Vernon and Port Chester; Twenty-third Street, Fifty-eighth Street and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Theaters, New York City. The Strand at Hartford is another theater where "Skinner's Dress Suit" will be shown three days.

These are only some of the larger bookings of "Skinner." There is a very unusual number of "regular" bookings.

Exhibitors Want Information

Simon B. Greiver, booking for the Midwest Exhibitors, an organization of Chicago and suburban exhibitors, has requested MOTOGRAPHY to ask manufacturers to furnish him advance information on all their regular, as well as special features. The offices of the Midwest Exhibitors are located at 1003 Mallers Building, 5 South Wabash, Chicago.

Help the Exhibitor Sell His Show

BY HARRY A. SHERMAN

(Editor's note: The author is president of the Sherman-Elliott Company, of Minneapolis, and is known to the industry for his unusual success in marketing his state rights purchases.)

Harry A. Sherman, champion states rights man.

THE men generally referred to as "the leaders in the motion picture industry," for several years have been giving what they term as "advice" to the exhibitors of the country. This "advice" has been given in almost every conceivable form and has touched on everything but the vital point of the business. The real essential of the business is the selling end—not the selling of films to the exhibitor but the selling of a picture to the audiences that are to see it.

There are some men able to take a bottle of sugar and water and sell it as coming from the Fountain of Youth, while there are others unable to sell a gold brick for the price of a postage stamp.

If the men at the head of the motion picture industry would awaken to the realization of what is best for their business interests they would see that when they find a poor showman they must help make him a good showman, or, in other words, they must remake the exhibitor who is unable to sell the brick of gold into an exhibitor who can sell the sugar and water as the elixir of life.

One Man's Peculiar Attitude

A few days ago I received a letter from a man who has been identified with the producing and distributing end of the business for more than ten years. He amazed me with the declaration that motion picture theaters are essentially places of amusement and entertainment only. And basing his argument on that statement he said that pictures of educational value, sex pictures, problem pictures and birth control or eugenic pictures should not be exhibited in motion picture houses dependent upon the general public for existence.

The only attempt at argument to prove his case was that pictures booked as educational photoplays were booked as such to make money for the producer and not because the producer was anxious to conduct an educational campaign.

This man is generally credited with being one of the leaders in the industry and yet he has not realized that the educational photoplay and the eugenic photoplay has a far greater appeal than just a series of beautiful pictures put together without a story and without conveying a moral.

As a matter of fact a large perecentage of the phtoplays released during the last three years are of educational value. Off hand many persons would declare that "The Birth of a Nation" is just a picture. On the other hand it is one of the greatest of educational photoplays.

As to this man's criticism regarding eugenic photoplays I also disagree with him. He shows very clearly that he is not keeping in touch with his market. He does not realize that the women of this country have awakened to the advisability of the enactment of eugenic marriage laws. They are seeking knowledge of the ultimate effect of eugenic marriage laws and also desire first hand knowledge of the disasater to the general health of the country through lack of these laws.

This man whose first duty should be to study his market has not done so. He does not realize that the general public at this moment seeks two kinds of pictures, eugenic and patriotic.

Pictures applicable to good punchy advertising appeals are good box office attractions always. That is the reason eugenic pictures are good from the box office standpoint. For instance, I might cite the case of "The Black Stork," the picture based upon the refusal of Dr. Harry J. Haiselden of Chicago, to perform an operation to save the life of a defective child. This picture is susceptible to all kinds of pulling advertising. It will bring more money to the motion picture box offices of the country than hundreds of pictures that cost twenty times more to make.

Producers Should Aid Exhibitors

There are two reasons for this. The first is that the corporation marketing the picture runs a real service department so that the exhibitor will know how to promote the picture. The second is that it is a eugenic picture with a human interest appeal giving the service department a wonderful subject upon which to work.

And this brings me to what I orginally started to say. It is about time for the big producers and distributors to stop telling exhibitors the kind of pictures they should and should not buy and the time has come when the producers and distributors to help the exhibitors to sell the brand of films marketed.

Some of the larger distributing companies run service departments in connection with their branch exchanges. After investigation, I find that some of these publicity and advertising help departments are in charge of individuals whose service consists of handing out a sort of "canned" advertising and publicity "helps."

In my investigation I have failed to find a single one of these alleged service men able to tell an exhibitor the proper method to promote a picture to the limit of the box office possibilities. Of course, if the man at the head of the service department knew his business, the department would be of immense help to the individual exhibitor. This not being the case, however, those few alleged service departments now in existence are of neglible value—they are a minus quantity.

I am of the opinion that the first duty right now of the big producer and distributor is to start the establishment of a real service department. Get the proper men to take charge of these service departments at the different branch exchanges. First see that these men know their business. Give them a feature, furnish them with a theater and make them prove their value before sending them out to advise others. And, above all, be sure they are men able to meet the exhibitor on his own ground. Any man in a motion picture organization who thinks he is better than the exhibitor who rents the output is due for a fall in short order.

Some exchanges appear to think he is conferring a favor on an exhibitor in renting films to him. It's exactly the other way round. The exhibitor is conferring the favor by renting the films.

My solution of the entire film business is summed up in the word "service." It doesn't make any difference if it is a eugenic picture, a sex picture or just a picture, if real "service" is thrown in with the rental price the picture will pay the exhibitor.

And when the producers and distributors realize the meaning of the word "service" they also will realize that they have hundreds of thousands of feet of film in their storerooms that may be marketed at at large profit after having been discarded as through.

New General Film Subjects

General Film Company was never in better shape to serve its exhibitors and patrons than at present. "The War," General's great series taken at the battle fronts of France by official British Government photographers, is having tremendous popularity. Branch exchanges of the company have been swamped with inquiries for them. The picture rights are owned by Official Government Pictures, Inc., and all profits from their showing are being given to needy war relief funds, and to support the American Ambulance.

In addition, early in March the two big Salem series "The American Girl" and "A Daughter of Daring" will commence. The first series features Marin Sais, who astounds her audiences by her daring horsemanship. The second series features that fair "daughter of daring," Helen Gibson, who has so often risked her pretty neck to give the required thrill to her audience. In "In the Path of Peril," first episode of "A Daughter of Daring," Miss Gibson is called upon to do one of her most thrilling feats. She dashes between the rails at a breakneck speed on her motorcycle, to overtake a runaway train, and avert a serious wreck. To get from her machine to the train she has to ride it right up on a moving flat car, abandoning her machine to grasp the grips of a freight car ahead.

In addition to these series, General Film's Vitagraph series of two-part dramas, featuring Lillian Walker will soon be issued. The first subject will be "Dimples' Baby" and will show Miss Walker to advantage as a young girl whose maternal instinct brings her great happiness.

One other new series which bids fair to become tremendously popular is on General Film's Vitagraph program. This is a series of film versions of stories by that master of all short story writers, O. Henry. "Past One at Rooney's," a story of O. Henry's beloved "Four Million" will be the first subject. It deals with the people and places that he loved above all else—the scenes and characters of New York's lower East Side. The hero is a gangster, his lady-love a street-walker, the scene of their romance is Rooney's dance hall.

MEETING EXHIBITORS' NEEDS

Producer of Arrow's Drama, "The Deemster," Heeds the Problems of the Box-office—Compares Vaudeville Practices

Adapting a picture to the wants of exhibitors so that the drawing power of the story and the stars shall reach the maximum has been kept in mind by Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, producer of "The Deemster," an Arrow release.

Dr. W. E. Shallenberger and the Arrow Film Corporation will shortly begin the production of a new feature film to be disposed of on territorial rights lines when completed. The scenario is founded on a popular story widely known, which has proved especially well adapted to translation to the screen. Thomas J. Carrigan, the supervising director of the Arrow company, has begun negotiations with two prominent players for the leading roles.

Dr. Shallenberger, speaking of his experience in the production of "The Deemster" and its reception on its first presentation at the Strand Theater, February 8, said:

I appreciate all the arguments put forward in favor of the program. The thousands of moving picture theaters throughout the country must have a source of supply which can be depended upon to meet constant needs at a price that will enable the exhibitor to make money.

To Insure Exhibitor's Success

The success of the business depends upon exhibitors' success. I believe more attention should be given to the needs and the success of the exhibitor. The program plan, however, will always leave room for big special features. The essentials of a successful special production are manifestly a powerful story adaptable to the screen, the name of an author sufficiently well known to be an actual asset and a star.

The special feature is just as important today in the industry as the program and will grow in interest and value to the exhibitor to the extent that it is made of importance and of special excellence by the producer. It will be appreciated by the exhibitor just as the big star feature is appreciated by the vaudeville manager. He picks his bill from regular acts, but he looks for his big draughts to the really big feature headliner, for which he may probably pay as much as he does for all the other acts on his bill.

Star Addresses Texas Senate

Rose Tapley, the Vitagraph star who is now touring the United States and appearing in a number of the largest motion picture theaters, addressing women's clubs on the relation of the films to the home, etc., addressed the Texas senate and spoke before the Arkansas legislature at Little Rock on censorship of pictures.

Miss Tapley's appearance was in opposition to the Johnson bill, the usual name for a proposed law which, if enacted, will close all public places of amusement on Sunday through the Lone Star state.

"The day of unclean pictures has passed forever," said Miss Tapley. "A clean picture is the safest Sunday entertainment that can be provided. If motion picture theaters are closed on Sunday, particularly in the afternoon and evening when they do not interfere with church going, you will drive people back to the streets and saloon back rooms from which Sunday film shows rescued them and restored them to their families."

Ben Wilson has resumed work at Universal City in the serial "The Voice on the Wire."

The Man Inside the Booth

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT, CONDUCTED BY E. C. SCOBEY

THIS department is a permanent feature of MOTOGRAPHY. Its editor, Mr. Scobey, is a former secretary and treasurer of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 194, I. A. T. S. E., and was formerly associated with the Central Film Service Company of Indianapolis. He was recently elected vice-president of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, the first operator to be so honored. The idea is to make this department just as helpful as possible to operators and exhibitors. Send your questions and problems to Mr. Scobey. He is sure to give you some valuable information. Address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Taking Care of Friction Drive

A few lines to help out the good work in your department. Would you kindly write something in regards to taking care of friction drive on Power's machines, about oiling the bearings and adjusting drive, etc.?

If operators having trouble with corks in film cement bottles will try a few drops of oil on same and rub oil into cork well, they will find that this will stop the cork from sticking to the neck of the bottle. Just lately have I found this out and so far it has helped a good bit.— P. E. Everetts, operator Colonial Theater, Marshalltown, Iowa.

In reply to your request for some advice on the care of the motor drive equipment for the Power's machine, I will give you the instructions just as they are given by the Nicholas Power Company, which are as follows: When using motor drive, it is very important that you have the friction pulley in alignment with disc on motor. When starting show, begin with slow speed and increase until you have the required speed for your picture, as the motor is constant speed and variations of speed are obtained by the regulator with friction drive. When motor is not in use, see that friction pulley is not bearing on disc on motor; it should be in center and free from contact.

1. Motor should be kept well oiled and free from dust.
2. Belt on V-pulley should not be too tight.
3. Contact limiting screw should be so adjusted that when friction pulley is in neutral position it will lie in hollow at the center of driving disc, without touching the disc.
4. Driving disc must be kept free from oil.
5. Grease cups should be kept supplied and occasionally given a turn.

Note: All parts except very small screws have the stock number, either stamped or cast right into the part —a very excellent arrangement.

Instruction No. 1—The friction material R 15 is leather. Should it at any time develop flat spots or become out of round or eccentric in form, it may be trued by placing the point of a new 10″ or 12″ coarse file on rod R 39 (using the rod merely as a rest) and bearing lightly on the top of the friction with the motor running. In doing this, be very careful to hold the point of the file perfectly flat on the rod, since if you hold it at an angle you will get the face of the leather ground off on a slant and it will then not fit the disc wheel squarely.

Instruction No. 2—New friction material may be the process of disassembling, but these parts run on high speed, therefore, be sure and set up all the screws tight.

Instruction No. 3—Caution: Never leave the controlling lever down when the projector is standing still; always pull the lever clear up so as to disengage friction wheel R 15 from driving disc R 13. Failure to attend to this matter probably results in flat spots on the friction material. In nine cases out of ten where flat spots develop it is caused through failure to heed this warning.

Instruction No. 4—It is of course necessary that there be sufficient tension or friction between friction material R 15 and driving disc R 13 to pull the projection mechanism, but anything more than sufficient to accomplish this purpose will merely result in undue wear of the friction disc, friction material and unnecessary consumption of power in the motor. The tension or amount of friction between friction material R 15 and friction disc R 13 is regulated by thumb screw R 32. Proceed as follows: Loosen lock nut R 33 and loosen up on tension screw R 32 until friction material R 15 and disc R 32 are out of contact. Now, start your motor running and, having set the controlling lever down so that the friction driving wheel is pretty well in on the friction disc, slowly tighten up on tension screw R 32 until the projection mechanism attains full speed, and you are satisfied there is no slippage between the friction disc and driving wheel. Having done this, your tension will be just right, provided, of course, you have followed the instructions carefully, and have not set up screw R 32 until sufficient to bring the projector up to full speed, this being done, of course, with the film in the machine, or in other words, under actual operating conditions. Having gotten the adjustment just right, don't forget to tighten up lock nut R 33 tight, or else the adjustment is likely to work loose.

Instruction No. 5—Grease cups (two of them) should be kept filled with some good lubricating grease (not oil, but grease), which may be obtained from any automobile supply store. The commutator of the motor can be gotten at by opening the two latticed cast iron doors on the upper end of the motor.

Instruction No. 6—The motor may be disengaged merely by removing the bolts R 6 and disconnecting the cable. When putting the motor back, be sure and line the shaft of the motor directly with the friction driving shaft R 25. If you don't do this, there will be trouble and probably more or less noise. In fact, should the device develop noise at any time, and you find that the friction wheel material is trued, the next thing to look at is the alignment of those two shafts, it being possible that the bolts R 8 work loose and let the motor get out of alignment with the driving shaft R 25.

Instruction No. 7—NO OIL. With the exception of the motor bearings, none of the other bearings of this device requires any lubrication whatever, this by reason of the fact that the bushings are all of material which requires no lubrication whatever.

The above instructions apply both to Power's 6A and 6B machines and if the suggestions and instructions ordered from the Nicholas Power Company at any time. The old material may be removed by loosening the set screw in the hub R 16 and in set collar R 21 and in R 24. Having done this, R 25 may be pulled out to the right, thus releasing the friction wheel. You can then take out the old material by removing the screws in the face of R 16. The process of reassembling is the reversal of are followed out you will have no trouble with the motor equipment on the Power's machines.

As to the using of oil on the corks of film cement bottles, I will pass that suggestion on to the operators and they can try it out. Don't let this be your last letter, Brother Everetts—Come again.

"A Rumbling Noise"

Please give me some advice as to the remedy for the trouble I am having with my motor generator set. I am using a Ft. Wayne set, 3 phase, 220-volt A. C. to the motor end and 50-amp. 60-volt on the generator end. The generator set is just outside of the booth on a wooden platform with a two by four under each end of the bed plate. I am using two Power's 6A machines and my booth is made of concrete and supported from the ceiling. Whenever the amperage goes over 25 amps. there is a rumbling noise that can be heard all over the house. Kindly tell me what to do to stop this trouble.—Ray Miller, Anderson, Indiana.

The first thing to do is to go over the generator set carefully and be sure that every connection is tight. Try every connection from the switch to the terminals on the motor and then try all the connections on the generator end. A loose connection at the terminal of one of the phases might cause the trouble that you are having. Next, I would advise you to take the two by fours from under the bed plate and replace them with either blocks of rubber or heavy pieces of harness felt, which may be obtained at any harness store. There should be at least two inches of felt or rubber between the bed plate of the generator and the wooden floor. This will reduce the vibration of the generator set and lessen the noise. A generator set of any kind or a compensarc should never be set on a wood or iron floor, as the vibration will cause more or less noise. Try out the above suggestions and I think that you will have no more trouble.

Operators Elect Delegates

At a special meeting of Indianapolis Local No. 194, held Tuesday evening, February 13, Brother Norman Moss, secretary-treasurer, and the editor of this department, E. C. Scobey, were elected as delegates to the Twenty-third International Convention of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. of the United States and Canada, to be held the week of February 26, at Cleveland, Ohio. They left for Cleveland on February 23.

Propose to Tax Operators

At the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen of New York a means of increasing the city's revenues by the adoption of a license tax for motion picture operators was suggested. The proposed ordinance is understood to be approved by Mayor Mitchel and has been referred to the committee on general welfare, which body will report it back to the aldermen in three weeks' time.

The measure provides that no person shall operate any motion picture apparatus or any connection thereof unless he shall have been duly licensed, at the cost of five dollars. Renewal of licenses would cost one dollar. The measure further provides that the commissioner shall make a practical examination of the applicant for a license, and that if the applicant is found to be competent he shall receive his license within a period of six days after the examination. It is also stated that the commissioner reserves the right at any time to revoke or suspend the license.

Exhibitors Laud "Secret Kingdom"

Marcus Loew, in whose twenty-seven theaters in Greater New York "The Secret Kingdom" is now a feature attraction, has written a letter to the Home Office of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., which is at once short, to the point, and of extreme interest to all theater managers.

"It gives me great pleasure to say," writes Mr. Loew to Mr. Irwin, under date of February 8, when five episodes of "The Secret Kingdom" already had played at the Loew houses, "that 'The Secret Kingdom' has done everything we had hoped for. Our audiences like it immensely and it is doing real business for us."

Manager Woda of the Orpheum, Cleveland's big downtown house, has booked the new Vitagraph serial for a week's showing for every chapter.

Mr. Woda said, before he began running the serial, "'The Secret Kingdom' is by far the best production in serial form I ever have seen." Now, after running three chapters he says: "'The Secret Kingdom' is the best box office proposition I have had in serial form."

One of the novel forms of advertising which Mr. Woda used in connection with showing "The Secret Kingdom" was a man on a white horse, the man dresed in royal garb, who rode through Cleveland streets with a banner bearing the words, "The Secret Kingdom."

The huge public showings of "The Secret Kingdom" in Chicago, where Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchange, showed the first two episodes to more than 60,000 people in three exhibitions, has established the new Vitagraph serial as the biggest serial box office attraction yet released in the middle west.

Praises Clara K. Young Pictures

Here is an exhibitor's opinion of two of the new Lewis J. Selznick productions, right from his letter to the producer. The writer is George H. Hines of the Auditorium Theater, South Bend, Indiana:

As a high class exhibitor of twelve years' experience, and wanting to encourage the manufacturer who is trying to elevate the motion picture industry and present features that are features, and not fifty per cent padded, I feel it my duty to take the liberty of writing you and complimenting you, first, on the two Clara Kimball Young productions, as there are none better from a box office standpoint (and the result at the box office is my guide in selecting pictures to please my patrons). I did the two biggest days business with "The Common Law" and "The Foolish Virgin" that I have ever done. I have 1650 seats and from ten in the morning until eleven at night, I was never so busy in my life and my patrons were never better satisfied. Last week I saw Norma Talmadge in "Panthea" at the La Salle Theater, Chicago, and immediately booked it for three days. You are the master of picturedom today and if you keep the good work up, success is yours.

With Claire McDowell playing the lead, Universal Director Henry McRae is completing "His Mother's People," an Indian story.

FROHMAN ENGAGES WARNER

Actor Who Played in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" for Five Seasons Will Take Character Role in "God's Man"

"God's Man" will probably be produced in nine reels, according to the present plans of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, which last week announced that it had acquired the film rights to this popular tale of New York's night life, written by George Bronson Howard. H. B. Warner, the actor who played on the stage in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" for more than five years, will take the character part of Arnold L'Hommedieu in "God's Man."

Mr. Warner's personality is that which makes him particularly well adapted to the rugged characterization which he will portray, that of a young collegian who drifts from the pathways of respectability, down through the mire of New York's elite underworld, into Broadway's blackest pits of degradation, and then, with heroic struggle, back to the dawn and the light of righteousness.

Himself an athlete, member of several victorious Thames crews and permanent holder of the Terries cup, emblematic of the Foils championship, he is possessed of the physique such as he will find need for in the portrayal of the character of Arnold L'Hommedieu.

Director George Irving, who was responsible for the finesse of production of "The Witching Hour," is making "God's Man," and, with his company, is at present "camping out" at the east end of Long Island, where the atmosphere of the story is laid.

Supporting H. B. Warner in "God's Man" is a well-chosen cast: Jack Sherrill, Edward Earle, the former Metro and Edison star; Yolande Landowska, Russian dance exponent; Betty Bellairs; Walter Heirs, Barbara Castleton, Jean Stewart, Lester Wallick and others. George Irving will direct the picture.

Jack Sherrill. H. B. Warner, star. Edward Earle.

The big guns in "God's Man," the Frohman Amusement Corporation's production and two scenes from the play.

Foreign Contracts for Frohman

The Frohman Corporation has entered into contract with Bolton, Stuart Imperial Pictures, Ltd., of London, whereby that concern acquires the exclusive rights to all large Frohman productions for the territory of Great Britain for a period of two years. President William L. Sherrill has also concluded a contract with the Co-operative Film Exchange, Ltd., of Australia, for the entire Frohman output for one year and with Joe Fisher of Cape Town, South Africa, for the exclusive rights to Frohman productions in the South African territory.

Bolton and Stewart began their activities with the six-reel Frohman masterpiece "The Witching Hour," in which C. Aubrey Smith is starred. "The Witching Hour" will open as a distinct attraction, simultaneously in London, Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow and Dublin. The first shipment comprises seventeen prints.

The Co-operative Exchange have taken seven prints for the initial importation to the Australian territory, which comes close to a record for that territory.

NEW STATE LEAGUE

Arkansas Exhibitors Form Organization Fifty Strong and Take Up Question of Better Films—Producers Send Delegates

The Arkansas State League of Motion Picture Exhibitors came into being recently at a meeting of exhibitors held at Little Rock, Arkansas. About fifty theater men from various parts of the state were present.

The league selected as its president S. S. Harris, well known theater man, and A. Laskin as secretary and treasurer. The meeting was adjourned until the first Monday in May.

The league agrees to co-operate and keep out any and all pictures that are not approved by its members. Those present were heartily in accord with the movement. Twenty different pictures were sent by the manufacturers, and not a single scene in any one was found objectionable.

Representatives from ten of the large film corporations and exchanges met with the members of the new league and promised their co-operation for better pictures.

The representatives of the following companies attended: J. A. Cressy, Clara Kimball Young Company; Hoyt G. Morrow, Mary Pickford Company; C. R. Scott, Universal; Nat Barach, World Film Corporation; Charles Wuerz, Klein-Edison-Selig-Essanay; G. C. Reif, Fox; W. R. Wilkerson, McClure Pictures; E. C. Leevis, Essanay Company; William Byrd, Art Dramas, and T. F. McTyre, Paramount Company.

THE WEEK'S MUTUALS

Marjorie Rambeau in Her First Film Play, "The Greater Woman," Is Program Headliner in Unusual Role

Marjorie Rambeau, renowned on the stage, registers her first screen appearance February 26 in "The Greater Woman." This picture is the first of a series starring Miss Rambeau, to be released by the Mutual Film Corporation.

"The Greater Woman," produced by the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, is a picturization of the play by the same title by Algernon Boyesen, and is the first of Mr. Boyesen's works to reach the screen.

Miss Rambeau has a most difficult role to handle in the part of a loving wife of unusual character who discovers her weak-willed husband faithless, and also that they are in danger of losing their wealth. She finds a means of retaining the fortune, but by so doing she will place all the power in the hands of the other woman.

"Shorty Hooks a Loan Shark," for release February 26, is the seventh of the "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" series. Shorty and his cowboy friends herein find themselves in the toils of a money lender.

Number 10 of the Mutual-Niagara series, "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters," is entitled "Taking Chances." Helen Greene plays the lead. It is the story of a pretty Southern girl who attempts to run her father's country newspaper after his death.

In "Jerry's Romance," a one-reel comedy for release March 1, George Ovey, as Jerry, has to go through the terrible agony of attending the wedding of the girl who has rejected him. He does everything wrong during the wedding.

The American contributes two short dramas, "Calamity Ann's Protege," March 2, in which Louise Lester and J. Warren Kerrigan have the leads; and "Cupid and a Brick," March 3, with J. Warren Kerrigan and Jack Richardson.

In "A Rummy Romance," scheduled for March 4, Paddy McQuire is seen as a country Rube. His sweetheart elopes with a city chap who proves to be a crook and Paddy follows. Paddy is relieved of his money, thrown into the cistern, rescued by Lillian, and married.

"Tours Around the World," No. 17, released February 27, shows Vienna, one of the most picturesque cities in Europe. The pictures include the cake market, the flower market, and the Hochstrahlbrunnen. The Gota Elf, Sweden's most important river, and the island of Hissingen, with the locks around the falls at Trollhattan, are shown. Toledo, Spain, which is situated upon a rugged granite promontory, is another feature.

Number 77 of "See America First," with scenes from the battlefields of Chickamauga and Chattanooga, appears February 28. On the same reel is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic, "The Elusive Idea," by Harry Palmer, telling of the tribulations of an artist in capturing an idea suitable for illustrating. The Mutual Weekly is released February 28. Reel Life, No. 44, is scheduled for March 4.

Francelia Billington is the ornamental centerpiece in "My Fighting Gentleman."

Terry Ramsaye himself, Mutual's director of publicity, recommends Bill Russell's new play, "My Fighting Gentleman," and Terry is mighty hard to please. Here are some miniature glimpses into the unusual feature, ready for the screen March 12

PARAMOUNT RELEASES

Marie Doro and Kathlyn Williams Stars for Week of March 5—Also Exceptional Single Reel Subjects

"Castles for Two," a Lasky production starring Marie Doro, and "Out of the Wreck," a Morosco production starring Kathlyn Williams, are the two features on the Paramount Program for the week of March 5. That week, there will also be released the Paramount-Bray Pictographs; the 56th of the series of "Trips Around the World," conducted personally by Burton Holmes, in which he takes his fellow-travelers to Yoko Valley in Canada, and a Black Diamond Comedy entitled "Speed."

"Castles for Two" was written especially for Marie Doro by Beatrice DeMille and Leighton Osmun, and it gives her a wonderful opportunity to display her best talents in the role of a wealthy American girl of Irish descent.

Patricia tires of the sham of New York society life and revolts at the futile pursuit of pleasure which constitutes its chief occupation. There is enough of the love of Old Ireland, and of her belief in the good fairies to send her over the seas in search of real romance.

This delightful romance is rendered all the more effective by engaging a number of children to play the roles of fairies, and by the employment of an interior decorator to design all of the interior settings for this production. Although the interior decorator has been permanently engaged by the Lasky Company this is the first production in which his art will be displayed upon the screen.

Director Frank Reicher shows as supporting cast for Miss Doro, a number of prominent players, among them being Elliott Dexter, Maym Kelso, Horace B. Carpenter, Billy Elmer, Jane Wolff, Harriet Sorenson, Lillian Leighton and Julia Jackson.

"Out of the Wreck" is a thrilling slice of real life. The story is based upon an actual incident, in which there is an over-abundance of "twist" and "punch," and in which Kathlyn Williams will make a distinct sensation.

Miss Williams is too well known to photodramatic audiences to have her successes enumerated in this brief space. It is entirely by her ability and conscientious effort that she has made for herself the enviable niche in the hall of fame of photodramatic artists. As Agnes Aldrich in "Out of the Wreck," she is seen in one of the most unusual and interesting screen dramas ever presented to the public. As the wife of a prominent politician, she is threatened by a rival newspaper with the exposure of a former crime from which she was finally vindicated.

Miss Williams is supported by an unusually excellent cast which includes William Conklin, William Clifford, Stella Pazeto, William W. Jefferson and Don Bailey. The method of presenting this story is absolutely unique.

The 56th edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, contains four very interesting subjects: "Zoological Antics," "Swapping Foundations Under New York Skyscrapers," "Physical Experiments" and how they illustrate the remarkable effect produced by rays of light when thrown through various kinds of lenses, and a cartoon entitled "Colonel Heeza Liar Detective."

Burton Holmes, the world's greatest traveler in his 57th of the series of "Weekly Trips Around the World," takes his fellow-travelers to "Yoko Valley" in Canada, wher he pictures in a unique and interesting manner, the modes of living in this distant section of North America.

"Speed" is the title that is given to the Black Diamond Comedy that is released by Paramount this week, and is significant of what the picture really is. There is more action in this single reel than has ever been gathered together in a single comedy reel before issued.

Paramount has arranged for special publicity and advertising to aid the exhibitor for all of these productions.

SELZNICK COMMENDS RAPF

Producer of Robert Warwick's "The Argyle Case" Is Complimented for Close Attention to Studio Details

The studio methods of Harry Rapf, president and founder of the Robert Warwick Film Corporation, have been commended to the attention of exhibitors as a new factor in Selznick-Pictures, owing to the success he has achieved with "The Argyle Case;" even though comparatively a newcomer in the producing field. The launching of Robert Warwick's first Selznick-Picture has brought Mr. Rapf the congratulations of the Selznick Enterprises.

Producers often are content to sit back in their swivel chairs and sign the checks brought them by their studio managers. Mr. Rapf has a different idea. He believes that the producer's place is in the studio actively in charge of the details of his production, and throughout the filming of "The Argyle Case" Mr. Rapf could be found daily at the Selznick studios in the Bronx.

Mr. Rapf entered the film business unusually well equipped to produce pictures. For eleven years he has been a theatrical producer, specializing mainly in vaudeville attractions. For five years he was manager of the Gus Edwards productions.

His Selznick-Picture, "The Argyle Case," with Robert Warwick is an adaptation of one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novels of adventure, "The Court of St. Simon."

Brady Buys Stage Play

William A. Brady, director general of the World Film Corporation, has secured the motion picture rights of "The Pride of Race," in which Robert Hilliard played the star role on the speaking stage. This part is to be assumed by Carlyle Blackwell in the screen version of the drama, and it is believed that the actor will find it uncommonly available for the expression of his most effective acting. The play, with a very appealing love interest, carries a powerful complication in the unexepected revelation of a racial taint in the supposedly white central character. Many of the newspaper reviewers at the first performance expressed a belief that the theme would not be popular, but the public decided otherwise and the "The Pride of Race" enjoyed a long and profitable New York run supplemented by a series of very successful engagements in the other large cities.

Exhibitors Hear Motography Editorial

Paul H. Woodruff, Motography: Please repeat, my request, your editorial of early in November on Organization. I haven't my file of Motography handy, but it was the editorial in which you wrote referring to the allowing of five per cent of the exhibitors to do the thinking for the other ninety-five percent. This was so good I read it to a large body of exhibitors at a luncheon in Minneapolis, and I am confident it will bear repeating. —Thomas Furniss, Brunswick Amusement Company, Duluth, Minnesota.

Pathe Program Is Varied

A Gold Rooster Play, two series, a one-reel comedy, a split-reel fashion and scenic, a split-reel cartoon and scenic and two issues of the Pathe news make up Pathe's program for the week of March 4.

"Her Beloved Enemy," a Gold Rooster play produced by Thanhouser, features Doris Grey and Wayne Arey. It is a comedy-melodrama.

"The Flag Despoiler" is the fourteenth episode of "Pearl of the Army" produced by Astra, starring Pearl White. The eighth chapter of the Mrs. Vernon Castle picture, "Patria," entitled "Red Night," takes its place in the program. "Deep Dyed Villainy" is the title of a Mittenthal comedy in one reel.

The twenty-first release of Florence Rose fashions is entitled "Morning Hours." It is on the same reel with Picturesque Catalonia, a scenic showing the town of Ripol in Catalonia, Spain.

"A Hot Time in the Gym" is the title of George MacManus' "Bringing Up Father" cartoon, animated by Edward Grinham. This is on the same reel with "Government Pets of the Yellowstone Park," a scenic. Hearst-Pathe news Number 20 and Number 21 round out the program.

New Marjorie Rambeau Play

Marjorie Rambeau has started work at the Frank Powell studios on the third of her series of features for the Mutual Film Corporation, having finished "Motherhood," the strong war drama which she has been working on under the direction of Mr. Powell.

"The Debt," an adaptation of the great European success, will be Miss Rambeau's next subject. "The Debt" is entirely different in plot and locale from Miss Rambeau's first two pictures—"The Greater Woman" and "Motherhood"—and will present the star in a widely different role.

Frank Powell is directing the production and has chosen an excellent cast to support Miss Rambeau. This includes Robert Elliott, Paul Everton, Anne Sutherland, T. Jerome Lawlor, Agnes Eyre and Nadia Gary, a child actress of unusual ability.

War Interest in Films

R. S. Ballantyne, manager of the Des Moines Exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation, was quick to appreciate the timely interest and box office possibilities contained in the Mutual one-reel series "Uncle Sam's Defenders" on account of the present agitation of the question of preparedness in America.

As soon as news came of the possibility of America being drawn into the war Mr. Ballantyne sent out to each exhibitor in his territory a card bearing a picture of President Wilson over the caption, "The Man of the Hour," and calling their attention to the golden opportunity to cash in on the six reels of timely subjects contained in "Uncle Sam's Defenders."

These one-reel subjects, released one each week, give just the information the people are thirsting for as to what our army and navy are doing. The subjects treated are "Our Boys at the Border," "From Civilian to Soldier," "Afloat and Ashore," "A Jack Tar in the Making," "Scouts of the Sea and Sky," and "Bulldogs of the Deep."

"The Whip" Shows Races

According to the records of the Paragon studio, where "The Whip" was produced by Maurice Tourneur, more than eight months were consumed in the actual taking of the picture. Special sets were built that used the entire floor space. Many sets were so large that the balconies at the studio had to be used to make room for the cameramen.

For the mob scenes, thousands of extras were called in. Special permission had to be secured from various authorities, as for example, the rights to take the big wreck scenes on one of the branches of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Due to the influence of Mr. Brady, permission was secured from the president of the Saratoga race track to have the big race scenes taken during the famous race meet held last summer. Mr. Brady also made it possible to have scenes taken for "The Whip" at the annual Long Branch horse show. Another interesting and unusual scene was the Baby show at Long Branch.

Exhibitors often ask Motography some very intimate questions about the stars. We don't know as they ever asked us this, but anyway here's the way George Walsh and Anna Luther look in their pajamas. It's a Fox scene in the west coast studios.

Fox's "The Honor System" which is drawing crowds in New York. Gladys Brockwell is seen on the left. The prison scene was taken in Arizona.

VITAGRAPH FEATURE A HIT

"The Girl Philippa," Even in Below Zero Weather, Draws Huge Crowds at Its Chicago Premier at Ziegfeld Theater

Anita Stewart, in the role of Philippa, the heroine of Robert W. Chambers' most popular character in fiction "The Girl Philippa," has captured Chicago, even as she did New York.

Notwithstanding the world's record of box office business established at the Rialto Theater, New York, when "The Girl Philippa" appeared there, the reception accorded the production in Chicago was even more remarkable. For abnormal weather conditions prevailed at the premier of "The Girl Philippa" at the Ziegfeld. Yet the production drew a capacity audience of the city's most representative people in social, artistic, and business circles.

Among the first-nighters were Mayor and Mrs. William Hale Thompson; Thomas D. Knight, president of the South Side Elevated Railroad; Alexander H. Revell, president of the famous furniture company of that name; Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Mrs. Ernest Hamill, whose husband is president of the Corn Exchange National Bank; Mrs. Maclay Hoyne, whose husband is state's attorney; Howard F. Gillette, president of Merrill Cox & Co.; Hugh McBirney Johnston and Morris L. Johnston of the National Lead Co.; and many others of equal prominence.

The showing was arranged for by Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Chicago exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., whose three public presentations of the first two episodes of "The Secret Kingdom" drew, respectively, 22,000, 25,000, and 21,000 people to the three big rinks in Chicago.

Those who were in the first-night audience at the premier of "The Girl Philippa" at the Ziegfeld beheld an occasion more like the opening performance of grand opera than the initial showing of a motion picture. The audience was moved to unusual spontaneity of applause, as was evidenced by the many written appreciations received the following day.

S. M. Frankland, secretary of the Alfred Hamburger Theatrical Enterprises, under whose management the Ziegfeld Theater is conducted, asked the first-nighters to leave, upon their departure, their opinion of "The Girl Philippa," written on blanks supplied them for this purpose. Practically the entire audience complied with the request.

The blanks provided space for the grading of the production as to whether it was considered perfect, excellent, good, fair, mediocre, or poor. The vast majority of the spectators marked their opinions down as excellent, with a considerable number saying perfect. Not one expression was below good, and only a few, as has been said, fell below excellent.

Many of the audience extended their remarks. Mr. Knight, for instance, wrote:

"Mr. Chambers' book has been most beautifully interpreted. The photography is unusually clear. The acting of the entire cast is good. Miss Stewart's work was most effective." Louella O. Parsons, critic on the Chicago Herald, said: "Exhibitors have much to look forward to in 'The Girl Philippa'."

The Chicago American, under the head, "The Girl Philippa, a Film Insuring the Screen Industry," said: "'The Girl Philippa' is a success—an eight-reel motion picture classic—one which will insure the screen in its permanency as a great factor in entertaining the American public."

"Bob," McKnight, in the Chicago Examiner, wrote: "'The Girl Philippa' is the height of film art. . . . Its premier is the talk of the town's smart set. The audience was probably the most representative ever gathered. . . . Anita Stewart's Philippa touches the zenith of what we may expect in screen histrionics. She appeals irresistibly."

As an evidence of the fact that clean, wholesome entertainment has its box office value of the highest type, it may be cited that "The Girl Philippa" has gone through the Toronto and Montreal board of censors without even one frame being cut out.

Banks Advertise Picture

The Palace Theater, Racine, Wisconsin, has sent a report to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., on its recent showing of "The Dollar and the Law," the big thrift story in which Lillian Walker is starred and which is released on the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. program.

A "knockout" is what the Palace Theater terms the result of its collaboration with Racine banks to exploit "The Dollar and the Law" properly to the people of that city and surrounding community.

The American Bankers' Association has endorsed "The Dollar and the Law," and many exhibitors report that, whenever they have sought the co-operation of the banks in their city for a showing of this production, that help has been immediately forthcoming. The banks have written letters to their entire list of de-positors, calling attention to the picture. In this way many who never before have been in a motion picture theater have been attracted and have become confirmed patrons of the screen.

Warren Play Progressing

With the acquisition of Harry Benham, formerly of Thanhouser and "The Million Dollar Mystery," and Theodore Freibus, known the country over as one of the best stock actors, Edward Warren has completed his cast of principals for his production now known by the title, "The Transgressors." The cast lines up as follows: Walter Hampden, Charlotte Ives, Marie Shotwell, Sheldon Lewis, Harry Benham, and Theodore Friebus. It is one of the most talented casts of players ever assembled for a single production.

Work has been going forward on Mr. Warren's production rapidly. A big bazaar scene built at an expenditure of several thousand dollars will be one of the many big and sensational features of this big picture. After studio work will have been completed the company will go south for exterior settings.

Peggy Hyland in New One

Charming Peggy Hyland, who was featured with E. H. Sothern in "The Chattel" and since then has become a star all in her own right by the sheer force of her ability, will soon be seen in a very attractive production from the Vitagraph studios entitled "The Sixteenth Wife." This is a story by Molly Elliot Sewall.

Marc MacDermott will be seen opposite Miss Hyland. Following the release of "Intrigue," in which Miss Hyland is seen with Bobby Connolly and Marc MacDermott, Vitagraph will issue "Babette," a splendid five-reel production with the same stellar cast. It is following the release of "Babette" that we shall have "The Sixteenth Wife."

General Film Elects Officers

At the meeting of the directors of the General Film Company at the offices of the company February 12 and 13, the following officers were elected:

Benjamin B. Hampton, president; George K. Spoor, vice-president; W. M. Gulick, secretary and treasurer.

The list of directors of the company elected at the recent stockholders' meeting is as follows: Benjamin B. Hampton, Frank J. Marion, George Kleine, G. A. Reeder, George K. Spoor, William N. Selig, Harold Bolster, Paul G. Melies and W. M. Gulick.

No, this isn't a bank president. It's Eugene Mullen, Greater Vitagraph's scenario editor. The screen version of "Within the Law" was his work.

Foreign Firms Bid for Star

June Elvidge, who has been contributing "vampire" impersonations to World-Brady picture plays during the past few months, has received an interesting offer to transfer her field of endeavor to France and the Societie Generale des Cinematographes Eclipse—otherwise the Eclipse Cinematograph Company. The proposition came to Miss Elvidge through M. Louis Mercanton, the principal director for the French corporation, who was in New York recently in connection with the American rights for Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's new photoplay, "Mothers of France."

M. Mercanton devoted a considerable part of his time in America to visiting the theaters for the purpose of drawing comparisons between American and European motion pictures. He saw a Brady-made drama in which Miss Elvidge was presented as casting the spell of evil fascination over the heroic young man and the pretty and ingenuous maiden who loved him.

Next morning the French director sought out William A. Brady, and expressed himself as very greatly disappointed upon learning that the actress' contract with the World Film Corporation had several months to run.

Frohman Calls for Volunteers

Daniel Frohman, president, and Waldemar de Bille, executive director of the Actors' Fund Fair, has called for 4,000 men and women volunteers to help with the preliminary work of organization as well as to serve during the ten days of the Fair from May 12 to 21.

"We need workers and need them at once," said Mr. Frohman. "Our activities are many and far-reaching and the aid of hundreds is immediately necessary to execute the several big campaigns which are about to be started. I feel that we need only to ask to obtain proffers of assistance. There is something for everyone to do."

Mr. Frohman said there would be 150 booths at the bazaar and that the matter of their arrangement, fitting up, manning and equipping with merchandise were tasks, among others, that the officers hoped a volunteer army would undertake.

The Fair offices are at the Hotel Astor, New York.

Producers Elect Officers

The Motion Picture Producers' Association has started its second year with the same officers who have successfully piloted the organization during the past twelve months. They were all unanimously re-elected as follows: H. O. Davis, vice-president Universal Film Manufacturing Company, president; Thomas Ince, New York Motion Picture Company, first vice-president; D. W. Griffith, Fine Arts Film Company, second vice-president; David Horsley, Horsley Film Company, third vice-president; Frank A. Garbutt, Morosco Photoplay Company, treasurer; and W. J. Reynolds, secretary.

President Davis and his fellow officers are immeasurably pleased at the excellent work accomplished by the Motion Picture Producers' Association during the first year of its existence and are gratified particularly at the co-operation which has been extended to all of its members by the civic and industrial organization of California.

"The Moral Code," featuring the charming Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock and produced by Erbograph for Art Dramas.

"THE MORAL CODE"

New Art Dramas Release, Play from Erbograph Studio, Had Its Inception in Author's Long Study of Marriage Questions.

The genesis of the Erbograph production, "The Moral Code," which is the current Art Dramas release, came about through several years of close study and investigation of legislation regarding marriage in every part of the world, by the author, Ashley Miller. He is deeply interested in the subject, and had gone into it exhaustively in his search for material for a stage production. He contemplates writing a novel on the subject.

The picture features Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock, with Florence Hamilton and Richard Barthelmess in the leading supporting parts.

"The Moral Code" gives the two leading characters exceedingly dramatic parts, especially Miss Nilsson, who portrays a deeply sympathetic role. The story tells how Gilbert Girard (Walter Hitchcock), a man of the highest integrity and moral sense, marries a young girl whom his scapegrace brother had debauched, in order that no stigma might be attached to their family name. The woman is of a light, butterfly temperament. She continues to lead her former loose existence and pays no heed to her husband's pleas that she protect his honor.

Big Week for K. E. S. E.

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service is much in evidence in New York at Broadway's big picture theaters during the week beginning February 18.

At the Rialto, Manager Rothapfel is showing Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit," featuring Bryant Washburn.

At the Strand Theater, during the week beginning February 18, the first Essanay-Max Linder comedy, "Max Comes Across," is running.

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service reports that the Linder comedies appear to be in great favor with exhibitors. In them Linder is in his best form and displays the capabilities that established him as one of the foremost film comedians of Europe.

During the week Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service pictures are being shown also at many of the upper Broadway big theaters. At the Nemo Theater, One Hundred and Tenth street and Broadway, Essanay's "Little Shoes," with Henry B. Walthall in the feature role, is the Saturday picture.

Nance O'Neil to See Herself

Nance O'Neil has the distinction of playing in five theaters at the same time. She is one of the seven stars in "Seven Deadly Sins" series which is being shown exclusively at the B. S. Moss theaters in Greater New York. Her feature is "Greed," the third of the group. Miss O'Neil is also fulfilling her stage engagement in "The Wanderer" at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. The weeks of rehearsals just at the time work on the picture was being completed prevented her from seeing herself on the screen. Therefore Mr. Moss has arranged with the management of the Manhattan for a private showing of the picture. For this private performance it has been necessary to procure a special one-performance permit from the bureau of licenses.

Clifton Now Fine Arts Director

Elmer Clifton, for several years a Triangle-Fine Arts juvenile actor and leading man, has been promoted to the directorial staff. Clifton will enjoy the distinction of being one of the youngest directors in the motion picture business and will have supervision over the work of one of the most important stars, Dorothy Gish.

He will direct Miss Gish in a new picture that is being written by Bernard McConville. Frank Bennett will be Miss Gish's leading man.

Clifton will be remembered by motion picture fans in many roles but his most recent one was that of the hunchback in "Nina the Flower Girl."

"Fortune Photoplays" Under Way

Four companies will be kept going continuously at the Balboa Studios in Long Beach, California, preparing the "Fortune Photoplays" series for the General Film Company. The casts of the various dramas, which are to be four reels in length, based on stories in the Street & Smith chain of magazines, will comprise some of the leading screen players of the younger generation.

Among these are Winnifred Greenwood, who has been doing leads for American, Margaret Landis, the youthful Southern beauty who made a success from her first appearance at the age of nineteen, Vola Vale, Ethel Ritchie, Gloria Payton, Kathleen Kirkman and Mignon

LeBrun. Male leads will be done by Arthur Shirley, Clifford Gray, Melvin Mayo, Cullen Landis, the nineteen-year old brother of Margaret Landis, R. Henry Grey, Lewis King and James Warner.

Bertram Bracken, who has been in the East directing Theda Bara and other stars for the Fox Film Company, will direct one of the companies. Another will be handled by Edgar Jones, formerly of the Metro forces. The other two companies will be under the direction of Harry Harvey and William Bertram.

The first "Fortune Photoplay" to be released will be announced soon. The best stories in the incomparable mine of fiction in such magazines as Ainslee's, The Popular, People's, Smith's and like publications, have been selected for subjects.

PRINTS PICKFORD EDITION

"A Poor Little Rich Girl" to Be Sold in Book Form to Exploit Artcraft Subject—Publisher Aids Campaign

In addition to the usual advertising and publicity material being prepared by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation for the exploitation of Mary Pickford's newest picture, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," arrangements have been made for the output of a special "Mary Pickford Photoplay Edition" of the well-known book by Eleanor Gates. It was as a result of the popularity of the early book that the subject was produced on the stage, where it registered an immediate hit.

A plan of co-operation which will effect a special sale of the book and at the same time prove valuable advertising for the Artcraft picture has been entered into by the publishers, Messrs. Grosset & Dunlap and the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. Agents of Grosset & Dunlap are arranging with local book dealers for special window and advertising displays of the photoplay edition to take effect simultaneously with the presentation of the film. Book dealers will tie up the sale of the book with the showing of the picture by announcing where the photoplay can be seen.

Studio Lights Injure Cohan's Eyes

Work on the initial George M. Cohan-Artcraft production, "Broadway Jones," had to be suspended due to the fact that practically all the principals in the cast were temporarily blinded from the powerful lights used in the big Knickerbocker Hotel lobby set. The first to become afflicted was Mr. Cohan himself, who had to be led from the studio. He journeyed to Atlantic City to join his wife and children for a short rest. He is rapidly recovering and expects to be back at the studio in a few days.

Marguerite Snow, who plays opposite the star, Crawford Kent and Ida Darling were among those compelled to leave the studio, but it is expected that they will be able to resume work shortly.

The cause of the eye trouble, it is thought, lies in the fact that the players, who up until recently have been working at the Cohan studio, were unaccustomed to the different facilities offered them when they took up the production of "Broadway Jones" at Mary Pickford's studio in Fort Lee, following her departure for Los Angeles.

New Signal-Mutual Devices

Orrin Denny, laboratory superintendent of the Signal-Mutual studios, has recently invented two laboratory devices which he has had patented. One of the contrivances does away with the wooden pegs heretofore used to hold the developing racks in the tanks, the other is a faster and more convenient method of fastening the film to the drying drums. Both devices are very simple but have proved of inestimable value in the Signal plant where they have been used for several weeks. Mr. Denny has received offers from several people to establish agencies for the handling of these efficiency aids.

Mr. Denny is now trying out at the Signal studio a mechanical contrivance for the making of subtitles. The new title room is equipped with artificial lights, a camera with aperture and focus set, and a standard on which the title card may be placed and photographed by a novice. The camera is operated by the turning of a switch which gives each card the identical exposure of the one preceding it. A series of experiments has determined the correct timing for proper development and printing which reduces the entire process from start to finish to a mechanical one, and one which will result in the securing of absolutely identical titles photographically.

Between scenes with George M. Cohan and Mary Pickford at Artcraft studio. The latter picture was taken with Director Tourneur just before Mary went west. Geo. M. is telling stories to the prop. boys. It may be just as well they don't show here.

Crowds See "The Perils"

The first picture of the Mutual series "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters" broke all records when shown at the Academy Theater, Buffalo, N. Y. But instead of getting smaller each week as the rest of the series are shown the crowd continues to increase.

Glimpse at "Many a Slip," one of Mutual's "Perils of Our Girl Reporters" series.

When the fourth of the pictures "The White Trail" was shown at the afternoon performance there was not a seat available half an hour after the doors were opened and hundreds waited outside in the lobby. In the evening the crowds were still greater in spite of the fact that Billy Sunday was in town holding meetings and it was estimated that over 40,000 people attended his services; Shea's big vaudeville theater was thrown open for moving pictures for the first time; and there are also four other houses in the city showing the same series.

Pathe Gets All Rolin Products

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, has just signed a long term contract with Hal Roach, president of the Rolin Film Company, whereby all the Rolin product will be released through Pathe.

Owing to the repeated requests from exhibitors for these "Luke" comedies, in two-reel lengths, Mr. Berst decided some months ago to discontinue the release of the one reelers and put the comedies in two reels only. Arrangements were made with the Rolin Company to this end and Pathe has now on hand seven two-reel "Lonesome Luke" comedies that everyone who has seen declares to be "great." The first to be released will be "Luke's Lively Life," which has been put on program for March 18.

Horsley Closes Contracts

David Horsley, president of the David Horsley studios, announces that he arranged for the release of his Cub Comedies and Crane Wilbur features, sold his collection of Bostock animals, marketed his Cub Comedies in all foreign countries and completed arrangements for distributing facilities to cover further production activities aside from the Cub and Wilbur companies, during his six week's stay in the east.

Mr. Horsley says:

Through contracts I signed while in the east, David Horsley productions are again marketed through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation. These productions are the Cub Comedies and the Crane Wilbur features.

The Cub Comedies are already on the Mutual market, the first release having been made January 4. My contract with Mutual calls for a new subject in one reel for fifty-two weeks following the release of the first picture.

The Crane Wilbur features comprise a series of six five-reel subjects starring Mr. Wilbur. The general title of the series is "The Morals of Men." We have already completed three of the six pictures, namely: "The Painted Lie," "Love Everlasting," and "The Single Code." "The Eleventh Commandment" and "The Eye of Envy" are titles of two others. No release date has been set for the first picture but that information will be forthcoming shortly from Mutual. A Wilbur picture is to be released every four weeks following the first date.

Boosters at Northwest Meeting

Extra effort is being put forth to bring in new members for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest. The members in attendance at one of the recent meetings held in Minneapolis, at the Bijou Theater, discussed with the officers the need of obtaining united support from the exhibitors and film men of the Twin Cities for the work being done to better conditions in Minnesota.

The convention committee met and decided to announce its program in the Minneapolis trade publication, Amusements, as a means of saving the expense and care of printing a special program.

An application for membership has been received from Ed. Counsell.

Charters New Screen Club

The formation of the Utah Screen Club recently at Salt Lake City, which arranged an inaugural ball by way of introducing itself to the western film fraternity, marks the merger of two separate organizations. The Amusement Managers' Association of Utah and the exchange manager's organization in Salt Lake City were the unit bodies which united to charter the Utah Screen Club. New committees are taking up several matters which have been hanging in the balance and some quick action is looked for as the result of the better co-operation. The following committees are on the job:

General Committee—Frank Newman, George E. Carpenter, Louis Marcus, W. P. Moran, and Messrs. Frazer, Cannon and Hanauer.

Finance Committee—Frank Newman, George Mayne, W. P. Moran, Ben Petchum.

Advertising Committee—Frank Newman, George E. Carpenter, H. E. Ellison, E. P. Levy.

This striking Anita Stewart Vitagraph drama, "The Glory of Yolando," is attracting a great deal of attention among showmen because of its unusual qualities of suspense.

STARTING CENSOR ROW

Mutual Says Remedy Lies with Alert Exhibitors Who Will Wage a Fight and Call Time on Outside Meddlers

Make a row about it, exhibitors, is Mutual's advice on censorship. Reel Life, the organ of the Mutual Film Corporation, says:

Certain individuals and groups, operating through the legislatures of certain states, are endeavoring to procure the passage of laws inimical to the motion picture industry—especially laws imposing one or another form of censorship.

The purposes of some individuals and of certain groups engaged in this propaganda, are not susceptible of doubt, since by devious pseudo-political channels assurances are from time to time received that proposed laws may be defeated "with proper effort," meaning, as we comprehend the matter, by judicious "greasing of the ways" that lead bills to legislative oblivion.

But if the Mutual Film Corporation is interested in winning the great fight against arbitrary legislation, it is not more deeply interested than is the exhibitor, who really holds in his hands the power which if fully exercised would defeat the plans at once of the ignorant and corrupt directed against motion picture development.

Follow Up Your Advantage

Let every exhibitor, everywhere, take pains to bring his own views emphatically to the attention of the legislature in his own state, and let him use such power as he may possess to impress these views upon the legislative members of his own district.

Do not write one letter to your representative and then forget the matter. Write a letter every day until proper attention is secured, and having received attention follow up your advantage with personal interviews. Make it plain that there is an issue involved and a big one. Organize your friends and throw them into the fight. Make a row about it—don't let things slide—that's the way fights are lost.

Showmen's League Has Banquet

The Showmen's League of America is the headliner of the day at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, where the third annual banquet and ball is being held February 20. Reservations for plates have come in in large numbers from the various branches of the amusement business. Many members of the Fair Secretaries' Association, the American Trotting Association, and the Association of Outdoor Showmen, are attending the big performance. Chairman of the executive committee in charge of the arrangements is Edward F. Carruthers. Dick Collins is secretary and Edward P. Neumann, treasurer.

Exhibitor Aids De Mille

Under auspices rarely available in presenting a motion picture, "Joan the Woman," Cecil B. De Mille's big photoplay production in which Miss Geraldine Farrar appears as Joan of Arc, was exhibited a few days ago before an audience of six hundred persons in the private residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley in Washington, D. C. The tickets were $5 each and the receipts were for the benefit of the Noel House Settlement of Washington.

The management of the Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York, co-operated in the exhibition, sending ten musicians and operators.

For some years past it has been the custom of Washington society to annually present for charity the best available entertainment of the moment. Advances were made to Mr. Jesse L. Lasky to obtain "Joan the Woman" for a special exhibition and within two days after the announcement was made, every seat and box had been sold at what is probably the highest prices ever paid to witness a motion picture.

Stirring scenes from De Mille's "Joan the Woman," with the indomitable grand opera star, Geraldine Farrar

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS FILMS

Chicago Man Has Plan to Enable Exhibitors to Show Pictures of Events in Schools and Homes of Their Vicinity

An exhibitor at Cheyenne, Wyoming, turned people away from his theater every evening for a week on an occasion in the past when he exhibited a news film in which one of the events was a local occurrence photographed by the operator from his theater.

Every resident of Cheyenne who was not in the picture had a friend or two who were in it. About two hundred persons formed a group in the background of one portion of the picture. The occasion was the departure of Governor Carey for Europe several years ago. A majority of the population of the town turned out to see themselves, their friends, or the governor, whichever they were interested in.

Occasionally an exhibitor duplicates the Wyoming man's stunt by some lucky stroke and procures a picture that has a local application.

See Yourself in Films

In Chicago there is a man of varied experience in the motion picture business who has conceived a method by which any exhibitor may take pictures in his own neighborhood, or have them taken for him, and offer a news film of the neighborhood as a regular feature of his program. Entertainments, parties, school graduations, church socials, accidents, fires, weddings, kindergartens, homes, stores, people—all these and other things which might be photographed in every neighborhood, can be made drawing cards on the theater programs.

The man who has undertaken to make neighborhood news films possible is Frederick Russell Clark, president of the Educational Lecture and Film Service, which he calls the ELFS service. ELFS was organized to distribute educational films and promote the use of topical and educational subjects in theaters, schools, churches and clubs. The office of the ELFS service is at 1215 First National Bank Building, Chicago.

Neighborhood Pictures Made to Order

Mr. Clark expects to introduce the neighborhood news films into one of the large chains of theaters in Chicago and is at present negotiating for that purpose. Under his plan, theaters which avail themselves of the idea and equip themselves with a camera for use in filming local events, will be enabled to have their films developed and prints made by local branches of the ELFS service. Mr. Clark proposes to have representatives in all cities. The ELFS service will either supply special light-weight cameras to theaters using the neighborhood films, or send photographers from the exchange to film neighborhood occurences for the theaters.

Mr. Clark controls the rights to the Alamo camera, which sells at less than forty dollars, and now has the agency for six different makes of portable and semi-portable projectors. He will try to make the use of the cameras general among theater men for local and neighborhood pictures, and he is promoting the use of the projectors in schools and churches for educational purposes. Films of standard width and perforation are used in the camera, which is about the size of a Kodak. He expects to advertise them for exhibitors in connection with the ELFS service.

Exhibitors can use this camera to film local events and run them in his own house.

Fight Excessive License Fee

The city license on New Orleans motion picture theaters has been raised to what the exhibitors declare to be a ruinous figure. A well organized group of exhibitors have begun a persistent fight against the new order of things.

It is declared that the licenses have been increased to more than double what they were last year and the suburban exhibitor assumes that he has been made the victim of an inordinate attempt to place an unequal burden upon him. Direct charges are made as to the responsibility for this new state of affairs, but that is not as essential as the result of the attempt to harass the exhibitor who has a theater in the residential section of the city and who, in the most of cases, has a large number of friends who depend upon the convenience which he affords to them and who would not hesitate to resent what they consider as an attempt to proscribe their liberties in choosing to go to the picture show of their choice. At least the present state of affairs is put up in that light by exhibitors in the outlying residence districts. They are working together to defeat the new scale of licenses.

A joint meeting of exhibitors and exchange managers has been held and funds provided for carrying on the fight.

Rumor Spiked

Reports that Lois Weber (Mrs. Phillips Smalley) had resigned from the Universal Film Manufacturing Company were vigorously denied to-day by President Carl Laemmle who is now in Universal City. According to the rumors Miss Weber had severed her connections as author and director at Universal City and contemplated heading a new company in which Mr. Laemmle was said to be interested.

Current Releases Reviewed

"Kitty Mackay"

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THIS story, by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, has been produced in a fascinating manner, pleasing to the eye and mind, if not actually gripping. The acting of a cast headed by vivacious Lillian Walker is the most potent factor in this. The force of the story lies in the circumstances revolving around a necessary separation of two lovers, through the discovery that they are both the offspring of the same father. The story is very leisurely in developing to this situation, in fact the film is well on its way before the lovers even meet. Yet, though one is rather impatient to have the plot work up to something vital, he is continuously charmed by the bedimpled Lillian Walker, who, together with the quaint characters of the story, puts over an enormous amount of bright "business."

Lillian Walker in "Kitty Mackay"

Wilfred North, the director, has kept his star well in the front, and he is justified in doing so. Lillian Walker is a Scotch lassie whose spontaneous spunkiness will find direct response in the audiences. Granted that people come into the theater to smile as much as possible within the stern limits of the drama, they will find much encouragement and contagion in Miss Walker's radiant smile.

In the cast are to be found many capable Vitagraph entertainers. Charles Kent probably undergoes a new experience in his career in this, donning a wig and becoming a young man for a short stretch. Mr. Kent can always be depended upon for making his parts convince. William Shea, having only to don a Scotch cap to be transformed at once into the most veritable "mon" that ever trod the heath, gives his usual good performance, while Mr. Ferguson, as the girl's guardian, doesn't have to don the highland head covering to look Scotch. Mr. Ferguson provides the comedy of the piece largely and he hands out any number of good laughs. The close-up of this actor, terminating the picture, will make them all go away merry. Don Cameron makes an ardent lover. Others in the cast are Jewell Hunt, Thomas Mills, Beatrice Anderson and Mrs. Nellie Anderson.

Wilfrid North directed his picture intelligently and showed taste in the methods used to get the right atmosphere. Much time was spent on the settings, interior and exterior, which emit not the slightest hue of cheapness.

The story finally works up to a climax in which the unexpected dispels the quality of mystery overhanging the whole, and provides a surprise. Most in the audience will probably anticipate this, although they may not guess its exact nature, that is, if they are going to make the true prophecy that the story will end happily. If one were not quite so sure that things were going to work out well, the denouement would be stronger.

While the story of "Kitty Mackay" is not continuously strong, the piece has been so well acted and well produced, and it provides such a diversity of entertainment that its strongest impression is one of pleased satisfaction.

Kitty is brought up in Scotland under the cruel care of a poor couple who eagerly await the five pounds monthly from her guardian, Lord Inglehart, in England. Finally the latter takes Kitty into his home in England where she falls in love with his son, Don. For a mysterious reason the lord vehemently opposes the match. At last, when the angry Don tells his father he intends to marry anyhow, the secret is revealed—Inglehart believes Kitty to be his daughter. Father and son tell Kitty that marriage is impossible, without revealing the secret, and she returns, heartbroken, to Scotland. The Scotch guardian of the girl, however, thinking he is going to die, makes a confession, the substance of which is that Englehart's baby had died, and Kitty, an orphan, had been put in its place for the sake of insuring the five pounds monthly. So Kitty and her lover are reunited, and the story ends happily.

"For Reward of Service"

George Fawcett in One-Reel Selig Play. Released February 17. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS is an unusually good one-reel picture, a picture everyone in the audience will like. It is a simple story, well directed in that the interest centers about the leading character, played by George Fawcett. To those familiar with Fawcett's work it is needless to say that he is excellent. Here he has the sort of role which he interprets best, a grouchy old man who becomes more human before the play ends.

Beyond the fact that the story, which has a Christmas theme, is not especially timely during February, one can find little to criticise adversely in the production. It is unusually worth while because of the acting and the appealing story.

The supporting cast includes Mrs. Evelyn, Charles Gardner and Charles Le Moyne. Al Green directed.

The Story: Allen (Fawcett) is a grouchy bookkeeper, disliked by the younger clerks. On the day before Christmas, the boys present him with a group of packages supposed to contain Christmas presents. It is all to be a huge joke on the old chap, but when the boys learn something of the tragedy in Allen's life, the death of his two sons, they repent. They hurry to his house with real presents and replace the false ones before their mischief is discovered. The next day they are guests at his home and find that he is quite delightful after all. Later the managers join the party, not knowing that the boys have changed their plans. They too bring gifts and good wishes.

"Ashes on the Hearthstone"

February 17 Release in Essanay Series, "Is Marriage Sacred?" Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS issue in the popular Essanay series on the General program is an unusually dramatic short length picture. The action and the story material condensed in the twenty-six minutes screen-time and the terse, effective method of presenting it are worth praise. Good acting and good direction, with the technical details well handled, combine to make the release satisfactory for any theater.

Of kitchen lore Stella had much to learn.

The roles are interpreted by the company who appeared in the preceding numbers, popular and capable players. Their work is even better than usual. Edward Arnold is well cast as Carl Dixon, and Marguerite Clayton does sincere and intelligent work in a peculiarly difficult role. Ulrich Haupt and Thomas Commerford give their usual clever performances.

That the heroine would desert her baby or that her father would request her to do so may strike some viewers as more theatrical than real, but Miss Clayton's acting and the story itself overcome to a large extent the effect of this improbability. And this situation is the basis for the dramatic finale in which the woman, who, in her father's home, has been trying to forget her child, awakens in the night with a sudden terror that it is ill. She rushes to her former home to find her husband standing with bowed head before the crib of the baby, who is dead. This tragic ending adds force to the play.

The Story: Stella Wentworth, daughter of a wealthy man, is infatuated with Dixon, her father's chauffeur and in spite of her parent's wish that she marry Albert Fowler, son of his business partner, she and Dixon elope. Her father disowns her and she finds life as a poor man's wife filled with hardship. At last, the romance having quite faded, she is persuaded to leave her husband and their little child and return to the luxury of her former life. She again takes her place in society, divorces Dixon and accepts the attentions of Fowler.

In the meantime her baby becomes ill. One night she awakens with a premonition that the child will die. She returns to her husband's home to find that the baby is dead.

"The Little Brother"

Triangle-Ince-Kay Bee Drama Released March 3. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THIS story, by Lois Zellner, is a rather unnatural affair, in which the heroine, having started out to represent herself as a boy in order to be on a competitive basis with other newsies, finds herself in a position where she must go on with the ruse. The story goes on to show how Jerry, the girl in boy's clothes, becomes the pal of a kind young man interested in the "Big Brother" movement. After the girl has returned from a full course at school, Frank sees her as she really is, and Jerry is gone forever. Having studied hard at college to enable her to help Frank in his endless experiments—he is seeking for a formula by means of which he can extract opals from the substance in which they are embedded—the girl at last discovers the wonder-working chemical combination. The discovery instills a new value into Frank's mines. Not aware that Frank considers himself more than a "big brother" to her, Jerry tries to "go away," but her ardent lover overtakes her and all ends happily.

The story has a number of little incidents and sub-plots which help to stretch it out to the standard length of five reels. It gets in some good pathetic moments, and there are some isolated dramatic scenes but the whole suffers from lack of conviction. The role bestowed upon Enid Bennett, Mr. Ince's new "find," is a much more grateful one, as a role, than was the part given her in her first picture, considered apart from the sympathetic power of the story. Again Enid Bennett demonstrates the fact that she has talent and a screen presence that should find response from the public. William Garwood makes a boyish, good natured hero. His heroism consists mostly of persistent effort in the laboratory.

"The Little Brother" has been charmingly produced by Charles Miller, and this exquisite production, together with the likable work of the star, are the picture's most potent factors in the line of successful entertainment.

"A Girl's Folly"

Five-Reel Paragon-World Features Doris Kenyon. Reviewed by George W. Graves

DORIS KENYON'S work in this picture as a girl who strays to the edge of the precipice of dishonor but is saved from making the perilous leap, shows that she is making rapid strides in screen-play art. Her part is really a very grateful one and she misses none of the opportunities it offers for convincing portrayal. Robert Warwick appears in the picture in an extremely polished rendition of a man good at heart, but unable to control his desires. Add to the names of these two stars those of Johnny Hines and June Elvidge, both of whom have distinguished themselves in the past, and we have a group of unusually efficient players.

The story deals pretty intimately with the moving picture people and their work, finding use for some interesting views inside a movie studio and following the adventures of a company off on outdoor scenes. This not only provides an added interest to the story, for the public always "eats" this inside-the-studio stuff, but it also furnishes a fertile field for some good comedy touches. As its theme the story has an old theme clothed in new dress. Besides being merely interesting it goes into the realm of fascination, due to Maurice Tourneur's unexcelled direction. Mr. Tourneur also collaborated with Frances Marion on the story and scenario. The piece does lack a little in conviction, but the acting and direction outweigh enormously the effect of this upon its entertaining qualities. On the whole, "A Girl's Folly" is a finely finished production.

Mary Baker, a simple country girl, meets and admires Driscoll, a movie actor. Thinking to make a brilliant success in the pictures, Mary leaves her sweet mother and her rustic lover behind and accompanies Driscoll to the city. Upon being given a trial, however, Mary proves a flat failure. Not daring to face the humiliation of going home (she has painted herself in her letters as successful) she accepts the offer of Driscoll, who, by the way, is married, and he plans to fit her up in an apartment.

Doris Kenyon in "A Girls Folly."

On the night of the opening of the apartment, Driscoll invites some of his friends for a party. During the height of festivities, Mary's mother arrives. In the comparison of these sophisticated revelers with her pure mother, Mary sees the light, and realizes what she has been on the verge of. The little mother never learns the true meaning of the party, thanks to the consideration of Driscoll, who allows Mary to follow the dictates of her heart. The story comes to a happy finish with Driscoll finding renewed love for the wife whom he thought he had tired of, and Mary accepting her farmer lover.

"The Scarlet Letter"

Fox Adaptation of Hawthorne's Work a Distinct Success. Reviewed by George W. Graves

ONE who has read this famous tale of old Puritan days will probably wonder just what those who essay to produce it upon the screen are going to do for action, since the story deals so largely with mind descriptions. But contrary to speculation on the subject, this Fox picture has gleaned all the action contained in the story and skillfully reproduced it upon the screen, making splendid use of subtitles for the elaboration of psychological points and purely unplayable material, upon which a considerable portion of the story's deep feeling rests. Hester Prynne's sacrifice, her nobility and goodness, amply atoning for the past, partake of the same vitality upon the screen as they do in the book, while the terrible mental punishment inflicted by the fires of conscience upon the hypocrite minister is also indicated dramatically. The feeling of deep pathos is keenly felt. Not one only of the characters, but three, hold our sympathy. The picture launches right forth in the first few scenes upon its theme and runs without any "gaps" right through to the powerful climax, when the minister is revealed in his true character. The incidents immediately precedent to this are handled with such effectiveness that the denouement has a tremendous effect. The structure of this adaptation is a seamless garment.

The motto of Carl Harbaugh, the director, must have been "realism," for the picture is not lacking in this in acting or atmosphere. The little New England village, with its meeting-house, jail, pillory, etc., makes a very quaint setting. Stuart Holmes is just the hypocrite minister that one reading Hawthorne's work has in his imagination. He acts with great regard for delicate feeling. Mary Martin gives a very impressive rendition of the anguish experienced by the unfortunate Hester. Another whose work stands out is Dan Mason, who is seen as the vengeful Doctor Chillingworth who says, speaking of the unknown craven who has betrayed his wife, "I shall find out who he is and make him mine, body and soul." That he does this through a slow and galling process, all readers of "The Scarlet Letter" know.

This picture is every bit worthy of being advertised as something unusual, something to feature, with full respect to the meaning of the ill-used word "feature." As its base it has a story that still lives today and is regarded as one of the greatest American works. It should have a particular appeal to young people attending schools, since it is almost invariably prescribed as part of their literary nourishment. It is equally true, however, that the picture has no appeal to children.

"The Scarlet Letter" will help to give Fox photoplays greater prestige among the movie audiences of the land.

"Two Men and a Woman"

Five-Part Ivan Film Production. Reviewed by G. W. Graves

THIS picture partakes of a fault quite common—that of making a complicated beginning, introducing so many characters with nothing tangible to identify them that it is some time before the spectator can adjust things in his mind. After this confusion has abated, the story starts to work up interest around a middle-aged man, the inventor of a diving bell which is to revolutionize submarine warfare. One thread of the story treats of the attempts of Japanese spies to gain possession of his plans, and their ultimate frustration, while another takes up the subject of the man's love for a girl of tender years, his renunciation of that love in favor of his ward, and the final result. This thread attains to its climax when the inventor seriously compromises himself with an adventuress to protect his unworthy ward and insure further the latter's happiness. Then justice takes a hand and turns the girl's affection back in the direction of her first lover. The youngster, realizing the debt he owes for his guardian's uncomplaining sacrifice, releases his sweetheart, who is supremely happy with the inventor as the story closes.

The story is perceptibly lacking in grip and conviction, but it has been enacted by a cast of general merit. Guy Coombs pleases mightily as the wealthy inventor, doing well with his emotional scenes. James Morrison gives one of his good performances as Tony, the morally weak son, while Rubye de Remer lends some very fascinating feminine as well as some dramatic touches to the picture. Other people appearing in the film to its advantage are John Reinhard, Christine Mayo, Helen Arnold and Yuka Yamakura—the entire balance of the listed cast.

One of the unusual spots in "Two Men and a Woman."

William Humphrey directed some of his scenes with very decided effect, but his work as a whole is not remarkable. Photography is rather poor, but the settings are adequate for their purpose.

Due chiefly to the efforts of its strong cast, "Two Men and a Woman" makes good entertainment. The picture as a whole is not unworthy of bearing the name Ivan.

"A Four-Cent Courtship"

Essanay Black Cat Release of February 20. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

WITH a clever little story in comedy spirit, cleverly told, both in its pictures and its subtitles, and with the popular Bryant Washburn in the leading role, Hazel Daly opposite, this offering is quite up to the Black Cat standard. Its best point is that it is refreshingly different. It will satisfy audiences either in a short-length program or as an added number with a feature picture. It would be a good number to counterbalance any gloomy problem picture an exhibitor might find on his schedule, since it is wholesome and unhackneyed.

The problem: to finance an evening's entertainment with four cents.

Tht picture requires twenty-eight minutes screen time. The action is swift and as a whole the direction is good. The acting is very good. The only thing we can find fault with is the midnight blue tinting of a number of scenes and titles which makes both indistinct. At least this was true of the print shown for review. The settings are good, some of them a bit out of the ordinary.

The Story: A number of circumstances, begun when his room-mate borrows his money, brings about a situation in which Emmet Payne (Washburn) finds himself with an engagement with Miriam York, the girl he loves, and only four cents to finance an evening's entertainment. But he sets forth, trusting to chance and his wits for a way out of the difficulty.

He finds a way, several of them. He gets carfare by snatching the tickets from the hand of a fat man beside him. He gets tickets for the opera by posing as a dramatic critic, sells the tickets and thus finances the rest of the evening. But at the restaurant after a play the critic, the fat man and the ticket speculator all discover Payne and call him to account. His room-mate is also at the restaurant and Payne forces him to come to his aid.

At last the affair is straightened out and Payne goes back to Miriam. She has overheard the story and is angry but later she decides she admires Payne's cleverness and accepts his love.

"The Accomplice"

An Art Drama Feature Release. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

DOROTHY BERNARD and Jack Sherrill are featured in this William L. Sherrill production. The story deals with the manner in which the idle rich find expensive diversion of the "Great White Way." Although the play is not tiresomely pedantic, as it might have been under less interesting treatment, it teaches the old but unlearned lesson of the evils that come from idleness. Some of the developments in the early part of the story could have been omitted without shortening the plot, yet the play can hardly be termed slow.

Jack Sherrill is well cast for the part of Dick Harcourt. Dorothy Bernard plays the part of Katherine Harcourt effectively. Others in the cast who help to make this a pleasing picture are W. J. Brady, Joseph Granby, Jean Stuart, Florence Hamilton, John Milton and Tom Ward. The settings are elaborate. It is a well staged play with the additional virtue of good photography.

Katherine Harcourt is more in love with her gowns than with her parents. She is allowed to go about too freely and seeking pleasure, goes to a Tango Tea with the insipid set who find this their particular form of relief from idle boredom. Antonio, a professional dancer, is attracted to her, and Katherine becomes involved with him.

The death struggle.

Meanwhile her brother, Dick Harcourt, has been leading a life as equally wasteful as his sister's. But in time he is brought to his senses by his father's beautiful secretary. Dick informs his father than he intends to fight against his laziness, and sets out to make a man of himself. One of the first things he does along this line is to fall in love with his father's secretary, nearly causing a collapse of affairs, because the father will not hear of his son's marrying a simple working girl.

Antonio's dancing partner is found murdered. It is discovered that Katherine had spent part of the night in his apartment. Antonio, in order to clear himself of the crime, tells of Katherine's visit to his rooms.

Harcourt's secretary hears of this, and to protect Dick's family and to prove to the father that she really loves Dick, comes out with the statement that it was she and not Katherine who was in the apartment with the dancer. This clears Antonio of the crime. Through a series of incidents the threads are unravelled, and two happy endings are reached: one with Dick and Miriam, and the other with Katherine Harcourt.

"The Greater Woman"

Marjorie Rambeau in Powell-Mutual Release of February 26. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

MARJORIE RAMBEAU, speaking stage favorite, is introduced to motion picture audiences in this five-reel Powell-made feature, released through Mutual, and proves a very pleasing newcomer to the field. When the large majority of picture actresses can be placed definitely in one of two classes, ingenues or "vampires," one is delighted to welcome a player who is neither one nor the other, simply a human being. Miss Rambeau has poise and dignity and a sort of Ethel Barrymore-like charm.

The vehicle given Miss Rambeau is a heart-interest drama, written by Algernon Boysen and adapted by Clara S. Beranger. Under the direction of Frank Powell, it has been given an elaborate production, which is made especially pleasing by the beautiful interior settings and the artistic titles. The photography is very good. The direction is skillful and the interest of the spectator is closely held.

Although the role given Miss Rambeau is a fitting one, the story itself is not completely satisfactory, especially in its conclusion. Though the heroine may be "the greater woman," one feels that she surely did not choose "the greater man." Her final decision leaves room for a difference of opinion as to its wisdom. While this of course is not a defect in itself, the author has made the villain so much the stronger character and so much more admirable than the hero, who is not only a weakling but a cad, that most audiences will have little sympathy for him.

Among the players, Sara Haidez as Ida Angley, a "vampire" type, shares honors with the star. Her performance of the eccentric role is very clever and judging from the public's fondness of others of the type, she will attract much favorable attention. Aubrey Beattie as Leo Bannister, the villain, is fine, but Hassan Mussell as Otto Bettany, the artist (one hesitates to call him the hero) will certainly win little sympathy from the average audience.

As a whole, the picture should be a good drawing card, because of title, star and nature of the story. The heart interest, the excellence of the acting, the beauty of the picture itself and the care of details make it the best five-reeler Mutual has released in some time.

The Story: Auriole Praed is infatuated with Leo Bannister, a farmer. She admires his ability but is afraid that her love for him is not genuine. So she goes to Paris with her brother. Bannister, deeply hurt by her treatment of him, determines to better himself and eventually to win her. He becomes a financier and when Auriole marries an artist in Paris, he plans to win her from her husband.

Auriole and her husband return to America where their child is born. Bannister persuades Ida Angley, a notorious dancer, to win the artist from his wife. The adventuress is completely successful and Otto is willing to give up Auriole to Bannister. The financier proves to Auriole her husband's unworthiness, but when the latter, after being cast aside by the dancer, attempts suicide, Auriole forgives him and sends Bannister away.

"The Winning of Sally Temple"

Lasky-Paramount Comedy-Drama, Released February 26. Reviewed by Geo. W. Graves

AN extremely well produced and well acted play, this, with the irresistible Fannie Ward in the role of a stout-hearted young lady who teaches her dominating lover that her love is not to be won a la cave-dweller. The scenario was prepared in a very commendable fashion by Harvey F. Thew from the novel by Rupert Sargent Holland, and the picture fairly out-Laskys itself in the sumptuous production given it by Director George Melford. The story, whose resources have been stretched to their utmost screen value, is never less than entertaining. It is punctuated with refreshing drafts of comedy, in which Fannie Ward always registers effectively, her work being ably emphasized by the supporting cast.

The initial development of the play, when Sally Temple, an actress, agrees to impersonate Lady Pamela Vauclain, to save the latter (who has married before becoming of age) from losing her inheritance, arrests the interest at once. The spectator's interest is then conserved through the incidents occurring with and after the advent of the tyrannical Lord Ramsey, who believes Sally is his ward, culminating when Sally refuses to be made to marry, and runs away. All during the picture's development splendid and novel bits of screen by-play are brought into being, which, reachig the spectator through human acting, put him in a pleasant state of mind. Before Sally is successful in making her final sensational escape from Ramsey, she has revealed to him her real identity, which deters him not a hair's breadth from his purpose of marriage.

"The Winning of Sally Temple."

Lord Ramsey, from the time he is bested in a bout with a prize-fighter, "comes down off his high horse." He adopts other methods, becoming a blacksmith in Pump Lane, where he helps Sally with her work of charity among the poor of the district. The villainous Duke of Chatto kidnaps Sally, but Ramsey comes to her rescue. Later the Duke seeks out the girl's blacksmith lover, intending to have him flogged. But the captive reduces the Duke to speedy humility by disclosing his identity and forcing him to sell Pump Lane. The lovers then turn over the property to the long oppressed dwellers thereon, which brings the tale to a close.

There are some thrilling scenes accompanying both of the story's climaxes. The spectator's interest is preserved mainly through the excellent quality of portrayal and the splendid production, which never fails to fascinate, the entertaining value of the plot itself being secondary in appeal. The effect of the whole play is one of clean enjoyment. The artists cravings of your spectator who loves the beautiful will be fully appeased. The exhibitor can place confidence in "The Winning of Sally Temple" and elaborate as much as is his wont upon the artistic and histrionic worth of the offering.

In the cast are Jack Dean, Walter Long, H. B. Carpenter, Billy Elmer, Harry J. Smith, H. Woodward, Paul Weigel, Eugene Pallette and Vola Vale.

"Stagestruck"

Triangle-Fine Arts in Five Reels Released February 25. Reviewed by George W. Graves

DOROTHY GISH does well with a part of doubtful sympathetic power, in this, due to a story which is not of the ascending interest variety. The story starts off with some very good comedy, aided materially by subtitles, but it loses its grip later when it takes on a serious but not convincing aspect. At the end occurs a novel, pleasing climax, which is calculated to send them away in a satisfied mood. Miss Gish is the center of the picture, and it is very delightful that this is so, but the character provided for her by the author is not a compelling one. There is an undercurrent of good comedy in the picture brought out by the work of the cast. In this Spottiswoode Aitken, as the picturesque old judge, is extremely risible. Frank Bennett, in the star's support, gives a quality performance. Jennie Lee is a splendid type for the landlady of the theatrical boarding house, and Mazie Radford, as the slavey, is a type just as carefully picked. This accuracy of types, by the way, lends considerable enjoyment to the play. Edward Morrissey directed.

Ruth Colby, an orphan, runs away to become a member of a dramatic school. She here meets Jack Martin, a wayward son of the rich, and is finally married to him by "the judge," a partner of the swindler head of the theatrical school. Frightened by the government, Schneider, head of the school, starts on the road with his pupils, deserting them and leaving them stranded. Ruth manages to get back to town, only to find her husband, who has made up with his philanthropic mother, gone. At last we find the down-and-out Ruth in the tender care of the institution at the head of which is Mrs. Martin. The latter swears that she will find and compel the erring husband to right his wrong. He is finally found at the boarding house where he has gone in search of Ruth, and brought before his mother by the police. When mother sees the guilty man is her own son, she changes tactics and tries to buy the girl off. But matters are finally agreeably settled, and the young couple receive the mother's blessing.

"Stagestruck."

"The Royal Pauper"

Francine Larrimore in Edison Feature of February 19. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

FRANCINE LARRIMORE, well known on the speaking stage, plays the role of a little orphan girl in this picture, which is announced as "a modern fairy tale." The story is a fanciful one, very prettily picturized and is an excellent number for children's and family programs. It is a child's story throughout and a very entertaining one. Photographically it far surpasses the recent Edison releases. The exteriors are of unusual beauty.

The King, the Prince, the Princess and the Fairy Godmother.

Miss Larrimore is charming as the ragged little heroine. The action of the play is rapid enough to hold the attention well, and the situation becomes very exciting toward the close of the story. The acting of the supporting cast is satisfactory. This includes William Wadsworth as the old man in the poorhouse, Herbert Patti and Nellie Grant as Mr. and Mrs. Chandler, Walter Bauer who plays William as a boy, Richard Tucker as the grown-up hero, Leo Gordon and Helen Strickland.

The picture as a whole is pretty enough to be pleasing, out of the ordinary enough to be diverting. Its appeal is to audiences who like fanciful, happy little stories as a change from heavy dramas.

The Story: Irene, a little girl who lives in the poorhouse, reads fairy stories and, with an old man, a little boy and a dog, who also live there, she enacts the stories she reads. She dreams of a fairy godmother who will release herself, "The Princess," the boy, "The Prince," and the old man, who is "The King," from the power of "The Witch," the woman who manages the poorhouse.

A rich lady finally adopts Irene and she goes to live in "The Castle," where she wins the heart even of "The Ogre," the master of the house, who is a wealthy mill owner. But "The Prince" runs away from the poorhouse and the girl loses track of him.

When the girl is grown up, she meets the boy again. He has worked in the mills and has invented a wonderful loom. "The Ogre" is harsh to the men in the mills and they strike. "The Prince" is their leader. After a number of complications, Irene brings about a reconciliation between all parties. The invention of "The Prince" proves a success and he is given charge of the mills and treats the men fairly. Then "The Prince" and "The Princess" are married and live happily ever after.

"A Mormon Maid"

Offered by Friedman Enterprises, Inc., State Rights. Reviewed by George W. Graves

IF ONE is not thrilled all the way to the core after witnessing this production he is of a different make-up than the average spectator who witnessed its special showing at the Strand Theater, New York. Here the people seemed much impressed with its power. The picture has all that is conducive to agreeable entertainment—thrills, suspense, action, forceful portrayal, good production, and so on—and one thing that is not, a certain note of repulsion, which, considering the nature of the plot, could hardly have been avoided. According to some people's opinions the mere thought of a young girl's being forced to marry a monster who already has half a dozen wives, is abhorrent, assaulting his mental constitution in a sensitive spot; but this is a matter of opinion. The situation in which the sympathetic characters of the story find themselves is certainly tensely dramatic, its force being only accelerated by the feeling of repugnance. But there are many who will object to this. The story, by Paul West, provides the film with nearly as many tense scenes as we have ever witnessed in a five-reeler. It has been impressively screened at all points by the director, Robert Leonard, to whom comes the praise for well-handled thrills and intelligent direction of the cast. At the head of the latter is Mae Murray, who carries her dramatic scenes with much precision and power, scoring in every scene in which she appears. At the outset of the story she is a carefree, wild young miss, romping about in the free and gay setting of Nature, but when she and her father fall into the power of the Mormons, the star assumes an entirely different character of portrayal. Hobart Bosworth is capital as Dora's stalwart father, while Frank Borzage gives a fine performance in the role of the girl's lover. Edythe Chapman and Noah Berry also deserve a round of praise for their work. It seems to us, however, that the brutal qualities of the character portrayed by the latter are overemphasized.

The unwelcome second wife brought to Dora's home.

That this picture is a big one is more than a hypothesis. It ranks among the most powerful releases of the year. At the story's beginning, John Hogue, his wife, Nancy, and his daughter, Dora, are rescued from the depredations of the Indians by a band of Mormon concerts, who take them to the Celestial City. In time Hogue becomes prosperous and influential. He scoffs at the Mormons' ideas on marriage. Fearing he will incite antagonism against the faith, Burr, an official high up in the church, summons him before the council. He is given twenty-four hours in which to take the oath of allegiance to their faith and to marry a second wife. Fearing the threat that they will force his daughter (in love with Tom, not fully awake to the awful side of his religion) to marry, Hogue submits to a marriage, and brings his new wife home.

After the meeting with Nancy, one tense scene follows another, the latter committing suicide. Burr, actuated by pernicious motives, has decided to have Dora for his seventh wife. She is captured, but while waiting for the ceremony to commence, she discovers a line in the Mormon tenet book which states that a man may take a second wife, provided she is a virgin. To save herself, while the ceremony is in progress, tricks Burr, forswearing her chastity. She is released. Later Burr, with the aid of his white band, the Destroying Angels, gets Dora into his power, but her father, supposed to have been killed by one of the relentless band, but now returned in the guise of the band, helps her to escape. Dora's lover also has a part in this. The story ends with the death of the villainous Burr, and the successful escape of Dora, her father, and lover.

"Arsene Lupin"

Vitagraph Five-Part Detective Drama Released February 26. Reviewed by George W. Graves

PAUL POTTER'S play done on the screen makes an exceptionally good detective offering. Its action is smooth, the interest deepening scene by scene, and the director has taken into consideration all of the detective play essentials, creating in the audience such a spirit of enthusiasm for the dauntless, dashing gentleman crook, that a person finds himself easily siding with the intelligent criminal, rather than with the stupid representatives of the law. Although the crook slips through the tentacles of the stately law, it is indicated that he intends to reform, so the moral is not questionable.

"Arsene Lupin" is fine entertainment. Its appeal is to the young and old, for the beauty of the detective drama is that it is clean and contains nothing morbid or revolting. This is one variety of drama that the old folks can go to see without being made sick for a week from some vivid incident which recalls some unfortunate like episode in their past. We have seen old folks take a heart-interest drama so much to heart, due wholly to this, that they couldn't sit through the picture.

Earle Williams is an attractive, likable sort of a crook, while the detective of the play is the person that people coming in on the middle of the picture would size up as the crook, in contrast to the usual state of affairs, where we find the types vice-versa. Mr. Williams' acting is polished, coming up to the requirements of the part. He impresses one as being the alert, cool-headed, self-controlled individual depicted in the book. Brinsley Shaw is fine as the detective, and Julia Swayne Gordon outdoes her usual good performance in the part of Victoire. Ethel Gray Terry, too, is another prominent member of the effective cast. A great deal of credit is due both Garfield Thompson, the scenarioist, and Paul Scarden, the director, for the picture's success. It may be said that the latter, besides working his surprise and quick-action scenes with true detective-story snap and suspense, created an excellent Parisian atmosphere, without which, it would seem, a detective play is only a sham.

"Arsene Lupin" is a picture easily playable in any character of house. It cannot be said to be the best detective story adaptation to the screen yet produced, but it is to be found not far below the head of the list.

Earle Williams in that striking play, "Arsene Lupin."

"The Web of Desire"

World Film Drama in Five Reels Released February 5. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A NEGLECTED wife and a "money mad" husband, together with a rascally man bent on betraying both, are the figures around whom circle the various complications of this story. With these characters introduced early in the course of events, one comes to the decision that the subject is going to be trite, but its development gets away from his after a time and carries one's interest on a steady impulsion, aided by swift action, through to the end. A number of new twists proving to be dramatic are employed as lead-ups to the climax, where we find the wife in a position enabling her to save her husband from being made the victim of a despicable trick. The domestic troubles brought about by stolidity and incompatibility having come to a head, aided by fateful circumstance, and Mr. and Mrs. Miller being on the brink of divorce, the smooth-tongued villain succeeds in convincing the wife that her only means of redress is to transfer part of her husband's stock to him. He points out that this is the only way in which she can force her husband to give up the child. But shortly after, Mrs. Miller overhears a conversation which reveals the villain, Mordant, in his true intent.

The wife then goes to the directors' meeting, frustrates Mordant's plan and reveals him to her husband as her supposed betrayer. (She is really innocent, having been consistently deceived by the sympathetic villain.) After the tense scene Miller tells his enemy there is only one course left open for him, giving him a revolver. The latter goes into the next room and a shot is fired. Here the scenarioist sees fit to introduce a surprise scene, for when the crowd gathers where the supposed suicide took place they find nothing in the room but a note from Mordant exonerating the wife and stating that he has left for other parts. After having it demonstrated to him that "the love of money is the root of all evil," Miller takes back his neglected wife and both determine to star over anew.

The first part of the story, dealing with the drifting apart of the lonesome wife and the busy husband doesn't convince overmuch, because there is no misunderstanding—each knows the cause of the other's trouble and the husband does nothing to remedy the evil. Knowing his wife is drifting away from him due to his unreasoning treatment, he allows her to drift. Ethel Clayton does lots of fine work in this, seizing the opportunities accorded her in rapid succession in the last half of the picture. She handles her scenes with utmost delicacy, making us feel the finer nature of the character she portrays. Rockliffe Fellows makes a manly (as well as mannish) and convincing husband.

The settings of this picture are tastful and handsome. Much of the apparel worn by Miss Clayton will be the center of feminine gaze.

"The Web of Desire," as a whole is an effectively produced, entertainingly told play, with enough dramatic hold to satisfy the average spectator.

Association Branch Organizing

P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has gone to California where he will take active charge of the organization of a Pacific coast advisory committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

Donald J. Bell, president of the Bell and Howell Company of Chicago, has been at the coast for some time, awaiting Mr. Powers' arrival. Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, is on a tour of the country and will join Mr. Powers and Mr. Bell in Los Angeles shortly.

The work to be done will include the bringing into a great advisory committee of the big producers of the coast as well as the prosperous exchange managers and exhibitors. The first of the advisory committees was organized last fall in Chicago and Minneapolis followed suit some weeks ago. Other advisory committees will be formed and probably Boston will be the next center in which the matter will be taken up.

Change in Fox Releases

A change in the releases of Fox Film Corporation advances "Melting Millions," with George Walsh, to February 19. "A Child of the Wild," the new June Caprice subject, originally scheduled for that date, will be sent out on February 26.

"The Tiger Woman," a super de luxe production directed by J. Gordon Edwards, is released simultaneously with "Melting Millions."

FOR SALE

New Prints of D. W. Griffith—Biograph Releases Starring Mary Pickford, Blanch Sweet and Henry Walthall and other big money makers—With Posters

EDWARD M. ROSKAM 1003 Candler Building NEW YORK

EXECUTIVE

thoroughly experienced in Producing and Exchange ends, also Expert Organizer and Efficiency Expert, with highest record and references, seeks new connection.
Address M. F., Care Motography, Chicago

ADVERTISING
By Motion Pictures
By ERNEST A. DENCH

This subject is one on which there is scarcely any information available, so this work, by Mr. Dench, is the first in the field. The author, who is a recognized motion picture authority has covered every phase of this fascinating theme in an easy, understandable manner.

The value of the motion picture screen as an advertising medium, is becoming more pronounced every day. Hence, you will be sure to gain much practical assistance from a study of this book. Send check or stamps for $1.50 today.

MOTOGRAPHY, Monadnock Block, Chicago

The audience is always right.

They want not only a good picture play but a clear picture.

Because of its basic qualities, the clearest pictures are on

Eastman Film

Identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in booking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's booking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Monday.

D	2-5	Cupid's Thumb Print .....2, Selig	21702–03
C	2-5	The Hall Room Girls (Claire McCormack)....1, Vita.	21704
T	2-5	Selig Tribune, No. 11.....1, Selig	21705

Tuesday.

D	2-6	The Hoodooed Story (Richard Travers)....2, Essanay	21706–07
C	2-6	Ghost Hounds (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21708

Wednesday.

T	2-7	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24.....s, Essanay	21709
		(Alaska) .....s

Thursday.

T	2-8	Selig Tribune, No. 12.....1, Selig	21710
	2-8	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21711

Friday.

D	2-9	The Trap (Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin)..1, Kalem	21712
	2-9	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21713
D	2-9	The Suitor from Siam (Mary Anderson).....1, Vita.	21714

Saturday.

D	2-10	Desertion and Non-Support (Marguerite Clayton).....
		.....2, Essanay	21715–16
D	2-10	The Prima Donna's Special (Helen Gibson)..1, Kalem	21717
D	2-10	A Strange Adventure (Jack Pickford).....1, Selig	21718

Monday.

D	2-19	The Great Treasure .....2, Selig	21741–42
D	2-19	The Meeting (Bobby Connelly).....1, Vitagraph	21743
T	2-19	Selig Tribune, No. 15.....1, Selig	21744

Tuesday.

C	2-20	A Four-Cent Courtship (Bryant Washburn)..2, Essanay	21745–46
C	2-20	A Flyer in Flapjacks (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21747

Wednesday.

T	2-21	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 25.....s, Essanay	21748
T	2-21	British Columbia .....s, Essanay

Thursday.

T	2-22	Selig Tribune, No. 16.....1, Selig	21749
C	2-22	The Newlyweds' Mistake (Irene Wallace).....1, Vim	21750

Friday.

D	2-23	The Screened Vault (Ollie Kirkby).....1, Kalem	21751
C	2-23	Art and Paint .....1, Vim	21752
D	2-23	The Gang (Mary Anderson).....1, Vitagraph	21753

Saturday.

D	2-24	Is Marriage Sacred? 11th—The Extravagant Bride (Marguerite Clayton) .....2, Essanay	21754–55
D	2-24	A Brother's Sacrifice .....1, Selig	21756

V. L. S. E. Program

1-15	The Hon. Mr. Oxenham (Fourth Episode of the Secret Kingdom)	5,000
1-22	Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland).....	5,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Trial Balance (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Blind Justice (Benj. Christie).....	5,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
2-26	Masks and Mishaps (Hughie Mack).....	1,000
2-26	Captain Jinks' Explosive Temper (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
2-26	A Goat Without Horns (Tenth Episode of The Secret Kingdom)	5,000
2-26	Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams).....	5,000

Mutual Program

Monday.

D	2-19	Shorty Promotes His Love Affair (Shorty Hamilton)..
		.....2, Monogram	05333–34

Tuesday.

T	2-30	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05335

Wednesday.

T	2-21	Mutual Weekly, No. 112.....1, Mutual	05336
	2-21	See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont	05337

Thursday.

C	2-22	Jerry's Brilliant Scheme (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05338

Friday.

C	2-23	Calamity Ann's New Job (Louise Lester)..1, American	05339

Saturday.

D	2-24	Mouth-Organ Jack (J. Warren Kerrigan)..1, American	05340

Sunday.

C	2-25	The Butcher's Nightmare (Ben Turpin).....2, Vogue	05341–42
T	2-25	Reel Life .....1, Gaumont	05343
D	2-26	Shorty Hooks a Loan Shark (Shorty Hamilton, No. 7) .....2, Monogram	05344–45

Tuesday.

T	2-27	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05346

Wednesday.

T	2-28	Mutual Weekly, No. 113.....1, Mutual	05347
T	2-28	See America First .....1, Gaumont	05348

Thursday.

C	3-1	Jerry's Romance (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05349

Friday.

C	3-2	Calamity Ann's Protege (Louise Lester)...1, American	05350

Saturday.

C	2-3	Cupid and a Brick (J. Warren Kerrigan)..1, American	05351

Universal Program

Monday.

C	2-19	Down Went the Key (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor	02182
D	2-19	The Purple Mask (Grace Cunard).....2, Universal	02199

Tuesday.

D	2-20	The Great Torpedo Secret (Herbert Rawlinson).....
		.....3, Gold Seal	02183
C	2-20	The Fireman's Bride (Mat Moore).....1, Victor	02184

Wednesday.

	2-21	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	2-21	After the Balled Up Ball (Phil Dunham).....1, L-Ko	02185
T	2-21	Animated Weekly, No. 60.....1, Universal	02186
D	2-21	Sin Unatoned (Margarita Fischer).....1, Laemmle	02187

Thursday.

D	2-22	The Heart of Mary Ann (Ruth Stonehouse)..1, Victor	02188
D	2-22	The Keeper of the Gate (Douglas Gerard).....1, Rex	02189
	2-22	No Release This Week.....Powers
D	2-22	The Man Who Saved the Day.....2, Big U	02190

Friday.

D	2-23	The Folly of Fanchette (Mae Bush).....2, Imp	02191
	2-23	No Release This Week .....Rex
C	2-23	A Bare Living (Eileen Sedgwick).....1, Victor	02192
C	2-23	The Heroes of the Plains.....1, Big U	02193

Saturday.

D	2-24	The Comeback (Chas. Van Loan Story).....2, Bison	02194
	2-24	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	2-24	Rosie's Rancho (Gale Henry).....1, Joker	02195

Sunday.

2-25 No Release This Week....Rex
D 2-25 A Dangerous Double (Sydell Dowling and Sidney Bracey) ....2, Imp 02196
C 2-25 A Day in the Life of a Dog....s
2-25 Buried Treasures of Ceylon....s 02197
D 2-25 Lost in the Streets of Paris (King Baggott)....Rex 02198

Monday.

C 2-26 A Million in Sight (Eddie Lyons)....1, Nestor 02201

Tuesday.

D 2-27 Mary from America (Ruth Clifford)....3, Gold Seal 02202
D 2-27 A Novel Romance (Flora Parker De Haven)..1, Victor 02203

Wednesday.

2-28 No Release This Week....Laemmle
C 2-28 Spike's Bizzy Bike (Dan Russell)....2, L-Ko 02204
2-28 Animated Weekly, No. 61....1, Universal 02205

Thursday.

C 3-1 They Were Four (Neal Hart)....1, Victor 02206
D 3-1 The Rented Man (Claire McDowell)....2, Rex 02207
3-1 No Release This Week....Powers
D 3-1 An Hour of Terror (Matt Moon)....1, Imp 02208

Friday.

D 3-2 Evil Hands (Edith Roberts)....1, Imp 02209
T 3-2 Universal Screen Magazine (Issue No. 8).... 02210
3-2 No Release This Week....Nestor
D 3-2 A Battle of Wits (Harold Lockwood)....1, Big U 02211

Saturday.

D 2-3 The Tornado (Jack Ford)....1, Bison 02212
3-3 No Release This Week....Laemmle
C 3-3 Passing the Grip (Gale Henry)....1, Joker 02213
D 3-3 Undoing Evil (King Baggott)....1, Laemmle 02214

Sunday.

3-4 No Release This Week....Rex
D 3-4 Tangled Threads (Larimar Johnston)....2, Imp 02215
C 3-4 Mr. Fuller Pep....s, Powers 02216
3-4 The Land of Buddha....s, Powers
D 3-4 Buried Alive (Wallace Reid)....1, Big U 02217
D 3-4 The Purple Mask (Episode No. 10, The House of Mystery) (SPECIAL) ....2, Universal 02218

Miscellaneous Features

Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal....Monmouth Film Corp. 32,000
Robinson Crusoe....Universal
The People vs. (John Doe)....
Are Passions Inherited?....Warner Bros. 7,000

Art Dramas

1-11 Infidelity (Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong)..Erbograph
1-18 God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon)....Apollo
1-25 Her Good Name (Jean Sothern) ....Van Dyke
2-1 Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana)....Apollo
2-8 The Accomplice (Dorothy Bernard)....Wm. L. Sherrill 5,000
2-15 The Adventurer (Marion Swayne).... 5,000
2-22 The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson)....Erbograph 5,000
3-1 Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon).... 5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

2-12 The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Norwell).Bluebird 5,000
2-19 The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum).Bluebird 5,000
2-5 The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford)....Bluebird 5,000
2-12 The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Norwell, Betty Schade) ....Bluebird 5,000
2-19 The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum).... 5,000
2-26 The Gift Girl (Louise Lovely)....Bluebird 5,000

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of

2-12 The Scarlet Letter (Stuart Holmes) (SPECIAL).... 5,000
2-12 North of 53 (Dustin Farnum).... 5,000
2-19 Title Not Announced (June Caprice).... 5,000
2-19 The Tiger Woman (Theda Bara).... 5,000
2-26 Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson).... 5,000
2-26 Melting Millions.... 5,000
1-29 There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann).... 1,000
1-29 The Siren (Valeska Suratt).... 5,000
1-29 The Bitter Truth (Gladys Brockwell).... 5,000
2-5 The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt).... 5,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of

1-15 Little Shoes (Henry Walthall and Mary Charleson).Essanay 5,000
1-22 Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed)....Selig 5,000
1-29 The Adventures of Buffalo Bill.... 5,000
2-5 Skinner's Dress Suit (Bryant Washburn)....Essanay 5,000
2-12 The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton and George Fawcett) ....Selig 5,000
2-19 The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore)....Edison 5,000
2-26 Max Comes Across (Max Linder) ....Essanay 2,000

McClure Pictures

2-12 Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) ....McClure 5,000
2-19 Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) ....McClure 5,000
2-26 Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) 5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of

2-5 Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew)....Metro 5,000
2-5 The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore)....Columbia 5,000
2-12 Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz)....Metro-Rolma 5,000
2-12 One of Many (Frances Nelson)....Arthur James 5,000
2-19 The Promise (Harold Lockwood)....York Film 5,000
2-19 Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)....Metro 5,000
2-26 Reliable Henry (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)....Metro 5,000
2-26 The Secret of Eve (Mme. Petrova)....Popular 5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of

1-29 Where Love Is (Ann Murdock)....5, Mutual
2-5 Pardners (Charlotte Walker)....5, Mutual
2-12 Damaged Goods (New Edition) (Richard Bennett)....American 7,000
2-19 The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter)....5, American
2-26 The Greater Woman (Marjorie Rambeau)..5, Powell-Mutual

Mutual Serials

2-19 "Misjudged" (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 19) (Helen Greene, Earl Metcalfe) ....Niagara 2,000
2-26 Taking Chances (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 10) (Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe)....Niagara 2,000
2-25 Stage Struck (Dorothy Gish)....Fine Arts 5,000
2-25 The Last of the Ingrams (Wm. Desmond)....Ince 5,000

Paramount Features

Released Week of

2-12 Beautiful Banff (Burton Holmes).... 1,000
2-12 The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen)....Lasky 5,000
2-15 The American Consul (Theo. Roberts)....Lasky 5,000
2-19 With the Stony Indians (Burton Holmes).... 1,000
2-19 Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward)....Lasky 5,000
2-22 On Record (Mae Murray) ....Lasky 5,000
2-26 Some Doctor ....Klever Comedy 1,000
2-26 Exquisite Lake Louise.... Burton Holmes 1,000
2-26 The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark)....Famous Players 5,000
3-1 Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet)....Lasky 5,000

Pathe

Released Week of

2-25 Crime and Punishment (Derwent Hall Caine)....Arrow 5,000
2-25 Pearl of the Army, No. 13 (Pearl White)....Astra 2,000
2-25 Patria, No. 17 (Mrs. Vernon Castle)....International 2,000
2-25 Luke Wins Ye Ladye Faire (Harold Lloyde)....Rolin 1,000
2-25 Florence Rose Fashions, No. 20....Rose S
2-25 Bursting Buds ....Pathe S
2-28 Hearst-Pathe News, No. 18....Pathe 1,000
3-3 Hearst-Pathe News, No. 19....Pathe 1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of

2-12 The Terror (Jack Mulhall) 5,000
2-19 The War of the Tongs.... 5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of

1-28 Chicken Casey (Dalton).... ....Kay-Bee 5,000
2-4 Jim Bludso (Lucas)....Fine Arts 5,000
2-4 The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan)....Kay-Bee 5,000
2-14 The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge).... Fine Arts 5,000
2-14 The Gun Fighter (Wm. Hart)....Kay-Bee 5,000
2-18 The Princess of the Dark (Enid Bennett)....Ince 5,000
2-18 The Bad Boy (Robert Harron)....Fine Arts 5,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of

12-20B Lost in the Shuffle....1, Hippo 1146B
12-21 The Voice in the Night....2, Utah 1147A
12-21 Blowing Up Broadway....1, Jockey 1147B
12-22 The White Man's Squaw....2, Hiawatha 1148A
12-22 Algernon's Affinity....1, Gaiety 1148B
12-23 Shackles of Conscience....2, Supreme 1149A
12-24 Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont.... 1, Judy 1150A
12-24 The Prodigal Son....2, Buffalo 1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of

12-1 Land Just Over Yonder....6
12-15 Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
1-15 Glory 7

World Features

Released Week of

1-29 Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler).... 5,000
2-5 The Hungry Heart (Alice Brady)....World 5,000
2-12 The Red Woman (Gail Kane)....World 5,000
2-19 A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell)....World 5,000
2-26 A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick)....World 5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

A Four-Cent Courtship—Black Cat Feature—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-eight Minutes). —Reviewed in this issue.

A Flyer in Flapjacks—Kalem—(Two Reels).—Featuring Ham and Bud. Ham and Bud are decorating a park bench, under the eagle eye of a none too friendly copper, who threatens them with the village cooler if they don't immediately get to work. Work is not in their line and the park bench soon claims them again. Ham provides Bud with a policeman's whistle and orders him to keep one eye open for their common enemy while he carries on a flirtation with Flossie Flapper. They are soon in flight again, with the vigilant cop behind them, and as they pass a pancake emporium a brilliant idea hits Ham. They seize the surprised dispenser of the golden brown cakes and into his own flour barrel they dump him, covering it with a table. Soon they have donned aprons and caps and begin to execute orders for flapjacks. What goes up comes down is no more definite a proposition than what happens to Ham and Bud in their newly found roles of syrup slingers.

The Screened Vault—Grant, Police Reporter Series—Kalem.—George Larkin featured. Grant, having some money to deposit, goes into a bank, and while making out the slip sees a piece of plaster fall on the desk from the ceiling above. As he crosses the street and looks up at one of the windows over the bank he sees a woman's silhouette as she pulls down the shade. He re-crosses the street and proceeds to the second floor. He knocks just as the shadow of a woman's head flashes on the ground glass of the door. On his way to the office he meets Maddox, a shrewd detective, to whom he confides his suspicions. Maddox laughs at his idea that the bank is being robbed in broad daylight and tells him that only one man, Cris Monk, would have the nerve to attempt it, and he is lying low. Grant reads up on this crook and learns that he has a daughter, Inez, who has secured her father's parole. At six that evening Grant returns to the bank where he finds a hole cut in the floor, just as he had thought. He is caught by the crooks and bound. Monk descends to the bank through the hole, bearing a painted screen to place in front of the vault and deceives the policeman passing. The brave young reporter struggles with his bounds while Inez keeps watch in the hall and reaching the telephone jiggles out a Morse code to Central with the receiver. Maddox and the reserves come to the rescue, surround the hank, and after Grant has jumped from a high scaffold to the ground to prevent the escape of Monk, the crooks are arrested.

The Battle of the Somme—The War series—Official Government Pictures, Inc.—Pictures of the military camp, showing trenches, dugouts, guns and aeroplanes. Actual pictures of this enormous battle, and the terrible results.

The Redemption of Red Mullin—Selig—When Red Mullin has completed a penitentiary sentence he returns to his home and there is a celebration among the folks of the underworld. The merrymaking grows so noisey that Mrs. Fleming appears and asks them to be quiet, stating that her baby is near death in the flat below. They throw her out and she summons the police. In a free for all fight Red escapes. Betty his sweetheart throws the police off Red's track and he hides in Mrs. Fleming's house. The baby awakens and cries so pitifully for toys that Red comes out of his hiding place, deeply moved, and goes out to find some. He finds the toy shop closed, so he breaks in, takes what he wants, and leaves a bill to pay for them. He takes a taxi to drive to the child's home with the toys and the driver thinks he has robbed the store. Betty goes to the drug store for some medicine for Mrs. Fleming's baby and hears the driver phoning for the police. Red returns to the flat with the toys and when he hears the police coming he attempts to escape but is caught. After investigation he is released and he rejoins his sweetheart.

For Reward of Service — Selig — Featuring George Fawcett. Reviewed in this issue.

The Great Treasure—Selig—Featuring Gasson Ferguson, with Fred Eckert, Maybelle Spaulding, F. Hamilton and M. von Betz. Two river rats, Red and Skinny, incur the gratitude of Jack Curtis by buying food for his dying mother. Henry Rowland, facing ruin through a slump in the market borrows money on some stock certificates which have been entrusted to him by the court. Stevens, from whom he borrows, is an old rival in love, and therefore hates him. When Stevens informs the court that Rowland has realized on the stock, the court orders Rowland to produce the certificates. He determines to have Jack Curtis, who lives in one of his tenement houses, rob the safe and does so. Jack has chanced in a settlement mission where he sees, Dorothy, Rowland's daughter. He finally presents himself at Rowland's office and explains his desire to go straight. He is given the opportunity and makes good. In two years he wins the love of Dorothy and when Rowland discovers the fact he denounces the man as a thief. Later Dorothy realizes through the instrumentality of Red, one of the river rats, that Jack Curtis has been sheilding her father at the sacrifice of his own happiness, and the lovers are reunited.

A Brother's Sacrifice—Selig.—Mrs. Madden, mother of Tom and John, on her deathbed exacts a pledge from John that he will always care for his younger brother. Tom is a ne'er-do-well, and later resumes his unruly habits, and through his weakness for liquor, loses his position as brakeman on the railroad. His sweetheart, Bessie Bowman, also breaks her engagement with him. John has never forgotten the promise he made his mother, and he follows the unruly Tom through his many temptations, finally winning for him another position with the railroad. John is also a railroad man. They go out on the same train together. The train breaks in two. Someone must leap from one section to another in order to apply the brakes to stop the freight train before a section crashes into an oncoming passenger train. John, remembering his promise to care for his brother, makes the leap at the risk of his life, applies the brakes and saves hundreds of lives. But, through his daring, John becomes an invalid for life. His act has brought a sense of responsibility to Tom, who vows never to take another drink. He finally marries Bessie Bowman, and together they make a happy home for the faithful John.

Seeing Double—Vim Comedy.—Dud, a henpecked husband, while doing the weekly ironing burns his hand and decides to seek a more amusing occupation. He leaves by a window and is met by his friend Bert, who has jilted his wife because of her bullets which she serves as biscuits. Bert has been sojourning by a cigar stand and has succeeded in stealing a cigar cutter. The two ex-husbands enter a thirst parlor followed by a cop. The cigar cutter now serves as a weapon of defense and after Bert has succeeded in ejecting the proprietor and the cop, the two ex-husbands take over the thirst parlor and to their delight become highly hilarious, proceeding to invite all who enter to join them on their jamboree. While in hiding the two heroes see double and they decide to visit their wives at Bert's home, where they receive a peppery reception and are forced to retreat to the dog house where, wrapped up in each other's arms, they depart for the land of dreams.

Harry's Pig—Vim Comedy.—Harry LaPearl, a rural favorite, visits the town grocery store to make his weekly purchases, but as he is about to leave he is attracted by a pretty girl, and when endeavoring to make a hurried exit from the store upsets things in general, including the flour barrel, fruit stand, etc. Harry's wife, however, is closely upon his heels and to make his getaway he steals a large pig and rides him through the town closely followed by his wife, the town marshal and numerous others attracted by the amusing sight of Harry riding a pig. Many amusing incidents ensue before Harry's pig finally finds his way back to his pen where Harry is captured by his wife, and he then resolves not to look from the straight and narrow path in the future.

The Meeting — (Two Reels) — Vitagraph. — Sonny Boy and his mother move into Seaport, fishing village and pleasure resort. He has a fight with the town bully, winning thereby the admiration of Sue, the constable's daughter. He meets Capt. Barnacle, old sea-captain, who is regarded as queer by the natives. The two become good friends, and the bully attempts revenge by poisoning the Captain's billy goat. He is caught in the act, and while punishing him, the bully's father, a real estate agent, with a mob at his heels, arrives on the scene. He attempts to evict the old Captain from his home. Mrs. Brown, Sonny's mother, learns that her son is in the house of the "queer 'un" and arrives just in time to save Capt. Barnacle. She reveals the fact that she is the owner of the land on which the old boat house stands, and secures the old man in his home, rent free, and she, Sonny, Capt. Barnacle, Sue and the constable are very happy.

The Gang—(Dangers of Doris Series)—Vitagraph.—Doris is much puzzled at the mystery surrounding a strange man who drops a bundle into an ash can near her home each day. A thrilling rescue gains her the acquaintance of the man, and later on she determines to investigate. The contents of the package, steel shavings, enables her to learn the plot of the bank robbers' gang. She is captured by them, put on a train, but escapes miraculously. Then while she is battling with the bandits, her sweetheart, Bob, in his racer, speeds to her rescue, and everything comes out all right.

Selig-Tribune No. 14.—February 15.—New Orleans, La.—Naval militia guns are shipped to the Norfolk Navy yard. Columbus, N. M.—General Pershing leads his troopers out of Mexico. French-Hindo-China.—The natives from Cambodia strive in their annual boat races. Oakland, Cal.—Society women raise money to feed thousands of wild ducks. Phoenix, Ariz.—Roosevelt dam undergoes its annual housecleaning. Phoenix, Ariz. —Automobile tires manufactured from cotton fibre. Phoenix, Ariz.—The Superior Court seats Thomas Campbell as Governor of Arizona. New York, N. Y.—Members of the Girl's National Honor Guard serve coffee and rolls to the boys of the naval militia. Palm Beach, Fla.—The Young Women's Research Society discovers that cocoa comes from palm trees. Los Angeles, Cal. —News Boys inaugurate the "hand-across the U.-S.-A." movement by shipping oranges to the "newsies" of New York.

Selig-Tribune No. 15.—February 19.—New York, N. Y.—Madame Helen Detrieu, who holds the cross of the Legion of Honor, arrives aboard the Espagne and offers her services as an aviatrix to the United States Government. Washington, D. C.—Henry P. Fletcher leaves for Mexico City as an Ambasador. Goshen, N. Y.—Fred Fulton is in training in the snows of Orange County. French, Indo-China.—Native troops leave for duty in France to relieve the French soldiers guarding lines of communication. New York, N. Y.—The U. S. destroyer Henley, No. 39, guards New York harbor. Chicago, Ill.—The "gasoline horse" attracts great attention at the U. S. recruiting offices. Palm Beach, Fla.—Poodle dogs and alligators have had their day. Washington, D. C.—Count von Bernstorff and his wife leave this city on their return journey to Berlin.

Mutual Pictures

Shorty Hooks a Loan Shark—Monogram—(Two Reels) — Featuring Shorty Hamilton. Shorty, after hearing from Anita that she still loves him, doubts her word and starts out on a big time. He meets Ralph Simms, the son of the ranch owner, and finds that he has lost all of his money. Anita is notified that a notorious loan shark is operating near the Arrowhead ranch and sets out to capture him. Jebez Sawyer, who loans the boys money gets hold of some bonds through Ralph and he writes and tells Ruby, Ralph's wife, that if she will come to his office he will give her some information regarding them. Ruby goes to the office and Sawyer embraces her. Shorty comes upon the scene just in time. Later Anita arrives and Sawyer is recognized as the loan shark and is arrested.

Reel Life—Gaumont—(One Reel)—February 25.—A magazine reel, picturing "Dainty Perfumes," "Teaching Children to Swim," "Logging in Louisiana" and "Making Bottles at Home."

The Butcher's Nightmare—(Two Reels)—Vogue Comedy—February 25.—Featuring Ben Turpin. Ben, the butcher, is very much in love with a girl who does not reciprocate his affections. He falls asleep and has a wonderful dream in which he threatens to foreclose the mortgage on the home of the girl he loves. He also makes a regular crook of the girl's brother by having his safe robbed and the money placed in the brother's pocket. Ben is aroused from his dream by his partner who is beating him over the head with a slab of meat.

Shorty Almost—But Not Quite—Gets Married—Monogram—(Two Reels)—February 26.—Featuring Shorty Hamilton. Shorty, in trying to be of service to Anita Keller in her assignment of rounding up a gang of counterfeiters, becomes pretty badly involved himself. A nice, benign Parson asks him to change a ten dollar bill and Shorty falls for the old trick. Later he leads a raid on the counterfeiters' den, and succeeds in arresting the gangsters, after a stiff fight. During his convalescence he almost persuades Anita to marry him, but she is a bit dubious about mixing love and work. One of the counterfeiters escapes and tries to get even with Shorty by charging that he is passing bad money. Shorty is arrested and it looks pretty bad for him until Anita finally convinces the sheriff that he is holding the wrong man. Anita, realizing all that

New Essanays. From the left, "The Extravagant Bride," "Max Comes Across," the first Max Linder comedy, and "A Four-Cent Courtship."

Shorty has endured in his solicitude for her, consents to marry him, but when the day arrives Shorty has forgotten to get the license so there can be no wedding, much to the amusement of Anita and the embarrasement of Shorty.

Mutual Tours Around the World—Gaumont—(One Reel)—February 27.—Showing scenes of Vienna, Austria; the Gota Elf River, Sweden, and Toledo, Spain.

See America First—Gaumont—(One Reel)—February 28.—Picturing scenes on the battlefield of Chickamaugua, Ga., and Chatanooga, Tenn. On the same reel with Kartoon Komics.

Taking Chances—Perils of Our Girl Reporters series—(Two Reels)—March 1.—Featuring Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe. Virginia Randolph, a southern girl, comes to New York and gets work on one of the big newspapers. Her first assignment is to expose the harpies who prey on young girls at the railway stations. She is seen walking off with a notorious young fellow, by a young southerner, who some two years before had asked her to marry him. He cannot tell what to make of it and so follows the couple to a house, which he knew to be a den of thieves. He enters the house, pretending to be one of the gang and after hearing Virginia's story he aids her to land all of the gang behind the bars.

Cupid and a Brick—American—(One Reel)—March 1.—Featuring J. Warren Kerrigan and Jack Richardson. Jim Reynolds works in the village brickyard. Jim loves Mabel Whitaker, but she gives her affections to Bob Warren. In a fight in the brickyard, Bob hits Jim over the head with a brick and lays him out. During his convalescence Jim is attended by Mabel every day. Later, when he was well Jim picks up another brick and asks Bob to hit him again that maybe Mabel will marry him if he does.

Jerry's Romance—Cub Comedy—(One Reel)—March 1.—Featuring George Ovey. Jerry loves Lady Isabelle but she loves Archy, and so announces her engagement to him. Jerry discovers that he has been left a heritage and so goes out and buys a new outfit. He goes to Lady Isabelle's wedding and there misbehaves. Later Archy sees his wife give her wayward brother money and being suspicious sets Jerry on their trail. Archy leaves his wife and returns one night to find things in a very odd way. After everything is explained he forgives Isabelle and all ends happily.

Calamity Anne's Protege—American—(One Reel)—March 2.—Featuring Louise Lester and J. Warren Kerrigan. Sad-Eyed O'Brien commits suicide and leaves his daughter to the care of Calamity Anne. The girl is a great beauty and all of the cowboys are enamored of her. Calamity however means that she shall marry a lord or "dook" and so keeps the boys away. Handsome John Wengle is a suitor for the girl's hand but to no avail. One day a smartly dressed chap from the city arrives and immediately Calamity decides he is the one for her ward. The girl and the city chap elope and all was happiness in Calamity's hut while all was sorrow in the corral.

Reel Life—Gaumont—March 4.—Magazine reel, picturing the "The Strange Industry in the Arabs; Conch-Artistry; Will this Cure Cancer? Criminal Cuteness and Making a Rubber Shoe."

A Rummy Romance—Vogue—(Two Reels)—March 4.—Featuring Paddy McQuire. Paddy, a simple country boy, is in love with Lillian, a moonshiner's daughter. He manages to get in bad with both moonshiners and revenue officers, and between the two his life is one long round of thrilling and laughable experiences. Lillian is abused by her father and Paddy longs to help her and take her away from her unhappy existence. He is caught by the revenue officer and is forced to betray the moonshiners. After much excitement, Paddy and Lillian manage to escape both the revenue men and the moonshiners and elope.

Universal Program

The House of Mystery—Episode 10 of "The Purple Mask"—February 26.—With Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Kelly and his men are released from "The House of Mystery" by Pat. After many thrilling incidents Pat is successful in looting two safes containing large sums of money. This money had been collected for a purpose much against the public welfare. Pat intends to distribute the money among the people. As the episode ends, Kelly halts Pat in her automobile flight and covers her with his revolver. He believes Pat has all the money with her and that he holds her at his mercy.

A Million in Sight—Nestor—February 26.—With Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts. Eddie and his wife are happily married. The maid and the iceman have eyes for no one but each other. The janitor thinks the world all wrong, and sneers at this conjugal bliss. Trouble begins when mother arrives with her pets. The iceman tells the janitor that mother will settle one million dollars on the man who marries her within a month. Mother and the janitor are married. Mother says she can live with her children always now. Eddie and his wife move into a different apartment house and leave mother boss of theirs.

Mary From America—(Three Reels)—Gold Seal—February 27.—With Ruth Clifford and Douglas Gerrard. John Jasper left his entire fortune in charge of Lady Jessica, to be disposed of as she saw fit. The heirs gather at Shipley Manor to await her coming. At the lodge of the Shipley Manor live Harold Jenkins, a little cripple boy, and his grandfather. The child it awakened from his day dreams by Viscount Yorke, who throws him a coin. Mary comes to the Manor and is treated with contempt by the others. Mary and Yorke become friends and spend much of their time with Harold. Finally Mary appeals to the Jasper heirs for contributions to pay for an operation for the boy. It is coldly ignored by all except Yorke, who eagerly consents to pay all the expenses. Lady Jessica arrives and greets Mary affectionately, to the surprise of all. She tells them that Mary was sent to test them and has made a decision which is also hers. As Mary is Lady Jessica's heiress, she has no need of the Jasper millions. The lawyer reads that the landed estates are to be divided among the people who have labored on them so long without reward. A hospital is to be built for cripple children; one-fourth to be settled on Harold Jenkins and the remainder to be equally divided among the heirs. The heirs are horrified. Mary and Yorke slip quietly away during the excitement to Harold. Later they find happiness in each other.

A Novel Romance—Victor—February 27.—Rosealice, employed in the law office of Thomas Harden, is a great reader. Going back and forth on the same car is Robert Davanel, a professor of mathematics. He is greatly surprised to find a lady's handkerchief in the new novel he has been reading. Rosealice is as much surprised to find a note saying that if ever the writer could find a person like the Rose depicted in the story, he certainly would fall in love with her. They both begin weaving a romance about each other. Robert receives word from Harding that the mining stock he believed to be worthless has some value. He calls at the office and thus meets the girl he has so long been admiring.

Spike's Bizzy Bike—(Two Reels)—L-Ko—February 28.—With Dan Russell, Marjorie Ray and Vim Moore. Dan is a bicycle rider of renown, and enters his name for the six-day race. His rival is Jess Cuckoo. They are both in love with the same girl. Dan goes in training for the great event. Jess, in the meantime, does most of his training in bed. They both go to see their sweetheart and many funny incidents occur. The day of the great race arrives. Dan has a patent arrangement, concealed by his dressing gown, attached to his bike. Jess discovers this and when Dan is away fills the tank with nitro-glycerine. Dan rides around madly. The crowd flees in terror from the inevitable explosion. With the last explosion Dan ends under a pile of debris.

An Hour of Terror—Imp—March 1.—With Matt Moore and Jane Gail. Jane, as a child, had been frightened by fire and had lost her speech. Matt loves her and hopes that she will regain it. Her one amusement is the phonograph. One day thieves enter her home, but she is unable to call for help. Taking the receiver off the hook she places the phonograph near it and plays "Listen to This Cry of Help." The operator understands the message and sends the police. Matt appears just as they are about to break in. He fights them both. The excitement restores to Jane the power of speech. The police arrive and the thieves are taken prisoners.

The Rented Man—(Two Reels)—Rex—March 1.—With Francis Marion and M. K. Wilson. The little boy was very lonely. His mother was always resting her nerves and he did not remember his father. One night he was locked out of the house and fell asleep on the steps. A man who had rented a room of the housekeeper, found him there and took him in the house. A plan came to the boy. He proposed to rent the man as a father for so much every week, the man to agree to "bring things home every night." The rented man and the little boy grew nearer to each other as the play went on. Shortly after this the boy dreamed that his mother had come home and that the rented man was his father. He woke up to hear voices in the next room. His dream came true. Both his parents promised to stay at home and love him. Released with this is:

Mr. Fuller Pep—An Old Bird Pays Him a Visit—The stork with his basket goes out in search of Mr. Fuller Pep's house. He has many adventures on the way. He gets in the home of a bachelor and is kicked out. At the old maid's house he meets the same fate. Finally he arrives at Mr. Fuller Pep's residence and offers him the basket. Fuller takes out a baby, but when the stork tries to get him to take two, he protests.

They Were Four—Victor—March 1.—A group of cowboys arrive with a load of steers. When Pete, the owner of the steers, pays them, Neal takes it all, explaining that he has been elected guardian. They get a Ford and rush to a hotel. Meanwhile two crooks have held up the people in the lobby of the hotel. The cowboys arrive, but the people think it is more thieves. The police are called and the boys are glad to fight, although they are ignorant of the cause. After quite a chase and an exciting time for the boys, the crooks are caught. Neal says, "Me and the boys were just looking for excitement and we reckon we got it."

A Battle of Wits—(Two Reels)—Big U—March 2.—With Harold Lockwood. Paula loves Wallace, who has been taken as a spy by the Mexicans. Just before Paula's father dies he gives her a map, showing where his fortune is buried. Valanza, who is in love with the girl, tries to force his attentions upon her. During a struggle he obtains half of the map. Wallace is able, with the help of Paula, to make his escape. He notifies the American General and with a party of soldiers set out to capture the lawbreaking Mexicans. The Americans make a clean sweep and Wallace gets the other half of Paula's paper from Valanza.

Evil Hands—Imp—March 2.—With Edward Hearn and Edith Roberts. Mary arrives in the city, but has lost her brother's address. She falls into the hands of Jake Lewis, who takes her to a Chinese joint. Red Leary returns to the joint, after serving a sentence in jail. He is surprised at the glimpse he has of the girl. He quietly phones the police, but is overheard by Sol. There is a fight in which Red knocks down Sol. Red then rescues Mary from Jake and sends her to her home in the country. He returns to the den and gives himself up to the police.

Passing the Grip—Joker—March 2.—With William Franey and Gale Henry. Bill and Gale arrive at the hotel with a dog and a grip. Seeing a sign which reads "No Dogs Allowed," he puts the pup in the grip. The hotel people have been warned to be on the lookout for an anarchist. When Bill acts so queerly about his grip, the clerk demands that he open it. Bill refuses. The anarchist arrives and his grip gets changed with Bill's. Heinie and Lillian appear and Bill's grip is again changed for Lillian's. The police open Bill's grip and find lady's lingerie. Soon every one is looking for his grip and keeps getting the wrong one. At last the dog gets the bomb in his mouth, and they all chase him through the hotel. The bomb finally explodes and blows up the anarchist with it.

Universal Screen Magazine—Issue No. 8—March 2.—The greatest of radio stations at Arlinton, Va., is shown first in this issue. These pictures are particularly interesting because the public is not admitted to the plant. A domestic science lesson, by one of the most expert cooks in America, Mrs. A. Louise Andrea, winner of the Gold Medal at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, follows. She shows how to make pie without the usual soft dough bottom. Next is shown a new invention. This is the "last word" in safety deposit vaults of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. The issue closes with Animated Sculpture by Willie Hopkins.

The Tornado—(Two Reels)—Biso.—March 3.—With Jack Ford and Elise Thornton. Jack Dayton so much preferred the weapons of nature, that he earned the title of "The No Gun Man." He was trying to get enough money to buy a home for his mother in Ireland. Lesparre, with his Coyotte Gang, robbed the bank at Rock River. Jack arrives in town and hears that the Mayor has offered $5,000 reward to the man who will get the stolen property. In the meantime, Bess, the mayor's daughter has been captured by the gang. Jack determines to rescue the girl and secure the stolen money. He joins the thieves and is successful in freeing the girl. The thieves suspect Jack and imprison him in a room where he finds the money in the bed. He manages to escape, but is pursued by the gang. After a hard struggle, Jack is victorious and returns to the town. He restores the money to the mayor and takes girl in exchange.

Undoing Evil — Laemmle — March 3. — With King Baggot. A man who has been a shepherd determines to become a wanderer. He stops at a village. There he sees a woman and her lover, but finds out that the woman has a husband. He saves the husband from committing suicide on account of his wife's behavior. The lover promises not to see the woman any more and leaves the town. The shepherd succeeds in reuniting the husband and wife.

Buried Alive—Big U—March 4.—With Dorothy Davenport and Wallace Reid. Dorothy and her father have staked all their hopes on their mine. Reid, an expert, comes to appraise it. Pedro, a Mexican, has designs on the girl. Reid finds the Mexican holding Dorothy in his arms. He drives away the fellow, who plans revenge. The expert is forced to pronounce the mine worthless, but promises to make a more thorough investigation the next day. When Reid appears at the mine the following day, Pedro explodes a charge of dynamite he has prepared and Reid is buried alive. Dorothy goes to the town for help and her father goes to the rescue.

Tangled Threads—(Two Reels)—Imp—March 4.—With Jessie Beaton and Lorimer Johnson. A young girl is left an orphan by the death of her mother. Feeling sorry for her, a young author takes her to an artist friend of his. The elderly man offers her a home. One day the girl is knocked down by an auto and seriously injured. The artist and the author do not know what to do as they can not afford the services of a specialist. The author meets a crook, who offers him a large sum of money if he will help pull a deal. The young man, in desperation, accepts. The two set out. In the midst of their work they are interrupted by the police. They make their escape, but the crook is finally taken into custody. On reaching home the author finds that his play has been accepted. He rushes to the home of the artist and tells them the great news. The girl is cured by an operation and marries the author.

The Land of Buddha—(Split Reel)—Powers—March 4.—The Land of Buddha was visited by Doctor Dorsey, who spent much time and money in obtaining these views. It shows the Dagoba Ruanweli, the largest brick building in the world, which is surrounded by white marble colonades There are thousands of niches in the pillars and in each one is a statue of Buddha, or of an ancient king. The platform on which this tomb rests is supported by four hundred sculptured elephants, but are hardly recognizable now. The work is being restored, under the direction of the chief priest, whose house is shown. In 2500 years there has been few changes in the local methods of building and working. On the same reel is:

The Funicular Railway Up the Niesen—The funicular up the Niesen, the beautifully shaped mountain on the border of the Lake of Thun, in the Bernese Oberland in Switzerland, is the subject of this educational. We mount with the car, obtaining a wonderful view of the snowy Alps as we ascend. We see the chain of the Eiger, Moench and the Jungfrau, one of the most famous groups in the world, which are translated Devil, Monk and the Young Girl. Arrived at the summit, we see the sunrise, with the peaks like islands in a sea of clouds.

Feature Programs

Blue Bird

The Boy Girl—Bluebird—(Five Parts)—February 26.—Featuring Violet Mersereau. "Jack" Channing is the "Son" of her father, a regular sportsman. When daddy dies she is left to the care of two spinster, aunts, the kind you read about. One shock after another decides the ladies to send her to boarding school. She is equally out of place there and finally escapes. To earn her living she secures a position with a firm, the president of which turns out to be the father of the man she loves. In a business crisis she saves the firm from ruin by her quick wit. To cover an option which the company holds on some valuable oil lands the girl races West and beats the representatives of a rival firm by a few minutes. For this she is rewarded, and there is a happy ending.

Christie Comedies

Kidding Sister—(One Reel)—Christie Comedy—February 26.—Ethel has trouble with her car and a nice looking young chap helps her out. Of course he is invited to call and accepts the invitation. Ethel fears she will have no chance when he sees her younger sister, prettier than she is. "Until you land him," says mother, "Billie shall be a little child and wear a kiddie's outfit." Billie objects but there is no help for it. Harry admires the "child" and pets her, bringing her candies and toys, to Billie's great discomfort. There is to be a party and Billie wants to go, and while she doesn't get mother's consent she goes anyway. Harry goes too, and falls for her worse than ever, without letting her know that he is wise to the trick. When he calls next day he determines to have some fun, and each one thinks they are kidding the other. Harry's love-making gives him away and he proposes. They drive to the minister's, followed by Ethel and mother, who forbid the marriage. Harry says, "Billie or nobody," and mother consents to the marriage.

Ivan

Two Men and a Woman—(Five Parts)—Ivan.—Featuring James Morrison, Guy Coombs and Rubye De Remer. A society drama which tells of a father's sacrifice to save his worthless son, and the son's subsequent sacrifice for the sake of his noble father. Reviewed in this issue.

K. E. S. E.

The Royal Pauper—Edison—(Five Reels)—February 19.—Features Francine Larrimore in a modern fairy tale. Reviewed in this issue.

Mutual Star Production

The Greater Woman—Powell—(Five Reels)—February 26.—Features Marjorie Rambeau. Reviewed in this issue.

Paramount

The Winning of Sally Temple—(Five Reels)—Lasky-Paramount — February 26. — Featuring Fannie Ward in the role of a vivacious and adventurous actress who impersonates a noted lady to save the latter's inheritance. She has many exciting experiences with the lady's guardian and finally agrees to marry him after he has tried other tactics than brute force. Reviewed in this issue.

Red Feather

The Girl and the Crisis—Red Feather—February 26.—With Dorothy Davenport and Charles Perley. Ellen Wilmot, a young society woman, meets Oliver Barnitz, the Lieutenant-Governor of the state. Ellen's father, president of the Wilmot Reservoir Company, has just completed plans for a proposed reservoir. Some of the citizens are not satisfied with the price the state is willing to pay for their land. David Houston, a peace loving citizen of Old Town, informs Wilmot that the grafters are plotting to blackmail his company and that he can expect violent resistance from Old Town tomorrow morning. A crowd gathers the following day and the police are unable to handle the mob. They advise him to appeal to the state for protection. Oliver with Wilmot and his party go to interview the Governor. Yaukey, the leader of the mob, arrives first and after having heard him, the Governor refuses to do anything immediately for Wilmot. Poole, mad from excitement, shoots the Governor and Oliver becomes Governor. Six months after the murder, Poole awaits execution, while Oliver is besieged from every side to pardon him. Ellen learns that Oliver's mother was also hers. Oliver, worn out with worry over the execution, falls asleep. He has a horrible dream in which his father kills Wilmot. He awakens and phones them to release the prisoner, but Poole dies of heart failure. Ellen tells Oliver she never could have forgiven him if Poole had been executed.

Triangle Program

The Little Brother—(Five Reels)—Triangle-Ince—March 3.—Featuring Enid Bennett. A young chemical experimenter befriends a street urchin whom he accepts as a boy but who in reality is a girl. How the girl goes to college, takes a special course in studies having relation to her benefactor's experiments and comes out, to discover for him the long searched for formula, provides the substance of the story. At first startled by the revelation of his Jerry as a girl, Frank in time takes the revelation so agreeably that he asks her to become his wife. Reviewed in this issue.

Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

Kitty MacKay—(Five Reels)—Vitagraph—February 19.—Featuring Lillian Walker. A Scotch play in which the popular Vitagraph star is kept well in the scenes and which should satisfy because of this fact. The story tells about a broken engagement which is brought about by a father who thinks his son's sweetheart is his own daughter, or in other words, that the children are half sister and half brother. The situation is finally cleared up by the confession of a wily old Scotchman who had made a substitution of babies in the interest of his pocketbook.

MAC DONALD IN FLORIDA

Wallace MacDonald left for Florida a short time ago to play one of the supporting juveniles in a new Marie Doro picture. This will be Miss Doro's first eastern-made Famous Players-Lasky release. Mr. MacDonald is well known to playgoers through his work in American features and as the overseer in the recent Famous Players production, "Manette of the Wilds," featuring Pauline Frederick.

In the recent popularity contest among picture players conducted by the Motion Picture Magazine, William Sherwood, Metro juvenile lead, stood near the peak of the list, outstripping dozens of older and greater stars, thus proving that popular approval does not wait on the convential verdict of greatness. Mary Pickford, naturally, won the contest. Mr. Sherwood has recently appeared in a stage production, "Keeping Up Appearances," presented in New York.

Motography is in receipt of a letter from Eugene Saunders, proprietor of the Palace Theater of Harvard, Illinois, in which he pays his best compliments to the K. E. S. E. exchange for excellent service and attention to his requirements as an exhibitor.

Sifted from the Studios

PACIFIC COAST NOTES

Carmel Myers, who plays opposite Wilfred Lucas in the Triangle Fine Arts production, "A Love Sublime" (temporary title), is the daughter of Rabbi Isador Myers. She is just sixteen years old and considered to be a classic beauty. "A Love Sublime" is adapted from the short story "Orpheus," by Samuel Hopkins Adams, appearing in Collier's Weekly.

Marjorie Rambeau, Mutual-Powell, designed the settings for her first picture, "The Greater Woman."

Helene Rosson, who was one of the American Company's stars, is tired of resting and is moving from her Santa Barbara ranch to her mother's home in Los Angeles. She intends to go to work again in the very near future.

Gail Kane, American-Mutual star, made her first professional appearance with Charles Frohman in "Decorating Clementine."

The wonderful rider in a buckskin nabit appearing in the second of the "Big V" comedies, "Guff and Gunplay," is Josephine West, leading lady playing opposite James Aubrey. She has had considerable experience, both legitimate and screen, in leading ingenue roles in the Chicago Imperial and Brooklyn Corse Payton Stock companies on the stage, and in Selig and Edison Film Companies.

Bessie Love, the little Fine Arts star, has been on the screen exactly one year, and recently celebrated the anniversary of her first scren release. Incidentally she made her debut as an operatic singer, appearing in Florencio Constantino's opera, "One Night in Venice," a mid-winter event of last week at Venice of California.

It was just about eight years ago that Kathlyn Williams, now starring under the Morosco-Pallas brand of the Paramount Company, first tried her hand at motion pictures and she received her schooling under the past-master, David W. Griffith. Associated with her in those early picture days were Henry B. Walthall, Mary Pickford, Arthur Johnson and Billy Quirk. Poor Johnson is dead, but all the others are still very much to the fore.

The wood-working machinery has been installed in the new carpenter shops at the Lasky studio and the old buildings are gradually being deserted. It is the intention of the studio general manager, Milton E. Hoffman, to convert one of the old shops into a dark stage.

A Jamaican who saw George Walsh's excellent work in "The Island of Desire" recently sent him a big pink pearl like those which figured so prominently in the Fox picture. As the gem is too large for a ring, George is having it mounted as a watch charm.

Miss A. B. Hoffman, costume director of the Lasky studio, has created a new spring fashion in feminine apparel to be known as the "Joan." Miss Hoffman designed the costumes worn in "Joan the Woman" and has adapted the gneral design of that period for spring wear by the fair sex.

Jay Belasco, the dark, good-looking young actor who did such good work with the Universal company, will henceforth shine in the Christie comedies where he will play opposite Billie Rhodes.

Cleo Madison has made an eleventh-hour change in her arrangements and will appear in one feature at least with Louis Jacobs, who is at present with the L-Ko Company at Hollywood. Whether under the L-Ko banner or with an entirely separate company is not announced.

The stars who have "doubles" to enact dangerous stunts are many, but so far only one animal actor has had that distinction. In William Duncan's Vitagraph serial, "Heart of Flame," Carol Halloway is snatched from a horse as it goes over the brink of a precipice. She refused to endanger the exquisite white pony allotted her and insisted that another white horse be found to "double."

Bessie Barriscale has written a photoplay, her first. She spent six months perfecting it. The action takes place in a small French town, so we may expect to see Miss Barriscale in sabots one of these fine days.

Alvin Wyckoff, director of photography at the Lasky studio, is so full of new ideas and inventions that his present experimental room is not large enough for his work. Consequently a special edifice will be erected where Mr. Wyckoff can work undisturbed. The wonderful coloring in "Joan the Woman" is the invention of Mr. Wyckoff.

Denison Clift has accepted an offer from Jesse L. Lasky to write feature plays for the company's stars on the Paramount program.

Now that the Fair has been officially closed at San Diego, the Pollard Picture Plays Company have matters pretty much to themselves. Their studio covers quite a large amount of ground and is housed in the buildings built for the Panama village. An admission charge is still made and organ recitals are still given in the beautiful grounds, otherwise the only sounds to be heard are those emanating from the Pollard studios.

Bessie Love received a request from F. Schubert, manager of Brown's Chop House, New York City, for a photograph of this little Fine Arts star. The walls of the Chop House are decorated with photographs of stage celebrities and programs of productions which date back seventy-five years. Miss Love is the only motion picture player to be represented among the galaxy of stars at this Broadway's famous restaurant known by everyone in the profession.

Carol Halloway, now leading lady with the William Duncan Vitagraph Company, was formerly a light opera star with the W. T. Carleton Opera Company and the Lou Morton Opera Company. On the screen she has appeared in many Lubin and Inceville pictures and was featured in the American "Beauty" comedies for one year. She is a daring horsewoman and also an expert swimmer.

Kathlyn Williams, Myrtle Stedman and Vivian Martin are scornfully alluded to by the employes at the Morosco studio as "birds of passage," having flown from Los Angeles to the Lasky studio in Hollywood.

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	70	78
Biograph Company.	5	15
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.	90	105
Lone Star Corporation, pref..	97½	99½
Lone Star Corporation, com..	35	39
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	30	35
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	20	25
North American Film Corporation, com.	23	28
States Film Corporation, com.	24	30
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.).....	60	75
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2	*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company	145	..
Triangle Film Corporation...	2	2½*

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to Motography)

General Film Corporation—Several lots of preferred are offered around 40, but there is little or no trading.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation—Is now arranging for distribution of films of Maxine Elliott, and others which are nearly complete.

Lone Star Corporation—There is a good demand for preferred around 98 to 99, but not much inquiry for common. Company has just sold Japanese rights and expects to close out all unsold foreign rights shortly. Chaplin pictures are popular in most all of the oriental countries.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation—There is very little of this stock now on the market and very little trading. President Zukor is working very actively to secure foreign business and has closed several South American contracts; also closed deal for Japan.

World Film Corporation—Market has dropped to 75 cents per share.

Mary Pickford—In addition to reports that Miss Pickford will retire from the moving picture field, it is reported she will work in the Lasky studio under Cecil DeMille.

Frank Powell Producing Company—Is quoted around par carrying bonus of common. This company has arranged to produce Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" and "The Doll's House"; Dickens' "Bleak House" and other classics.

The tendency of film stocks during the week has been slightly downward in spite of the fact that most companies report increasing earnings.

MAX LINDER

HAS COME AND CONQUERED ALL IN HIS FIRST COMEDY

"Max Comes Across"

Read what the critics say:

"Max Linder's humorous powers to evoke laugher are irresistible . . . He has grown in power as a magic mirth maker . . . His art to create laugher does not rely on vulgar incident."—
JAS. S. McQUADE, Moving Picture World.

"Max Linder's first American-made comedy holds one great promise for this comedian's future work . . . He undeniably has a greater ability for facial contortion, both comic and dramatic, than any other screen laughmaker . . . 'Max Comes Across' is a noteworthy production."—
DICKSON G. WATTS, New York Morning Telegraph.

BOOK THIS ENTIRE SERIES OF 12 NOW

Trademark Reg. U.S. Pat. 1907

Essanay
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

O.K. Kleine Edison Selig Essanay

Universal Releases

Thirty-one varied and interesting reels ranging from the five-part Red Feather feature to the one-act comedies and single-reel educationals are offered on the Universal program for the week of February 26.

The leading feature of the week is the five-act Red Feather drama, "The Girl and the Crisis," a stirring drama of love, finance and politics. It is the release of February 26, on which day appears also the Nestor comedy "A Million in Sight."

"Mary from America," a three-part comedy drama, released as a Gold Seal, is the feature offering of February 27. The photoplay was made from the original story by Elizabeth R. Carpenter.

The other release of this date is the Victor comedy drama, "A Novel Romance," with Flora Parker De Haven and Paul Byron furnishing the fun.

"Spike's Bizzy Bike," an L-Ko two-reeler, is the chief release of February 28. This is one of the funniest L-Ko's of the year. The regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly comes February 28, also.

"The Rented Man," a Rex two-act drama, for release March 12, is a human interest drama in which appears Francis Marion. The Victor comedy, "They Were Four," with Neal Hart and the Imp drama, "An Hour of Terror," with Matt Moore and Jane Gail, are other offerings of March 1.

The Universal screen magazine, Number 8, which appears March 2, is alive with interesting subjects. Beginning this week the Screen Magazine will be issued weekly instead of twice a month. The Big U two-act war drama "A Battle of Wits," featuring Harold Lockwood and the Imp drama, "Evil Hands," with Edith Roberts and Edward Hearn in the leading roles, will also be released on March 2.

The Bison two-act Western drama, "The Tornado," with Jack Ford in the lead; the Joker comedy "Passing the Grip," with William Franey and Gale Henry, and the Laemmle drama, "Undoing Evil," featuring King Baggot, are the releases for March 3.

The Imp underworld drama, "Tangled Threads," with Lorimer Johnston, the Big U drama, "Buried Alive," with Wallace Reid and Dorothy Davenport and the Powers split reel, "Mr. Fuller Pep—An Old Bird Pays Him a Visit," a comedy cartoon and the Dorsey educational "The Land of Buddha," are the Sunday releases of March 4.

"One of Many" luncheon given in New York by Arthur James, producer of the Metro feature, to critics, trade press men, the star, the director, and Metro executives. Mr. James is seen at the head of the table with Frances Nelson and (at his right) W. Christy Cabanne, director. Third from the left in the picture is Charles R. Condon, New York representative of Motography.

TRAVELING SHOWMEN, GAMERAMEN AND EXHIBITORS—DON'T MAKE A MISTAKE—Have your Printing, Developing and Coloring done by experienced men. GOOD PRINTING and Developing make GOOD PICTURES. GOOD PICTURES GET THE MONEY. Years of experience, backed by a knowledge of your wants, makes our work the best. Our facilities are complete and prices lowest. OUR STUDIOS CAN BE RENTED BY THE DAY OR WEEK.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY J. E. WILLIS, Vice-President and General Manager 6242 Broadway, CHICAGO

CHICAGO NEWS

HARRY LEONHARDT, western representative of William Fox, Inc., is spending a few days in the city. He will leave again shortly.

Lawrence W. Boynton, representing the Motion Picture Trade Directory, has lately established offices in Chicago at 2105 Mallers building.

Manager W. H. Jenner, of the K. E. S. E. Chicago office, says that Marcus Loew has booked the Linder comedies in all of his eastern houses.

The Woman's Party of Cook County, Illinois, has appointed a committee to approach David Wark Griffith with the request that he base his next picture on the subject of suffrage.

Early inquiries for Ethel Barrymore's forthcoming feature, the adaptation of Edward Sheldon's play, "Egypt," to be released under the title "The Call of Her People," have begun coming with regularity, says the Chicago Metro manager, Cresson E. Smith.

The fourteenth theater in the Ascher Brothers chain of Chicago houses, the new Milford Theater, at Milwaukee and Crawford avenues, celebrates its formal opening February 24. A photograph and description of the new playhouse will appear in the next issue of MOTOGRAPHY.

Manager Sydney E. Abel, of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. branch in Chicago, doesn't say much because he is too busy doing things. He has something up his sleeve which he believes is going to create as great a sensation as the recent public performance of the opening two episodes of "The Secret Kingdom" to 25,000 people.

What promises to be a very pleasant film function, and an unusual one, is the informal dancing party to be given on March 3 by the Paramount Social Club, which is composed of members of the Chicago Paramount office. It is said "Louise Huff" is to be present at the Humboldt Park Refectory when the grand march begins.

Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, will arrange a special showing of "The Deemster" in Chicago for western state rights men. He has left New York on an extended trip. After a visit to Battle Creek, Michigan, he will stop in Chicago. Next he will go to St. Louis, Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

Several inquiries regarding the "Mother Goose" films which were described in MOTOGRAPHY some time ago, have gone astray or have been returned to the sender for a more complete address. Frederick Russell Clark, of the Educational Lecture and Film Service, handles the subject. The ELFS service, 1215 First National Bank Building, Chicago, is the proper mailing address.

M. F. Trostler, of Chicago, who has directed pageants, spectacles and extravaganzas in many cities of the west, has a new stunt to his credit. He recently invaded the realms of the nursery and found himself with three hundred children on his hands. But they were film kiddies who could be seen only on the screen in "Puss and Boots," a picture which was given a private showing by Mr. Trostler at the Rialto Theater in New York.

Preceding the recent primary election in Chicago, the Shakespeare Theater, at East Forty-third street and Ellis avenue, held a "ladies' day" for women voters, the house being engaged for campaign purposes by a committee which steered the political ship of Frederick W. Patterson, a candidate for the Republican nomination for alderman of the ward. It appears that Illinois women are getting due recognition now that the new suffrage law permits them to vote.

Picture the husky person of the manager of Superpictures, Inc., Chicago branch, rigged out in Panama hat, white flannels, or perchance a bathing suit, and you have Manager C. B. Price of McClure's Pictures as he is supposed to appear during his absence from the Windy Village. He has been indulging in a taste of Los Angeles' climate and T. C. Montgomery, McClure representative, has a vision of Mr. Price attired a la Palm Beach style. Manager Price writes that he has put "Seven Deadly Sins" into the Portola Theater at San Francisco and also a week's run of each picture in the Turner and Dahnken houses in the same city.

It is not the custom among film companies to earn profits on their investment, if the testimony of producers before a committee of the New York legislature is to be taken at its face value. At least one company has been found in Chicago, however, which is making money. The Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company has just authorized a dividend of ten per cent on common and seven per cent on preferred stock. The annual meeting was held recently and officers for the year 1917 elected as follows: Watterson R. Rothacker, president; N. J. Baumer, vice-president; H. J. Aldous, secretary and treasurer; E. H. Philippi, assistant treasurer, and J. G. Hahn, assistant secretary.

The F. I. L. M. Club of Chicago has a committee of watch-dogs whose duty it is to guard the exchanges and theaters against tax pilferers who regard the film business as a promising place to begin when setting out to swell the city's revenues. The committee is headed by Manager H. W. Jenner of the K. E. S. E. exchange. Good watch-dogs do little barking, but they are getting in some effective work. The club held its regular meeting recently and considered the plans for holding a national convention of F. I. L. M. clubs in July. The convention committee reports a ready co-operation of other organizations and manufacturers.

SOME NEW THEATERS

Colorado

Haxtum, Colorado, a town of 450 inhabitants, is the proud possessor of a new picture theater. It has a seating capacity of 350 people. The house has been named the Gaiety, and is under the management of I. W. Hartwell.

Illinois

Edward Browarsky has purchased a site at Twenty-sixth street and Crawford avenue, Chicago, for $100,000 and will erect a new $350,000 film theater and business block. The theater will seat 2,000. Architect Henry L. Newhouse is preparing plans.

Iowa

William Swan states that the new Swan Theater at Columbus, will be completed and opened about the middle of March. Workmen are making rapid progress, but there is a great deal of interior work yet to be completed.

Kentucky

Louis Hayes will erect theater to replace a burned structure at Henderson, which will cost $25,000.

Michigan

The Colonial Theater Company will erect a two-story theater at Woodward avenue and Sibley street in Detroit.

Montana

An up-to-date theater is being planned at Malta. Mr. T. M. Facet is the owner.

UNIVERSAL BOOK IT PROGRAM

No program on earth begins to measure up in any detail with the Mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, pronounced by thousands of shrewd Exhibitors all over the country as the biggest and surest year round Box Office Attraction on the market—If you can get it now BOOK IT—if you can't get it now, watch your first opportunity. Write your nearest Universal Exchange or the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO., CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - - NEW YORK

FOR SALE
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—Total 25,000
Price, $3.50 per M.
1400 Film Exchanges $4.00
206 Manufacturers and Studios ... 1.50
235 Picture Machine and Supply Dealers..... 1.50
Particulars.
A. F. WILLIAMS, 168 W. Adams St., Chicago

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 10, 1917 No. 10

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
MAR
3
1917
PERIODICAL DIVISION

ALMA HANLON, APOLLO-ART DRAMAS

OVER 9000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED

JANE COWL

THIS young and beautiful emotional star is one of the ablest and best known celebrities of the American theatre. Her tremendous following on the stage will be magnified many thousands of times when she appears on the screen as the exclusive star in Goldwyn Pictures.

The able critics of the influential newspapers of the nation welcome this lovely women into pictures with these enthusiastic comments:

LOUISVILLE HERALD: "A woman of unusual talent and remarkable beauty, known all over the Union."

PITTSBURG POST: "Goldwyn in Jane Cowl has signed America's greatest emotional actress."

BOSTON TRAVELER: "Jane Cowl is known all over America and deserves to be, for she is one of our greatest actresses."

TOLEDO TIMES: "Jane Cowl is known to millions as the star of 'Within the Law' and 'Common Clay.'"

CHICAGO AMERICAN: "Jane Cowl is one of the biggest stars of the stage. She will be an even bigger screen star."

NEW YORK SUN: "Sarah Bernhardt in her 'Vive La France,' when she chants at the end of 'From the Stage to the Field of Honor,' does not reach a higher emotional pitch or obtain a more telling effect than Jane Cowl when she ends her phrase with the same words."

BUFFALO TIMES: "One of the best actresses on the American stage and perhaps the loveliest."

OAKLAND TRIBUNE: "Goldwyn has landed another of the biggest stage stars in Jane Cowl; able, brilliant and beautiful."

GALVESTON NEWS: "Bringing Jane Cowl into pictures is a notable achievement for Goldwyn."

Advisory Board:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation

16 EAST 42d STREET NEW YORK CITY

Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

TRIANGLE

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 11th

Fine Arts

WILFRED LUCAS

in

"A Love Sublime"

A fascinating and appealing story of a big hearted. hot-blooded Greek steelworker, whose love knows no obstacles.

A play that is full to the brim of thrills and heart-throbs. A play your patrons will want to see more than once.

A play that vouches for the continuance of Triangle supremacy.

Ince-Kay Bee

ENID BENNETT

in

"The Little Brother"

The second characterization of this wonderful new star. Miss Bennett's endearing appeal, her vivacity, her art, reach out from the screen and magically tell a living, story.

"The Little Brother" is a drama of the adventures of a girl-waif who impersonates a newsboy It is full of laughter and pranks; of plot and action, of real life and real people.

Mack Sennet Keystone

CHESTER CONKLIN

in

"Dodging His Doom"

A screaming farce that would make the Sphinx laugh.

It's one great big riot of fun and action throughout, with a continuance of the rushing stunts that seem impossible.

They ARE except for Mack Sennett.

The exhibitor who passes Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies, passes opportunity without recognition.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

When any product is without reputation or standing it requires big type and tremendous publicity to put it over.

When any product has attained the reputation of acknowledged superiority, it is only necessary to name the distributor.

So, we merely wish to remind exhibitors that—

Mack-Sennett-Keystone Comedies stand entirely alone as to quality and drawing power.

A price for every exhibitor, no matter how small.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

One of the unusual situations in "Two Men and a Woman," Ivan Film Production's release featuring James Morrison.

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 10, 1917 No. 10

Chaff from the Censorship Mill

WISCONSIN EXHIBITORS SECURE PASSAGE OF SUNDAY LAW IN SENATE

Censorship Foibles

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR MOORE of Iowa, presiding in the Iowa senate, referred a state censorship bill to the committee on public health. What's the joke?

Any citizen in the town of Newburgh, N. Y., may cause a picture to be withdrawn from the screen for review simply by making a complaint in writing to the city authorities. The city council has amended an ordinance to grant citizens this prerogative, thus endangering the theaters daily.

The state censor board of Kansas reviewed two hundred and forty reels of film during the week of February 6, of which forty-eight reels were rejected as unfit for public consumption. But somebody has had the perspicuity to censor the acts of the censor board, with the result that every reel rejected was later passed by the appeals board.

Several members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of New York and representatives of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry attended a meeting of the Brooklyn Society for the Uplift of Moving Pictures and succeeded in turning a censorship discussion into an open forum at which both sides were given a hearing.

"There is no intention of hampering art in the movies, but there is a determination to cut out that which, under the guise of artistry, is but mere sensual appeal," declares Guy R. Radley, president of the Milwaukee commission on motion pictures. In reference to the commission's dictate that white slave pictures and films displaying unseemly nudity will be barred after May 1, he says: "Pictures of classic dancing, which are really artistic, and kindred subjects will be allowed to run."

Sunday Closing

WISCONSIN has fallen in line with Indiana on the question of Sunday closing. A bill permitting Sunday performanees has been passed by the senate.

Five or six bills on Sunday closing are pending in the New York legislature. They provide for the opening of theaters on Sunday and not for their closing. All the measures amend the Sunday law to read: "This law shall not be considered as applying to performances of motion pictures on Sunday."

The Bender case, in which the exhibitor at Schenectady, New York, has been enjoined by the supreme court from conducting Sunday performances, is being allowed to rest until the outcome of the proposed Sunday legislation is decided. The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has the matter in hand. The exhibitors have delayed their appeal.

The Ministerial Union of Fremont, Nebraska, and the Fremont Civic League are organizing a movement to defeat the bill before the state legislature to legalize Sunday pictures. The Rev. F. H. Gillette, secretary of the Ministerial Union, defends the move, saying that Sunday picture shows would draw heavily on the attendance at church.

The legislative committee of the Federation of Churches in South Dakota met recently at Pierre, South Dakota, and decided to ask the legislature for the passage of a law restricting and prohibiting motion picture shows on Sunday, and other Sabbath entertainments. They want the law so blue that the color cannot be mistaken. This resolution asks for the suppression of base ball games and other Sabbath amusements, and theaters of all classes.

WISCONSIN exhibitors have secured recognition for themselves in the state legislature through co-operation in urging the passage of a bill permitting Sunday performances in their theaters. After being harrassed continually by individuals in some of the northern Wisconsin towns, who have attempted to bring about the enforcement of "blue laws" to prohibit Sunday picture shows, the exhibitors banded together in self defense and appealed to the legislature. As a result of the exhibitors' efforts, a Sunday amusement measure which makes it impossible to close the theaters of any city or town without the consent of the community has been passed by the senate and now goes to the house for approval.

New York Committee Postpones Action

The triumph of the Wisconsin exhibitors marks the chief step forward in the nation-wide confusion resulting from the mania for legislation against the motion picture business. Scarcely a state in the Union is free from disturbances either in the way of agitation and laws to shut up motion picture theaters and other places of amusement on Sunday, or to establish tighter censorship regulations. Illinois is no exception. Several measures affecting theaters, touching both the motion picture business and the stage, have made their appearance.

The committee on motion pictures in the New York legislature, headed by Chairman Wheeler, has postponed the hearings at Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo. All hearings before the commission have been set over until after March 15.

New Jersey Has Troubles, Too

The house of the Indiana legislature has as yet taken no action on the bill to legalize Sunday pictures, which recently was passed in the senate. Similarly with the censorship bill in the Missouri legislature, action has been delayed. A Missouri measure proposes a special tax on theaters also.

The exhibitors of New Jersey held a special meeting lately to decide on the best means of combatting

Use Motography Cuts Free

Motography often prints illustrations that would be useful to use on your program cover or in your other advertising matter. If at any time you see a cut in Motography that you would like to use, just say the word and it will be sent to you, to be returned to us when you have finished with it. But please remember that we must be notified of the cut you wish immediately after you receive the issue in which the cut appears. The half-tones accumulate so rapidly that it is impossible to keep them very long on file.

Watch the pictures in Motography, and remember this service is absolutely free to you.

a new censorship bill introduced by Assemblyman Badgeley. It provides for a board of three censors whose expenses will be defrayed in part by a footage tax against the releasing company. The fee proposed is one dollar a reel.

The exchange managers of Seattle, Washington, have taken the lead in a fight to defeat a state censorship bill which provides for a fee of one dollar for each reel of films reviewed. The expense would be borne by the issuing companies and the exchanges object to the arrangment.

Exhibitors at Wilmington, Delaware, have recently been in conference with club women of that city with regard to a bill which the women's committee is prepared to offer for introduction in the legislature.

Anti-Censor Motion Gets One Vote

A motion to do away with state censorship in Kansas got one vote in its favor when introduced recently in the house of representatives. It was presented by Representative Jewell and seconded by Representative Moore. The motion might have received two votes if it had not happened that Mr. Moore was out of the assembly hall when it was voted upon.

Another state in the list of those seeking relief from obsolete statutes which have been brought to life as a means of striking at Sunday shows, is North Dakota. Exhibitors have caused a bill to be introduced which would permit them to open their theaters legally on Sunday.

Association Directors to Meet

The board of directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will meet for its quarterly session the third Tuesday in March—March 15, at 11 a. m.

The meetings of the board of directors were held monthly up to December, and the March meeting is the first of the quarterly meetings authorized by the constitution.

The following members were elected at the last executive committee meeting, to full membership in their various classes: D. W. Griffith Enterprises, Producer Class A; Corona Cinema Company of Los Angeles, Producer Class B; Submarine Film Company, Producer Class B; Pathescope Company of America, Producer Class C. Pathe Exchange, Inc., changed its membership from Producer Class A to the distributor class. A number of individual memberships were also authorized.

Dorothy Phillips plays Nora in the Universal production of the Ibsen drama, "A Doll's House."

OPERATORS SEEK INCREASE

St. Louis Union Presents New Wage Schedule Asking $5.70 a Week Raise in Theaters Operating at Ten Cents

The grievance committee of the Theater Managers' and Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of St. Louis has submitted a report of the demands made by the operators' union for an increase in wages of $5.70 a week in a certain class of theaters operating at ten cents, with other allowances. The association at its last meeting authorized the committee to settle the matter with the operators.

The proposition framed by the operators in a joint conference with the grievance committee states the following terms:

All theaters opening at 7 p. m. or later and closing not later than 11 p. m.; operators shall receive $20 per week for seven nights' work.

Each matinee $2 extra.

Supper hour if worked, $1 extra.

Overtime, 50 cents per hour; if part of hour before opening and part after closing time, only one hour shall be charged.

Agreement to be in force for two years. Option of additional year at $1 increase on price of seven nights' work.

The association approved the membership applications of Mr. Scouros, Pageant Theater, active member; and George Smith, manager Smith Slide Company; Charles Goetz, manager General Film branch; and George L. Maddux, Shaefer Brass Company, associate members.

Outdoor Showmen Ask Square Deal

Seeking escape from excessive taxation and license fees forced upon circuses, outdoor shows and carnivals, in every city and town where a troupe plays, the members of the Showmen's League of America at their annual convention in Chicago, cleared the decks for a campaign against unfair taxation. They took preliminary moves toward bringing the show business under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission, believing that one tax payable to the government ought to be the rule. Let the government tax the business and insure the showmen of a square deal, urged some. The attendance reached 3,400 and many notables were present.

Herrington Tours Michigan

Fred J. Herrington, organizer for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, has been spending a few days in Detroit to start a membership campaign. He will spend three weeks or a month in the state. Mail will reach him if addressed in care of W. H. Shiek, 819 Majestic building, Detroit.

Doris Kenyon in "The Empress"

Holbrook Flinn and Doris Kenyon, two celebrated stars, will appear on the Pathe program in "The Empress," a five-part Gold Rooster Play made by Popular Plays and Players, to be released March 11.

Co-operative Booking Office

With E. R. Bloom in charge as manager, a co-operative booking office has been opened in Detroit by the Michigan Theaters' Association, at 923 Peter Smith building.

Pleasing the Ladies

CASTLE THEATER ON "WORLD'S BUSIEST CORNER" FAVORITE WITH MILADY

By Genevieve Harris

THE Castle Theater, State and Madison streets, Chicago, is located on "the busiest corner in the world." During the eighteen months of its existence it has distinguished itself in several other ways, chief among these perhaps being that it is especially liked by women. A comparison of the audiences in the various downtown picture theaters in the city reveals this fact. While the men form the larger number in other houses, the women claim the Castle as their own.

The Castle is not a large or pretentious house. It contains only three hundred seats. Its program is not elaborate. But it has somehow endeared itself to Miss and Mrs. Chicago. Motography asked the manager, M. J. Weil, to explain the "somehow." As usual, this distinction is not the result of chance, but of a well worked out campaign. Mr. Weil, before assuming the managership of the Castle, had been directing a high class neighborhood house. Before that he had had a varied career in theater affairs, which he began as an usher and during which he advanced through successive stages to business management of a downtown theater. In short, he had been trained to study the tastes of the audience he wished to attract.

"The idea back of the Castle Theater from its beginning," he explained, "was to give a bright, intelligent picture show to a good class of patrons. We are right in the shopping district and believed we could find many of our patrons among the downtown shoppers in the department stores.

Admission Changed from Twenty-Five to Fifteen

"In considering admission prices, we first planned to charge twenty-five cents, but changed this to fifteen. This was an advance over the other small downtown picture theaters, who charged ten cents, and our patronage for the first few weeks was small. But we endeavored to live up to our advanced price by giving the best of service, courteous attention, fine pictures and projection as flawless as possible, in a clean, well ventilated theater.

"In deciding on a program, I recalled a remark I've heard many women make, 'I saw a fine picture at the Blank Theater, but that awful comedy spoiled it for me,' and I resolved not to run any comedy. I run the feature picture alone, usually of five reels. That is the entire program. Women prefer a short offering which they like, even at an advanced price, to a longer one, only part of which appeals to them. Contrary to belief, men are the bargain-seekers, with pictures anyway, and want the long show. The women look for quality. Oh, occasionally I feel generous and include a Sidney Drew comedy or an especially interesting topical, but I always go back to the five-reels-only show.

Never Runs a Questionable Film

"Above all, I want my patrons to feel that they will never be offended at the Castle. I never run a picture which the Chicago censor board judges a 'pink slip' (no children admitted) release. I frequently regret passing up some of these plays, for many are excellent productions, and I cannot always understand the board's decision. Nevertheless, that 'adults only' picture is not run at the Castle. If the children can't come, neither can the picture. I take special care of the children. Of course there are not a great many who visit a downtown house, and I do not charge admission for any child accompanied by an adult. The women appreciate this little courtesy of the Castle."

When asked about the billing and advertising of his pictures, Mr. Weil laughed. "I suppose you want to know whether I'm next going to feature the cousins and aunts of the stars! That's what the daily paper critics asked when I billed Owen Moore in electric lights as 'Mary Pickford's husband,' and Lottie Pickford as Mary's sister and Lou-Tellegen as 'Geraldine Farrar's husband.' I let them laugh, while I sold many an extra admission ticket. It is a fair scheme and it pays. It increases the interest of the patrons in the stars. Another thing I have learned is that women respond more quickly when a woman star is billed. So I play up when possible an actress rather than an actor. Women are interested in women players and stories about women.

"I believe the posters which accompany a play are more important than the manufacturers realize. Companies who put out film pictures in excellent taste will send posters taken from the worst scenes in the play, scenes not at all typical of the production. These very often give a bad impression of the offering and certainly do not draw business.

"Regarding advertising of my attractions, I find the most valuable of all are the reviews published in the daily papers. I advertise daily in the newspapers for the sake of the reviews. I don't care whether the critics 'pan' the pictures or not, so long as they discuss them and state that they are shown at the Castle. However, although I feel the effect of these reviews, I do not get as much value from them as the outlying theaters do, because my run is half over before the criticisms appear.

Runs Two Pictures a Week

"This brings up the question of the length of runs. I use the Paramount program, advance showing, which gives me two pictures a week. For neighborhood houses, the daily change is best, but I could profitably run a picture a full week downtown. I always do run a Marguerite Clark picture a week and usually Pauline Frederick. I could run a picture like 'Snow White' indefinitely, and make money if I had the exclusive right. And the longer I ran a production like George Beban's 'His Sweetheart,' the larger audiences I would have, because people would talk about it and send their friends. At first showing it did not draw as strongly as it deserved.

"On the whole, our principle of high class, clean entertainment pays very well. For a small house, the Castle enjoys rather unusual popularity. Every night we have a large percentage of our audiences brought by expensive automobiles, really an 'opera audience'

They come downtown to see a play in a little 300-seat picture house."

Encourages Air of Refinement

Mr. Weil also believes in giving the same personal touch to a downtown house as to a neighborhood theater. He is at his theater at all hours. He knows personally a great many of his patrons and they stop and tell him how they liked the play. By this atmosphere of refinement, courtesy and personal touch, the Castle is known throughout the city, especially among the women, as a particularly enjoyable place to visit.

Fred Mace Dies Suddenly

Fred Mace, the former Keystone comedian, who claimed the distinction of being one of the first stars to appear before the camera in the days when the Biograph Company was making a start in the old studio on Fourteenth street, New York, was found dead in bed in his apartments at the Hotel Astor, in New York. Apoplexy was the cause given for his sudden end.

Fred Mace.

Mr. Mace had retired to his rooms after a conversation in the lobby of the hostelry with several friends. That was the last seen of him alive.

Mr. Mace began his stage career as a chorus man. He was a member of the "Piff, Paff, Pouf" company several years ago when Eddie Foy was appearing in one of the leading roles.

Mr. Mace was widely known throughout the theatrical and film world for his comedy portrayals in the Keystone Company as well as his work in the Biograph and Majestic firms.

As a director and a comedian, he was ranked high up in the profession. He recently entered the field of the motion picture magnates and had an interest in the pictures he directed. He was formerly a dentist before taking to the stage.

Mace was born in Philadelphia thirty-eight years ago. He was a Mystic Shriner and a member of the St. Cecile Lodge (Actors) F. and A. M.

Mothers Win Exhibitors' Aid

A committee of the Mothers' Congress and Parent-Teacher Associations of Denver, Colorado, reports that it has succeeded where others have failed in gaining the active aid of exhibitors in providing the kind of entertainment they desire. The committee has addressed a letter of thanks to the Film Exchange Board of Trade of Denver and to the Rocky Mountain Screen Club.

The co-operation of the committee and the exhibitors has been found a satisfactory solution of the censorship question in Denver. The committee in its report advises against a state censorship law and announces that it has worked out an agreement with the exchanges and exhibitors which puts a voluntary self-censorship upon the exhibitors.

The committee is made up of Mrs. Fred Dick, state president of the Colorado branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Associations; Mrs. W. R. Ramsey, president of the Denver district; Mrs. Ralph Palmer, chairman of the committee; Julia Tyler Davis, chairman of child welfare committee. Their letter to the Film Exchange Board of Trade says:

Our success leads us to believe that the real way to accomplish public welfare reform is not by legislation, but by a concerted movement by those people most concerned, which movement we feel sure can be successful if conducted in a co-operative spirit.

Legislation on public welfare invariably means helping a political machine, lays open an opportunity for graft, antagonizes the amusement concerns so that they only just keep on the legal side and causes the taxpayers a large amount of needless expenditure. While our method has made the exhibitors feel the weight of public opinion and has been fair to both sides with pleasant relations established.

Censoring Ten-cent Audiences

An editorial writer for the Chicago Tribune thinks that the reason for censorship exists in the difference between ten cents and two dollars. What the one theater-goer may see for the higher price of admission and what the other may not see, seems to constitute the moral gulf which separates a privileged aristocracy and the masses. The editorial follows in part:

A person with two dollars to spend for entertainment in the theater is an intellectually emancipated, reasonable, sophisticated creature. It connotes morals and safe emotional processes. It entitles the bearer to the privileges of character, chief of which is the privilege of selection and choice.

In opera season it will purchase a distant seat from which La Tosca can be seen and heard in the operation of trying to save her lover's life. Plus fifty cents it would admit, in season, to the "Follies," where carnality becomes wholly urban in its respect for what people might say if the curtains were not drawn discreetly and esthetically. The intellectual and moral importance of two dollars might be given many illustrations, but it is more amusing to consider the sad contrast offered by ten cents.

Ten cents has no intellect, no moral restraints, no power of selection, and no judgment that cannot be distorted instantly by suggestion. Ten cents will admit a person to see our favorite good-bad man, W. S. Hart, in the movies. Mr. Hart is a gunman. He draws with the rapidity of a broached keg in a lumber camp, and he shoots with the accuracy of a bar fly hitting the free lunch, but a little child may lead him. Ten cents will admit a person to see Mr. Hart, but not to see his art. The censor will not let ten cents see it. At the moment when Mr. Hart is about to wipe a varmint off the earth the community decides that what is safe for the morals and discrimination of two dollars is wholly unsafe for the morals of ten cents.

We do not complain against this decision of society, merely call attention to it. It assumes that there is an intellectual and morally safe class which has its two dollars and that there are unintellectual and morally unsafe masses which have only ten cents.

Meeting of Detroit League

President A. J. Kleist and Secretary A. J. Moeller, of the Detroit Exhibitors' League, led discussions on censorship, the carrying of films, and other matters, at the recent meeting of the Detroit Exhibitors' League. M. W. McGee, of the Majestic Theater, and Frederic Ingersoll, of the Knickerbocker Theater, took an active part in the debate.

Ruth Clifford has completed her work in "A Modern Mona Lisa," a five-reel Universal.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews Motography publishes in each week's issue the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

SLOTH, "Seven Deadly Sins" series (McClure)—"A fair picture, well liked by patrons. Brought fair business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle classes.

The Kiss, with Owen Moore (Paramount)—"A good picture, well acted. Was well liked by patrons and brought good business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater. —Middle classes.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton (Triangle) —"A very good picture, well acted and well directed. Patrons were undecided in their opinions, some liking it very much, others not so well."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle classes.

Her Own People, with Lenore Ulrich (Pallas-Paramount)—"The picture went over fairly well. It is not, however, up to the Paramount standard. The Chicago picture critics critized Miss Ulrich's make-up, and the Indians in the production are not very realistic. The picture brought fair business."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

The Black Wolf, with Lou Tellegen (Lasky-Paramount)—"A Spanish bandit picture which went over fairly well. Lou Tellegen drew well because I advertised him as 'Geraldine Farrar's husband.' "—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

The Hungry Heart, with Alice Brady (World)—"A very good picture, one of Miss Brady's best. Went over very well with the audience."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Bridges Burned, with Olga Petrova (Metro)—"A very good picture which brought pretty fair business."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

A Modern Cinderella, with June Caprice (Fox)—"June Caprice is at her best in this picture, which is very good. It brought good business and the audience was much pleased."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Jim Bludso, with Wilfred Lucas (Triangle)—"A pretty good picture of its kind but the type is not popular. Business was poor."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Princess of the Dark, with Enid Bennett (Triangle)—"Not a very good production. The slum pictures are not well liked by my patrons."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Bad Boy, with Robert Harron (Triangle)—"A pretty good picture which brought fair business. As for the story, well, boys don't often reform when they get that bad!"—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Bad Boy, with Robert Harron (Fine Arts-Triangle)—"A very good picture, about the best thing I've seen Robert Harron do. Fine Arts should put him in others of this type."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Adventurer, with Marian Swayne (Art Dramas)—"This is not the sort of a picture for the Lake Shore audiences. The production is fine, but it deals with crime and the underworld. It will probably go well among audiences of another type."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

The Golden Fetter, with Wallace Reid and Anita King (Paramount)—"The picture is only fair and the stars do not draw. Paramount should do better than this."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Lost and Won, with Marie Doro (Paramount)—"Picture fair. Not up to the usual Paramount standard." —Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

A Girl's Folly, with Robert Warwick (World)—"A pretty good picture. A fair drawing card."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

His Sweetheart, with George Beban (Pallas-Paramount)—"The best Pallas picture I have ever seen. Pallas certainly deserves a good recommend on this production. George Beban's acting is a treat. Pallas should bring all their pictures up to this standard, in fact the whole Paramount program should."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Wax Model, with Vivian Martin (Pallas-Paramount)—"Another good Pallas picture. The audiences liked this immensely."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Skinner's Dress Suit, with Bryant Washburn (Essanay-K. E. S. E.)—"A very good picture, well received by the audience. A fair drawing card."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Max Comes Across, with Max Linder (Essanay-K. E. S. E.)—"The audience was highly pleased with this picture. Personally, I thought it poor, but Linder proves a very good drawing card, so I should worry!"—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

Blind Justice (Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.)—"A very fine production, but it does not draw. So what's the use!"—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class audiences.

The Cossack Whip, with Viola Dana (Edison)—"'The Cossack Whip' broke all records in two of my houses. I'm going to repeat it."—J. S. Grauman, Grauman Amusement Enterprises, operating four theaters, Milwaukee, Wis.

Snow White, with Marguerite Clark (Famous Players-Paramount)—"We showed this picture an entire week. We played to capacity the first three days and the last three days we could not accommodate the people and turned them away by hundreds. We claim Marguerite Clark more popular here than any other star, bar none. We received nothing but compliments on that picture from everybody."—N. H. Cinberg, The Magnet Theater, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Snow White, with Marguerite Clark (Famous Players-Paramount)—"This brought record business. A very good picture liked by all the people. It proved an especially good drawing card with the children."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle classes.

Bridges Burned, with Olga Petrova (Metro)—"A very good production and well liked by our patrons. From a box-office standpoint, it drew exceptionally well."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—Catering to high class trade.

The Mysterious Mrs. M., with Mary McLaren (Bluebird)—"One of the best pictures I ever played. The story, acting and photography were of the best and it went over exceptionally big. As a box-office attraction it is a winner, as we played to capacity all during the engagement of this picture."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—Catering to high class trade.

The Witching Hour, with C. Aubrey Smith (Art Dramas-Sherrill)—"Not enough can be said about this picture, as it was splendid in every way. The story as well as the play is very popular and the acting of the entire cast is superb. C. Aubrey Smith is entitled to special comment, as my patrons remarked about his good acting. This picture went over so big that I played a return engagement. Played to capacity business both times we showed this feature."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—Catering to high class trade.

Skinner's Dress Suit, with Bryant Washburn (Essanay)—"Absolutely one of the best pictures ever made. It broke all house records for attendance. This picture is clean, clever, and one that every man, woman and child should see. Bryant Washburn's acting in this feature is wonderful and he made such a tremendous hit in this picture with my patrons that I had many requests for more pictures with him. It played to capacity business for four days and I have booked it for a return engagement. We need more pictures like 'Skinner's Dress Suit.'"—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—Catering to high class trade.

The End of the Tour, with Lionel Barrymore (Metro)—"A fair production which drew fair business."—E. C. Bostick, Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—Catering to high class trade.

Max Comes Across, Max Linder series (Essanay)—"A picture that went over very good."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Right to Live, with Peggy Hyland (Vitagraph)—"A good production. We ran it Saturday to good houses."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Greed, with Nance O'Neill (McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" series)—"A fair picture. The 'Seven Deadly Sins' series draw well."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

The Gentle Itruder, with Mary Miles Minter (Mutual-American)—"This is really a very pleasing picture and one that everybody liked."—George D. Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater.—Catering to the middle classes.

Hearts Afire, with Clara Kimball Young (World Re-issue)—"A very good picture. We played it to one of the biggest matinees we ever had.—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

A Girl of the Timber Claims, with Constance Talmadge (Triangle)—"A kiss and kill picture—not the kind my audiences like. I can't say much for the picture, although business was fair."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Pride, with Shirley Mason and George Le Guere (McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" series)—"The picture is fair. We did a fair business with it, running at ten cents. Some days we get better houses at fifteen cents."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Girl Who Did Not Care, with Louise Vail and James Morrison.—"Although the same story has been put out in films four or five times, the picture did a fair business for us."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Hungry Heart, with Alice Brady and Gerda Holmes (World-Brady)—"We showed this picture on Ash Wednesday, but nevertheless business stood up well. We ran it with 'Patria,' and this must have helped some. 'The Hungry Heart' is a good picture, well liked by the women."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Blind Justice, with Benjamin Christie (Vitagraph)—"Mr. Christie plays a powerful role in this picture. It is a weird sort of play that some people would not like. Played to small business on a Friday which may have been the reason."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Patria, with Mrs. Vernon Castle (Pathe)—"This series is going good to fifteen cent audiences. We more than double the box-office showing over some of our ten-cent days, and even double the attendance on some days at the higher price. We get big matinees at ten cents on fifteen-cent days. 'Patria' is worth the higher price."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Bad Boy, with Robert Harron (Triangle)—"A good picture, although a little exaggerated. Robert Harron takes a nice part. It is the kind of picture he ought to be cast in. Harron draws well, but we showed this picture on the first Monday in Lent and probably did not do as well with it on that account."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Make Mrs. Castle Film in Chicago

Chicago has already proved itself, to the wise, to be the logical distributing center for the motion picture industry in America.

And there are coming more and more evidences that Chicago and the middle west are also adaptable to the making of pictures. The latest news of a possible addition to the production activities in Chicago is that H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, is planning on bringing Mrs. Vernon Castle, who has just signed a Commonwealth contract, to Chicago for the production of a special picture in which the popular dancer will star. Negotiations are now being made with the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company for studio and photography facilities, and of course it is possible to bring to Chicago the best producers, directors and assistants in the country to create the production.

It is well known that the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation was organized by Mr. Spanuth with the idea of interesting exhibitors in a producing company and giving them unequaled service. This plan is being carried out carefully.

Commonwealth has also under contract the captivating Elsie Mackay and Sir Herbert Tree. The late Fred Mace, the well known former Keystone comedian, was also to join Commonwealth. Mr. Spanuth showed Motography a letter from Mr. Mace to that effect, written only a few days previous to his recent sudden death in New York.

Theater and the Screen Praised

In a recent article in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, which is one of the leading newspapers of Philadelphia and of the entire country with a theatrical department that is as much up to date in motion picture doings as to the happenings on the legitimate stage, Mr. Tubbs, the dramatic editor, makes comparison between the regular and the screen stage, with added laurels to the latter in most important details.

Mr. Tubbs is conservative in most of his opinions and he does not unduly enthuse anything theatrical unless it marks merit, so therefore what he has to say concerning the Stanley Theater, which is Philadelphia's leading photoplay house, must be gratifying to Stanley V. Mastbaum, who is directing genius of the Stanley Company which operates this house with such success.

In part, Mr. Tubbs wrote:

The manner in which a spoken drama of the stage may be turned into a motion picture production in such a way as to enlarge upon and enhance the dramatic value of the original, is forcibly illustrated in the offerings at the Stanley Theater. Not only are all the situations as exemplified in the dramas brought out in the screen versions but the films reveal in intimated detail much that in the original could only be suggested and left to the imagination. The result is productions of vivid realism and deep interest, which offers another reason why so many persons nowadays are going to the motion picture houses instead of to the regular theaters. At the former they are taxed but a small price, with no unfair fee to the speculator or the hotel ticket agent, and, in the case of a house like the Stanley, which is representative of the highest class of motion picture theaters in this country, and one at which the audiences invariably are made up of persons of culture and refinement, they are not likely to go away with the feeling that they have wasted either time or money on an entertainment that was worth neither.

"Bringing Father Home," written by H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is being filmed by Director William Worthington.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

ADMISSION, ONE MURPHY

POTATOES—just good old-fashioned Murphys—are almost legal tender in Chicago now. The other day a fellow passed in a big smooth spud at the ticket window of a Madison street picture house and got his ticket without a murmur. The manager was tickled to death.

"Let 'em come," he said. "The more the merrier. We'll have 'em fried, scalloped, baked and French tonight."

The popular Irish fruit is selling for a dollar and a dollar and a quarter a peck in the Breezy Village.

THIS PAPER HAS A READY WIT

The Screamer, one of the many voices of the silent art, published in the City of Angels and other things by Clarke Irvine, appeared last week in type entirely of a shouting, vampire scarlet.

And across the top ran the immortal line: "The only movie newspaper that's red."

HERE'S THE HULL TRUTH

Did you notice that all the picture papers published very complete stories about the contract between Essanay and Doris Kenyon—except Motography? They even told all about the play she was going to do—except Motography.

And now comes the truth: Doris and George flirted, but no engagement will be announced.

There ain't none.

D. W. Griffith, who is said to be connected with the film business, was in Chicago last week on his way from St. Louis to New York.

And going from the mighty of one sort to the mighty of another, Fatty Arbuckle was here, too.

And about a hundred fans were on hand to welcome Fatty. One man, seeing the melee at the station, inquired of Motography if it was a strike. And we said: "Only until Fatty gets over his carbuncle."

And Fatty was entertained by the Reel Fellows.

And there was a big banquet for Fatty.

And Bob McKnight and Mr. Hollander and all the other newspaper writers pursued him with their heariscopes open.

But even the room clerk at his hotel didn't know who Mr. Griffith was.

Such are the various flavors of fame.

AWARD OF MEDALS

Among those who deserve leather medals for the cozy furnishing of the new Reel Fellows quarters in the College Building are Jack Haag, Harry Miller, Watty Watkins, Dave Alexander, Prexy Proctor, and a few others—with the accent on Jack and Harry, we guess.

The new Reel Fellows club rooms weren't the only things that got warmed up the other night.

New Censor Bill in Illinois

PROPOSES STATE CENSOR, ELIMINATING LOCAL BOARDS—OTHER BILLS COMING

A BRAND new censorship bill has been introduced in Illinois. The proposed measure, known as the Guernsey bill, provides for one official state censor who would pass on all films to be shown in the state. All local censorship would be done away with, including the notorious Chicago board. The bill was introduced into the House at Springfield at noon, February 28, and referred to committee.

Within a few days there will be four or five other censorship bills introduced in the Illinois legislature and the lawmakers will be up against some complicated problems. They will, at least, learn something about the film business. Many have already expressed themselves in writing to MOTOGRAPHY as opposed to any censorship.

The bill provides for a censorship charge of one dollar per reel of 1,000 feet or less, which is the amount charged in Chicago at the present time. However, the charge for permits for duplicate prints would be but 25 cents per reel, as against one dollar now charged in Chicago. This would mean that between $400 and $500 would be turned into the state treasury each week. The salary of the official censor would be entirely separate from these fees, his remuneration being set at not to exceed $3,500. The bill provides for an office in Chicago and such other points as may be necessary.

Provides for "Censor Congress"

One of the interesting features of the proposed bill is that it permits the state censor to "work in conjunction with any censor board of legal status in other states as a censor congress." All films approved by such a congress would automatically receive the state permit.

Under the terms of the bill, which is known as House bill 407, all paper and advertising matter would also be submitted to the official censor for approval.

An appeal is provided in Section 13, which states that any person aggrieved by any decision of the state censor may within three days appeal to the director of education and registration, who may reverse or modify the ruling of the state censor, and the circuit court may in turn review the director's decision.

Opinions of Exchange Men

When asked by MOTOGRAPHY for opinions on the proposed bill the majority of the prominent film men of Chicago, although against the principle of censorship, favored it as opposed to local censorship in the different cities of the state. The general attitude is that if there must be a temporary censorship of some kind that the form provided by this bill is perhaps the least harmful to the industry.

"I think it is a mighty good thing when you consider that we are likely to have a dozen different local censorships later on," said Manager C. W. Bunn of the Chicago Pathe exchange.

Manager Sidney Abel, of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., was of the same opinion but pointed out the fact that in Ohio and Pennsylvania state censorship has caused a good deal of trouble. That matter, of course, depends upon the standards the state censor would set up for himself to follow.

Guy Coombs Returns to Screen

Guy Coombs, a popular screen player who deserted the calling after many years of service, will again return to the studio and resume the art of pleasing the public in new and romantic roles. He has accepted an engagement with the Ivan Film Corporation.

The first part assigned to Mr. Coombs introduces him in the character of a navy lieutenant who experiences extraordinary adventures in far-away Japan.

Christine Mayo, who helped make the expression "vamp" a colloquial slang-word, has also returned to the Ivan forces.

Christine Mayo is now enacting a role peculiarly dramatic and characteristic, in the Japanese-American drama "The Promise," which will be the February release of the Ivan Film Corporation.

William Humphrey, the latest addition to the Ivan staff of directors, has just established a remarkable record for efficiency with the Ivan company, according to reports. He is directing Miss Mayo in "The Promise."

Film Shows for Prisoners

Motion pictures are to be brought into play at the New Jersey state prison at Trenton as a means of enlivening the mental faculties of the inmates. The idea came from Richard P. Hughes, head keeper, who some time ago entertained Warden Osborne of New York and was later attacked by him on the ground that prisoners were chained to the walls of their cells.

One of the Charlie Chaplin comedies was presented to the convicts at an entertainment given in the auditorium at the prison a short time ago. It was greatly relished by the prisoners, who enjoyed plenty of laughs. Several of the prisoners confided to the deputies that it was a fine mental treat for them. While the matter was being discussed with the head keeper he decided to show the "boys" a good, clean time with pictures on proper occasions. A band composed of convicts played while Charlie was performing on the screen.

Patrons Critics of Films

Cleveland patrons have been given the opportunity to write criticisms of the pictures shown at the Alhambra Theater. Hundreds of people have taken advantage of this opportunity, and it has been found that most women prefer scenarios with an intense love interest, but not siren stories. They show a liking for men stars, with a gift for sugary love making.

The men critics expressed a preference for pictures that were agreeably diverting with touches of comedy.

Rebuilds Theater for Helen Holmes

Dr. P. W. Cain, manager of the Cleveland Theater, Rochester, Texas, writes to Mutual:

"With reference to the serial 'The Girl and the Game,' starring Helen Holmes, I beg to advise that this serial is certainly getting the money. I have had to increase the seating capacity in my house. I have just completed my improvements and opened last night to a capacity house."

The Photoplay League a Live Force

MEMBERS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY PLEDGED TO BOOST GOOD PLAYS

THAT the recently organized Photoplay League, whose origin and purposes were described at length in the January 27 issue of MOTOGRAPHY, will make its influence felt in the picture world seems now a safe prediction. The second meeting of the New York branch, held in the Rialto Theater, was attended by over a thousand members, composed of club women, society folk and others interested in encouraging the production of the better sort of motion pictures.

Object Is to Support Good Plays

The point emphasized again was that the object of the league is to aid and support good plays but in no way censor others. The plays selected by the league will receive notice and encouragement. Bad plays will be merely ignored, not opposed. Many producers have already approached the league with a view of having their pictures recommended to members. While the New York branch is leading in activities, the league is formed on a national basis and it is expected that a million members will be enrolled within the coming year, since the various branches of the Federation of Women's Clubs, among numerous other organizations, are actively supporting the movement. There will be no "uplifters" among these. The plan is to increase the patronage of members at the better pictures and in this way to aid exhibitors.

The leading speaker at the meeting was Frederick Warde, the veteran tragedian, whose picture, "The Vicar of Wakefield," was shown at the Rialto Theater February 24. Mr. Warde said he felt that during his fifty years on the stage in pioneer work in the legitimate drama all over the United States he had come to know the tastes of the American people.

"I know," said he, "that they want the highest, best, and purest in the drama, and I'm sure that in their motion pictures they want something that the mind can grasp, and the heart can feel, as well as something that the eye can see.

"It is true that 'we who live to please must please to live,' but I think we need not pander to please. If you people want clean, wholesome pictures you must support them when they are presented and see that your friends throughout the country do the same."

Explaining the purpose of the league, Miss Helen Varick Boswell, well known for her activities in civic and educational matters, paid a tribute to the exhibitors who try to give their patrons really fine pictures, and especially complimented the work of S. L. Rothapfel. She said:

> It is our function to provide the audiences for the good films when they arrive. This must necessarily be a broad and comprehensive widespread work of education, and that is why I wish there were a Mr. Rothapfel in every community in the country. Of course there isn't. There is only one of him, but it is fortunate that he is in a position to be independent here and give his audiences the sort of pictures which he thinks will cultivate in them a liking for fine, clean, artistic stories. He knows, as we do, that the motion picture will cleanse itself from the inside and work out its own salvation, but at the same time he sees in this league a means to that end.

Mr. Rothapfel corroborated the latter remark when he addressed the meeting.

New York Exhibitor Talks

I look upon this league as a constructive force, and later on I want to have an open forum here at which we may discuss the things in motion pictures that are not right.

I know the motion picture directors want to make good, clean pictures. They are anxious to do better things but they must have the support of the community. I think the finest thing I have ever presented here was Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and Constance Collier in "Macbeth," but we didn't get enough people in here that week to pay for the lights. It is all right for you to insist on finer pictures but you must support them when they are offered to you. We have kept our screen as clean as it was possible to keep it and we have been most successful. We shall continue to keep it just as clean. With the exception of the press, I consider the motion picture the greatest influence for good that exists today. You don't get wheat without chaff, so when you are inclined to condemn the motion picture, remember that the good in it far outweighs the bad.

The league, which has its administrative office at 665 Fifth avenue, New York, now numbers among its members a majority of the governors of states, police department heads, many mayors, college presidents, teachers, women's clubs, men's organizations and others, who have seen the wonderful vision of the motion pictures.

Court Upholds Fairbanks

The injunction suit started by the Majestic Motion Picture Company against Douglas Fairbanks, asking the court to restrain him from forming an independent company of his own and producing his own pictures, has been decided in favor of Mr. Fairbanks. He is free to carry out the plans he has already announced regarding his future productions, for release through Artcraft, except that he cannot engage John Emerson as his director.

Justice Hotchkiss of the New York supreme court, who ruled on the Majestic company's petition, recognized and declared valid the rights claimed by Mr. Fairbanks under the optional clause of his contract with Majestic permitting him to sever his engagement at any time that David W. Griffith should cease to exercise supervision over the productions in which Mr. Fairbanks appeared.

The court sustained the plaintiff's plea for an injunction against Director Emerson. His contract calls for one year's services at $750 a week, dating from October 4, 1916.

Carlyle Blackwell Re-Signs

Carlyle Blackwell, the only male star of the World Film Corporation, has signed a new contract with Director General William A. Brady covering an extended term. Mr. Blackwell's pictures have shown a steadily increasing popularity and he is unquestionably a very important asset to the World-Brady interests. His first play under the new arrangement will be "The Pride of Race," in which Robert Hilliard was exceedingly successful on the speaking stage.

Edward Earle, former star of Edison productions and later featured player with Metro, has been added to the cast of "God's Man," the ten-reel super-photoplay being produced by the Frohman Amusement Corporation.

FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION

Chicago F. I. L. M. Club Reorganizes to Prepare for National Show and Rolls Up Sleeves for Task of Forming National Body

The F. I. L. M. Club of Chicago has called its generals together and is concentrating all its energies on the mobilization which it has begun among the F. I. L. M. clubs of other cities as the forerunner of an F. I. L. M. national convention next summer. A reorganization has just taken place which puts the executive committee on a new footing. The new line-up will allow of a larger force on the firing line and serves to divide the volume of work which otherwise would devolve on a few members.

The new executive committee has six members. Three have been elected to serve sixty days and three to serve thirty days. The regular term hereafter will be sixty days, elections to be held at intervals of thirty days. Thus there will be three new members chosen each month and the burden of detail and committee work in connection with the convention will be shared by all members. The club now has a membership of thirty-six.

The list of those elected to the new executive committee looks like this: To serve sixty days: I. Van Runkel, of the Universal Exchange, chairman; Walter Scates, of the General Film Company; Maynard Schwartz, Reliable Feature Film Company; Floyd M. Brockell, Central Film Company; J. E. Willis, Bioscope Company; J. Hayes, Photo Play Productions Releasing Company.

The reorganization took place at the regular February meeting, held at the Morrison Hotel, February 23, President J. L. Friedman presiding. The executive committee held a special meeting March 7 to lay its plans and diagram the work of the committees which will handle the arrangements for the convention. Weekly meetings will be held each Friday by the executive committee from now until the time of the convention and the regular meetings of the club on the fourth Friday of each month.

William H. Jenner, branch manager in Chicago for the K. E. S. E. service, will still direct the publicity.

The F. I. L. M. Club entertained Jerome Abrams, special representative of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, as a guest of honor.

Watterson R. Rothacker, of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago, gave a short talk on the censorship situation in Illinois. Because of Mr. Rothacker's later departure for Hot Springs, Arkansas, the meeting named I. Van Runkel to serve in Mr. Rothacker's place as a committee of one on censorship.

William Fox Visits Coast

For the first time since he began manufacturing motion pictures, William Fox has taken a vacation, if his trip to Los Angeles, where he will spend the next month or two inspecting his huge film plant, may be called a vacation. His trip enables him to see for the first time the studios on which he has spent millions of dollars.

Mr. Fox is a New Yorker from head to foot. He was born on the East side and spent practically all his life within the boundaries of the metropolis. Until a few months ago he had never been farther west than Fort Lee, New Jersey, where his eastern studios are. Then he contrived to snatch enough time from his work to steal out to Buffalo. That has been his western record until he undertook his present trip. Mr. Fox's eastern travels have been as restricted as his western. He has gone as far as his summer home at Woodmere, Long Island, a few miles beyond the city limits.

The tales told by the few who get to the Fox general offices about the climate, scenery, and Mr. Fox's studios and actors convinced him it was time to see these marvels for himself.

Metro Pictures Corporation is opening a chain of offices in Eastern Canada. The first of these is in operation at 8 McGill College avenue, Montreal, and within a few days headquarters will be opened in Toronto.

These are the Chicago exchange managers who started the first F. I. L. M. Club. They have a habit of doing things. Next it will be a national convention of F. I. L. M. Clubs, in July. From left to right, in the outer row, they are as follows: Henry W. Dreeker, Hoy Reporting Company; Herbert P. Luse, Hoy Reporting Company; J. E. O'Toole, Fox exchange; George Berg, Unicorn Film Service Corporation; Cresson E. Smith, manager Metro exchange; J. E. Skirboll, Metro; J. E. Bowman, International Film Service; I. M. Schwartz, Reliable; Milton Kussell, Celebrated Players; Harry Weiss, Selznick-Pictures; H. A. Spannth, Commonwealth Pictures Corporation; J. L. Friedman, president F. I. L. M. Club, Celebrated Players; Floyd M. Brockell, Selznick-Pictures; I. Van Ronkel, Universal exchange; J. M. Hayes, Photo Play Productions Releasing Company. Second row from left: Frank Rutledge, Paramount; William K. Jenner, K. E. S. E.; Sydney E. Abel, Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.; J. E. Willis, American Bioscope Company; Watterson R. Rothacker, Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company; S. Greiwer, General Feature Film Company; J. E. Plough, Universal. Middle row in front: I. H. Kuh, E. L. K. Film Company; E. Schwartz, E. S. Film Service; R. C. Seery, Triangle; Ralph O. Proctor, Art Dramas. Front row: E. E. Fulton, E. E. Fulton and Company; Logan Rozelle, World; J. M. Leaverton, Leo-Bel Company; J. Robison, Comedy Film Company; F. Boutell, Hoy Reporting Company.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM FOR EXHIBITORS

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

New Theater a Community Builder

GIVING real estate values an upward push by the erection of a theater in a neighborhood not yet thickly built up has been accomplished by the owners of the newest Chicago theater to open its doors. It is Ascher Brothers' new Milford Theater, at Milwaukee and Crawford avenues, which was opened February 24. With the completion of the Milford, fourteen theaters in Chicago now display the Ascher signs. The location of the Milford in a comparatively new neighborhood is the fact of chief interest in connection with its completion.

The management of the Ascher organization looks forward to a more rapid development of the neighborhood both in the building of new homes and in the erection of other commercial blocks, as a direct result of the presence of a theater of the attractive, inviting appearance of the Milford. Although in an outlying section of the city, the adjacent neighborhood is well enough built up at present to support a theater.

Situated on one of the main traffic ways to the northwest side of the city, on a corner where a cross-town artery of traffic crosses Milwaukee avenue, the theater is in the center of a district which in the future will doubtlessly experience a fast growth. Both Milwaukee and Crawford avenues are business streets along many miles of their courses.

The Milford is under the personal management of Walter Dietz. It is a 1,400-seat house, finished inside and in the lobby in Italian verdi marble with floors of black and white mosaic tile. Every seat faces toward the screen. The ventilating ducts, both for fresh air and the outward current, are constructed in the side walls. Twelve exists are provided on the floor of the auditorium. In the same building are several stores and offices. The illumination in every Ascher theater is distinctly artistic. In the Milford the lighting centers in a dome. The architect was Henry L. Newhouse.

Grand Theater of Seattle Burned

By A. R. M. Sutton,
Special Motography Correspondent.

The recent fire at the Grand Theater, on Cherry street, Seattle, resulted in the death of one man and the injury of eight others. The dead man is Fred G. Gilham, battalion fire chief, and the injured are members of the fire squad who were with Chief Gilham fighting the fire in the balcony from the gallery above, when the roof caved in, hurling them to the balcony and nearly burying them under the debris.

The fire was discovered at 6:30 in the morning by the Japanese janitor, who first saw the blaze reflected in the aluminum curtain. The real blaze was near the front of the balcony, where it is thought it was started by defective wiring. The sudden collapse of the roof while the firemen were on this gallery was the cause of the tragedy. Those from below immediately rushed to the rescue of Chief Gilham and his men, and all the men were quickly disentangled from the wreckage, when it was discovered that the chief was missing. They soon found him, but he was already dead.

Eugene Levy, manager of the Grand, was in Chicago at the time of the fire. He immediately sent a wire extending his sympathies to the family of the dead battalion chief and to the families of the other injured members of the department; then he hurried home to arrange for the opening of his show, which consists of vaudeville and pictures, at some other theater. The Grand will not be rebuilt. Mr. Levy has not yet reopened his show, but he expects to do so in the very near future.

The Grand was the oldest theater building in Seattle, having been built in 1902 as a legitimate house. It was opened with roadshow attractions, but after a lively contest with the newer Seattle Theater under the management of John Cort, it became Seattle's leading theater, where the best known actors and actresses of the country made their appearance in this city. On the opening of the new Moore Theater in 1910 the leading attractions went there, and Mr. Levy leased the Grand, and for the past six years has operated it as a five and ten-cent vaudeville and picture house.

Chicago's new Milford Theater, which has boosted real estate values in its vicinity.

Savoy Re-Opens in Frisco

Again San Francisco patrons of the screen may take their hour of entertainment in the comfortable seats of the Savoy Theater, which has been re-opened under the management of Messrs. Sheehan and Lurie, whose success with the Rialto Theater has won them a large following.

An orchestra of more than forty pieces is provided at the new Savoy. The opening bill was the Kellermann feature, "A Daughter of the Gods."

San Francisco theaters having seating capacity of 2,000 or more are in favor among exhibitors. Among the houses whose capacity will pass this figure is the New Fillmore Theater, which is to be remodeled in March. It will then have a seating capacity of 2,100.

In Sacramento, Cal., the Sequoia Theater, operated by I. F. Morris, has been remodeled at a cost of $20,000. It is one of the city's prettiest showhouses. Manager Morris has entered into a contract with the Fox corporation.

The Mission Theater in the same city will also show Fox productions this year.

An increase in admission from 10 cents to 15 cents worked out well for the Haight Street Theater, San Francisco, says Manager S. H. Levin. He tried the experiment recently in showing "The Rainbow Princess."

A novelty that is winning much comment for one San Francisco house is a section for smokers which has been provided in the Imperial Theater. A section in the dress circle is set aside for the purpose. Manager J. A. Parthington considers it a valuable advertising feature for his theater. He has just completed improvements costing $3,500, the smoking section being one of the innovations. These seats are sold at 20 cents. Just in front of the smoking section, in what is called the De Luxe section, are 200 22-inch opera chairs, and for seats in this part of the house, the admission is 30 cents.

Reports from Fresno, Cal., say that a $10,000 theater is to be built there this spring.

New Knickerbocker of Washington

Washington, D. C., is to have a new motion picture theater to be known as the Knickerbocker. It is being erected by what is known as the Knickerbocker Theater Company, at the head of which are Harry M. Crandall, who now owns four other theaters in Washington, Harry Bulkley, the head of the Hy Art Masterplays Company, George T. Smallwood and Fred S. Swindell.

The theater is located in the heart of the most fashionable part of Washington. The price paid for this piece of property is in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Architect Reginald Wychliff Gear has designed some novel features which will make the Knickerbocker different from any other structure in Washington.

It will take about six months to complete the construction and the cost of same will amount to $150,000. The building will be four stories high. The seating capacity of the house will be 1,800 persons.

The color scheme is gold, ivory and old rose. The women's retiring room is to be blue and gold, the balcony promenade is to be in lavender and ivory, with upholstery hangings in lavender velour.

A ventilation plant is being installed that will change the air in the theater at least once in every fifteen minutes.

The management of the theater will be given to Harry M. Crandall.

Australian Theater News

By Walter H. Sully.

The exhibitor of Australia has been put to the severest test in the history of the motion picture through the great coal strike which has just taken place. On learning that the city council electric light department was to cut the current, there was a rush to get in petrol engines, in fact an engine of any description, so long as it would drive a dynamo. Whilst many were lucky to get going, others had to close their doors. The Lyceum Theater, which is the largest in Sydney, installed a 14 H. P. Clement-Talbot motor car engine, and up to the present time, this engine has been running continuously from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. without a breakdown. The Empress Theater, in George street, hired a Ramson steam motor tractor engine, which carried through a success. All types and brands of engines were installed in the various city theaters. A great many of the suburban exhibitors were exceedingly lucky, as they control their own power, and thus were not interfered with by the cutting off of the power.

Union Theaters of Sydney put out a fine publicity display for the showing of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance." Shop windows in and around the city were supplied by Union Theaters with beautifully colored portraits of the famous star, and the newspapers are to run the whole story. A cameraman from Australasia has been instructed to take a motion picture of the huge posters on the boardings announcing the coming of "Gloria's Romance."

Charlie Chaplin in "The Count" was recently screened at the Empress Theater, and Ernie Vockler, a famous impersonator of the famous Charles, was going through with the Chaplin antics in the vestibule of the theater, and drew a crowd of fully two thousand people. The traffic constable who happened to be doing duty near the theater, noticed the great mass of people, and hurried to the spot, and found the impersonator doing the Chaplin act. The constable took Vockler's name for obstructing the traffic. The house manager hurried to the police department and explained "the whole situation" to the traffic inspector who warned him not to let it occur again.

The Triangle News, which is the smallest "newspaper" in Australia, and the official organ of the Lyceum-Triangle Theater, is now in its 37th edition and is very popular with patrons of the Triangle Theater. One novel feature in the "news" is the popularity contest which is being conducted for Triangle players.

The vestibule at the Crystal Palace Theater, Sydney, pictured a large vaudeville stage with settings and props of every description when the management was showing Clara Kimball Young in "The Common Law" and the settings represented the artist's studio, with a model of Miss Young posing for the artist.

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

MANAGERS of theaters in Fort Wayne, Indiana, recently held a "get together" and formed an association.

The Rex Theater, Ely, Minnesota, has been leased by H. R. Adams of Minto, North Dakota.

The new Hartwig Theater, at Dillon, Montana, will soon be ready to be thrown open to the public.

C. L. Denton of Dallas, Texas, has purchased the Cicero Theater at Cuero, Texas, from H. D. Buckingham.

Fire destroyed the Novelty Motion Picture Theater in Federal street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, with a loss of $25,000.

The Queen Theater at Scottsbluff, Nebraska, has passed from the ownership of Mr. Bucy to Harry De Buque of Alliance.

The Era Theater at Prestonburg, Kentucky, was destroyed by fire. Fire of unknown origin started after a dance had been held in the theater.

Omaha theaters give children's programs every Saturday morning. The Muse, the Strand and the Besse theaters advertise special children's features.

Rigney Theater at Albany, Missouri, suffered a disastrous loss by fire February 7, which damaged the building probably beyond the extent of $10,000.

Manager Rothapfel, of New York's Rialto, promises to have a fit in his theater every two hours. The fit is "Skinner's Dress Suit," which he says was cut exactly to his measure.

Forty members of the Utah Screen Club and the Theatrical Managers' Association of Salt Lake City appeared before the legislature to protest against the Chez censorship bill.

Detroit exhibitors are up against a question of a satisfactory method of carrying their films. The operators, through their union, flatly refuse to carry films after February 26.

Burr Swan, of Pittsfield, Illinois, has booked his Christmas feature for 1917. He will show "Twin Kiddies," a Pathe production, in Swan's Opera House, December 25, 1917.

The city council of Rockford, Illinois, has passed an ordinance setting limits for Sunday performances of pictures between the hours of 1 o'clock and 6 o'clock, effective after February 25.

Responding to a request from Manager Irving Davis of the Blake Theater, of Brooklyn, New York, the council has passed an ordinance prohibiting the leaving of baby buggies in the lobbies of moving picture theaters.

M. J. Gerson, an exhibitor owning two theaters in Whitestone, L. I., New York, declared that if a state tax were imposed he would have to close the second of his houses, the first being already out of commission.

Wisconsin lumber camps are having difficulty in keeping men. Some camps are installing moving pictures to provide entertainment for the workers. A picture show has been started at Ashland for the "lumber jacks" there.

Claiming that the entrance of the Majestic Theater, at Grand Rapids, Michigan, projects one foot over the street line, City Attorney Ferguson has filed condemnation proceedings against the owner of the building, the Orin Stair Company.

The Yazoo Theater, at Yazoo, Mississippi, managed by George C. Cacum, has been drawing attendance from neighboring towns at some of its recent showings. The Star Theater of Yazoo is again operating. Mrs. J. E. Devoto is now manager.

Selected portions of these films, showing the wild animals, the peoples, and the industries of the countries visited will be shown for a series of weeks, beginning March 4. Lectures to supplement the pictures will be given afternoon and evening.

The Racine Theatrical Managers' Association of Racine, Wisconsin, held an important meeting at the Orpheum Theater, Racine, recently. Arrangements were made by the different theaters interested for the bookings of all big current attractions, both in the legitimate and special film features.

The Strand Theater of Seattle, Washington, brought in the crowds to see Charlie Chaplin in "Easy Street" by setting a jointed, wax figure of Chaplin in the lobby on a revolving platform. The antics of the wax man were not different from some of the things Charlie himself has been known to do.

The amount of film which theaters in Butte, Montana, may keep on the premises hereafter will be limited to 6,000 feet, if a resolution introduced in the city council becomes an ordinance. It is understood that the measure is aimed not at the theaters but at concerns which are said to be considering Butte as a producing point.

The National Board of Review has completed an investigation into the motion picture conditions in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and reports the situation healthy. Commissioner D. G. Johnson of the department of public safety of Colorado Springs has been appointed a member of the advisory board of the reviewing body.

In an effort to obtain better attractions in the motion picture houses in the vicinity of the Maryland avenue school, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, a committee of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Maryland avenue school invited the managers of theaters to attend a joint meeting. Mrs. R. P. Kraft was elected president of the association.

Theaters in Hawaii operated by the Consolidated Amusement Company of Hawaii will present McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" series. The company will show the pictures also to the leper colony on the island of Moloki. The Bijou, always a vaudeville house heretofore, will present "Seven Deadly Sins" as its introductory feature films.

Features like "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," "The Crisis," "The Garden of Allah," and "A Daughter of the Gods," will be presented to the public of Fremont, Nebraska, through the enterprise of Wall Brothers, owners of the Wall Theater. They will reopen and equip the Larson Theater for the exhibition of special features.

The local ordinance of Fort Worth, Texas, regulating moving picture shows and creating a board of censorship has been declared invalid by Judge George E. Hosey of the County Court for Civil Cases. He granted an injunction asked by A. Zuccaro to prohibit city officials from interfering with the showing of a film seized recently at his theater.

A rowdy arrested in the Trent Theater, Trenton, New Jersey, was fined $20 by Police Magistrate William Geraghty, before whom the man was arraigned on the charge of creating disorder in the theater. Magistrate Geraghty, who intends to do his best to stop rowdyism in theaters in that city, said that in future he will not impose fines but will commit offenders to terms in the county jail or the workhouse.

An occupation tax for all Nebraska motion picture theaters is proposed in Senate File 224, of the Nebraska legislature, by Senator Tanner of Omaha. The bill is in the hands of the committee on miscellaneous corporations. The measure provides that in Omaha each motion picture house shall pay an occupation tax of $10 a year, in Lincoln $7.50 a year, in other towns from $2 to $5, according to population.

"Joan the Woman," the Cardinal production that has been doing a turnaway business at the Forty-fourth street Theater, New York, since its premiere at that house seven weeks ago, was presented at the home of Edson Bradley, the Washington society leader, as a charity entertainment on the evening of February 13. Six hundred spectators willingly paid $5 a seat for the privilege of witnessing the big spectacle.

On Sunday morning of its anniversary week recently the Majestic Theater at Columbus, Ohio, played host to several hundred newsboys. This and other doings of a Majestic kind are narrated in the clever and attractive monthly magazine and bulletin issued by the Majestic for its patrons. The paper is six inches by nine inches in size and has twenty-four pages. It is illustrated with half-tones taken from the month's Paramount releases shown at the Majestic.

Prizma pictures, made by a newly invented four-color process in photography, are being shown to the general public for the first time as part of the New York Strand's regular program for the week of February 26. The main attraction on the Strand screen is "The Fortunes of Fifi," the new Frohman production, with Marguerite Clark. Victor Moore appears in "Some Doctor." An educational on the subject of "Whale Fishing in the Northern Pacific," and the Strand topical review complete the program.

The defensive campaign of Texas exhibitors and exchanges against the pending censorship bill in the Texas legislature has been given added impetus by half-page advertisements in newspapers having a combined circulation of 300,000. E. H. Hulsel, general manager of the Queen Theaters in Dallas, Houston and Galveston, Old Mill Theater in Dallas, Zoe Theater in Houston, Hippodrome in Waco, and other motion picture houses in the state, caused the advertisements to be inserted. He has been one of the most persistent and active exhibitors back of the movement.

Putting the advertisement of a theater into every school room in a community is not done every day. E. D. Brown, of the Garden Theater, at Pottsville, Pennsylvania, got around the school board's restriction by offering to distribute all the pupils those serviceable and necessary articles, rulers. On the rulers there appears the following: "Pottsville's Paramount Playhouse. Open from 1 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. Drop in after school. A show begins at 4:15 p. m. You'll learn something worth while every time you visit us. The world's greatest thinkers daily contribute educational subjects in two hour shows."

The Rialto of New York presents on its screen during the week beginning February 25, Thanhouser's version of "The Vicar of Wakefield," in which Frederick Warde, acting president of the Actors' Church Alliance, is featured. A delegation of the New York clergy attended a showing of the film at New Rochelle and heartily endorsed the production.

The management of the Rialto, New York, has obtained exclusive privileges to some twenty thousand feet of film brought from Central and South America and the islands of the Caribbean sea, by Dr. Edward A. Salisbury, naturalist and big game hunter, Rex Beach, the novelist, Mary Roberts Rinehart, the writer, and a party of scientists from Harvard, the University of California, and the University of Kansas, who have recently returned from a twelve thousand mile powerboat journey to those countries.

The Greater Theaters Company of Seattle is opening up its new Rialto Theater in Butte, Montana, this month. C. S. Jensen, one of the founders of the company, has gone to Butte to manage the new house. Since the opening of the Coliseum, the company's large Seattle theater, a little over a year ago, Mr. Jensen has been managing this playhouse. The man who has been engaged to take his place is E. D. Tate, recently representative in this territory for W. H. Clune with "The Eyes of the World." Mr. Tate was for a year with Warner's Features in Seattle, then for four years he was manager of Sol Lesser's Feature Film Company there. Later he was transferred by Mr. Lesser to his Golden Gate Exchange in Los Angeles, where he remained until last fall. The new publicity man for the Coliseum is J. O. Hovick, formerly motion picture editor for the Seattle Daily Times.

Pick yourself out of this garden of smiling faces at the banquet given to exhibitors by Paramount in honor of the acquisition of "Fatty" Arbuckle. The jolly affair, which was attended by about 100 exhibitors, as well as many exchange and press people, was held in the Sherman House, Chicago, February 27.

"FATTY" IN CHICAGO

Paramount Gives Dinner to Exhibitors of Mid-west in Honor of Big Comedian's Capture—150 Present—Many Speakers

You, if you have been reading MOTOGRAPHY, know that some time ago the Paramount Pictures Corporation captured Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, erstwhile of Keystone, and, as Joseph Hopp, president of the Chicago Exhibitors' League, styles him, "the modern Falstaff."

On the evening of February 27 Paramount and the exhibitors of the middle west celebrated the big comedian's new association with a banquet at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago. "Fatty" was there, also President Adolph Zukor, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and other prominent personages. About 150 people were present, including a large number of exhibitors, exchangemen and representatives of the daily and trade press.

At the speakers' table were—from left to right in the picture—Max Goldstine, manager Chicago Artcraft office; James Steele, treasurer Paramount; Roscoe Arbuckle; Joseph Hopp; Adolph Zukor; Mrs. Arbuckle (Minta Durfee, on the screen); Mrs. Alfred Hamburger; Alfred Hamburger, prominent Chicago exhibitor; S. J. Stoughton, Paramount's new middle west representative.

The burden of the musical words of the speakers introduced by Toastmaster Hopp was "better, cleaner pictures." Paramount was many times congratulated on the acquisition of so prominent and wholesome a laughmaker as "Fatty." The latter, Mr. Zukor brought out, has not asked a big salary but has wished to succeed or fail according to the merits of his productions and to profit or lose in proportion. "The greatest art of all," said Mr. Zukor, "is to make people laugh; and we didn't feel that Paramount could furnish an absolutely complete art to the public until it had acquired the best comedian on the screen."

The good natured "Fatty" was cheered enthusiastically when he was introduced. Between his stories he told that he had for the past three years produced his own comedies and that he now had an arrangement by which he could work for himself and a great distributing company at the same time. In mentioning the hardships of his trip from Los Angeles to New York, Fatty stated that at one time the party had been without food for three hours.

The other speakers were James Steele of Pittsburgh, treasurer of Paramount; Mrs. Alfred Hamburger, who made the finest speech of the evening, urging that the new art of pictures should be free, and complimenting Paramount on its wholesome productions; William Jefferson, husband of Vivian Martin; Louis Angert, representing Joseph Schenk of New York; Herbert Warren; A. Siegfried, an exhibitor of Decatur, Illinois; Louella Parsons, Chicago Herald; Oma Moody Lawrence, Post; Miss Oettinger, Photoplay Magazine; M. Linick, representing the German press; A. E. Curtis, MOTOGRAPHY; Bob McKnight, Examiner; W. K. Hollander, Chicago Daily News.

The Arbuckle party was greeted upon its arrival in the afternoon by a crowd of 100 fans. Manager Rutledge of the local Paramount office and the Reel Fellows Club escorted the visitors to their hotel.

REEL FELLOWS AT HOME

Chicago Club Opens Its New Club Rooms with Lively House Warming—Proceeds of Studio Ball Makes for Prosperity

The Reel Fellows Club of Chicago took up its abode in the new club rooms in the College building, February 23, with an affair rightly called a "house warming." The prosperity of the Reel Fellows as a result of their studio ball at the Essanay plant a fortnight before, which netted close to $1,000, lent a pleasant aspect to the party. The success of the ball has been the means of enabling the club to achieve its hopes in acquiring a well furnished suite as its quarters.

Oratory flowed profusely, the click of the cue kept tune with the music, and real wit deluged the place. Entertainers were there to do their bits. Attorney David T. Alexander made the address of welcome and expressed the members' appreciation of the work of the ways and means committee, Treasurer Harry Miller, and others who were responsible for the fitting up of the club rooms. Each committeeman got a hand. To name them, they are D. T. Alexander, chairman, John G. Haag, David Russakov, W. D. Burford.

The next regular meeting of the Reel Fellows took place March 2. The new club rooms have quickly become a headquarters for daily assemblages. Among those present were:

Harry C. Miller, Eugene Hamburg, J. G. Haag, M. G. Watkins, Willard C. Benson, W. D. Burford, E. Mordue, David T. Alexander, "Buck" Slavin, E. Shore Watkins, William Sweeney, B. Greiver, R. C.

White, B. W. Albert, Freeman Owens, Arthur E. Curtis, Ralph E. Duncan, E. P. Lockwood, D. Russakov, G. T. Delvn, E. C. Schwarz, H. R. Skirboll, Cresson E. Smith, C. L. Geesey, Bob McKnight, George V. Booth, M. J. Weil.

Anna Luther With Ince

Anna Luther, after an absence of some months, has returned to the Triangle program as a member of the Ince Stock Company. She will be remembered for her Keystone roles in "Crooked to the End" and "The Village Vampire."

See what Tom Ince has captured.

Unlike the young women who have entered screenland via the legitimate stage, Miss Luther went into pictures just because she was told that no director would take her on account of her red hair. Though these same red tresses have put her in the beauty class, and have earned for her the sobriquets of "The American Jersey Lily" and "The Poster Girl," she has always displayed a certain sensitiveness regarding her particular color scheme.

But when her young companions in Newark, New Jersey, good-naturedly twitted her on not having locks of a shade popular with moving picture directors, she became indignant and journeyed to New York the next morning. Before the day was over she had succeeded in landing as an "extra" with a picture company.

That was three years ago. After the first picture Miss Luther was given a part, and as she brought to the work a great degree of intelligence and earnestness, she progressed rapidly and graduated into the Triangle-Keystone Company, where, under Mack Sennett, she worked up to stellar roles.

As a matter of fact, Miss Luther, who is yet in her teens, shows no trace of conceit. She is a wholesome, happy girl of buoyant spirits, who romps through her roles with genuine love for her work.

Both Newark and Jersey City claim Anna Luther, as she divided up her childhood between the two cities.

It is said that Ince has many interesting plans in mind, in which Miss Luther will figure.

How Doug Got His Grin

Douglas Fairbanks was recently asked by an inquisitive friend to account for his almost permanent smile.

"I got into the habit of grinning," replied Doug, "from sheer delight at being alive and strong."

"What appeals to you mostly in your screen work?" the inquisitive friend again questioned the athletic hero.

"Best of all in moving picture work," said the star, "is the consciousness of having to give an economic quality to the happiness you impart to millions of people. The tired business man goes to the film theater to get a laugh. He not only receives his laugh, but it exercises the emotional side of him. Irons out his emotions, so to speak. He is then better prepared to meet life's battles. A man relaxes when he laughs, and relaxation means emotional strength. It isn't the laughter that gives us strength, it's the exercise of the emotions. This is clearly proved by the fact that we feel just as refreshed by a good cry as we do by a good laugh."

Talking Pictures

By T. B. Lambert

The public is ready and on the verge of demanding talking motion pictures.

Many patents have been issued in connection with this branch of the art, and some sporadic attempts have been made to produce them, but to date no one has succeeded, in a practical way.

From the very advent of the motion picture art, the first and most natural suggestion to any one who knew the phonographic art, was, why not connect pictures with the phonograph?

The next thought was how to run them together, and that suggested a number of commonplace methods, such as by belt, sprocket chain, gears, directly connected shafts, synchronous motors and similar devices.

To a student of the mechanical arts it is plain why none of these simple methods can be successful.

The careless observer says perfect synchronism between the moving picture machine and the phonograph is essential.

Synchronism is the cry—and non-synchronism is the word.

It is impossible in the present state of the art to run a picture machine at a perfectly uniform speed, and it is essential that the phonograph shall not vary in speed, especially if it is to reproduce music.

Until some practical method is found whereby a compensating synchronism may be inserted between the picture machine and the phonograph, talking pictures will wait.

It is true that a motor of sufficient power, equipped with a perfectly operating governor, might be used to run the picture, and then directly connecting the phonograph therewith, would probably accomplish the desired result, but this would mean a vast expense, rebuilding thousands of moving picture machines.

Talking pictures must be practical from a mechanical and a business sense. They have not been, but soon will be, and the public is waiting for them.

Chaplin Film "Ruins" Theater

The Mutual Film Corporation has received the following letter, which has been handed to the legal department for settlement:

PRINCESS THEATER.

Piqua, Ohio, January 2, 1917.

Mr. D. J. Sullivan, Mutual Film Corporation, Chicago, Ill.:

We presented your picture entitled "The Rink," featuring Charles Chaplin in our theater last night. Persistent laughter and shouting on the part of the audience brought down most the house. The plaster fell off the ceiling and part of the floor sagged.

We have been showing pictures many years without loss of life or damage to property. "The Rink" has proved a menace to real estate improvement, and the result of one day's run has cost us considerable outlay in repairs. We enclose plasterer's and carpenter's bills. We would appreciate a check by return mail.—Yours sincerely, Manager Princess Theater.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTHUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONDON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 6411 HOLLYWOOD BLVD., ODN MEAKEY, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00

Canada	Per year $4.00
Foreign	Per year 5.00
Single copy	.15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.
If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 10, 1917 Number 10

What Picture Reviews Mean

A CERTAIN director has risen to remark that he always refrains from inspecting the finished product of his effort until he can see it in a theater, in company with the usual accredited representatives of the general public. He adheres to this routine because he has more faith in the critical ability of the audience than in that of the office experts or the professional reviewer.

So have we. Furthermore, we confidently believe that a picture really looks different on a theater screen, with a houseful of people about, the consciousness of a box office out front, and soft music. There is about as much difference between the theater and the shop projection room as a place to see films, as there is between the grocery store and the dining table as a place to display edibles.

The criticism of the film seen in the shop is more or less technical. It can hardly be expected to take full account of the emotional; and yet the appeal of the screen is distinctively and almost exclusively emotional. Emotion is not logical; it depends for its development upon an appropriate setting. It is the function of the theater to supply that setting. The diamond expert analyses an unset stone unmoved by its sordid surroundings; but the layman must have the gold or platinum setting before he appreciates the jewel.

That is why our reviewers must be trained in the technique of the drama. It is necessary that they see the film before it enters the theater, so that they may properly represent those buyers who are unable to sample the goods they intend to purchase. Therefore the reviewers, deprived of the unconscious counsel of public opinion and of the emotional advantage of favorable surroundings, must resort to scientific study and analysis of the subject before them.

The exhibitors who contribute to our department "What the Picture Did for Me," on the other hand, enjoy the double advantage of the audience's vote and their own experienced vision. Unbiased and truthful reports from this source are of incalculable value. That this is appreciated is indicated by correspondence in our files from both exhibitors and producers.

Wherever practicable, we have encouraged these reviewing exhibitors to give the apparent reasons why a picture is popular or unpopular. A study of the department reveals that the majority of criticisms are based upon a certain group of supposedly objectionable factors.

It will be obvious to the intelligent producer that where a consensus of exhibitors' opinion condemns a specific practice, it would be wisdom to abandon or modify the practice.

This is true even if an application of logic indicates that the exhibitors are wrong and the producer right. Marshall Field built his business on the principle that "The customer is always right." The successful producer will be prepared at least to concede that the exhibitor is always right when any considerable number of him agree on a verdict.

We commend the study of "What the Picture Did for Me" to directors; not because it is our department, but because it is really an exhibitors' vote, and almost a patrons' vote, on the work of the directors.

The Financial End of the Business

FROM a banker comes the word that the leading banking interests of the country are watching the motion picture industry very closely. While isolated evidences of this interest are familiar to all, it may not be generally realized in the trade that the banking fraternity as a whole is regarding the commercial advance of the art with calculating eyes.

The leading industrial position of the motion picture business would naturally command the attention of the money interests, aside from any opinions as to its profit-making superiority over other industries. As a matter of fact, it is well known that picture producing has had an unusually prosperous history, and the present tendency to reduce the scale of returns on investment is regarded with favor rather than disfavor.

Those accustomed to dealing with the conventional forms of securities have not found the motion picture stock market very attractive of late. While the shrinking of profits from an unusual to a reasonable basis was not objectionable, in some cases the diminishing process has continued to zero. The promotional activities of industrial adventurers here and there have tended to alarm an already sensitive capital. The conservative money interests have not viewed with favor the payment of exorbitant salaries to stars, except where it was demonstrated that such salaries were actually based upon an assured return. Some bankers also have based their skepticism (whether logically or not) upon what they allege to be an alarming lack of industrial system in the production process.

The chief cause of caution in the attitude of bankers toward the motion picture industry, however, is the difficulty some film executives seem to find in preparing financial statements that will stand the scrutiny of men accustomed to judging any business by its statement.

The tendency toward consolidation, viewed by the exhibitor only in the light of possible program and cast changes, is interesting to the bankers because the mergers so far developed have conserved strength and opportunity. It is probable that other consolidations still undeveloped will increase rather than diminish the stability of the manufacturing units.

Business must deal with bankers, and the motion picture business is no exception. There comes a time in the history of almost every business when a dependable statement is quite as important as a dependable product. While the majority of motion picture manufacturing concerns can and do show such statements, there is still a percentage that knows the technical side better than it knows the financial side of business management. There is, therefore, opportunity for the addition of more motion picture securities to the accredited investment list when adequate attention shall have been given, not necessarily to the factors that make for profitable investment, but to the factors that demonstrate reliability.

Objectionable Pictures

A THEATER in Minneapolis has just been closed, and its license revoked, for running a work of motographic art containing some thirty nudes. The climax came the more promptly that the theater manager boasted of the money he was making, of his own pure-mindedness and the evil-mindedness of the newspaper which attacked his show, and of the fact that the "public" approved his picture.

A single exhibitor who jumps to the conclusion that a hundred million people endorse him because he can keep a few hundred seats occupied is assuming a good deal of a moral burden. No one who knows mankind will deny that the most prurient and evil of pictures, could it be shown, would play to capacity in any big city. The belief that an immoral picture will be shunned and the house showing it remain empty is too idealistic for consideration.

Pictures of nudes are dangerous to the art—dangerous to the reputation and safety of the producer and the exhibitor. The fact that an inoffensive picture of that nature is possible does not warrant the attempt to find it—the chances of missing are too great.

The Minneapolis theater was not closed by censorship, but by straight, old-fashioned law and police power. The case is as good a demonstration as we need that censorship is unnecessary and superfluous. There is enough law and enough police power in every community to handle effectively any situation that can possibly be created by an objectionable picture. The fact that not one picture in a thousand releases can possibly be classed as objectionable demonstrates the absurd economic waste of censorship and the adequacy of police power.

Performances for Children

SIX HUNDRED CHILDREN AT NEW YORK SHOW—OTHER NEWS

THE Academy of Music, Newburgh, New York, reports excellent attendance at its special Saturday morning shows for children. The performances are conducted by Fred M. Taylor, manager of the theater, in co-operation with the Equal Franchise League, and are proving one of the most noticeable attractions at the Academy of Music.

When, on a recent Saturday, 630 children turned out and paid five cents and 100 adults paid ten cents to see Marguerite Clark in "The Prince and the Pauper," all parties concerned thought that record business had been done. The second attendance jumped from 800 to 1,500 and crowded the house to the doors. The attraction was "Cinderella," a Paramount Picture, featuring Mary Pickford. The ladies of the Equal Franchise League conducted the affair in remarkably good style and members of the Junior League acted as ushers. Miss Betty Moore was a feature of the program with her stories and Mother Goose songs. Miss Moore was costumed in Mother Goose garb.

Mr. Taylor distributed dodgers at the school buildings, but did very little advertising aside from this. He carried only a three-inch space in the newspapers and virtually let the performance run itself. Mr. Taylor has been so well satisfied with these shows that he has adopted the special children's performance as a regular policy of the house and arranged for Paramount subjects for Saturday mornings for many weeks to come.

Youngsters Entertained

Six motion picture theaters in Washington, D. C., on a recent Saturday afternoon gave special shows for the children, who came as guests of the "cleaner pictures" movement. Two performances were given in each theater, the first beginning at two o'clock and the second about three-thirty. The programs given at the theaters were:

Masonic Temple Auditorium, "Prince and Pauper" (Paramount); Circle, "Three Pals" and "Reel Life" (Mutual); Dumbarton, "Little Mary Sunshine" (Pathe); Home, "Three Godfathers" (Blue Bird); Truxton, "Patchwork Girl of Oz" (Paramount); and Blue Mouse, "Dawn of Freedom" (Vitagraph).

City Backs Children's Films

Lawrence, Kansas, a city of about 13,000 population, is soon to have a weekly picture show especially for its children. At a meeting of the ministers and the presidents of the different clubs in the city federation, the opinion was unanimous that such shows would be supported by the parents. Steps were at once taken to give the plan a trial. W. A. McKeever, head of the child welfare work in the University, selected a committee to go to Kansas City and choose films for several shows. All the mothers attending the meeting were willing to trust the judgment of Mr. McKeever and his committee regarding pictures suitable for children.

Lloyd Ware, manager of the Bowersock and Varsity Theaters of Lawrence, is co-operating with the committee and has expressed his willingness to try the plan suggested.

There was a difference of opinion regarding the best hour for the performance, but the time to be first tried will probably be at the close of school on Fridays. Most of the mothers were of the opinion that children would be better able to attend than on Saturdays, when they are needed at home.

Three kinds of films will probably be chosen, instructive pictures catalogued roughly as travelogues, humorous, and the films showing children's stories.

Professor McKeever pointed out that it would be necessary for the parents to support the show which is planned in order that it may pay the cost of running it.

Children's Shows in Omaha

The Women's and Teachers' Clubs of Omaha, Nebraska, have launched a splendid campaign for the special children's matinees which at their suggestion are being given at the Muse Theater in that city. R. D. Shirley, manager of the theater, wired the Paramount Exchange in Kansas City upon the event of the second performance:

"Put on my second children's performance today—packed the house, 911 children and every one pleased with 'The Prince and the Pauper.' The Woman's Club is boosting the thing in good shape and think each performance will increase—but that is impossible, as I did capacity business this morning, unless I give two shows."

In an article contained in one of the Omaha daily papers, the event was recorded to the effect that, "The kiddies' picture program at the Muse Theater gave the traffic officers in that section a lot of work, as they were lined up for a block and traffc was suspended quite a while.

"The occasion was the second of a series of Saturday morning programs for children, given under the approval of the educational committee of the Woman's Club. Sitting two in a seat the boys and girls demonstrated that the idea of the morning program for children is the biggest thing that has happened in the movie business in Omaha. Parents who have attended the programs have been as much interested as the little folks."

Teacher Arranges Matinees

Prof. Raymond H. Heine, principal of the Normal Training public school of Topeka, Kansas, believes in motion pictures for children. He has begun a series of Saturday morning matinees especially for children at the Orpheum in that city. In this work Prof. Heine is using a series of features outlined by the Kansas City Feature Film Exchange. Besides the five-reel pictures, Burton Holmes Travel pictures are included in the program and also the Paramount-Bray cartoons.

New Under Water Thriller Coming

J. Ernest Williamson has returned to New York from the West Indies where he has been engaged for several months in the production of another sensational under water thriller. Accompanying Mr. Williamson were several of the directors, camera men, and actor folk. It is said that no announcements will be made in regard to the Williamson's new picture for some months to come.

Indications of interesting Triangle activities. Below is Enid Markey in Ince's new "Blood Will Tell." In the oval is Seena Owen in "A Woman's Awakening," Fine Arts.

It's a crazy place for a nap, but here's Enid Bennett, the captivating little Ince star from Australia, siestaing on top of Mt. Baldy, California.

New Seena Owen Play

One of the leading features of the Triangle-Fine Arts production, "A Woman's Awakening," featuring Seena Owen and directed by Chester Withey, is a dance of the period of 1860. This is introduced as a retrospective. The girls are all attired in Colonial costumes, making one of the most attractive scenes of its kind staged at the Fine Arts studio for some time. The furnishings of the ball room are all of the 1860 period, with an old-fashioned square piano and candles. More than a week was required to get all the details of this scene, which is shown on the film in about ten minutes.

A. D. Sears plays the leading masculine role opposite Miss Owen. The other principals in the cast include Alma Rueben, Kate Bruce, Charles Gerrard, Alberta Lee and Spottiswoode Aitken. This cast is found to please exhibitors on account of the appeal of each member to the average audience.

"A Tale of Two Cities"

"A Tale of Two Cities," a superb screen adaptation of Charles Dickens' wonderful novel, will be released by Fox Film Corporation as a super de luxe production for the week of March 12.

William Farnum in the double role of the soft-spoken, aristocratic Charles Darnay and the devil-may-care, dissolute English barrister, Sidney Carton, has never done such masterly acting in his entire career in the spoken or silent drama.

Frank Lloyd, who directed Mr. Farnum's first superplay, "The Price of Silence," was in charge of filming the Dickens story.

The supporting cast includes Jewel Carmen, who played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "Manhattan Madness," as Lucie Manette; Charles Clary, as the Marquis St. Evremonde; Ralph Lewis, as Roger Cly; Herschel Mayall and Rosita Marstini, as Jacques and Madame De Farge.

Selig Producing in Chicago

The Selig Polyscope Company has in course of production a number of comedies which will be released in General Film Service. A company of clever comedians is at work at the studios at Chicago. Each of the comedies will carry a good plot in addition to laugh-provoking situations. William N. Selig believes there is a great field for one-reel comedies of worth. A large number of comedies will be filmed.

"THE GIRL FROM RECTOR'S"

Mutual Releases Film Story of Famous Stage Success, March 5, Starring Ruth McTammany as "Loute Sedaine"

With a fame and following ready made by its stage successes, "The Girl from Rector's" is coming out in motion pictures. The Mutual Film Corporation announces the release of a five-part picture edition of the play for the week of March 5.

Ruth McTammany in the role of "Loute Sedaine," the girl from Rector's, is the star and center of attention. Loute Sedaine is one of those fascinating characters that float across the theatrical horizon only once in a great while.

There is a strange charm in the story of Loute's adventures amid the bright lights and bad lands of Gotham. Given an exceedingly beautiful girl who aspires to fame as a dancer, with Broadway cafe audiences as her step-ladders, there is afforded an opportunity for spectacular grouping of characters that is unexcelled in any locale conceivable.

Love and Suspense are Present

"The Girl from Rector's," beautiful as a poet's dream, innocent as Eve before the serpent's advent, smiling as the Circe who turned Ulysses' companions into swine, and luckier than any unprotected beauty who ever trod the boards of Broadway, makes her way through the labyrinths of love gracefully and safely. There are the elements in "The Girl from Rector's" that go to make a big picture success. It is a drama of love and suspense—of light and life and rapid action and quick, unexpected change.

At one moment "The Girl from Rector's" appears to be on the edge of the precipice that leads to Dante's famous front gate, and an instant later, by virtue of the providence that watches over her, she is driving to safety in a richly furnished boudoir.

Goldwyn Takes Poll of Public's Tastes

PLAY-GOER WANTS TO SEE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN IN PICTURES

Mary Garden, of Europe, America and Goldwyn.

LOOKING down the list of stars signed by the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation in the short time since its entrance into the producing field, a newspaper critic notes the names—Mary Garden, Mae Marsh, Maxine Elliott, Madge Kennedy, Jane Cowl—and then he remarks, "Goldwyn has not yet signed up Theodore Roosevelt. And yet, on the other hand, and in general, why not?

The responses to Goldwyn's announcements that exhibitors and the public were to be asked for suggestions regarding its productions contain hints upon the tastes of some theatergoers whose ideas are of as much value to the exhibitor as to the producer who seeks the expressions of opinion. One writer says:

> Just one suggestion: What picture audiences are interested in seeing is women whose faces and personalities express refinement, purity, kindness, gentleness and sweetness. Such people are worth money to any management. Get this type of people and you will have masterpiece pictures.

Another volunteer emphasizes the same point, saying:

> There are too many commonplace looking women in pictures. In addition to making better pictures from the standpoint of the story, improve them from the standpoint of the actor, even though you find it necessary to create new actors for the screen.

Several hundred persons have written Goldwyn suggesting plays and novels available for picture production and it is interesting to reveal that two Goldwyn plays picked for production were selected directly by the public as a result of this direct contact with screen fans.

Exhibitors who own the theaters in which motion pictures are shown were called upon for advice as to the Goldwyn policy of distributing its productions and they responded readily and cordially.

Mary Garden Runs U-Boat Gauntlet

Mary Garden, famous star of grand opera, who has just entered motion pictures under Goldwyn auspices, completed her arrangements for going to Europe and sailed February 26, with only a shrug of her shoulders for the U-boats and enemy torpedoes.

Miss Garden is a passenger on the Spanish liner Alfonso XII, which will have very few Americans on her passenger list. During her stay in France, incidentally, Miss Garden is to act as the correspondent of a great New York daily paper and goes properly credentialled for this new work. She will prepare an autobiography also which will appear in American newspapers next fall.

Already, in response to Goldwyn's invitation, film fans everywhere are expressing their choice as to her first picture. Large numbers of her admirers ask Miss Garden to select "Salome" for her debut.

Goldwyn Tests Color Processes

Arthur Hopkins, chief producing director, who is a partner in Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, has been making a thorough investigation of new color processes and thinks that the color problem is virtually solved at the present time. And he goes further than this. He predicts that picture dramas soon will be produced by a method entirely practical. He speaks as follows:

> I think that the pictures have tremendous possibilities that are still unthought of. The drama has developed new forms and so have the motion pictures. In Goldwyn pictures we have already thought out one new form which will show "the stream of life."

Hugo Ballin, the noted mural decorator whose murals in the executive chamber of the Wisconsin capitol rank high in America's art achievements, is the latest celebrity to be called into service by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. He is actively at work in the Goldwyn studios designing the sets for the two productions now under way.

Miss Elliott's company is working side by side on the same floor of the Goldwyn studios with the

One of these two bright lights is Mae Marsh, of Goldwyn Pictures.

Mae Marsh company that is now almost finished with the first picture that famous screen star is completing for Goldwyn.

Goldwyn's promise that it would have twelve completed pictures ready before releasing a single picture for the public is thus two units nearer to accomplishment than it was thirty days ago. A third company with still another star will be at work in the next fortnight.

Goldwyn is rapidly completing the work of casting the other roles in the Elliott picture. One of the most important engagements announced thus far is that of Charles Dalton, who is now playing in "The Wanderer," the Biblical spectacle.

Pickford Film in Big Theater

The latest Mary Pickford play is to be presented at the Auditorium, the biggest theater in Chicago. Max Goldstine, local representative of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, has engaged Chicago's grand opera house for "Little Mary's" latest play, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," taken from Eleanor Gates' play and novel, to begin its run March 10. During Miss Pickford's occupancy of the Auditorium the admission price will be twenty-five and fifty cents.

"A Poor Little Rich Girl," in seven parts, is the first play since "Tess of the Storm Country" which brings Miss Pickford's inimitable qualities to the surface. A well trained orchestra composed of musicians who are familiar with the Auditorium's interior by virtue of their previous connection with the opera company, will have the musical score in charge.

Exhibitors Plan Charity Ball

The exhibitors of Greater New York are planning to hold a charity ball at Terrace Garden on Monday evening, April 16. The entire profits of the affair will be devoted to charitable purposes. A part of the proceeds will immediately be turned over to a number of worthy local charitable organizations and the remainder will be saved as the nucleus of a permanent charity fund. The fund will be under the control of a committee composed of manufacturers and exhibitors, whose duty it will be to see that none but charities that are worthy shall receive aid.

You know without being told that this entrancing scene was not bit off by the camera in Manhattan or Chicago. It's out on the sunny side of U. S. A. William Desmond, Ince dramatic dynamo, is the individual who is so cruelly persecuted.

PUBLICITY FOR "DEEMSTER"

Arrow Film Corporation Explains to Exhibitors in Detail the Advertising Plan Arranged for Film of Hall Caine's Novel

The advertising campaign begun in the trade papers in connection with the Arrow Film Corporation's forthcoming release, "The Deemster," from Hall Caine's novel, will not be discontinued as soon as the territorial rights have been disposed of, but the opposite course will be followed. The Arrow Film Corporation announces that the publicity campaign will be carried on as an aid to the state rights interests and exhibitors.

W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow states that the first step in carrying out this policy will be to issue one of the largest rotogravure publications ever printed in connection with a picture drama. This will consist of five pages. The fifth page, twenty-eight inches by forty-two inches, will serve as a hanger which the exhibitor may use for preliminary lobby display.

The other four pages will be devoted to the opinions of trade reviewers, to synopsis of the story and cast, and to a review of the merits of the picture as an entertainment. It will be sent to every exhibitor, large or small, throughout the United States and Canada. This publication, combined with advertisements in the trade papers, will establish the picture with exhibitors.

The twenty-four sheet stands, six-sheets, three-sheets, one-sheets, lobby displays, cuts and other advertising devices provided for the use of the local exhibitor are varied sufficiently to meet wide demands.

Each exhibitor will also be provided with a complete set of newspaper advertising copy, and forty reading notices ranging from ten to one hundred lines in reference to Hall Caine, Derwent Hall Caine, his son, who plays the leading role in the picture, the story of "The Deemster," the Isle of Man, and other matters which will carry news interest to readers of local papers.

Dr. Shallenberger will place the publicity department of the Arrow company, now conducted by Wilbur Bates, an experienced newspaper man, at the command of any local exhibitor who may desire to go further in local press work than the set forms provided may permit.

Montreal House Sets Record

All box-office records in Montreal, Ontario, have been surpassed by the Imperial Theater, showing "The Girl Philippa," Vitagraph's new eight-reel presentation of Robert W. Chambers' fiction masterpiece with Anita Stewart in the title role, and "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's current adventure serial starring Charles Richman and Dorothy Kelly. "The Girl Philippa" played four days at the Imperial to a box-office total that, to quote the management, "smashed every record this or any other theater in Montreal ever had."

"They were lined up from St. Catherine street to the door in triple rows," wrote the manager. He rebooked the picture.

In St. John, Canada, where "The Secret Kingdom" opened at the Imperial, Manager Romney wrote that he is doing exceptionally well with it.

The miniatures here give but a faint suggestion of the power and beauty in the big new Vitagraph Blue Ribbon, "Intrigue," which features the winsome Peggy Hyland. It made its maiden screen appearance February 26.

IMPRESSIVE NEW VITAGRAPH

"Intrigue," Starring Peggy Hyland, Bobby Connolly and Marc MacDermott, Blue Ribbon Feature Which Appeared February 26

"Intrigue," a most unusual offering in which Peggy Hyland, Bobby Connolly and Marc MacDermott are co-starred, will be released through the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. exchanges on February 26.

Originally "Intrigue" had been called "The Little Grand Duke," but with its completion by John Robertson there seemed to be warrant for changing its title to the one it now bears. There are exciting incidents a plenty in this latest Vitagraph production.

Peggy Hyland is traveling, as Peggy Dare, a wealthy young American girl, in Europe when the great war breaks out. Her fiance, Marc MacDermott, is stationed in Bonaturia, where he and his mother are surrounded by intrigue and court plots. There is an attempt to rid the throne of Bonaturia of its grand duke, played by Bobby Connolly, and all unwittingly Peggy is brought into the by-play.

She and the little chap, who is known to her only as a peasant's boy, arrive in Bonaturia after an exciting and hair-breadth escape on his part from assassination. Then the pot boils even more merrily and we are introduced to one thrilling episode after another.

It all ends happily, of course, and the two Americans are united. "Intrigue" is almost certain of a cordial reception among all those who enjoy excitement, a pretty face, and manly strength.

"The Barrier" at Broadway House

The Rex Beach Pictures Company's great sensational picture, "The Barrier," from Rex Beach's famous novel of the same name, opened an engagement at the Broadway Theater, Sunday, February 25, following the run of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." "The Barrier" was given an enthusiastic reception, as was Mr. Beach, who was present at the first showing.

"The Barrier," an adaptation of Rex Beach's great novel, is a story of life in the "gold strike" days in California and Alaska, and is the third medium through which this wonderful story has been placed before the public, the book having been a "best seller" and then staged as a theatrical hit.

Another of the impressive scenes in Vitagraph's new Blue Ribbon, "Intrigue," released February 26.

Special music for "The Barrier" was composed by Fred O. Hanks and Sol Levy and was played by an augmented orchestra. The music, following throughout the action of the drama, is, in effect, an opera.

RAVER SUCCEEDS SHERRILL

Art Dramas, Inc., Elects New Executive and Defines Its Future Policies—Continues Weekly Program Releases

Harry R. Raver has succeeded William L. Sherrill as president of Art Dramas, Inc. The resignation of the retired president was followed by a special meeting of the board of directors February 19, at which the company ratified the policy of weekly releases along the lines of established program distribution.

In the election of Mr. Raver as president, with George Wiley vice-president, Harry M. Goetz of the Erbograph Company, secretary, and Herbert Blache, treasurer, Art Dramas, Inc., avails itself of "young blood," Mr. Raver being still a young man. He has a record of thorough experience with distributing and producing companies.

He started as a traveling exhibitor in 1899, later operating exchanges in Omaha, Washington and Baltimore, and managing theaters in various cities. Mr. Raver went to New York in 1909 and took charge of the American affairs of Eclair of Paris, during which time he was also active as a director-member of the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company, which successfully fought the Patents company and made it possible for independent producers to make pictures. When the Film Supply Company of America was formed, Mr. Raver was elected secretary and general manager. He was appointed American representative of the Itala Company of Turin, and later elected secretary and treasurer of the company. Among the many splendid Itala films imported by Mr. Raver to this country was D'Annunzio's "Cabiria," the first motion picture to play a legitimate theater at a two dollar admission.

The All Star Feature Corporation was formed by Mr. Raver and he was one of the first to introduce the star and stage play type of picture, having brought to the screen such artists as Ethel Barrymore, Dustin Farnum, Thomas Ross, Jane Cowl, Gail Kane, Digby Bell, Edgar Selwyn, Cyril Scott, George Nash and others.

Metro Pays Star $75,000

Emily Stevens, one of the greatest emotional stars of the screen or stage, has just signed a new contract under which she will be paid $75,000 for appearing in four big picture plays which will be released by Metro Pictures Corporation. The pictures will be made under the supervision of B. A. Rolfe, president of Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., and Maxwell Karger, general manager of the Rolfe and Columbia studios. The first production in which Miss Stevens is to appear will be "Opportunity," by Edgar Franklyn. On the release date of the play the story will be published in Munsey's magazine. For the last five months Miss Stevens has been on tour in "The Unchastened Woman."

AIDS EUGENICS CAUSE

Dr. H. J. Haiselden, Surgeon-Actor, Who Stars in "The Black Stork," Advocates New Illinois Marriage Statute

Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, surgeon, and star actor in the eugenic photoplay, "The Black Stork," has won his first big fight for eugenic marriages by persuading the judiciary committee of the Illinois senate to report favorably the most drastic eugenic marriage bill ever proposed in the United States.

The bill provides for blood tests and drastic examinations before the issuance of marriage licenses. Dr. Anna Blount, an ardent advocate of eugenic marriages, originally started the agitation for the measure in which she sought only to prevent the marriage of diseased persons.

The battle with the legislators was getting too strenuous for her and she solicited the support of Dr. Haiselden. He agreed to join hands with her provided she would amend her measure and make it so broad that it would absolutely stamp out even the possibility of unhealthy babies. This she did.

Dr. Haiselden appeared before the legislative committee and told of his professional experiences in assisting in bringing into the world babies that were destined to be a menace with advancing years. He said in so many words that never again would he lift his hand to prolong the life of such a baby. Some of the legislators suggested that should he follow such a course he would be liable to arrest.

"That makes absolutely no difference to me," answered Dr. Haiselden. "I did this a short time ago and the state attempted to have me arrested only to find that I was within my rights. It was upon that case that the photoplay, 'The Black Stork,' was based."

General Film Appointments

General Film Company has made the following changes in its staff in order to further strengthen its service:

H. H. Buxbaum, formerly manager of the New York branch office, has been appointed comptroller of the company in charge of the operations of branches. B. F. Lyon, formerly division manager for the International, has been made supervisor over General Film's west central territory. He now has supervision over all sales of the following branch offices: Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Minneapolis. C. E. Shurtleff, recently Pathe's Cleveland manager, is now supervisor for General's east central territory. Mr. Shurtleff now supervises all sales of branch offices in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Wheeling and Syracuse. He was formerly manager of the Cleveland, Cincinnati and Detroit offices for V. L. S. E. Charles S. Goetz, who was manager of International's Cleveland branch, has been appointed branch manager of General's office at St. Louis.

Director George Irving of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, whose able direction spelled so much of the phenomenal success of "The Witching Hour," is again at the helm of production for his company in the making of the Frohman super-production in ten reels, "God's Man." Director Irving, with his entire company headed by H. B. Warner, the star, has returned from the vicinity of Cape Hatteras, where they have been encamped for the past ten days, securing the thrilling scenes of the shipwrecked tramp clipper, which play a most important part in the forthcoming production.

George M. Cohan and Ethel Barrymore.

Above is "Little Mary" and her mother, talking over things at the Artcraft Ft. Lee studio while Mary was working in "A Poor Little Rich Girl." The other pictures show "foreign" planets greeting the big Artcraft star, Geo. M.

Marguerite Clark and "United States" Cohan.

Two Artcraft Releases in March

COHAN'S "BROADWAY JONES" AND NEW PICKFORD PLAY COMING

THE release date of George M. Cohan's new Artcraft production, "Broadway Jones," has been set ahead one week to March 26, according to an announcement by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. By releasing the Cohan picture in March, Artcraft offers two subjects for the month, Mary Pickford's latest play, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," being presented commencing March 5.

In selecting the supporting cast for George M. Cohan's initial Artcraft picture, Director Joe Kaufman has assembled an exceptional company of artists of wide experience both on the screen as well as the theatrical stage. Each member of the cast portraying an important character in "Broadway Jones" is well known among patrons throughout the country and has achieved popularity as a result of individual merit.

Marguerite Snow as Country Girl

Appearing opposite the famous stage comedian is Marguerite Snow, whose three years' experience on the speaking stage under the managements of various prominent producers of metropolitan successes fitted her well for the demands of the screen. During her six years before the camera Miss Snow has acquired a large personal following as a result of her well-known portrayals in such subjects as "The Million Dollar Mystery," "The Upstart," "Second in Command," and others. In the role of "Josie," the sweet little girl of the country town, who shows "Broadway Jones" the path to success, Miss Snow registers what is expected to prove her greatest screen characterization in the first Cohan-Artcraft offering.

George M. Cohan, Marguerite Snow and several other players who were temporarily blinded recently, causing a few days' delay in the production of the picture, have fully recovered, and are again at work at the studio. The first scene to be taken following the return of the players was staged at Times Square, where Director Kaufman secured some real metropolitan effects. Using his auto as a shield and with his hand over his mouth so as not to attract attention, Mr. Kaufman obtained the desired material presenting George M. in the very heart of New York's theatrical district.

Although very much of a stranger to the workings of the silent drama, Mr. Cohan has given his new work great serious thought and study, with the result that he has proved an apt pupil.

"Little Mary" and "Doug" Triumph

The popularity of two Artcraft stars has been confirmed in a contest held by the Brooklyn Daily Eagle in connection with the Exhibitors' Ball held at Coney Island recently.

The contest terminated with Mary Pickford as the winner with 30,300 votes, while Douglas Fairbanks came out at the top of the list of male stars with 17,210 votes. They were named King and Queen of the ball and were honored with silver loving cups by the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. "Doug" Fairbanks, who was on hand to lead the grand march, personally received his gift, and Miss Pickford's cup was presented to Walter E. Greene, president of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, to be forwarded on to "Little Mary," who has removed to Los Angeles following the completion of "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the coming Artcraft release.

Artcraft Takes Larger Offices

As a result of the increased activities evidenced at the headquarters of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation in New York City, it has been found necessary to seek larger quarters.

The entire fifteenth floor of the Godfrey building, 729 Seventh avenue, in which the present Artcraft offices are located, has been taken over. The suite is now being fitted up under the direction of Al Lichtman, general manager of Artcraft, and John A. Kent.

The suite will also include the offices of the Fairbanks representatives as well as the New York exchange. Arthur G. Whyte, head of the local exchange, is already located in his new office on the fifteenth floor and it is expected that all other offices will be moved in about two weeks. The floor space of the new establishment measures 90,000 square feet.

We have often wondered why so many exhibitors go into the producing end of the game. Here are four reasons why they do. All the girls in the Metro film cutting rooms wear overalls now because of the high cost of skirts and because jeans are less finnicky about acids and general dirt.

PLAYERS JOIN FOX

James Cruze, Bertram Grassby and Beatrice Burnham Sign Up—William Fox Takes a Vacation

William Fox has lately added to his players' organization, James Cruze, star of the big serial, "The Million Dollar Mystery"; Bertram Grassby, a well-known figure in stock and on the legitimate stage before he entered filmdom; and Beatrice Burnham, who has just come from Yorke-Metro.

All will work in the West coast studios at Hollywood, in the new Gladys Brockwell picture now being filmed.

Other new players just engaged are Walter C. Robinson, six years with D. W. Griffith's forces, who is in Director Carl Harbaugh's recently begun Stuart Holmes feature; Boyce Coombs, in the cast of Virginia Pearson's photoplay; and Martin Reagan, with Valeska Suratt.

Three companies of William Fox players are now in the South. J. Gordon Edwards is in St. Augustine, Florida, Valeska Surat in Tampa, and the Nigh-Palmer organization in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Mr. Fox is in California paying a visit to his Coast plant. It is the first vacation he has taken since he began manufacturing motion pictures. He will be gone for six to eight weeks on his trip of inspection. Until Mr. Fox went to Buffalo a few weeks ago, he had never been farther west than Fort Lee, New Jersey.

As the first of the series of six five-reel features starring Crane Wilbur, David Horsley offers "The Painted Lie," a drama from a scenario by Mr. Wilbur. The week of March 26 is the time set for its release through the Mutual.

GREATER VITAGRAPH PLANS

President A. E. Smith Announces Constructive Policy for 1917—To Co-star Anita Stewart and Earle Williams

In pursuance of the promise to exhibitors that Greater Vitagraph will always strive to be what the name indicates, Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company of America, announces policies for 1917 even more generous than heretofore, embracing new groups or teaming arrangements of Vitagraph's principal stars.

Mr. Smith will personally support the furtherance of the Greater Vitagraph policy. He reiterates the company's aims regarding the continuance and extension of the thoroughly harmonious co-operation between the producing and the sales departments. He accredits Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., for the present successful operation of the distributing organization.

Greater attention than ever before will be given to the stories on which the features are based, and a closer supervision of production by J. Stuart Blackton, director general of Vitagraph.

Increase West Coast Facilities

In accordance with these plans, there has been a cutting down in the eastern studios of Vitagraph in Brooklyn and an increase in its western studios in Los Angeles. This was made necessary by the overburdening of the plant in Brooklyn under the previous system of producing there all the Blue Ribbon program and special features, serials, and comedies. The various mechanical departments of the Flatbush studios have now been eased of much of their former burden. Needed assistance has been given to the department hands who tried manfully to stand alone against a tide of growth that could not be stemmed.

The eastern directing staff, which will of course be under the personal supervision of Mr. Blackton, has been altered in its personnel so that W. P. S. Earle is now production manager. The other directors who will hereafter work in the Flatbush studios are Paul Scardon, Wilfrid North, Thomas Mills, Brinsley Shaw, Marguerite Bertsch, and Van Dyke Brook.

Make Blue Ribbon Films in West

In the western Vitagraph studios, William Wolbert and William Duncan will produced features and serials. Lawrence Semon will continue there to turn out the "Big V" comedies. David Smith, who is just completing a successful series of one-reelers, will be associated with and assistant to Mr. Duncan.

Following this change in directors and the locale of their work, a new arrangement of Vitagraph stars has been perfected.

Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, who even when they are starred alone are among the greatest of box-office attractions, will shortly resume their career of co-starring in Blue Ribbon program and special features.

For some time they were seen together in a number of Vitagraph productions, among them "The Juggernaut," "My Lady's Slipper," and many others that met with unusual popular favor.

Harry Carey has the featured role of "'Red' Saunders" in a five-reel comedy-drama produced at Universal City under the title of "Plain Mary Smith."

Exhibitor Signs Under Gun

This bit of gun play was staged in the offices of the Mutual Film Corporation's Los Angeles branch. D. S. McCarty, manager of the Broadway Comedy Theater of that city is gentleman signing under the gun, with "Shorty" Hamilton, hero of "The Adventures of Shorty" series released through the Mutual, behind it. Mr. McCarty is putting his name to a contract which means that the patrons of his house will be given a chance to see "Shorty" through the entire series. The other members of the party, witness to Mr. Hamilton's determined efforts that Mr. McCarty shall not escape unsigned, are seated at left of picture, T. C. Malcolm, manager of the Mutual exchange, seated left. Newton Levi, assistant manager of the Mutual exchange standing at "Shorty's" left, Clyde W. Slater, and William H. Clifford, the author.

Exhibitor McCarty, of Los Angeles, signing a contract for the Mutual "Shorty" series. At his right is T. C. Malcolm, Mutual Los Angeles manager; at McCarty's left is Newton Levi, Mutual's assistant manager. "Shorty" Hamilton holds the gun, and the curly head is William H. Clifford, author.

Vamp Becomes Stenog

Dorothy Dalton, who has gained popularity in recent "vampire" roles, soon will be seen in a different characterization, when she is presented by Thomas H. Ince in "Back of the Man," a Triangle-Kay Bee play by Monte M. Katterjohn. She departs in this subject from clinging gowns and sinister designs, and takes up the more lovable work of portraying a plodding stenographer of superior mental ability and strength of character.

"Back of the Man" is founded on the doctrine that "directing every masculine stride toward the goal of honest achievement is the soft guiding hand of inspiring womanhood." It recites the obstacles encountered in the city by a raw country youth, and the unusual circumstances that play a part in their removal. It bristles with adventure, and appeals with a strong romantic interest.

Opposite Miss Dalton is Charles Ray, the popular Ince juvenile, in the role of "Larry Thomas," the ambitious country lad, who becomes embroiled in a series of embarrassing difficulties. Jack Livingston, J. Barney Sherry and Margaret Thompson complete the cast.

"Pawned" is the title of a five-reel melodrama, the production of which is to begin at Universal City in a few days. Ella Hall will play the featured role.

Mutual Releases "Jimmy Dale" Series

"Jimmy Dale, alias the Grey Seal," a series of sixteen two-reel detective story pictures, each complete, is to be released by the Mutual Film Corporation, beginning March 23.

The announcement comes from the Chicago offices of President John R. Freuler of the Mutual following a series of conferences and negotiations between the Mutual and Jules Bernstein, vice president of the Monmouth Film Corporation, which produced the Jimmy Dale series.

The picture's star, E. K. Lincoln, who appears in the title role, together with Paul Panzer, Edna Hunter and Doris Mitchel.

The stories, now being published in book form, are by Frank L. Packard, the celebrated Canadian author who wrote "The Miracle Man" and other successes. Mr. Packard is one of the particularly popular contemporaneous authors for the reason of the wide circulation of his hundreds of short stories in the American magazines.

The New York publishers, George H. Durand Publishing Company, will co-operate in bringing the series to the attention of the public and the trade through the medium of the booksellers.

The series will be released, a two-reel story a week for sixteen weeks, beginning March 23. A full line of exhibitors' aids will be issued by the service departments of the Mutual.

Nevada Makes Big Feature

After months of careful preparation and the travel of the company half way around the world, the Nevada Motion Picture Corporation is well along in the production of Herman Whitaker's famous novel, "The Planter." The story is to be made in ten or twelve reels. Tyrone Power is being starred in the remarkable character of "Hertzer."

The company is located at 40 West Mountain street, Pasadena, California. Three or four tropical film villages have been built in that vicinity for use by the company immediately upon its return.

The company is just recently back from Guatemala, where much of the story of "The Planter" is laid.

"The Planter" was one of the six biggest sellers of its time. Over $200,000 has already been spent on the production, and it is expected that it will cost almost as much more before it is finished.

Tyrone Power in the Nevada Motion Picture Corporation's twelve-reel feature, "The Planter," filmed in Guatemala..

Two-Reel "Luke" Comedies

Pathe has decided to issue its "Lonesome Luke" comedies in two-reel lengths, beginning March 18, and has contracted with the Rolin Flm Company for the entire output of the west coast laugh laboratory.

The new "Lonesome Luke" pictures will be released at the rate of one a month. This is to insure time to perfect each one. Increased quality is Pathe's aim all along the line, says J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager.

Pathe has made inquiry among exhibitors as to the popularity of the comedies. Here is what some exhibitors say:

They run consistently good.—J. F. Osterstock, eastern representative Wilmer and Vincent, Inc.

Your Luke Comedies are making a big hit here and I personally think they are as good, if not better, than the Chaplin comedies.—John R. Elliott, Hippodrome Theater, Youngstown, Ohio.

Luke Comedies do as much business and give better satisfaction than any we have played here, and, as you know, we play them all.—Rae Theater Company, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

The best single reel comedies we receive, and certainly deserve praise.—Godfrey Kotzin, manager Lyric Theater, Covington, Kentucky.

Luke Comedies are sure laugh-getters.—Orpheum Theater, Oxford, North Carolina.

New Hart Play

William S. Hart, the popular western character actor, soon will be seen in another stirring play of the plains, when he is presented by Thomas H. Ince in "The Square-Deal Man," an original Triangle-Kay Bee subject from the pen of J. G. Hawks. Additional interest attaches to this production, in that it offers Hart in a role other than that of the "bad-man" that has brought him fame.

"The Square-Deal Man" is a throbbing drama of the west, telling the tale of a gambler, all man, who threw down his cards for a slip of a girl, and won his greatest stake.

Hart, of course, has the title role and has invested it, it is declared, with all the virility and forcefulness that have contributed to his success in the past. While the part is not that of a murderous gun-fighter, it is just such a characterization in which the star is at home; for, the stern-visaged person he portrays becomes embroiled in a series of irritating difficulties that require a six-shooter for solution.

Opposite Hart in "The Square-Deal Man" is seen a new leading woman. She is Mary MacIvor, the new ingenue.

McClure's Series in Hawaii

The San Francisco office of the McClure Series Department of the Triangle Distributing Corporation has booked "Seven Deadly Sins" with the Consolidated Amusement Company of Hawaii. This company controls Hawaii's best theaters, including the Bijou, one of the finest vaudeville theaters in Honolulu. Seven Deadly Sins will be the first motion picture feature ever shown in the Bijou, which is giving up its vaudeville bill for pictures just to show "Seven Deadly Sins."

Thanhouser Signs Neill

Edwin Thanhouser has engaged Richard R. Neill to play leads in a Florence La Badie production. Mr. Neill brings to the Thanhouser studio a fine experience gained in a number of different motion picture companies. He was last with Fox, supporting June Caprice, and played with Gail Kane, Mabel Taliaferro, Nat Goodwin, and others. His screen career has been with Equitable, Fox, Metro, and World. Mr. Neill had a legitimate stage career of six years under the management of Charles Frohman and was with E. H. Sothern, Virginia Harned in "The Other Girl" and with Mary Mannering, W. H. Thompson and others. His first appearance with Thanhouser will be in a new play by Lloyd Lonergan.

Praises "Skinner's Dress Suit"

Essanay's picturization of "Skinner's Dress Suit" is better than the original story. Henry Irving Dodge, the author, made this statement to Director Beaumont after witnessing an exhibition of the production in New York:

I want to tell you and everyone else who had anything to do with the scenario writing and directing of "Skinner's Dress Suit," how pleased I am with your splendid workmanship. Also, there were original touches put in that added greatly to the story. I thank you for these, particuarly.

For a smooth-running, human, absorbing proposition, "Skinner" beats anything I've seen. I had with me at the exhibition an authority on motion pictures. He said this production was flawless, and, in fact, could have run on two more reels. But that is where you showed great wisdom—in stopping your picture when people want more. Somehow or another the picture seems different, superior—and this is not the story I refer to, but the skill of yourself and your collaborators. I don't know of a point in the picture to which I could take exception.

Mr. Dodge is one of the most noted authors in the United States. His story of Skinner was published in The Saturday Evening Post, and won the praise of millions throughout the country.

"Skinner's Dress Suit" is having record bookings. Exhibitors who have run the picture report capacity business and are clamoring for return dates. In addition to a week's run at the Broadway Rialto Theater, New York, the production has had return showings at the Pastime Theater in Chicago's loop twice in one week, with "S. R. O." out each time.

On Fox Pay Roll

Here are the actors' names on the pay roll of the Fox Company at present, the latest reviewed list:

Theda Bara, William Farnum, Annette Kellermann, Virginia Pearson, Gladys Brockwell, June Caprice, George Walsh, Dustin Farnum, Winifred Kingston, Valeska Suratt, Stuart Holmes, Hank Mann, Tom Mix, Mary Martin, Harry Hilliard, Anna Luther, Irving Cummings, Walter Law, Jane Lee, Katherine Lee, Gladys Coburn, Carmen Phillips, Billie Richie, Miriam Cooper, Herbert Heyes, Ralph Lewis, Vera Lewis, Jewel Carmen, Willard Louis, Velma Whitman, Frank Morgan, Claire Whitney, Tom Brooke, Sydney Deane, Jack Standing, William Burress, Tom Burrough, Edward Cecil, Charles Girard, Charles Edhler, Dan Mason, Edward Hoyt, Frankie Lee, Herschel Mayall, Marie McKeen, Richard R. Neill, Betty Prendergast, Grace Stevens, Kittens Reichert, Robert Vivian, Pearl Palmer, Ned Findlay, Caroline Rankin, Dot Farley, Gertrude Selby, Mario Blanchi, Henry Lehrman, Joseph Granby, William Nigh, Violet de Biccari, Miriam Battista, Elizabeth Kennedy, Marc Robbins, Joseph Swickard, Harry De Vere, Rosita Martsini, Annette De Foe, Frances Burnham, Francis Carpenter, Cecil Holland, Ruth Thorp, Edward Roseman.

In Germany old and worn films are bought by dealers and exchanges to be melted down. The present prices for them are 8 to 10 marks per kilo ($1.90 to $2.38 per 2.2 pounds). The cost of a modern picture machine with all accessories ranges from 1,200 to 1,500 marks ($285.60 to $357).

The Man Inside the Booth

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT, CONDUCTED BY E. C. SCOBEY

THIS department is a permanent feature of MOTOGRAPHY. Its editor, Mr. Scobey, is a former secretary and treasurer of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 194, I. A. T. S. E., and was formerly associated with the Central Film Service Company of Indianapolis. He was recently elected vice-president of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, the first operator to be so honored. The idea is to make this department just as helpful as possible to operators and exhibitors. Send your questions and problems to Mr. Scobey. He is sure to give you some valuable information. Address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

I am having trouble with the motor on my projection machine and would like to have you tell me what to do to remedy the trouble. I am using a Simplex machine, with a generator set, using 35 amps. D. C. at the lamp and 100 A. C. on the motor. The motor I am using is made by The Electric Specialty Company. When I start the machine, I have to crank it by hand for about one minute, then the motor picks up and carries it all right. I have used this machine and motor for two years and it has been all right up to the last week or so. Can you tell me what to do with it?

Your trouble is caused by oil and dirt collecting on the rings in the motor that controls the speed of the motor and you can remedy the trouble by disconnecting the variable speed arm and then remove the screws in the end casting. On the inside you will find the rings. Clean them and put the casting and arm back in place and you will have no more trouble.

Exhibitor Has a Question

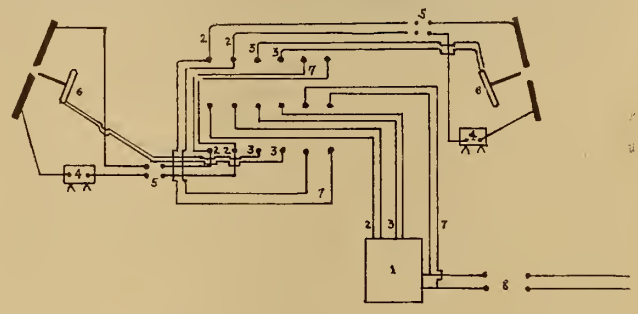
I have installed in the booth of my theater a new Auto Arc Control for the regulating automatically of the arc on the projection machine. I have two Power's 6A machines in the booth and I would like to know if I can use the one auto arc on both machines. If this is possible, please give me some instructions on how it is done and a diagram of the same. My operator says that it can't be done but if it can be I would like to do it and save myself the price of another auto arc.

I'm glad to get a question from an exhibitor. This department is as much for them as anyone else. Come often.

It is possible to use the auto arc on two machines, but it takes quite a bit of wiring and changing to do it. Here is a diagram that I believe will help you out. You will have to use a six pole, double throw switch, and the chances are you will not be able to buy one at the average electrical shop, but you can use two, three-pole switches, and place them side by side and remove the fiber bar that connects the knives on each switch and put on a single bar across the six knives, locking them all together, and practically making one switch out of the two. You will also have to have another celenoid to use on the second lamp, to control the feed of the carbons. I am not sure, but suppose that you can buy this part of the outfit separately from the American Auto-Arc Company.

Connect up the two machines as follows. There is one thing you must bear in mind: Test, with an ampere meter, and be sure that both lamps are working at the same amperage; your auto arc will not work unless they are.

As I have said at the beginning of this article, it is possible to use one auto arc on two lamps, and the following diagram will show you how to do it, but if I were doing it, I would buy another auto arc and in the long run save time, worry and expense. Taking money from Peter to pay Paul has proved to be very unsatisfactory, and I believe that your idea will turn out the same way.



No. 1. Auto Arc.
No. 2. Lead wires from Auto Arc to center lugs of six-pole switch, to feed the lamp when it is working on the Auto Arc.
No. 3. Lead wires from Auto Arc to to center lugs of six-pole switch to feed the celenoid controlling the feed of the lamp when the lamp is working on the Auto Arc.
No. 4. Rheostats on each lamp.
No. 5. Switch at machine.
No. 6. Celenoid at lamp.
No. 7. Mains to feed lamp not being used with Auto Arc. These mains are connected just ahead of the Auto Arc feed wires and behind the main switch hand fuses, of the booth, and are transposed at the six-pole switch so that when one lamp is on the Auto Arc, the other lamp may be used independent of the Auto Arc, and vice versa.
No. 8. Main switch and fuse.

After all connections are made, test each lamp to see that you have the polarities right, positive to top carbon and negative to lower carbon of the lamp. You will have to make two tests on each lamp. One using the auto arc and one straight through. Test first with the auto arc and then test without it. On the second test, you find the lamp burning up side down, reverse the connections for that lamp at the six-pole switch, numbered seven.

I am in trouble with the generator end of my motor generator and would consider it a great favor if you can give me some information as to the cause of the trouble. I have a Ft. Wayne motor generator set, and I have been having trouble with the generator not picking up at the start. Sometimes it will start off with a perfect light and maybe the next night it will be two or three minutes before it will pick up. I have noticed that the commutator becomes very dirty after running for an hour or so and I try to keep it clean but cannot shut down the show every hour to clean the commutator. I had to put on new brushes a while back and asked the manager to send to the factory for the new brushes, but instead of that, he bought some from a local electric company and I have been having trouble with the generator ever since. I notice that there is a spark at the brushes all the time, even after I have just cleaned the commutator, what causes this?. I hope to see an answer to this in next week's issue of MOTOGRAPHY, for which I thank you in advance. —G. H. J., St. Paul, Indiana.

From the way you describe the trouble with the generator I would say that your trouble is caused by the carbon brushes that you are using on the generator. I would send to the Ft. Wayne Electric Company and have them send me two sets of brushes for the machine. I suggest two sets so that you will always have a set on hand and avoid the trouble that you are having now, caused by experimenting with other brushes.

I think that the manager of your house will find out in time, the same as other managers and operators have found, that the maker of an article, no matter what the article is, knows better just what to use on it than the man who is always trying to improve on it or save a little money by using something "just as good" but a little cheaper.

When you get the new brushes, clean the commutator with a piece of fine sandpaper, but first remove the old brushes. Hold the sandpaper on the commutator while the generator is running. After being sure that the commutator is clean and smooth, polish the commutator with a cloth with just a few drops of oil on it, to remove the dust and grit. Then put the new brushes in place and fit them to the commutator by drawing a piece of fine sandpaper between the brush and the commutator with the rough side of the paper to the brush.

This will cause the brush to fit snug to the commutator. Do not have the tension on the brushes too tight or too loose. Use your own judgment on this. The sparking that you speak of is caused, no doubt, by the brushes you are using and the tension that you have on them.

New Denver Theater Opens

"An Enemy to the King," starring E. H. Sothern and Edith Storey, was used by the new America Theater as its opening attraction when that magnificent theater gave the public of Denver its first glimpse of their newest motion picture palace.

"See America First" is the slogan which the America has adopted. It seems well chosen, for the America is located in the very heart of Denver's shopping and theatrical district, and is using Vitagraph program productions exclusively.

Another innovation for Denver is that the America has scheduled its weekly Vitagraph features for a whole week's run—and this is a city where a daily change of program has been held necessary. It also has raised the price of admission from the nickel rates that have applied throughout the city, to the benefit of every motion picture house in Denver.

The new America Theater in Denver

Following "An Enemy to the King," the America will show Alice Joyce, Harry Morey and Marc MacDermott in their remarkable portrayal of "Whom the Gods Destroy."

Niels M. Dahl, formerly of the Strand Theater, New York, is musical director of the America. Alvah G. Talbot is the managing director. The head usher seems more than well named, and, if his cognomen may be taken as a hint, quite suited to handling any sort of riot, for the gentleman's name is Hyle Fist.

O. Henry Stories Filmed

The General Film Company announces that it will commence releasing on March 3, selected stories from the works of O. Henry. The releases will be two-reel Broadway Star features and will be made by the Vitagraph Company. The first will be be based on the famous story "Past One at Rooney's."

The volumes of O. Henry's works from which the cream is to be skimmed for this series are "Cabbages and Kings," "The Four Million," "The Gentle Grafter," "The Heart of the West," "The Man Higher Up," "Options,' "Roads of Destiny," "Rolling Stones," "Sixes and Sevens," "Strictly Business," "The Trimmed Lamp," "The Voice of the City," and "Wirligigs."

O. Henry is a name to conjure with. His stories were all "different." His life, filled as it was with romance, had a profound effect on his works. He saw the romance in everything—the shop girl, the cowboy's life, the city loafer—all had their message for O. Henry. His tales of New York life vary from the most pathetic to the most thrilling.

New Five-Reel Bushman Plays

With Metro serial "The Great Secret" nearing completion, plans are being made for Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne to appear in a group of feature pictures, each five reels in length.

Five plays already have been chosen for this series. They will be of a type especially suited to the talents of Mr. Bushman. It was after many months of patient effort that the five plays were chosen. They were selected as the result of conferences between President Richard A. Rowland of Metro Pictures Corporation; Mr. Bushman, Miss Bayne and Director Cabanne.

All of those who took part in the conferences were unanimous in pronouncing the subjects the strongest of Bushman-Bayne features. They deal with big topics and are sizeable in every way.

Bushman seen for the first time in light comedy parts in "The Great Secret," spots of comedy serve to strengthen as well as relieve the big heroic role of William Montgomery Strong which he plays. These light comedy parts in the first few chapters of "The Great Secret" have added much to Bushman's popularity and have given evidence of his versatality.

It is safe to say that three Christie Comedies will have nowhere a more appreciative audience than the one that will see them inside the gray old walls of the prison at Sing Sing. Through the kindness of Al. E. Christie, prints of "His Wedding Night," "His Baby" and "By the Sad Sea Waves" were forwarded to the Mutual Welfare League and shown to the inmates of the prison.

Looks like Billie Burke at the left, doesn't it? But it isn't. It's Ann Murdock. And this at the right might be one of Zorn's models gazing into the aurora borealis from the peak of Sweden, or a millionairess on top of the Alps, or a Yankee Norwegian at the ski tournament at Ishpeming, Mich. But it isn't. It's Ann Murdock again. Both pictures were taken at her camp in the Adirondacks. Miss Murdock has just been signed by Mutual to appear in screen translations of Charles Frohman productions.

THE WEEK'S MUTUALS

"The Girl from Rector's" in Five Reels Is Monday Feature—Shorty Gets in Trouble Again and Dog Helps Him Out

"The Girl from Rector's," a five-reel Mutual subject for release March 5, tops the list of Mutual offerings of the week. This is a picturization of the comedy by Paul Potter, which in dramatic form ran for more than one hundred consecutive weeks at Weber's Theater, New York City. Ruth McTammany plays the leading role in this feature, that of a dancer at Rector's cabaret.

Rector's famous restaurant and cabaret furnish the settings for the plays and many of the scenes were taken in this world renowned cafe. Mr. Rector himself appears in some of the scenes as an "extra." One of the features of the picture is Rector's celebrated "Midnight Review."

Zena Keefe as Girl Reporter

In "Shorty Traps the Lottery King," Number eight of the Mutual featurettes "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," released March 5, Shorty gets entangled with a band of crooks. Shorty's dog plays quite a prominent part in this story.

Zena Keefe takes the leading role in "The Meeting," the eleventh of the Mutual series, "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters." Arthur Matthews and W. H. Turner, taking the leading male parts, assume the roles of villains and crooks.

The Cub comedy, "The Flying Target," a western which features George Ovey, is one of two comedies for release March 8. The picture gains its title from a bandit character who rides a horse which has a target insignia on its head. The second picture is the Vogue comedy, "His Bogue Boast," in which Ben Turpin plays a triple role. Mr. Turpin is kept busy impersonating himself, his twin brother and the sheriff.

Oregon's Coast Line in Weekly

Number eighteen of the "Mutual Tours Around the World," ready for the screen on March 6, contains scenes shown in the countries now engulfed in war. The places visited are Munich, the third largest city of Germany; Schonbrunn Castle, near Vienna, the summer home of the imperial family; and Rustchuk on the Danube in northern Bulgaria.

The Mutual weekly and "See America First," which this week shows "Oregon's Rocky Coast Line," comes out March 7. The coast of the state of Oregon is one of the beauty spots of America. Views are shown of the giant stepping stones at Chapman's Point, Lost Cave at Ecola Point, and a dozen more rugged spots.

On the same reel is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic entitled "Rastus Runs Amuck," a quaint little oddity of pickaninny life animated for the screen by Harry Palmer.

Reel Life Number forty-five, ready March 8, besides several other novelties, shows Charlie Chaplin's wabbly walk imitated by a rooster.

Thomas Jefferson Rejoins Fine Arts

Thomas Jefferson, whose re-engagement to play prominent character parts with the Triangle-Fine Arts company has aroused much interest, might be pointed out as one of the examples of legitimate stars who have excelled from the first in screen acting. Jefferson appeared in several of the earlier Fine Arts pictures released on the Triangle program, and many critics declared that his technique was such as to guarantee him a splendid future in the films. For personal reasons he retired from the Fine Arts, but his return to that management is a guarantee that many striking new characterizations will add to his prestige.

The son of the great Joseph Jefferson of "Rip Van Winkle" fame, Thomas Jefferson made his debut under the management of his father. Later the younger Jefferson was in the companies of Lester Wallack and Augustin Daly. He was cast with such stars as Fanny Davenport, John Drew and Maurice Barrymore. On his father's illness Thomas Jefferson took hold of the "Rip Van Winkle" production and starred in it for several years.

The Selig Polyscope Company has received word that "The Crisis" has broken all records of the Circle Theater, Indianapolis, by at least 20,000 admissions during one week.

ACQUIRES AUSTRALIAN FIRM

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Acting Through Alec Lorimore, Purchases Big Interest in Antipodean Distributors

Alec Lorimore, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation's special foreign representative, has completed arrangements by which a controlling interest in the Australia Feature Films, Ltd., was acquired. It is one of the biggest film deals that has ever transpired in Australia.

Mr. Lorimore's comments on the film conditions in Australia are illuminating. He reports that the Antipodes are climatically and scenically a "second California magnified to the nth power." Every conceivable form of natural phenomena and foliage is to be found there, and Mr. Lorimore characterizes Australia from the physical standpoint as a "producer's paradise." The reason for the failure of American producers to establish studios in Australia is explained by the fact that the entire Island Continent is ruled by labor, and that all legislation tends toward the lightening of the laboring man's burdens. The cost of labor involved in the maintenance of a big studio in Australia would be almost prohibitive.

And the problems of distribution and exhibition are intensified by numerous war taxes.

However the country itself is very prosperous, and Mr. Lorimore believes that the possibilities of Australia from a motion picture standpoint have only been vaguely hinted at up to the present time. He anticipates a tremendous increase in business with the closing of the present war.

Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley are playing in a feature, "Is a Woman a Person?" at Universal City.

Lillian Hamilton Featured

Lillian Hamilton, whose work in support of Paddy McQuire and Ben Turpin, stars of the comedies produced by the Vogue Films, Inc., at Los Angeles, and released through the Mutual Film Corporation, has won her an enthusiastic following among comedy lovers, has been promoted. In the coming Vogue-Mutual two-reel comedy, "Flirting with Trouble; or, It Happened at Midnight," which is now in the process of completion, Miss Hamilton is to be the featured player, and in support of her will appear Owen Evans, Larry Bowes, John Oaker and others from the Vogue contingent.

NEW NORMA TALMAGE PLAY

Her Second Selznick-Picture Nears Completion, While "Panthea," Recently Released, Plays to Her Admirers

Norma Talmage has nearly finished her second Selznick-Picture production, entitled "The Law of Compensation," while her previous Selznick feature, "Panthea," plays to audiences that attest her popularity. "The Law of Compensation" was especially written for Miss Talmage by Wilson Mizner, the noted playwright, who was co-author, with the late Paul Armstrong, of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "The Deep Purple," and "The Greyhound."

Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Norma Talmage Film Corporation, engaged Mr. Mizner to build a photoplay fulfilling all the requirements of Miss Talmage's personality and dramatic talent. The result is a strong drama of modern life, filled with action and presenting the youthful artiste in a role that carries her from girlhood to maturity. The picture will be ready for release by the middle of March.

Brenon Making "The Eternal Sin"

"The Eternal Sin," a Selznick-Picture now being evolved under the hand of Director Herbert Brenon, will be ready for release within the next few weeks. It promises to be as sensational, though in a very different way, as "War Brides," Mr. Brenon's first Selznick-Picture. It tells a story of love and intrigue in the court of the notorious Borgias. From a spectacular viewpoint it will be one of the most excellent creations ever turned out by Director Brenon.

The last scene in this unusual photodrama was taken at the Brenon studio only a few days ago, and within twenty-four hours Mr. Brenon had packed up the entire negative and taken it to Atlantic City. A theater has been engaged in that city and will be used by Mr. Brenon every morning for the next few weeks in cutting, assembling and titling his picture.

Another Warwick Feature Coming

Robert Warwick, whose first picture from his own producing company, "The Argyle Case," has just been released through Selznick-Pictures, is working upon "The Court of St. Simon." The same close personal contact between manager and star which characterized the filming of "The Argyle Case" is being repeated by Mr. Warwick and his associate, Harry Rapf, president and founder of the Robert Warwick Company, in the second Selznick-Picture, "The Court of St. Simon." This play is being directed by Leonce Perret, the noted French director.

Change in Mutual Dates

The Mutual Film Corporation announces that the exigencies of the trade have made it advisable to release on six days of the week instead of seven and therefore, starting March 5, there will be no releases on Sunday of each week.

The Vogue comedy which has been appearing on that day will hereafter be scheduled for Saturday, and Reel Life, the magazine of the screen, will be released on Thursdays.

It is the aim of Mutual to release twelve guaranteed "Featurette" reels per week—an average of two reels per days, excluding Sundays.

Mignon Anderson is being featured at Universal in a five-reel drama, "The Great Adventure."

Miniatures of scenes for "Mothers of France," with Sarah Bernhardt. At the left, the message from the trenches; center, at base of statute of Joan of Arc, at the famous Rheims Cathedral; at right, the "divine Sarah" commending husband and son to Joan of Arc.

Rialto Runs Bernhardt Feature

Competition for the American control of "Mothers of France," the remarkable Sarah Bernhardt motion picture owned in part by the French government and destined to perpetuation in the records of France, has been so keenly pursued that an official order has been telegraphed restricting state right purchases to not more than one state for any individual buyer.

Louis Mercanton, who brought this picture to New York some weeks ago and was summoned home for further consultation before making definite arrangements, is said to be again on the ocean, bound in this direction with instructions for the final disposition of the rights for the United States and Canada.

In the interval S. L. Rothapfel, with characteristic forehandedness, has exercised his large purchasing power by securing the first New York showing for the Rialto Theater throughout the week beginning Sunday, March 11. This, it is understood, was accomplished by cable, involving a considerable outlay in telegraph tolls and many delays in arranging time and terms.

It was Mr. Mercanton, of the Societie Generale de Cinematographes Eclipse, who originated the idea of an intensely patriotic French motion picture to be written for Mme. Bernhardt by Jean Richepin, the foremost dramatic poet of France and member of the Academy. After enlisting the assistance of the military and civil officials, he personally directed the picture.

The government retains permanent ownership in all that part of the completed photoplay depicting scenes in the trenches, the field hospitals and other localities in the zone of actual military operations. This is a formality of French law, and in the present instance it serves to bind together all elements of the picture which Mme. Bernhardt is said to have described as "a message from the mothers of France to the mothers of America perhaps facing a similarly poignant crisis."

The next World-Brady release is "The Dancer's Peril," with Alice Brady as its star actress. The big pictorial feature of this production is the ballet "Scheherazade," with Miss Brady as its premiere dansuese and Alexis Kosloff leading his entire corps of 100 Russian coryphees. Miss Brady went through a long, arduous course of training to become an expert dancer for this picture play.

SHERRILL ANNOUNCES PLANS

Independent Distributing System Will Handle Plays Under Territorial Rights—Twelve Features in Next Twelvemonth

The future of the William L. Sherrill Picture Company and the plans of President Sherrill, since his resignation February 17 as the executive head of Art Dramas, Inc., preclude any arrangements for program releases, the new policy of Mr. Sherrill being the distribution of all his productions under the territorial rights plan.

His resignation from Art Dramas has resulted from his desire to supplant the program system with the other method of distribution. He makes the following announcement with regard to future Sherrill productions:

The plan for the future distribution of the productions of the William L. Sherrill Picture Company will be that of absolute independent methods of distribution to territorial rights buyers. We will continue the making of five and six-reel adaptations of fiction masterpieces and stage successes, paying that attention to production which we have paid in the past, with the augmentation of an undivided time to be devoted toward the further perfection of these productions. It is our plan to release twelve such productions during the next twelve months. The activities of the Frohman Amusement Corporation will, of course, be devoted exclusively to the making of super-photoplays of longer length of the calibre of "The Witching Hour" and "God's Man."

My decision to resign from the presidency and directorate of Art Dramas has decidedly not been a decision of impulse. To the contrary, it comes only after a careful deliberation and thorough analysis of market conditions. After such careful study in which the decisions reached have been substantiated by numerous conferences with buying exchange men, I have become firmly convinced of the advantages of the state rights or territorial methods of independent distribution of motion picture productions, to manufacturers, exchange men and exhibitor alike; that method wherein the merit of production alone will determine its success or failure and wherein there is no such a condition as the dependence of the weaker upon the stronger "brother of the program" to earn it recognition.

Conquest Pictures Appear

It has been announced by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., that the first five-reel group of pictures to be shown under the Edison Conquest Pictures brand will be released on Thursday, March 1.

This date will mark the beginning of the first well-defined effort that ever has been made in the motion picture industry to provide a program of pictures that, while retaining all of the elements that have made the photoplay such a popular form of amusement, will be entirely devoid of features that may be considered objectionable. W. W. Hodkinson, an authority on film distribution, will supervise the marketing of Conquest Pictures and the complete details of the method of release of the new productions will soon be announced.

"Greater Woman" a Problem Story

"The Greater Woman," in which Marjorie Rambeau makes her first appearance before the camera, and her first contribution to Mutual productions, brings to the screen one of those problem stories which have been proving so popular in fiction magazines during the last year. There were two problems which Auriole Praed—portrayed by Marjorie Rambeau—the wife of a weak-willed, susceptible artist, had to solve.

Frank Powell directing Marjorie Rambeau, who is doing her first screen work in Powell-Mutual productions. This illustration shows the interior of the Powell studios at College Point, Long Island.

The first was—should she compromise herself by borrowing money to tide them over a financial crisis, realizing that the regaining of their wealth would probably mean that her husband would become more deeply involved with the notorious dancer with whom he was enamoured; or face the poverty which would force her husband back to her because the dancer would have no use for a poor man?

The second was—when her husband came to her seeking forgiveness should she forget all and forgive all; or turn away from him and deny him the chance to make reparation?

Auriole Praed answered the first question by tearing into bits the check which would have saved their fortune. She answered the second by saying that it is not for the woman she loves to judge nor condemn, but only to try to understand.

What would you have done in her place?

Gertrude Dallas with Thanhouser

Gertrude Dallas has been engaged by Edwin Thanhouser for the principal supporting role in a multiple reel Thanhouser feature in which Miss Florence La Badie is to be starred. The name of this play, the work of Lloyd Lonergan, has not yet been announced.

TRIANGLE CHOOSES MANAGER

R. W. France, Attorney, Enters Employ of Distributing Corporation Which He Served as Counsel in Reorganization

R. W. France, New York attorney and legal authority on motion pictures, becomes the general manager of the reorganized Triangle Distributing Corporation. The announcement that he has entered upon his duties as general manager of the distributing corporation has aroused much interest in the film world.

Prior to his engagement as a Triangle official of the new regime, Mr. France was a member of the firm of Duell, Warfield & Duell, attorneys, of 2 Rector street, New York. In that capacity he handled the legal business of several of the large motion picture organizations, so that he now enters the field with an intimate, practical knowledge of the industry.

Mr. France had charge of the legal details connected with the transfer of Triangle interests that took place about the first of the year. President W. W. Hodkinson and his associates determined to secure his active participation in carrying out the progressive policies of the new corporation. He assumed the duties of his office on February 20. To exhibitors he makes this statement:

Believes Public Should Have Best

In bringing about the recent changes in this big business organization, we have taken pains to perfect the co-ordination of all producing units releasing features on the Triangle program and their proper relationship with our distributing organization, so that every branch of the business will bend its energies to the work of giving the exhibitors and public the best pictures obtainable—and at the same time share in the profits on the squarest possible pro rata basis.

President Hodkinson, when asked for a statement regarding the appointment of Mr. France, replied:

Mr. France and I are in entire accord as to the necessity for developing the highest possible standard of co-operation between producer, distributor, exhibitor and theatrical patron in order that all may get the best service and the maximum of legitimate profit at the minimum of expense and friction.

Essanay Feature March 19

The curse of wealth, when improperly used, is the theme of "Satan's Private Door," an Essanay feature to be released March 19. This feature was previously heralded under the title of "Truth Triumphant." Alterations in the original scenario, creating a far more powerful theme, prompted the change in titles. It will be released through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

Mary Charleson, for the first time under Essanay's banner, will be featured in "Satan's Private Door." This little star won her laurels in support of Henry B. Walthall in many of his recent successes, notably in "The Truant Soul."

In "Satan's Private Door," Miss Charleson has another highly emotional role. The pictured theme in this production is decidedly a novel one.

Joan Sawyer Appears

Joan Sawyer, the noted dancer, makes her debut as a photodramatic star on March 12, when William Fox will issue "Love's Law," a colorful picture of romance and gypsy life, in which Miss Sawyer has the leading role. Stuart Holmes, famous villain of the screen, is featured in the production.

U-Boat Sinks Essanay Prints

Fifty prints of "Max Comes Across," Max Linder's first Essanay comedy, went down with the Steamship Laconia when the Cunarder was torpedoed by a U-boat off the English coast. The prints were destined to London and were an installment of a shipment of the "Max Comes Across" films designed to be distributed throughout England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland. News of the loss was received in a cable from Essanay's London office, with a request for an immediate duplication of the shipment.

This is, perhaps, the first instance wherein an American manufacturer of motion pictures has been effected by the submarine warfare.

While the distribution of Max Linder's initial American-made comedy is extending through the world—including China and South American countries—the noted European comedian is nearing the completion of his second Essanay production, "Max Wants a Divorce." This comedy will be released March 26 through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. It will be ready for trade showings within a few days.

Reports from the Chicago factory are that Linder has made in "Max Wants a Divorce" even a greater mirth-provoker than ever. Max wrote the scenario, supervising its production and, of course, appeared in its leading character. His company of blondes was augmented for this production.

Lesser Handling Big Ones

Sol L. Lesser, president of the All Star Features Distributors, Inc., has just purchased the California, Arizona and Nevada rights to Jules Verne's epoch-making under-water spectacle "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." This production has been booked in San Francisco's leading playhouse, the Cort Theater, for an early presentation at prices ranging from 25 cents to one dollar.

Mr. Lesser has also purchased for the same territory Universal's powerful indictment against circumstantial evidence, "The People vs. John Doe." This production has been booked to the Portola Theater for an extended engagement.

Mr. Lesser is also controlling in this territory Thos. H. Ince's "Civilization," and Herbert Brenon's "War Brides," with Mme. Nazimova, and all of the Selznick releases.

New Essanay Series

"Where is my Mother?"

The above is to be the title of the first unit of Essanay's new dramatic series, "Do Children Count?" A child, awaking in its cheerless nursery, casts its sleepy eyes about the empty room and asks the question. The answer—separated parents—presents a problem which strikes at the foundation of the home.

There will be twelve units in this series. Each one will present some complication in the home, arising out of the advent of the stork. There will be no exaggeration in the situations presented. These will be adapted to the screen from every day life—from any and every home. Some of them are actually the records of the Juvenile court. Others have been culled from newspaper reports of destroyed homes. It is these stories of real life that are to provide the pictured dramas in "Do Children Count?" This series will be inaugurated through General Film early in April, following the conclusion of the "Is Marriage Sacred?" cycle.

MRS. BLACKTON STORIES

Release of Country Life Series to Theaters After Exhibitions for Society Promised in March by Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

In response to the demand for the six productions which constitute the Paula Blackton country life stories, which have played an important part in society and artistic gatherings in New York this winter and have been used to advance noteworthy charities, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has arranged to release these pictures through the exchanges of his company in the United States and Canada.

Three one-reel and three two-reel subjects comprise the collection. Each subject is complete in itself. All of them were made at "Harbourwood," which is the Blackton country estate at Oyster Bay, Long Island, adjoining Sagamore Hill, the home of Colonel Roosevelt.

Mrs. Blackton herself plays an important role in every one of the six productions. The beautiful Blackton children appear in them also. The stories will be released in the following order:

"The Diary of a Puppy," one reel; "The Collie Market," two reels; "A Spring Idyl," one reel; "The Little Strategist," two reels; "Satin and Calico," one reel; "The Fairy Godfather," two reels. All of these pictures were shown recently at the Rialto Theater, New York.

Mrs. Paula Blackton and a scene from her Country Life series, "Satin and Calico," to be released through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. The charming and attractive Blackton children appear in these unusual pictures.

The Paula Blackton Country Life Stories were made between May and November, of 1916. All of them were directed by J. Stuart Blackton. Back of their production is the story of ten years' desire on the part of Mrs. Blackton to turn out "something different" in pictures. Wholesomeness and love of the beautiful were the two qualities vitally inherent to her idea. And then came the chance, at last.

Mr. Irwin plans to release the Paula Blackton Country Life Stories early in March. The posters for these pictures are being made under the personal supervision of Mr. Blackton.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Philip Lydig and many others in New York's "Four Hundred" have arranged to use the Paula Blackton Country Life Stories in aid of the French war sufferers at a special society benefit to be held in New York the middle of March.

Two New Incesses

Two new players have been specially engaged by Thomas H. Ince to appear in Triangle-Kay Bee plays now in course of production at the Ince studios. They are Adele Belgarde and Florence Dagmar. Miss Belgarde is a recruit from the legitimate stage, with which she has been associated for many years. She has been cast to play an important character part in the comedy-drama by C. Gardner Sullivan, in which Enid Bennett is appearing as star. Miss Dagmar is perhaps better known as a film actress, she having appeared to advantage recently in a number of screen plays. She is enacting a supporting role in the new subject in which William Desmond is starring.

Doris Pawn with Fox

William Fox announces the return of Doris Pawn to his photoplay forces on the Pacific Coast.

Miss Pawn co-starred with Mr. Walsh in "Blue Blood and Red," his first important film production. She will appear opposite the athletic Fox luminary in his forthcoming pictures. She is already at work under the direction of Otis Turner, who is making the Walsh subject—the latter's ninth feature.

A graceful little scene from "A Bon Bon Riot," with Hank Mann, a new Foxfilm funfilm.

Sixty-six Yearly Contracts for Vitagraph

What is believed to be a record in contract closing for feature releases was set at the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. home office, when, in one day, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the company, closed sixty-six new annual theater contracts for Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features.

The houses represented in this one batch of contracts include theaters from Maine to California, from Canada to the Gulf. In the list there are reported some of the highest prices and longest runs ever contracted for in the history of the company.

Of the sixty-six contracts, three call for four days' run of Vitagraph features weekly for a year; twelve are for three-days' run of each feature release; twenty-one are for at least two days on every Blue Ribbon picture; and the balance, twenty-nine, are for one day a week, with the option of extending the run.

These contracts include, in almost every case, the use of "Big V" and the Frank Daniels series of comedies. Of the sixty-six annual contracts forty-seven include all serials, beginning with "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's current serial, which the company may release.

"The Girl Philippa," "The Secret Kingdom," and the E. H. Sothern pictures represent, to a large extent, the basis of these contracts. In many instances the theaters which contracted for Vitagraph service will use the Blue Ribbon features as the basis of their whole entertainment.

That is to say, the Vitagraph productions will be used as the nucleus of the week's program, around which the open days will be booked.

The 1,551 annual contracts represent a minimum of 5,041 days of solid bookings, with which Vitagraph starts the current year. With no attempt made at comparison with any other distributing company, this is believed to set a real record in film salesmanship.

In many cases the contracts show tremendous strides made by the Blue Ribbon exchanges. In Atlantic City, for instance, out of twelve houses open Vitagraph is supplying seven with feature service. This same ratio extends to cities as far west as Oakland, Cal., and as far south as Birmingham, Ala.

It is because of contracts such as these that the quarterly bonus, for the quarter ending January 31, was the largest in the history of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

Playwright Edits Scenarios

The rapid expansion of Pathe's activities is evidenced in another direction by the announcement that Philip Bartholomae, one of the most famous playwrights of the present day, author of "Very Good Eddie," has been quietly acting as the head of the scenario department for the past three months. This most important department approves, rejects or rewrites the scenarios of all the Pathe producing companies before the scripts are turned over to the director and then they pass on the director's work. Due to the masterly and tactful way in which Mr. Bartholomae has filled this most difficult position, authors are pleased with the improvement of their stories, and the directors by receiving better scripts and intelligent criticism of their development of the stories state enthusiastically that their pictures are better and made with less waste.

Director George Cochrane of Universal has commenced a one-reel underworld drama, "The Ruse."

EXHIBITORS CONVENE

Oklahoma Men Hold Fifth Annual Convention and Go on Record Supporting Clean Pictures—New Officers Elected

The Oklahoma Branch of the M. P. E. L. of America met at the Lee-Huckins Hotel, Oklahoma City, February 12 and 13, for their fifth annual meeting.

The convention went on record for clean pictures as evidenced by the following resolution which was passed unanimously.

Whereas, Improper motion picture films, of private and unlicensed production operated by persons without investment in theaters or the film industry of the state, and whose only interest is monetary and detrimental to the best interest of the motion picture exhibitors:

Be it Resolved, That the Oklahoma Branch Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America in convention assembled this twelfth day of February, 1917, hereby unqualifiedly condemn the showing of any still or motion picture subject relating to sex or poses in the nude that are indecent and suggestive, or that tend to inflame or prejudice the public mind, realizing that the fundamentals of the motion picture business depends upon our ability to present clean, moral and high standard photo productions rather than appeal to the sensual and its fleeting profit.

Be it further Resolved, That it shall be the duty of each member of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Oklahoma Branch, to exercise authority in suppressing any such exhibition by making complaint to the proper legal authorities and pursuing same in behalf of the members of this League, and any negligence shall subject said members to expulsion from this organization. In case of any doubt or controversy as to the classification of any picture the same shall be referred by letter or by telegram to any officer of this League for settlement.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

A. B. Moomand, Shawnee, Oklahoma, president; S. H. Jones, Altus, Oklahoma, vice-president; H. W. McCall, Oklahoma City, second vice-president; L. W. Brophy, Muskogee, secretary; C. D. Jackson, Stillwater, treasurer.

The Oklahoma branch is in excellent condition, both as to finances and membership.

A banquet was given on Monday night at which 82 plates were laid, after the banquet the exhibitors visited the local theaters where special films were put on for their benefit, the theaters throwing their doors open to the visiting exhibitors and their friends.

As the legislature is now in session, many of the exhibitors visited with their representatives and senators. There is but little talk of censorship and Sunday closing, however one very drastic bill has been introduced, house bill No. 504. The convention festivities were concluded by a grand ball which was given by the Blue Bird Photoplays Company.

Cleveland Women Study Pictures

The civic committee of the Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs, represented by Mrs. Elmar G. Derr and Miss Bertelle M. Lyttle, have taken up the general subject of motion pictures in a broad and comprehensive fashion. They are planning for February and March a city-wide study of "Motion Pictures as a Fine Art." They are to conduct a series of "Film-Lecture Recitals" on Saturdays between February 24 and March 31 in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A.

There will be special programs of pictures for young people at motion picture theaters which are co-operating with the committee. These programs will be considered by the managers as a test of whether many people in their neighborhoods are interested in this study or desire the finer ideals of pictures to prevail. In the leaflet regarding the study, it is stated that a permanent "Cinema Club" may be organized to continue the study and that the "influence of the public opinion expressed at the box office, by letters to the committee, and the newspapers. by demand for a more respectful consideration of the pictures, will be felt all over the country as a part of the work which has now been definitely organized in co-operation with the National Board of Review.

NEW PRODUCER

Jefferson Motion Pictures, Inc., Organized in Richmond, Virginia—Studio Being Built and First Production Already Begun

The latest picture producing company has its home in Richmond, Virginia.

It has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000, under the title of Jefferson Motion Pictures, Inc. The promoter of the new company is E. M. Stearnes, well-known throughout the motion picture field.

Ground has already been broken for the studio, which is to be complete in every detail, on an area of 100 acres. The company has already started on its first production and is negotiating with some leading stars of the profession. The public of Richmond is displaying a great deal of enthusiasm over this new enterprise.

Mr. Stearnes, who will be director general, says that the Jefferson company will produce high-class comedies and features, which will be released through one of the best known distributing companies.

Offers Services to Government

The following telegram to President Wilson was sent by President Richard A. Rowland of Metro Pictures Corporation:

To the President of the United States:—

The power of motion pictures to bring important matters quickly and effectively to the attention of the millions may be of service to our flag in a recruiting campaign should you deem this advisable. The Metro Pictures Corporation and its allied companies, Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., Yorke Film Corporation, Popular Plays and Players, Quality Pictures Corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation and the Serial Producing Company with branches throughout the United States places all facilities at your command and is immediately available.—Richard A. Rowland, president, Metro Pictures Corporation, 1476 Broadway, New York City.

A delectable scene with Marie Doro in Lasky's "Lost and Won."

ART DRAMAS' RELEASES

Upton Sinclair's Sociological Drama "The Adventurer" Is the Week's Feature—Marion Swayne in Difficult Role

A play with a sociological note running through it in the manner of other works of its author, Upton Sinclair, is presented by Art Dramas as its current release. It is a revised version of "The Adventurer," the Sinclair drama which has had a considerable run on the stage at the Broadway Theater, New York, and on the road. Marion Swayne takes the leading role in the film play.

The picture was produced by the U. S. Amusement Corporation at its Fort Lee Studios, under the direction of Madam Blaché. Appearing in support of Miss Swayne are a cast of well known players, including Pell Trenton, Kirk Brown, Yoland Doquette and Ethel Stanard.

Synopsis of "The Adventurer"

Miss Swayne plays the part of a young woman who has to fight the battle of life unaided, in New York. Rendered despondent by her inability to find work, she is about to commit suicide, and is deterred from her purpose only at the last moment, by a man who is passing near the river front as she is about to throw herself in. The stranger is shabbily dressed. but he takes her to his home, and insists that she remain there until she has recovered her strength. In her weakened condition she is unable to resist.

Circumstances soon lead the girl to believe that her rescuer is a thief, and perhaps the murderer of a young man whose clothes have been found on the river front, near the scene of a violent struggle. Despite this fact, she refuses to clear herself by implicating him. She is arrested as a party to the supposed murder. A chain of interesting circumstances, culminating in a startling climax, wherein it develops that the supposed thief is really the missing man, who had disappeared in order that he might clear up the mystery of his father's death, and his own disinheritance make "The Adventurer" a most interesting screen drama.

The screen version of the play was written by Harry Chandlee and Lawrence McCloskey.

Additions to "Captain Jinks"

Four stories have been added to the present "Captain Jinks" series of comedies, in which the inimitable Frank Daniels is being starred by the Vitagraph company. The new releases and the dates of their release, are:

March 19, "Captain Jinks, the Plumber"; March 26, "Captain Jinks' Great Expectations"; April 2, "Captain Jinks In and Out," and, April 9, "Captain Jinks and Himself."

Chaplin's Next, "Health Resort"

Charles Spencer Chaplin, having entirely recovered from the injury received from a falling lamp post during the filming of his last comedy, "Easy Street," has started work on the tenth of his funny pictures produced under his famous $670,000 contract with the Mutual Film Corporation.

This latest child of the Chaplin brain is entitled "Health Resort" and gives Mr. Chaplin an entirely new angle on which to hang his inimitable funny business.

In this picture Mr. Chaplin will be supported by his unusual cast, including the beautiful Edna Purviance and Eric Campbell, the burly giant whose work has been a very delightful part of the Chaplin-Mutual comedies so far produced.

"Health Resort" will be released in March.

New Ince Director

The Ince directorial staff has been augmented by the addition of Victor L. Schertzinger, the young musical genius whose compositions are delighting the world. Schertzinger has been entrusted with the responsibility of directing the first Triangle-Kay Bee production in which Charles Ray will appear in fulfillment of his new contract, and is now at work making the early scenes of the subject.

Schertzinger's promotion to a directorship at the Ince studios is the result of his constant indication of creative ability—an indication that has manifested itself during an association with Ince that has extended over a period of nearly two years. He joined the Inceville forces in June, 1915, to write the musical accompaniments for Triangle-Kay Bee plays. Last spring, he visited the east with Ince for the purpose of directing the orchestra at the important showings of "Civilization."

Upon his return to the studios in the fall, he abandoned the work of composing for the equally-absorbing task of studying direction. He acted as aide to several of the Ince directors, analyzing the methods of each, and frequently offering a worthy suggestion. This week, Ince placed him in absolute charge of the Ray vehicle.

The Ray subject is a serio-comic tale of the baseball diamond, in which the popular Ince star plays the role of a country youth. It was written by C. Gardner Sullivan.

New Association Fire Bulletin

The second of the Fire Prevention Bulletins of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is about completed and will be issued within a few days. This new bulletin will be addressed to the men and women who actually handle the films in studios, exchanges and theaters and is the natural follow-up of the first bulletin. This was addressed primarily to the managers of all places where film is stored or used, telling them not only what precautions to take, but why they should be taken.

The new bulletin follows the same idea of giving good reasons for every bit of advice offered, on the theory that employes have just as much right to know why they are expected to do a thing as have their employers. The new bulletin will contain considerable information of which most of the workers amongst films are ignorant.

Copies of the new bulletin will be distributed broadly, but the National Association, 806 Times Building, New York, will be glad to receive requests for as many copies as can be used by studios, exchanges and exhibitors. These copies will be mailed as soon as the bulletin is off the press.

Hank Mann has just completed his first directorial effort for the Foxfilm program. It deals with a candy shop, and its cast includes, besides Mr. Mann, Edyth Hoskins, Lee Morris, Charles Mack, Sydney De Grey and George Fields.

Betty Schade and Lee Hill play the leads in a three-reel Universal photoplay by Willard Mack, "Love is King."

Current Releases Reviewed

"The Vanishing Woman"

Release in Essanay "Is Marriage Sacred?" Series. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS is a satisfactory though not remarkable unit of a popular series. The title, which suggests a mystery story, refers to a vanishing type of woman who cares for her home alone and has no outside interests. Marguerite Clayton as Helen

This ceremony began the story instead of ending it.

Wheeler, the heroine of this story, appears as a college girl whose radical ideas are supposed to carry her to the other extreme.

However, the story itself is an interesting little melodrama in which the heroine marries the wrong man, finds that he is a crook, is deserted and at length divorces him and marries a worthier suitor. The acting, direction and technical details are satisfactory, except the photography, which in many places is not up to the Essanay standard.

The Story: Helen Wheeler, returned home from college, is dissatisfied with her home and with Conrad Carson (Edward Arnold) whom she formerly loved. Hector Dufrane (Sidney Ainsworth) visits her parents to interest them in a fraudulent scheme. Helen falls in love with him, believing he also has modern ideas. They are married. Later Helen is disillusioned for Hector ruins her parents financially and with the money intends to elope with a cabaret singer. He is brought to trial and convicted. Helen divorces him and marries Carson.

"The Girl From Rector's"

Five-Reel Mutual Feature Released March 5. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THE popular speaking stage farce by this title has been adapted as a film comedy. It forms a picture entertainment of a rather "different" type. Its drawing power should be considerable, due to the fame of the original production and to a wide spread interest in the sort of life it depicts. It offers an exhibitor unusual advertising possibilities.

As for the production itself, its humor is of the musical stage rather than the screen. It is a rather extravagant farce-comedy, with a background of New York night life, a subject which proves fascinating to most audiences. The picture is one which can be greatly helped or injured by the sort of music which accompanies it. Lacking the catchy music and humorous lines which accompany such plays on the real stage, a musical comedy plot loses much on the screen, but if the exhibitor arranges suitable music, the entertainment value is kept. Otherwise the production, lacking in suspense and depending on farcical situations, is apt to grow tiresome.

Ruth MacTammany, featured in the title role, acts with vivacity and keeps within the spirit of the role throughout. The supporting cast is acceptable. Many of the scenes are elaborately staged. The photography is ordinarily good. Summed up, the play has drawing power, which can be increased by advertising. And with the right sort of music it will be a pleasing entertainment.

The Story: Loute Sedaine, known as "The Girl from Rector's," is a dancer and a general favorite. Two young men about town, one known as Andy Tandy, the other Richard Lawrence, are rivals for her favor. Richard's cousin, an eccentric professor, visits Richard and meets Loute. His infatuation for the dancer leads to a break with his fiance. Richard and the latter fall in love at first sight and decide to marry.

After a number of complications, the wedding guests are assembled. Then the fact is disclosed that Andy Tandy is the bride's stepfather and that the "girl from Rector's" is the wife of a wealthy man and a friend of the bride's mother. There are still more complications, which are eventually straightened out.

"The Dancer's Peril"

World Film Drama in Five Parts Released March 12. Reviewed by George W. Graves

AN unusual film is this in the light of something new in atmosphere. While Alice Brady has a double role of considerable power as a girl who makes good in the Russian Imperial Ballet at the near cost of her honor, her work is greatly beautified and intensified by the presence in the cast of Alexis Kosloff, a noted dancer of the real Russian Imperial Ballet. A very graphic illustration is given of how these masters of the interpretive dance go about breaking in beginners and how they mould exceptional material into models of dancing perfection. These dancing scenes, in which Miss Brady has a large part, proving herself to be in reality an able pupil of the wonderful Russian, are perfectly done and harmoniously woven into the story, so they will not be considered by the most fastidious as extraneous "padding."

The story itself has plenty of heart-interest and gripping scenes, although, unfortunately, some of these are at the expense of conviction. It has been handsomely and thoroughly produced by Travers Vale. Harriet Morris is the author. Alice Brady impersonates both mother and daughter, finely differentiating the difference in age and bearing without the help of copious make-up. Some startling double exposures are employed in scenes necessitating the appearance of both mother and daughter. With Alice Brady in a role of real worth, backed up by a story whose power holds from climax to climax, in spite of one or two glaring inconsistencies, the picture is of the sort destined to popular approval. The scenes in which the Russian dancer appears, together with Miss Brady, who has caught much of his grace, are very much worth while and something quite "different." The portrayers of the story, among whom are such well-known people as Montague Love, Philip Hahn and Johnny Hines, give quality performances.

At the first of the story we are shown how a Russian grand duke is forced to leave his wife and little baby because the

Alice Brady in the elaborate World presentation, "The Dancer's Peril."

Russian court has objected to their marriage. Miss Brady has the part of the mother of the little child. In after years, the daughter, now grown up (again Miss Brady), is studying the ballet at St. Petersburg. She does not know anything about her mother, neither is she cognizant of the fact that her father is the grand duke. When it is time for the most promising members of the ballet school to be sent to Paris for an engagement, the girl is among those picked. However, the matron of the school has strict instructions from her father not to allow her to go. But Vasta, to save two lovers from separation, impersonates the young man, and her ruse is not discovered until they are well on the way to Paris. Finally, in Paris, the roue impressario of the ballet, who has been instrumental in keeping her with the company, gets her into his apartment, with the intention of making her pay for the success he has indirectly helped her win. The subsequent melodramatic scenes show how Vasta is saved from the brute by her mother, how the grand duke's influence is brought to bear to save the mother from the consequences of the impressario's murder, and how a family reunion is consummated, with Vasta marrying a young artist with whom she has fallen madly in love.

"The Price She Paid"

Selznick Pictures Seven-Reel Photodramatic Version of Novel. Reviewed by George W. Graves

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG never appeared to greater advantage than she does in this picturization of David Graham Phillips' novel. In a part of excellent dramatic possibilities, and under the supremely tasteful, skillful direction of Charles Giblyn, her emotional ability and her personal charms grow resplendent and flourish as a delicate flower in the warm sunshine. This actress' work has always brought forth admiration and praise, but even her ardent admirers will be surprised at some subtle new phases of screen portrayal which she manifests in this. Mr. Giblyn placed the star in a way to photograph exquisitely all of the time. In many instances the lights and shadows upon her form realize an effect unexcelled in beauty. Truly, Clara Kimball Young and director Giblyn have harmonized their individual arts with a result that is gratifying.

The fact that a movie story is taken from a widely read novel is an advertising point which in many cases is equal to the value of the mention of the star's name, so it would seem from the behavior of the film theater-going crowds. David Graham Phillips is an eminent writer of popular fiction. This picture was given elaborate, rich production. For artistic photographic interior "shots" it is unsurpassed.

The exhibitor who is fortunate enough to get this can easily say in advance that it is the finest Clara K. Young attraction yet to spring into existence, without fear of being drawn into any serious arguments on the subject. "The Price She Paid" is a real feature picture—the kind of presentation that will help to keep the celluloid drama from losing its hold on the surfeited public. Prominent for their excellent performances in this are Snitz Edwards, Charles Bowser, Alan Hale and David Powell. All of these actors are splendid types for the parts.

Mildred Gower and her mother find themselves at a point where, without a renewal in funds, they will be socially dropped. Mrs. Gower finally marries a man whom she thinks is rich, only to be fatally disillusioned after the ceremony. Desperate on account of the humiliations which her step-father loses no chance to load upon her, Mildred finally marries a shriveled-up, repulsive old man who is worth millions. She soon realizes that she has no freedom whatsoever, since she has no allowance of her own, but has to use her husband's checking accounts at the various stores. The woman has nothing but hate for her husband. Mildred leaves him and takes up the study of music, aided by money from an old sweetheart, who gives her to understand he is financing her purely as a business investment. She makes the acquaintance of Keith, a young lawyer, who ultimately discovers that her marriage to "the General" was illegal, since the latter has a wife living in an insane asylum. Not accepting any more money from Baird, her old sweetheart, Mildred works hard by herself and finally attains to the fame she covets. She is then free to marry either of the men who have meant so much to her, and Keith is the lucky man.

Clara Kimball Young in "The Price She Paid."

Peggy Hyland in her newest Vitagraph drama, "Intrigue."

"Intrigue"

Five-Part Vitagraph Blue-Ribbon Feature for Release February 26. Reviewed by George W. Graves

AS a vehicle for little Bobby Connelly this subject fulfills its mission perfectly, giving him a part which is probably the most prominent he has ever had before. The youngster executes quantities of natural bits of acting, covering well the ground of childish emotion and expression, as the Grand Duke (a rather cumbersome and dignified title for so little a fellow) whose life is sought by intriguers. In his numerous and diversified costumes of state he stands out as a considerably dapper leading man. These be-satined and be-silked costumes, by the way, will be the source of as many a chuckle in the audiences as will be the air of kingly superciliousness with which the young actor bears them. Bobby Connelly evinces the control of an actor of greater years and experience.

The story, while finally rising to an exciting climax, is somewhat tiresome in its telling, for its progress is abandoned now and again for the sake of injecting more atmosphere than need be, through scenes of pageantry and the like. This is all realisticly handled, but once in a while some impatient spectator may be asking himself or the man next him, "When are they going to resume the story?" At one spot in the plot's evolution it takes many scenes to enforce the point that the little Duke is lonely in his artificial surroundings. Since clearly defined, rapid story action is more or less a matter of personal taste among audiences, many being pleased as long as there is something entertaining to take its place during the lulls, the presence of suspended action in this film at times cannot be taken as a serious defect. A really exciting climax brings the story to a satisfying, complete end.

In a part of slender dramatic opportunity Peggy Hyland lends charm to the production. Marc MacDermott fits his role well, acquiting himself with polished facility. Others in a well selected cast are Templer Saxe, Brinsley Shaw and Mrs. Remley.

Particularly notable as a production of clean entertainment, devoid of the morbid character of many screen plays, "Intrigue" is all of an attractive offering. The direction, artistic, and of the cast, is wholly commendable. The story was by Maibelle Heikes Justice, while John Robertson directed.

While traveling to visit her sweetheart in Bonaluria, a little boy about six years of age is mysteriously thrust into the train compartment of Peggy Dare, with a note affixed to his clothing asking her to protect him. During the trip to Bonaluria City Peggy and the boy become fast friends. After saving the lad from assassination at the capital city, she learns that he is in reality the Grand Duke of Bonaluria. Finally the boy is abducted and a search for him proves fruitless. It is revealed to the audience that Prince Henri, whose amorous advances to Peggy are repulsed, is implicated in the plot to do away with the Grand Duke. When Henri goes to bid Peggy farewell, previous to absconding to regions unknown with the kidnaped child, Peggy discovers on the villain's coat a "silent message," a pin which she had formerly given the little Duke. Her suspicions aroused, she agrees to run away with Henri, leading him into a trap and summoning the Royal Guards. Her plan leads to a misunderstanding with Richard Carr, her lover, and his jealousy causes another complication. Some exciting scenes ensue, culminating in the assaut on Henri's castle and the rescue of the Grand Duke.

"On Record"

Jesse L. Lasky Photodrama in Five Reels Released February 22. Reviewed by George W. Graves

TO come to the point at once, this is a skillfully handled production of real power, with a strong undercurrent of pathos, and finely interpreted by a cast at the head of which is the ever-appealing Mae Murray, an actress whose name ought to have by now a distinct value to the exhibitor, since she has appeared in a long line of film successes. Since her first picture, produced not so surprisingly far back, this dainty screen personality has proven herself equal to the demands of the photodrama.

John B.. Clymer and Paul West collaborated on the story, which has been produced by Robert Leonard in an ascending scale of interest, leading one deeper and deeper into its absorbed contemplation until the climax breaks. The climax, by the way, besides being a gripping one, is noteworthy in that it lays the scene for a rapid, satisfying, and unexpected denouement. The happiest moment of the play occurs instantly subsequent to the most tense. Things look hopelessly black for the brave heroine, but after one move—the tearing up of a piece of paper, the villain sees his wicked structure crumbling down upon him. The story presents very little that is improbable—most of this consisting of the villain's unnatural carelessness.

A very acceptable cast is another feature of this unusual Lasky screen-play. Henry A. Barrows and Tom Forman making a fine villain and lover respectively, while others are Charles Ogle, Bliss Chevalier and Louis Morrison. We are glad to have had the pleasure of seeing "On Record," and are confident that even the cloyed movie fans will acclaim it as something out of the beaten path.

Helen Wayne, employed as social secretary in the home of the Calders, has in the past, through her unguided innocence, been placed under suspicion and has been placed "on record" at the night court. Martin Ingleton, a rascally neighbor of the Calders has been responsible for this. Young Rand Calders is working on a machine similar to the one being prepared for the patent office by a competing firm. Ingleton, Calders' lawyer, is planning to betray him into the hands of the competitive firm. Helen, engaged to the young inventor, learns of this but dares not tell, as the wily lawyer holds the threat over her head that he will disclose the fact that she is "on record." Finally Ingleton resolves to put the girl out of the way, since she has stolidly refused to obey him, so he gets up a party to visit the night court. Here the awful truth comes out, in front of the whole Calders family, including the girl's lover. But the girl does the only thing left to do—tells her story honestly and bluntly. The judge is convinced, and he tears up the thumbprint records, leaving the girl free, and the villain downed for good, since Helen has succeeded in exposing him.

Mae Murray. "On Record."

"Burning the Candle"

Henry B. Walthall in Essanay-K. E. S. E. Release of March 4. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

The betrothal.

ALTHOUGH in its first subtitle this picture disavows any intention of driving home a moral, it is nevertheless a temperance lesson, since the only "villain" in the play is intoxicating liquor. Its theme is the fall and regeneration of a young Southerner who yields for a time to his love for strong drink. However, as the director wished, the story is interesting for its own sake and it is very well produced.

The fact that Henry B. Walthall is featured as a man who fights against liquor will recall his role of the dope fiend in "The Truant Soul." However, the plays are not at all alike, even in the acting. In this picture there is little of the morbid intensity which characterized the former, and yet it is none the less effective and interesting, and Walthall's acting is very fine. Mary Charleson is pleasing in the role opposite and the supporting cast is a clever one. This includes Patrick Calhoun, Thurlow Brewer, Frankie Raymond and Julien Barton.

Exterior scenes for the picture were taken in the south and are of unusual beauty. The photography is excellent. The story, by Turner White, is appealing and has been very well directed by Harry Beaumont. In short, the offering is very good in every particular.

The Story: James Maxwell, a young southerner, goes to New York to accept an important position soon after his marriage to Molly Carrington (Mary Charleson). Maxwell tastes wine first at the home of his bride. In New York he frequently has occasion to drink intoxicating liquors and within a year he has become an habitual drunkard. He loses his position, and his wife returns to her home.

Maxwell becomes a vagabond and his friends lose track of him. He learns that his wife is to sue him for divorce and marry his former rival. This makes him decide to conquer himself. He finally wins the battle and regains his position. Then he learns that the reported intention of his wife to divorce him was not true and that she is willing to return to him.

"Pride and the Devil"

An Apollo Production Released by Art Dramas. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

THIS play has a story with a basic plot that is not altogether new. Novel complications and dramatic incidents are skillfully woven around it to make it an exceedingly good picture. The story, by Lawrence McCloskey, presents a continuous string of interesting and intricate situations.

It deals with a girl, whose part is well played by Alma Hanlon, who comes from the country and craves for a life of gaiety after her first taste of the city. At the beginning of the picture the girl divorces her husband to reach the bubbling life of excitement through others. From this point there is a heart interest element that is held through five reels of quick action without being forgotten for an instant.

The girl is continually in the foreground, owing to the fact that she makes circumstances rather than being governed by them. A great deal of the plot is taken up in safely carrying the girl past the clutches of two men besides her original husband, who want her for their own. An unusual situation is brought out when she marries one of them. This picture surpasses by far many past Art Dramas releases. It is, as a whole, splendidly produced. In the supporting cast are, Leo Delaney, Bigelow Cooper and Pamela Vale.

John Allen brings his young bride, Doris to New York to live. She is not satisfied with the quiet life they are leading. They meet some of the "smart set," and Doris is fascinated by their gay life. John strongly objects to her friendship with these people. Thinking him selfish she refuses to obey him. Both are possessed of a stubborn pride and the breach between them widens.

Later she divorces her husband and marries John's college friend. To show Doris that he does not care, John spends more time with his law books. For a time she is supremely happy in her new surroundings, but finally comes to the conclusion that she has made a terrible mistake.

"The Promise"

Five-Reel Metro-Yorke Drama Released February 19. Reviewed by George W. Graves

"THE PROMISE" is a picturization of a novel of the same name by James B. Hendryx, appearing in the All-Story Weekly. The adaptation was made by Richard V. Spencer. The parts of the central characters, Bill Carmody, a flighty son of the rich, and Ethel Manton, his patient sweetheart, are taken by Harold Lockwood and May Allison, the popular Metro team. The male lead is a much more prominent part than the female, although neither of the stars have as much chance to register emotional work as they have had in their best previous offerings. Mr. Lockwood acquits himself creditably in a number of virile scenes, which one expects the minute the camera's lens is turned on the frontier lumber camp. Miss Allison meets the requirements of her part with grace and ease. In fact, she is so attractive that one wonders why her lover is so willing to risk losing her through his reckless dissipation.

The story has one sub-plot at the beginning (the Palm Beach escapade) which it could very well do without. Its biggest reason for existing is to show that Billy's sweetheart is not idle while he is away and to keep the heroine in the picture, although she has not yet entered the action transpiring in the story's main locale. At any rate, these Palm Beach views make a strong scenic contrast when the scenario calls for a switch of scenes from the snowy mountain lumber camp to the inviting Southern sands, with still more inviting bathers flitting hither and yon. This side development of the story also serves to introduce George Fisher, an actor who is capable of carrying a larger part, as an unsuccessful fortune hunter, a part which ceases to exist as soon as Ethel comes to the lumber camp, where most of the story is laid.

This locale, by the way, affords an occasion for some exceptionally interesting views of the lumber industry. The lumber drive is of itself a physical thrill without any other accompaniment.

Due more to the value of the story itself than to the direction, "The Promise" provides entertainment of a good sort. The climax is the strongest moment of the story, being a situation in which all the principals are dramatically involved. Having important parts in the cast are Lester Cuneo, the swaggering bully, Paul Willis, Lillian Hayward, W. H. Bainbridge, Leota Lorraine, John Steppling and T. H. Gibson-Gowland. Fred J. Balshofer directed.

Bill, a spendthrift, has a quarrel with his sweetheart, Ethel. He resolves to leave home and make good. Soon after his departure he is charged with stealing bonds belonging to his father. Bill comes to Appleton's lumber camp, and is making good rapidly when fate sees fit to lead Ethel to the scene of his activities. Their misunderstandings have not cleared any, and the girl, too, all unknown to him, thinks he is a thief. Finally the girl is ready to forgive him, but up comes another difficulty —Bill's unexplained intimacy with an Indian maid. Within hearing of Ethel, the latter implores Bill to keep his promise. Ethel finally learns what the promise was, after her lover has punished the camp bully, who was bothering the Indian maiden. The lovers' misunderstanding is ultimately adjusted, when it is learned that Bill, in his haste on leaving home, had taken the bonds in place of a package of Ethel's love-letters, which he intended to take.

"The Fortunes of Fifi"

Five-Reel Famous Players-Paramount for Release March 1. Reviewed by George W. Graves

WE wonder how many girls of the present day would adopt the erratic but sure method of the little French actress, Fifi, in this play, to get rid of an undesirable fortune-hunting lover. The rule that she practises might be worded something like this: If your ineradicable lover is merely after your money, get rid of your money and you will effectively get rid of him. Fifi not only squanders a fortune, but becomes so utterly boorish in her manners and dress that she is easily put back on a footing with her poor but noble lover, who believes he is not good enough for the girl to marry.

The story, film-ized by Eve Unsell from the play by Molly Elliott Seawell, is inconsequential as far as anything presuming to be a powerful plot is concerned. But it suffices to give Miss Clark innumerable chances to register her delightful personality and to demonstrate her ample originality and resourcefulness. The star's splendid holding power and the exquisite, elaborate and quaint atmosphere almost hide from view the fact that the plot proper is at times not progressing at all. One reel is almost entirely given over to a white poodle, who stands on his hind legs, eats from the family table and does some other stunts pointing to superior canine intelligence.

Robert Vignola's direction, broad enough to take in infinitesimal detail and artistic to a highly refined degree, is surely worthy of comment. His success with the star, too, gives the picture its vitalizing power. William Sorelle fullfils every requirement in the advantageous part of Cartouche, while others whose work stand out are John Sainpolis, Jean Gauthier and Kate Lester. The exhibitor may take comfort in the not very bold prophecy that Miss Clark's host of admirers will be thoroughly charmed by her work in "The Fortunes of Fifi."

Marguerite Clark in role of French actress, Fifi.

"Passion"

The Fifth of the "Seven Deadly Sins." Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

SHIRLEY MASON is featured in "Passions," the fifth of the "Seven Deady Sins," produced by the McClure Pictures. It is a lesson for young girls who easily fall in love with handsome but ignoble men. Eve Leslie learns this to her sorrow and is bitterly repentant. She desires to amend her rash deeds. Drink and gluttony are also strongly attacked.

The play is acted in a most convincing manner by an exceptionally good cast. The action is smooth throughout, with many thrilling incidents. Shirley Mason is well supported by George Le Guere. Others in the picture are, Clifford Bruce, Bigelow Cooper, Ruby Hoffman, Mabel Strickland, Edith Wright, Edmund Dalby and Harry Gripp. Richard Ridgely directed the play.

Eve, against the wishes of Adam, attends a prize fight at Madison Square Garden. She shows a great deal of enthusiasm for the wrestler Leonidas, with whom she is desperately in love. Eve receives much notoriety over this escapade. She is informed by her lawyer that according to the terms of the legacy she is to be deprived of her income for the present.

Believing she is penniless, Eve goes out in search of a position. Arriving at Coney Island she meets Leonidas. He is appearing in an athletic exhibition which includes a number of diving girls. Through his influence she secures a place in a cabaret. Later she takes the place of Leonidas' wife, who is hurt one day while diving. Eve is unaware that Leonidas is a married man and that he has practically left his wife.

A situation well illustrating the title "Passion."

Adam is in despair over Eve's absence. He has tried to find her but has searched in vain. Eve finds herself in rough company, but is blind to its real condition by her supposed love. She runs into difficulties and has many thrilling adventures. Monks tries to force his attentions on her, but she is saved from disgrace by Leonidas. Then she learns that Leonidas is a married man and all her hopes are crushed.

Thinking she will find a home with her foster parents she goes to them. There she is coldly received and is turned out into the world once more. Adam finds her as she is about to leave the place. She is overjoyed at seeing him and is willing to go back with him. "Passion" has taught her a bitter lesson.

"The American Consul"

Five-Reel Lasky-Paramount Photodrama Released February 15. Reviewed by George W. Graves

THEODORE ROBERTS gives a highly satisfying rendition of the starring role in this picture, a role which is probably as congenial a one as he has ever had. It is that of an honest, unsophisticated country lawyer who frets in the chains of his small-town activities and aspires to do something big; one of those lovable, big-hearted people—the embodiment of a certain cherished American type—who always win an audience's heart. The story does not endow the part with remarkable sympathetic power, but it clothes it with splendid human touches of the lighter sort, giving the star leeway at all times to score with his inimitable quaintness.

The story of the play is not exciting until its melodramatic finish. Up to this time it is of the pleased interest variety, seasoned with subtle humor finding expression through the star. It is always amusing and entertaining, but never actually gripping, due to the cut and dried development in the last reel. But as long as Mr. Roberts' magnetic personality holds the screen so effectively, and the dominant quality of the whole is one of clean entertainment, the story fulfills requirements without being deeply emotional. There is a timely and refined note of patriotism throughout the last of the picture.

In a superior supporting cast are Maude Fealy, as the lawyer's daughter, Tom Forman as her lover, Ernest Joy as the polished deceiver. Charles West as the deep-dyed villain, and Raymond Hatton. All of these players give finished performances.

With a likeable star in a likeable role, an effective cast, and a story which proves to contain both comedy and melodrama, "The American Consul" should suit the requirements of most any theater. It is a picture that the whole family can appreciate together.

Pedro Gonzalez, the representative of a new government about to be set up in Mexico, comes to Washington to exert his influence in securing an American Consul whom their gang can make to recognize their government. Through bribing a senator, one of the country lawyer's (Abel Manning's) acquaintances, Manning, the apparently unsophisticated, is sent to Mexico. But later, when Gonzalez tries to use the American Consul as his tool, he is indignantly repulsed by the latter. His refusal to comply with the villain's schemes finally causes a death sentence to be passed upon Manning. Through the help of his daughter and her sweetheart, however, an American cruiser has been communicated with, so that a rescue is effected in the nick of time. Manning's unwavering honesty and his loyalty to his country have finally won for him the recognition he has always coveted.

"The Moral Code"

Art Dramas Release Produced by Erbograph Company. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

THE "Moral Code" presents in a very realistic way a portrayal of English and American life, according to the present day standards. In the spoken drama, its proto-type, the George Bernard Shaw play, "Getting Married," is being produced. "The Moral Code," a parallel, though somewhat differently arranged is no less effective. It is a play that will take well with the broad-minded and those who are willing to face the new problems of the day.

Anna Q. Nilsson in the part of Jean Hyland and Walter Hitchcock as Gilbert Gerard deserve much credit for their fine acting. Florence Hamilton and Richard Barthelmess are exceptionally good. The story was written by Ashley Miller.

Jean Hyland becomes a correspondent for a leading newspaper. One night she is sent out to cover a supper given by Gary Gerard, a young man belonging to the "fast" set. Jean is displeased with the gay life the young people are leading. Gilbert, the elder brother of Gary, is a man of good principle. He is ever preaching to Gary to honor the Gerard name. But Gary continues to live a life of idleness. Thinking it might make a man of him, Gilbert cuts off his allowance.

Gary upon hearing this realizes the seriousness of his affair with Gracia, a rather weak character of a girl. He takes all the funds he can get and leaves for parts unknown. Gilbert, in order to save the family name from disgrace, marries the girl his brother has ruined. In the meantime, Jean leaves her work, as she does not approve of the forwardness of her employer. Later she secures a position with Gilbert as his private secretary.

Gracia does not seem to comprehend the sacrifice her husband has made for her. After her child is born she goes about as recklessly as before. Gilbert learns to love Jean and knows she is worthy of his highest ideals. Gary, his money gone, returns home.

Gilbert is greatly perplexed but reaches a decision when he finds that his brother is as much a scapegoat as ever. He knows that his wife is not worthy of his kind treatment. He tells them the only way for them is to go elsewhere and start life anew. Jean and Gilbert find happiness in each other.

Anna Nilsson in "The Moral Code."

Four Keystone Comedies

Mack Sennett Directed Offerings of Recent Date. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

FOUR unusually fine comedies of the Keystone brand, made under the direction of Mack Sennett, were screened at a Chicago trade review last week and sent a large audience of exhibitors into frequent gales of laughter, which is a good sign that less blasé audiences will be quite overwhelmed with mirth. The comedies and their release dates are: "The Nick of Time Baby," February 11; "Stars and Bars," February 18; "Maggie's First False Step," February 25, and "Her Circus Knight," March 4, each a two-reeler.

The offerings in general are characterized by the usual elaborate effects of former Keystones. They are a wonderful mixture of thrill and humor. From a production standpoint, many of the effects obtained are remarkable. They are up to the best Keystone standard in execution and many of the stunts are new and breath-taking. In short, they are praiseworthy in invention and execution and they are certain to thrill and delight any audience. They are distinctly high class. If occasionally the humor threatens to become a bit coarse, it is switched from this tendency by some unusual and thrilling stunt.

A detailed description of each comedy is quite beyond the power of this reviewer. Only the high lights can be suggested, with the general comment that as entertainment for any audience the releases are excellent.

"The Nick of Time Baby" is remarkable for an unusual actor, "Teddy," one of the cleverest trained dogs ever seen on the screen. Another player worthy of note is the baby. This youngster surely has begun his young career in a strenuous fashion, for an amasing number of things happen to him in the picture. He and "Teddy" are the real stars of the play and the audience will be occasionally undecided whether to laugh or to hold its breath in fear.

"Stars and Bars" features Ford Sterling as a clever crook and is amusing throughout. A feature of "Maggie's First False Step," starring Charles Murray, is a comedy chase between an automobile and a motorcycle in a department store. In "Her Circus Knight," with Ora Carew, all the thrills and comedy of a circus are used. The aeroplane and balloon races are especially well done. Thrilling chases and accidents are incorporated into each comedy.

"Back of the Man"

Triangle-Ince Drama in Five Parts Released March 4. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A STORY which is true enough to life—the power behind the man being a self-sacrificing woman, doing much of his work but allowing him the honor—this picture has that much to its favor. For the first half or so the story serves as a very effective mirror in which we have some views of the business world that are not far from correct. It is very absorbing up to the time the young man is found over the dead body of his fiancee toying with the revolver, only to be caught in this position by the police. From this time the story relapses into the familiar regulation developments, the court scene, etc., to be relieved at the finish by some exciting melodrama.

Charles Ray and Dorothy Dalton give unusual performances even for them, all of their work being convincing and facile. Reginald Barker's direction is favorable to the picture's success. There is nothing to complain of in regard to the portrayals provided by the cast, three other important members of whom are Margaret Thompson, Jack Livingston and J. Barney Sherry.

Despite the fact that the offering disappoints in its relapse into the commonplace, it is destined to popularity because of the interest of the greater part of the story, the unsurpassed work of the stars and an atmosphere that smacks of genuineness. As a whole the picture passes the entertainment limits reached by some of the late Kay Bee pictures.

Larry Thomas, a country youth of uncouth manners, has a hard struggle as a filing clerk in Brook's office, until he is first inspired by the encouragements of his one friend, Ellen, and later materially helped by her. Then he begins to quickly climb the ladder of success. Finally it becomes a matter of business policy to become engaged to the daughter of the president—an act which Ellen approves, since she is willing to sacrifice her desires for the sake of helping Larry to become a member of the firm. The young man does not discern the extent of her sacrifice, however. A short time later, Muriel Brooks, the victim of blackmail, assists a robber to plunder her father's safe. While working on the job, the thief's revolver accidentally explodes, killing Muriel. Circumstantial evidence points to Larry's guilt. But there is a melodramatic scene at the courtroom, when the real murderer dashes into the aisle and makes a frenzied confession. So Larry, released, marries the girl who has continuously stood by him.

"Betsy's Burglar"

Triangle-Fine Arts Constance Talmadge Offering March 4. Reviewed by George W. Graves

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, as a slavey in a boarding-house who seeks romance and finds it in abundance, is a sympathetic figure in this. It doesn't seem to us that the part quite does her talents justice, but there is no doubt about her giving the best that is in her to the portraying of the role. The star has pronounced charm, both in demure and rougish moods.

The scenario, by Frank Woods, has been worked onto the screen with good entertaining effect, keeping the viewer amused and pleased. Not a small number of farcical situations are introduced. The motives of the young lover are kept obscure until the last, when we discover that he is not a crook, but honest, as he has represented himself to be. Thus the swain, who has always cherished the girl, and his defective detective deductions, are brought low. The action of the piece is rather uneven, showing plainly that less footage would have made a neater piece of film.

The picture as a whole measures up to a pretty good standard of entertainment, but it is not exceptional. Constance Talmadge is exceedingly attractive.

The day of romance arrives for the boarding-house slavey when Brent, a handsome young fellow, moves in. He and Betsy become quite friendly. Harry Brent finally gets the girl to co-operate with him in getting a strong-box, which he claims contains his father's will, away from an old couple boarding in the house. However, warned by her rustic lover, a correspondence school detective, not to trust Harry, Betsy empties the contents of the box into her trunk before delivering it to her young hero. Scarcely has the latter got the box into his hands when he is attacked by thugs. Several lively scenes ensue, but when the smoke has cleared, it is proved that Harry is the heir to his uncle's fortune, that the old couple, servants of his father, are thieves, and that the correspondence detective is awry in his calculations.

Convincing scene from "Betsy's Burglar."

Edith Storey at Theater

Edith Storey, the Vitagraph star, used a special train from Los Angeles to Oakland, California, on February 14, in order to appear at the T. & D. Theater in aid of the Ad-Masque, which was engaging the attention of San Francisco's neighbor.

Miss Storey appeared at the T. & D. Theater the afternoon and again in the early evening of February 14, and explained to the audience which overflowed far beyond the corners of the street, in both directions, some of the big moments in her recent success, "Money Magic."

ADVERTISING "SEVEN SINS"

Trade Press Display Pages Prepare the Exhibitor for Meeting Salesman—Benefits Both Says F. L. Collins

Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures, which is now releasing "Seven Deadly Sins," says the total cost of the "Seven Deadly Sins" advertising in the last six months sets a new high record. Advertising has been carried in twenty-four magazines of national circulation, fifty newspapers and each of the half-dozen or more trade papers that appeal directly to the exhibitor. McClure Pictures announce that it exceeds the greatest amount ever spent before for a motion picture production.

Several producers have intimated to Mr. Collins that they believed he took more advertising space in trade papers than was necessary. He replies in the following and cites the usefulness of trade paper advertising to the exhibitor:

Without class-advertising every exhibitor would have been an ordinary customer, one hard to convince that the new idea of a series of features was a good one. Exhibitors are busy persons and many would not have taken the trouble to hear the salesman's entire story.

So we told it through the trade papers. Now when a salesman calls upon an exhibitor, the latter not only is ready to sign a contract but he already has prepared his own advertising campaign and has reserved time on his program for the showing of "Seven Deadly Sins." We have been convinced of the value of the trade papers and we shall demonstrate this in our next campaign.

Kalems Booked Independently

Exhibitors the country over will be greatly interested to know that under an arrangement entered into by the Kalem Company with its distributors, the General Film Company, all Kalem-made pictures, whether series or comedy, can now be booked independently of the other releases on the General Film program. It is anticipated that when this news becomes generally circulated the demand for "The American Girl" and "A Daughter of Daring," Kalem's two new series productions, will be greatly augmented. The new policy should also increase the bookings of "Grant, Police Reporter" and the further adventures of "Stingaree" when it is released.

Williamson Man to South America

Stephen T. King, well known in motion picture and theatrical circles, left New York lately for South America on the S. S. Vassari, where he will act as special representative for the Williamson Brothers and the Submarine Film Corporation in connection with the recently announced plans of this progressive concern.

Unusual interest was attached to the departure of Mr. King, due to the fact that the big Lamport and Holt liner was the first passenger ship sailing to a South American port after the announcement of this country's break with Germany.

Mr. King is a man of broad experience in the theatrical and motion picture field and is well and favorably known from coast to coast, due to his twenty-year record in handling big stars and prominent productions. He will be remembered as the manager of Lillian Russell, De Wolf Hopper and many other well known stage luminaries and as the managing director of his own attractions which successfully toured the country for many seasons. For two years Mr. King acted as manager of the Broadway Theater in this city, the playhouse which, by strange coincidence, is now housing the tremendously popular Williamson Brothers-Universal feature picture production, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Mr. King will locate in Buenos Aires at the Hotel Cecil. Later he expects to make an extended tour of all the Latin American countries.

New McClure Serial Coming

Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures, reports that he is negotiating with a director of international reputation who probably will be engaged within the next few weeks to take charge of producing the new McClure series of five-reel features that will follow "Seven Deadly Sins."

The McClure series department of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, now handling the "Seven Deadly Sins," has been placed on a permanent organization basis and it is announced that the new series will be released through Triangle.

In St. Louis and Chicago, theaters which had booked the "Seven Deadly Sins" for three-day runs, changed their bookings to solid week engagements after seeing the demand for "Envy," the first of the series.

Books Rex Beach Play

The Rex Beach Pictures Company's big feature, "The Barrier," opened at the Broadway Theater, New York, Sunday, February 25, following the run of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

"The Barrier" has been heralded as one of the coming big events of the motion picture world since its reception at the private showing at the Broadway Theater a month ago. It is understood that this feature will be shown in Philadelphia, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Chicago immediately following the showing in New York.

"The Barrier" is an adaptation of Rex Beach's novel of life in California and Alaska.

Some dainty silhouette productions are being made at the studios of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., for release on the Conquest Pictures program. These will be among the split-reel features of the program and they will be highly artistic and entertaining. At the present time a series of the more celebrated fairy tales and other classes of juvenile stories are being produced in this form. Among those already completed are "Puss in Boots," "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Dick Whittington."

Bessie Love is to be featured in the Triangle-Fine Arts production, "More Blessed to Give." Kenneth Harlan will play the leading masculine role opposite Miss Love, with the other principals in the cast including Josephine Crowell, Spottiswoode Aitken, Loyola O'Connor, Wm. H. Brown, Pauline Starke, Winnifred Westover and the Fine Arts kiddies, Georgie Stone, Tina Rossi, and Thelma and Beulah Burns. Violet Wilkie and Bessie Buskirk also have important parts.

Dr. W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, spent two days in Boston recently on business, in relation to the release of "The Deemster" in New England. These states have always been strong Hall Caine territory.

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in booking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's booking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Monday.

D	2-5	Cupid's Thumb Print .....2, Selig	21702–03
C	2-5	The Hall Room Girls (Claire McCormack)....1, Vita.	21704
T	2-5	Selig Tribune, No. 11.....1, Selig	21705

Tuesday.

D	2-6	The Hoodooed Story (Richard Travers)....2, Essanay	21706–07
C	2-6	Ghost Hounds (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21708

Wednesday.

T	2-7	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24.....s, Essanay	21709
		(Alaska) .....s

Thursday.

T	2-8	Selig Tribune, No. 12.....1, Selig	21710
	2-8	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21711

Friday.

D	2-9	The Trap (Ollie Kirkby and George Larkin)..1, Kalem	21712
	2-9	Title Not Given.....1, Vim	21713
D	2-9	The Suitor from Siam (Mary Anderson).....1, Vita.	21714

Saturday.

D	2-10	Desertion and Non-Support (Marguerite Clayton)..... .....2, Essanay	21715–16
D	2-10	The Prima Donna's Special (Helen Gibson)..1, Kalem	21717
D	2-10	A Strange Adventure (Jack Pickford).....1, Selig	21718

Monday.

D	2-19	The Great Treasure .....2, Selig	21741–42
D	2-19	The Meeting (Bobby Connelly).....1, Vitagraph	21743
T	2-19	Selig Tribune, No. 15.....1, Selig	21744

Tuesday.

C	2-20	A Four-Cent Courtship (Bryant Washburn)..2, Essanay	21745–46
C	2-20	A Flyer in Flapjacks (Ham and Bud).....1, Kalem	21747

Wednesday.

T	2-21	Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 25.....s, Essanay	21748
T	2-21	British Columbia .....s, Essanay

Thursday.

T	2-22	Selig Tribune, No. 16.....1, Selig	21749
C	2-22	The Newlyweds' Mistake (Irene Wallace).....1, Vim	21750

Friday.

D	2-23	The Screened Vault (Ollie Kirkby).....1, Kalem	21751
C	2-23	Art and Paint .....1, Vim	21752
D	2-23	The Gang (Mary Anderson).....1, Vitagraph	21753

Saturday.

D	2-24	Is Marriage Sacred? 11th—The Extravagant Bride (Marguerite Clayton) .....2, Essanay	21754–55
D	2-24	A Brother's Sacrifice .....1, Selig	21756

V. L. S. E. Program

1-15	The Hon. Mr. Oxenham (Fourth Episode of the Secret Kingdom)	5,000
1-22	Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland).....	5,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Trial Balance (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Blind Justice (Benj. Christie).....	5,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
2-26	Masks and Mishaps (Hughie Mack).....	1,000
2-26	Captain Jinks' Explosive Temper (Frank Daniels).....	1,000
2-26	A Goat Without Horns (Tenth Episode of The Secret Kingdom)	5,000
2-26	Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams).....	5,000
3-5	The Intrigue (Peggy Hyland)	5,000

Mutual Program

Sunday.

C	2-25	The Butcher's Nightmare (Ben Turpin).....2, Vogue	05341–42
T	2-25	Reel Life .....1, Gaumont	05343
D	2-26	Shorty Hooks a Loan Shark (Shorty Hamilton, No. 7) .....2, Monogram	05344–45

Tuesday.

T	2-27	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05346

Wednesday.

T	2-28	Mutual Weekly, No. 113.....1, Mutual	05347
T	2-28	See America First .....1, Gaumont	05348

Thursday.

C	3-1	Jerry's Romance (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05349

Friday.

C	3-2	Calamity Ann's Protege (Louise Lester)...1, American	05350

Saturday.

C	2-3	Cupid and a Brick (J. Warren Kerrigan)..1, American	05351

Sunday.

C	3-4	A Rummy Romance (Paddy McQuire).....2, Vogue	05352–53
T	3-4	Reel Life .....1, Gaumont	05354

Monday.

D	3-5	Shorty Traps a Lottery King (Shorty Hamilton, No. 8) .....2, Monogram	05355–56

Tuesday.

T	3-6	Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont	05357

Wednesday.

T	3-7	Mutual Weekly, No. 114.....1, Mutual	05358
	3-7	See America First.....Kartoon Komics	05359

Thursday.

C	3-8	The Flying Target (George Ovey).....1, Cub	05360
T	3-8	Reel Life .....1, Gaumont	05361

Friday.

	3-9	Title Not Given 3	05362–63–64

Saturday.

C	3-10	His Bogus Boast (Ben Turpin).....2, Vogue	05365–66

Universal Program

Sunday.

	2-25	No Release This Week.....Rex
D	2-25	A Dangerous Double (Sydell Dowling and Sidney Bracey) .....2, Imp	02196
C	2-25	A Day in the Life of a Dog.....s	02197
	2-25	Buried Treasures of Ceylon.....s
D	2-25	Lost in the Streets of Paris (King Baggott).....Rex	02198

Monday.

C	2-26	A Million in Sight (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor	02201

Tuesday.

D	2-27	Mary from America (Ruth Clifford).....3, Gold Seal	02202
D	2-27	A Novel Romance (Flora Parker De Haven)..1, Victor	02203

Wednesday.

	2-28	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	2-28	Spike's Bizzy Bike (Dan Russell).....2, L-Ko	02204
	2-28	Animated Weekly, No. 61.....1, Universal	02205

Thursday.

C	3-1	They Were Four (Neal Hart).....1, Victor	02206
D	3-1	The Rented Man (Claire McDowell).....2, Rex	02207
	3-1	No Release This Week.....Powers
D	3-1	An Hour of Terror (Matt Moon).....1, Imp	02208

Friday.

D	3-2	Evil Hands (Edith Roberts).....1, Imp	02209
T	3-2	Universal Screen Magazine (Issue No. 8).....	02210
	3-2	No Release This Week.....Nestor
D	3-2	A Battle of Wits (Harold Lockwood).....1, Big U	02211

Saturday.

D	2-3	The Tornado (Jack Ford).....1, Bison	02212
	3-3	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	3-3	Passing the Grip (Gale Henry).....1, Joker	02213
D	3-3	Undoing Evil (King Baggott).....1, Laemmle	02214

Sunday.

	3-4	No Release This Week .....Rex
D	3-4	Tangled Threads (Larimar Johnston).....2, Imp	02215
C	3-4	Mr. Fuller Pep .....s, Powers	02216
	3-4	The Land of Buddha .....s, Powers
D	3-4	Buried Alive (Wallace Reid).....1, Big U	02217
D	3-4	The Purple Mask (Episode No. 10, The House of Mystery) (SPECIAL) .....2, Universal	02218

Monday.

C	3-5	A Bundle of Trouble (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor	02220

Tuesday.

D	3-6	"Desperations".....3, Gold Seal	02221
C	3-6	Good Morning Nurse (Eileen Sedgwick).....1, Victor	02222

Wednesday.

	3-7	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	3-7	Fatty's Feature Fillum (Fatty Voss).....2, L-Ko	02223
	3-7	Animated Weekly, No. 62.....1, Universal	02224
D	3-7	A Soldier's Dream.....1, Big U	02225

Thursday.

	3-8	No Release This Week.....Victor
D	3-8	Good For Nothing Gallagher (Wm. V Mong).1, Big U	02226
D	3-8	The Amazing Adventure (Roberta Wilson).....2, Rex	02227
D	3-8	The Tempest Sea (Margarita Fischer).....1, Laemmle	02228

Friday.

D	3-9	The Perils of the Secret Service (Kingsley Benedict) .....2, Imp (No. 1—The Last Cigarette.)	02229
	3-9	No Release This Week.....Rex
T	3-9	Universal Screen Magazine (Issue No. 9).....	02230
C	3-9	The Beauty Doctor (Billy Mason).....1, Victor	02231

Saturday.

D	3-10	The Drifter (Harry Carey).....2, Bison	02232
	3-10	No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C	3-10	Wanta Make a Dollar (Gale Henry).....1, Joker	02233

Sunday.

D	3-11	It Makes a Difference (Dorothy Davenport)....1, Rex	02234
	3-11	No Release This Week.....
C	3-11	Mr. Fuller Pep (His Day of Rest).....s, Powers	02235
T	3-11	The Mysterious City.....s
D	3-11	The Man of Mystery (King Baggot).....2, Imp	02236
D	3-11	The Purple Mask No. 11 (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....2, Universal	02237
		(The Garden of Surprise) SPECIAL.....

Miscellaneous Features

Artcraft Pictures

3-5	The Poor Little Rich Girl (Mary Pickford).....	5,000

Art Dramas

2-22	The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson).....Erbograph	5,000
3-1	Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon).....	5,000
3-8	The Cloud	5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

2-12	The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Norwell).Bluebird	5,000
2-19	The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum).Bluebird	5,000
2-26	The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse).....
3-5	The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau).....

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of

2-12	The Scarlet Letter (Stewart Holmes).....	5,000
2-12	Chased Into Love (Hank Mann).....	2,000
2-19	The Tiger Woman (Theda Bara).....	5,000
2-19	There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann).....	2,000
2-26	A Child of the Wild (June Caprice)	5,000
2-26	The House of Terrible Scandals (Lehrman and Billie Ritchie)	2,000
3-5	Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson).....	5,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of

2-19	The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore).....Edison	5,000
2-26	Max Comes Across (Max Linder) .....Essanay	2,000
3-5	Burning the Candle (Henry B. Walthall).....Essanay	5,000

McClure Pictures

2-19	Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) .....McClure	5,000
2-26	Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere)	5,000
3-5	Seven Deadly Sins, "Sloth" (Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere).....	5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of

2-19	Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew).....Metro	5,000
2-26	Reliable Henry (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew).....Metro	5,000
2-26	The Secret of Eve (Mme. Petrova).....Popular	5,000
3-5	The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen).....Rolfe	5,000
3-5	A Modern Romance (Max Figman).....Metro-Rolma	5,000
3-5	The Barricade (Mabel Taliaferro).....Rolfe	5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of

2-5	Pardners (Charlotte Walker).....5, Mutual
2-12	Damaged Goods (New Edition) (Richard Bennett)..... .....American	7,000
2-19	The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter)....5, American
2-26	The Greater Woman (Marjorie Rambeau)..5, Powell-Mutual
2-5	The Girl from Rector's (Ruth MacTammany).....5, Mutual

Mutual Serials

2-26	Taking Chances (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 10) (Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe).....Niagara	2,000
2-25	Stage Struck (Dorothy Gish).....Fine Arts	5,000
	The Meeting (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 11) (Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalf).....	2,000

Paramount Features

Released Week of

2-12	Beautiful Banff (Burton Holmes).....	1,000
2-12	The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen).....Lasky	5,000
2-15	The American Consul (Theo. Roberts).....Lasky	5,000
2-19	With the Stony Indians (Burton Holmes).....	1,000
2-19	Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward).....Lasky	5,000
2-22	On Record (Mae Murray) .....Lasky	5,000
2-26	Some Doctor .....Klever Comedy	1,000
2-26	Exquisite Lake Louise..... Burton Holmes	1,000
2-26	The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark)....Famous Players	5,000
3-1	Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet).....Lasky	5,000
3-5	Castles for Two (Marie Doro).....Lasky	5,000
3-5	The Yoko Valley .....Burton Holmes	1,000
3-8	Out of the Wreck (Kathryn Williams).....Morosco	5,000

Pathe

Released Week of

3-4	Pearl of the Army, No. 14 (Pearl White).....Astra	2,000
3-4	Patria, No. 8 (Mrs. Vernon Castle).....International	2,000
3-4	Her Beloved Enemy (Doris Grey).....Thanhouser	5,000
3-4	Deep Dyed Villainy .....Mittenthal	1,000
3-4	Florence Rose Fashions, No. 21.....Rose	500
3-4	Picturesque Catalonia (Spain).....Pathe	500
3-7	Hearst-Pathe News, No. 20.....Pathe	1,000
3-10	Hearst-Pathe News, No. 21.....Pathe	1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of

2-12	The Terror (Jack Mulhall)	5,000
2-19	The War of the Tongs.....	5,000
2-26	The Girl and the Crisis (Dorothy Davenport).....	5,000
3-5	The Gates of Eden (Claire McDowell).....	5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of

2-25	The Last of the Ingrams (Wm. Desmond).....Ince	5,000
2-25	Stage Struck (Dorothy Gish).....Fine Arts	5,000
2-25	Maggie's First False Step (Murray and Fazenda)..Keystone	2,000
3-1	The Last of the Ingrams (Wm. Desmond).....Kay-Bee	5,000
3-1	Done in Oil.....Triangle Komedy	1,000
3-4	Betty's Burglar (Constance Talmadge).....Fine Arts	5,000
3-4	Her Cave Man.....Triangle Comedy	1,000
3-4	Back of the Man (Dorothy Dalton).....Kay-Bee	5,000
3-4	Her Circus Night (Ora Carew).....Keystone	2,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of

12-20B	Lost in the Shuffle.....1, Hippo	1146B
12-21	The Voice in the Night.....2, Utab	1147A
12-21	Blowing Up Broadway.....1, Jockey	1147B
12-22	The White Man's Squaw.....2, Hiawatha	1148A
12-22	Algernon's Affinity.....1, Gaiety	1148B
12-23	Shackles of Conscience.....2, Supreme	1149A
12-24	Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont..... 1, Judy	1150A
12-24	The Prodigal Son.....2, Buffalo	1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of

12-1	Land Just Over Yonder.....6
12-15	Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
1-15	Glory 7

World Features

Released Week of

2-5	The Hungry Heart (Alice Brady).....World	5,000
2-12	The Red Woman (Gail Kane).....World	5,000
2-19	A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell).....World	5,000
2-26	A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick).....World	5,000
3-5	The Web of Desire (Ethel Clayton).....World	5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

The Battle of the Somme—The War series—Second Episode.—Showing the aircraft of the English. Every trench photographed from above by aviators. Shelling the trenches five miles away by means of periscopes and observers. The Charge! Prisoners hold up their hands in terror. Actual photographs of the war in Europe.

The Invisible Web—A Black Cat feature—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-nine Minutes). Helen Delaine, a noted woman detective, is assigned to run down a notorious gang of robbers. She follows them to a Canadian hotel and gets acquainted with them as Ruth Dayton, the heiress. She invites them to visit her. Flora and Eddie arrive at the Dayton home and there Helen, with the aid of Jack Delaine, her husband, lays the trap. They show the crooks the safe and even the combination. That night Helen and her husband hide in the vault room and when the crooks blow open the safe door, out step the detectives with drawn revolvers. A fight ensues but the crooks are finally overpowered.

Tiny, Slim and Fat—Essanay—(Screen Time Fifteen Minutes).—Tiny is the object of the attentions of Slim and Fat, two friends who have become bitter foes because of their affection for the little lady. They engage in a battle, which is speedily ended when both are tossed off the lot by the young lady's mother, who is anything but tiny. The comedy in the reel is accompanied by beautiful travel scenes showing the famous Nakimu Caves of British Columbia.

The Vanishing Woman—Is Marriage Sacred series—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-nine Minutes.—Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Sydney Ainsworth in the cast. Reviewed in this issue.

The Five Dollar Bill—A Black Cat Feature—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-nine Minutes)—March 6.—Thomas Dibby, commuter and underpaid clerk, craves a watch which a tobacco company offers for 2,000 coupons. He needs only 100 more coupons to get it. Thomas finds an envelope which contains fifty $1,000 bills. Joy runs riot in the Dibby home. But gloom comes next morning. The loser of the fortune plays a ruse. He advertises that the bills are counterfeit, and that anybody who cashes them will be arrested. Dejected, Thomas returns the fortune to its owner, innocent of its real value. He is rewarded with a $5 bill. It happens that $5 worth of tobacco will just get the much-needed 100 coupons. Thomas rushes to the cigar store and comes out with the watch. He is just as happy as if he had the $50,000.

Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 26.—Essanay—March 7.—Great Spanish and Mexican athletes are caught by the Canimated Nooz camera in celebration of Hottamale day at Garlicpie, Spain. Salveo, the great, slings the cow's husband. Oscar, of ebony hue, eats eighteen Chicken pies, Spanish style, in three minutes. In Washington, D. C., the arrival of Prince Gobuvink, ambassador from Umphumph, and his charming frau is shown. The Prince, according to report, is here to confer with the President on the ear-muff shortage in Africa. Forgetting his mission, however, the Prince engages the ambassador from Affghanistan in a little game of his national pastime. There is trouble, when Prince endeavors to "sneak one" while his opponent is not looking. A study in high-flying concludes the Canimated program. How freight cars and great locomotives are built, from beginning to end, forms the other half of the reel.

The Pulse of Madness—Is Marriage Sacred series—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-eight Minutes).—If Wesley Westbrook, a struggling young architect, can get his plans accepted for a big office building, his future will be assured, he will be able to marry Isobel Franklin, and send her father to a milder climate for his health. The decision on the plans rests with Stanley Simmonds, a wealthy builder in whose office Isobel is employed. Simmonds proposes to Isobel but she tells him she loves Wesley. Rev. Franklin is suddenly stricken and must go South immediately. Isobel decides to sacrifice her happiness and wed Simmonds to save her father's life. She tells the builder she will wed him, and explains the reason for her change of mind. Simmonds, however, proves himself a man by accepting Westbrook's plans, and enabling true love to run its course.

In the Path of Peril—First Episode in A Daughter of Daring—Kalem.—Featuring Helen Gibson. Gypsy Joe and his band camp near Lone Point station where Helen is. Anita, queen of the band, spies Helen and Compton in the station, and enters to tell Helen's fortune for a piece of silver. The engineer rewards her for painting him as her suitor. Anita tells Joe that a girl stands between them and the station safe. Joe leads his men on the station, and is overpowering Helen when he is spied by Compton's fireman. The fireman takes the throttle, Compton jumps, and puts the band to rout. Joe is locked up, but Anita gets him out. He plans to wreck the freight, climb aboard and kill Compton. He throws the siding and derails the rear truck of a flat car at the end of the train. Helen hastens after the train on her motorcycle. Seeing the dragging flat car she puts on a burst of speed and rides up the slanting surface from between the rails, abandoning the machine to catch the grips of the freight car ahead. She frees Compton, and brings the runaway to a stop.

The Mirror of Fear—Grant, Police Reporter series—Kalem.—Featuring George Larkin. Major Chenilworth, many years before the story opens, had been forced to kill a fellow officer in India. He was acquitted by the jury, but is now a nervous wreck, unable to enjoy life or his rather large income. His neice, Lois Trent, is the joy of his life, and Jardyce, his butler, who had been the witness to the murder is the thorn in it. Jardice never lets him forget that he is a murderer. Lois Trent meets Grant, police reporter on the Chronicle, and tells him that she expects a plot to causc her uncle's death. Disguised as a gas inspector Grant investigates and finds in the basement of the house a picture machine that can be raised to the level of the kitchen floor. He sees Jardyce thread up the machine with a reel of film and when the lights are turned out throws the picture of the murder before the Major. Jardyce forces the Major to alter his will in his favor and Grant and Miss Trent rush into the room. Jardyce leaps into an auto standing near and Grant follows on a bicycle. He leaps into the rear of the car when Jardyce has engine trouble, just as he gets to the railroad track. A train thunders down on them, Grant leaps to safety and Jardyce pays the extreme penalty for his misdeeds.

Efficiency Experts—Kalem.—Featuring "Ham" and "Bud," supported by Henry Murdock and Ethel Teare. Bessie resorts to subterfuge to meet her lover, Jack. Ham and Bud are asleep on their steam lawn mower. Dad, taking a nap on the lawn gets free shave, while Bessie amuses herself with her callers. Bessie calls for the electrician. He sets to work in the basement repairing broken wires and finds a note, stating that the family jewels are buried beneath the chestnut tree. Leaving the live wires sparking against a water pipe the electricial worker rushes out, filled with the visions of riches. Seeing Ham and Bud asleep on the lawn Bessie gives them a shower bath from the garden hose, and when her hand strikes the metal pipe a volt of electricity leaves her senseless. Thinking the lawnmower has killed her Ham and Bud bury her in the grass. That night the electrician comes back for the treasure and while digging he unearths Bessie. Ham and Bud are frightened at the ghost of Bessie and stumble over the electric. Before many seconds elapse the whole house is under the influence of the "juice."

The Black Rider of Tasajara—Kalem.—First episode of "The American Girl" series. Featuring Marin Sais. The Black Rider of Tasajara is holding up the stage again. Amos Durston, hotel proprietor, offers a $5,000 reward for his capture. Aunt Harriet, sister of Roger King, and the aunt of the American Girl, is worried about her pearl necklace, and before long it is stolen. Madge, on her horse, sees the Black Rider but he shoots her horse from under her. Wild Bill, a town character, gets drunk and shoots up the town in good old Wild West fashion. He is arrested and the necklace drops from his clothing. He is accused of the other robberies and held as the Black Rider but Madge is convinced he is not guilty. She decides to do a little "detectivin" on her own account. Wild Bill escapes and a posse is sent to scour the country. Durston, Larry and King ride off in different directions, and when Larry's horse returns riderless, Madge goes to look for him. She finds him bound up and is releasing him when the Black Rider appears and threatens them. The others of the posse come up and the bold one is captured. Madge snatches his mask from his face. It is Durston, the hotel proprietor, and Madge, the American Girl, is the hero of the hour.

An Actress' Romance—Selig—(Two Reels).—Frank Wade has a quarrel with his father and leaves home. He is in love with Ann Loring, the sister of a famous singer, Carol Loring. Involved in a fight with two thugs, and fearing his father's disgrace he disappears but is later caught though he is really innocent. About this time a body is found in the river and identified as Frank. The lad is really sentenced to a term in prison. During the two years tbat follow his father becomes engaged to Carol, the singer, and while she is singing to prisoners in the penitentiary her sister Ann sees a prisoner who resembles Frank. She persuades her sister to try to help the mysterious prisoner and the singer in turn secures the aid of Frank's father, who sees the Governor about a pardon. A criminal later confesses to Frank's crime and a nice family reunion is held, leaving Frank and Ann happy ever after.

No Place Like Home—Selig—(One Reel).—Baby Lillian mixes "Eternal Glue" with sister's perfume and sprays the whole house. Dignified father waltzes around the house a pretty maid hugged in his arms while mother is stuck fast to his coat tails. Cook bounces around, a frying pan fast to her foot. The dude with his bouquet for sister is caught fast, while sister is stuck fast to Dad's revolvers which she has been investigating. Bullets fly, and a tramp, sneaking a lunch, escapes leaving his coat stuck fast to a kitchen chair. When peace is restored, what happens to Baby Lillian is a caution.

The Newlyweds' Mistake—Vim Comedy.—Featuring George Larkin and Irene Wallace. Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed decide to spend the day at the beach and forthwith don their Sunday clothes. Mrs. Newlywed must first buy some beauty powder and Friend husband decides to buy a smoke. Mrs. Wife comes back first and mistakes a man in an auto for her husband and gives chase. When hubby returns he thinks a woman in another auto is his wife and he gives chase. When they arrive at the beach they search in vain for each other and decide to go home. Mrs. Newlywed gets home first and when hubby arrives there are a few explanations. They come to the conclusion that the next holiday will best be spent at home.

Art and Paint—Vim Comedy.—A. Suburb decides to have his dwelling renovated and selects Stooge, a painter with artistic ideas, and his helper Boozo, to do the work. Boozo has a favorite resting place, an empty dry goods box, and here Stooge finds him. He arouses him, and hooked together with a painter's ladder they depart to paint. Upon their arrival they erect a scaffold, and in doing this prove themselves no mean acrobats. Their artistic tastes do not appeal to Suburb's fancy and he dismisses them. Dame Fortune smiles on them and they become heirs to $5,000. They open a studio and become regular artists. Their first customer, a baby boy six feet six, does not like their painting, and the artists' dreams of wealth die in a garbage wagon, where their irate customer has deposited them.

Selig-Tribune No. 16—Thursday, February 22.—Released through General Film service. Santa Rosa, Cal.—Luther Burbank presents Frank Leach, representing the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, with the bulb of the largest dahlia ever produced. New Orleans, La.—This city boasts of the first submarine ever built. San Francisco, Cal.—Twenty-one students go to France to operate the Stanford Ambulance Corps. New Orleans, La.—Society women shine shoes at $1.00 per shine. San Francisco, Cal.—The U. S. torpedo boat Hopkins guards interned German vessels. New Orleans, La.—The Country Club becomes the demonstrating school for women. El Paso, Texas.—Fire sweeps through a section of this city. Houston, Texas.—Children of the public schools inaugurate a waste paper saving campaign. El Paso, Texas.—Colorado artillery boys in bivouac shoot dice. Palm Beach, Fla.—"Red bug" racing becomes the fad of well known society women. Governor's Island, N. Y.—Zero weather does not deter these wealthy young business men from receiving military training. New York, N. Y.—The S. S. Frederick VIII, sailing under the Allies' guarantee of safe conduct, bears Count von Bernstorff and his party. New York, N. Y.—The S. S. Ryndam is recalled from her eastward voyage and reaches the port safely.

Selig-Tribune No. 17.—Palm Beach, Fla.—Leaders in the world's society take daily dips in the surf. Jackson, N. H.—Wildcat Valley in the White Mountains is stripped of its last big cut of timber. North Conway, N. H.—A member of the Alpine Club takes his plunge in an icy mountain pool. Portland, Ore.—This lone vessel flying the flag of Emperor William, is moored in Portland's harbor. Oakland, Cal.—As part of the annual advrtising pagant a company of Grecian dancers disport on the green. Portland, Ore.—The great interstate bridge, spanning the Columbia River and costing $1,750,000 is officially opened. Verdun, France.—Endless columns of tired fighters are constantly being sent to the rear for recuperation. New York, N. Y.—The French steamship Guyane arrives after having sunk a German submarine in a 40-minute battle off the coast of France. Miami, Fla.—The third Miami regatta for motor boats brings to this resort the speediest crafts in the United States. Portland, Ore.—Mrs. Constance Meyer, Portland's water nymph, will attempt to bring home the National swimming championship next June. Hachita, N. M.—The funeral of three American cowboys, murdered and mutilated by Mexicans immediately after our troops were recalled.

Dimples' Baby—Vitagraph.—Vivian is a lovely, jolly girl, full of the maternal instinct and wants her uncle to adopt a real live baby for her amusement, but uncle is a crusty old individual and doesn't accede. Vivian has two lovers, Jack, too attentive, and Latimer, not attentive enough. There is an actress, Rose, who has a baby but no job. Work is hard to find and she is in despair. She sees Vivian making a fuss over babies and leaves hers in the tonneau of her car. She sees Vivian take the baby into the house. Uncle permits Vivian to keep the child until its parents are found. Jack finds Rose half frozen and takes her to her room, the aspect of which tells him that she is an actress. He puts her in touch with a manager and she secures a position. Latimer, seeing him go home with Rose tells Vivian a disparaging story about Jack and just when matters begin to look dark Rose comes home from a prosperous season on the road and wants to see her baby. When she sees Latimer she recognizes the father of her baby. Latimer, ignorant of the child's existance is softened and marries Rose. Uncle Jerry gives Jack and Rose his blessing and the wedding bells begin to ring.

Mutual Pictures

Shorty Traps a Lottery King—Monogram—(Two Reels)—March 5.—Featuring Shorty Hamilton. Shorty, while on a vacation receives a letter from Anita telling him that their marriage will have to be postponed until they round up a gang of lottery men in Los Angeles. Arrived in Los Angeles Shorty finds a clue to the lottery ring and determines to trace it up. Syntax, the king of the lottery ring, discovers that Shorty and Anita are on his trail and he has the girl abducted and carried to his den in the underworld. Shorty leads the police to the lottery king's den. A terrific fight ensues, Anita is rescued and the lottery ring broken up.

Mutual Tours Around the World—Gaumont—(One Reel)—March 6.—Showing scenes in Munich, Germany; at Schonbrunn Castle, Austria, and Rustchuk, Bulgaria.

See America First—Gaumont—(One Reel)—March 7.—Scenes on Oregon's Rocky Coast, on the same reel with "Kartoon Komics."

The Flying Target—David Horsley Studios—(One Reel)—March 8.—Featuring George Ovey. Two I. W. W.'s offer Jerry five dollars to carry a package to the police station. Jerry accepts the offer and just as he arrives the package explodes and wrecks the station. Jerry hops onto a motorcycle and beats it for the country. He meets Bad Bill, who compels him to change clothes and also give him the motorcycle in exchange for his horse, called the Flying Target. He rides into town and everyone immediately disappears. Bad Bill, in Jerry's attire, comes into the gambling hall and then the fun begins. The reel ends with the real outlaw being captured with the aid of a girl and Jerry disappearing down the road on his motorcycle.

Reel Life—Gaumont—March 8.—Magazine reel picturing the following subjects. "From Trapper to Wearer," "Stimulating the Appetite of the Busines Man," "Artistic Vases," "The Pelican," and "Charlie's Wobbly Walk."

The Meeting—Niagara Film Studios—(Two Reels)—March 8.—Featuring Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalfe. Perils of Our Girl Reporters series. Jane Abom, whose husband is a burglar and who keeps his life a secret from her, is forced to become a writer on a newspaper. Later hearing that her husband is dead she marries the editor of the paper. An old friend of her husband turns up and tells her that he has always admired her and being rejected by her he determines to bring her to terms by revealing the existence of her husband. Husband and wife meet and in a struggle which ensues the man is killed. Later all the mystery is cleared up by Abom's friends and Jane is happy with the editor.

His Bogus Boast—Vogue—(Two Reels)—March 10.—Featuring Ben Turpin. Ben, the western guest of a friend at the fashionable club, tells the ladies of his many adventures with the bad men of the desert. Members of the club seeing that their wives and sweethearts swarm around Ben and appear most fascinated, conclude that Ben is lying and decide to find out. They make the club porter crawl under a hear skin rug and go towards Ben. Ben sees the bear and runs for the window and drops from a dizzy height into a barrel of water. Back in the club, the men tease the ladies for being so gullible.

Universal Program

The Garden of Surprise—Episode 11 of the Purple Mask—March 5.—Featuring Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Pat is taken prisoner by Kelly. The Apaches learn of her whereabouts and come to her rescue. On leaving the Sphinx behind, Pat tells him she has a date at the Garden Cafe that night. She has been informed that a "fake" benevolent society is collecting funds from the poor and spending them at the Garden Cafe in revelry. At the point of pistols, she makes the members hand over the money. Two of her men are taken by Kelly. The Chief of the detectives taunts Kelly with his failure to capture "The Purple Mask" and declares that he will lead his men to capture the girl. After many exciting incidents he returns to headquarters and admits his defeat to Kelly. He tells Kelly that the task of capturing "The Purple Mask" is left to him.

A Bundle of Troule—Nestor—March 5.—The Russian ambassador receives a message of warning that there will an attempt on his life. His daughter, Olga, advises him to consult the famous Detective Potts. Potts and his assistant go to the Ambassador's home. On the way they see a mysterious package dropped into a barrel, and take it for a bomb. The ambassador disguises himself. Eddie puts on a Russian disguise and Potts thinks him an anarchist. Olga is terrified by the appearance of three men who insist upon seeing her father. Her father snatches off his disguise just as Potts and Eddie enter. They see the ambassador about to raise a bottle to his lips. Rushing in they learn that the three men have called to get the ambassador's opinion of a substitute for Russian vodka. In Eddie's bundle is found a pair of woman's stockings.

Desperation—(Three Reels)—Gold Seal—March 6.—With Elizabeth Risdon and Frederick Groves. Katherine Crichton marriers the scientist, John Staffurth, who is a very busy man. The young wife finds plenty of time to kill and so welcomes the visits of Richard Furness, her girlhood friend. One day she is seriously hurt and the specialist tells John she has only a couple of years to live. She thinks her husband is selfishly absorbed in his own interests, but he is working feverishly in search of a cure for her. Katherine visits Furness' flat to get back some letters she has written him. At the crucial moment in Furness' flat she draws back. Once more she contrasts Furness' warm adoration with her husband's indifference and hastily writes a last letter of surrender. The letter is never opened. John, somewhat enlightened, forces Furness to give up the packet of letters. He comes in with the good news that he has discovered a cure for her. Katherine is overwhelmed with emotion. She offers the letters to John, but he destroys them and holds out his arms to his wife.

Good Morning Nurse—Victor—March 6.—With Eileen Sedgwick and Eugene Walsh. Fred Biggers, a rich young man, is smitten with Eileen Little, the prettiest nurse in Dr. Hurts' sanitarium. He hires the driver of a jitney bus to run over him. He is taken to the hospital where Eileen is ordered to nurse him. Dr. Hurts, who is in love with the girl becomes jealous of Fred. Fred commences to groan and the doctor orders an immediate operation. Dr. Hurts enter the operating room with a most satisfied expression. Fred then places the doctor on the operating table and pours all the anesthetics within reach over him. He informs the specialist that the patient is prepared for the operation, while he and Eileen jump into a taxi.

A Soldier's Dream—Big U—March 7.—John, an army lieutenant, is in love with the general's daughter. One night he dreams that with the help of the girl he places mines all around the fort. When the Indians attack the fort, he presses a button which sets off the mines and blows up the savages. Shortly after this the fort is really attacked by the Indians and John tells the general of his plan. The officer is impressed and rewards him with the hand of his daughter.

Fatty's Feature Fillum—(Two Reels)—L-Ko—March 7.—With Fatty Voss, Gladys Roach and Richard Smith. Fatty is the featured actor of a motion picture company. He meets a party of girls and tells them he is featured at the Bazoo. The girls follow him to the theater. First on the screen is the "Cockoo Weekly." Then comes the great feature film. "Sunshine and Shadow." Egbert calls on his sweetheart, Gladys. Desmond, a villain, has seen the maiden and is scheming to possess her. He gets hold of the mortgage on her home, in true villainous fashion, and then forces the father to give him the girl. The villain's cigarette sets the house on fire and the smoke is blown to Egbert. He rushes to the place and is just in time to rescue the girl. As the picture runs its exciting course, Fatty is seated in the audience between two of the charmers, and explains the fine points to them. He leads the applause at all the thrilling places.

Good-For-Nothing Gallagher—Big U—March 8.—Gibbons, an author, declares there is a story in everything. The landlord disagrees and says there is no story in the funeral of Good-For-Nothing Gallagher, which is just passing. Silas Hawkins says he is mistaken and tells the story. Gallagher was in love with Marcia Young. When she refused him he took to drinking. She accepts Howard Gray. The convicts in the prison break out. Gray says it would be suicide to fight such desperate men. Gallagher knocks him down, takes his uniform and leads the boys to fight the convicts. He is killed by the treachery of their leader, after they have surrendered. Marcia turns against Gray when she say his yellow streak. She realizes that she had accepted the wrong man and bursts into tears when Gallagher is brought back. That is the story in the funeral of Gallagher.

The Human Flame—Laemmle—March 8.—With Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer. Bob is a fisherman, and because of his temper is known as the "Human Flame." He falls in love with Margaret, the village beauty. One day, when he has been drinking heavily, he falls over a cliff and is badly hurt. Margaret nurses him back to health. He reforms under her influence and marries her.

The Amazing Adventure—(Two Reels)—Rex—March 8.—With Roberta Wilson and Charles Perley. Because of her fabulous wealth, Eleanor Ferrol is beseiged by suitors, but she will have none of them. A detective in her employ gives her some valuable information. She goes to the park and approaches Geoffrey Harland, a shabbily dressed man. She suggests that he waive an introduction and dine with her. He does so, wonderingly. After dinner she proposes that he marry her and to this he consents. They start on a honeymoon. Harland is soon in love with her and tries to solve the "why" of it all. One day he sees her talking to a man at the hotel. When she disclaims knowing any one there, he is angry. The man is the detective who has been in the employ of Eleanor for some time. Later she confesses to Harland that she has loved him since the time he saved her life. She tells him that she employed the detective to follow him continuously. It all ends happily and he is deeply in love with her.

The Drifter—(Two Reels)—Bison—March 9.—With Harry Carey and Claire Du Bray. Dora Mason, dressed in boy's garb, loses her last nugget playing the roulette wheel. "Cheyenne" Harry notices her trouble and says he will help her. Suddenly he shoots out the lights, grabs the stakes and the banker's pile and dashes for the door. He fails to find the girl. The next day, he finds Dora and learns that she is a woman. She has been wounded and he takes her to a deserted shack, where he binds up her wounds. Dora tells him that she was left alone after her father, a miner, died, and she dressed in boy's clothes, for it was easier than being a girl in the desert. Realizing the seriousness of her injury, Harry rides to town. He forces the bartender to give him a bottle of whiskey, grabs the man's apron and dashes away. He speeks back to the shack, well aware that he is being pursued by the cowboys. He tells the girl to hang the apron out the window as soon as he has had time to escape. She does so. The boys are conquered by her winsomeness and forget that they are hunting a criminal. "Cheyenne" sees them leaving with Dora and smiles rather wistfully at her cleverness.

The Last Cigarette—First Adventure of the Perils of the Secret Service—(Two Reels)—Imp—March 9.—With Kingsley Benedict and Vola Smith. The secret service of Saxonia make plans to murder Yorke Norroy, a diplomatic agent, and the cleverest man in the American secret service. Minna Ober goes to the chief and pleads for her father, who has committed murder. Her father is offered a chance for his life, if he will dispose of Norroy. It is the evening of the reception of the Saxonian embassy in Washington, some time later. Carson recognizes Ober and warns Norroy. Minna is successful in interesting Norroy and accepts his escort to her home. She lures him into an empty house, where Ober and his men are ready for him. They tell him unless he discloses the secret history of his defeat of their plans in South America, he will be put to death immediately. He asks permission to smoke a cigarette. He lays the cigarette on the edge of the table and begins writing the story. The cigarette explodes and Norroy makes his escape. The father and daughter find written on the paper "Tell your chief that Yorke Norroy sends Max Ober back to the Bergenschloss to pay the penalty."

Universal Screen Magazine—Issue No. 9.—March 9.—This issue begins with views of Dr. Edward F. Bigelow, the noted bee culturist who instructs Boy Scout Masters in the art of handling bees with security. Cutting ice on the upper reaches of the Hudson River for storage is the next subject. The third shows the making of frankfurters and sausages, under the rules of inspection of the New York Board of Health. Casting the death mask of Admiral Dewey is then shown. The sculptor, Ulric S. J. Dunbar, who made the masks of McKinley, Garfield and Grant, and many other famous men, is seen working on the mold. A few minutes with Willie Hopkins and his animated sculpture close the reel.

The Beauty Doctor—Victor—March 9.—With Sylvia Ashton and Billy Mason. Billy and Sylvia decide to open a beauty shop for thin women. He poses Sylvia as a wonderful example of before and after taking. Reading in the beauty column that watermelon seeds are a great fattener, he buys a large supply of melons. A husband and wife get notice that an eccentric uncle, in his will left the couple the wife's weight in gold. She decides to take the treatment of Billy. A young girl is engaged to a Turkish Prince, but when he sees how thin she is, he refuses. She also takes the treatment. After a few weeks the two women are thinner and poor Sylvia is fatter than ever. The husband and the Prince go to bring vengeance on Billy. A battle with the melons ensues and Billy and Sylvia take passage for other parts.

Wanta Make a Dollar—Joker—March 10.—With Gale Henry and William Franey. Gale, a suffragette leader, notices an advertisement in which a marriage broker advertises his "Insurance Against Spinsterhood." Bill is the broker and he is in love with his secretary, Lillian. Gale pays her money down in one lump. Bill goes out to find her a husband. He offers a dollar to each man he sees. They all refuse after one look at Gale. Bill is in despair. Gale calls a policeman, who says that Bill must live up to the contract. He is standing up to be married to Gale, when Lillian rushes in and claims him. A mysterious character has been watching outside the door. He comes in and Gale recognizes Milt, her long-lost husband. She demands the money back from Bill, but he says that he has provided a man for her after all.

The Man of Mystery—(Two Reels)—Imp—March 11.—With King Baggot. Two policemen observe a man acting strangely. When taken to the station house, the man is unable to respond intelligently. The doctor says he is under the influence of an opiate. The man is dressed like a sailor. King, the detective, finds one complication after another and believes there is a crime back of the strange man's condition. Depough, a sailor, returning from sea learns that his brother is a prosperous broker. He conspires with a clerk to get the broker out of the way. They drug the broker and turn him loose on the street. The sailor, dressed in his brother's clothes, goes to the brokerage office and cashes large checks. They are just about to leave when they are apprehended by King. The broker's sweetheart is told what has happened and by her soothing presence, the broker regains control of his faculties. King retires, happy in the thought of another good work done.

The Mysterious City—(Split Reel)—Powers—March 11.—Imperial Peking is the mysterious city, which was photographed by Dr. Dorsey, first showing a panoramic view, and later details, such as the main gate, the National Museum, formerly the Imperial Palace, with some of the Chinese curios inside it; the Summer Palace, with the famous Porcelain Pagoda, erected for a Mongolian prince. On the same reel is:

Mr. Fuller Pep—His Day of Rest.—Fuller Pep takes his mother-in-law for a ride in her wheeled chair. She has not walked a step in twenty years. Pep decides to show her some real speed. The chair gets away from him and he is worried, but reassured when he finds she has not even wakened. He leaves her in the path of an auto, but her chair is unharmed. The chair runs into the sewer and mother-in-law finds that she can walk after all and chases Fuller to his home.

It Makes a Difference—Rex—March 11.—With Dorothy Davenport and Ed Hearn. Genevieve, a saleslady, is admired by the manager, Jerry Holden. She treasures in her heart her love for Will, who is married to Martha, a timid little woman. One day Martha visits the store and Genevieve waits on her, but is unaware who she is. Martha says she will come again and bring her husband with her. Genevieve meets Will and goes to dinner with him. He tells her that his wife henpecks and nags him from morning until night. She has the sincerest sympathy for him. The next day Martha enters the store with Will. Genevieve is horrified to think that this timid woman is Will's wife. She insists that Martha buy an expensive gown and Will is afraid to refuse. Genevieve suggests to Jerry that he rent a large store and that they go into business together and for life.

Feature Programs

Blue Bird

Hell Morgan's Girl—Bluebird—(Five Reels)—March 10.—Featuring Dorothy Phillips. About the time of the San Francisco earthquake, Roger Curwell is disowned by his father and sinks gradually down along the path of a drunkard until he is lost in Barabary Coast, that famous slumming district of San Francisco. He has been a painter of some ability and when he sees a picture over the bar in Hell Morgan's cafe he is led to criticize. The result is a beating for him, such as only may be had in the Sailor's Rest. He is rescued by Lola Morgan, Hell's girl. Friendship turns into love between them after he has painted a picture of her. Sleter Noble, ward politician and ward heeler, looks upon Lola with eyes of envy and resents the attentions of Curwell. Into the cafe on a slumming expedition comes Olga, an acquaintance of Roger's in his artist days. She becomes interested in him again, knowing that his father has died and that he has inherited the money. There is some jealousy on the part of Lola and in desperation she resigns herself to Noble, but later rebels. Hell Morgan, hearing the scuffle interiers and receives a bullet from the gun of Sleter. Lola just drags her father to the street when the rumbles of the earthquake are heard. Then follows the real quake and that awful night of terror. Lola drags her father to the hills of the presidio, and Roger, after going to the cafe to look for her, finally meets her by accident in the presidio, where the lovers are reunited. Hell Morgan, real Westerner, dies with his boots on.

Christie Comedies

As Luck Would Have It—Christie Comedy—(One Reel)—March 5.—Mrs. Newlywed has all the money, so Mr. Newlywed cannot be as firm as he would like to be in discouraging her fads. She goes in for Red Cross nursing and practices bandaging on Hubby for hours at a time. When she reads that an auto-racing driver has gotten immediate promotion in the aero-corps, she decides that Harry is cut out for just that sort of thing. She buys him a car and enters Harry in the forthcoming race. He confides in his friend Eddie, who sends him Chantelot, the racing driver. Chantelot is not entered, but drives in Eddie's place. Number 13, Eddie's car goes into the ditch and Harry is rushed to the hospital where Eddie bribes the doctor to bandage him up. Friend Wife, remorseful, goes to the hospital and insists on renewing the bandage herself. She discovers his deception and makes a nice fuss, when Eddie has an inspiration, takes her to see Chantelot, who has been slightly injured in the race, and says, "this might have been your husband." She sees her folly and asks Harry's forgiveness.

K. E. S. E.

Max Comes Across—Essanay—(Thirty Minutes)—February 26.—Featuring Max Linder. Theme deals with the supposed adventures of Max on a trip across the Atlantic to work in Essanay pictures. Before they embark, a report of the sinking of a liner by a submarine gives Max and his friend, Ernest Maupin, an idea for a practical joke on each other. Max persuades the captain of the vessel to make Maupin believe a U-boat has torpedoed the Espagne; simultaneously Maupin persuades the captain to make Max believe the same thing. A few moments later a freight steamer rams the Espagne. The passengers rush to the decks in terror. Max and Maupin, however, believe it is their joke. They discover, though, the truth and both fight for the only remaining life preserver. Maupain gets it and rushes on deck. Max finds himself locked in the salon. He is terror-stricken. Meantime in the hold of the boat the sailors are battling with the onrushing water. They stop up the leak and all is safe. Max hears the captain reassuring the passengers. His terror passes. He seats himself at the piano and is playing a lively tune when they find him. Max is proclaimed the hero of the moment. All the girls aboard kiss Max.

Burning the Candle—Essanay—(One Hour, Twelve Minutes)—March 5.—Features Henry B. Walthall, supported by Mary Charleson. Reviewed in this issue.

Metro

Reliable Henry—Metro-Drew—February 26.—Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. Henry has always proven a most efficient buyer of household goods, from pins to lawn mowers. He never makes a mistake. But the trusting wife trusts just once too often. It is too bad that Henry should make such a deplorable mistake, especially when he ought to be showing off before company, but mistake he makes and the poor wife leaves off boasting forever on the prowess of her husband in this direction.

Mutual Star Production

The Girl From Rector's—(Five Reels)—March 5.—Features Ruth McTammany. Reviewed in this issue.

Red Feather

The Gates of Doom—Red Feather—March 5.—With Claire McDowell, L. C. Shumway, Jack Conolly and Lena Baskette. Captain Unger relates the story of his love for the Hindoo woman, Indore, to his friend Captain Duane. He begs Duane to care for their little girl, if anything should happen to him. Indore escapes from the Hindoo husband and returns to Unger. Unger is poisoned by a Hindoo. Indore is about to die with him, but is hindered by the native, who takes her back to his prince. She is reduced to slavery as punishment. Duane fulfills his promise and Agatha is brought up as his father's niece. The years pass. Agatha has developed into a beautiful woman. Duane has married Florence. En route to India they meet the Grand Duke Alexis. He finally convinces Florence that her husband loves Agatha. She leaves with Alexis. Meanwhile, Agatha goes to the palace where she sees her mother, whom she thought dead. She is made a prisoner by the prince and is taken to the Walled City of the desert. After many attempts, Duane finds out where the girl is imprisoned and arrives just in time to snatch her from the funeral pyre. Duane and Agatha are supremely happy at seeing each other again.

Pathe Program March 11

Pathe's program for the week of March 11 includes in a list of great variety, the last episode of "Pearl of the Army" and the second of the recently announced series of Pathe-Max Linder comedies.

The Gold Rooster feature for the week is "The Empress," produced by the U. S. Amusement Corporation under the direction of Madame Blache, featuring Holbrook Blynn and Doris Kenyon, supported by William Force and Lyne Donaldson. "The Empress" is a fast moving melodrama of an artist and his model, the Man and the Woman in the Dark.

The fifteenth episode of "Pearl of the Army" is entitled "The Colonel's Orderly."

"Cat's Paw and Scape Goat" is the title of "Patria" No. 9. It contains an attempt on the part of Donald Parr's rival to blacken his reputation in the eyes of Patria and also the spectacular death of De Lima in a terrific explosion.

"Max in a Difficult Position" is the title of the second of the Pathe-Max Linder comedies. The story tells how Max's trousers tear in an inconvenient spot and how he does his best to hide the fact. He is forced to admit that a social gathering is no place for a shrinking violet like himself.

On the same reel is "Skinny Routs a Robber," produced by the Rolin Film Company. A one-reel Mittenthal Comedy called "Hooey's Heroes" is a story about Weeping Winnie, the Willain's Wife, Heinie and Louis and the Wild Willain.

The twenty-second number of the Florence Rose Fashions, entitled "As the Day Wanes" shows some of the most beautiful girls in New York having tea in the famous Cocoanut Grove, at Palm Beach. On the same reel with the Fashion Picture is "Birds of Gay Plumage." A split-reel International cartoon and scenic is made up of "Thorns and Roses," drawn by George Herriman, and "Artificial Flowers in the Making." The program also contains Hearst-Pathe News No. 22 and No. 23, released March 14 and 17 respectively.

SOME NEW THEATERS

California

Turner and Dahnken plan to erect the largest picture theater in America at Eighth and Market streets, San Francisco, which will seat 6,000 persons. Cunningham and Politeo are the architects.

The Merced Theater Corporation has been organized with a capital of $25,000 for the purpose of erecting a modern theater at Merced. C. H. Douglas, manager of the Elite Theater, is back of the movement.

Plans for the "Imperial Theater" that John and Samuel Garibaldi expect to erect this summer at a cost of $30,000 on Main street have been completed by Architect Turton and are now in the hands of contractors.

Contracts have been let by H. A. Yusuk, of San Francisco, for the complete reconstruction of the Majestic Theater building owned by him on Mill street, Porterville, which will cost $3,000.

The Superba Photo Play Company will open a new theater at Jones street and San Pablo avenue, Oakland, with H. E. Wallace of 6437 Colby street as general manager and Adolph Mayer of the Essany Company as director.

Florida

J. C. Hancock is erecting a new theater at Stuart to seat 400 people.

Illinois.

Savanna is to have a new opera house to replace the one recently burned down. J. D. Fulrath is planning to build a modern and attractive theater. The citizens, through the business men's association, have signified their willingness to aid the enterprise by taking each from $5 to $25 worth of tickets for the entertainment that opens the new structure.

Iowa

The Danish Lodge at Dike, will erect a new building and the first floor will be used for an opera house.

Kentucky

The Princess Theater at Henderson, destroyed by fire a few years ago, is to be rebuilt at an approximate cost of $25,000.

Minnesota

H. F. West has leased the B. B. Cox Hall at Little Falls, and will open a picture theater.

The Lyceum Theater at Gilbert, which is being remodeled, will soon be opened to the public with pictures.

Montana.

A new two-story theater building is to be erected on the site of the Lyceum Theater in Scobey by T. M. Facey.

Mississippi

The Istrione Theater in Jackson is soon to be remodeled and enlarged. Several thousand dollars is to be spent by Manager Landen.

R. N. McWilliams let the contract to Nicol, Langford & Johnston, Louisville, Kentucky, to erect a film theater in Clarksdale; seating capacity 1,000; cost $72,000.

Missouri

The Rigney Opera House at Albany, which was recently destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt by T. N. Rigney at a cost of $30,000.

Nebraska

Dr. J. G. Smith has purchased a site at Wahoo and will erect a $10,000 theater in the spring.

Last week M. D. Pollard sold his picture business and equipment to the Nehawka Auditorium Company at Nehawka, who will continue the business.

Davenport is agitating the question of building a new opera house.

At Seward the plans for the new opera house are being whipped into shape. It will be a modern up-to-date house and will be big enough to play any show that comes along.

New Jersey.

Tex Rickard is to erect an amphitheater on Riverside Drive near 132d street, at Hackensack.

New Mexico

Hardwick Brothers, proprietors of the Lyceum Theater, are planning to give Clovis a new and thoroughly modern picture theater in the near future. According to their present plans the building will be erected directly across the street from their present location, on the site of the building occupied by Brock's confectionery and the lot adjoining.

New York.

C. W. Funk, Philadelphia, Pa., will make alterations to his two-story theater in New York City at 586-590 Seventh ave, which will cost $15,000.

The project of Messmore Kendall on the Kendall property at Fifty-first street and Broadway, New York City, has changed in that one mammoth theater will be erected instead of two. It will extend from Fiftieth to Fifty-first street with a 50-foot entrance on Broadway.

Foreign capitalists, represented in this country by Albert E. Kiralfy and in London, England, by Charles I. Kiralfy, contemplate the erection of a huge amphitheater to occupy an entire city block and take the place of Madison Square Garden. The structure will have a seating capacity of 38,000. It will contain two auditoriums, one of which will be turnable, so that a complete arena will be possible whenever desired. Albert E. Kiralfy said that a site had been secured on a long lease. He refused, however, to reveal the location.

Marcus Loew will erect a new theater and store building in Brooklyn to cost $2,000,000 in the block bounded by Fulton, Livingston and Smith streets and Gallatin place.

North Dakota

Osnabrock is going to get a moving picture theater, something that has been wanted in that town for a long time. Walter Nelson is promoting the enterprise.

E. F. Doran has opened a picture theater at Crystal.

North Carolina

A new theater will open soon in the Hinton building, next to the H. C. Bright Company's jewelry store, in Elizabeth City. Seats are being installed and the final arrangements are being made in the movie auditorium.

Ohio

Architect A. F. Moyer, 17 Louis Block, has completed plans for a theater and office building to be erected by Reichert Brothers at Cincinnati street and Boleander avenue, Dayton.

Plans are being prepared by Jacob Goldsmith for the remodeling of a picture show at Delaware avenue and West Goodale street, Columbus, for Joe Adorno.

The Gayety Amusement Company is planning to build a motion picture theater on Fountain Square near Walnut street, Cincinnati, to cost $150,000.

Work on a new $40,000 picture theater at Cincinnati street and Bolender avenue, in Dayton, will start in the spring. The theater will be operated by Reichert Brothers. A. F. Moyer is the architect.

Oklahoma

William H. Stricker will erect an up-to-date theater at Sand Springs, to be completed on or about April 10.

Mrs. J. C. Johnson of Tulsa will erect a $15,000 moving picture theater in West Tulsa.

Oregon.

Meyer & Leiter, owners of the Arcade Theater, will erect a new four-story theater and office building at La Grande.

Tennessee

A new theater will be erected at Chattanooga, by the Signal Amusement Company at a cost of $115,000. It will be known as the Tivoli Theater. The house will have a seating capacity of 1,670 and equipped with a stage large enough to accommodate the largest legitimate attraction on the road. A modern lighting system will also be installed.

Texas

Arrangements are being made to open a new motion picture theater in Austin, which will be known as The Queen. Work will be started in the near future, and the building should be ready for occupancy sometime in March.

An opera house to be erected in Waco on the site of the present Majestic Theater, located at North Fourth and Austin streets, and representing an investment of $100,000, is projected for Waco this year.

Texas

Geo. W. Bell, Jr., of the Bell Enterprises, has purchased the Best Theater at Market and Twenty-first streets, Galveston.

Clarence Weis, representative of the American Theatrical Association, announced that plans are being made for a new theater to be erected in Houston. Seating capacity, 1,200.

Utah

Jos. H. Phippen has purchased a lot and will erect a new show house at Carey.

Virginia

Within six weeks Bristol, Va., will have a new picture theater, known as the Isis. It will be up to date in every particular, and will have a seating capacity of not less than 400.

W. W. Scott, 232 Armstead avenue, Hampton, will erect a theater, with a seating capacity of 1,500.

Onyx Theater Co., Inc., capital $10,000, to conduct places of amusement at Newport News. Abraham Dressner, Lewis E. Day, V. L. Kieth and others, all of Washington, D. C.

Hampton Theater Corporation will expend $3,000 to erect addition to theater at Roanoke.

Dr. L. V. Grady, of Rock Ridge, has an option on a lot in the business center of Wilson and will erect thereon a modern opera house with a seating capacity of 750, to cost $15,000. Wilson for several years past has had no opera house, the old one having been sold to the Methodist church. The old building has been torn down and an imposing Sunday school building will be erected on the old site.

Washington

A theater is to be erected in North Yakima this summer which will seat 1,800 people and cost $100,000. Frederick Mercy, lessee of four local theaters, announced the purchase of a site.

T. R. Eastman will finance the building of the new American Theater on East Main street in Walla Walla.

O. G. Vrooman of Spokane has purchased the Casino Theater in Davenport from Wayne Fields and H. R. Huesman for $3,000.

A new theater will be opened in Port Angeles by Hopkins & Halberg.

West Virginia

A deal was consummated at Wheeling, whereby W. E. Hoffman became owner of the Sisterville Theater. Extensive improvements and alterations are to be made.

Jim Velas, head of the Athenian Amusement Company, has announced that contract for the new theater to be erected by the company at Sixteenth and Market streets, Wheeling, will be awarded.

C. P. Hochenberry will erect a $10,000 picture theater at Princeton; seating capacity 1,000.

J. V. Dotts has let contract to J. T. Dotts, 116 Russell street, Fairmont, W. Va., to erect a picture theater to replace structure lately noted damaged by fire; brick, flat slag roof, wood floors, cost $3,500, electric lights $800, construction begins March 15 to April 1.

C. P. Hockenberry will erect a theater at Princeton, 50x135 ft., electric lights, cost $15,000, construction begins in March.

C. C. & E. A. Weber, architects, are preparing plans for an arcade and theater at Bluefields, for S. L. Matz to cost $100,000.

Wisconsin

The new stage in Kohler School at Kohler has been completed. The booth for the moving picture machine is ready and the machine will be installed in a few days.

S. L. Matz secured a permit for the erection of a theater in Bluefield. It will be located on Raleigh street, with entrance on Princeton avenue.

Wisconsin

A theater for the showing of high-class films will be erected on the west side of Fourth street, between Grand avenue and Sycamore street, Milwaukee, by Nat Stone.

The opera house at Maiden Rock is being planned. Mr. H. Smith and others compose the committee.

Fred Paulick has started a moving picture theater at Avoca.

The Cozy Theater on Davenport street, Rhinelander, has been leased by Herman Zander, proprietor of the Majestic.

E. H. Parks has sold his movie theater in Iola to Fred Maney.

E. B. Knapp has purchased the Colonial Theater at Waukaca from Geo. Kram and renamed it the New Grand.

One of the finest buildings erected in Superior during the year was the new Palace Theater, Eleventh street and Tower avenue, at a cost of $70,000. When completed next spring this theater is expected to be one of the best in this section of the country.

Messrs. A. G. Allen, C. Harris and N. J. Dunlap have purchased the moving picture business of C. Yochers at Pekin and assumed possession on January 1st.

New Incorporations

Articles of incorporation for fifteen new theatrical and motion picture enterprises having an aggregate capital stock of $1,016,500 have been filed in New York.

The list includes the Mayfair Cinema Theater Corporation, capitalized at $750,000, which is formed to carry on a general theatrical and motion picture business.

C. W. Davis, of New York City, is one of the stockholders and director in both the Garden Tower and the Madison Garden Corporation.

Billy West Comedies, Inc., of New York City, having a capital of $10,000, has been granted a charter.

The new concerns are as follows:

The Stanley Booking Corporation, Eddyville, N. Y. To purchase, exchange and exhibit motion picture films. Capital, $50,000. Directors—Stanley V. Mastbaum and Jules E. Mastbaum of Philadelphia, Pa., and Joseph F. Curtin of New York City.

Gold Medal Photo-Play Corporation, New York City. Motion pictures and theatrical enterprises. Capital, $25,000. Directors—Herman Mennes, Maurice Hotchner and Saul Hotchner, 80 Maiden Lane, New York City.

Singer Amusement Company, Brooklyn, N. Y. To operate motion picture theaters. Capital, $4.000. Directors—Samuel Cohen, Hyman Rubinson and Sadie Friedman, 306 Madison street. New York City.

Bulzye Producing Company, Inc., New York City. To provide for the production of theatrical and other stage attractions. Capital, $5.000. Directors—John T. Moran, T. L. O'Donnell and E. K. Nadel, 1493 Broadway, New York City.

M. F. Tobias, Inc., New York City. To conduct a general motion picture business. Capital, $100,000. Directors—M. M. Wolf, M. F. Tobias and Blanche Tobias, 581 West 161st street. New York City.

Wayne Theater Company, Newark, N. Y. Theatrical and motion pictures. Capital, $15.000. Directors—Wade B. Landfield, C. I. Sanford and B. A. Van Ostrand, Newark, N. Y.

Madison Garden Corporation, New York City. To engage in a general amusement business. Capital, $5,000. Directors—Augustin Duncan, W. E. Roberts and G. W. Davis, 142 East Eighteenth street, New York City.

Fraternity Films, Inc., New York City. Motion pictures and theatrical business. Capital, $10,000. Directors—Arthur M. Werner, George S. Trimble and Harry Springler, 117 West Forty-fifth street, New York City.

Garden Tower Corporation, New York City. Realty, hotels and proprietors and managers of theaters. Capital, $25,000. Directors—Charles G. Coburn, Paul N. Turner and C. W. Davis, 1402 Broadway, New York City.

Frank Kelley Company, Queens County. To manage theaters and motion picture shows. Capital, $10,000. Directors—B. H. Kelley, L. F. Kelley and Mary F. Weldy, 926 Boulevard, Long Island City, N. Y.

Simbar Film Export Corporation, New York City. Motion pictures. Capital, $5,000. Directors—Joseph Simmonds, Menieu and H. G. Kosch, 1600 Broadway, New York City.

Mayfair Cinema Theater Corporation, New York City. To engage in a general theatrical and motion picture business. Capital, $750,000. Directors—Frank W. Force, A. Frick and F. Morris, 175 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Barnett Film Corporation, Huntington. N. Y. Motion pictures. Capital, $500. Directors—Morris Meyers, Benjamin Barnett and Bert Barnett, 302 Convent avenue, New York City.

Billy West Comedies, New York City. To conduct theatrical and motion picture enterprises. Capital, $10,000. Directors—Thomas F. Egan, Ernestine Cohen and Pauline Widrow, 201 East Fifty-eighth street, New York City.

Armeny Amusement Company, New York City. Theatrical and motion picture attractions. Capital, $2,000. Directors—John J. Wittman, Nathaniel Natelson and Ethel Eisenstein, 1178 Hoe avenue, New York City.

The Radio Talking Picture Corporation has certified to the Secretary of State that it has paid in one-half of its capital stock of $250,000.

Articles of dissolution have been filed by the Stahley Theater Company of Rochester, N. Y. The concern was capitalized at $20,000.

MARGERY WILSON, MAKE-UP ARTIST

Until she played in "The Bride of Hate," Margery Wilson, the beautiful young emotional actress of the Ince forces, had never had an opportunity to show her skill at make-up. Each of her previous portrayals had been that of a pretty girl with only an occasional change of costume to make the part a bit removed from the ordinary straight part.

As the feminine lead in "The Bride of Hate," that stirring drama of old Louisiana, by John Lynch, in which Frank Keenan was starred, she appeared as a slave girl, who was Spanish with a drop of African blood in her veins. Looking the part was as important as playing it, and for awhile Miss Wilson was perplexed and worried over the problem, but she devoted herself to experimentation with her make-up box and eventually presented herself to Producer Ince for an inspection of the character. And so faithful was the delineation that neither Ince nor Director Walter Edwards found it necessary to suggest more than a few minor corrections.

COMMERCIAL WORK AND ANIMATED ADVERTISING The unexcelled facilities of our Studios and the efficiency of our staff insure best results in developing, printing and coloring. They are a guarantee of satisfaction. The services of our trained organization and the use of a fully equipped, Modern Studio is yours. WE ARE SPECIALISTS—We are prepared to do Animation and Commercial Work RIGHT. Our studios can be rented by the day, week or job.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY, Inc. J. E. WILLIS, Vice-President and General Manager 6242 Broadway, CHICAGO

PACIFIC COAST NOTES

Marin Sais, the Kalem actress, is bringing up two little girls. She calls them the "Umbrella Kids" because they will always cry if she tells them to do so. This has been most useful on several occasions when they have been acting.

It is the boast of Harry Ham, the juvenile comedian, that he has neither lost nor gained a pound of flesh for three years. This he puts down to regular exercise rather than violent exercise.

Frank Fisher Bennett, Fine Arts actor, recently organized a polo team among the horsemen of the studio.

Warner Oland, who is playing the heavy role in "Patria," is rapidly becoming a Californian. He has taken a bungalow and is now busy spading up his garden preparatory to planting.

Gail Kane and Mary Miles Minter, (American-Mutual), are organizing Red Cross clubs among the motion picture actresses at the coast.

"Jerry's Romance," marks the seventy-first Cub Comedy in which George Ovey has been featured.

Howard Hickman, Inceville actor and husband of Bessie Barriscale, was re-elected the president of the Motion Picture Electric and Equipment Corporation which was formed a year ago. Henry Otto, the director, is the vice-president, and Richard Willis, the secretary and treasurer; Harry D. Brown is the general manager, and Gus Inglis makes up the remaining member of the board.

The greatest sympathy is being shown for the director, Henry Otto, whose mother died recently in Los Angeles.

Myrtle Stedman is rapidly recovering from her recent illness.

Ora Carew, the little Keystone star, formerly played in stock and in vaudeville. She is a western girl, having been born in Salt Lake City, where her father was a doctor.

Helen Holmes has been ill with tonsilitis. A great deal of the work on the new Mutual-Signal serial, "The Railroad Raiders," has been done at night in the rain, which probably accounts for her indisposition.

Marshall Farnum, a brother of William and Dustin Farnum, died recently in Prescott, Arizona, after a short illness. He was a well-known actor and stage director. Funeral services were held in Los Angeles.

Maude George, the actress of much ability and extensive wardrobe, who has been working with Lois Weber in a number of recent Universal features, has changed her allegiance to that of the Thomas H. Ince Culver City studio.

When not otherwise engaged George Periolat, the American actor, makes his own wigs and makes a new one for each kind of character he appears in.

Kathlyn Williams, the Morosco star, is quite a well-known authoress and her name is enrolled as a member of the Authors' League of America. Among other things she wrote "The Last Dance," "The Strange Case of Talmai Lind," "Thy Will Be Done" and "Bride of Baldoon."

Jay Belasco, now being co-starred with Billie Rhodes in Christie Comedies, has taken a beautiful home in Hollywood in partnership with George Bronson Howard, the writer.

Will M. Ritchey, the chief of the Balboa scenario department, now has Captain Leslie T. Peacoche, Dan F. Whitcomb, Douglas Bronson, E. Gibson-Gowland, and other writers on his staff and has to attend to the wants of the four special companies who will fill the big Horkheimer contract with the General Film Company, as well as the needs of the other feature companies.

Dorothy Holmes McGowan, one year old, adopted child of Helen Holmes, has received her first mash note. It came in the form of a valentine with red heart, cupids and things. Dorothy showed her appreciation by trying to lick the red off the heart—it looked so like a nice piece of candy.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford have been working in a light comedy which has proved a great change for them after so many months of working on "The Purple Mask." Formerly Miss Cunard was often seen in the lighter photoplays.

Harry Ham, recently with the Christie Comedy Company, is playing with the Pathe Lehrman-Fox forces.

Antonio Moreno and Jack Pickford are again enjoying each other's companionship and are renewing memories of the old Biograph days when both began their careers under D. W. Griffith.

Otto Lederer's skill at characterization is put to a test in his role in the Vitagraph production of Hamlin Garland's story, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," in which he depicts three ages, thirty, fifty and ninety years in the tumultuous life of an Indian. Antonio Moreno and Edith Storey are the stars of this story.

Mary Anderson proved herself a heroine in real life recently. Coming back from location, her automobile was going at a fast clip, and skidding around a corner she saw a five-year old youngster running across the street. The car could not stop in time, and the little chap was to frightened to dodge it; but Mary jumped to the runway of the car, swooped up the boy in one arm and swung him into the car, just avoiding a serious accident.

Stiles Dickenson, a New York artist who has made his miniature oil portraits popular in the Los Angeles picture colony, is responsible for the oil portrait of Geraldine Farrar, from which the "Joan the Woman" window posters were made. The original hangs in the lobby of the Forty-fourth Street Theater in New York City.

The name Cyril Fletcher appearing on the titles of "The Dancer's Peril" is an error. The part of the young artist in this play is acted by Mr. Harry Benham.

William H. Rippard, known throughout eastern Pennsylvania as one of the squarest men in the film business, has left Wilkes-Barre, where he has been manager of the Mutual office for the past three years, to assume the duties of assistant manager of the Philadelphia office of the same company.

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	75	85
Biograph Company.	5	15
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.	90	110
Lone Star Corporation, pref..	97½	99½
Lone Star Corporation, com..	35	38
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	30	35
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	20	25
North American Film Corporation, com.	24	30
States Film Corporation, com.	24	30
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.).....	55	70
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2	*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company	145	..
Triangle Film Corporation...	2	2⅛	*

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to MOTOGRAPHY)

American Film Company, Inc.—Cheap offerings of this stock have been disposed of and no stock is now offered under 85. Officials report very good business.

Lone Star Corporation—Has just sent notice of stockholders annual meeting, March 7, and asks for proxies in name of John R. Freuler or Samuel M. Field for purpose of voting for Board of Directors for ensuing year. Preferred stock remains strong, but quotations on common have been shaded a little.

Mutual Film Corporation—Trading has been light at slightly declining prices. Statement, showing present condition of the company, is now completed and will be sent to stockholders shortly after Mr. Freuler's return to Chicago. Most of the buying is from people who expect a very favorable showing.

Selig Polyscope—Has bought the screen rights to Virginia Brook's novel, "Little Lost Sister."

Triangle Film Corporation—Stock sold off to 2⅛. This company is now featuring William Desmond and Margery Wilson in "The Last of the Ingrams."

Thanhouser Film Corporation—Will release Doris Grey and Wayne Arey, in "Her Beloved Enemy," March 4.

World Film Corporation—Stock has been very dull around 62 cents to 75 cents per share. Company has secured motion picture rights to play "The Pride of the Race."

Chicago News

THE Lubliner and Trinz theaters have booked eight of the series of Linder comedies.

Mystery: Do the Reel Fellows use the vault in their new club quarters to lock up the cash register at night?

James Young, husband of Clara Kimball Young, is with the Essanay company in Chicago, directing the production of "On Trial."

Ruth Roland stopped off in Chicago for a brief visit last week. She has severed relations with Balboa. Her trip has taken her to New York.

C. S. L. McLaughlin, owner and former manager of the fashionable Hyde Park Theater, has again taken charge of the south side picture house.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, departed February 25 for Hot Springs, Arkansas. He will remain away two weeks.

Attorney David T. Alexander is spending a few days in Springfield where he is looking up pending legislation on subjects pertaining to the motion picture business.

The Alfred Hamburger houses are running Vitagraph's serial, "The Secret Kingdom," McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins," and six of the series of Essanay's Linder comedies.

Ralph Proctor, Art Dramas manager, the Apollo Belvidere of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club and president of the Reel Fellows Club, has been spending a few days in New York on business.

Alfred Friedlander, formerly with Pathe and lately with the Celebrated Players Film Company, Chicago branch, is now traveling Illinois for Metro and and is booking "The Great Secret."

Samuel Plame, formerly manager of Paramount's Indianapolis branch and also the Pittsburgh Artcraft office, has taken charge of Metro's serial comedy and travelogue department in Chicago.

Assistant General Manager Abrams of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, was a guest of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club at the regular February meeting, held at the Morrison Hotel, February 23.

Sydney Abel, presiding officer at the local Vitagraph office, is making frequent trips to Fort Wayne nowadays. Vitagraph is starting a big new localized publicity scheme and they're trying it out on the dog.

A telegram recently informed Manager I. H. Kuh of the E. L. K. Film Company that Mrs. E. Gorshoff, traveling representative of the company, had been taken ill at a hotel on the road and was confined to her bed.

E. D. Horkheimer, secretary and treasurer of the Balboa Amusement Company, affixed his signature to the register of the Hotel La Salle not many days ago and mingled for a time with his acquaintances in Chicago.

The sub-committee of the city council has twice postponed the date on which it will take up the proposed ordinance to increase theater licenses on a graduated scale ranging between $200 and $1,000, according to seating capacity.

The Triangle distributing branch sent out invitations to Chicagoans to attend an advance showing of the first four releases of the special Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies. The performance took place February 23, at the Colonial Theater.

Alfred Hamburger is planning the erection of four new theaters. Three will be located in Chicago and one in an outlying town. The chain of houses controlled by the Alfred Hamburger Theatrical Enterprises will thus be increased to eighteen.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America was held in Chicago March 2. Plans for the coming convention and other important matters were discussed. Next week's MOTOGRAPHY will tell the whole story.

The screen at the La Salle Theater has been darkened since Jones, Linick and Schaefer concluded the run of "Beware of Strangers," March 4. The run continued three weeks. The stage is occupied this week by Nora Bayes and her New York company.

In the prosecution of members of operators' union, Local 110, who were accused of storing dynamite in the vaults of their meeting room, the case "blew up" when placed on the docket for trial. Judge Mahoney dismissed the proceedings at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

Ascher Brothers made the celebration of Washington's birthday an occasion of patriotic display by distributing American flags at all of their fourteen theaters. They held two celebrations during the same week, the second event being the opening of the new Milford Theater, at Milwaukee and Crawford avenues.

That's a handsome colored photo of Eugene A. Hamburg that now hangs over his desk in the office in the Mallers building where Chicago theater men go to buy poster frames and decorative specialties. He could easily be mistaken for a popular star if the big frame and reproduction of a lobby poster were set up in front of a theater.

A group of players from the various theaters of the city attended a professional matinee at the Studebaker Theater, February 23, to witness Annette Kellermann in "A Daughter of the Gods." Among the guests were Margaret Anglin, William Hodge, Al Jolson, Lew Fields and many others. Most of them agreed that they prefer a dry stage to the ocean as a scene of action.

President Joseph Hopp of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Chicago, has been receiving the condolences of friends on the death of his brother, William A. Hopp. The funeral was held under the auspices of Welfare Lodge, Number 991, A. F. & A. M. The late Mr. Hopp was interested in the production of portrait paintings of stars for the use of exhibitors.

"Billy" Hamburg, of Menger, Ring and Hamburg, creators of many decorative things for theaters, is going to take a vacation soon. He hasn't had one of those things, he says, for five years. His previous jobs, which included running seven road shows at once, and his work with the present concern have tired the secretary of the Reel Fellows Club all out, and he's going fishin' in the spring.

Pathe's "Kick In" finally kicked its way through the barriers of censorship and has been given a "pink permit" for Chicago showing, after several weeks delay. It has begun its initial downtown run at the Bandbox Theater. This is a Gold Rooster play featuring Mollie King and William Courtenay. It suffered some alteration at the hands of the censors, but not so much as to hurt the continuity of the story.

Ben Judell, Mutual's branch manager, paid the bill for a considerable portion of the tobacco consumed lately by the film crowd in the Mallers building. He was the loser of a bet. The man who won the cigars is William Herschfield, president of the General Feature Film Company. Mr. Judell recently took the degree of master mason in the Welfare Lodge, No. 991, A. F. & A. M., and bet Mr. Herschfield, who is also a member of that lodge, that he would not "back down" during the process.

The Jones, Linick and Schaefer Company announces the promotion of Samuel I. Levin, general manager, to the position of assistant secretary and assistant treasurer. The staff of managers of the company's four downtown theaters has undergone several changes also. Benjamin Anderson, assistant manager of McVicker's, has become assistant manager of the La Salle Theater. Chester Amberg, until this month assistant manager of the Studebaker, succeeds Mr. Anderson at McVicker's Theater. Michael Simon's recently at the La Salle, becomes assistant manager of the Studebaker. Norman E. Field will manage both the Colonial and La Salle Theaters.

GEO. M. "LEADING WOMAN"

A few days ago while Marguerite Snow's publicity representative was arranging for a series of interviews with the popular little star prior to her departure for Canada, little Julie Cruze, three-year-old daughter of James Cruze and Miss Snow, asked for her American flag. Her mother gave it to the baby, asking at the same time, who the American flag reminded her of.

"George M. Cohan," replied little Julie.

Believing he could fool the baby, Miss Snow's representative asked who George M. Cohan was.

"George M. Cohan," said little Julie, slowly, "why, he's my mother's leading woman!"

MAX LINDER

Has convulsed a nation with laughter

In His First Comedy Success

"Max Comes Across"

Jones, Linick & Schaefer ran this comedy for one week in two of their big Chicago theatres. Read what Aaron J. Jones, President, says:

"I ran Max Linder's first comedy in both the Rialto and McVicker's theatres. It packed my houses for the entire week. Max kept the audiences in an uproar of laughter. Everyone pleased. I am looking forward to his next release."

BOOK THE ENTIRE SERIES OF 12 NOW

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

Trademark Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. 1907

K Kleine Edison Selig Essanay

VITAGRAPH STAR ONCE MESSENGER BOY

A leap from the nerve-trying occupation of carrying money as an express messenger to a foremost place in screen art has been the rapid-fire cinema career of William R. Dunn, the Vitagraph star, playing in juvenile leads. In the days when Mr. Dunn was required to tote money around for his express company employers, the dream of the stage was ever before him and his job of cash bearer held little attraction. The gold belonged to other people, anyway.

Deciding to follow ambition's call, he threw up the responsible position he held,—dropping the gold, so to speak, and made his plunge into the theatrical sea. The results prove that he was right. The motion picture world thereby gained a notably clever and versatile character portrayer.

Some mention of his origin or his perentage should be made. He is a real American boy from the ground up, and was born in Astoria, Long Island, on May 23, 1884. There is Irish blood in him, which, perhaps, accounts for his cleverness in character portrayal, for his grandfather came from Ireland. His father was born in New York City, and married Martha Wentz, of Little Falls, N. J. Shortly after the birth of William they moved to Brooklyn.

Even while a school boy in Brooklyn young Dunn felt the lure of the footlights. Years later, having made up his mind to go on the stage, he headed directly for the Payton Stock Company, in Brooklyn, and found the door open.

He was given a place in the company and remained four years in stock. He afterward played in support of such well-known stars as Mrs. Leslie Carter, Nance O'Neill, and Henry Jewett.

The temptation to jump into vaudeville came and he yielded to it. Then came the enticement of the moving picture field and again the young actor made a change. In time he sought and obtained a place with Vitagraph. He is now one of the oldest members of the organization, in point of service and has forged rapidly to the front as a portrayer of character rolls.

Mr. Dunn's best known impersonation was that of Philip Hardin, in the sensational screen drama, "The Juggernaut," in which he played the double role of Hardin, a railroad president, and Hardin's eighteen-year-old son. Among his numerous roles, a few of the important ones are as follows: In "The Wreck," "Narcotics," "My Lost One," "For Another's Crime," "The Night of the Wedding," "One Night," and other features.

A RIVAL CHARLIE CHAPLIN

At last a real imitator of Charlie Chaplin's famous walk has been found. This imitation is so like the real thing that it is almost impossible to tell which is which, and Charlie will have to look to his $670,000 salary or he will find himself eclipsed.

This mimic of the renowned Charlie's shuffle was shown in a recent edition of Reel Life, under the caption "Charlie's Wabbly Walk."

The pseudo Chaplin appears on the screen. He turns sedately around with his back to the camera and shuffles to the back of the stage. The audience immediately goes into convulsions. The walk is all there, every movement is perfect. All that is lacking is the titled derby and the cane—as the big Buff Cochin rooster shuffles off the screen.

CENSOR BOARD RULES

By Ben Turpin

Being the Real "From-the-Bottom-of-My-Heart" Expression of What the Mutual-Vogue Comedian Thinks of the Censor Board Restrictions.

Can't kiss, can't kill.
Can't beat, or tap a till.
Can't hug very long
For censors say: "Oh, so wrong!"
Can't laugh in a church,
Or whip a child with a birch;
Nor tie a can to doggie's tail,
For if I do, I go to jail.
Oh, Censor Board, I love you well,
But still I wish you would—change them rules.

JUST FOR FUN

By Dick Willis.

Charles Ray wore a monocle in "The Honorable Algy." His studio companions declared he had a window in his eye. Charles says this gave him a pane.

Margarita Fischer dressed as a lad in "Miss Jackie of the Navy." She acted a number of scenes aboard a man-o-war. She stood on a buoy in one scene. Well, Margarita always did make a lot of use of the mails.

ATLANTIC COAST NOTES

J. W. Kellette, assistant director to John G. Adolfi, of Fox, is confined to his home in New Rochelle by his majesty, La Grippe, who has been an atrociously busy visitor around New York lately. Kell receives roses, carnations and other forms of flower growth together with pretty little notes of sympathy from June Caprice, the dainty Fox star, almost daily, so he is not at all anxious to get well.

Rex Taylor, well-known author and scenario writer, has joined the Black Diamond Company at Jacksonville and will in the future write scenarios for Beatrice Joy, star of Black Diamond comedies, which are released by Paramount.

Robert G. Vignola, who directed Marguerite Clark in "The Fortunes of Fifi," will guide the dramatic destinies of Pauline Frederick in her next Famous Players picture, at present titled "The Love That Lives."

Aubrey Beattie, leading man with Marjorie Rambeau, in her first Powell-Mutual, "The Greater Woman," once played in stock in Minneapolis.

George Le Guere, one of the seven stars in McClure Pictures' "Seven Deadly Sins," is a graduate of Georgetown University, at Washington, D. C. He edited the college paper while there. Le Guere is a bachelor of arts and a master of arts.

Charlotte Walker's husband is Eugene Walter, the dramatist.

Antique prints are a hobby with Emmy Wehlen, the charming little Viennese star who appears in Metro wanderplays. Miss Wehlen says she prefers prints to paintings, as they repay careful study and engage the imagination.

In several scenes in her forthcoming production "The Fortunes of Fifi," Marguerite Clark wears a Roman costume which she first donned two years ago to appear with Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at the Palace Theater in New York. At that time Miss Clark and Laurette Taylor appeared with the Divine Sarah and the little Famous Players-Paramount star kept the gown as a souvenir of the occasion.

Adelaide Ess, noted as a model for magazine cover girls and studio figures, has joined the Popular Plays and Players Company. She played a part in "The Silence Sellers," the new fature in which Mme. Petrova is the star.

Holbrook Blinn and Nance O'Neil, stars in the "Seven Deadly Sins," were both born in San Francisco.

UNIVERSAL BOOK IT PROGRAM

NO program on earth begins to measure up in any detail with the Mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, pronounced by thousands of shrewd Exhibitors all over the country as the biggest and surest year round Box Office Attraction on the market—If you can get it now BOOK IT—if you can't get it now, watch your first opportunity. Write your nearest Universal Exchange or the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO., CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - - NEW YORK

TALKING MOVING PICTURES
THE COMING ART
Perfected at Last
Are You INTERESTED in Its COMMERCIAL SUCCESS?
Address ARTHUR KNEISEL
29 South La Salle Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

FOR SALE
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—Total 25,000
Price, $3.50 per M.
1400 Film Exchanges $4.00
206 Manufacturers and Studios ... 1.50
235 Picture Machine and Supply Dealers..... 1.50
Particulars.
A. F. WILLIAMS, 168 W. Adams St., Chicago

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 17, 1917 No. 11

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
MAR 10 1917
PERIODICAL DIVISION

JACKIE SAUNDERS
HORKHEIMER-MUTUAL STAR

Goldwyn Pictures

Goldwyn's "Remedies" For Sick Box-Offices

GOLDWYN PICTURES are to be the greatest remedies for sick box-offices ever prescribed for the exhibitors of America. Goldwyn, knowing what a tonic its productions will be for all theaters, advises all exhibitors to "take as often as offered":

MAE MARCH: The greatest young artist in pictures. Heroine of "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance" and the other great masterpieces. A star known to millions.

MARY GARDEN: Grand opera's greatest star. Beautiful and internationally famous. Her drawing power is rivalled only by that of Caruso.

MAXINE ELLIOTT: Gloriously beautiful and a dramatic favorite on two continents. Few women in the entire world have received such remarkable publicity.

JANE COWL: America's most remarkable emotional actress. Heroine of "Within the Law," "Common Clay" and other great plays. Young, lovely—and with an enormous following.

MADGE KENNEDY: The ablest farce comedienne in the world and star of "Fair and Warmer," "Twin Beds," "Over Night" and "Little Miss Brown." She has youth, beauty and the admiration of the nation.

These Most Popular Stars Will Be Presented in Plays by the World's Ablest Authors

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation

16 East 42d Street, New York City

Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

Advisory Board:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

TRIANGLE

FINE ARTS

Released Sunday, March 18th

Bessie Love

in

"A Daughter of the Poor"

An appealing and endearing star in a play of the poor and the rich in which their virtues and faults are dealt with in refreshing humor through five reels of tense situations and rapid-fire action.

A play that is generally alive with humanity.

INCE-KAY BEE

Released Thursday, March 22nd

William Desmond

in

"Blood Will Tell"

A swiftly moving story of love and finance.

Full of sternness and tenderness; human problems, plot and counterplot and the final triumph of a good woman's influence over a man's foibles.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

OVER 9,000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED.

Shirley Mason and George LeGuere in a unique and beautiful scene from "The Seventh Sin," last of Mc Clure Pictures' "Seven Deadly Sins' series.

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 17, 1917 No. 11

The Policies That Built Fourteen Houses

HEAD OF BIG HAMBURGER SYSTEM ADVOCATES TEN-CENT ADMISSIONS

By Ralph E. Duncan

A TALK with Alfred Hamburger, the dynamic head of a chain of fourteen theaters in Chicago, discloses that here is one of the thinkers who have sent the motion picture industry to fifth position in the business world of America. An intimate interview with the Chicago theater owner discloses that his years of schooling as an exhibitor has brought him to the point where his ideas are somewhat at variance with those of his fellow exhibitors.

The test of his opinions and ideas is easy to apply. They are ideas derived from experience and proved in the success of the Hamburger policy. What that policy is, Mr. Hamburger himself tells frankly enough. First of all it aims at permanency. To say that the success of the Hamburger Enterprises is lasting, that it is the practical demonstration of an oft-told theory, it need only be recalled that within the week the news was published that four new theaters will be built by Mr. Hamburger, thus making his theater system not only one of the most successful, but also the most extensive in Chicago.

Alfred Hamburger, who has 14 houses on his string, and, below, his $60,000 trademark.

The Question of Admission Prices

Mr. Hamburger holds that the neighborhood photoplay entertainment has been successful because it caters to and is popular with the masses. The neighborhood theater to be successful must have the patronage of the entire family—not once a week, he says, but rather, several times a week. He therefore believes that the prices charged should not exceed five cents for children and ten cents for adults. This makes for permanency, whereas higher prices, in the long run, according to Mr. Hamburger, must tend to diminish attendance and weaken the hold of the motion picture on the public's taste in the way of amusements.

The five cent and ten cent scale should never be increased unless the attraction is out of the ordinary, for which the exhibitor is charged an extra rental, according to the hypothesis of Mr. Hamburger. He feels that it is not the function of a neighborhood house to exhibit pictures for which a charge of twenty-five cents is required except on very rare occasions and then only when the audiences will leave the theater satisfied that they have received full value for their money.

The Rule in the Hamburger Theaters

It must not be inferred from this that Mr. Hamburger does not charge more than the above in his theaters. He has given the subject of admission price careful study. He was a pioneer in increasing the rate from five cents to ten cents. He was the first in Chicago to charge twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five cents and one dollar. He was one of the first exhibitors in Chicago to operate a high-grade, first-run motion picture theater down town, taking over from William A. Brady, the Ziegfeld Theater and establishing for it a reputation that has become nation-wide.

With the Ziegfeld and Fine Arts theaters forming the hub, Mr. Hamburger has established a wheel of houses in Chicago extending from its extreme southeastern to its extreme northwestern limit. In adding to this wheel, Mr. Hamburger has done his utmost to stamp out an evil which has seriously handicapped the advancement of the exhibitors. He has ever discouraged the erection of a theater that would create competition in a district already well served. Time after time he has rejected splendid offers on the ground that he wants his new propositions in virgin territory not properly served.

To Build Four New Houses

Along these lines four theaters will be added to his present chain of houses, three of them in Chicago and one in a suburban locality. The approximate cost of these new Hamburger screen houses is estimated at $175,000.

For the purposes of expansion and to act as a holding company for the Alfred Hamburger Theatrical Enterprises in the building of new showhouses and extensions carried out in other directions, the International Theater Company has been formed in the last fortnight and application for a charter filed with the secretary of the state of Illinois. The corporation has a capitalization of $100,000.

Mr. Hamburger has watched fortune-hunters come and go. Some have taken a share of the profits, others have won or lost by speculations, but few have kept abreast of the leaders.

"The best that we can give the public and the same standard in every Hamburger house—that has been our only policy," says Mr. Hamburger.

How He Made His Start

He tells of his trials, his set-backs and his successes without a boast, in the fewest words he can put into his sentences.

"I have held interests in as many as thirty theaters," he mused. "I got a half-interest in my first theater seven years ago. This was the Ellis Theater at Sixty-third street and Ellis avenue. I bought a half-interest with Nathan Ascher. Now the Hamburger theaters are worth over $750,000."

"What has made the success of your theaters?" said his questioner.

"Publicity and the right kind of pictures," came the ready response. The conversation had worked around to one of Mr. Hamburger's pet subjects. He told how publicity has benefited him and where it had been of doubtful value. He was in the printing business prior to becoming a theater owner and already possessed a knowledge of advertising and publicity.

Each advertisement printed in the Chicago papers for the last four years under the name of Alfred Hamburger has carried the Hamburger trademark. It consists of a seal bearing the initials A. H. and the name, Alfred Hamburger. The sum of $60,000 was spent last year for newspaper advertising by the Hamburger theaters. In each page display and in each short amusement notice, the trademark appeared without fail.

A $60,000 Theater Trademark

Every program of the fourteen theaters in Chicago and vicinity bears the emblem. It is the most conspicuous thing in the windows of the Hamburger offices down town, and at the theaters it may be seen in the curtains, draperies and upholstery.

"That trademark is worth considerable to me," said Mr. Hamburger. "I'll tell you why. Suppose you were going to some theater in your neighborhood to see a certain feature picture. Suppose there were four theaters showing the picture at the same time. If you knew that one of the four was a Hamburger theater, I'll bet a nickel you would go to that one."

One reason why the trademark is good advertising for the Hamburger theaters is that other theaters competing with them do not have any distinctive mark to correspond to the Hamburger sign, he explains.

To spend such a great amount for newspaper advertising is a sure method of informing one's self of a few first-hand facts about theater advertising. Mr. Hamburger willingly tells of the lessons he has learned as a big advertiser, for the benefit of other exhibitors.

Newspaper Advertising Which Pays

"It is easy to spend too much on a picture. I have come to the conclusion that newspaper advertising is of doubtful value for any but a downtown theater. It usually pays for itself in the case of a downtown theater, within a reasonable limit. But for an out-lying theater, newspaper advertising is of little use because there is too much wasted circulation. It isn't of any use outside of the neighborhood of the theater and is apt to be overlooked by those who should read it.

In operating a chain of theaters, the newspaper space used in connection with pictures shown at the downtown houses does not always produce results to justify the outlay. But it helps later when the pictures are exhibited in the other houses. We have adopted the policy of advertising only our downtown theaters in the newspapers.

Wife a "Partner" in the Business

Mr. Hamburger has a word to say for his wife whom he acknowledges to be his best business friend. Mrs. Hamburger lectures almost daily on the motion picture questions and has a lively and active interest in the efforts of others to adjust the present chaotic censorship tangle.

"My wife helps me a great deal," declares Mr. Hamburger. "She does not always agree with me on the kind of pictures it is best to show, but I like to know her ideas. It helps to keep the programs of the Hamburger theaters free from unwholesome pictures. Mrs. Hamburger has not become commercialized as much as I have, either. She has high ideals for the motion picture which she strives to have inculcated in the standards of the Hamburger theaters. It is a good thing to let your wife be your business partner."

SAVED EXHIBITORS MILLIONS

Henry B. Varner, North Carolina Theater Man, Devoted much Effort to Defeating Federal Tax on Receipts of Theaters

MOTOGRAPHY takes pleasure in announcing to its readers that a movement has been started by the North Carolina Exhibitors' organization to present to Henry Branson Varner, of Lexington, N. C., a testimonial in recognition of his unselfish services on behalf of the motion picture industry.

Mr. Varner, single-handed, succeeded in eliminating from the Federal Tax Law a provision to impose a tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross receipts of motion picture theaters. Needless to say in eliminating this tax and substituting therefor the present graduated tax, Mr. Varner has saved millions of dollars to the exhibitors of the country. Not only that, but he has avoided the danger of governmental supervision.

MOTOGRAPHY feels, like Mr. Varner's friends in North Carolina, that the industry owes him some token of recognition and we, therefore, appeal to the exhibitors of the country and indeed to every branch of the industry for individual contributions, none of which is to exceed ten cents, except the exhibitors of North Carolina who have asked for the privilege of contributing $1.00 each.

A preliminary meeting of motion picture newspaper men has been held to arrange for the collecting of such a fund for the purchase of a suitable token and its presentation to Mr. Varner at the next annual convention at Chicago. MOTOGRAPHY will gladly receive the dimes of its readers and aid in presenting a suitable token to Mr. Varner. Receipts of all contributions will be duly acknowledged.

Lee Children in Chicago

The trip to Jamaica and back is not the only traveling which Jane and Katherine Lee, the famous Fox kiddies, have done in connection with "A Daughter of the Gods."

The children spent three days in Chicago last week as an added attraction for the great Annette Kellermann spectacle showing at the Studebaker Theater. Recently, they were in Boston on the same mission.

F. I. L. M. Makes War on "Mushrooms"

CHICAGO EXCHANGEMEN HASTEN NATIONAL CONVENTION OF CLUBS

INSTEAD of waiting until July to hold the national convention of the F. I. L. M., simultaneously with the big Chicago convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club has voted to advance the date of the exchangemen's national conference, thus hastening the time when exhibitors in all localities shall be brought under the surveillance of a national credit protective system.

A resolution proposing that the convention be held in Chicago within thirty days was submitted to the executive committee of the Chicago club at a meeting March 2. Secretary Henry W. Drucker states that it will probably be impossible to complete the preparations for the meeting on such short notice. In all likelihood the gathering will take place late in April or during the first week of May.

F. I. L. M. Benefits the Honest Exhibitor

J. L. Friedman, branch manager of the Celebrated Players, president and one of the founders of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club, at the request of MOTOGRAPHY, has explained the functions of the organization and how it will affect the exhibitors' business when the F. I. L. M. becomes a national body.

"The exchanges," says Mr. Friedman, "by protecting themselves against exhibitors who fail to meet their obligations, also protect the legitimate exhibitor against 'mushroom' competition. In the long run, the F. I. L. M. will prove of more real, practical benefit to exhibitors than any other factor in the business."

It is now possible for an exhibitor having a complaint against an exchange to appeal his case to the grievance committee of the F. I. L. M. Club. One such case, in which an exhibitor presented a claim of several hundred dollars against a Chicago exchange, was recently decided in favor of the exhibitor.

In several instances exchanges have been barred from membership because their business methods have not met with the approval of the other exchangemen. With only one exception, however, the large film distributing companies having national organizations hold memberships. The company which remains outside prefers to hold to the policy of handling its own collections.

Helps Exhibitor Get Square Deal

Mr. Friedman declares that exhibitors are substantially benefited by the F. I. L. M. Their business is rendered safer and the stability of the whole industry guaranteed by exercising proper precautions against credit abuses, he believes. He sums up the points of common interest between exhibitors and the F. I. L. M. as follows:

Any exhibitor with a complaint or a claim against his exchange can now present his case to the grievance committee of the F. I. L. M. and be sure of a fair settlement. The acts of the exchanges are under scrutiny as well as those of exhibitors and this causes exchanges to hesitate at some of the practices which they might have followed before the formation of the F. I. L. M. Club. The grievance committee is a means of helping exhibitors to get a square deal.

Next, exhibitors are protected against the "mushroom" competition of irresponsible persons who try to break into the theater business. If they cannot get films, they cannot compete with the legitimate exhibitor, and if they cannot pay their bills and satisfy the exchanges that they are reliable, they cannot get films.

Third, the F. I. L. M. Clubs help every exhibitor every time they drive a crook out of business. This is what the clubs are doing by putting a stop to unjust and dishonest business methods on the part of a certain class of exchanges. Every branch of the industry will be benefited if the crooks can be driven out.

The F. I. L. M. Clubs, in forming a national organization, are taking a step which will enable them to adjust business methods so as to effect a remedy for the deposit system which exhibitors complain of.

Secretary Drucker points out that the creation of a national F. I. L. M. organization assures uniformity in the business standards of exchanges in different cities. Hardships have resulted for exhibitors sometimes in the past in the settlement of accounts, he says, because the limitations existing for a local group of exchangemen, or an unorganized group, have caused them to act with more severity. More extensive protective facilities mean greater flexibility, he declares.

Dealings of Exhibitors with F. I. L. M.

Few exhibitors are familiar with the workings of the F. I. L. M.; many do not know the purpose of the clubs. In a short time, however, if the national F. I. L. M. is formed as now contemplated, every exhibitor will be brought under scrutiny, just as Dunn and Bradstreet puts a finger on the merchant.

Among the changes brought about in the last year which affect the exhibitor most directly have been the refusal of exchanges to supply free paper; the refusal of the exchanges to accept return shipments of films C. O. D.; the closer watch kept on credit allowed exhibitors.

Exhibitors may be found in nearly all localities who have had dealings with the F. I. L. M. Club of the city in which they obtain films. More than likely their experience has brought them into contact with the Hoy Reporting Service, which happens to be the credit and collections organization which represents the F. I. L. M. Clubs of all but three cities in which these clubs have been organized. This organization has been instrumental in establishing protective associations of exchangemen.

The exhibitors are few who have had any direct relations with the F. I. L. M. Clubs. There are two reasons for this: The first of these organizations was formed only one year ago and the fifteen or more F. I. L. M. Clubs now in existence have come into being since that time. The only occasions on which exhibitors have relations with the F. I. L. M. are in cases of grievances or unpaid accounts, as when an exchange deems it advisable to refer an account to the Hoy Reporting Service.

New F. I. L. M. Club in St. Louis

The fourteenth F. I. L. M. Club to be formed in the United States is the new organization just launched in St. Louis. It began its career March 2. Four other exchangemen's clubs are in process of formation under the F. I. L. M. banner. The cities in which the new clubs are about to be formed are Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and Salt Lake City.

The list of cities having F. I. L. M. Clubs will thus be increased to eighteen. All of these bodies have come into existence within one year. The Chicago exchangemen's organization, formed early in 1916, was the first. Its success from the point of view of the exchanges in correcting credit abuses led to the formation of the dozen and more similar clubs, in as many cities, in the short space of eight months.

The cities which now have F. I. L. M. Clubs are: Chicago, New York, Boston, Detroit, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Albany, New York; Syracuse, New York; Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Omaha, Des Moines. Clubs are being formed in Kansas City, Missouri; Salt Lake City, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

MILLION DOLLAR FILM THEFTS

National Association of the Motion Picture Industry Estimates Above Amount as Total Loss During Past Six Months

An underground system of stealing and selling prints of the newest and most popular film plays which rivals the most thrilling film dramas screened is coming to light all over the United States. The first cases to get into the courts were in New York, where a few months ago the losses of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company were announced, and a month ago, when through the instrumentality of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry the case prepared by the W. J. Burns' detective agency for the Fox Film Corporation was pushed through the grand jury and one man is now awaiting trial on a grand larceny charge. This man was caught by an elaborate "plant" made by a Burns' detective, who took an office in the heart of the Longacre Square Theatrical section, has his name put on the door in gold letters and everything, and bought, for a marked $100 bill, a Fox film entitled "The Wonderful Adventure." Unlike the usual film play, however, the $100 bill did not have any further adventures, for the detectives took no chances, but nabbed the seller of films before he was many feet away from the office door.

Added to this case comes one from St. Louis, and a new series from Oklahoma. In St. Louis, a feature film of five reels was stolen from a street car, and in Oklahoma the exchange and theater men are convinced that a gang is working a regular system so complete now that they steal only the films for which they have markets. This is also borne out by the men with whom the Burns' detective had his dealings, who informed him that they could get any film of any company he wanted on twenty-four hours' notice.

The stolen films are most of them sold for export to European and South American countries, and the average price is about $10 to $20 per reel, a quarter to a half of the cost of printing the positive. It is also reported from St. Louis that the films are reassembled, titles changed, and resold for showing in this country.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is now the clearing house for all information regarding these film thefts, and information is coming from many sources regarding them, and showing the extent of the ramifications of the conspiracy. It is estimated that the thefts of the past six months represent losses amounting to over $1,000,000, exclusive of the business lost in rentals which went to the stolen films. The National Association has asked for all information of this character to be transmitted to it direct.

Shift in Fox Releases

A change in the schedule of Fox Film Corporation's March releases results in the issuance of "Love's Law" on the twelfth of the month, with "A Tale of Two Cities," the special super production.

"Love's Law," featuring Joan Sawyer and Stuart Holmes, is substituted for "The Siren," a Valeska Suratt film.

PHOTOPLAY LEAGUE GROWS

National Council, Just Announced, Contains Leaders From Each State. Purposes of the Organization Set Forth.

Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York has accepted membership in the National Council of the Photoplay League. Governor Whitman's name will head the list of the Council, which will have as members, many governors of states, including the Hon. Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland; Hon. J. A. A. Burnquist, Governor Minnesota; the Hon. Arthur Capper, Governor of Kansas; the Hon. Emmet D. Boyle, Governor of Nevada; the Hon. Martin G. Brumbraugh, Governor of Pennsylvania; the Hon. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of the National Bureau of Education; Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, and others of national prominence. The Council within a short time will name the national president of the organization.

The League proposes to make pictures of the kind it recommends profitable to the producers and exhibitors, as well as enjoyable to patrons, according to the statement of the Advisory Committee through its president, Edwin H. Blashfield. And in making virtually the whole public the censor of what appears on the screen, the League hopes to do away with the need for Federal, state or municipal censorship. The League invites local associations to join with it and so have the backing of a comprehensive national organization.

The Photoplay League is self-supporting. It has no business relation with any motion picture producing or exhibiting organization. Its work is confined to "recommending" good pictures to its members and others.

Good pictures are easily defined. There is no reason why they should be dull in plot or action. They may be expensive or inexpensive. At any rate, the League has no intention of maintaining so-called "high-brow" standards. Its work is for the benefit of its whole clientele—for the motion picture patrons of every city and town of the United States.

An annual convention of the members of the League will be held in each district, to which the manufacturers, distributors and exhibitors will be invited.

One purpose of the League is to preserve films of permanent value in the public libraries, to provide instructive motion pictures in educational institutions, and to arrange for the specific exhibition of films on subjects of unusual national interest. Another purpose is to encourage the production of such special historical, social, educational and scientific pictures as are desired by members, but which cannot be looked for in the ordinary way of business.

The Photoplay League in fact, is intended to meet the needs of that larger section of the public which realizes the tremendous power of the motion picture and its future from the civic, social, educational and entertainment standpoint.

Asks Booking Information

MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago:

Would you kindly let me know what firm I can get "Tess of the Storm Country" featuring Mary Pickford, also do you think I could get a cartoonist comedy from the same firm? I would like to show this play very soon. I am a reader of MOTOGRAPHY and think it is a fine magazine. I enclose stamped envelope.—Respectfully yours, H. P. Jensen, Hinckley, Ill.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews Motography publishes in each week's issue the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

The Secret of Eve, with Mme. Petrova, (Metro)—"Brought good business."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Sister Against Sister, with Virginia Pearson (Fox)—"Business with this was great. This star improves all the time."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"Business was fair. Star has fair drawing power."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"This picture brought excellent business and gave excellent satisfaction."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—Catering to high class audiences.

The Web of Desire, with Ethel Clayton, (World)—"Business great. The star is a drawing card."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Web of Desire, with Ethel Clayton, (World)—"Brought exceptionally good business. The star is popular and is worth featuring."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—Catering to high class audiences.

The Red Woman, with Gail Kane, (World)—"Went over well with the patrons. Business was pretty good."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

The Victim, with Valeska Suratt, (Fox)—"A good box-office attraction."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

A Love Sublime, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"A good attraction. The work of the star is very satisfactory."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—Catering to high class audiences.

The Web of Desire, with Ethel Clayton, (World) "Brady has put out another live one in this. It certainly made a hit with the audience. Brady productions seem to be the only ones which do of late. The public likes them. Ethel Clayton and Rockcliffe Fellows please the patrons."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

The Fortunes of Fifi, with Marguerite Clark, (Famous Players-Paramount)—"Everybody seems to be pleased with this play. Business is exceptionally good, although this is the Lenten season. Marguerite Clark is the most popular actress with my patrons. The costumes are especially beautiful and are worth advertising as a feature of the picture."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

The Rainbow, with Dorothy Bernard, (Art Dramas)—"The picture is very pretty and the audience complimented it."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Last of the Ingrams, with William Desmond, (Triangle)—"Business was poor with this picture. It is not the type of picture popular with our audiences."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Stage Struck, with Dorothy Gish, (Triangle)—"This picture played to good business."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Betty's Burglar, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"Ordinary business. The star has no drawing power."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Sloth, with Charlotte Walker, (McClure "Seven Deadly Sins" series)—"Poor business. The series is not proving popular in spite of the advertising given it."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Each to His Kind, with Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky-Paramount)—"Brought fair business. Star's drawing power fair."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Her Right to Live, with Peggy Hyland, (Vitagraph)—"Fair business. Gave ordinary satisfaction."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Tillie Wakes Up, with Marie Dressler, (World)—"Good business. Comedy went over with the audience in first class manner."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Wax Model, with Vivian Martin, (Pallas-Paramount)—"A fairly good picture. Max Linder in Max Comes Across (Essanay), shown in conjunction, brought the box-office receipts up to a good figure."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Skinner's Dress Suit, with Bryant Washburn, (Essanay)—"The cleverest piece of work that Essanay has turned out in the last three years. Bryant Washburn made a greater name for himself than ever through this picture. Business was only fair, the reason being I think because we showed the picture on Ash Wednesday, and one cannot expect a whole lot during Lent."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

His Sweetheart, with George Beban, (Morosco-Paramount)—"Brought very good business. This picture pleased nearly everyone who saw it."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

A Girl's Folly, with Robert Warwick, (World)—"Business fairly good. The star is popular. The picture contains comedy which got a lot of laughs."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Great Secret, with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, (Metro serial)—"Started chapter one to nearly 900 people, but fell down terribly on chapter two, as we only drew about 400."—S. K. Leen, Ruby Theater, Jamestown, North Dakota.

Big Tremaine, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison, (Metro)—"These two stars are very clever and are always pleasing to our patrons."—S. K. Leen, Ruby Theater, Jamestown, North Dakota.

The Glory of Yolanda, with Anita Stewart, (Vitagraph)—"Dainty Anita Stewart is a sure winner at all times. Our patrons all like her."—S. K. Lean, Ruby Theater, Jamestown, North Dakota.

The American Consul, with Theodore Roberts, (Paramount)—"This picture did not draw on State street. Business was poor. Theodore Roberts is not a strong enough drawing card."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

Rosie O'Grady, with Viola Dana, (Art Dramas)—"The star has little drawing power and business was only fair."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class patronage.

Little Shoes, with Henry B. Walthall, (Essanay-K. E. S. E.)—"This made a decided hit with the audience. Business was very good."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton, (Kay Bee-Triangle)—"This went over well. The patrons liked it immensely. I wish all productions would please them as well."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

The Girl Who Did Not Care—"Business was poor the day I ran this. Evidently my patrons are not attracted by this sort of a picture."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

Each to His Kind, with Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky-Paramount)—"This proved a drawing card in my locality. The audience seemed moderately pleased."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

A Girl's Folly, with Robert Warwick and Doris Kenyon, (World-Brady)—"This is something new in pictures. It has been shown before, but this time in a new way. It is a new idea in picturing studio life inside a big moving picture plant. Everybody liked it. It was well acted and well directed."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Pride of the Clan, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"Picture pleased patrons. Weather good. From box-office standpoint excellent."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

The Gilded Cage, with Alice Brady, (World)—"A pretty picture. Action slow. Drawing power fair. Not up to the usual Brady-made standard."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

Common Ground, with Marie Doro, (Paramount-Lasky)—"Marie Doro pleased the people. The play went over very well. Title good. So was the production."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

Greed, with Nance O'Neil, (McClure's "Seven Deadly Sins" series)—"Publicity got it over, though I can't say much for the picture."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Great Expectations, with Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, (Paramount-Famous Players)—"The Dickens style of story does not seem to be popular. It was a picture that the audiences did not seem to care about. The story is too old perhaps."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Max Comes Across, with Max Linder, (Essanay)—"People liked him. Some said he is better than Chaplin."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Trilby, with Clara Kimball Young, (World-reissue)—"A picture that showed to fair business. It was well handled and the story was good. It was well liked by the audiences."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Stage Struck, with Dorothy Gish, (Triangle)—"A disappointment. Business fair. Dorothy Gish has a good following and should be shown in as good pictures as Triangle is capable of producing."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Mirror of Fear, with George Larkin, (General Film Company)—"A one-reel play, but the best thing on our program for the day. It was the feature of the show, although we had one of the 'Seven Deadly Sins' on the same day."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Stage Struck, with Dorothy Gish, (Fine Arts-Triangle)—"The Fine Arts productions on the Triangle program do not please the audiences nearly so well as the Kay Bee. The patrons found this picture long drawn out and tiresome and complained about it."—Martin Saxe, Knickerbocker Theater.—High class patronage.

"Forget-Me-Not," the first of the World-Brady-made series starring the prodigally beautiful Kitty Gordon, enjoyed an altogether remarkable career as a speaking drama

MINISTERS SEEK PICTURES

Committee of Churchmen Confers with National Association Regarding Pictures Suitable for Sunday School Children

To encourage the production of better pictures by arranging and bringing to the attention of motion picture manufacturers the immense audience of 5,000,000 Sunday school children is the object of a group of ministers and Sunday school workers in New York. They prefer to work for the betterment of the films, instead of agitating for the closing of the theaters on Sunday, for censorship and for the exclusion of children from picture shows.

The leader in this movement is the Reverend Christian Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, New York City, the pioneer pastor to use motion pictures in his Sunday night services. Dr. Reisner heads a committee of seven chosen by the church leaders of many protestant churches and authorized to confer with the Children's Program Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry with a view to offering and receiving the co-operation of the producers in the work which his committee has laid out for itself.

Jesse L. Lasky Heads Committee

The National Association has one of its strongest committees assigned to this subject of children's programs. At its head is Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corp., with John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, and David Wark Griffith. A meeting will be arranged with this committee and Dr. Reisner's committee, and the whole subject will be threshed out. Dr. Reisner feels that the producers are ready to take the question up seriously, and to a large degree through his instrumentality and example, it is undoubtedly true that many thousands of the ministers of the country are ready now to take this positive way of solving the motion picture problem, instead of clinging to the idea of postponing its solution by the negative means of censorship, Sunday closing and juvenile attendance legislation.

"We want to discuss three things with the committee of producers," said Dr. Reisner in talking things over with the National Association officers. "First, a plan looking toward an ultimate system of recommending certain pictures submitted to a board, for use in Sunday schools. Second, some way of encouraging, through the concerted support of our Sunday schools and their 5,000,000 children, the production of pictures especially suitable for our work. Third, the establishment of some system of exchange of information about suitable films, and arrangements by which these films, after they have served their time in the theaters, can be made available, at moderate rentals, for church and Sunday school exhibitions."

Dr. Reisner is thoroughly conversant with the distribution system of the film companies, and the National Association expects to be able to work out, through him, some approach to the solution of the problems of the churches, which will be of mutual advantage.

Humor in Fine Arts Play

One of the humorous situations in the Triangle Fine Arts drama, "A Woman's Awakening," is where Seena Owen and Alma Rueben, two society girls, don men's attire, and visit a gambling house for a lark. They put on full dress suits, wear wigs, and then make their way to a fashionable gambling house to play at roulette. When they arrive at the gambling house they begin to gamble and when a fight starts they are visibly embarrassed. Both young women get treated rather roughly when the place is raided by the police. Miss Owen and Miss Rueben enjoyed the taking of this scene very much.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

FATTY ARBUCKLE is a mighty serious man. Witness these words of wisdom which fell from his lips into our capacious ears while the all-round comedian was in Chicago last week.

"My wife is my rudder."

"The reason for my entrance into the silent drama was because I wanted to eat."

"I claim the unique distinction of being the only star on the screen getting less than ten thousand dollars a week salary."

"I want to stand or flop on my own merits. No exhibitor is bound to take my comedies because he has contracted for the Paramount program. And, on the other hand, he can use my pictures without having to use the whole or a part of the regular Paramount releases."

And here's one Fatty's wife, the rouge-topped Minta Durfee, tells on him:

"When we were married six years ago we weren't up to our chins in wealth. The first morning after we were married Fatty said: 'Say, have you got a five? I've got to go out and rustle up some breakfast.'"

And last summer Fatty paid $8,800 for a little old Rolles-Royce English car. He shipped it by express from N'York to Los, a little matter of $800.

Somebody has suggested a banquet for the Chicago exhibitors, who have tried the other seven sins.

"Mary Pickford is coming to the Auditorium," says Max Goldstine, who presides in the Chicago Artcraft office. He meant her "Poor Little Rich Girl." If "Little Mary" came herself, Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden and the other opera stars would look like amateur crowd pullers.

Chicago is close to the heart of many a man, and close to the purse of many another—particularly the hicks who stroll in. All of which is leading up to the remark that Adolph Zukor, who mans the Famous Players-Lasky ship, declares that he has a very warm spot in his heart for Chicago, having been married here.

We have heard before that a tragedy always pumps into the participants a strange allurement to the spot where it happened.

The following spasm of worse appeared in Screenshine some time ago, and was delivered in person at the recent Fatty Arbuckle banquet by Yours Truly, Mel (who felt very neek in the wees at the time). It is re-echoed here by request (of two others besides the author):

Here's to the heroine's heaving chest,
Here's to her rolling eyes;
Here's to the vamp's eternal zest!
Here's to her clumsy thighs.
Here's to the whiskers—just like hay—
The villain's vile, black heart.
Here's to the screen, as she are today;
(Whisper) Here's to the silent art!

Just like the well known magazine by that name, the word "Motography" is coming into universal use.

Listen to the manner in which Toastmaster Joe Hopp, president of the Chicago branch of the M. P. E. L. of America, introduced President Adolph Zukor of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, at the Arbuckle banquet in Chicago. He wound up his flow of silvery oratory with these words:

"—and, ladies and gentlemen, I now have the extreme pleasure of presenting to you the wizard of Motography—Adolph Zukor."

REEL FELLOWS MEET

Chicago Film Followers Get Together in New Club Rooms and Lay Plans for Future Activities—Next Meeting March 16

The Reel Fellows of Chicago got together again on the evening of March 2, for the first regular meeting held in their new club rooms in the College Building, 207 South Wabash avenue.

It was decided upon the motions made by Secretary Billy Hamburg and Vice-President M. G. Watkins, to hold the regular club meetings in the future on the first and third Friday of each month. This brings the next meeting, which promises to be a big one, on Friday, March 16, at which time further important matters are to be settled. Alfred Hamburg, prominent theater man, who was present, added a suggestion that each member bring two other members to the meeting. This suggestion was unanimously agreed to.

President Ralph O. Proctor called for the treasurer's report and the report by Jack Haag on the big Essanay party held on February 10. Both were read and accepted.

Attorney David T. Alexander explained the new Guernsey censorship bill, which has been introduced into the Illinois state legislature, stating that a complete story of this bill was given in last week's issue of Motography. This bill provides for state censorship and eliminates all local censor boards. Mr. Alexander came out strongly in favor of the bill as offering the best solution for the present problems confronting the trade. It was suggested to have a discussion concerning censorship carried on further at the next meeting of the club by either Senator Guy Guernsey, Samuel Ettelson or some other prominent authority.

Mr. Alexander also explained that the Club has been incorporated as "The Reel Fellows Catering Club,"—with the Reel Fellows Club as the parent organization,—whose purpose is to provide sufficient income to carry on the work of the club. Stock in the organization is now ready to be offered to members.

The committee consisting of D. Russakov, chairman, William J. Sweeny and David T. Alexander, was appointed to investigate the question of a license for the sale of refreshments. W. C. Benson was appointed publicity director for the club.

Among those present at the meeting who were called upon to talk were G. M. Luttrell of Jacksonville, Illinois, president of the Illinois branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America; W. W. Watts of Springfield, state treasurer; William E. Heaney, vice-president of the Chicago Local Exhibitors' League.

The members and friends who were present at the meeting, were decidedly impressed by the beauty and comfort of the club rooms and a big attendance is expected at the coming meeting on March 16.

Fighting Censorship in Colorado

The following letter from a live exchange man in the west is a good illustration of what an energetic man can do to steer in the right direction the trend of the activities of the various organizations agitating censorship in one form or another:

Denver, Colorado, March 2, 1917.

Dear Editor: I will continue sending you information on censorship affairs but unfortunately cannot write very much news matter. In addition to my job in charge of Kleine offices in Denver and Salt Lake I happen to be president of the film exchange board of trade and also on the legislative committee of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club. The censorship fight is actively in my charge and you can imagine what this means when I tell you we averaged two hundred and fifty pieces of mail a day and every moment I can find is spent in writing editorial stuff for state papers. Committee meetings, conferences with legislators and steering women's organizations along the right path seem to be of almost hourly occurrence.—Yours very truly, H. H. Buckwalter, George Kleine Exchange, Denver, Colorado.

FORCES SUNDAY ISSUE

Million Signatures on New York Petitions for Amendment to Closing Law—Hearings at Albany March 21

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will send a representation to the New York capitol, March 21, carrying petitions for Sunday motion pictures signed by one million citizens, including patrons of practically every theater in the state.

All of the motion picture bills pending before the New York legislature will be heard by the committees having charge of them on March 21st, according to information received by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. These include chiefly the bills pending on the Sunday opening of motion picture theaters, the taxation measure being delayed until the Wheeler committee can make its report to the legislature.

The bills regarding the Sunday opening of the motion picture theaters number in all about ten, in both houses. Practically all of them, with one exception, merely add a clause to the present Sunday observance law, to the effect that "nothing in this law shall be construed to prohibit the exhibition of motion pictures after 12 o'clock noon" on Sundays. The exception places the power of deciding whether or not there shall be motion pictures in the hands of the municipalities.

The National Association is planning to present a strong front in the debate before the committees, and will not only appear in its own behalf, but will be supported by the many social welfare organizations which are in favor of the Sunday motion picture show. The representation at the hearings is being arranged by Executive Secretary Frederick H. Elliott of the National Association, and he is planning a delegation to be headed by William A. Brady, president of the Association.

Included in the party, which will go to Albany in a special car, will be not only prominent motion picture men, but also representatives of the National Board of Review, and those charitable and social welfare bodies which have been such strong supporters of the poor man's Sunday recreation as a means for taking care of the workers on their day of rest and furnishing them with the distraction which the students of social conditions consider so important a part of the modern civilized life.

The legal side of the Sunday motion picture problem is resting at present, under the direction of John B. Stanchfield and Judge Samuel Seabury, who have been retained to handle the case. If any legislation at all is enacted, it will be in favor of Sunday pictures, in which case there will be no need to prosecute the cases now pending in the courts.

Yale Boss is coming back. That will be great news to a large army of film enthusiasts, who have been longing for the return of this popular boy actor. Yale has outgrown the boy roles which made him famous all over the world, and he will now be featured in a series of stories especially written for him. The first of these will be "The Half-Back," made by the Edison Company and is soon to be released by the General Film Company.

New Picture Bills Hit Illinois

AMENDMENT PERMITS PROSECUTION OF EXHIBITORS UNDER CRIMINAL LAW

A JAIL sentence of not to exceed one year, or a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or both fine and imprisonment, constitute the possible penalty which a court might impose upon an exhibitor or amusement manager convicted under the terms of a bill now in a committee of the Illinois legislature, designed to bring immoral and indecent motion pictures, dramatic productions and other forms of amusements within the scope of criminal law.

The ambiguity of every law purporting to arbitrate the moral fitness of plays, books, pictures, advertisements, art and theatrical entertainments, is pointed out again in the proposed amendment by the attorneys and exhibitors who are opposing the passage of the bill. Under its terms, David W. Griffith and a hundred other directors would be subject to prosecution by those who choose to see obscenity where none exists. The exhibitors who display the films are declared subject to attack and criminal prosecution, fines and imprisonment.

Closing Theaters as Public Nuisances

Another measure well-meant in its conception, but so wide in its application that it might readily become an instrument in the hands of persons with a desire to totally suppress the theater, rests with the senate committee on judiciary. The law only classifies, and cannot define, what classes of motion pictures and other amusements are to be regarded as tending to corrupt morals. The interpretation placed upon a motion picture by those attacking it would, if they succeeded, become the test by which to define the moral or immoral aspects of the play, the law being only a weapon and an abortive means of action toward ends that public opinion rightly should serve.

The Chicago Theatrical Managers' Association is cooperating with exhibitors in defending the theaters against the legislative attacks which affect both motion pictures and the stage.

Among the half dozen or more measures now on the legislative docket at Springfield, pertaining to censorship and motion pictures, only one has received any large degree of favor among the film men. This is the Guernsey bill, a measure providing for an official state censor, which is so framed that it offers not only the supervision of films by an official censor as sought by women's clubs and others, but offers relief to exhibitors and exchangemen from some of the ills now existing in the unregulated, haphazard methods employed by various local censorship boards.

Some exchange managers say that the Guernsey bill is an acceptable remedy for a situation resulting from the fact that co-operation between various local censor boards is an impossibility, whereas a state censor would be created by the Guernsey bill, thus displacing the unsatisfactory and expensive proposition of local hit-and-miss censorship.

Makes Theater Owners Liable

Following is the text of the proposed amendment to the criminal code which, if it became a law, would make exhibitors, theater owners and their agents liable to prosecution in the criminal courts:

That any person who, as owner, manager, director, or agent, or in any other capacity, prepares, advertises, gives, presents, or participates in, any obscene, immoral or indecent drama, play, exhibition, motion picture, show or entertainment, and every person aiding or abetting such act, and every owner or lessee or manager of any theater, motion picture house, garden, building, room, place or structure, who leases or lets the same or permits the same to be used for the purposes of such drama, play, exhibition, show or entertainment, or who assents to the use of the same for any such purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall, for the first violation of this act, be subject to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $200, or imprisonment in the county jail or house of correction for not to exceed one year, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court; and for each subsequent offense, the defendant shall be subject to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail or house of correction for not to exceed one year, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Detroit Women Support Bill

W. H. Sheets, secretary of the Detroit branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, who recently presented the argument of Detroit theater owners before the committee of the Michigan legislature which has charge of the Eaton censorship bill, declared that the Detroit women who are seeking the passage of the law have not kept their word to the exhibitors. The measure is opposed by the theater owners. Mr. Sheets stated in reply to a speech by Mrs. Albert L. Finn that when the women and exhibitors discussed picture reforms in Detroit last year, the women promised to bring any complaints they might have to the attention of the League, in an effort to obtain co-operation. No complaints have been made, and instead the women have furthered the agitation for state censorship, he said. Theodore Mitchell, representing David W. Griffith, appeared before the committee.

Wants Only Women's Censorship

The New York Theater Club, Inc., made motion pictures a topic of discussion for the first time at a meeting held March 6, at the Hotel Astor. Previously the club staged a theater party at the Lyric Theater, New York, and entertained fifteen hundred women. The affair was the first step of a carefully planned campaign against government censorship. The guests of honor were the presidents of all the allied clubs of the Women's Federation. The importance of motion pictures in the sphere of dramatic art has obtained recognition by the Theater Club, which now proposes to fight legal censorship. It was urged that the women of the country are the only censors needed. The meeting of March 6 was devoted to a discussion of the screen play shown at the Lyric Theater entertainment. The production was the William Fox feature, "The Honor System."

Names Tacoma Censor Board

A new censor board has taken up the work of inspecting films for the city of Tacoma, Washington, where formerly a committee of the social welfare board performed the censors' duties. The personnel of the new board is as follows: Meyer Jacob, Federated Jewish Societies; Mrs. James Garvin, Parent-Teacher Association; E. J. Walsh, Federated Catholic Societies; the Rev. Robert Lamont Hay, Ministerial Alliance; Mrs. Leonard Crassweller, Presidents' Council; Mrs. H. Roy Harrison, labor organizations; Dan W. Fry, federated colored societies.

Mrs. Crassweller is the only member of the new board that served on the censorship committee of the social service board. Three members of the board serve as inspectors.

The board was created under an ordinance revising the motion picture regulations of Tacoma. Penalties are provided for violations of the ordinance.

EXHIBITORS PASS ON FILMS

State Rights Pictures Entering Idaho Will Be Reviewed by Executive Committee or Secretary of Theater Managers' Body

The group of exhibitors in Idaho who recently organized the Idaho Theater Managers' Association have agreed upon a plan for preventing state rights productions being released in Idaho without the formality of being reviewed by an official body, just as productions of other classes are first submitted to the National Board of Review. A resolution was approved requiring that all state rights productions be first submitted to the executive committee or secretary of the association, who shall review the films and give impartial information regarding them to members of the association.

It has been urged also in a resolution that members note who those manufacturers are that are guilty of putting out objectionable films. The resolution covering the point specifies the kinds of films regarded as objectionable, as follows:

Resolved, That this association is opposed to the manufacture and exhibition of film subjects, featuring vice, sensational sex plays of an extremely sensual nature, of women in the nude, and that we condemn this tendency. And that we ask the members of this association to note those manufacturers guilty of this practice.

The convention went on record as opposed to Sunday closing and censorship. A motion was carried that a bill be drafted and submitted to the legislature amending the Sunday amusement law to permit Sunday performances of motion pictures.

The officers and charter members of the association are the following:

H. J. Brown, Boise, president; E. E. Sharp, Nampa, vice-president; A. Hager, Idaho Falls, second vice-president; C. C. Spencer, Wallace, third vice-president; Theodore Johnson, Boise, secretary and treasurer. Charter members: A. R. Anderson, Twin Falls; R. D. Carrothers, Pocatello; A. Hager, Idaho Falls; E. E. Sharp, Nampa; F. F. Moe, Wardner; C. C. Spencer, Wallace; H. J. Brown, Boise; Coughanour, Payette; W. J. Howell, Nampa; J. H. Waters, Caldwell; Lavering, Twin Falls; R. T. Hurtt, Caldwell; C. O. Bucknum, Emmett; A. C. Gordon, Weiser; Johnson, Star; Walter Mendenhall, Boise; C. Hendricks, Jr., Mountain Home; Theodore Johnson, Boise.

Utah Women Oppose Censorship

The club women of Salt Lake City, Utah, through their committee on motion pictures, have united with the Utah Screen Club and the exhibitors in opposing the bill providing for censorship by a state board. Mrs. John Malick, spokesman for the committee, scouted the idea that a state board would improve upon the work of the National Board of Review.

The magnet for Geo. M. Cohan fans at the Actors' Fund Fair in New York will be the American Booth. He has agreed to act as one of the salesmen in disposing of the Uncle Sam articles with which the booth will be stocked.

Matrimonial Clients in Films

NO longer shall Lonesome Harry, the wealthy ranchman, subject himself to the risk of heartache and disappointment in selecting a bride by mail. No longer may authors and directors produce westerns in which the handsome cowboy writes to a matrimonial agency to obtain a wife, living thereafter in acute suspense until his eyes shall tell him what manner of woman he shall be bound to obey. Henceforth the hero shall sit expectantly watching the graces and charms of fair maidens on the screen, or viewing their pigeon toes, scrawny figures and squinting eyes, no longer fearful of marrying just "a rag, a bone and a hank o' hair." He shall see each and every candidate for his hand in motion pictures, as it is now done in the most progressive little city in the world, Tuscola, Illinois. "Brownie" Linton, who runs the Strand Theater at Tuscola, recently obtained five hundred feet of film from a matrimonial agency at Peoria, Illinois, showing some of their clients in every-day life. Both men and women, ranging in age from eighteen years to sixty-seven years, have a footage in the film.

Washington Censor Bill Killed

The censor bill introduced into the senate at Olympia, Washington, by Senator Davis, was never brought to a vote of either house of the legislature, the reason being that exchange managers of Seattle got together as soon as they heard about the introduction of the bill and put machinery in action for blocking its passage. The exchange managers' club sent Frank S. Fountain, manager of Progressive, was appointed to go down to Olympia in the interests of the film men.

Mr. Fountain made two trips to the state capital and brought his well known powers of persuasion into play. The bill never went farther than the committee. It is rumored that Mr. Fountain even persuaded the originator of the measure that it was both impracticable and unjust.

As it was introduced into the senate the bill provided for a censorship board of three members, each to receive an annual salary of $1,800. There was to be a secretary at a salary of $2,000. But where the bill hit the producing companies hardest was in taxing them one dollar for every one thousand feet or less of film viewed by the censors.

"The Deemster" in Sing Sing

The Arrow Film Corporation's production of "The Deemster" was presented at Sing Sing prison in Ossining, Washington's birthday evening. Over 1,700 convicts witnessed the run, which was made under the direction of E. J. O'Donnell, business manager of the Arrow Film Corporation.

The various exchanges of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., through which "The Fall of a Nation" now is being released, report to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the company, a widespread interest in the Thomas Dixon spectacle drama, increased, particularly, by the timeliness of the subject. Among the bookings received at the home office for confirmation last Saturday were: Grand Theater, Kinston, N. C., two days; Grand, Green Bay, Wis., five days; Three Forks, Mont., one day; Strand, Oakland, Cal., three days; Liberty, Coalingo, Cal., one day; Marque, Oakland, Cal., two days; Gen. Oldham, S. D., two days; Jefferson, Huntsville, Ala., three days, and Colonial, Orange, Cal., one day.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM FOR EXHIBITORS

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum Motography, Chicago.

Trouble with Exchange Dividing Service

IF a theater introduces and advertises the pictures of certain producers releasing on the same program, that theater should be entitled to protection against the use of the same pictures by another theater in competition with the exhibitor who first put his investment in time, money and property at the disposal of these producers, according to the opinion of at least one exhibitor who has had the experience.

Eugene Saunders, manager and proprietor of the Palace Theater, at Harvard, Illinois, staked the success of his theater on the merits and popularity of the films handled through one of the established services. A longer or shorter length of time is required in which to educate the public to the worth of any one producer's pictures, or a program, and to create a demand for those pictures, just as a market must be found for any article of merchandise by first creating a demand. If the demand already exists, then the sale of the article is assured. Mr. Saunders believes there is no difference between selling motion picture productions to the public and selling soap or perfumes.

The merchant who ventures to be the pioneer in his town is entitled to benefit from the trade that comes when his brands of soap and perfume become known and are demanded by the public. His agreement with the manufacturer calls for the exclusive agency for the goods which he has introduced. The parallel between the merchant's and the exhibitors cases will be noted in the following letter addressed to Motography by Mr. Saunders. He praises the policy of the K. E. S. E. exchanges in this regard, as the Palace Theater uses the K. E. S. E. service. He writes:

Although I am a small unit in the motion picture world, I am one of the thousands that go to make up the great picture industry. I have been in the business since it first started, owning my own house. Previous to that I was in the show business. During these many years I have done business with various exchanges in Chicago with different experiences, and the greatest oposition I have had to contend with has been when mushroom exhibitors have started up, and then for the film houses to furnish them with the same service I had been using, after I had spent many dollars to advertise their actors and service.

I started with the K. E. S. E. service some months ago, and it is a source of great pleasure for me to note the fact that their method of treating the exhibitor is upon a standard that cannot but help the placing of the film industry on a more solid foundation. Every production of theirs to me has been a special in my house and has built up my business with a class of people that has not been in the habit of attending picture shows. They have given me protection, also helping me with ideas, and have cheerfully come to my assistance in cases of troubles.

This is far different from a film house in Chicago whose service I had been using for over six months without a miss, cash in advance for as high as four pictures, spending money and time in educating the public to their stars and service. And now that it is being well patronized, they divide their service and give it to a man of only three weeks' experience in the picture building, who rents a show house in a store building, thus giving my opposition the benefit of my six months' advertising. They do not make anything, for I quit their service, and the man that they have given it to may possibly stay in business a year and he may stay only a month or so.

A "Motography" Program Cover

There are as many different kinds of program covers as there are different kinds of neckties. And it takes more brains to make a praiseworthy example of the former than of the latter. A program involves all the principles of design, good taste and advertising.

A Motography cut was used to make this attractive cover. We'll lend you any cut you say. Read this story.

We are showing herewith a reproduction of a program cover which is rather better than ordinary. It is the organ of the Logan Theater of Philadelphia. It is not elaborate; that is not the aim of the good cover. But it is attractive, simple, in good taste and has distinct advertising value. The cut of Lenore Ulrich shown was borrowed from Motography, and, Motography was only too glad to loan it to the Logan. And that same magazine which always renders any service it possibly can to exhibitors, will also be glad to loan you any cut that you see in its pages which would be of use to you. Write us any time you see a cut you want. But we must be notified immediately after you get the issue in which you saw the cut you desire, as the half-tones accumulate so rapidly that it is impossible to keep them very long on file.

Try some of the attractive half-tones that appear in Motography. Perhaps you can build a program cover that will have the Logan Theater backed off the platform.

South Dakota Theater Re-Made

Transformation of the Gale Theater, at Mitchell, South Dakota, into one of the finest moving picture theaters in the state will be made within the next few months by Manager A. J. Dix, who has recently signed a 10-year lease on the building. The changes will give the playhouse a seating capacity of 650, an attractive stage, and the latest features.

The building will be first extended to the alley. The floor will then be lowered to the street level and slanted to make every seat a desirable one.

The stage will be attractively designed and opera chairs will be installed on the floor. A modern heating and ventilating system will be added.

The exterior will be done in mahogany and white. A box office of plate glass is planned and a beautiful marquis with hundreds of electric lights, such as is frequent in the larger cities, will be built in front.

Mr. and Mrs. Dix will visit Minneapolis and Chicago to inspect theaters and get ideas as to improvements which may be incorporated into the plans of the new Gale. Mr. Dix operates the Metropolitan Theater in Mitchell, also.

High Class House Goes to Pictures

The beautiful Willis Wood Theater at Kansas City, which was damaged by fire recently, will be rebuilt at once according to the lessees, Nugent J. Flynn, and E. E. Richards.

The theater has lately been operating as a stock company but announcement had been made shortly before the fire that wrecked the stage and organ, that the house would return to moving pictures within two weeks. During its career as a picture theater the lessees found that fifty per cent of the drawing power of the place was due to the big pipe organ and the remaining fifty per cent was accredited to the feature picture productions.

The theater was damaged to the extent of $50,000, the stage, a portion of the dressing rooms and the organ being completely destroyed, while the beautiful frescoes and oil paintings were damaged. The theater is one of the really high class ones in Kansas City; even while operated as the picture house the price of admission was equal to the standard set by the legitimate stage. A tunnel connects the theater with the Baltimore Hotel, which is one of the largest and best hotels in the city.

The elaborate Willis Wood Theater of Kansas City, the former high class legitimate house which will run pictures, following its recent fire.

The lessees operated the theater with pictures before converting it into a stock company the beginning of this season and their lease has eight years more to run. Since it was their intention to return to the moving pictures the theater will be rebuilt immediately and four hundred additional seats will be installed and a new pipe organ.

The house was insured for $200,000. The opening with pictures has, of course, had to be postponed, but the lessees have been in the east arranging for first run bookings of a week and longer periods. Mr. Flynn recently said, "I hope to have the house completed within three or four weeks and will immediately open with high class first run feature productions at the regular theater admission prices."

Loew Builds 4,000-Seat Theater

Marcus Loew, who operates more than eighty theaters, has consummated a deal for a building and site in Brooklyn, at Fulton street and Gallatin place, where he will put in a theater building having the largest seating capacity of any house in the city with the exception of the Hippodrome. It will seat 4,000 people. The transaction is reported to involve close to $2,000,000.

In remodeling the present building and in decorating the new auditorium, an estimated expenditure of $300,000 is planned.

Negotiations were carried on through the firm of Coverdale & Mitchell, brokers. The building to be converted into a playhouse was the property of the Howard Horton estate, the French estate, and the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn. It occupies a large part of the block bounded by Fulton and Livingston streets, Gallatin place and Smith street.

Mr. Loew, who is the lessee of the Bijou Theater, at the corner of Smith and Livingston streets, announces that on the completion of his Fulton street theater he will close the Bijou.

The Fulton street frontage of the building is approximately 126 feet. In Smith street, the building, which is "L" shaped, has a frontage of 60 feet. The frontage on Livingston street is 98 feet 10 inches, and in Gallatin place the frontage is about 300 feet.

Announcements, advertisements or other slides may be projected on the proscenium arch wall, instead of upon the screen, and the correct time shown in the same space, by the use of a new device known as the Kalck theater clock projector. It is being introduced upon the market by the Kalck Safety Specialties Company of Amityville, New York. Slide changes are made automatically and the projector may be operated without the delay which intermissions often occasion. The manufacturer states that it requires little or no attention from the operator. It may be used with any current and any voltage at a cost of a few cents a day.

The Yellowstone Park Film Company has been organized at Gardiner, where it will have its main office. It is proposed to take pictures of the immense herds of wild game now in that vicinity.

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

THE Drury Lane Theater, London, will present D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance," beginning April 7.

Owing to the lack of coal, the military authorities of Munich, Bavaria, have decided to close all theaters, meeting and concert halls.

The Japanese Gardens on top of the Riviera Theater, New York, playing a picture policy similar to the Strand since November 1, has been closed.

Paris cinema managers have countered the government's new taxes by charging an increase of twenty-five per cent on the price of admission, and they find that the public pays it willingly.

At a meeting of the Northside Chamber of Commerce in Pittsburgh recently a definite movement to secure better and cleaner picture shows was started.

John Gestal, proprietor of the Cozy Theater at Dollar Bay, Minnesota, will erect a new theater in the near future.

The old building of the Christian church of Newcastle, Indiana, is being converted by Cicero M. Bailey into a moving picture theater.

The second installment of the Prizma pictures in natural colors which are being shown each week at the Strand Theater in New York will be "Uncle Sam's Troops on the Mexican Border."

Thirty Milwaukee theaters have offered their services to the Red Cross publicity campaign. They will show Red Cross slides in connection with their performances.

The magistrates in a certain district in England, in renewing picture theater licenses, have asked the exhibitors to show educational pictures to children and to submit programs for children's performances to the Bench.

A correspondent at St. Charles, Minnesota, writes of a recent visit of W. H. Strauss, assistant manager of the Vitagraph office in Minneapolis, commending Mr. Strauss for his efforts to bring about closer co-operation between exhibitors and the editors of their local newspapers.

F. E. Wilk, manager of the Opera House, of Syracuse, Nebraska, announces the early opening of the new theater. Two Powers machines and transverter have been installed by the Western Supply Company of Omaha. Vitagraph, Bluebird and Mutual pictures are to be shown at the new playhouse.

Under the terms of a resolution adopted by the Oklahoma branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, members who disregard their pledge to show only clean pictures, are subject to expulsion.

The city prosecutor of Richmond, Indiana, has been asked by a committee of citizens to close picture houses on Sunday.

Every picture house proprietor in Reading, Pennsylvania, has received a notice to install gas lighting systems, auxiliary to electric lights. Trouble with electric lighting circuits was the cause of the order.

Clifford R. Trimble, manager of the Apollo Theater, of Princeton, Illinois, is offering one act of vaudeville and six reels of pictures at each performance and a complete change of bill every day.

Manager S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto Theater, New York, will personally direct the orchestra during the showing of Sarah Bernhardt in "Mothers of France," in the absence of Hugo Riesenfeld, conductor of the Rialto orchestra. Mr. Riesenfeld is taking a vacation.

The Alfred Hamburger theaters in Chicago, numbering a dozen or more, issue admission books entitling the bearer to admittance to any Hamburger theater, for which the buyer pays a sum twenty per cent smaller than the single admissions would cost.

Joseph Silverman, an exhibitor at Kansas City, Missouri, was recently arrested on a charge of violating the child labor law. The board of public welfare complained that Silverman employed Earl Dillard, ten years old, as janitor, keeping him out of school and working him until about 2 o'clock every morning.

Topeka, Kansas, is favored as the headquarters of the proposed Kansas movie censorship board by the senate committee on federal and state affairs. The house bill passed by the house was concurred in by the senate committee with exception of the location of the board's headquarters.

J. Louis Rome, manager of the Broadway Theater, Baltimore, Maryland, distributed cards to advertise "The Pearl of Paradise," a Mutual production, on one side of which he printed the following: is the only white girl within 1000 miles.

SHE

does not understand why people wear clothes.

discards her clothing and dives into the water.
WHO IS SHE

On the reverse side of the card was a picture of Marguerita Fischer and the message "See Marguerita Fischer in 'The Pearl of Paradise' at the Broadway Theater tomorrow."

Joe La Rose, master of effects at The Rialto, was ill recently, so Mr. Rothapfel stepped into his place, operating the color harmonies, managing the various curtains and scenic effects, and putting in the sound-illusions whenever the action on the screen demanded it. The Rialto staff is agreed that the boss is quite a handy man to have around the place.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is to be seen on the screen during the week of March 11, at the Rialto in New York, in "Mothers of France." Manager Rothapfel has arranged a distinctive musical program for the occasion and has devised lighting and scenic effects to heighten the effect.

As part of its program for the week of March 25, the New York Strand will introduce a motion picture novelty. It is called "Animated Sculpture," which means that statues made of clay are made to move. The idea has been worked out by Helena Smith Dayton, the New York sculptress. The results are amusing.

The St. Denis Theater, Montreal, Canada, is now under the management of G. T. Barry of the Windsor Photoplays. Under the new policy, there will be four program changes a week. Arrangements are being made for suitable features with special and exclusive releases. A reorganization of the whole business policy of the house and the staff is to take place.

The Exhibitors' Union of Argentina, South America, states in its annual report that the members have much satisfaction in recording the triumph of the open market system of booking, for which, as a body, they had struggled hard. They claim that by their action they have prevented a crisis in the industry and helped to encourage national production.

Frank R. Powell of Ponca City, Oklahoma, has been exhibiting pictures in his theater on Sunday afternoons. At a recent meeting of the city council, petitions were presented to that body by the Woman's Club and Ministerial Alliance asking the council to suppress Sunday shows. Mr. Powell did not wait for the council to act, but suspended his Sunday performances voluntarily.

Seven hundred and eighty-three eggs were collected at the box office of the Bonaventure Theater at Kansas City for the benefit of the little patients at Mercy hospital. Dr. Katherine Richardson, hospital superintendent, was so pleased with the response, that she has arranged with the manager for a "potato show." The show charging potato admission will be at the Broadmour Theater, March 17.

Rose Tapley, Vitagraph actress, lectured in Kansas City, Missouri, recently to the Parent-Teacher Association. Miss Tapley said that there are many companies that refuse to produce objectionable films. The public does not desire them, it has grown weary, and is asking for better, said Miss Tapley. She lectured at the Alamo Theater, her lecture being illustrated with a one-reel film "From Script to Screen."

A fire which completely destroyed the Old Mill Theater at Dallas, Texas, February 22, started while 1,200 persons were watching the fire scene in William S. Hart's photodrama, "The Gun Fighter." The fire broke out on the second floor and for a while threatened to destroy half a block of buildings in the principal business district of the city. The audience left the building without any accidents. The damage was estimated at $30,000.

Many exhibitors of Sydney, Australia, are facing ruination through the introduction of the daylight saving scheme. As the saving is taking place in the summer season, and the starting time of the show is eight o'clock, when it is still broad daylight, patrons prefer to spend the extra hour or so at the beaches. Thus the exhibitors fare badly. A deputation is to interview the government on the subject.

W. H. Smyth, manager of the Strand Theater, one of Seattle's Second avenue motion picture houses, announces that together with Henry Lubelski, an old time showman of the Pacific Coast, he will open the old Tivoli Theater on Madison street with musical comedy and burlesque. The Tivoli has been closed for over a year.

The employes of the Greater Theaters Company of Seattle were entertained on Monday, February 19th, in the ball room of the Liberty Theater. John H. von Herberg, manager of the Liberty, opened the ball at eleven o'clock Monday evening and it was three o'clock before the guests departed. It is intended to make the event an annual affair.

Exchange men affiliated with Chamber of Commerce of Cincinnati, Ohio, state that they oppose sensational advertising of photoplays. Posters have been used by exhibitors giving the impression pictures offered startling features or immoral scenes when such was not the case, it is said. The exchange men have taken the matter up with the exhibitors.

W. H. Smyth, manager of the Strand Theater of Seattle, has been showing a navy slide calling for volunteers for the past two weeks. This slide was furnished by the naval recruiting office in Seattle. Taking advantage of the opportunity this slide offered for patriotic decoration, Mr. Smyth had a flag surmounted by the American eagle placed over the entrance to the Strand.

Galveston-made pictures proved a good drawing card for the Rex Theater of that city recently. Starting with the children's pageant of the Eighth Annual Cotton Carnival and the civic parade, it re-pictures the first annual Easter egg rolling and other public events familiar to Galvestonians, the city schools, public buildings, police force and the Texas A. and M.-Louisiana State University football game.

William Fox has a live-wire publicity man on the other side of the water. When "A Daughter of the Gods" began its run in Sydney, Australia, the William Fox Film Corporation labeled about two thousand empty soda water bottles with an announcement of Annette Kellermann's appearance, filmitively speaking, and cast them into the ocean so that gradually the bottles drifted onto the beaches where thousands of holiday-makers were enjoying themselves, a la Annette.

John H. Kunsky, Detroit exhibitor, announces changes in his organization affecting the management of his various downtown houses. M. H. Starr, who has been manager of the Washington Theater, has been appointed to the position of manager of the new Madison, at the corner of Grand Circus park and Broadway. R. G. McGaw, formerly manager of the Liberty Theater, takes Mr. Starr's place at the Washington Theater, and H. W. Irons returns to Detroit to fill the vacancy at the Liberty Theater caused by these promotions.

E. O. Weinberg, manager of the Elmwood Theater, at Elmwood, New York, put some money into circulation recently and did a little advertising for a picture at his theater. Inside the program folder he placed sealed envelopes bearing the question, "Where is the money coming from?" and the instructions in small type, "Open the envelope and find out." The money was in the envelopes, but it was stage money, advertising Vitagraph's production, "The Dollar and the Law."

What will probably be America's largest film theater is to be erected at Eighth and Market Streets, San Francisco, by Turner and Dahnken, who have leased the property, which was formerly known as Central Park. The lease runs for fifteen years at a total rental of $1,000,000. Cunningham and Politeo, architects, are preparing plans for the theater, which will have a seating capacity of 6,000 on its single floor. There will be no balcony or gallery. The deal was handled by Hugh M. Webster, broker. It is said to be the largest real estate transaction since the fire of 1907.

The Rialto Theater, New York, presents Rex Beach, the novelist, during the week of March 5, in the pictures of wild game hunting which were taken by Dr. Edward A. Salisbury's scientific expedition to Central and South America and the islands of the Caribbean Sea. The series will extend over a number of weeks at The Rialto, with explanatory lectures afternoon and evening by Dr. Willis E. Peck, of the University of California, or by Dr. Salisbury himself. Mary Roberts Rinehart, the short story writer, figures in many of the pictures. "Mutiny," a Bluebird play, comprises the dramatic portion of the program.

The Strand Theater, of New York, is advertising a special children's showing of the new Mary Pickford subject, "The Poor Little Rich Girl," an Artcraft release. Manager Edel arranged the performance for Saturday morning, March 10. The feature will continue at the Strand for a week. The new Prizma pictures in natural colors and Victor Moore in a comedy entitled "Flivvering" are on the weekly program also. Other pictures to be presented during the month of March at the Strand are: Pauline Frederick in "Sapho," Jack Pickford in "The Dummy," Sessue Hayakawa in "The Bottle Imp" and George M. Cohan in "Broadway Jones."

R. P. Green, proprietor of the Palace Theater, Dawson, Georgia, differs with some exhibitors in his views on the place and need of children's matinees on his program. Three primary considerations have guided him in arriving at his conclusions. Children no longer come in as large numbers as they did years ago, he observes, and they do not seem to derive as much enjoyment from the average picture. He considers children's programs necessary as a part of the regular weekly program. He tells of his practice at the Palace as follows:

> My plan has been to bring back the old conditions, at least one day a week. That is put on a real good high type program of general appeal, and cater to the children that day. I discussed the matter with the W. C. T. U. ladies, the principals of the schools, teachers and mothers, and they were in hearty accord. I decided to make Tuesday afternoon "Children's Day." At night I run the same program. The enthusiasm so far has surpassed my anticipations.

Commerce Reports, the bulletin issued by the bureau of foreign and domestic relations, states that seven motion picture houses are operating in Bangkok, Siam, with a total seating capacity of about 13,000, and in the three leading houses the cost of screening one slide every night for one month is $3.70.

Bangkok has electric street car lines, and space for advertising is provided in the eighty-two cars which run on these lines. The cost of inside advertisements on two boards, eighteen inches by twelve inches, is $92 for one year, $48 for six months, and $28 for three months per car.

Bangkok has no special billboards, but bills may be placed on any convenient fence or wall without objection, and the cost for such posting is $2.22 for twenty-five single pieces, $3.70 for fifty, and $6.66 for one hundred bills.

The Better Movies committee of the Albany Drama Society, Albany, New York, has presented a second historical film for the entertainment and edification of the members. The showing of the "Joan the Woman" film, with Geraldine Farrar, was so successful at the State Education Auditorium recently that William N. Selig offered his new feature, "The Crisis," for the benefit of the Drama Society. The picture made a strong impression and was enjoyed by a packed house. The presentation of this film was in line with the Better Movies committee's campaign of endorsing the motion pictures that are of serious and historical interest.

James Brennan, manager of Freber and Shea's Bayonne Opera House, Bayonne, New Jersey, wishing to do a charitable act for the city's poor people, used the "potato matinee" idea cleverly. The picture show was advertised especially for children and every one who passed into the house had to drop two potatoes into the ticket chopper's box. In a few seconds the box was filled and soon a stack of spuds was growing off to one side of the lobby. Mr. Brennan estimated that there were seventy bushels of tubers in all. At $3.50 a bushel this would bring the afternoon's receipts to about $245. Later the gate receipts were distributed among the city's needy by Poormaster William Wright.

T. L. Tally, Tally's Broadway Theater, in Los Angeles, spent a few days visiting Seattle recently. He has in mind the erection of another theater for the City of Angels and came to inspect Seattle picture palaces with the idea of combining their good features with his own plans. Mr. Tally was the first person in the United States to open a theater devoted exclusively to motion pictures. This was in 1897. It was a very modest affair, seating but a few hundred persons. His business has grown until he is now one of the foremost exhibitors of California. He was entertained while in Seattle by G. A. Faris of the Vitagraph Company and James Q. Clemmer of the Clemmer Theater.

A suit for $120,000 has been brought by L. H. Griffith against the Liberty Theater, one of the Greater Theaters Company's finest Seattle houses. Mr. Griffith in an amended complaint filed in the superior court claims that he built the theater and leased it to John H. von Herberg and Claude S. Jensen with an agreement that he was to receive one-tenth of the net profits. These profits he alleges to be $10,000 per month. There is now due him, he claims, $30,000 from the profits of the theater since November, 1914, when the lessees took possession. He asks judgment for $120,000, which includes the $30,000 now alleged to be due and $90,000 which is expected as one-tenth of the profits during the term of the lease.

The city of Syracuse, Kansas, will hold a motion picture festival, May 10. The business men and the public schools of Syracuse, Kansas, have sent out invitations to every town and school district within a radius of one hundred miles to attend a free performance at the Syracuse School motion picture theater, one of the three of its kind in Kansas. Every district school teacher in Hamilton county, of which Syracuse is the county seat, is taking up the study of "Snow White," with the children. A luncheon will be served free to all school children coming from outside of Syracuse, and the film "Snow White" will be run the entire day at the school theater. The Syracuse School Theater has been running for about five months and has already paid for the machine and booth out of the profits.

NEW THEATER IN DETROIT

John H. Kunsky Opens the Madison with Vitagraph's Eight-Reeler, "The Girl Philippa," and Artcraft's Pickford Release

John H. Kunsky's new theater in Detroit, Michigan, the New Madison, throws pictures upon its screen for the first time on March 12. However, the possibility exists that the contractors will be delayed slightly in finishing the construction work on schedule time.

The New Madison has booked for its opening program the Anita Stewart picture, "The Girl Philippa," Vitagraph's eight-reel presentation of Robert W. Chambers' novel of that name, which will share honors with the current Artcraft release, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the new Mary Pickford production.

In connection with the opening and the exhibition of "The Girl Philippa," Mr. Kunsky has arranged to put up not less than 75 twenty-four sheet stands. In addition 2,500 special programs, 500 window cards, liberal newspaper space, and ample display of one, three, and six-sheet posters on "The Girl Philippa" complete the advertising campaign planned by the New Madison.

"The Girl Philippa" Sets Record

New box-office and attendance records are still being established wherever "The Girl Philippa" makes her bow.

Tally's Theater in Los Angeles, which it is said never before has played any motion picture produced outside of California for longer than seven days, began showing "The Girl Philippa," February 19. That day marked the opening of a two weeks' run, which is unusual in the Tally program. Eugene Roth, proprietor of the magnificent Portola Theater in San Francisco, also departed from his usual custom, booked the Anita Stewart film in the Portola for at least two weeks, beginning March 18.

L. A. DeHoff, of the New Theater, Baltimore, wired that his house never had had such a money-making attraction as "The Girl Philippa."

The new Rialto Theater, in Amsterdam, N. Y., which seats 1,800 people and will be opened the early part of April, will use "The Girl Philippa" as its first attraction.

New New York Screen Theater

At a cost of $225,000 and modeled along the latest approved lines of similar theaters on Broadway, the New Houston Street Theater, on East Houston street, New York, is now in course of construction, with a seating capacity of 1,600. Charles Steiner, who operates the New Fourteenth Street Theater, will operate the new house, which will be open on or around May first.

The new house will be devoted to photoplays exclusively, embellished with an imported pipe organ of the latest design, as well as an augmented orchestra of superior musicians.

Illinois Exhibitors to Elect

The exhibitors who are members of the Illinois State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, will hold their annual election on April 6. At the same gathering, the coming National exhibitors' convention to be held in Chicago in July, will be boomed.

President G. M. Luttrell of Jacksonville, and Treasurer W. W. Watts of Springfield, were in Chicago the past week arranging affairs with the officers of the Chicago Local League, and the call for the April sixth meeting will be sent to every theater man in Illinois very soon.

This meeting will be held in Chicago in connection with a meeting of the Chicago Branch, and at the same time, delegates to the National Convention will be elected.

Exhibitor Becomes Salesman

Frank W. Burke, one of the foremost young exhibitors of the middle west, and who established a noteworthy reputation as a publicity man while employed as manager of the Strand at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has entered into the salesman end of the game with Fox Film Corporation.

Mr. Burke will work out of the Minneapolis branch under the supervision of Manager Robinson. Friends predict a successful career for "the publicity wizard" in the selling end of the game.

Theater Club Opposes Censorship

The New York Theater Club, Inc., has given its first official recognition to motion pictures with a statement that it believes the women of the country and not the law should censor the motion pictures. The statement followed a huge theater party at the Lyric Theater, New York, to see a special performance of "The Honor System," the William Fox production.

The guests of honor in addition to the members of the Theater Club, were the presidents of all the allied clubs of the Woman's Federation, and all expressed themselves as favoring a plan to make their sex the custodian of the fates of the films. There were 1,500 present.

"The Blue Streak"

"The Blue Streak," a vigorous and compelling screen drama with a most picturesque hero, William Nigh, author-director, and co-star of the film, will be Fox Film Corporation's release for March 19.

Violet Palmer plays opposite Mr. Nigh in his initial production for William Fox. Mr. Nigh has the name part; Miss Palmer portrays "The Fledgling." The other principals in the unusually large cast include Danny Sullivan, Ned Finley, Martin Faust, Edward Roseman, Ruth Thorp, Ed Kennedy and Tom Cameron.

Larry McLean, the famous National League baseball player, also appears in the picture.

The story tells of the reformation of a millionaire's son, who later develops such consistent speed on the "draw" and on a horse that it wins for him the title of "The Blue Streak." Driven from home, the "Streak" changes his mode of living entirely.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTHUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONDON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 1504 GOLDEN GATE AVE.
MABEL CONDON, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
E. R. MOCK, President and Treasurer
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00
Canada - - Per year $4.00
Foreign - - Per year 5.00
Single copy - - - - - .15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY. Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.

If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 17, 1917 Number 11

How the Pendulum of Competition Swings

SOME little time ago we related the story of two theaters serving the same territory, one of which had an intangible but positive advantage over the other. These two theaters, you will remember, ran programs of the same class (both excellent) and were finished with equal attractiveness. In both the projection was good, the small orchestra in one was offset by an expensive organ in the other, and both managements insisted upon, and had, courteous attendants.

It took a little study to determine that the more successful house owed its advantage largely to an atmosphere of public interest and eagerness to please—the feeling that its management was in the business not merely for its profits, but because of a thorough liking and enjoyment for it.

And everybody instinctively knows that a man interested in his work gives better service than a man interested only in money.

But the pendulum of favor has swung back again, and now the first house, that was the less popular of the two when we wrote the story, is rapidly winning over the patronage of its erstwhile more prosperous neighbor. It is interesting—to us, at least—to hunt for the reason.

These two houses are so entirely typical of the better class neighborhood theater that their experience is worth observing.

The house that was the more successful of the two changed hands. Why it was sold we do not know. Possibly the previous owner was an expert builder of business, whose object in creating the good will he established was merely to pass it on to a buyer with plenty of money. Possibly he was a sincere showman with aspirations toward permanency, who sold out only because some enthusiastic layman offered him too good a price to refuse. And possibly—there is always that possibility, unfortunately — his show was so expensively good that he didn't make any money, and had to get out. At any rate, a new owner is in possession, and is losing his business.

Still sticking to our belief that music is always the deciding factor where programs are equal we hasten to comment on the fact that the new owner has discharged the old orchestra and now has only a piano player. We have no wish to disparage the piano, which is a great emotional agitator when properly handled. But this particular piano player sounds like six dollars a week. Needless to say, silence would be at least as satisfactory.

The new owner continues the former excellent program—or rather he tries to continue it. Owing to the the exigencies of distribution, programs are subject to change without notice. It will be observed, however, that the experienced showman does not suffer so many of these substitutions at the hands of the exchange as does his inexperienced brother. In the house of which we speak, the former owner seldom had to apologize for the disappearance of a film that he had anounced. The new owner has already had it happen to him several times. And incidentally, we all know that for some occult reason the substituted film is seldom as good as the one booked.

The third and final fault of the new manager is his hurry to get home. About the middle of the last show he begins to make preparations for the next day. He makes considerable noise about it. His little tack hammer working on the posters taps out a fitting accompaniment to the person who pounds his piano. The result might pass as a sound effect for certain classes of pictures, but generally speaking it is not pleasing, and some nervous members of the diminishing audience express annoyance.

The trouble is that they express it to each other and not to the manager, who thus pursues his ruthless way unwarned.

That is all; but we fear it is enough. The empty seats and the box office show that the attendance is slowly but surely dwindling. And the other fellow is obviously getting the benefit of it.

We haven't said much about this other fellow, because there is nothing new to say about him. He has gone along the even tenor of his way without any change for better or worse. That it would be possible for him to go in either direction is shown by the fact that his competitor has been both better and worse.

We said "without any change"; but that is hardly true. A few months ago he was running at ten cents, with a special feature at fifteen cents about once a week. Now he is getting fifteen cents about half the time, and no doubt intends to establish that price as standard fore long.

Why shouldn't he? He fills his house on it.

All of which goes to demonstrate the ancient truth that little things may make a lot of difference. Where the total patronage of a neighborhood is evenly divided between two theaters, it behooves each of the exhibitors to watch his step. A little too much economy in music, a little carelessness in courtesy, a little indifference, and several hundred dollars' worth of business goes scooting over to the other house.

To give a little better program, a little better music, a little better service, a little better advertising than your best competitor, and still to squeeze out a reasonable profit—that is the highest order of showmanship.

The Book and the Picture

THE waning popularity of libraries, since the pictures became their worthy rivals for intellectual favor, is a matter of some concern to those whose business it is to regard libraries seriously. The institution of book-lending has fallen off considerably, it seems.

Pictures are young and books are old. Tradition has wrapped around the book a mantle of reverence so firm in its texture that it protects even the unworthy. To say that the picture film succeeds the book because the picture is better than the book would be, to the book-lover, a sacrilegious utterance. With the human mind emotion, tradition and sentiment are greater than logic.

We are critics of the film because the percentage of perfect pictures is small and the mediocrities are many. Do we realize, when we meditate on that truth, that the percentage of perfect books is infinitely smaller, and the ratio of mediocre and dull and impossible books infinitely larger? Those books by which we hallow the word are woefully few in the vast and seething sea of type—few, but powerful enough to create the tradition of book-sacredness for all the brood.

That films that are good can eliminate books that are bad is a blessing. Good books, of course, need fear no competitor. When they, themselves, are done into films they but increase their own popularity. The worth while book is an easy chair comrade forever established.

But the love of books is intellectual, and intellectuality is fondly regarded as the property of the few. Book excellence is not always popularity; film excellence generally is. Civilization and art progress are not for the few—they are for all. The picture reaches all, and is therefore the greater instrument.

Dorothy Kelly and Evart Overton are the big dramatic guns in this new Vitagraph Blue Ribbon. It's "The Money Mill," and was loosed to the country's screens on March five.

YOUNGSTERS FILL HIPPODROME

The Kiddies Celebrate Holiday and See Patriotic Program—Paula Blackton Country Life Story Delights Children

The Hippodrome in New York turned its screen over to the use of the Junior Patriots of America for a special Washington's birthday celebration. The 5,500 boys and girls and their parents who were present rose to their feet in delight at one point in the showing of "The Little Strategist," one of the two-reel productions included in Paula Blackton's Country Life Stories, the Vitagraph special series, all six of which will shortly be released through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

Mrs. Blackton is a patroness of the Junior Patriots and, in addition, was chairman of the entertainment committee. Besides having the famous thirteenth New York regiment band and the Jewish Orphans' Home band to render music for the youngsters, Mrs. Blackton had secured from the Vitagraph company two patriotic feature films.

"Washington Under the American Flag," and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," were shown. Then came "The Little Strategist," which never before had been exhibited except at private showings for Mrs. Blackton's friends or in behalf of her charities.

The acclaim of "The Little Strategist" by the 5,500 people in the Hippodrome demonstrated how popular a chord Mrs. Blackton has struck in these Country Life Stories. As one man—or woman, or boy, or girl, depending on the reader's personal sex predilections—the Hippodrome audience rose to its feet and applauded the dainty production, at once so stirring and so sweet.

Since last week's announcements that Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., had secured the Paula Blackton Country Life Stories for distribution through his organization, his mail has been heavily augmented by exhibitors' demands for these one and two-reel pictures of child life and the beautiful outdoors. Samuel L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto Theater, New York, wrote: "I never have seen anything prettier or more appealing than these Country Life Stories."

Exchange Has Social Club

The young women of the Chicago Paramount exchange have formed an organization called the Paramount Social Club. A number of social events have been held, such as parties in the homes of members, theater parties, and dinners. Their initial dance, an informal affair, was held in the Refectory in Humboldt Park, Chicago, on March 3.

The young men of the exchange joined forces with the girls' club in giving this dance. Invitations were extended to about 300 guests. The actual attendance was 225.

Among the guests were F. M. Brockell, ex-manager of Chicago Paramount exchange, and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Keeley, Patrick J. Garvey, Dr. and Mrs. J. Norton Welty, Louis Dreher and wife, and S. C. Booze and wife. An important meeting of the salesmen detained many representatives of the exchange.

Following are the members of the club: Florence Blum, Charlotte Brenleke, Nellie Burke, Evelyn Braverman, Anna Cushman, Fay Dillen, Mary Edwards, Henrietta Newman, Clara Riedmayer, Marguerite Loftus, Ruth Sundel, Florence Higley, Catherine Kelly, Reva Lipner, Helen McEnry, Minnie Nieman, Edna Lacey, Elsa Von Bachelle, Grace Wirth.

PREDICTS LONGER RUNS

Samuel Goldfish Believes Pictures Will be Repeated for Periods Depending on Worth of Story and Avoid Daily Change

The day is coming when longer runs will be the rule and the daily change system will give place to programs continuing for a few days, or many days, according to the worth of the story, declares Samuel Goldfish, president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

Samuel Goldfish, president Goldwyn.

He made his predictions in testimony before the investigating committee of the New York legislature which has been considering the question of higher taxation for theaters and film producers. In reference to the daily change system he said:

Where the star is now pre-eminent, I expect to see the story or play itself become the matter of first importance at a later stage of the industry's development. A vast percentage of the picture theaters today insist upon daily changes of bill and to make certain that the houses will be filled the managers exploit the personalities of big artists and favorite players in whom the public is interested. As we build up and lay stress upon the strength of the story this development is certain to lead to longer runs for the individually worth while productions in the theaters throughout the world.

Warns Against Buying Some Film Stocks

The most dramatic moment of Mr. Goldfish's testimony came when he issued a warning against some of the motion picture companies that offer their stocks for sale to the public.

The witness then told the committee that his own company, barely two months old, already has spent $300,000 and that before Goldwyn begins to sell its pictures in the late summer the owners of the company expect to have $1,000,000 of their money spent on productions and operation. The Goldwyn corporation, the witness asserted, is a closed corporation with no stock for public sale; a company financed wholly from within its own memberships. Mr. Goldfish made the following statement:

The investors of America should not put their money in film stocks. The picture business is one for specialists; for film men ready to devote their own money and all of their time to the development of pictures.

"In the Hands of the Law"

"A master photoplay that kindles every human emotion," is what one New York reviewer had to say on the pre-release exhibition of B. S. Moss' five-reel production of "In the Hands of the Law," which is now ready for release on the territorial plan.

"In the Hands of the Law" presents a powerful indictment of circumstantial evidence and is of timely import, particularly in its suggestion of the celebrated Stielow case of which every one is now familiar through the medium of the daily newspapers. The coming of "In the Hands of the Law" now takes on added interest with recent activities of Governor Whitman, who seeks an appropriation of $50,000 to re-open the Stielow case, the governor apparently believing in the innocence of Stielow, despite his conviction on the grounds of circumstantial evidence. Never before has the subject of circumstantial evidence been laid open in widespread discussion as the present time among students of jurisprudence and the general public. That "In the Hands of the Law" strikes at the opportune moment is reflected more or less in the fact that this picture, featuring Lois Meredith, was viewed at police headquarters in New York City by the commissioner and a jury of representative men, who agreed that it struck deeply to the core of one of the greatest problems of modern jurisdiction. The cast includes Eugene Strong, Lucile Dorrington, Arthur Morrison, George Moss, Baby Lorna Volare and Henry King.

Studio sets are easily penetrated by the discerning public in this late day of motion picture education, and B. S. Moss, fully alive to the fact that realism is the order of the day, not only cast his outdoor scenes in St. Augustine, Fla., which is considered one of the beauty spots of the world, but most of the interior scenes as well were taken from the real subject.

The extensive exploitation of "In the Hands of the Law" has met with hearty response from state right buyers and numerous inquiries have already poured in from the following available territory, which is now open: Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, California, Nevada and Arizona, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming, Illinois and Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Metro, Please Accept a Bouquet

It is pleasant to report pleasant dealings between exhibitors and exchanges. A good example of this is seen in the following letter written by Ascher Brothers, big Chicago exhibitors, to C. E. Smith, manager of the local Metro exchange:

Chicago, March 1, 1917.

Metro Pictures Service, Chicago:

Enclosed herewith find contracts for our Metropolitan, Lane Court, Calo, Lakeside, Cosmopolitan, Columbus, Frolic, Oakland Square, Chateau, Milford and Terminal Theaters, together with deposit check, for a period of an additional year, with cancellation clause eliminated.

In renewing these contracts with Metro, we feel that we have made one of the most successful deals of our experience in the picture game, which statement is based on the fact that we have found your pictures and all our dealings with you so very satisfactory from all standpoints.

Thanking you for the courtesies, and excellent productions furnished during the past year, we beg to remain, Very truly yours,—Ascher Brothers Amusement Enterprises, per Nathan Ascher.

Some of the big guns behind Goldwyn. From the left, Allan Dwan, director; Edgar Selwyn, vice president of Goldwyn; Margaret Mayo, scenario editor; Hugo Ballin, decorator; Ralph W. Ince, director.

The noted beauty, Maxine Elliott, and Henry Clive, her leading man, in a home scene from the first Elliott-Goldwyn picture, which is now in its fourth week of production.

During the times when Miss Elliott was emoting in the creating of the play a string trio assisted the effects by playing "off screen." Allan Dwan is directing the production.

World-wide Publicity for Mary Garden

GOLDWYN PLAYER ADDS FAME—MAE MARSH PICTURE COMPLETE

THE loss of several American lives on the torpedoed liner Laconia, on the eve of Mary Garden's scheduled departure for Europe, did not deter the noted star of grand opera from sailing March 2, exactly as she had announced through the management of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. She took passage aboard the Spanish liner, Alphonso XII, bound for Vigo, Spain.

She will proceed to Paris to carry out preparations for her career with Goldwyn and to have gowns made for her appearance in pictures.

Mary the Intrepid Increases Fame

Every newspaper in the United States and Canada has printed stories of Mary Garden's daring trip. The cumulative worth of the publicity that Goldwyn has gained for Miss Garden by arranging the ocean trip just at the time when the Kaiser's ultimatum of unrestricted sea warfare has been flashed upon the world, will some day be measured in the box-office receipts of American theaters.

The curious ones who crowd to see Billy Sunday are brought to his amphitheaters because of one thing—publicity. Theodore Roosevelt's exploits, his hunting tours, the discovery of an unknown river, his timeliness, keep his name fresh in the minds of the people by reason of that same factor—publicity. Mary the Intrepid, famed in the realm of grand opera, by her trip into the war zone, is setting in motion the forces of publicity which make and unmake presidents, evangelists, fighters, and stars, and attracts whole cities of people to see them.

With the exception of Ambassador James W. Gerard, now en route to America after his recall from Berlin, Mary Garden is the most distinguished citizen of a neutral nation at present on the high seas. Miss Garden intends to work as a journalist and file dispatches regularly, which will be another continuous avenue of publicity. All of which helps to sell admissions when the time comes.

Music Aids Maxine Elliott's Acting

Maxine Elliott, the beautiful Goldwyn Pictures' star, is acting before the camera in her first picture to a musical accompaniment. During the taking of all of the emotional scenes in her first screen play a harpist, cellist and violinist have helped create the atmosphere that would surround a woman at the time of some great crisis in her life.

Girls will be—fashionable. In spite of the fact that she is doing some history-making dramatic work in the Goldwyn studios, Mae Marsh finds time to choose a new spring hat. Sure, it looks fine, Mae.

Miss Elliott's first picture is now entering on its fourth week of production under the direction of Allan Dwan. As Mr. Dwan in his previous work has made several big productions in record-breaking time, it is to be assumed that his Goldwyn picture of Miss Elliott will be completed around the middle of March.

Mae Marsh Picture Nearly Finished

The first Mae Marsh picture, written by Irvin S. Cobb and directed by Ralph W. Ince, will be complete by the middle of March and work of assembling and titling it will then get under way.

Both the second and third Mae Marsh pictures have been selected and the work of making the sets and costumes for them started.

Miss Marsh, who paints and sculpts with the trained eye of the artist, has applied her knowledge of art to cookery and the results she has obtained are astonishing. As an evidence of her versatility she has done a symbolic nude figure called "Adoration." This is made of mutton fat with an admixture of wax to stave off the effects of a possible March thaw.

Wishing to give significance to the entry of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation into the life and activities of Fort Lee, an innovation has been adopted by re-naming five ferry boats after the five stars of Goldwyn. Commuters from Jersey towns will soon gaze upon the "Leonia" re-named "Mae Marsh"; the "Edgewater" henceforth will be more picturesque and interesting as the "Maxine Elliott," and the "City of Plainfield" is to be called the "Mary Garden." The "Jane Cowl" and the "Madge Kennedy" will be the boats on which many will travel.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation states that the acquisition of Hugo Ballin, the famous mural decorator and painter, means not only obtaining the assistance of a brilliant artist on its staff of experts, but promises the introduction of a new type of black and white photography in motion pictures.

BIG EXHIBITORS' MEETING

Chicago Branch of M. P. E. L. of America Installs Newly Elected Officers Before Record Gathering —Plans Laid for Big Year

The exhibitors of Chicago are alive. They are not only alive but they know the value of organization.

At a meeting on March 2, with an attendance larger than at any other meeting in the history of the League, with the single exception of the gathering for the recent election, the Chicago Branch of the M. P. E. L. of America installed its newly elected officers and laid the foundation plans for the biggest and best year the local league has ever known. More than 140 members were present.

The following officials were duly installed:

President, Joseph Hopp, of the Ideal Theater Company; vice-president, William E. Heaney, owner of the Virginia and Crawford Theaters; secretary, Sidney Smith, of the Kedzie Amusement Company; treasurer, William J. Sweeney, national secretary of the M. P. E. L.; sergeant-at-arms, William Rohe, of the Ideal Theater Company.

Members of the executive committee: Robert R. Levy, Revelry Theater; Alfred Hamburger, Hamburger Amusement Company; George Hopkinson, Hamlin Theater; Max Schwartz, manager Hoyt Cinematograph Company; M. S. Johnson, former exhibitor; John Frundt, Claremont Theater; M. S. Ludick, a Melrose, Illinois, exhibitor.

President Hopp, after his installation, made the following statement to MOTOGRAPHY:

Every indication points to the biggest and most effective year ahead that the League has ever had. There has been some rumor of some division in the ranks, but there is no division. There is no "other side" now. Everything is in harmony, in good working order, everybody is intensely interested, and we are going to do things.

My policies shall be, it goes without saying, to be on the fair and square with everybody and to work for efficiency and results. I've got some mighty good men to work with me and we are going to do everything we can for the betterment of the business and the Exhibitors' League.

And you can say that the meeting went on record as absolutely opposed to the Guernsey censorship bill which has been recently introduced in the Illinois legislature. It is claimed that this bill will provide a state censor and eliminate the local censor but we don't believe that it will work out that way. We are opposed to censorship of any kind and adopted a resolution to that effect. Censorship is un-American and detrimental to the business.

G. M. Luttrell of Jacksonville, Illinois, president of the State Branch of the M. P. E. L. of America, and W. W. Watts, of Springfield, treasurer of the State League, were present at the installation meeting, and the state executive committee held a conference with the Chicago executive committee regarding the big state meeting to be called for April 6. At that meeting new state officials will be elected and delegates to the coming National Convention in July will be chosen.

Important committees named by President Hopp:

Politieal Action: Fred W. Schaefer, Wm. E. Heaney, Paul Sittner, Harry C. Miller, D. L. Schwartz, Sam Katz, Julius Alcock, Adolph Powell, Walter Johnson.

Deposits: Jos. Trinz, W. E. Burford, Geo. Moore, Andrew Karzas, I. E. Berkson, Sam Gold, Chas. Schaefer.

Neighborhood Allianee: Nathan Ascher, Sam Levin, Mrs. M. McFadden, Chas. Abrams, Harry Lubliner, Jacob Cooper, W. H. Bell, F. S. Seelig, Rudolph VonMeeteren, H. L. Gumbiner, A. W. Wesolow, V. T. Lynch, Arthur Oppenheimer, A. L. Christie.

Membership: Louis Zahler, Geo. V. Booth, John Bobeng, Harry Goldson, Max Jesselson, Harold Hill, F. L. Dittmar, Chas. O'Connor.

Entertainment: J. G. Haag, Fred Hartmann, Abe Balaban, Henry E. Newell, Jos. Pilgrim, E. B. Rose, Con Foster.

Insuranee: F. H. Franke.

Operators: Entire Executive Committee.

League Headquarters: President, Jos. Hopp; treasurer, Wm. Sweeney; secretary, Sidney Smith.

Auditing: Chas. Stuart, A. C. Krebs, Miss Anna Kesner.

The deposits committee has already held a meeting.

BRAND NEW MUTUALS

William Russell in Southern Play Heads Mutual Releases for Week of March 12—Unusual Series Chapters—New Comedies

William Russell gets the spot light in the productions of the Mutual Film Corporation announced for release the week of March 12. "My Fighting Gentleman" is the play in which Mr. Russell is starred. The plot of the story is written around the stirring days of the Reconstruction period of the South. William Russell, as the son of the land owner, takes a prominent part in the regeneration of that part of the South which is his home.

Edward Sloman, who directed the picture, has succeeded in obtaining some very unusual scenes. Prominent among these are the chase through a swamp with bloodhounds on the trail of a fugitive and a glimpse of the main street of a Southern village on election night. Francelia Billington makes her first appearance under the American banner in "My Fighting Gentleman," in which she plays the leading role opposite Mr. Russell.

No. 9 of the "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" series, "Shorty Trails the Moonshiners," will also come to the screen on March 12. The story is laid in the mountains of Kentucky. The moonshiners operate in a roadhouse where their whiskey is concealed in what appear to be gas pipes, and they carry on a big business under a sign which announces that they dispense soda water and soft drinks. But Shorty and Anita manage to bring the moonshiners to justice.

No. 12 of "Perils of Our Girl Reporters"

"Outwitted" is the title of the "Girl Reporter" story to be released this week. The story is a warning to young men on several points. If you want to get married there are lots of easier ways than putting an advertisement for a wife in the newspapers and having all the unmarried females in the country descend upon you.

There might also be a warning found for newspaper women, who think they are perfectly capable of taking care of themselves under all circumstances. If a man is really determined to be married and you are young and pretty, the fact that you are a newspaper woman will not save you when the man decides that he is going to marry you and no one else.

The complications which arise from these incidents make one of the funniest pictures that has been seen on the screen in many a day and yet at the same time there is plenty of dramatic action. Zena Keefe plays Alden, the pretty newspaper reporter, and Earl Metcalf is the young man closely pursued by expectant females.

From Siberia to Sahara Desert

The regular weekly offering of "Mutual Tours Around the World" comes on Tuesday, March 13. A sharp contrast is shown in the scenes depicting Koursk, a Siberian frontier village, and the oasis of Gabes on the edge of the Desert of Sahara.

Wednesday, March 14, brings the Mutual Weekly and "See America First." This week a trip is made up the Mississippi River from New Orleans to Baton Rouge.

On the same reel is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic, animated for the screen by Harry Palmer. It is called "They Say Pigs Is Pigs" and is a picture of the humorous adventures of a string of sausages stolen from a butcher shop by a dog.

George Ovey's Seventy-Third Cub Comedy

The Cub Comedy for Thursday is "Jerry's Triple Alliance." This marks the seventy-third Cub Comedy in which George Ovey has appeared. A number of lions and tigers are numbered among the props in this comedy.

"Reel Life," No. 46, released on this day contains "Making the Cactus Useful," "The Fluid of Life," microscopic studies of blood, "Gold Mining in Alaska," and other interesting items. Then there are two one-reel American dramas, one starring Wallace Reid and Vivian Rich, the other with Edward Coxen.

Lillian Hamilton is featured in the week's Vogue two-reel comedy, "A Matrimonial Shock." The locale is in and about a very exclusive summer resort hotel at which Lillian Hamilton is staying, accompanied by her colored maid. The fun is found in the many complications arising from the checkered love affairs of both Lillian and the maid.

William Russell's new story, "My Fighting Gentleman," out March 12.

"FATTY" COMPLETES TOUR

Roscoe Arbuckle, Big New Paramount Comedian, Is Greeted in New York by a Host of Exhibitors.

(Special to MOTOGRAPHY.)

"Fatty" Arbuckle arrived in New York on March 7, as the final stop on his transcontinental tour from Los Angeles. Mr. Arbuckle was greeted at the depot by a horde of exhibitors and the public who crowded around the exits at Grand Central Station anxious to see the famous "Fatty" in person.

Do you know this little boy? They call him "Fatty" and he works for Mister Paramount.

Arbuckle arrived from Boston on board his private car "Elysian" accompanied by Mrs. Arbuckle and staff of camera men, press men and others. Motion pictures were taken of the crowds at the depot and of Mr. Arbuckle. Prints of this picture were rushed through for distribution to the theaters so that those persons who appeared at the depot could see themselves on the screen at the several theaters. The informal reception at the Grand Central Station was arranged by the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company, distributors of Paramount Pictures in New York State.

A much larger affair was held in Buffalo Sunday and Monday, the Arbuckle party having remained in Buffalo all of Sunday afternoon and Monday, where a body of twelve exhibitors formed a reception committee and greeted the party at the depot. Arbuckle made a quick tour of twenty Buffalo theaters, appearing for ten minutes at each house.

A banquet was held at the Iroquois Hotel for exhibitors and newspapermen, Mr. Arbuckle being the guest of honor. The affair in Buffalo was held under the direction of D. J. Savage, manager of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company's Buffalo office. William L. Sherry, the head of this company, was present for the banquet.

Court's O. K. on Film

"The Sins of the Sons," a Universal production, after running counter to the views of Chicago censors and being forbidden on the screens of the city, was declared a praiseworthy production by Judge Joseph B. David of the superior court. Clergymen, social workers and others witnessed a showing of the film before the court and gave it their approval. The case was appealed and has been twice decided in favor of the producer.

Empire-Mutual Gets Glendale Studios

The Empire All Star Corporation, recently organized by President John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, and Alf Hayman, representative of the Charles Frohman company interests, to produce the stage successes of Charles Frohman with, in so far as possible, the original casts, for release through the Mutual, has acquired studios at Glendale, Long Island, and has installed a technical staff of men of wide experience both in the theater and in the motion picture field.

Frank Beresford, who in addition to many other important engagements was a prominent member of the Maude Adams Company for two seasons, has been engaged as studio manager and technical director. Mr. Beresford has traveled extensively. He is a thorough student of the drama, a connoisseur of art, as well as a trained business executive, and so is exceptionally well fitted for the responsibilities which devolve upon the manager of a large studio force.

Arthur Englander, who has had sixteen years of experience with stock companies besides several long engagements with motion picture companies, has been appointed scenic artist. Arthur Peck, master carpenter of the Metropolitan Opera House for five years, and four years with pictures has been made chief carpenter. Harry Redmond, for ten years building electrician of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City and later associated with Charles Dillingham and other theatrical producers as electrical engineer has been made the Empire's chief electrician. Floor space which will accommodate twelve companies at one time has been provided.

"The Deemster" Sold in New York

"The Deemster" bids fair to prove one of the best and quickest action state rights propositions. Dr. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, the producer, states that he is very much gratified over the interest shown in the picture. Important territory has been taken over, which will be shortly announced. New York state has been purchased by Lewis J. Selznick, who states that he considers "The Deemster" an ideal special feature proposition and will give it a great exploitation in this state. Dr. Shallenberger's plan to help exhibitors in the local exploitation of the picture by placing his publicity department at their command for co-operative work, is attracting not a little attention among territorial magnates and exhibitors.

"A Man and The Woman"

"Nantas," the famous novel written by Emile Zola, is being picturized by Madam Blache, of the U. S. Amusement Corporation, for release on the Art Dramas program, under the name "A Man and The Woman." The change was made because of the prejudice against productions bearing proper names, and also because the original title had no particular meaning except to those who have read the book.

In "Devotion," a five-act Universal photodrama, Irene Hunt plays the lead, an English barmaid.

Fairbanks Returns to Studio Rejoicing

ARLINE PRETTY PLAYS OPPOSITE "DOUG" IN "IN AND OUT"

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, smiling as he sometimes does in the picture just as he is about to commit one more dare-devil deed, paced the floor of the Gene Gauntier studio in New Yorw City. He glanced in the direction of Arline Pretty, the leading lady in his new producing company. The two stood watching the cameraman while he warmed up for the occasion, like a pitcher getting ready for a big game.

"Gee Whiz!" exclaimed the player-producer. "It feels great to be at work again." It was eight weeks since he had been at work in the studio.

Arline Pretty has been selected to appear opposite Mr. Fairbanks in his first Artcraft offering, entitled "In and Out." They are busy with the new picture, John Emerson directing.

With her accustomed poise, Miss Pretty began work in the Gene Gauntier studio, showing not a trace of nervousness. "Doug" betrayed his feeling, however, under the excitement of getting back into the studio.

Fairbanks Says "Watch for It"

"It's been so long since I've been before the camera that I felt just as if I were about to face a first-night after a long lay-off," he remarked. "But it did not take me long to get back into stride again, and if my first Artcraft release doesn't prove the biggest thing I have ever done on the screen, I will—well, just watch for it."

In the part of the sheriff's daughter in "In and Out" Miss Pretty is cast in a role that nicely suits her talents. Her most recent work was evidenced in the new serial which has been widely exploited, "The Secret Kingdom."

Her work with various big producing companies resulted in widespread popularity, incidental to her appearance in such productions as "The Dawn of Tomorrow," "The Man From Home," "Green Stockings," "Beverly of Graustark" and other subjects of similar prominence.

She began her career as an actress six years ago, with the Columbia Players in Washington, D. C., playing ingenue parts and leads. About four years ago she entered the motion picture world.

Majestic Drops Suit Against Emerson

The matter of the temporary injunction restraining John Emerson from acting as director for Mr. Fairbanks under the new arrangements with Artcraft, has been settled out of court, and Mr. Emerson is now again at the helm of the Fairbanks producing staff. The filing of Justice Newburger's order in the county clerk's office, gave the first intimation that the disagreement between the Majestic Company, as plaintiff, and Fairbanks and Emerson, as defendants, had been agreeably settled to all concerned outside of court.

After receiving the motion from both parties, Justice Newburger granted permission to discontinue the action against Emerson, brought by the Majestic Company, without costs to either party, and then vacated and set aside the injunction against Emerson, granted by Justice Hotchkiss.

Fairbanks now has a clear road to go ahead and lick villains, leap over houses and teach the world to grin to his heart's content.

Release "Broadway Jones" March 25

With the staging of several exteriors in and about Times Square last week, George M. Cohan finished his activities in connection with the initial Cohan photoplay to be released by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. The Historical note: On March five, year of 1917, a certain screen actress appeared on the screens of the nation as "A Poor Little Rich Girl." Her name was Mary Pickford and her face was more familiar to the people than that of the president of the United States—Wilson, we think it was.

Douglas Fairbanks is teaching Young America "the smile of the nation." Doug has just begun his first Artcraft play and we're anxious to see it.

work of cutting and assembling the film is now being supervised by Director Joe Kaufman, and it is expected that the entire production will be completed and ready for exhibition this week. It will be released March 25. Preceding the Cohan release, Artcraft offers with Mary

Arline Pretty, who lives up to her name and who is glinting with Doug Fairbanks in his first Artcraft, "In and Out."

Pickford, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," which is just starting its run in the large cities.

At an advance showing of the Mary Pickford photoplay, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," at the Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York, two thousand people including a large representative gathering of the trade, viewed the new Artcraft subject.

Exhibitor Praises New Pickford Film

William Brandt of the Albany Theater, of Brooklyn, in congratulating President Walter E. Greene, of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, praised the picture highly, saying:

I consider the picture by far the greatest thing Miss Pickford has ever appeared in. I expect to hang up a new record for my house with this production. I wish to congratulate Miss Pickford, Artcraft, Mr. Tourneur, and everyone connected with the photoplay.

Representatives of the trade press who were present proclaimed "A Poor Little Rich Girl" a noteworthy achievement.

Miss Pickford, since her arrival in California following the completion of "A Poor Little Rich Girl," has taken over the beautiful estate at Hollywood, California, formerly occupied by Geraldine Farrar during the production of "Joan the Woman."

Love Sticks to Wm. A. Brady

Montagu Love has been re-engaged by William A. Brady for the World Film Corporation for another year, during which his name will be "featured" in the announcements of all photoplays embracing his services. It is understood that Mr. Love's highly developed talents for the screen have been further recognized by Mr. Brady through a material increase in his compensation. The actor has played an unusual variety of roles since joining the World forces a few months ago, embracing villains of foreign courts, wicked Russian chiefs of police destined for merited sudden death at the hands of beautiful vampire ladies, blasé New York rounders slain by street thugs as a just reward for their doings, and numerous other types of the well dressed and mannerly malefactor. The current release, "The Dancer's Peril," with Alice Brady as its star, finds Mr. Love once more personating a tremulous old European scamp, but the backsliding is only temporary, as Mr. Brady has some fine roles in store for his re-engaged player.

OPENS CHICAGO BRANCH

Benjamin Friedman, of Friedman Enterprises, Inc., Will Establish Eastern and Western Offices—Favors Chicago Location

Benjamin Friedman, president of Friedman Enterprises, Inc., having headquarters at Minneapolis, announces the opening of branch offices in Chicago and New York. The date set for the opening of the eastern office was March 5.

Regarding the advantages of having Chicago headquarters for the Friedman Enterprises, Mr. Friedman says:

In my opinion it is but a question of a few years at the longest when Chicago will vie with New York as a film center, especially for pictures of the state-right quality. Friedman Enterprises will certainly have a Chicago branch as soon as our firm can adjust certain plans we have for dividing our operations between Minneapolis, the home office, New York, and the Lake City.

There are so many people in New York, both local and visiting, who want to buy film, that they actually get in each other's way. And in that particular New York is a mecca.

But let a reasonably large group of film men make Chicago their headquarters and the same advantage of buying crowds would obtain. A film man can fairly stand still in one spot in the loop district in Chicago and sell anything that's worth while. Getting to places for appointments, Chicago is almost central for the whole map. And the overhead, the governing factor in all business, is but a trifle in Chicago compared to the high cost of everything in New York. The New York film men will make the Longacre Square real estate men rich in ten years.

Asked as to the returns to date on the advertising his firm has given "A Mormon Maid," being sold on a through state rights basis, Mr. Friedman said:

I never saw anything like it in my experiences. There never were so many state rights investors as now. Our returns show an increase of almost one thousand per cent, some blocks of territory showing an increase as high as eight hundred, and others as high as fourteen hundred.

Maybe it's the "different" subject; maybe there are more Mormons and anti-Mormons than most of us know. Why, even from Utah, Colorado and Idaho, Mormon states, in essence, the bidders have been startlingly large. One thing is certain: a film man may be sure that when he puts an announcement in the film trade paper, a whole lot of people everywhere are going to see it. "A Mormon Maid's" returns prove it.

New Warwick Picture

"The Silent Master" has been chosen as the title for Robert Warwick's second Selznick-Picture offering now nearing completion under the direction of the famous Frenchman, Leonce Perret. This is an adaptation of E. Phillips Oppenheim's bizarre novel of adventure, "The Court of St. Simon."

An extraordinary production may be looked for both because of the unique character of the story and the fact that Director Perret, with 308 French feature productions to his credit, is determined to make his first American picture a real sensation. Harry Rapf, president of the Robert Warwick Film Corporation, gave his new director carte-blanche in the matter of expense with the result that a series of the most magnificent settings ever erected in an American studio have been made for the picture and a truly remarkable cast of distinguished photoplayers was engaged.

Power of Theme Marks Art Dramas Releases

JEAN SOTHERN IN "THE CLOUD"—ANNA NILSSON PICTURE IN APRIL

IN adherance with the announced policies of Art Dramas, Inc., under the administration of the new executive officers recently chosen. the company announces the features of its associated producing companies which will be released during March and April. The titles and stars in the order of the releases are as follows:

"Pride and the Devil," featuring Alma Hanlon, March 1; "The Cloud," featuring Jean Sothern, March 8; "A Man and the Woman," featuring Edith Hallor and Leslie Austin, March 15; "The Law That Failed," featuring Alma Hanlon and Edward Ellis, March 22; "The Dragon Fly," featuring Anna Q. Nilsson, March 29; "Whose Hand?" featuring Alma Hanlon and Edward Ellis, April 5; "The Fraud," featuring Jean Sothern, April 12; "Without the Law," featuring Edith Hallor, April 19; "The Swinging Gates," featuring Anna Q. Nilsson.

"Pride and the Devil," by Lawrence McCloskey, is an Apollo production. Anna Hanlon stars in a part that requires a most exacting characterization.

Jean Sothern in "The Cloud"

"The Cloud," with Jean Sothern, will be released by the Van Dyke Film Corporation. The story tells of the sacrifice a woman makes for the sake of her daughter's well-being.

"A Man and the Woman," produced by the United States Amusement Corporation, the next release, is a picturization of Emile Zola's famous novel "Nantas," which Madam Blaché adapted for the screen. The production features Edith Hallor.

"The Law That Failed," by Louis Reeves Harrison, is an Apollo picture, and is the next release following "A Man and the Woman." Edward Ellis, the noted star from the legitimate stage, makes his debut on the screen in this production, sharing the stellar honors with Alma Hanlon. This picture develops a mystery that is sustained until the end.

"The Dragon Fly," will have an all star cast in support of Miss Nilsson, the leading player. Ashley Miller is the director of the production which was made at the Erbograph studios. Some unusual effects, surrounding a rather common plot, and a surprise ending are the outstanding features of this production.

An Apollo Mystery Story

Another mystery photodrama, "Whose Hand?" featuring Alma Hanlon and Edward Ellis, will be the next Art Drama. The picture is an Apollo production.

The Van Dyke Film Corporation makes the next release, "The Fraud," with Jean Sothern in the leading part. Will S. Davis will also produce this picture, which will be comparable in type to those other Sothern productions which have been an admixture of light comedy situations and heavier drama.

The United States Amusement Corporation makes the next release, "Without the Law," which is being directed by Madam Blanché, Edith Hallor is featured alone in this picture, which describes the lives of two people who live without the pale of man-made laws.

"The Swinging Gates," an Erbograph production, with Anna Q. Nilsson and a strong cast, follows on the Art Drama's program. The story appeared originally as a serial novel in one of the leading fiction magazines and was a "best seller."

Use Motography Cuts Free

MOTOGRAPHY often prints illustrations that would be useful to use on your program cover or in your other advertising matter. If at any time you see a cut in MOTOGRAPHY that you would like to use, just say the word and it will be sent to you, to be returned to us when you have finished with it. But please remember that we must be notified of the cut you wish immediately after you receive the issue in which the cut appears. The half-tones accumulate so rapidly that it is impossible to keep them very long on file.

Watch the pictures in MOTOGRAPHY, and remember this service is absolutely free to you.

K.-E.-S.-E. Feature Every Week

Beginning April 2nd, K.-E.-S.-E. will release a feature every week. Heretofore their releases numbered forty each year with an occasional super-feature. This organization announces that contracts on the new basis will be accepted and sought immediately.

George Kleine, discussing this advanced departure of his organization, dwelt particularly upon the high-class product now being released through K.-E.-S.-E. and remarked incidentally about the enormous increase in expense about to be incurred with the production of these twelve extra features. He said:

We aim to offer exhibitors a service that assures him of being able to present money-making, money-earning pictures every day in the year without a break or skip. An exhibitor, under our plan of increased product, may sign for a year's production and his worry, at least so far as booking features, is at an end for a year, at least.

Exhibitors will quickly realize that under our new plan they will get in our regular service twelve super-features each year or, in other words, we have decided to put twelve super-features at the disposal of exhibitors at regular service prices. There will be nothing under five reels, but if to properly produce a worthy picture it is found desirable to increase the footage, this additional expense will be borne by our manufacturers and not charged to exhibitors.

Quality and consistency will be, as always, dominant factors in K.-E.-S.-E. service. K.-E.-S.-E. service will be synonymous with quality and consistency. An exhibitor, subscribing for K.-E.-S.-E. service under new arrangement, will find that he has a box office attraction every day in the year.

Public Protest Closes Theater

The Regent Theater at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, also known as the Alhambra Theater, is closed today because the city council revoked the Regent's license recently following the display of nude women in posters before the theater and the exhibition of a film which aroused protest from the public and the press. The Milwaukee Journal refused the advertising of the Regent Theater on the picture. The management became involved in a dispute with the newspaper and in reply to assertions that the picture was moral and clean, the newspaper printed a two-column statement denouncing films which cater to prurient, morbid curiosity. The owner of the theater will convert the building into stores, although the property had been leased to other parties. The film was "The Garden of Knowledge," which Chicago and other cities have barred.

Jackie was asked for an unconventional pose and they got it. Miss Saunders will appear in a Mutual series of pictures, the first of which is "Sunny Jane."

About the Girl on the Cover

A series of six five-part productions featuring Jackie Saunders will be released by the Mutual Film Corporation beginning March 26.

This announcecent comes from the Chicago offices of the Mutual Film Corporation where E. D. Horkheimer, the manufacturer controlling the services of Miss Saunders, closed a contract for the distribution of the pictures.

The first release—that scheduled for March 26— is entitled "Sunny Jane." Already completed are two others, "The Checkmate," and "The Wild Cat."

These dramas are of the lighter type, cheerful, sprightly and snappy—vehicles chosen for their atmosphere in the presentation of the graces of Miss Saunders.

I have chosen these plays for Miss Saunders, observed Mr. Horkheimer, with an eye on what the exhibitor seems to need right now. There is a flood of heavy stories, war story pictures, soggy, morbid drama. I have a notion, and a lot of exhibitors agree with me, that the motion picture audience is rather fond of amusement, that the average picture patron goes to the theater to be amused, rather than to be confronted with a problem play and something to worry about.

The plays in which Miss Saunders will be seen in Mutual releases are of the pleasant character, with plenty of thrills to be sure, plenty of stuff for the patron who wants to get out on the edge of the seat and hold his breath—but at the same time nothing morbid and unhealthy in the story presented. The plots stick pretty close to realism, the drama of the life of every day, presented with plenty of pep and color. Jackie Saunders is the healthy type.

I would like, too, to ask the exhibitors' attention for one mighty big and important factor in these Jackie Saunders-Mutual pictures. They are clean. Just as clean as clean can be.

I am no friend of censorship, but I am very much in favor of not giving censorship without going into the mire. Jackie Saunders herself is a good deal of a guaranty of this sort of quality. She knows, and our studio mail out at Long Beach proves, that her biggest following is among the young people, the kids and the adolescents. Youngsters of this age are the cleanest minded folks in the world. Jackie tries to present on the screen the kind of a girl they most admire.

The Jackie Saunders pictures will go out from Mutual with no "self-competition," since the last motion picture featuring Miss Saunders was released about one year ago.

Ince "Cleopatra" Coming

Dorothy Dalton will make her appearance shortly in another alluring "vampire" characterization, when she is presented by Thomas H. Ince as the star of a new Triangle-Kay-Bee play by John Lynch, entitled "The Dark Road." The production is declared to be one of the most elaborate of its kind yet made at the Ince plant.

"The Dark Road" is described as being a "vibrant echo of the song of passion—the song that for centuries has wrought havoc with the ambitions of man." It is a startling story of modern life—of men and women who stumble and fall in the old way—to which the wisdom of centuries offers no solution. It concerns the career of a voluptuous London beauty, who believes herself to be the reincarnation of Cleopatra. In Miss Dalton's support are seen Robert McKim, Jack Livingston, Jack Gilbert, Walt Whitman and Lydia Knott.

NEW PARAMOUNT RELEASES

"Sapho" and "A Prison Without Walls," Five-Reel Offerings of March 12. Several Short Length Features Complete Program

"Sapho," the film version of the famous play, with Pauline Frederick in the title role, will be the chief feature of the Paramount program for the week of March 12. The other feature to be released the same week will be "The Prison Without Walls," in which Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman co-star.

"Sapho" is said to be Miss Frederick's greatest character interpretation since she adopted the screen for her histrionic work, and in the making of this photoplay, Director Hugh Ford carefully avoided the darker side of the tale, which is from one of the best known works of the Famous French author, Alphonse Daudet, and has taken care to introduce a bit of humor to lighten some of the dramatic parts of the picture.

The story is that of Fanny Legrand, daughter of poor people, her early home in the slums of Paris. She attracts the attention of a sculptor and gains fame as the model for his statue, "Sapho." She becomes a much sought-after model and is fascinated by the life of luxury. She is loved by several men, but falls in love only with Jean Gaussin, a student. He turns from her when he learns of her past life weds a little country girl. Sapho, disgusted with her old career, consecrates the rest of her life to noble work.

"The Prison Without Walls" is a Lasky production. The picture was directed by E. Mason Hopper, the scenario written by Beulah Marie Dix from the story by Robert E. MacAlarney. This production gives both Mr. Reid and Miss Stedman a wonderful opportunity for the displaying of their inimitable talents.

The program for this week is surrounded by three short reel features, including the 57th edition of the Paramount-Bray Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, in which there are four unique subjects; the 58th of the series of "Weekly Trips Around the World," personally conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he takes his fellow-journeyers to the Great Glacier in Canada, and a Klever Komedy entitled "Flivvering," in which Victor Moore is starred.

Bobby Bumps in the Pictographs, adopts for himself, a turtle, and furnishes a very good laugh, adding materially to the value of the release in which there is also found a bird-land romance, a remarkable picture of the eternal triangle in bird-land, and which was obtained by accident by the Pictograph camera man.

Mignon Anderson is being featured at Universal City in a five-act photodrama, "The Great Adventure."

The Man Inside the Booth

STORY OF THE BIG OPERATORS' CONVENTION

Written for Motography by E. C. Scobey

THE twenty-third convention of the I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. of the U. S. and Canada, was held at the Hotel Statler from Monday, February 26, to Friday, March 2. It was in every respect the most successful convention ever held by the Alliance.

The preliminary opening of the convention was in charge of International Vice-President Sheck, who welcomed the delegates to Cleveland, and then introduced Brother Thomas Farrell, director of public utilities. The latter welcomed the delegates to Cleveland in the name of Mayor Davis and told them that Cleveland would do all in its power to make their stay in the city pleasant.

Brother Hart, president of the Cleveland Federation of Labor, was then introduced and welcomed the delegates in the name of the organized workers of the city. Vice-President Sheck then introduced Sister Kitty Donnelly, business agent of the Waitresses' Union of Cleveland, who briefly but very pleasantly welcomed the delegates and invited them to a dance given in their honor by the Waitresses' Union at the Druids Hall.

President Shay Speaks

President Chas. C. Shay was then presented by Mr. Sheck. The president outlined what the policies of the organization had been under his leadership and what they would continue to be so long as he was the chief executive officer. He made it plain, indeed, that the criticisms of the seditionists would not deter him from the proper discharge of his duty. President Shay introduced, in order, Lignon Johnson, representing the United Managers' Protective Association; Brother Koveleski, vice-president of the New York State Federation of Labor; Brother Owen Miller, secretary of the American Federation of Musicians; Brother Frank Cambria, president of the United Scenic Artists' Association, and Brother Harry Mountford, president of the "White Rats," and all of them addressed the convention briefly.

After the adjournment of the convention on Monday, the delegates were invited to Nela Park, the engineering department of the National Lamp Works, of the General Electric Company, where a lecture was given on the proper handling of lamps as to effects, and I believe that all the delegates will agree that they spent one of the most interesting two hours and learned more about lighting effects than they had ever spent before. The Nela Park firm evidently believes in the old saying—"Reach a man's heart through his stomach," for they started us out on the inspection of the factory and the lecture with a delicious banquet.

The delegates had the pleasure of seeing pictures projected on the screen and the projector using an 80 amp.-11 volt lamp to furnish the light. The light on the screen was perfect and I know that the other operator delegates as well as myself were more than surprised at the results.

Visit National Carbon Company Plant

On Tuesday evening the delegates were invited to attend a banquet and entertainment at the Moose Hall, given by the Waitresses' Union and the three Local Unions of the I. A., No. 27, No. 160 and No. 435. A first class entertainment was provided along with the banquet and to top it all off the fair waitresses passed the cigars and cigarettes while the delegates watched two six-round boxing matches that were full of action and comedy.

On Friday afternoon the delegates were invited to the plant of the National Carbon Company where they saw the different processes carbon goes through in being manufactured. On the invitation of the Hertner Electric and Manufacturing Company, extended by their secretary and treasurer, D. C. Cookingham, and Brother E. H. Cox of Local No. 160, Brothers C. C. Harden of Los Angeles Local No. 150, and N. Moss of Local No. 194, and the writer had the pleasure of inspecting the above named plant and had all the workings of the double arc trans verter explained and demonstrated to us. We spent several hours at the plant and were then driven to the Hippodrome cafe where our host completed the end of a perfect day with a spread that did justice to the occasion.

On Friday evening the delegates attended the Hippodrome Theater and their delegate badge was their admission at the door, thanks to the house manager.

The several different makes of projection machines were represented at the convention as follows: Simplex—Brother Sam Kaplan, Local No. 306; Power's—Brother Wm. W. Lewis, Local No. 160, and Brother Horn, Local No. 110; Motiograph—J. E. McAuley. The twenty-third convention closed at 5:30 P. M., March 2. The following officers were elected to serve for the next two years:

President—Charles C. Shay.
First vice-president—Rusk, San Francisco.
Second vice-president—Canavan, St. Louis.
Third vice-president—Malloy, Butte.
Fourth vice-president—Green, Chicago.
Fifth vice-president—Crouse, Philadelphia.
Secretary-treasurer—Lemaster.

On account of the rush of business and pleasure while attending the convention the editor was unable to answer any questions for this week's issue, but will be on the job from now on, so come on in with your troubles.

Operators Difficulties Settled

By E. C. Scobey

While attending the convention of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. at Cleveland, I had the pleasure of meeting the delegates representing the Chicago Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 110, who informed me of the victory won by their organization in their jurisdictional dispute between the I. A. T. S. E., the recognized body and the dual organization known as Local No. 157 I. B. of E. W.

It seems that a few months ago the situation of the Moving Picture Machine Operators of Local No. 110 of The I. A. T. S. E. was so grave that the Alliance had to resort to stringent methods so to retain three of its International officers in that city. Some theaters were dynamited and the proceedings of the opposition attained such a gravity that the states attorney of Chicago made several arrests of several members of both the Alliance and its rivals. To impair the prestige of the officials of Local No. 110, it is said a plant of dynamite was made by their opponents to cause the arrests of nine of its executive officers, who were discharged later. Strikes were called in theaters that were building unless the managers of the theaters building employed members of Local No. 157.

So critical became the situation that the executive officials of Local No. 110 appealed to the Chicago Federation of Labor and complained that the ruling of the American Federation of Labor were not being enforced by the central body and especially insisting that an appeal be made by the executive officials of the C. F. of L. to the Building Trades' Council of Chicago.

This complaint was made through the secretary, Edward Nockels, of the C. F. of L. to J. J. Conroy, secretary of the Chicago Building Trades' Council that an enforcement of the following ruling be taken up by the body:

That the claim of the Moving Picture Machine Operators by the Electrical Workers was not well founded and same is denied, and where they are organized that they be turned over to the I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O. and the jurisdiction of operators be given to said Alliance.

The reply from the Building Trades' Council of Chicago was the following:

In the controversy of the Moving Picture Machine Operators the Building Trades Council took unanimous action and instructed its respective trades not to molest or interfere with in any way the Moving Picture Machine Operators, Local No. 110.

This was signed by John J. Conroy, secretary, and countersigned by President Simon O'Donnell.

Later the officials of Local No. 110 pleaded their cause before the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Chicago, submitting the decisions of every governing labor body in the country and basing the proof of their rights to be weighed in the balance of the scales of justice to the exhibitor. Joseph Hopp, the newly elected president of the Exhibitors' League, submitted this vital question to his executive committee and after weeks of careful deliberation, resolved that the Exhibitors' League of Chicago instruct its members that on and after March 2, 1917, operators employed in theaters should be members of Local No. 110 of The I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O.

This is the end of the jurisdictional dispute which has existed in Chicago for the past three and one-half years.

Officials of Local No. 110 to show their magnamity of principle, invited members of the opposition, and up to date have received sixty-eight applicants of No. 157 I. B. of E. W. into their ranks. Every circuit of theaters in Chicago and its vicinity are now being operated by members of The I. A. T. S. E. Local No. 110.

So complete has been the victory, that they have taken over the operation of fifty-eight theaters in the past twenty-one days.

The members of Local No. 110, I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O., desire at this writing to thank again the Ascher Brothers, Jones, Linick & Shaefer; Lubliner and Trintz; Moir & Rice of the Moir Circuit for their material aid in Local No 110's success.

New Essanay Drama

March 19 will see the release of "Satan's Private Door," (formerly announced as "Truth Triumphant"), Essanay's presentation showing Mary Charleson as the feature for the first time under that organization's banner. The Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service is releasing the film.

"Satan's Private Door" marks also the first appearance in Essanay pictures of Webster Campbell, the newest addition to the Chicago firm's staff of stars. Mr. Campbell has been in photoplays for the past three years with different companies—and his work promises him a permanent position among the leading photoplay stars.

Le Guere of McClure

George Le Guere, one of the seven stars of the Seven Deadly Sins, the McClure series of five-reel features, studied to be a writer.

He was born in New Orleans. He attended Georgetown University, at Washington, D. C., and was graduated at the age of twenty. He was prominent in literary work at college, being editor of the Georgetown College Journal.

George Le Guere, McClure Star.

Mr. Le Guere became ambitious to go on the stage. He went to work in a railroad office, trying to forget his histrionic ambitions, but finally went to New York, where he obtained a part in Blanch Walsh's company.

After an engagement with "Strongheart," he became leading man in "Under Southern Skies," with Henry Walthall as the heavy. Since then Mr. Le Guere has created twelve parts on Broadway. He was with William Hodge in "The Man from Home," playing the part of the American boy 830 times. He was in "Rebellion" with Gertrude Elliott, in "Mr. Woo," with Walker Whiteside, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" with Eleanor Robson and other equally popular plays. Last season he played "Gerald" with Margaret Anglin and Holbrook Blinn, in "A Woman of No Importance."

Mr. Le Guere has been very successful in pictures. He was featured in dramas produced by Pathe, Famous Players, Kleine, Essanay, Universal and Metro. In the Seven Deadly Sins, Mr. Le Guere is the young lover who protects Shirley Mason in her seven five-reel battles with temptation.

New Universal Serial

During the week of March 12 the Universal Film Manufacturing Company will release the new serial, "The Voice on the Wire," founded on the novel of the same title by Eustace Hale Ball. The screen story was written by Grubb Alexander and the production was directed by Stuart Paton, director of the Universal's great undersea drama, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." The leading roles are played by Neva Gerber and Ben Wilson.

Mystery is the dominant note of this new serial, and, it is said, not since the days of Edgar Allan Poe has there been written a more baffling story of crime.

Director Raymond Wells is filming at Universal City a five-act comedy-drama, "Treachery and Perfumery."

ONE FEATURE A MONTH

Ultra Pictures Corporation to Release Remarkable Productions of from Six to Eight Reels—"Woman Who Dared" Is First

The latest innovation by any distributing company and one which should prove of inestimable value to exchanges and exhibitors has just been made by A. J. Cobe, president of the Ultra Pictures Corporation. The Ultra will release one big subject about once a month beginning with the California production of "The Woman Who Dared," featuring Beatriz Michelena. These subjects will run all the way from six to eight reels in length and will be all high grade productions.

Inasmuch as arrangements are practically completed with the leading exchanges throughout the country, the advertising which the Ultra will do, will not be for the purpose of selling territory to exchanges but for the benefit of the exchanges who are handling Ultra releases.

The average distributor advertises his picture until most of the territory is sold, then he suddenly stops. The consequence is that the exchanges get the picture and a week or two later, sometimes the same week, the advertising stops. The exhibitor forgets about it and it is looked upon as ancient whereas in reality it is only a few weeks old.

Runs Four Months' Advertising Campaign

The Ultra contemplates running advertisements continuously for four months on each and every picture thus giving the exchange man and exhibitor the benefit of continuous advertising campaign not only before he receives the production but for some time after. This is something unusual in the trade.

Mr. Cobe knows what the exchanges want throughout the country and he will put out the productions at such prices as will guarantee the exchange man a consistent margin of profit. In other words he will attempt to get the picture business down to a regular business proposition.

Ann Murdock in "Outcast"

"Outcast" has been chosen as the first play for Ann Murdock, under her contract with the Empire All Star Corporation, the purpose of which is to produce Charles Frohman stage successes with Frohman casts into motion pictures for release through the Mutual Film Corporation.

Miss Murdock, who was the first Frohman star to have been signed by the Empire All Star Corporation and by President John R. Freuler of the Mutual, has already started work on this production at the recently acquired Empire-Mutual studios at Glendale, Long Island. This begins the Empire All Star Corporation's actual producing activities. Although "Outcast" will serve as Miss Murdock's first Empire-Mutual vehicle, it will not introduce the charming star to Mutual audiences. Her first appearance in productions released by the Mutual was in "Where Love Is," a drama portraying artistic life which recently went out to the public.

"Outcast" is the work of Hubert Henry Davies, the noted English playwright, whose plays, "Cousin Kate" and "The Mollusc," are perhaps better known to American audiences than any of his other contributions to literature and the drama. It will be remembered by playgoers as the brilliant vehicle for Elsie Ferguson at the Lyceum theater in New York City during the entire season of 1914-1915, and as an exceptionally popular road attraction when it toured the country the following year.

Home Town in Mary Miles' Next

James Kirkwood, author and director of the newest Mary Miles Minter production for Mutual, "Environment," is interpolating an abundance of human interest atmosphere.

"Environment" is a New England romance, and one street scene with the little village church at the end looks as if it had been lifted bodily from the green hills of New Hampshire.

There is also some clever "small town stuff" introduced in views of a street merchant selling magic soap and proving its value by shampooing the head of a street urchin for the benefit of his prospective buyers. There is also a friendly game of "pitchin' horseshoes" between the village champion and his rival, and the funny capers of the village "cut-up" will furnish many a laugh.

Mary Miles Minter and George Fischer in "Environment," her next Mutual Star production.

New England was constructed near the American studios in Santa Barbara for the coming Mary Miles Minter Mutual.

Fifteen Brady-Mades Ready

The World Film Corporation now has fifteen Brady-Made motion pictures completed and ready for release upon a few hours' notice if necessary. In the regular line the last of these photoplays will not reach the public until June 11, nearly four months hence.

The list includes "The Dancer's Peril," with Alice Brady as its star and Alexis Kosloff's Russian corps de ballet as a novel feature; "The Social Leper," of which Carlyle Blackwell is the star, while June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley and Arthur Ashley are seen in the other important release; "As Man Made Her," with Gail Kane starred and Edward Langford, Frank Mills and Gerda Holmes featured; "The House Cat," starring Ethel Clayton and featuring Rockcliffe Fellowes; "Forget-Me-Not," with Kitty Gordon as star and Montagu Love as featured player; "Maternity," starring Alice Brady; "The Page Mystery," with Carlyle Blackwell in the star personation and June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in the leading parts; "The Family Honor," starring Robert Warwick and providing strong roles for June Elvidge and Henry Hull; "The Wit of a Woman," with Muriel Ostriche as the star, assisted by Arthur Ashley, Johnny Hines and Alex Francis; Alice Brady in "Darkest Russia"; Carlyle Blackwell, associated with June Elvidge in "The Price of Pride"; Robert Warwick and Gail Kane in "The Moral Code," and Ethel Clayton and Montague Love in "Pretty Polly Pollard."

The names of several of these pictures will be changed before final release, in accord with Mr. Brady's frequently exercised practice of making leisurely substitutions of title when he feels that such a course will be of benefit.

This is one of the reasons why director general William A. Brady some months ago began pushing the resources of the World Film's Peerless studio in Fort Lee to their utmost, at one time having as many as five productions simultaneously under way inside the spacious structure.

"We will do our hurrying at the start," said Mr. Brady in explaining the drive to some of his surprised associates. "This will enable us to take our time in putting on the finishing touches—and that is the spot for deliberation of movement.

"I attribute a very considerable portion of the confidence which has been inspired in World Pictures, on the part of exhibitors and the public, to the fact that they are made sufficiently far ahead to permit us to add essential retouching before release—even to side-track a play if it is not quite ready when its date of issue comes in sight, and slip another picture into its place for the time being. We are driving for dependable pictures, and this is a very important part of the process of making them."

One of the men on the other side of the river is an enemy of Ben, a character in the first Edgar Lewis production, which is in the making. "Safety First" is not Ben's reason for being on the opposite side of the stream. It is his first sight of the enemy. They get together later.

TWENTY THOUSAND FEET A DAY

Mutual Shooting Large Quantities of Film Full of Powerful Dramatic Productions in Many Studios Throughout the Producing Centers

Approximately 20,000 feet of negative a day is being taken in the nine picture studios contributing to the Mutual Film Corporation's releasing schedule now, and productions announced and in the planning will shortly bring this total up to nearly 30,000 feet.

A lucky total of thirteen stars is now before Mutual cameras, in a range of vehicles from slap-stick to heavy drama.

The footage total presented here is perhaps a trifle conservative in view of the fact that on a number of especially expensive productions as many as three cameras are constantly in service—as for instance at the Chaplin studios where "A," "B," and "C" negatives are made on every scene.

Three Stars Busy at American

Three stars are working busily at the American studio in Santa Barbara—Mary Miles Minter, William Russell and Gail Kane.

Mary Miles Minter is the central figure of a New England romance entitled "Environment," being woven and staged by her director, James Kirkwood. George Fischer who was such an able support to Miss Minter in her last production, "The Gentle Intruder," is again playing with the little star in "Environment."

William Russel's vehicle is "High Play," written by Julius Grinnell Furthmann. Francelia Billington is Mr. Russell's leading lady, and Edward Sloman, the director, has chosen a strong cast to assist them.

Gail Kane, the newest American-Mutual star, is working on her first production for Mutual release. This play, entitled "Whose Wife?" was written by Cecil Henry Bullivant. Miss Kane is directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

Broadway Favorites Working

Two Broadway favorites, Nance O'Neil and Marjorie Rambeau, are dividing their time between the speaking stage and the Frank Powell studios. Nance O'Neil has completed "Mrs. Balfame," the first of Gertrude Atherton's novels to come to the screen, and is now working on "Hedda Gabler," a film version of Ibsen's great dramatic success. "Hedda Gabler" was one of Miss O'Neil's most famous roles on the speaking stage and a part she has played over seven hundred times.

Marjorie Rambeau's first Mutual subject, "The Greater Woman," has already been released, the second, "Motherhood," has been completed, and she is now working on the third, "The Debt."

Frank Powell is directing both Miss O'Neil and Miss Rambeau.

At the Pollard studio Harry Pollard is completing the direction of "The Devil's Assistant," the fourth of the Margarita Fischer Series of Mutual Star Production.

Charlie Chaplin is manufacturing many more hearty laughs at the Lone Star studio. His next subject will be "The Cure."

At the Signal studio J. P. McGowan is directing Helen Holmes in dare devil feats and seeing that plenty of thrills of various sorts are being put into "The Railroad Raiders," a fifteen chapter photo-novel which will be released in weekly installments of two reels each.

Crane Wilbur, at the Horsley Studio is just starting work on "The Eye of Envy," the fourth of the six Crane Wilbur features Horsley will release through Mutual.

In another part of the same studio George Ovey is producing the seventy-third Cub Comedy in which he has been featured. The Monogram studio is given over to Shorty Hamilton and Yerza Dayne. The Vogue studio is always busy with its weekly two real comedy release with Ben Turpin as the central beauty.

Edna Goodrich, who but recently signed up with Mutual, has returned to the east where a studio for her use will soon be in working order.

The Gaumont forces are not confined to the studio but are scattered all over the world gathering material for the four weekly topical releases, "Mutual Tours Around the World," "Mutual Weekly," "See America First," and "Reel Life."

"THE EASIEST WAY"

Clara Kimball Young as Mildred Gower in "The Price She Paid" and as Laura Murdock in New Play Achieves Character Contrasts

The next Selznick-Picture featuring Clara Kimball Young, bearing the title "The Easiest Way," places her in a role that contrasts in a striking way with the character which she depicts in the feature just released, "The Price She Paid." The "way" in question is the solution of the problems facing a woman who has to make her own way in the world.

David Graham Phillips, in "The Price She Paid," shows how his heroine built up a splendid character and attained success through turning her back upon luxury and ease, and steeling herself to a routine of discipline and privation. Eugene Walter's heroine, Laura Murdock, takes what appears, until to the very end of the story, to be "the easiest way." The principal character in "The Price She Paid," Mildred Gower, is similarly tempted, but loses her position rather than submit. The contrast between the two roles continues throughout the stories.

Panorama of Paris in Studio

An extraordinary setting was erected recently in the Selznick Studios in the Bronx by Director Leonce Perrett for Robert Warwick's second Selznick-Picture production, "The Silent Master," adapted from the unusual novel, "The Court of St. Simon," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

The scene occupies the entire floor of the glass-roofed studio and represents a street in the Montmartre section of Paris with a full panorama of the city in the background. The locale of the story is partly in France and partly in America.

One unique feature of the story is that it necessitates the employment of two leading women in the support of Robert Warwick, one being Anna Little and the other a new comer to the screen, Olive Tell, one of New York's best known dramatic artists and considered by some critics to be the most beautiful woman on the American stage.

Pathe Adopts New Policy

Only actors and actresses who have been established as "box office stars" will be featured in the future on Pathe's Gold Rooster and Serial programs. Rumors which have been in circulation for some time past to the effect that Pathe was negotiating with a number of the important stars were partially confirmed this week by the announcement of J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager, that several important additions will be made to the list of permanent stars in the near future.

The stars appearing at the present time on Pathe's program are: Pearl White, Mollie King, Gladys Hulette, Florence LaBadie, Baby Marie Osborne, better known as Little Mary Sunshine; Frederick Warde, Harold Lloyd (Lonesome Luke). The latest recruit is Creighton Hale, who won fame as one of the leading juvenile actors of the day in "The Exploits of Elaine" and "The Iron Claw." Mr. Hale has just been signed by the Astra for a long term.

Film Norma Talmadge Play in South

Norma Talmadge has gone to Palm Beach and Jacksonville, Florida, to start work on her new picture, "Poppy." She has finished her second picture, produced by Joseph M. Schenck, "The Law of Compensation," and started in immediately on the new one.

Edward Jose, veteran director, has been engaged by Mr. Schenck to direct Miss Talmadge in "Poppy." He left with the star, and a big supporting company, numbering 24 people, in two special cars. Frederick Perry, late star of "On Trial," on the speaking stage, and Eugene O'Brien, of her supporting cast, and her husband, Joseph M. Schenck, were also in the party. Scenes will be taken at Jacksonville, and Miss Talmadge will spend two weeks at Palm Beach, taking scenes on the beach and at the great hotels, the first time a picture company has ever used the world famous resort as a background for motion picture production. Hitherto the enormous cost of keeping a company at Palm Beach has prevented companies from using it for film purposes.

"The Maelstrom" Coming

Director Paul Scardon has begun work on "The Maelstrom," a highly dramatic picture version of Frank Froest's famous book of the same name, at the Brooklyn studios of the Vitagraph company. Earle Williams and

This is a real auld-sod Wyoming farmer at home. At least it's hard to believe otherwise. That's how convincing a character man is J. J. Dowling, of Ince Triangle.

Dorothy Kelly are co-starred in this picture, with a splendid supporting cast of popular Vitagraphers.

In the cast of "The Maelstrom," which is a modern sociological play, John Robertson, as the chief of detectives, plays the leading male role in Mr. Williams' support. Robert Gaillard, Denton Vane, Bernard Seigel, Daniel Hayes and Templer Saxe are the other prominent Vitagraph actors in the play. Julia Swayne Gordon, as Gwennie Lyne, an international crook, has a strong part in support of Miss Kelly's role of Peggy Greye-Stratton.

Victor Smith, studio manager of the Vitagraph company, has provided some exceptional settings for "The Maelstrom." He worked like a Trojan to complete the office sets which mark some of the atmosphere of Mr. Williams' work as Jimmie Hallet. Even Director Scardon admitted the set was all that could be desired. Which is praise from Sir Hubert.

Films for Catholic Church

Norman W. McLeod, president of the Unique Film Corporation, 1402 Broadway, New York, is authority for the announcement that his concern is starting productions of a series to be called the "Catholic Truth Films." Signor Camiller, chief director, formerly of the Italia Films, Turin, Italy, produced among other spectacles "The Fall of Rome" and "La Tosca," and has for years been closely associated with Catholic authorities at the Vatican and throughout Italy, where he has arranged many religious pageants.

Mr. McLeod states that he has been working on the Catholic film plan for many weeks, and has received most enthusiastic support from leading ecclesiastical authorities. The first production will be called "A Dream of Empire," based on happenings between the Emperor Napoleon and Pope Pius VII. As will be the rule in all these Catholic productions, the author is a prelate—His Lordship, the Right Reverend Bishop Joseph G. Anderson, auxiliary to His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, who will personally supervise the details of ceremonials, pageantry and costuming of the production. As will be the case in each of the series, the story is one with strong moral features and inspirational in nature.

The second production will be an eight-reeler, to be called "Christianity." The author is the Right Reverend Monsignor Francis C. Kelley, D. D., L. L. D., president of the Catholic Church Extension Society of the United States of America, and editor of Extension Magazine, which has half a million Catholic readers.

The distribution of the films will be always in connection with Catholic churches in each diocese, and the larger territories will be handled directly by the corporation as will some of the foreign countries. When states rights are sold, the various church arrangements entered into for exhibition will be turned over as part of the rights buyer's contract.

All subsequent films, during production, will in addition to the prelate authors' assistance, be directly supervised by an officially appointed censor, under the control of the archdiocese of New York. Approval of the plan for the Catholic Truth Films, and official censoring arrangements, were made with His Lordship, Bishop Hayes, auxiliary to His Eminence, John, Cardinal Farley, and the Very Reverend Monsignor Dunn, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of New York and head of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, through the good offices of Monsignor Kelley of the Chicago Archdiocese.

Chaplin in "The Cure"

The title of Charles Chaplin's next production, which is No. 10 of the series he is producing for Mutual, was announced as "The Health Resort." The title has been changed to "The Cure."

Exhibitors Congratulate Mutual

L. Coyle, manager King George Theater, St. Catherines, writes: "'A Dream or Two Ago' is a fine picture. We had another record house on Friday and Saturday. Let me say that the Mutual are to be congratulated on the class of pictures they are putting out."

John C. Green, Temple Theater, Galt, Ontario, writes: "'A Lass of the Lumberlands' is the best serial the Mutual have released yet."

Selig Gets "Caleb Conover"

William N. Selig has secured the rights for the picturization of the famous stage play and novel by Albert Payson Terhune, "Caleb Conover." Production will be started immediately at the Selig studios, Los Angeles. George Fawcett, who originated the title roll and starred for a number of seasons in the stage version, will again be seen as the iron-willed Caleb, whose rise from a poor boy to the owner of a huge railroad system and the arbiter of the fortunes of so many of his fellow creatures is so graphically related in the story. Others who will be seen to splendid advantage besides George Fawcett are Tom Santschi, Fritzi Brunette, Eugenie Besserer and Harry Lonsdale.

Contest for New Players

Frank Powell, director general of the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, has inaugurated a Screen Opportunity contest with Picture Play Magazine. This contest, which is open to residents of the United States and the Dominion of Canada, will afford opportunities for twelve aspirants for screen honors to appear before the camera under Mr. Powell's direction in real parts—not merely as extras—in support of such noted stars as Marjorie Rambeau and Nance O'Neil. The pictures in which the winners of this Screen Opportunity Contest will appear, will be distributed by the Mutual Film Corporation.

The contestants are to be judged for their photographic possibilities as shown by pictures submitted and for their general fitness for motion picture acting, as described by themselves in a two hundred word letter. Full details of the conditions governing this Screen Opportunity contest are to be found in Picture Play Magazine now on the news stands. The contest is now open; it will close on May 20.

Association "Love" Reel Out Soon

The first completed reel of the 1917 edition of the "Review of the Great Motion Pictures of All Time," which will be issued shortly by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, has been shown to President William A. Brady and a selected party at the projection room of the World Film Corporation. This was President Brady's first screening of the Review, the reel which he saw being that on "How the Great Stars Make Love."

In this, the first reel of the series of five, there are nearly twenty scenes, from different film plays with different stars, from Mary Pickford down to the tragic vampires. It starts with a "designing cupid" sharpening his arrows at an old-fashioned grindstone, and ends with a true cooling of Love's ardor when a big wave envelops a lovely embrace on a rocky promotory—for which mishap the man, as ever, is roundly scolded.

A partial assembly of the reel on Great Fights of the Films," was also run off. The other three reels, "With the Funny Stars," "Daredevil Stunts of the Films," and "Great Moments in Great Plays," are being assembled, and the whole series will be ready for states rights purchasers to examine within a fortnight.

"Collaboration"

By Edward Sloman

Director American-Mutual Studios.

Not the author alone, or the director alone, but a friendly collaboration of the two brings the best results in the finished production, is my firm conviction. The author has a right to resent it if his photoplay is so entirely changed that he does not recognize his own brain child on the screen, but at the same time most writers do not fully understand dramatic values, neither do they fully appreciate the limitations of the presentation of ideas in photoplays.

The directors, however, are very prone to think mainly of the purely dramatic situations and forget the thought underlying those situations. It is only fair, therefore, that the director should first read the manuscript and then consult with the author and thoroughly discuss the logic of the thought and action and see if that thought can be properly transmitted to the screen so that the audiences can follow both the thought and action clearly.

The objection to this method is that the director may be in one part of the country and the author in another. In this case the director should be allowed to read the original synopsis as well as the continuity handed him, so that the continuity writer cannot wholly depart from the original—which is so often done. Many a good theme has been entirely spoiled this way, and a thoroughly good story turned into an ordinary motion picture, written from the continuity writer's angle.

The hard feelings against the directors on the part of writers, and the constant objections by the director against the dearth of good ideas are due to the fact that so many stories are "rehashed" in the scenario department. I have always found that the author is only too glad to discuss his play with the director, for he knows the result is for the benefit of the production.

Edward Sloman, capable Mutual-American director.

More co-operation is necessary between the director and the author as well as more confidence between the director and his artists. An experienced artist will often give valuable suggestions and the director who refuses tc allow "an artist to dictate to him" (as so many put it) is oftentimes suffering from too much application of the personal pronoun.

In other words, more co-operation between the makers of the photoplay will help the finished product, and this applies to the invaluable cameraman, without whose help no good motion picture is possible.

"The Black Stork" Selling

H. E. Smith of Detroit has purchased the exclusive rights to market "The Black Stork," the eugenic photoplay in which Dr. Harry J. Haiselden is the star, in the state of Ohio for a period of twenty-four weeks. Mr. Smith paid to the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, which owns the picture, $20,000 for the Ohio privilege. In discussing his purchase Mr. Smith said:

I expect to burn up the state of Ohio with this picture, and if I do break the record of the state for long runs I will be very much surprised. I will open within thirty days and will start with an intensified newspaper and advertising campaign.

The picture will be shown for a quarter—nothing less. And my idea is that it will just pack them in at this price.

While my agreement calls for but a twenty-four-week run on one print, I expect to have four or five working almost immediately. If the picture goes as I feel it will, I certainly will make every effort to get the perpetual rights for Ohio on it.

The Sheriott Pictures Corporation expects to announce within the next few days the name of the purchaser of the state rights for Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Wisconsin. Through an error the Chicago daily papers made the announcement that Zambreno and Dunn of the Unity Photoplays Company, had acquired these states. The announcement was premature.

One of the largest theatrical booking circuits in the country has made an effort to purchase the rights for the entire country on the picture but Manager Mazur, of the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, rejected the offer owing to the short booking dates. The schedule, as outlined, provided for a one day showing in some cities where the picture will pack a good sized house for several weeks.

Seven Stars in "Seventh Sin"

Because of the enormous size of the production, McClure Pictures has decided to release "The Seventh Sin," last of Seven Deadly Sins, the series of features, in seven reels instead of five.

Ann Murdock, Holbrook Blinn, Nance O'Neill, Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, H. B. Warner and George Le Guere are presented in this photo-spectacle which tells a complete story of a young's girl's life, from girlhood to motherhood. No producer ever before presented so many big stars in one play.

The story of "The Seventh Sin" is a mystery and the secret will be kept until the first showing of the drama. McClure Pictures divulge only the fact that it is the biggest of all Seven Deadly Sins and brings the series to an end with a feature of tremendous drawing power and appeal.

The sin which is the theme of "The Seventh Sin" is the one described by Dante as the greatest of all sins, the one upon which all other sins feed. Through her six battles with the other sins Shirley Mason is strengthened for her victory over the greatest sin of all.

McClure Pictures promised exhibitors that each of Seven Deadly Sins would be better than the one before and it is in carrying out this promise that "The Seventh Sin" is to present seven stars in seven reels.

Dustin Farnum in Fox Play

Dustin Farnum's first picture since the famous star of stage and screen enrolled under the William Fox standard, will be released for the week of March 26.

Probably the most appealing character that Mr. Farnum has presented in his entire photoplay career is "Roaring Bill" Wagstaff, the hero of "North of Fifty-Three," his premiere Fox feature.

Bertrand W. Sinclair's romantic novel of the great northwest has gained, not lost, through being put into the films. The snowy landscapes around Truckee, Cal., never showed to better advantage than in this screen drama. Homer Scott was the photographer in charge.

Chief in support of Mr. Farnum is the petite Winifred Kingston, who also makes her debut as a Fox player. In the supporting cast are William Conklin, Edward Alexander, Rex Downs, Frank Lanning and Jode Mullally.

The story tells how "Roaring Bill" clears away the gossip concerning the girl from the East whom he has married, and of his winning fight to gain her love.

McClure Head Sees Exhibitors

Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures, producer of "Seven Deadly Sins," has gone to Los Angeles, where he will investigate motion picture conditions. On his tour he will stop in many cities to discuss motion picture conditions with exhibitors. Mr. Collins says:

My trip will be broken both going and coming by stops in various cities where I am making appointments with exhibitors who are showing "Seven Deadly Sins." I want to meet as many as possible of the exhibitors who have booked it.

I want to find out just what the exhibitor wants and how business is with him, and why. I know that in "Seven Deadly Sins" we have satisfied every man who booked it but I want to learn whether the exhibitors can suggest any ways in which we can improve our system of selling and our system of producing when we make our next series. We want to more than satisfy them.

Mr. Collins is rapidly completing his plans for the next McClure series of five-reel features, which will be ready for release when "Seven Deadly Sins" finishes its run. If conditions are favorable for opening a studio in Los Angeles, he will remain there until work is under way.

"The Birth of a Race"

The late Booker T. Washington before his death became interested in the possibilities of motion pictures as a medium for portraying in a sympathetic, authentic, effective manner, the race story of the negro. His idea has been the starting point for a more comprehensive one, and it is proposed to construct a drama in the spirit of the original idea of Mr. Washington which will embrace the other races and peoples of the North American continent, with the purpose of tracing all the factors in the life of America which have contributed to making the American people almost a race in themselves apart from the many races of their parentage.

The Birth of a Race Photoplay Corporation, with offices in Chicago, at 29 South La Salle street, is arranging for the production of a feature to have the name, "The Birth of a Race." Edwin L. Barker, formerly associated with the Essanay Film Company and the Kinemacolor Company, is the president and organizer of the new concern. Announcement is made that the production will be filmed by the Selig Polyscope Company. The Chicago brokerage firm of Giles P. Corey and Company is associated with Mr. Barker in the enterprise.

Another Musty Suffer Series

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay announce that beginning Saturday, March 24, a third series of ten pictures, one reel each, "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," will be offered the trade. Harry Watson, Jr., is featured in these comedies, which, since George Kleine first put them on the market almost two years ago, have been in constant demand. These pictures are released one each week.

The entertainment in "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" lies chiefly in the fact that Watson has an original film mannerism that defies duplication and is of a character that provides amusement for adults as well as juveniles. Watson, in "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," has splendid support in Della Connor, H. H. McCollum, Maxfield Moree, Dan Crimmins of Crimmins & Gore, and Wm. Thomas, Jr.

Widespread Advertising Campaign

In connection with the issuance of "The Inspirations of Harry Larrabee," the initial offering of the General Film Company's new Fortune Photoplays, the first weekly four-reel feature service by the way, the most comprehensive advertising campaign through the media of magazines will be inaugurated in connection with an aggressive and widely conducted newspaper propaganda. The General Film Company has secured the screen rights past, present and future to all of the stories published in Street & Smith's famous magazines, among them being novels and stories that have caused international comment and aroused interest everywhere. Each one of the Street & Smith publications will carry weekly or monthly, as the case may be, a page devoted to the Fortune Photoplays with results that cannot help but make this series of four-reel features one of the biggest things that has come the exhibitors' way for a long time.

Director Jack Conway is directing and playing the lead in "The Little Belgian," written by H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal Company.

Piquant Doris Kenyon in the new Pathe feature, "The Empress."

Alice Joyce in New Drama

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey are co-starred in a thrilling new drama written especially for them by Perry N. Vekroff. "The Third Party," the very descriptive title Mr. Vekroff has given his story, is now in course of production at the Brooklyn studios of the Vitagraph company. Mr. Vekroff is directing the production.

Mary Maurice and William Dunn, who was seen to splendid advantage in "The Secret Kingdom," the recent Vitagraph serial, have prominent parts in the new Alice Joyce-Harry Morey production. It is a small-cast picture, with the action involving, mostly, four principals played by the actors named.

"The Third Party" is Miss Joyce's first picture since her little vacation to Palm Beach, which followed a year of extremely hard work in "Womanhood, the Glory of the Nation" and "Within the Law," special features, neither as yet released, and in "Whom the Gods Destroy" and "The Courage of Silence," both of them Blue Ribbon features.

Unusual Moss Feature Coming

"In the Hands of the Law," which B. S. Moss presents as a timely story of circumstantial evidence, dealing with the subject from a new angle, and without the veil of propaganda, is now complete in five reels, with Lois Meredith as one of the stars, and ready for release on Moss's favorite territorial plan.

The story of "In the Hands of the Law" visualizes the merciless inner workings of the present-day criminal court with unhesitating pointedness and possesses a love story of more than conventional interest, involving complications in which the heroine convicts the hero on circumstantial evidence, brought out in new and unexpected treatment.

"In the Hands of the Law" will present Lois Meredith for the first time as a Moss star, after her successes in Pathe, Mutual and Metro productions, and she will be supported in part by such well known favorites as Eugene Strong, Lucille Dorrington, Arthur Morrison, George Moss, Baby Lorna Volare, and Henry King. It took no less than three months to complete this film, and "care" was the byword of Director Ben Goetz.

Theaters After Blue Ribbons

J. S. Hebrew, manager of the Philadelphia branch of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has closed contracts with six out of the eleven Atlantic City theaters which are open, whereby Greater Vitagraph features will now be shown in those houses.

At the present time the Cort, Colonial, Virginian, Bijou, Criterion, Royal, Cozy, Central, Liberty, Park and City Square are the only Atlantic City theaters running pictures. Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features are now the chief attraction in six of these, the Criterion, Cort, City Square, Royal, Central and Liberty.

"Glory" Special Unity Release

As a special feature to inaugurate its new policy of offering to its exchanges at least one special feature per month, Unity will release during the early part of the year a most attractive drama, under the title of "Glory," starring the charming Juanita Hansen and the well-known comedians, Kolb and Dill. Miss Hansen plays the delightful role of a young girl who has the entire Western village Glory as her parents.

H. B. Warner of McClures

H. B. Warner, famous for his portrayal of "Jimmy Valentine" in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and other roles just as popular, is to be seen as the star in "Wrath," one of McClure Pictures' "Seven Deadly Sins."

H. B. Warner, born in England, now with McClure's.

Mr. Warner, born in England, is a son of Charles Warner, the wonderful artist who toured the United States in that most successful play "Drink."

H. B. Warner grew up in the atmosphere of the stage and first appeared with his father in "The Streets of London." After making a name for himself in England, Mr. Warner came to this country in 1906. In New York he appeared in "Nurse Marjorie," and "The Battle" before he created the part in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" that made him a genuine star. After appearing in "The Ghost Breaker," Mr. Warner went into motion pictures and quickly became one of the most popular Triangle stars.

He has been starring in such photoplays as "The Raiders," "The Ghost Breaker," "The Beggar of Cawnpore," "Shell Forty-Three," "The Market of Vain Desire" and "The Vagabond Prince."

In "Wrath," Mr. Warner plays a dual role and makes entirely convincing double exposure scenes, in which he appears talking to himself. Double exposure tests an actor as no other part of motion picture work and Mr. Warner's capabilities make "Wrath" one of the finest things he has ever done. He is supported by an excellent cast, including Shirley Mason and George Le Guere.

Mack Sennett on Censorship

Mack Sennett, head of the Mack Sennett-Keystone company, while perhaps one of the least to be affected by censorship, is nevertheless utterly opposed to it, and when asked for his ideas on the subject, had this to say:

Wickedness is a relative term. There are occasions when the female form unclothed is quite bereft of evil; others where a stocking hanging on the line has evil potentialities.

It is utterly impossible to lay down any rules that would bring about the results desired by the censors.

Wicked ideas in motion pictures, as in all kinds of literature, depend entirely upon the context. The wickedness lies in what goes before and what comes after. Any single portion of a film, taken alone, would probably be found innocent enough, even in the worst pictures.

In my opinion a great evil is sure to come from this censorship. Little boys pass through an age where they snicker at every other word as being a "bad break." You can't help it.

The greatest argument, however, against organized censorship, is that it is unnecessary. If you let the public alone, tough pictures will be taken care of.

Pictures are not like the few big girl shows which are famous for their licentiousness. These shows appear in only a few of the rich and blase centers, and at high prices.

The picture game is altogether different. Pictures have to be universal in character. They must please Broadway and also Newton Center. Broadway might drool at the mouth over a certain type of picture, but Newton Center mothers would not let the children go.

After all, the only effective censors in the world are Pa and Ma, and they usually do a pretty good job of it.

Experience has shown that the motion picture exhibitor can beat the censors in the courts nine cases out of ten. The whole American legal system—the whole American theory of life—is opposed to censorship.

But the exhibitor cannot beat Pa and Ma, especially Ma, and that is all the censorship the motion pictures need.

PICTURES IN GERMANY

Best Comedies Come from Uncle Sam—Exchange System Not Perfected—Other Interesting Facts About Films in Der Vaterland

German producers devote their energies almost entirely to drama and light comedies, according to Commerce Reports. Some feature films have been made, with the scenarios written around special events in early German history or legends of the early centuries. Such pictures have been very successful, but the most popular today are detective stories, of which several series are now being widely shown. These films are known by the name of the character represented and not by the name of the individual actor.

The best comedy pictures seen in Germany come from the United States, and these are always very pleasing to the audiences, as are also the American wild west films. The manufacture of natural-history pictures, in which the French producers have been so successful, has not yet been attempted here. German producers, like those in the United States, purchase scenarios from the authors ouright or on a royalty basis, retaining always full control over the film.

Method of Distributing

The system of releasing new films that has been so highly perfected in the United States is not in force in Germany, although the reels are generally disposed of through an agency or film exchange, which in many instances is at the same time the owner of several theaters. Numerous film exchanges which are distributed through the large cities serve not only their own theaters but also others in their immediate sections. When a new film is ready a date is set for its initial showing, and the exchanges and agents are notified in order that their representatives may be present and, after seeing the picture, submit their offers for it. The right to produce or license is sold chiefly with a monopoly for certain sections of the country, but also at times for the whole of Germany and occasionally for the entire world, the purchaser then being obliged to look after the further sale. Display printing matter and other advertisements are supplied by the producing firms, but not on such a lavish scale as in the United States.

Each new film requires the approval of the Government censor, and after being censored is exhibited as soon as possible. A specified time for the first performance or general release of a film is very seldom fixed, and first performances may take place in different theaters and cities at different times, but each exchange always endeavors to have the first exhibition of a new film in the large cities of its district at the earliest possible date. A further delay is sometimes caused by the necessity of obtaining the approval of a local censor.

Pathe Offers War Bid

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, has made an offer to President Wilson to co-operate with the government in the event that the United States should be drawn into war with Germany.

Mutual Feature Postponed

The fourth of the Margarita Fischer series of Mutual Star Productions, "The Devil's Assistant," scheduled for release on March 5 has been postponed until April 2.

This has afforded the Mutual Film Corporation an opportunity to use this date for the release of "The Girl from Rector's," a film version of the Broadway success which in dramatic form had a record breaking run at Weber's Theater, New York City.

Ruth McTammany plays the lead in the film story, many scenes of which are taken at Rector's famous restaurant in New York City.

Calls Censor Laws Futile

That state censorship legislation is without doubt a fallacious and futile method of settling the censorship question, was the belief which speakers expressed and their hearers affirmed, at the Open Table of the National Arts Club, recently in New York.

Cranston Benton, chairman of the national board of review, and Campbell McCulloch scenario manager of the Triangle-Fine Arts Film Company, spoke on the subject by invitation of Dr. O. F. Lewis, member of the Club, who holds a place on the general committee of the national board of review. Rufus Steele, scenario writer, gave a graphic description of his work.

Mr. McCulloch emphasized the necessity of the development of the motion picture upon intelligent and artistic lines.

Mutual Aids Poster Art

Mutual has installed a special department of poster art as a part of its policy of big stars only, and adherence to only the bigger and better productions of motion picture art. It is the purpose of this department to give special attention to the poster as an important advertising aid for the exhibitor.

It is of interest to exhibitors to know that every Mutual poster is required to pass a veritable jury which includes representatives of the sales department before it is permitted to go to the trade and the public.

Howard Turrill, in charge of the department of poster art, declares that to speak of successful posters can mean only the posters which help the exhibitor get the money. He says that making posters for motion pictures is like editing a newspaper—everybody knows all about it and everybody can not be pleased.

In "Burning the Candle," a new Essanay feature, Mary Charleson again appears as Mr. Walthall's leading woman. She will be happily remembered by photoplay theater patrons as the dauntless little nurse in "The Truant Soul" and other recent Walthall productions. In "Burning the Candle" she portrays the role of the inebriate's bride.

"The Poor Little Rich Girl"

Six-Reel Artcraft Release for March, Featuring Mary Pickford. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A PICTURE of unsurpassed audience appeal is this latest Mary Pickford offering, in which the fascinating star assumes the role of Gwendolyn, the neglected and love-thirsty little heroine of Eleanor Gates' book and play. Radically removed from the usual Pickford type of characterization, this role brings out the real genius of the star and plants her the more firmly in the place that popularity has accorded her. Those who have been waiting for their favorite star to appear in a play really worthy of her talents will be highly elated over this latest Artcraft release. In her short dresses and curls the star not only acts to perfection, but looks the part of the eleven-year-old girl with whose experience the film vitally concerns itself. "Little" Mary never appeared so petite, so much at home and so alluring as she does in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." The story not only provides her with innumerable chances to register the mannerisms for which she is famous but it gives her a part of real sympathy, a sympathy which transcends that of any role she has portrayed for months.

Mary Pickford in "A Poor Little Rich Girl."

The paramount thought of the story, representing cold riches crowding out affection, is at all times sharply drawn by the director, Maurice Tourneur. The latter's sets are impressive, and needfully so, to emphasize the idea of elegance and the superabundance of material luxuries which characterizes the Wall Street magnate's dwelling. The delirium scenes which occupy the latter half of the picture, are vivid portrayals of the objectified dread images of a child's wandering mind. Many viewing these will no doubt recall just such childish nightmares. Some may protest about the length of the visualization of Gwendolyn's delirium, but there is no denying its effect, an effect of its kind seldom equalled on the screen.

The first three reels of the picture are punctuated with delightful, true-to-life bits of comedy, every one of which is calculated to oust dull care from the spectator's mind. The formidable array of servants, the most comical being the sour-faced tutors, form a constant source for comedy to draw upon. It is pathetic, but at the same time funny, when poor Gwendolyn, longing for companionship and love, meets with nothing but the austere looks of her straight-laced tutor, who with great precision points to the chart upon which is inscribed such cold and unfeeling declarations as, "History is the essence of innumerable biographies," and "Veracity is the heart of morality." The first welcoming words of the little snob who comes to visit the little rich girl, "My father is richer than your father," are true enough to life. These words, together with some overbearing acts on the part of the little visitor, incite Gwendolyn's indignation and contempt. The result is a typical "kid" quarrel.

A very memorable piece of comedy in the picture is a mud fight which is staked in the spick and span conservatory. The line-up is Gwendolyn vs. a band of street urchins. The conservatory looks like rainy weather in Russia when the conflict subsides upon the arrival of the ever-present servants, the momentary abandonment of whose strict vigil has been made the most of. Laughs came from all over the house at the bath-room episode in which the little "rich girl" lets her long-stifled playfulness out into high speed. It should be said that the child's slight insubordination is fully justified under the unbearable treatment she receives at the hands of the unfeeling tutors and servants.

The lighter part of the story merges into the serious side when one of the servants, in order to have a "night out," gives poor Gwendolyn an overdose of a narcotic. During the delirium which this induces, in which the grotesque images of the girl's wandering fancy are shown upon the screen, the tender life hovers near the brink of death. All this is symbolized in the dream. At the bedside, her father and mother realize their unpardonable neglect, so when the doctor finally brings the child "to," a radical change in the care of Gwendolyn is instituted by the contrite parents. The father having lost in speculation, moves his family to the old homestead in the country, where Gwendolyn can have all the freedom she craves and make all the mud pies she feels inclined to.

Maurice Tourneur's direction of "The Poor Little Rich Girl" is so near perfect in conviction and artistry that one would not hesitate to give him his full due for the picture's success. Atmosphere was highly important in making the story felt, the atmosphere of this production being just another instance of Mr. Tourneur's justly-noted handsome work.

It is a matter of opinion whether or not "The Poor Little Rich Girl" is Mary Pickford's best picture. We only remember one that comes up to its level and is therefore susceptible of comparison. Important in the star's support are Madeline Traverse, Charles Wellesley, Gladys Fairbanks, and Frank McGlynn.

"A Love Sublime"

Five-Reel Triangle-Fine Arts Release. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

"A LOVE SUBLIME" is an appealing play with a nice flavor of romance that pleases one's fancy. The theme is woven around a big-hearted Greek laborer whose part is remarkably well played by Wilfred Lucas. His love for a little French waitress knows no bounds. Even though he believes her to be dead, he still visits her room and each night plays "La Boheme" beneath her window on his flageolette.

Like "Orpheus," who lured his sweetheart from hades by his playing, Philip in his sincerity is reunited to his sweetheart in "A Love Sublime." There are plenty of heart interest and thrills in the play. It is a picture quite up to the Triangle standard. An extraordinarily fine cast appears in support of Wilfred Lucas. They are Carmel Myers, Fred Turner, Alice Rae, George Beranger, Jack Brammall, James O'Shea and Bert Woodruff.

Philip falls in love with a little French waitress. She refuses to accept him, as she is in poor health, and fears she will be more of a burden than a helpmate. Leaving a note for him, she goes to a nearby city to work. Philip follows, finds his love, and, seeing that she is too ill to work, decides to take care of her. He engages a room for her and sees that she receives proper treatment.

One day while he is working on the docks, a sculptress sees

A convincing scene in "A Love Sublime."

him and admires his strength. She persuades him to pose for her as the central figure in a group of Greek fishermen. At the studio he meets "The Little Red Doctor" and he tells him about his sick sweetheart. Upon seeing the girl the doctor orders her to the hospital for treatment. Philip calls each day to see her.

At the hospital one morning he is told that his sweetheart died the preceding night. The Greek is wild with rage at the way he has been treated. He attacks the interne, is arrested and is sent to jail for two months. In the meantime, however, the girl recovers and, on being told that Philip had gone back to Greece, stays on at the hospital as a probationer.

Released from jail, Philip goes back to his old rooming house and takes the room the girl had occupied, hoping that some day she might come back to him. As in the days gone by he plays to the window where his love died. Some gangsters attack Philip, but are badly beaten by friends of the sculptress, who come to his rescue. The Rat, one of the gang, is badly hurt and is taken to the home of "The Little Red Doctor."

The Rat recognizes Philip as the sweetheart of the little girl who befriended him when he was a patient in the hospital. He tells the sculptress and she goes to the hospital to learn all about her. There she meets the girl, who has become a nurse. Her reunion with Philip follows and the story ends happily.

"The Barricade"

Metro Pictures Corporation Release of March 5. Reviewed by Hazel D. Fretz

THE delightful star, Mabel Taliaferro, has the leading role in the new Metro picture produced by Rolfe Photoplays, Inc. She is the loving daughter of a weak old man who invests beyond his means. The play is a vivid portrayal of human emotion. Stirring scenes are shown of the stock exchange, how big business is lost or won in a moment's time. It is well illustrated in the case of Amos Merrill, who fails and in the rise of a young westerner, John Cook.

The splendid talent of Mabel Taliaferro enables her to do full credit to the part of Hope Merrill. Clifford Bruce acting the part of the Western millionaire, does excellent work. Frank Currier, as Amos Merrill and Robert Rendell, as Gerald Hastings have important parts in the cast. The picture was directed by Edwin Carewe and photographed by John Arnold.

The president of the United Securities Company, Amos Merrill, has been speculating with the company's money. He suddenly finds himself displaced by a young man from the west by the name of John Cook. Hope Merrill attends a ball where she meets the millionaire. Knowing that he is to take the place of her father, she takes pains to snub him. While the ball is going on, Merrill learns that he has been discovered.

When he returns home the butler is suspicious of the queer way he is acting. Hope arrives home and the butler tells her his fears. They break into her father's room and are just in time to prevent him from commiting suicide. Fearing to lose his daughter's respect, he tells her that Cook has ruined him. Hope urges her father to take courage as she is determined to avenge the wrong done him.

Cook, feeling sorry for the aged man, makes good the deficit, and gives him three months to repay him. Hope soon wins Cook's affections, though unaware of the noble nature of the man she is endeavoring to ruin. The two are married. Hope loses no time in informing her husband that she did not marry him for love, but in a spirit of revenge and intends to be a wife in name only.

A peppery little spot in "The Barricade," with Mabel Taliaferro.

Gerald Hastings, a business rival of Cook's, is constantly in the company of the young wife. They conspire together and plot the downfall of Cook. Hope uses her knowledge of her husband's movements and interests, studies the stock market and blocks his every move. Finally Cook is entirely ruined, his fortune is now in his wife's hands. Her father returns after a vacation. When she tells him what has happened, he is terrified and realizes that it has all come from the lie he told. Merrill explains to his daughter that instead of Cook being his enemy he is the best friend he has.

Hope is overcome with grief and sees what a terrible mistake she has made. She reaches home just in time to prevent him from leaving for the west. The barricade is raised and the two at last are happily united.

Two Essanay Short Ones

"Black Cat" and "Is Marriage Sacred?" Released. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

"ALADDIN UP-TO-DATE" is a "Black Cat" play of thirty minutes' duration, featuring Bryant Washburn, and its theme recalls two of Washburn's feature successes, "The Breakers" and "Skinner's Dress Suit," for in this story the hero becomes innocently a tool of a criminal and also carries out a succesful business deal because he has suitable clothes.

Since he didn't have the money, he must have rubbed Aladdin's Lamp.

The play is a clever offering, as a whole well done. It is up to the standard of the series and is satisfactory for any theater. The acting and technical details are good. Patrick Calhoun has the second important role.

The Story: James Scovill (Washburn) comes to Chicago to raise capital for a mine he owns in the West. He finds this a hard task and when at last he meets a financier who is interested, his money is nearly gone and his clothes too shabby to give the impression he wishes to make. He returns to his hotel despondent, and finds in his room boxes containing a complete outfit of high priced clothes. All are in his name and paid for. Although puzzled, he wears the clothes and accepts the financier's dinner invitation. He wins his point and the man agrees to back the mine. Then Scovill is arrested, charged with passing bogus checks on clothiers. But the mystery is explained when the real swindler, seriously injured by an automobile, confesses that he had used Scovill's name and that the accident prevented him from working out his scheme. Chance had thus aided Scovill and he in turn aids the crook to "go straight."

"THE PALLID DAWN" is a very good number of the "Is Marriage Sacred?" series. It is bright and pleasing and its story is a surprise. It begins in a gloomy problem-like fashion and ends with every one, and this will include the audience, in a happy frame of mind. And this happy ending is not achieved by conventional twists. When a wealthy youth marries a chorus girl as a conclusion to a gay mid-night party, conventional stories provide the young people with overwhelming troubles. In this story, for a change, they prove equal to their fate, overcome their handicap and have the last laugh on those who predicted disaster.

The usual cast, Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Sydney Ainsworth and Ernest Maupain, enact the roles capably. The story is well produced.

The Story: When, in the spirit of a "dare," their friends suggest that Ralph Goodwin, heir to a fortune, and Grace Temple, chorus girl, marry, the reckless young people, to show they are "game," do so that night. The next day Ralph's family disown him and he is inclined to regret his hasty marriage. But Grace, instead of deserting him when his fortune is gone, proves loyal and true. Ralph goes to work, proves that he has inherited his father's ability and becomes a force in the financial world. He works against his father and at last the latter goes to his son to ask mercy. Ralph declares that he is guided by his wife's advice and when she pleads for the father, there is a general family reconciliation.

"Sister Against Sister"

William Fox Drama in Five Reels, Released March 5. Reviewed by George W. Graves

VIRGINIA PEARSON is featured in this melodrama in a double role, portraying two diametrically opposite characters —two sisters, who, through environment, have been moulded into strikingly different types. One, as the prologue to the story indicates, has been brought up in wholly pure and virtuous surroundings, while the other has been forced to thrive as best she might in a sordid atmosphere of debauchery, with the result that she becomes a glittering vampire at the beck and call of whatever pernicious interests may employ her. The differentiation which Miss Pearson maintains between the two characters is the remarkable thing of the picture. The star is supported ably by Walter Law and Irving Cummings, both of whom win new laurels for themselves. Little Jane Lee figures prominently in some "kid stuff," which provides excellent diversion from the picture's sensational melodrama.

The story is based on the "environment" theme, bringing in the question of child labor as having a bearing on this. The two sisters in whose lives fate plays such a strange part, become the center for some novel and strong situations. During the whole course of the story each knows nothing of the operations or identity of the other, although both, through strange coincidence, figure in the life of the man who is running for governor. The latter, through force of circumstance, can do no other than accept the two characters as one. Although at the outset of the story one sister is working to ruin the lawyer's reputation, while the other is working just as hard to uphold it, the efforts of both finally take the same course, for the vampire, through the tortures of a guilty conscience and a growing love for her near victim, ultimately confesses to the murder of her ally, an unscrupulous manufacturer, for which the young nominee for governor is being held. Of course, a happy ending sees the clearing away of many troubles, with the child-labor champion marrying the fortunate sister. The vampire sister meets an untimely end.

The picture has plenty of live action, a large portion of it being sensational to a high degree. An even tenor of interest is held throughout the story's telling, maintained all the better through striking production and entertaining bits of side-play. Between the two roles played by her the star attracts most of the sympathy. Some of the scenes in which she is shown writhing under mental stress and the effects of a guilty conscience will appear overdrawn to many, but they will "get over" with those who like the sensational. "Sister Against Sister" is calculated to go strong in theaters catering to middle class audiences.

"Wrath"

McClure Photoplay in Five Reels; One of the "Seven Deadly Sins." Reviewed by George W. Graves

THE work of H. B. Warner, playing a dual role, makes this release of the "Seven Deadly Sins" worth seeing. He gives his usual polished, effective rendition. The story concerns itself with "Russian intrigue, Turkish treachery and American honesty." Theodore Marston directed the piece in such a way as to get the most effectual results from a cast of uniform good merits and to emphasize the exotic trend of the story through the creation of suitable atmosphere. Supporting Mr. Warner in his virile interpretation we have the ever-popular, forceful little actress, Shirley Mason, who has appeared in all the "Sins" to date. Edith Hallar, whose apportionment of scenes is even greater than Miss Mason's in this, gives a very natural rendition of her role. Besides George Le Guere, whom we all know well by this time, Charles Wellesley, Thea Talbott, George Arvine and John Nicholson complete the cast. The offering was tastefully photographed by Charles Gilson.

Like its predecessors, the keynote of "Wrath" is action. This favorable element, together with a story whose interest holds in good measure and an efficient cast, ranks this "sin" alongside of the best of this series as a box-office attraction.

Feodor, son of the Grand Duke, governor of Transcaspia, a Russian province, refuses to marry Olga, daughter of Count

H. B. Warner and Shirley Mason in "Wrath."

Nikoli, but becomes wedded to the woman of his own choosing, Evelyn, an American. The two try to reach America, but Feodor is captured and put in prison for attempting to leave his post. In New York a child is born to Evelyn. Sixteen years later Feodor comes to America to buy munitions, but is prevented from doing so by the girl who owns the factory, Eve, who is in reality his own daughter. Although Feodor believes his wife dead, Evelyn is alive enough to see him with Olga and misunderstand their relation. The scene finally shifts to Russia where, after many exciting events, Feodor's contemplated marriage with Olga is averted and Eve and her mother, Evelyn, are restored to the happy Feodor.

"My Fighting Gentleman"

Six-Reel American Mutual Play with William Russell. Released March 12. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

EXHIBITORS report that audiences generally do not care for costume plays, are tired of war plays and are specially weary of the Civil War period. This offering sets out with the handicap of seeming to be just that sort of a play. Its chief drawing power lies in the popularity of William Russell, unless the exhibitor takes care to present its other attractions to his public. And for many districts the play will merit and will need extra advertising. It is not a war play, for it deals with the after-effects of the war, the reconstruction period. This is a point to be played up in the advertising. Also it is an unusually beautiful picture in photography and settings, and it is very exciting and interesting in story. It is seldom that a plot contains so much spirited action that it requires not a foot of padding for six reels. Nell Shipman, the author, has a lively creative imagination and there are a number of very original touches in her story.

While the first impression may not be as favorable as the play deserves, this is not in itself a defect and can be overcome as suggested by clever advertising, but there is in the play one really dangerous element and that is the introduction of the race question. For this reason, while the play is in many respects fine, being elaborate and interesting, it is one an exhibitor should review before presenting to his patrons. If he thinks that the handling of the negro question will not arouse any racial antagonism in his audiences, then he will be justified in advertising strongly an unusually beautiful, very thrilling picture with a popular star supported by a capable cast.

However, one regrets that Miss Shipman and Director Edward Sloman did not content themselves with the more pleasing phases of the story, the hero's loyalty to his home land, his gallant fight to regain the confidence of his former friends and companions and win again the love of the girl he had been engaged to marry, and avoid using quite so unpleasant a melodramatic situation as the one in which the villains force a negro to attempt an attack upon a white woman. Some other situation could have been used as effectively which would have been less revolting and less dangerous for general presentation.

William Russell is well cast in the leading role and his work is as usual very satisfactory. Francelia Billington, a newcomer to American plays, plays opposite Mr. Russell for the first time and as the Southern girl is pleasing. Others in the cast are Charles Newton, Jack Vosburgh, Clarence Burton, Harry Von Meter, William Carroll and Sid Algier.

The Story: At the outbreak of the Civil War, Frank Carlisle, the young son of the Carlisle family of Virginia, has just returned from West Point and decides to aid the northern cause. His father enlists in the southern army. The war period is passed over rapidly in the story, only a brief flash of a battle scene being given, a vision of Mrs. Carlisle's when she receives word that her husband has been killed. The real story begins when Frank returns home after the war and finds himself hated by his former friends. Virginia Leighton, the girl he loves, turns against him, although she cannot entirely conquer her affection for him.

Frank determines to aid the southern community and sets to work to repair the destruction of the war. Eventually he wins the respect of the upright citizens who nominate him as senator. He is opposed by a former friend, Huntley Thornton, who is supported by northern "carpet-baggers."

Frank saves Virginia's life when her horse runs away and he becomes the hero of the hour. Then his political enemies plan to arouse the negroes against him. They terrorize a negro boy until he agrees to attack Frank's mother, for they know that Frank will then kill him and arouse the anger of the blacks. Through a complicated set of circumstances, their plans miscarry and Thornton shoots the negro but Frank assumes the blame since he thinks his own servant committeed the murder to save Mrs. Carlisle.

Frank learns the truth later and after a number of exciting events in which he nearly loses his life, he forces a confession from the real criminals. In his fight he now has Virginia's aid for he has again won her love. The villains are discredited and Frank is assured of the election.

In spite of his mother's plea, Frank refuses to leave the South.

"Castles for Two"

Lasky-Paramount Comedy-Drama, Five Reels. Released March 12. Reviewed by George W. Graves

TO the class liking pictures constructed wholly with a view to provide clean enjoyment, unsullied by the shadow of anything in the least morbid, this picture makes its appeal. Its plot is slight, but, worked out in colorful style, redolent with humor of a sure audience appeal, and given exquisite production, the effect is wholly satisfying. Marie Doro is seen in a part necessitating the exercise of more vivacity than usually accompanies her roles, impressing the story's humor the more on the audience. Miss Doro is cast in the role of an American girl blessed with both beauty and riches, so, to a foreign mind, a typical American girl. The star furnishes a lavish supply of pulchritude, while the scenarioist, with a couple of curls of the pen, brings on the necessary wealth. Miss Doro's noted soulful eyes mirror forth more buoyancy, more sparks of humor than is usually their wont.

The roguish maiden who takes advantage of opportunities to have sport with her lover, at the same time solemnly weighing his motives, whether they be pecuniary or no, is not new to the screen, but a plot of which this is the essence, developed with an accompaniment of amusing atmospheric incidents, always has its appeal. "Castles for Two" has been evolved with a goodly portion of comedy punch. The situation where we find Patricia covertly watching her lover's attempts to propose to her old-maid secretary (whom the penurious lover with a title thinks is the heiress) is one of these effective comedy combinations, however trite it may sound in words. Brian's telling Patricia (who is impersonating her maid) in confidence that he is forced to marry the wealthy American to save his estates, is another. Brian's triplet of straight-laced sisters are "three in one" as far as their sentiments go. Their vigorous efforts to force Brian into a proposal are ludicrous. The sisters' contention is that a rich American girl always falls head over heels for a titled foreigner.

During this scene you could pinch every one of your fans and only two per cent of them would feel it.

Elliott Dexter as the sister-pecked Irish youth, holds well to the requirements of his part. Mayme Kelso, as the secretary who becomes a working part of Patricia's practical joke, is very convincing. The sisters three are Jane Wolff, Harriett Sorenson and Lillian Leighton, all happily picked for the parts. Others aiding in the picture's enactment are Julia Jackson, Horace B. Carpenter, Billy Elmer and Marie Mills.

"Blood Will Tell"

Triangle-Ince-Kay Bee Drama. Reviewed by H. D. Fretz

THE plot of this story is one that has been used time and again, but nevertheless will doubtless please most audiences. It is full of many convincing situations and thrilling incidents. William Desmond is featured in this picture and does very good work. He is well supported by Enid Markey in the part of Nora North, a chorus girl of the home loving type, a rare species. She is really the salvation of the lad and it is through her that he makes a man of himself.

The play is artistically interwoven with love and finance. The photography and settings are excellent. It was directed by Charles Miller and supervised by Thomas H. Ince. Others having important parts in the cast are: David M. Hartford, Howard Hickman, Margaret Thompson, Charles Gunn and J. Frank Burke.

For two generations the Oakley's have been building a vast financial machine, "The Midway Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Railway." Founded by Samson Oakley, known as "Old Stone Face," it had been handed down to "Old Marble Heart," the second Samson Oakley. Through him it had reached the highest point of efficiency.

Samson Oakley, the third, a high-spirited young man, is forced to leave college because he refuses to testify against one of his friends. Proving a failure there, not possessing any business instinct, his father gives him an allowance to keep him away from the office. With nothing to do and many friends,

"Blood Will Tell."

Samson leads a life of idleness. Soon he becomes infatuated with a chorus girl and later marries her.

The father tries to bribe the girl to obtain a divorce, but she refuses, and he determines to have nothing to do with them. The young man finds employment in a factory and learns what work is. The father falls into a plot to bring about his ruin in the stock market. Following the advice of his physician, who is connected with the plotters, the elder Samson goes on a sea trip.

During the great financier's absence havoc reigns in Wall street. Things are in an uproar when a rumor appears in the papers saying that the powerful Samson Oakley had died at sea. Young Samson, realizing the condition his father's affairs will be in without someone as the head, takes possession of things. The way in which he handles the situation proves that he really has inherited some of the business cleverness of the family.

He is the means of rescuing his father from ruin and the conspirators. The family name has been saved. The father realizes that he has underestimated his son and has treated the latter's wife unjustly, and gives the young couple his blessing, making them supremely happy.

Standard Film Shipping Case

A standard film shipping case which will make possible the shipment of reels, paper, stills and electros in one case, instead of two or three, has been worked out by the transportation committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. The specifications have been turned over to shipping case manufacturers, and the new cases will probably be adopted by all the members of the association (which included all the big distributors) as fast as the cases at present in use wear out.

The work was done by a sub-committee consisting of J. S. Clark, of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company, G. J. Schaefer, of the World Film Corporation, and P. H. Stilson, of the Paramount Pictures Corporation. The final details were decided upon last week and the specification presented to the General Metal Box Company and Sharlow Brothers, who had made up sample boxes of various sorts. Both of these companies have agreed to manufacture these standard boxes and to market them at a small advance on the price of the simpler forms.

The new cases are made of the regulation weight of metal, fiber lined, and differ from the present form of telescope box only in size and in the compartment for photographic stills which is inserted. The inside measurements of the bottom section of the case are 11 inches by 10½ inches for the film compartment, taking 10-inch reels in containers and leaving room for electros at the corners. The compartment for photographs is one inch wide and 11 inches long. The depth of the lower section of the case is 8½ inches, giving plenty of room for 8x10 stills.

The upper section of the case has an inside measurement of 11½x12½. This allows a poster sheet of standard size (22x48) to go in comfortably with three foldings, which make the poster sheet's dimensions 11x12.

The outside dimensions of the box, which will hold six reels and paper and stills, will be 12x13x9 inches before packing. It will be fastened with a single web strap 1½ inches wide, iron bound at the corners of the lower box.

The use of this standard box by all exchanges and exhibitors, will do away with the separate shipments of paper and photographs, as the Interstate Commerce Commission regulations permit the shipping of paper inside the shipping case, but not attached to the outside. It is also possible that the National Association will place large orders for these boxes, to be delivered to members as desired, thus securing a lower price.

How Films Uplift Race

By Benjamin B. Hampton
President General Film Company

Not only is the motion picture industry of fundamental importance to our people here at home in the sense that it provides them with entertainment and education at a price within their reach, but the international influence of American pictures is a matter worthy the serious consideration of statesmen.

America cannot justly claim to lead the world in many of its industries, but in motion pictures America is conceded by all nations to be the leader.

American pictures prior to the world war were rapidly spreading into every nook and corner of the inhabitated globe. All the civilized nations look to America for the best in motion pictures.

What American is not thrilled at the story of American pictures in Russia? For centuries the people of this great empire have been struggling toward the light. An autocratic government has steadily repressed the common man's yearning for education and freedom. Schools and universities are restricted and even religion must come from the government. It remained for the American picture producers to bring to Russia the first great ray of light that has ever come to that dark country.

Prior to the war picture houses sprang up all over Russia and American pictures were the most popular in these houses. It requires no great imagination to predict the growth of enlightenment in Russia once the picture habit is fixed on its people.

Pictures are a universal language. No man needs education to understand the message they bring to him. No man can see pictures without a quickening of the mind, and the mind once aroused will find a way towards education and progress. American picture producers are genuine missionaries to millions of illiterate Russians. They will respond to the quickening influence of the movies and minds thus aroused will find the way to education and to the happiness and comfort of modern civilization.

And so it is all over the world. American pictures are everywhere spreading the influence of American life, habits of living and point of view.

This tremendous service is not now understood by our people—simply because the facts are not generally known—but I venture the assertion that the historian of the future day will say that this is one of the greatest movements in which Americans have ever participated.

A crowd standing outside is always the best possible advertisement for a theater. Maddox & Boyd, of Cincinnati, Ohio, show that they appreciate this in the following message sent to the Mutual Film Corporation:

"'A Lass of the Lumberlands' going good—best serial ever booked in this house. Had them standing out last night."

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in booking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's booking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Released Week of February 26.

C	A Four-Cent Courtship	Essanay
C	A Flyer in Flapjacks (Ham and Bud)	Kalem	2000
D	The Screened Vault (George Larkin) (Grant Police Reporter Series)	Kalem
T	The Battle of Somme
D	The Redemption of Red Mullin	Selig
D	For Reward of Service (Geo. Fawcett)	Selig
D	The Great Treasure (Gasson Ferguson)	Selig
D	A Brother's Sacrifice	Selig
C	Seeing Double	Vim
C	Harry's Pig	Vim
D	The Meeting	Vitagraph
D	The Gang (Dangers of Doris Series)	Vitagraph
T	Selig Tribune No. 14	Selig
T	Selig Tribune No. 15	Selig

Released Week of March 5.

T	The Battle of Somme (Second Episode)
D	The Invisible Web	Essanay
C	Tiny Slim and Fat	Essanay
D	The Vanishing Woman (Marguerite Clayton) (Is Marriage Sacred Series)	Essanay
D	The Five Dollar Bill	Essanay
T	Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 26	Essanay
D	The Pulse of Madness (Is Marriage Sacred)	Essanay
D	In the Path of Peril (Helen Gibson) (First Episode in "A Daughter of Daring")	Kalem
D	The Mirror of Fear (Grant Police Reporter Series)	Kalem
C	Efficiency Experts (Ham & Bud)	Kalem
D	The Black Rider of Tasajara ("The American Girl" Series)	Kalem
D	An Actress' Romance	Selig	2000
C	No Place Like Home	Selig	1000
C	The Newlywed's Mistake (Geo. Larkin)	Vim
C	Art and Paint	Vim
T	Selig Tribune No. 16
T	Selig Tribune No. 17
D	Dimples' Baby (Lillian Walker)	Vitagraph

Released Week of March 12.

T	The Battle of Somme (Third Episode)
D	The Phantom Mine (Marin Sais) (Second Episode of "The American Girl" Series)	Kalem
D	The Registered Pouch (Helen Gibson) (Second Episode of "A Daughter of Daring")	Kalem
D	In the Web of the Spider (George Larkin) ("Grant Police Reporter" Series)	Kalem
C	Bulls or Bullets (Ham & Bud)	Kalem
D	The Borrowed Engine (Helen Gibson) ("A Daughter of Daring" Series)	Kalem
C	Melies	Vim
C	This Is Not My Room (Ethel Teare)	Vim
C	Dimples the Diplomat (Lillian Walker)	Vitagraph
D	Up and Down (Dangers of Doris No. 8)	Vitagraph
D	The Old Fourth Ward (Dangers of Doris, No. 9)	Vitagraph
T	Selig Tribune No. 18
T	Selig Tribune No. 19
	The Fire

V. L. S. E. Program

1-15	The Hon. Mr. Oxenham (Fourth Episode of the Secret Kingdom)		5,000
1-22	Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland)		5,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Trial Balance (Frank Daniels)		1,000
1-22	Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels)		1,000
1-29	Blind Justice (Benj. Christie)		5,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels)		1,000
1-29	Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels)		1,000
2-26	Masks and Mishaps (Hughie Mack)		1,000
2-26	Captain Jinks' Explosive Temper (Frank Daniels)		1,000
2-26	A Goat Without Horns (Tenth Episode of The Secret Kingdom)		5,000
2-26	Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams)		5,000
3-5	The Intrigue (Peggy Hyland)		5,000

Mutual Program

Sunday.

C	3-4	A Rummy Romance (Paddy McQuire)	2, Vogue	05352–53
T	3-4	Reel Life	1, Gaumont	05354

Monday.

D	3-5	Shorty Traps a Lottery King (Shorty Hamilton, No. 8)	2, Monogram	05355–56

Tuesday.

T	3-6	Mutual Tours Around the World	1, Gaumont	05357

Wednesday.

T	3-7	Mutual Weekly, No. 114	1, Mutual	05358
	3-7	See America First	Kartoon Komics	05359

Thursday.

C	3-8	The Flying Target (George Ovey)	1, Cub	05360
T	3-8	Reel Life	1, Gaumont	05361

Friday.

	3-9	Title Not Given	3	05362–63–64

Saturday.

C	3-10	His Bogus Boast (Ben Turpin)	2, Vogue	05365–66

Monday.

D	3-12	Shorty Trails the Moonshiners (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 9)	2, Monogram	05367–68

Tuesday.

T	3-13	Mutual Tours Around the World	1, Gaumont	05369

Wednesday.

T	3-14	Mutual Weekly No. 115	1, Mutual	05370
T	3-14	See America First (Kartoon Komics)	1, Gaumont	05371

Thursday.

C	3-15	Jerry's Triple Alliance (George Ovey)	1, Cub	05372
T	3-15	Reel Life	1, Gaumont	05373

Friday.

D	3-16	The Lonesome Mariner (Ed Coxen)	1, American	05374
C	3-16	A. Ram-Bunctious (Endeavor) (Wallace Reid)	1, American	05375

Saturday.

C	3-17	A Matrimonial Shock	2, Vogue	05376–77
V L S E	3-12	The More Excellent Way (Anita Stewart)		5,000

Universal Program

Sunday.

	3-4	No Release This Week	Rex
D	3-4	Tangled Threads (Larimar Johnston)	2, Imp	02215
C	3-4	Mr. Fuller Pep	s, Powers	02216
	3-4	The Land of Buddha	s, Powers
D	3-4	Buried Alive (Wallace Reid)	1, Big U	02217
D	3-4	The Purple Mask (Episode No. 10, The House of Mystery) (SPECIAL)	2, Universal	02218

Monday.

C	3-5	A Bundle of Trouble (Eddie Lyons)	1, Nestor	02220

Tuesday.

D	3-6	"Desperations"	3, Gold Seal	02221
C	3-6	Good Morning Nurse (Eileen Sedgwick)	1, Victor	02222

Wednesday.

	3-7	No Release This Week	Laemmle
C	3-7	Fatty's Feature Fillum (Fatty Voss)	2, L-Ko	02223
	3-7	Animated Weekly, No. 62	1, Universal	02224
D	3-7	A Soldier's Dream	1, Big U	02225

Thursday.

	3-8	No Release This Week	Victor
D	3-8	Good For Nothing Gallagher (Wm. V Mong)	1, Big U	02226
D	3-8	The Amazing Adventure (Roberta Wilson)	2, Rex	02227
D	3-8	The Tempest Sea (Margarita Fischer)	1, Laemmle	02228

Friday.

D 3-9 The Perils of the Secret Service (Kingsley Benedict) .....2, Imp 02229
(No. 1—The Last Cigarette.)
3-9 No Release This Week.....Rex
T 3-9 Universal Screen Magazine (Issue No. 9)..... 02230
C 3-9 The Beauty Doctor (Billy Mason).....1, Victor 02231

Saturday.

D 3-10 The Drifter (Harry Carey).....2, Bison 02232
3-10 No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C 3-10 Wanta Make a Dollar (Gale Henry).....1, Joker 02233

Sunday.

D 3-11 It Makes a Difference (Dorothy Davenport)....1, Rex 02234
3-11 No Release This Week.....
C 3-11 Mr. Fuller Pep (His Day of Rest).....s, Powers 02235
T 3-11 The Mysterious City.....s
D 3-11 The Man of Mystery (King Baggot).....2, Imp 02236
D 3-11 The Purple Mask No. 11 (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....2, Universal 02237
(The Garden of Surprise) SPECIAL.....

Monday.

C 3-12 Some Specimens (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor 02239

Tuesday.

D 3-13 The Common Sin (Helen Gardner).....3, Gold Seal 02240
C 3-13 A Woman in the Case (Eileen Sedgwick).....1, Victor 02241

Wednesday.

D 3-14 Where Glory Waits (Allin Holubar).....2, Laemmle 02242
C 3-14 Love on Crutches (Hank Man).....L-Ko 02243
T 3-14 Animated Weekly No. 63.....Universal 02244
D 3-14 Sins of a Brother (Herbert Brenon).....1, Imp 02245

Thursday.

C 3-15 The Hash House Mystery (Harry Myers)....2, Victor 02246
3-15 No Release This Week.....Big U
3-15 No Release This Week.....Powers
D 3-15 For Honor's Sake.....Big U 02247

Friday.

D 3-16 The Clash of Steel (Perils of the Secret Service) (Kingsley Benedict) .....2, Imp 02248
C 3-16 Summer Boarders (Phil Dunham).....1, L-Ko 02249
T 3-16 Universal Screen Magazine No. 10..... 02250

Saturday.

C 3-17 Roped In (Neal Hart).....2, Bison 02251
3-17 No Release This Week.....Laemmle
C 3-17 Art Aches (Gale Henry).....1, Joker 02252
D 3-17 Racing Death (Robt. Leonard).....1, Laemmle 02253

Sunday.

3-18 No Release This Week.....Rex
3-18 No Release This Week.....Imp
3-18 The Mystery of the Noisless Soup.....s 02254
Palaces of the Forbidden City.....s
D 3-18 The Hidden Danger.....2, Big U 02255
D 3-18 The Purple Mask, No. 12 (The Vault of Mystery) (SPECIAL) (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford).... .....2, Universal 02256
D 3-18 The Voice on the Wire, No. 1(The Oriental Death Punch) (Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber).2, Universal 02257

Miscellaneous Features

Artcraft Pictures

3-5 The Poor Little Rich Girl (Mary Pickford)..... 5,000

Art Dramas

2-22 The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson).....Erbograph 5,000
3-1 Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon)..... 5,000
3-8 The Cloud 5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

2-19 The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum).Bluebird 5,000
2-26 The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse).....
3-5 The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau).....
3-12 Mutiny (Myrtle Gonzalez) .....Bluebird 5,000

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of
2-19 There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann)..... 2,000
2-26 A Child of the Wild (June Caprice) 5,000
2-26 The House of Terrible Scandals (Lehrman and Billie Ritchie) 2,000
3-5 Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson)..... 5,000
3-12 North of Fifty-Three (Dustin Farnum)..... 5,000
3-12 The Siren (Valeska Suratt)..... 5,000
3-12 The Tale of Two Cities (Wm. Farnum)..... 5,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of
2-26 Max Comes Across (Max Linder) .....Essanay 2,000
3-5 Burning the Candle (Henry B. Walthall).....Essanay 5,000
3-12 Little Lost Sister.....Selig 5,000

McClure Pictures

2-26 Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) 5,000
3-5 Seven Deadly Sins, "Sloth" (Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere)..... 5,000
3-12 Seven Deadly Sins, "The Seventh Sin" (George Le Guere and Shirley Mason) 5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of
3-5 The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen).....Rolfe 5,000
3-5 A Modern Romance (Max Figman).....Metro-Rolma 5,000
3-5 The Barricade (Mabel Taliaferro).....Rolfe 5,000
3-12 Locked Out (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew).....Metro 5,000
3-12 The Beautiful Lie (Frances Nelson).....Rolfe 5,000
3-12 The Mortal Sin (Viola Dana).....Columbia 5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of
2-5 The Girl from Rector's (Ruth MacTammany).....5, Mutual
2-12 Damaged Goods (New Edition) (Richard Bennett)..... .....American 7,000
2-19 The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter)....5, American
2-26 The Greater Woman (Marjorie Rambeau)..5, Powell-Mutual
3-12 My Fighting Gentleman (William Russell).....American 5,000

Mutual Serials

2-25 Stage Struck (Dorothy Gish).....Fine Arts 5,000
The Meeting (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 11) (Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalf)..... 2,000
3-12 Outwitted (Perils of Our Girl Reporters No. 12) (Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalf).....

Paramount Features

Released Week of
2-19 Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward).....Lasky 5,000
2-22 On Record (Mae Murray) .....Lasky 5,000
2-26 Some Doctor .....Klever Comedy 1,000
2-26 Exquisite Lake Louise..... Burton Holmes 1,000
2-26 The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark)....Famous Players 5,000
3-1 Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet).....Lasky 5,000
3-5 Castles for Two (Marie Doro).....Lasky 5,000
3-5 The Yoko Valley .....Burton Holmes 1,000
3-8 Out of the Wreck (Kathryn Williams).....Morosco 5,000
3-12 Sapho (Pauline Frederick).....Famous Players 5,000
3-12 On the Great Glacier.....Burton Holmes 1,000
3-15 The Prison Without Walls (Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman) .....Lasky 5,000

Pathe

Released Week of
3-11 Pearl of the Army No. 15 (Pearl White).....Astra 5,000
3-11 Patria No. 9 (Mrs. Vernon Castle).....International 2,000
3-11 The Empress (Holbrook Blinn) .....P. P. & Players 5,000
3-11 Hooey Heroes .....Mittenthal 1,000
3-11 Florence Rose Fashions No. 22.....Rose 500
3-11 Birds of Gay Plumage.....Pathe 500
3-14 Hearst's Pathe News No. 22.....Pathe 1,000
3-17 Hearst's Pathe News No. 23.....Pathe 1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of
2-26 The Girl and the Crisis (Dorothy Davenport)..... 5,000
3-5 The Gates of Eden (Claire McDowell)..... 5,000
3-12 The Girl Who Lost (Cleo Madison)..... 5,000
3-12 Border Wolves (Neal Hart)..... 5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of
3-1 Done in Oil.....Triangle Komedy 1,000
3-4 Betty's Burglar (Constance Talmadge).....Fine Arts 5,000
3-4 Her Cave Man.....Triangle Comedy 1,000
3-4 Back of the Man (Dorothy Dalton).....Kay-Bee 5,000
3-4 Her Circus Night (Ora Carew).....Keystone 2,000
3-11 A Love Sublime (W. Lucas).....Fine Arts 5,000
3-11 Caught With the Goods.....Triangle Komedy 1,000
3-11 The Little Brother (Enid Bennett).....Kay Bee 5,000
3-11 Hobbled Hearts .....Triangle Komedy 1,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of
12-20B Lost in the Shuffle.....1, Hippo 1146B
12-21 The Voice in the Night.....2, Utah 1147A
12-21 Blowing Up Broadway.....1, Jockey 1147B
12-22 The White Man's Squaw.....2, Hiawatha 1148A
12-22 Algernon's Affinity.....1, Gaiety 1148B
12-23 Shackles of Conscience.....2, Supreme 1149A
12-24 Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont..... 1, Judy 1150A
12-24 The Prodigal Son.....2, Buffalo 1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of
12-1 Land Just Over Yonder.....6
12-15 Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
1-15 Glory 7

World Features

Released Week of
2-12 The Red Woman (Gail Kane).....World 5,000
2-19 A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell).....World 5,000
2-26 A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick).....World 5,000
3-5 The Web of Desire (Ethel Clayton).....World 5,000
3-12 The Dancer's Peril (Alice Brady)..... 5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

The Battle of the Somme—The War Series—Third Episode.—Showing the delivery of mail at the front, and the hoisting of guns into place; transporting the wounded, mining the trenches, and the bursting of shrapnel.

Up and Down—Danger of Doris Series.—Doris appears from a basket of flowers at Bob's farewell bachelor dinner, shocking those present, breaks her engagement with Bob and escapes down the fire-escape. She goes into a room below, where she is captured by four conspirators. Bob frees her and they escape to the roof, where their thrills begin. First they take to the wires, then hand over hand down a rope, on a ride to the sky in a coal bucket, then hanging to a police boat. Finally the conspirators are captured and Bob receives a wet kiss, and the engagement is on again.

The Lucky One—Essanay—(Fifteen Minutes Screen Time).—A $500 reward is offered for a lost ring and scores join the search. The corner fakir drops his ring near each searcher, and pretending to be unaware of the reward, sells the fake rings to them for high prices. He trades one for a horse and buggy and wins the girl away from her sweetheart. But the latter finds the real ring and the fakir is driven out of town. "In the Beef and Butter Country," (Western Canada) shares the reel.

The Pallid Dawn—Essanay—Is Marriage Sacred Series—(Screen Time Thirty Minutes).—Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Sydney Ainsworth and Ernest Maupain are in the cast. Reviewed in this issue.

Aladdin Up-To-Date—Black Cat Feature—Essanay—(Thirty Minutes Screen Time).—Featuring Bryant Washburn. Reviewed in this issue.

The Registered Pouch—A Daughter of Daring Series—Kalem.—Featuring Helen Gibson. Jimmy, the son of the section boss, has found a registered mail pouch, dropped from the train, while he is fishing. He has been a student of telegraphy, taking instruction from Helen, much to the delight of Dad Kinney. Jose, Mexican track hand, reports for work drunk and is fired by Kinney. He and his friends plan to take the pouch from Jimmy. Helen locks it in the safe. While Jimmy is in charge of the station the Mexican and his friends bind him, take the pouch and leave him upstairs where Helen's private wire terminates. By some contortions he reaches the wire and telegraphs the alarm to Helen. A hobo has seen the gang board a freight and helps Helen put a hand car in shape for the chase. She sees a switch and tumbles off in time to throw the switch and sideswipe the handcar on which the Mexicans are attempting to escape. The pouch is recovered and Helen makes sure that Jimmy is rewarded with a good job.

The Borrowed Engine—Kalem—A Daughter of Daring Series.—Featuring Helen Gibson. Dick Patterson saves Superintendent Cummings' daughter, Grace, from drowning. She invites him to a party. When he is to attend a test train is run to cinch a big freight contract. Dick is impressed to run the train. Graves, business agent of a rival line, determines to delay the train, instructing one of his lieutenants to empty the Lone Point water tank. Grace overhears the plot and warns Helen. She tries to save the day but is caught and imprisoned on top of the tank. Dick's train comes rushing in and he takes Helen down from her prison. The tank is empty and so they take an auto that is near by and rush to the rival road. They flag a special, and by a ruse induce the engineer and fireman to leave the cab. They run off with the engine, take a cross-over switch and the day is saved as Dick continues his test run with a borrowed engine.

The Phanton Mine—Kalem—American Girl Series.—Featuring Marin Sais. Jake Barstow visits King's San Remo ranch and endeavors to interest Roger King in his Greenback mine. King instructs his young superintendent, Larry Kerwin, to visit the mine and if it is worth the money to pay Barstow $10,000 for a half interest. Barstow has an idea that Larry will carry the money on his person, but it has been left in trust with the local bank. On the way up Larry slits one of the oats bags and by this Madge and her father trail them to the mine, after becoming alarmed for his safety. Chuck, the guide, and Piute Charley open fire on them. Barstow also takes a hand in the game, but Madge gets the drop on him and disarms him. He then boasts that they will never see Larry alive as he has lighted a fuse leading to a lot of explosives in the mine. Madge hastens to the rescue and saves Larry, not a second too soon.

Bulls or Bullets?—Kalem—Featuring Ham and Bud. The two Kalem fun-makers are between two fires. A band of threatening cowboys run them out of town against two Mexicon bull fighters. Choosing the bull fighters of their prey they put them to ight and don the holiday regalia that is left behind. Going across the desert they reach the Mexican settlement where there is to be a bull fight. They are entertained like conquering heroes and are petted by the beautiful senorita for whose hand they are to battle as an added attraction. At last the great bull is turned loose in the arena, and when Ham is about to ram his trusty blade home a voice coming from the bull pleads for mercy. The bull fight degenerates into a tango tea, and when the dethroned bull fighters enter it is exit Ham and Bud.

In the Web of the Spider—Kalem—Grant, Police Reporter Series.—Grant's boss, Brule, and owner of the Chronicle, instructs Grant to investigate a series of bond thefts reported by the president of the Merrimac Trust Company, where his son Harry is employed. Grant gets a job as clerk in the job department and before long discovers, with the aid of a pocket mirror that Harry is stuffing the bonds in his pockets. He follows him and in a flashy restaurant Harry meets a dark haired adventuress. They enter a taxi and he follows in another. When they alight at a dark alley, the girl blindfolds Harry. Grant has such a fright with two darkies that he loses sight of them. Inside the house Brule meets the "Spider," a master criminal who is trying to swing a big bond steal. When Grant has done some roof climbing of a dizzy kind, and let himself into the "Spider's" quarters the birds have flown, but there are proofs involving a well-known bucket shop proprietor, who has all the stolen bonds. He confronts this man and obtains the bonds. The affair is hushed up and Harry has learned a good lesson.

This Is Not My Room—Vim Comedy.—Featuring Ethel Teare. "The thoughtful husband" decides that wifey is in need of a vacation and therefore sends her away to a quiet summer hotel. Upon her arrival her hand baggage is placed in the wrong room by a "dime-novel crazed" bellboy, who at the same time places another guest's baggage in her room. The similarity of the numbers "66" and "99" is the cause of the error, and when Ethel, a newlywed, arrives to meet her husband she is escorted to her husband's room, but to her astonishment finds a woman's wearing apparel thrown about the room. Ethel decides to make more trouble and therefore removes the lingerie and places it in room 99, where it is discovered by "the thoughtful husband," who has also arrived in response to wifey's telegram. In the wee small hours of the morning "the cabaret rounder" returns to the hotel, and when he attemps to retire in Ethel's room a general mixup ensues, which ends in a pink pajama parade and the satisfactory adjustment for everyone.

Dimples the Diplomat—Vitagraph—(Two Reels).—Featuring Lillian Walker. Dimples goes to her father's friend's house to live. The Saunders family she finds very unhappy and squabbling all the time. Through her tact Dimples wins the friendship of all, reuniting Grace Saunders and her fiance. She cures Jack of his indulgence in alcohol, saves Mr. Saunders from financial ruin, and eventually finds Jack is the ideal partner of of her future life.

Selig-Tribune No. 18.—New York, N. Y.—Thousands of women and children invade City Hall Park and clamor to see the Mayor. New Orleans, La.—The seven mile young men's gymnastic cross country race is won by Alex Norman. Goose Creek, Tex.—Prospectors are rewarded when the first "deep pay" gusher is struck at a depth of 4,000 feet. New York, N. Y.—Three hundred thousand dollars worth of dogs are benched at the forty-first annual show of the Westminster Kennel club. San Francisco, Cal.—"Death Valley Bill," driving 20 mules, leaves on a cross country trip to New York. Lake Bluff, Ill.—One thousand public school teachers visit the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Palm Beach, Fla.—Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal wins the Florida women's championship. New Orleans, La.—This city is given over to the fun-loving patrons of the Mardi Gras celebration. New York, N. Y.—Germany's U-boat policy results in tying up thousands of loaded freight cars in Eastern yards. Oakland, Cal.—Oakland's fair sex don overalls and begin growing potatoes. Columbus, N. M.—Our punitive expedition into Mexico is photographed in a government aeroplane near Columbus, N. M. Omaha, Neb.—The business section of this city is visited by a fire which destroys many buildings.

Selig-Tribune No. 19.—Palm Beach, Fla.—Miss Gladys Ballard, of New York, and Miss Elizabeth McNaughton, of Chicago, have an exciting gallop on their sea horses. Waverly, Mass.—Many spectators find much amusement in the annual game of the Belmont Springs Country Club. New Bedford, Mass.—The steamer Sankaty goes ashore off the end of Sconticut Neck. Camden, N. J.—Chief Bender proves his versatility by winning the clay pigeon match against Grover Alexander, making 99 kills out of a possible 100. Philadelphia, Pa.—Strike breakers on their way to work in the Franklin Sugar Refineries. New York, N. Y.—The American liner Philadelphia reaches port safely. San Francisco, Calif.—General Funston's body arrives in San Francisco and is taken to the City Hall. New York, N. Y.—The New York Giants leave for Spring practice at Marlin, Texas. New York, N. Y.—The sculptor, Joe Davidson, finishes his bust of President Wilson. San Francisco, Cal.—Ten thousand school children assemble in a novel flag drill. Palm Beach, Fla.—Society finds great sport in watching the annual Mid-winter Field Day event.

Mutual Pictures

The Tell-Tale Arm—American—(One Reel)—March 9.—Featuring Wallace Reid. Ben Hary, a youthful mining expert, arrives in the mining town and promptly seeks out pretty Mablel Whitaker and her mother, who have inherited a map purporting to lead to a gold deposit. They determine to look at the deposit but are warned by Jim Halliday, a bad man. That night Mabel sees a hand slowly steal through the window and grasp for the map. She plunges a knife through the arm and it is hastily withdrawn. The next day Ben sees Jim Halliday near the gold mine and sees that he is nursing a wounded arm. Ben overcomes the bandit and has him jailed.

Shorty Trails the Moonshiners—Monogram—(Two Reels)—March 12.—Shorty is called upon by Anita to come into the mountains of Kentucky and break up a band of moonshiners. Anita is trapped by the moonshiners, who are running a roadhouse, where the signs tell the traveler that soda water and ice cream are sold within. She is imprisoned in the cellar, which is just over an aqueduct leading to a deep reservoir. Shorty arrives in the mountains just in time to save the moonshiner's daughter from a band of incensed people and she is the means of rescuing Anita from the hands of her father. The moonshiners are captured and Shorty takes Anita into his arms.

Mutual Tours Around the World—(One Reel) Gaumont—March 13.—Picturing the Oasis of Gabes, in the Sahara and Koursk-Siberia.

See America First—(One Reel)—Gaumont—March 14.—Showing scenes along the Mississippi from New Orleans to Baton Rouge. On the same reel with Kartoon Komics.

Outwitted—Niagara Films—(Two Reels)—Perils of Our Girl Reporter Series—March 15.—Jim Adams, son and heir of a wealthy New Yorker, is left a fortune in a will provided that he is married before a certain date. He wakes the morning of the fatal day and realizes that he has forgotten to get married. He advertises in the papers for a wife and is besieged. Beth Alden, a young newspaper reporter, is sent to cover the case and when she arrives Jim will not listen to her story. He thinks that she has come in answer to the advertisement and so carries her off to the minister's where they are married and he gets his fortune.

Jerry's Triple Alliance—David Horsley Studios—(One Reel)—March 15.—Featuring George Ovey. Jerry is in love with Tiny, whose father prefers Bill, who unknown to him is a bad man. Tiny is captured by Bill and placed in a deserted cabin. She manages to let Jerry know of her predicament and he determines to use his pet elephants, Ena and Lulu to rescue the girl. Tiny climbs on the back of one of the elephants, while Jerry gets on the back of the other. They ride into a restaurant where the elephants start in to do the tango and then they sit down to their dinner.

Reel Life—(One Reel)—Gaumont—March 15.—Magazine reel showing "New Police Club Rifle," "Making the Cactus Useful," "The Fluid of Life," and "Gold Mining in Alaska."

The Lonesome Mariner—(One Reel Feature) — American — March 16. — Featuring Edwin Coxen. An old sailor tells his young companion the tale of his life. He tells of a party of tourists visiting the fishing village. He falls in love with one of the girls, but her parents refuse to let them wed. The girl pines away and finally becomes delirious. She calls for the fisherman but he arrives too late and she dies in his arms calling his name.

A Ram-Bunctious Endeavor—(One Reel Featurette) — American — March 16. — Featuring Wallace Reid. Jim had been away for a long time. Marjie heard that he was returning from college and so dressed up for the occasion. Jim dons his cowboy outfit however. The boys decided to give him a party. This was the inspiration of Chick, who tells his sweetheart Polly about it. Jim in his exuberant spirits kissed Polly and was seen by Chick. A riot follows and Chick was thrown into a corrall with a vicious ram.

A Matrimonial Shock—(Two Reels)—Vogue—March 17.—Featuring Lillian Hamilton. Lillian Hamilton is the young heiress, who with her colored maid goes to a fashionable summer resort. There she is seen and admired by John and Owen, who set out to win her. She is locked out of her room one night and so dons her brother's clothes. She is seen by John, who thinking she is a boy, plans a trick on Owen. John goes up to Lillian's room and there he sees Lillian's maid, heavily veiled and dressed in Lillian's clothes. Thinking it is Lillian he drags her downstairs and there is astounded when she unveils. Meanwhile Owen marries Lillian.

Universal Program

Universal Animated Weekly No. 62—March 7.—Seventeen hundred school ma'ams visit students at naval training station—Lake Bluff, Ill. Rear-end crash in fog results in death horror in telescoped cars.—Mount Union, Pa. Storekeeper presents "costly" onion to every purchaser.—New York City. Hard job to demolish old city building to be replaced by recreation center.—San Francisco, Cal. Great Britain bending every effort to rush ammunition to front.—Somewhere in England. Captor of Aguinaldo and Army hero is honored by thousands.—San Francisco, Cal. Japanese steamer "Hudson Maru," taken by sea raider and used to carry ashore prisoners from other ships.—New York City. Chief executive of nation is inaugurated with impressive ceremonies. Washington, D. C. Let's all be Americans now. Cartoons by Hy Mayer.

Some Specimens—Nestor—March 12.—With Eddie Lyons, Margaret Whistler, Lee Moran, Edith Roberts and Mrs. Witting. Mrs. Willoughby and her daughter, Bess, meets Mrs. Montgomery at a society card party. They decide to have their sons, Walter and Percy, meet. Wallie is a student of minerology and Percy of botany. In the meantime the two boys have a fight over a couple of chorus girls. The next day Percy and Walter meet. They give a rake lecture to their mothers, who think their knowledge amazing.

The Oriental Death Punch—Episode 1 of the Voice on the Wire—March 12.—With Ernest Shields, Ben Wilson and L. M. Wells. Alvin Van Cleft, a wealthy man, is killed one night while out in a taxi with a chorus girl. Some time later his son Howard, is notified by a mysterious voice that his father has been murdered. He is the third victim—two others who had been interested in chorus girls having preceded him. John Shirley, interested in criminology work, Professor Montague, a prominet physician, and Detective Cronin start working on the case. They arrive at the conclusion that Van Cleft was murdered by the Japanese death punch. Many thrilling incidents take place in this installment. It is finally brought to a close by the professor overpowering two thugs and taking them to the police station.

The Vault of Mystery—Episode 12 of the Purple Mask—March 12.—With Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Kelly determines to apprehend the "Purple Mask" and goes to "The House of Mystery." He is outwitted by Pat and finally finds himself many miles from town. Pat decides to enter upon another adventure. Johnson, a man suspicious of banks, has constructed a submerged vault, completely surrounded by water. When Pat learns that he is the head of a vice syndicate, she decides to attack his vault and distribute the money among the poor. The episode closes with Pat surprising Johnson in his vault counting the day's haul. The girl throws a purple cloak over Johnson's head, while two men render him helpless.

A Woman in the Case—Victor—March 13.—With Eileen Sedwick, Ralph McComas and Milton Sims. Eileen told every one that she would never marry a man who had a mother living. She fell in love with Ralph and he saying he had no mother, she married him. Eileen was a terrible cook and her husband was desperate for food. Finding a letter addressed in a woman's handwriting in her husband's pocket, she forces the messenger boy to lead her to the house from which he received the letter. Through the window she sees her husband in the arms of a woman. She enters and begins to beat Ralph. The woman faints. After quite a chase Eileen learns that the woman is Ralph's mother.

The Common Sin—(Three Reels)—Gold Seal—March 13.—With Helen Gardner. Sheba, the most beautiful woman of the gypsy camp, was betrothed by her father to Carlo, a member of the tribe. She meets George Lattimer, a city man, and gives her heart to him. George induces her to leave with him. He soon tires of her and she returns to the gypsy camp, to bear her child. She dedicates the little girl with her last breath to the task of vengeance. Many years afterwards, Lattimer and his wife visit the place. They meet Eldora, and her grandmother recognizes the man. She tells the girl the story of her mother. She plans to carry out her mother's wish. The girl returns to town with the couple and Lattimer soon becomes attached to her. In the meantime, David, a gypsy boy, sets out for the city to make Eldora return with him. One day Lattimer makes open love to her. She tells him who she is and the man is terrified. At this moment David breaks in, stabs Lattimer and drags Eldora away with him. Later we see them restored to happiness in the forests.

Sins of a Brother—Imp—March 14.—With Herbert Brenon and William Shay. Will, a detective, has a younger brother who is going crooked. One day he catches him trying to hide some stolen jewelry. John confesses to have taken it from a peddler. Thinking that a prison sentence might bring him to his senses, Will handcuffs him and sends for the police. Their mother begs Will to give his brother another chance. Just as the police are about to enter, Will puts a chair through the window and tells the officers that the thief escaped. John promises to go straight.

Summer Boarders—L-Ko—March 14.—Featuring Phil Dunham. A call comes from a summer hotel for a decorator. The boss arrives with his assistant, Phil. The proprietor's wife is of a flirtatious disposition and her husband is very jealous. He suspects her of casting eyes at the boss paperer. Phil is hard at work pasting wallpaper on the desk, chairs, sofa pillows and other places except where it really belongs. The proprietor starts a chase. Several people are covered with paste and Phil, as usual, is the chief sufferer.

Where Glory Waits—(Two Reels)—Laemmle—March 14.—With Allen Holubar and Fritzi Ridgeway. The young king was sadly dreaming of his college days, when cares of state were unknown to him. His reveries were brokn by the learned counselors informing him that a marriage of state had been arranged with a certain dignified princess. It brought to his mind the laughing face of a sunny, curly-haired girl, the daughter of the university president. He rebelled at the hard responsibilities before him, and abruptly left the palace to wander in the forest. There he found a girl chopping wood and learned that she was the sole support of her bedridden mother and four young children. He was greatly impressed when she did not quarrel with her fate. She had taught him a wonderful lesson. Some days later Scylla received a purse of gold and a message from the king. The king married the haughty princess and when a girl was born to them, he insisted on calling her "Princess Scylla."

Dorothy Dares — (Two Reels) — Victor — March 15.—Featuring Ruth Stonehouse. Dorothy is in love with Harold Mason, a clerk in a haberdashery store. She is sent away to a girl's seminary, but is too love-sick to study. One day when she was very lonely she wrote home to her parents saying she couldn't live any longer. Harold gets a leave of absence to go to see his sweetheart. He sends Dorothy a note telling her he will be in her room at ten that night. The girls are unaware what to do as they are to be initiated into the Sigma Phil Sorority at that time. When Harold arrives he is put in the bedroom. There is quite an exciting time when the girls come. Harold is nearly discovered but is successful in eluding them. Dorothy's parents rush in and ask the meaning of the letter. Dorothy explains that she had a nightmare and wrote the letter in her sleep. All was again peace.

Universal Screen Magazine—Issue No. 10—March 16.—The first subject is the Government Weather Bureau at Washington, D. C. An interesting study of the armadillo, the little creature of the cactus country, is the next. Mrs. A. Louise Andrea shows us how to make chocolate creams. A timely subject is the testing of Government torpedoes, which cost $10,000 a piece. A few minutes of animated sculpture closes the reel.

For Honor's Sake—Big U—March 15.—Harry and Joseph are hunting together. They quarrel over a rabbit. Joseph strikes down Harry at his gate and thinking he has killed him, rushes into the woods. Gertrude, Harry's wife, finds him and brings him to. Harry tells her the story of the blow. Joe's wife hears of it and goes into the woods to hunt for her husband. She finds him overcome with grief at having killed his friend. Telling him Harry is not dead, he returns with her and begs forgiveness.

Love on Crutches—L-Ko—March 16.—With Hank Mann. Bill and a young interne of a hospital have a fight over a pretty nurse. Bill is left for dead. A policeman finds him and takes him into the hospital. In the ward an anarchist offers to stand treat. Bill steals his bottle. The nurse is sweet to him which arouses the ire of the anarchist. The anarchist puts a bomb under Bill's bed. The nurse sits on the bed, and the horrified anarchist tries to get her away. The bomb is discovered and the entire hospital force tries to get rid of it. In the end the anarchist and Bill are blown through space by the explosion.

The Tail of Thomas Cat—Animated Cartoon.—The cat is rocking in a chair. His tail becomes caught in the fence. A chicken grabs it in its beak and pulls it. The cat goes over the fence to settle with the chicken. They fight and the cat thinks the chicken dead. The chicken comes to. It goes through the fence and pulls the cat's tail right out. The cat cries. A dog comes along and laughs at the cat. Then a boy ties a tin can on the dog's tail. The cat is consoled. It sees that tails are no good after all.

"Burning the Candle." "The Vanishing Woman." "The Pulse of Madness."

Attractive new Essanays that ought to be good box office tonics.

The first two scenes are from "The Dangers of Doris" series, featuring Mary Anderson and released for Vitagraph by General. The last picture is "Missing," marketed the same way.

'Art Aches—Joker—March 17.—With William Franey and Gale Henry. The only one who receives Bill, a vendor of pictures, is Gale. She wants him to paint her as "December Afternoon." She poses with her feet in a basin of water for realism. Bill has to make good his bluff of being an artist. He enlists the aid of her maid, Lillian. She snaps the model and takes the negative out to have it developed. As revenge upon her mistress, Lillian changes the enlarged portrait for that of a donkey. A reception is held for the ceremony of unveiling the picture. When the substitute is discovered, Bill is kicked out. Gale gives up the patronage of art.

Racing Death—Laemmle—March 17.—With Robert Leonard and Betty Schade. The child of an auto mechanician is seriously ill and may require an operation at a moment's notice. He has to run the car in a race for a big prize for his employer. On the day of the race the child becomes worse and the parents know that an operation is necessary. The doctor cannot be reached. He takes the child, jumps into the car. Though he is the last to start in the race, he drives with such reckless speed that he comes in first. Not waiting to receive the congratulations from the crowd, he drives to the hospital. The child's life is saved.

Roped In—(Two Reels)—Bison—March 17.—With Bill Gillis and Countess Du Cello. All the boys on the ranch clean up for the arrival of their new boss, only to find it is a woman. She is very dignified and the boys are filled with awe. The next day she makes them clean up the place. The boys decide that one of them must propose to her so that the others can work the ranch. They draw matches and "skeeters," the foreman, wins. All he can stammer out is something about the day's work. He is ordered out of the house. "Hi Pockets" thinks that maybe he can turn the trick, because the boss has always liked him. He figures that if he marries her, he can be boss of the ranch and have the boys working for him. The boss accepts him and the wedding takes place. After the ceremony he orders his wife to get to work, while he takes it easy. The boys see that it is useless to protest when they are ordered around. They are a sadder but a wiser bunch, while "Hi Pockets" remains king of the situation.

The Clash of Steel—Adventure No. 2 of the Perils of the Secret Service—(Two Reels)—Imp.—With Kinsley Benedict, Jay Belasco, Claire Du Bray and Jean Hersholt. Princess Seraphina, taking her son Prince Paul, flees from her husband, Prince Feodor. The following day Count Stefan convinces Feodor that he should divorce the princess and marry Princess Sofia Anoria. Plans are laid to gain reasons for divorce. A great many exciting scenes take place, in which Norry, the secret service agent, figures. The picture is brought to a close with Norry rescuing the princess from the trap that has been made for her. When the prince learns of the past events, he realizes his own folly and pleads forgiveness. The princess pardons him on account of the boy.

The Hidden Danger—(Two Reels)—Big U—March 18.—With Mona Darkfeather. The Americans are sent out to subdue the rebelling Indians. They capture all the Indian squaws. Then the braves attack the fort to rescue the women, especially Minato. A great battle occurs, but the Indians are finally repulsed and driven back to their own lands.

Foreign Legations in China—(Split Reel)—Powers—March 18.—With Dr. Dorsey. First is shown the Imperial Palace, where the president of China now resides. Next we see the foreign quarters, with the legations of various countries. The Japanese, Dutch, German, Belgian, British and American legations are seen. The Russian legation and bank and the French cathedral. At the American legation the Marine Guard is being reviewed.

Feature Programs

Blue Bird

The Gift Girl—Bluebird—(Five Reels)—March 12.—An English baby, found deserted in a Persian forest, is taken into the childless home of Usun Hassan, a native prince. The infant grows into a beautiful girl, and is promised in marriage to a wealthy old merchant whom she dislikes. Malec, wooing her devotedly, gains a promise of an elopement, which, however, is frustrated by the prince's guards. Rokaia escapes to the harbor, where she takes passage on a steamer, eventually arriving alone in Paris. A motor accident introduces her into the home of the Marquis de Tonquin, whose son is sowing wild oats at the university. Deciding that the young man should settle down, and mistaking Rokaia's character, the Marquis pays her a salary to go to the university to be Marcel's "companion." The young man realizes the girl's innocence, and establishes her respectably in his boarding house. The two are fast falling in love when Malec appears, abducting Rokaia to a foreign quarter of the city. From this den the girl is rescued by Marcel, who gains his father's consent to their marriage.

Christie Comedies

His Flirting Ways—Christie Comedy—(One Reel)—March 12.—Billie Rhodes, Neal Burns and Ethel Lynne, in the cast. Neal is a flirt, and though his wife, Billie, is the most patient of wives, he is in the hands of fickle fate. Wifey gets a delayed telegram from a girl friend, Ethel, containing the news that she will arrive for a visit. On his way down town Hubby sees a pretty girl and starts a flirtation. It happens to be Ethel and the excitement begins. When Ethel arrives at Billie's home, the picture of friend husband is shown and Billie informs her that Neal is a gay dog. "He is," says Ethel. "He tried to flirt with me." The two girls decide that Neal needs a lesson. Ethel continues the flirtation and Neal takes her to dinner. Billie garbs herself in the clothes of a "bad man" and follows them to the cafe, where she appears before them. "My husband" gasps Ethel, just as Billie shoots and Neal runs. The girls hurry home and Billie, properly dressed, greets him. Ethel appears later and blackmails him. He gives her a hundred and later goes into the hall to find them dividing the money. He sees that the joke is on him and when told of the masquerade of Billie, thinks her too clever to be left alone nights, so decides to stay home.

Fox

Sister Against Sister—(Five Reels)—William Fox—March 5.—Featuring Virginia Pearson. The story tells of the operations of two twin sisters, who, all unknown to each other, are working both for and against the same man. A plan to discredit a nominee for governor in the eyes of the public fails, and the perpetrators, together with their accomplice, the erring sister, suffer.

Metro

The Barricade—(Five Reels)—Metro.—Starring Mabel Taliaferro. Amos Merrill tells his daughter that Cook, a rising young westerner, has ruined him. Hope Merrill plans to revenge the wrong. Cook, discovering Merrill's misappropriation of the company's money, gives the man another chance. Hope wins Cook's love and marries him. Now she is ready for revenge. With the help of Gerald Hastings the affairs of Cook are at last in the hands of Hope. Merrill informs his daughter that it was not her husband but himself that had been in the wrong. Hope is overcome with grief but goes to her husband and begs forgiveness. The barricade is raised and the two at last made happy. Reviewed in this issue.

The Woman and the Game—Episode 10 of "The Great Secret"—March 12.—Featuring Beverly Bayne and Francis X. Bushman. Dr. Zulph brings about the capture of Detective Sears, but is not smart enough to keep him imprisoned, and the great sleuth escapes by a wily scheme. Meantime Dr. Zulph plans to get control of Beverly's securities. To further his scheme he uses his dupe, Sara Loring. This girl calls upon Strong to have her portrait painted, and in furtherance of her scheme she faints while posing. While Strong and Wee Wee are hunting medicine Sara is hunting for the Clark fortune and discovers the hidden treasure. She is still seemingly in a coma when Strong returns. He tries vainly to revive her and is still bending over her in his efforts to bring her back to consciousness when Beverly enters his studio and sees him. One look is enough. Beverly closes the door and retires. Thereby has Strong fallen considerably in the eyes of Miss Clark.

Mutual Star Production

My Fighting Gentlemen — (Five Reels) — American—March 12.—Featuring William Russell. Reviewed in this issue.

Red Feather

Border Wolves—(Two Reels)—Red Feather—March 12.—With Neal Hart and Janet Eastman. McGowan is the head of an organized band of gun-runners. Joe tries to make love to Tina, but McGowan orders him to keep away from her. The "Bum," wandering through the country, arrives at Snakehead. Joe hires him to help them. One evening Joe approaches Tina, the girl struggles with him. Her father rushes out, knocks Joe down and tells him that after tonight they part company. Joe warns the other men that McGowan is going to double cross them and that they will have to beat him to it. The "Bum" notifies the Rangers that the gun-runners are ready to carry out their plans. An exciting conflict takes place, but the bandits are finally taken prisoners. The "Bum" is found to be the best Ranger in the service.

The Girl Who Lost—(Three Reels)—Red Feather—March 12.—With Cleo Madison and Daniel Leighton. Mary was a chorus girl but didn't belong to the "fast" set. After her work was finished she hurried home to her sister, Frances, whose one ambition was to go on the stage. At the close of the season, Mary goes "on the road," and leaves her sister in care of the landlady. Frances become dissatisfied and seeks work. She enters the employment of Andrew Van Holt. Soon she has sacrificed her honor. Mary hears of this and plans revenge. She makes the acquaintance of Van Holt's son, who is engaged to Millicent. When she has won his love, Mary goes to Van Holt and tells him if he does not marry Frances, she will marry Hayden. Andrew decides he will right the wrong that he has done. Mary has really learned to love Hayden, but gives him up in order that her sister may be happy.

Triangle

Blood Will Tell—(Five Reels)—Triangle-Ince-Kay Bee.—Featuring William Desmond. The Oakleys for years have held a prominent place in the affairs of Wall street. Young Samson, proving a failure at college and knowing nothing of business, is given a large allowance and left to find pleasure where he can. He becomes infatuated with a chorus girl and marries her. The father is furious and casts him off without a cent. The young man finds work in a factory and in this way supports them. The elder Oakley goes on a voyage. His enemies take advantage of his absence and attempt to cause his utter failure. Knowing what this will mean to his father, Samson junior takes charge and manages to rescue his father from the conspirators. The young couple is forgiven. Reviewed in this issue.

EVERETT TRUE COMEDIES
Featuring BOBBIE BOLDER as the Champion Pest Squelcher. Single reels that are reely funny You can purchase one or all. Beat your competitor to it. Write us for particulars. Our Studios Can Be Rented by the Day or Week.
Broadway at Granville Avenue, Chicago, J. E. Willis, General Manager, AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY

A Love Sublime—(Five Reels)—Triangle-Fine Arts.—With Wilfred Lucas. Philip, a powerful Greek, is in love with a little French waitress, but they are unable to marry on account of the girl's poor health. She is taken to the hospital to receive proper care and Philip goes to see her every day. One day he is told that she is dead. He starts trouble, is arrested and sentenced to two months in jail. After he is released he plays beneath the window of the hospital each evening. Many incidents occur and at last Philip learns that the girl did not die. They are reunited in "a love sublime." Reviewed in this issue.

Ultra

The Woman Who Dared—California—(Five Parts)—March 10.—Featuring Beatriz Michelena. The story opens in Rome where the Princess Beatrix is appearing as Marguerite in the opera Faust. She is much sought after socially. She becomes engaged to Count d'Olli, an Italian diplomat. A secret treaty has been made between Italy and Russia and has been given to the Count for safe keeping. Beatrix's brother, Henri de Rohan, French ambassador to Italy, appeals to his sister to help him secure the treaty so that he can send it to Paris for examination and then return it before the Count misses it. Beatrix secures the treaty and it is forwarded to Paris by special messenger. Noel Bren, a rich young American, who is in Rome, falls in love with Beatrix, but upon learning of her engagement leaves for Paris. Count Grozzi, an Italian diplomat, learns of the theft of the treaty from one of his spies and desires to get hold of it in order that he may secure a hold upon Beatrix by threatening to disclose the facts in the case. The messenger with the treaty is attacked by one of Duke Grozzi's hirelings and is about to be robbed of the treaty when the young American, Brent, appears on the scene, knocks the messenger's assailant unconscious and is given the treaty with instructions to deliver it to Beatrix. At the finish Brent's sacrifice of himself to save Beatrix's good name results in the dismissal of Count d'Olli and the winning of her hand by her American lover.

New Universals

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company offers on the program of March 12, instead of the customary five-reel Red Feather production, a double attraction, presented under this brand. The five reels include "Border Wolves," a three-reel heart-interest drama, with the scenes laid in the southwest.

The Red Feather double attraction is released Monday, March 12. "The Girl Who Lost" is one of the subjects. On the same day appears the Nestor comedy "Some Specimens."

Second in importance to the Red Feather double attraction is the release of the first episode of "The Voice on the Wire," the new Universal serial, founded on the novel by Eustace Hale Ball. The title of the first episode is the "Oriental Death Punch." The chief offering for March 13 is a Gold Seal three-act drama. The other release of this date is the Victor comedy, "A Woman in the Case."

Herbert Brenon will appear in the leading role in the Imp drama, "Sins of a Brother," March 14. The Laemmle two-part drama "Where Glory Waits," the L-Ko comedy "Summer Boarders," and the Universal Animated Weekly, are the other comedy releases.

"Dorothy Dares," a Victor two-part comedy, written and produced by Ruth Stonehouse, who also plays the leading role, is the feature offering for March 15. The other release of this date is the big U drama, "For Honor's Sake."

The second of the George Bronson Howard series, "The Perils of the Secret Service," entitled "The Clash of Steel," featuring Kingsley Benedict, appears March 16. The Universal screen magazine number 10, and the L-Ko comedy, "Love on Crutches," are other Friday subjects.

A Bison western comedy drama, "Roped In," is the feature release of March 17. The Joker comedy, "Art Aches," and the Laemmle drama, "Rac-

Scene from prologue of "Johnny Get Your Gun," a Broadway show giving a comical version of life in a motion picture studio. In the center is seen Mr. Wilson, a freak director, who is said to be patterned after some eccentric director now enjoying prominence in the film business. Picture folks in New York are trying to guess the identity of the original character.

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	75	85
Biograph Company.	5	14
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.	95	110
Lone Star Corporation, pref.	97	100
Lone Star Corporation, com.	35	39
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	30	34
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	22	24
North American Film Corporation, com.	21	25
States Film Corporation, com.	24	30
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.)	60	75
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2¼*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company	150	..
Triangle Film Corporation	1⅞	2¼*

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to Motography)

Douglas Fairbanks Company—The stock of this company was all sold privately to friends of this actor. There is some demand for stock but none for sale.

Greater Vitagraph Company—Has made arrangements to greatly increase the capacity of its Los Angeles plant.

General Film Company—No trading is reported and preferred stock is still quoted nominally around 40. This company is now releasing a number of plays from the works of O. Henry.

Lone Star Corporation—Bookings continue large. Trading in stock has been moderately active around 35 to 37 for common and 98 to 99 for preferred.

Mutual Film Corporation—A few transactions have been reported at 20 to 23 for common and 31 to 32 for preferred. It is rumored that there will be developments shortly that will improve market for securities. Reports that Charlie Chaplin had signed up with another company seem to have been premature, as the Mutual people are still figuring with him and are making satisfactory progress towards a new contract.

Metro Pictures Corporation—Has arranged to produce five feature pictures of five reels each by Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne.

States Film Corporation—A little trading in this stock has been reported between 25 and 30.

Thanhouser Film Corporation—Has engaged Richard R. Neill as leading man in new play by Lloyd Lonergan.

Vogue Films—There is considerable stock of this company on the market from 105 to 115, but not much demand. Profits are believed to be large, but no figures are obtainable by stockholders. Some reports have been circulated that dividend of 6% will be declared in April.

ing Death," are other Saturday offerings.

The Big U two-part Indian drama, "The Hidden Danger," with Mona Darkfeather, and the Powers split reel, "The Mystery of the Forbidden City," a Dorsey educational, are for release Sunday, March 18.

"The Vault of Mystery," the twelfth episode of "The Purple Mask," with Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, will be released during the week.

Pathe Program for March 18

Pathe states that its program for the week of March 18 is one of the best that the company has ever released. It includes "Pots and Pans Peggie," a Gladys Hulette feature; the first episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross," the first two-reel "Lonesome Luke" comedy, and the first of Pathe's combitone scenics. "Pots and Pans Peggie" is the story of a little Irish girl who has to support her brothers and sisters by "working out."

"The Lady in Number Seven," is the title of the first episode of "Mystery of the Double Cross," in which is introduced a novel character, the Masked Stranger. The Astra Film Corporation is the producer of the serial, which was made under the direction of William Parke, with Molly King as the star.

The tenth chapter of "Patria," featuring Mrs. Vernon Castle, is entitled "War in the Dooryard."

"Lonesome Luke's Lively Life," is the title of the first two-reel Luke comedy in which Harold Lloyd is coat boy in a white light cafe. Luke does an exhibition dance with Beebe Daniels as his partner and the bouncer-like proprietor trying to reach him.

The twenty-third release of the Florence Rose fashions shows thirteen beautiful advanced styles which are in the reach of every American woman.

In "Nomads of the North—Lapland," released on the same reel with the fashion picture, there are intimate views of the natives of Lapland and views of a herd of reindeer.

"Know America, the Land We Love," is the title of the Combitone scenic picture released in one reel. This is the first of these pictures made by Westgard and Hochstetter and contains scenes of Arizona and New Mexico. There is also an International cartoon and scenic, split-reel, and Hearst-Pathe news numbers 24 and 25 complete the program.

PUBLICITY MAN LEADS MARCH

H. H. Van Loan, publicity manager for Universal, has been asked to lead the grand march at the carnival and ball to be given by the Brooklyn Motion Picture Aid Society at the Labor Lyceum on April 8. Violet Mersereau will be Mr. Van Loan's partner. This publicity gentleman has proved so graceful and efficient as the leader of grand marches that he receives invitations to serve in this capacity almost daily. It has been rumored on Broadway that he is to appear on Fifth avenue at the head of a parade in the near future. This is only a rumor, however, and we merely offer it as such.

HARRY ENNIS WITH ART DRAMAS

B. P. Fineman, advertising and publicity manager for Art Dramas, Incorporated, resigned last week from that position to accept a similar post with another producing organization. Harry Ennis, who has been motion picture editor of the Clipper for some time heretofore, was appointed to succeed Mr. Fineman.

Mr. Ennis was for a long time employed on daily newspapers in New York City and elsewhere. He has been associated with the motion picture industry since its earliest days, having started the picture department of the Clipper over six years ago. Before that, Mr. Ennis acted as advance man for a number of touring attractions.

SOL LESSER IN NEW YORK

Sol Lesser, president of the All Star Features Distributors, Inc., of San Francisco, is again in New York City on what is said to be the biggest and most important of his eastern visits.

It is Mr. Lesser's intention to consummate a number of important purchases for big features for his western territory of which early announcement will be made.

This young western film man has long been an object of undisguised interest in the film world owing to his unusual and successful activities in exploiting independent features; hence his future movements are being watched with a great deal of interest.

DON'T forget to send your dimes for the Varner Fund. MOTOGRAPHY asks you to help in presenting a suitable token of recognition to the man who saved millions of dollars to the exhibitors of the country through his successful fight against the proposed tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross receipts of motion picture theaters.

Edward Warren's One Hundred Thousand Dollar Cast

The cast chosen for the new Edward Warren productions. The names are given in the story.

THE accompanying picture shows the carefully selected cast for the coming Edward Warren productions. It also shows a picked cinematographic staff and stage crew. These people earn more than a million dollars a year. Each one has either a stage or screen reputation. Edward Warren has produced some of the biggest state right money-makers. The camera man has photographed some of the best pictures released on the film market, and the technical staff has been associated with productions like "The Daughter of the Gods," "Neptune's Daughter," and "War Brides," and other attractions that run up into seven figures.

From left to right, sitting, are: Sheldon Lewis, featured with Pearl White in "The Perils of Pauline," and the "Iron Claw"; Edward Warren, producer and director; Lillian Warren, art director; Marie Shotwell, featured in "Enlighten Thy Daughter," and the "Witching Hour"; Theodore Friebus, of the Fox Stock Company, and well known on the stage; Charlotte Ives, a Morosco star recently associated with E. H. Sothern in the Vitagraph picture "The Man of Mystery;" Walter Hampden, the recognized interpreter of the Good Samaritan, who formerly starred in "The Servant in the House." Standing, from left to right: Louis Plunion, chief property man and paper-mache expert, formerly with Herbert Brenon; Henry Conjager, formerly with Thanhouser, Edison, and responsible for the photography of the "Deemster;" Richardson Holmes Perkins, assistant camera man; Thomas Tremaine, head of the mechanical department; George Fitch, technical director, formerly with Herbert Brenon, responsible for the technical management of "The Daughter of the Gods," "Neptune's Daughter" and "War Brides," and ten or twelve other features released chiefly by Fox and Selznick; Harry Hadfield, Mr. Warren's assistant, formerly with Lasky; Harry Benham, featured with the "Twenty Million Dollar Mystery," after five years associated with Thanhouser; and Mary Moore, sister of Tom and Owen Moore. The business management is under the supervision of H. Z. Levine, formerly of Triangle.

The organization, early in March, will move from the Herbert Brenon studios to the South, where quite a number of spectacular and elaborate scenes will be taken. It is estimated at this time that the entire production, which is known by the working title of "The Transgressor" will cost more than $200,000.

ATLANTIC COAST NOTES

Studio

Cedric Ivatts, who was drowned on the Laconia when that vessel was sunk by a German submarine, was closely connected with Pathe Freres. Mr. Ivatts was the brother of E. A. Ivatts, for many years chairman of the board of directors of Pathe Freres in France, and was for several years the general manager of Pathe Cinema, Ltd., of London. He leaves a widow and two daughters who are engaged in ambulance work in France. Mr. Ivatts has recently been representing American concerns in England.

Ethel Clayton was recently the recipient of a handsome diamond ring from Joseph Kaufman, her husband. The occasion was their third wedding anniversary.

In a special match game of handball, played at the New York Athletic Club, recently, Robert Warwick and his partner, James Hanley, defeated Ripley, sports cartoonist of the Evening Globe, and "Bugs" Baer of the Evening World. The scribes made so few points in both games that they have conveniently forgotten how many. Mr. Warwick, however, gives them credit for having scored about ten points in both contests.

Edna Hunter is reading several stories in an effort to find one suitable for a five-reel story, in which she is to be featured.

Madge Evans, who has played child parts with Ethel Clayton, Robert Warwick, Holbrook Blinn, and other stars of equal prominence, has been offered a contract by a California producing company.

Marguerite Snow, preparing to leave for a year's solid work in Toronto, Canada, is having photographs taken by all the leading photographers of New York. She wants to have a year's supply before leaving.

E. K. Lincoln's dogs won ten out of sixteen prizes at the recent dog show in Philadelphia.

Montagu Love was in Washington for the inaugural ceremonies and sketched the president taking his oath of office for a well known magazine.

Ethel Clayton's picture has been chosen from a list of over 1,800 subjects for the 1918 calendar for Pillsbury's flour.

Two Metro players, Kate Blancke and Edwin Holt, have been engaged by Oliver Bailey for his stage production called "The Innocent Sinner" which has begun a tour of the country. With the Metro company Miss Blancke played in "The Pretenders." "The Brand of Cowardice," and "The End of the Tour," Mr. Holt in "The Wheel of the Law" and "The Pretenders."

Ralph Kellard lately finished his contract as a Pathe star. Mr. Kellard's contract with the Pathe company has covered a period of fifteen months, during which he starred in "The Precious Packet," and in the two Pathe serials, "The Shielding Shadow" and "Pearl of the Army."

PACIFIC COAST

The collection of saddles and bridles is a hobby of Marin Sais, Kalem actress. She possesses nine, five of the saddles having been given her by the big-hearted cowboys who have admired her fearless riding, four are costly purchases, one wonderfully tooled saddle being bought from a convict.

Lamar Johnstone is a stockholder in the company which is making the big feature, "The Planter," starring Tyrone Power.

Henry King, who has been directing little Mary Sunshine, is directing and acting with Kathleen Clifford for a change.

Winnifred Greenwood, formerly with the American Company, is now with Balboa.

Robert Weycross, Balboa character man, is a reel cosmopolitan. In his time, he has played every nationality under the sun.

The little Indian wife, "Lithe Willow," in "The Captain of the Gray-Horse Troop," is played by Neola Mae, a Winnebago Indian.

Oscar Apfel, the director, has left the Yorke-Metro company.

Edward Sloman, the American director, is producing a story of a taxi-cab with William Russell starred and Francelia Billington playing opposite him. The photoplay is a comedy-drama.

From the Antipodes comes an appreciation for Chester Conklin, Keystone comedian. A correspondent from Perth, western Australia, tells Conklin he has taken the town by storm and is a rousing favorite there.

"Shorty" Hamilton, Mutual, used to be a real cowpuncher.

Tsuri Aoki and Tamaki Miura, the little Japanese nightingale of the Boston Grand Opera Company, had a pleasant seven days together during the opera company's last week's engagement in Los Angeles.

William V. Mong, the actor-director, is resigning from the Universal.

George Ovey, Mutual-Horsley funny man, writes his own comedies.

Myrtle Stedman, the Pallas star who has been ill, has sufficiently recovered to take automobile rides and to pay a visit to the studio.

William D. Taylor, the director, has severed his connections with the Fox company.

Edna Goodrich, Mutual star, has a house at Teddington-on-the-Thames in England.

Ben Turpin, Vogue-Mutual comedy, leads the choir in a Los Angeles church on Sundays.

George Fisher, playing opposite Mary Miles Minter (Mutual) was born in Milwaukee.

Grace Cunard is taking a very well earned rest. For years she has acted, written scenarios and even directed without any holiday.

After an illness of several days Helen Holmes is again at work at the Signal studios in the featured role of the serial, "The Railroad Raiders."

May Allison, of the Lockwood-Allison, Yorke-Metro Company, received an attractive offer from a well-known theatrical manager to reappear on the stage as the star of his new musical extravaganza. Miss Allison was at one time in comic opera.

Chicago News

B. H. BASKIN is now booking "The Great Secret" in the Chicago territory for Metro.

The elite of the South Shore Country Club brought Sarah Bernhardt to Chicago, via the screen, for the first American presentation of "Mothers of France."

Gerda Holmes, the World player, came to Chicago lately to visit her mother. She has been indulging in her first vacation in over a year.

American Standard has signed up Richard C. Travers, erstwhile Essanay star, and the popular actor will begin work in Chicago immediately on a special feature.

The sub-committee of the city council has again postponed action on the proposed ordinance increasing theater licenses, owing to the death of City Clerk John Siman.

Lubliner & Trinz have purchased the Illinois rights for the big multiple reel feature, "Ramona," which had its first presentation at the Auditorium Theater last season.

Most Chicago film men knew Billy Aronson, formerly manager of the College Inn. He has now ascended to the position of business manager of the Yorke-Metro studios.

Ralph O. Proctor, of Art Dramas, and president of the Reel Fellows' Club, returned last week from a ten days' business sojourn in the big village on the eastern seaboard.

Al Cohn, formerly with Photoplay Magazine, at 350 North Clark street, is now located in Los Angeles. He is still associate editor of that splendid publication and is also acting as its Pacific Coast representative.

Frederick L. Collins, president of McClure Pictures, is expected in Chicago during the course of his tour over the country. What about that banquet, Mr. Montgomery, for the exhibitors who are showing "Seven Deadly Sins"?

Joseph Skirboll, Metro district manager, spent two days in Chicago early in the month. His journeys over his territory take him through a circle of cities which includes Pittsburgh, Chicago, Kansas City, Des Moines and St. Louis.

W. J. Wienold has been appointed assistant to General Manager M. G. Watkins of the American Standard Company. The Great Photoplays Company will begin soon the production of two six-reelers for American Standard.

In connection with the probe into the activities of the gang of film thieves supposed to be operating hand in hand in several cities, the trial of Abram Abramovitz, alias Abrams, was called a few days ago before Judge Robert E. Crowe in the criminal court. The defendant failed to appear. He is charged with stealing six reels of Chaplin films from the offices of the Mutual company in Chicago. The films were consigned to an agent in Sioux City, and $150 was paid for the consignment. It is said

Abramovitz was formerly an employe of the exchange.

Senator Guy Guernsey, who introduced the censorship bill in the Illinois legislature, which was described in Motography of March 3, invites the expression of opinion by exhibitors and film men on the merits of the measure.

J. L. Friedman, of the Celebrated Players Film Company, is thoroughly an optimist. He says advisedly that the best days are ahead for exhibitors. At present he is busy with the convention plans of the F. I. L. M. Club, of which he is president.

The introductory Chicago run of Mary Pickford's new picture, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," begins March 10, at the Auditorium Theater. The Artcraft management engaged the house. Admissions will be twenty-five and fifty cents during the stay at the Auditorium.

Mr. Le Mont E. Snell has been doing the handshake among the exhibitors on the south side. If he has his way about it they will all begin running Paramount pictures seven days a week. He recently joined the selling organization of the Famous Players Film Service.

B. McElroy, of the firm of Fitzpatrick & McElroy, who operate a number of theaters, mostly in the state of Michigan, made a business trip to Detroit last week accompanied by Emory J. Miller, vice-president of the company. The concern has taken over a couple of new houses in Michigan.

The meeting of the national executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, which was set for March 2, was postponed for one week and was held on Friday, March 9, at the Sherman Hotel. The whole story of the actions taken will be given in next week's issue.

Judge A. P. Tugwell, national vice-president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, arrived in Chicago March 1. He came from Los Angeles to attend a meeting of the national executive committee of the M. P. E. L., scheduled for March 2. The meeting was postponed until March 9.

The Rev. M. P. Boynton, pastor of the Woodlawn Baptist Church, appeared as a witness before the superior court recently at a hearing on the Universal Company's appeal from the censor board's ruling against "The Sins of the Sons." In a sermon the Rev. Mr. Boynton defended the producer and declared the official ruling of the censor board was stupid. He approved the decision of Judge David, setting aside the ban put on the film by the Chicago censor board.

H. Gimbel, formerly proprietor of the Strand and Republic theaters, returned to Chicago for a few days during the last fortnight. He is associated with Bluebird Photoplays at Indianapolis. He promises to write a letter to Motography readers giving the confessions of an exhibitor who has turned salesman.

Aaron J. Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, is one of the incorporators of the Business Men's Association of Madison Street, which has been formed to further the plan for lighting Madison street in the loop. Harry C. Moir, John Z. Vogelsang and Leonard R. Adams are associated with Mr. Jones as incorporators.

J. D. Williams, Australian exhibitor, spent several days in Chicago recently. He visited the leading picture palaces and made notes on features of construction which he expects to incorporate in theaters which he plans to build in Sydney and Melbourne, Australia. He is making a tour of American cities accompanied by his wife.

T. C. Montgomery, McClure representative, ran his finger down a list of theaters and counted one hundred and twenty-five Chicago houses which are showing "Seven Deadly Sins." There are enough not included in the list to raise the number to one hundred and fifty. Exhibitors come to the office daily to book the series.

The officers of George Kleine and the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service have been removed to the seventh floor of the College building, 207 South Wabash avenue. The entire seventh floor has been occupied by Manager Jenner and his staff. The Kleine Optical Company remains at the former address, 166 North State street.

Freeman Owens, of Essanay's commercial department, can hardly keep from roasting during this warm weather. He shortly returned from Alaska, where he and an assistant shot up a lot of scenery, picturing up some 15,000 feet of film or more. Mr. Owens states that Alaska is more progressive than people imagine, but that there are but two seasons there—winter and July.

The management of the Alfred Hamburger theaters has closed arrangements with Selznick-Pictures to show all Selznick releases. Through Manager Brockell, of the Selznick-Pictures branch, Mr. Hamburger has booked all Clara Kimball Young releases, Norma Talmadge in "Panthea" and "Idle Wives," "The Masque of Life," and the Robert Warwick features, including "The Argyle Case."

Manager J. E. O'Toole, of the Fox Chicago office, deserted his desk for the afternoon and acted as host to the two smallest and youngest stars of the William Fox aggregation, the Misses Jane and Katherine Lee. The children were accompanied by their mother. With Jack O'Toole piloting the party, they visited the Studebaker Theater to see "A Daughter of the Gods," in which the Lee children played.

The industrial motion picture committee of the Chicago Advertising Club has asked T. T. Maxey, advertising agent of the Burlington railroad, to exhibit the club's series of films, "Seeing Western America," in connection with other Burlington pictures. The pictures were made by the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago. Edward H. Philippi is chairman of the committee of the Advertising Club.

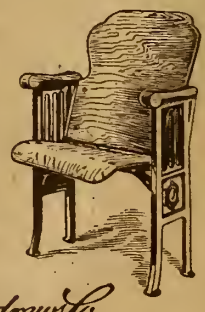
Walter L. Hill, until recently with the Famous Players Film Service at Pittsburgh, in charge of the exhibitors' service bureau, has accepted a commission with the Paramount in Chicago. He has become publicity manager for the Famous Players' distributing organization in the Illinois metropolis. When Mr. Hill and Miss Florence Higley get their heads together, things are sure to happen in the publicity line.

C. A. Rehm, president of the Atlas Educational Film Company, has in hand a communication from Martin Beck, of the Orpheum vaudeville circuit, notifying him that the Atlas thousand-foot scenic, "The Royal Gorge," will be shown in all Orpheum theaters. Mr. Rehm is arranging to produce a reel this summer on the growing of corn, beginning with the planting in the spring and ending with the harvesting of the crop.

A lively and enthusiastic meeting of the sales force of the local Paramount branch was held in the offices in the Consumers' building on the evening of March 3, with Manager Rutledge and Sales Manager Elliott in charge. S. I. Stoughton, of New York, the newly appointed middle western Paramount representative, talked to the men. Particular pep was generated in connection with the coming Fatty Arbuckle comedies.

The American Theatrical Hospital recently elected officers for 1917. Several prominent Chicago exhibitors serve as officers. All executive officers and members of the board of directors were re-elected. They are as follows: Hon. Charles N. Goodnow, president; Alfred Hamburger, vice-president; Hon. John P. McGoorty, treasurer; Miss Lillian M. Cody, secretary. The members of the board of directors are Messrs. Goodnow, McGoorty, Hamburger, George W. Sello, Walter F. Driver, Aaron J. Jones, Joseph Hopp, Edward Shayne, Fred C. Eberts, Frank J. Warren, J. Gartenstein, E. F. Borre, U. J. Hermann. The new hospital on Irving Park boulevard, on the north side, will be opened sometime in April.

FOR SALE
Mailing Lists
MOVING PICTURE THEATRES
Every State—Total 25,000
Price. $3.50 per M.
1400 Film Exchanges $4.00
206 Manufa turers and Studios ... 1.50
235 Picture Machine and Supply Dealers..... 1.50
Particulars.
A. F. WILLIAMS, 168 W. Adams St., Chicago

A SNAP For SOMEBODY
We have on hand a few hundred used chairs. Some veneer—some upholstered. All in good condition. Must dispose of them in a hurry. This is YOUR opportunity. Write for description and prices today.


THE A. H. Andrews Co.
115-117 South Wabash Avenue
Dept. M 1 CHICAGO, ILL.

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 24, 1917 No. ~~15~~ 12

More Than 9,000 Exhibitor Circulation Guaranteed

MAXINE ELLIOTT

A pre-eminent beauty, a talented and internationally-known artist, who will make her first appearance on the screen as a Goldwyn star. Her loveliness and the charm of her personality have challenged world-wide attention for years.

Hundreds of important newspapers have congratulated Goldwyn on bringing this notable woman into motion pictures. Here you may read a few of their comments:

PITTSBURG DISPATCH: "Maxine Elliott is one of the most beautiful women of whom the stage can boast. Goldwyn captured her."

BOSTON RECORD: "Miss Elliott will be a great favorite in New England. She is the most beautiful woman New England has ever given to the stage."

CHICAGO JOURNAL: "In bringing Miss Elliott to the screen Goldwyn has discovered a Gold-mine."

CLEVELAND PRESS: "Goldwyn succeeded where others failed. Miss Elliott is a big prize for the picture producers."

PORTLAND OREGONIAN: "Miss Elliott will appeal to a tremendous following."

DETROIT TIMES: "We cannot imagine there is a man or woman who will not hasten to see the beautiful Maxine Elliott on the screen."

THE SEATTLE TIMES: "Maxine Elliott . . . one of the most brilliant of all the stars."

FT. WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM: "Miss Elliott's entry into pictures for Goldwyn is one of the big events of the year."

Exhibitors will notice that Goldwyn's Big Stars represent Box-office Attraction at its Highest Point of Development.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation

16 EAST 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY

Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

Advisory Board:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

TRIANGLE

Releases for week of March 18th.

WILLIAM S. HART.

"THE SQUARE DEAL MAN."
INCE-KAY BEE

SEENA OWEN.

"A WOMANS AWAKENING."
FINE ARTS

Two
Triangle
Komedies

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

OVER 9,000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED.

A tense moment in "The More Excellent Way," a society drama in which Vitagraph presents Anita Stewart and Charles Richman.

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 24, 1917 No. 12

Picture Theaters Are Decreasing

CHICAGO SHOWS 29,000 DECLINE IN TOTAL SEATING CAPACITY

NOT only is the number of motion picture theaters decreasing all over the country, but the total seating capacity per city is also decreasing, according to figures submitted to the joint New York state legislative committee which is sitting at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, to investigate the motion picture industry with a view to determining its status as a subject of special taxation.

The figures, which were submitted by William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, covered twenty of the chief cities of the country of which thirteen showed a decrease in the number of theaters, six an increase and one no change.

Chicago Shows Surprising Figures

New York, Philadelphia and Chicago showed a most decided decrease, and in Chicago, where there were exact statistics, the decrease in seating capacity totaled 29,000, indicating that as the number of theaters was decreasing, the size of those remaining was, contrary to the general impression, also decreasing. Not only is the number of small theaters falling off, but the total seating capacity, representing more accurately the business done in each city, is also on the decline.

The figures were submitted in support of the contention of Mr. Brady and other officers of the National Association who are important producers and distributors and who have testified before the legislative committee that the business is ceasing to be the "gold mine" of earlier days and as such is not a proper subject for taxation as a producer of wealth without corresponding investment of capital and effort. President Brady and his associates are unanimous in their belief that the motion picture business should not be singled out for special taxation, but should be considered in this connection only as every other trades business from groceries to the railroads or automobile industries.

Especial attention is called in the table which follows to the showing in New York State, where, of the chief cities, only Albany and Utica show slight increases in the number of theaters, while New York, Buffalo, Syracuse and Rochester show decided decreases.

Interesting Figures on Theaters

The table submitted to the legislative committee follows:

Figures compiled for the motion picture tax investigation committee of the New York Legislature by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

Showing increase and decrease in the number of theaters in twenty important cities of the United States.

CITY		1913	1914	1915	1916	1917
Buffalo	(Dec.)	..	80	87	83	74
Albany	(Inc.)	..	18	20	..	..
Utica	(Inc.)	..	9	12	13	14
Syracuse	(Dec.)	..	..	44	41	38
Rochester	(Dec.)	56	44	42	40	34
Chicago*	(Dec.)
St. Louis	(Dec.)	..	194	150	157	139
Minneapolis	(Inc.)	..	..	..	61	64
Portland		..	..	..	52	52
Washington, D. C.	(Dec.)	..	76	76	68	..
Kansas City	(Inc.)	..	116	101	111	Est.120
Philadelphia	(Dec.)	237	259	234	197	167
Cincinnati		..	..	..	75	72
Seating capacity		..	..	..	38,787	37,761
Cleveland	(Inc.)	..	..	164	167	..
Detroit	(Dec.)	..	154	141	126	..
Boston	(Inc.)	..	..	..	60	61
Portland, Ore.	(Dec.)	..	275	237	..	..
						Up to 3/3/17
New Orleans	(Dec.)	..	89	83	80	47
Seating capacity		..	21,045	13,868	20,425	24,077
Revenue		..	$6,725	$5,767.50	$6,252.50	$8,000
San Francisco	(Dec.)	..	87	90	81	..
Revenue		..	$8,675	$9,000	$8,100	..
New York	(Dec.)	Decrease in 1917 over 1916, 140 theaters

Twenty cities reported.

Number showing increase in theaters	6
Number showing decrease in theaters	13
Number showing no change	1
	20

 1916 loss over 1915, decrease of 83 theaters; decrease of 29,000 seating capacity.

Censor Bill in Connecticut

A bill was introduced into the Connecticut legislature recently which provided for a commission of three persons at $2,000 a year salary to examine and approve films in the state. According to the terms of this bill, the commission could appoint deputies, there being no limitation placed upon either the number or salary. Nor was there any limitation placed upon the character of the film which might be excluded from circulation; such as whether it was indecent, obscene or immoral. It simply said that all films should be examined by it before exhibition. It also provided that the rate for examination should be 1 cent a foot which means $10.00 a reel. This would cost the motion picture industry, assuming that all the photoplays produced are shown in Connecticut, at least $100,000 a year. This is the most unreasonable bill which has been presented to any legislature for action.

Despite the character of this bill only three persons were at the hearing before the judiciary committee to oppose it. They were an exhibitor from Hartford, B. J.

Salvini; an exhibitor of New Haven, who was represented by an attorney; and Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Review. The unreasonable character of the bill was drawn to the attention of the committee and following the hearing it was believed that the bill would not be reported favorably.

ENDING DEPOSIT TROUBLES

Northwest Exhibitors Submit a Substitute for Advance System and Ask Producers to Aid Plan to Abolish Practice

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest has worked out a proposition that will be submitted to the exchange managers of the Twin Cities and to producers, under which it is hoped the advance deposit system can be relegated to the scrap heap for worn-out business methods. D. G. Rodgers, chairman of the committee which evolved the idea, presented a report of the plan at a recent meeting and the Northwest exhibitors voted their approval of the proposition unanimously.

The memorandum which the exhibitors are putting up to the exchanges for their approval stipulates that any member of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest shall be entitled to credit on films, providing his standing at the bank is good. It also states that all money that shall have been paid as advance deposits at the time an agreement shall be reached, shall be returned to the exhibitors.

Cancel Bookings on Ten Days Notice

Upon giving the exchange ten days' notice any exhibitor shall be entitled to cancel his bookings for a film, by the terms of the tentative proposition. If an exhibitor has been running a serial he cannot discontinue showing it, except, it is provided, if there is marked falling off in attendance at the last. Then, upon the customary ten days' notice, he may cancel the film.

If an exhibitor happens not to be in good standing at the bank and therefore is unable to satisfy the credit requirements of the exchanges, he shall be entitled to offer a surety bond or a cash guarantee, according to the committee's recommendations.

Charles H. Hitchcock, of the Princess Theater, Minneapolis, has become secretary of the organization to succeed William Koenig, who was obliged to resign the office on account of the pressure of business at the two theaters with which he is connected. Mr. Hitchcock resigned as chairman of the grievance committee to take the secretaryship. William Watson was named chairman of the grievance committee.

Corporation Holds Midnight Show

The Minneapolis exhibitors have arranged for a midnight show to be held March 27, at 11:30 o'clock, at the Pantages Theater. Tickets are selling at fifty cents each, the proceeds to go to the treasury of the Exhibitors' Corporation. Acts will be furnished by Minneapolis theaters.

The following new members have been enrolled:

George Carrisch, manager of the Third Ward Theater, North Minneapolis, 350 seats; Odell & Harris, managers of the Royal Theater at Hopkins, 300 seats; Aspin Larson, manager of the New Home Theater, North Minneapolis, 350 seats; W. A. Steffes, of the Northern Theater. Mr. Steffes was formerly secretary of the Northwest Exhibitors' Association.

ST. LOUIS PLANS BALL

Exhibitors of Centennial City Arrange Big Affair for City's Picture Goers—Mayoral Candidate Addresses Association

The Theater Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of St. Louis will hold a motion picture ball at an early date. A delegaation of five attended the recent function at Kansas City and gathered a few ideas on the quiet for a similar event in St. Louis. President Joseph Mogler, Secretary Hector M. E. Masmezolglu, Barney Rosenthal and Messrs. Baker and Floyd Lewis journeyed up the Missouri to attend the motion picture ball held in the sister city to the west.

The news of the exhibitors' organization is set forth in a newsie, interesting manner in the bulletin of the association, in which appears the minutes of the meetings. Mr. Pasmezoglu is the capable editor. He requests all members to mail to him any local news that might be of general interest.

A recent bulletin mentions that Howard Sidener, Republican candidate for the nomination for mayor in the primary election, addressed the association in reference to his candidacy and requested the association's support. Mr. Sidener assured the association that he stands for clean pictures, and that the charge against him that he is for censorship is false. He further asserted that he is against the closing of picture theaters on Sundays.

The application of John Sweeny of the Central Theater, for membership was approved at a meeting held early in the month.

It was reported by President Mogler that the joint committee of the exhibitors and exchangemen of St. Louis who went to Jefferson City in February to appear before a committee of the legislature to protest against censorship and tax measures then pending, succeeded in having both bills reported unfavorably. He stated that the McClintock Bill, Number 79, would probably never be reported out of committee.

Chicago Exhibitors Meet

A special meeting of the Chicago local branch of the M. P. E. L. of America was held on Friday, March 16, for the purpose of discussing and taking some action on the question of advance deposits for film rentals, and to discuss the Guernsey censorship bill which has been introduced in the Illinois state legislature. The latter bill provides for a state censor and purports to do away with all local censorship.

Thomas Furniss of Duluth and other prominent exhibitors were invited to be present and express their views on the questions. A complete story of the meeting will be found in next week's issue of Motography.

Baker Moving Picture Company, Lockhart, Texas, has been incorporated. Capital stock, $10,000. Incorporators, A. D. Baker, W. B. Swearingen and O. L. Swearingen.

Hasn't "Found Anything Wrong"

Dear Editor:

I have been reading Motography for about a year. I haven't found anything wrong about it. And "The Man Inside Booth" department is sure good for any operator to read.—Operator Family Theater, Reynoldsville, Pa.

Keeping the Screen Clean

NEW YORK COMMISSIONER TESTIFIES BEFORE WHEELER COMMITTEE

PREVENTING the showing of salacious and suggestive pictures in the theaters of New York City is one of the jobs of License Commissioner Bell of Manhattan. He has been answering some questions on objectionable pictures for the Wheeler committee of the New York legislature which is preparing a report on the question of taxing the motion picture business. There is no place for licentious pictures, declares Mr. Bell.

As one man, three witnesses summoned to testify in the interest of exhibitors, producers and distributors, commended the methods of Commissioner Bell and each reaffirmed the commissioner's dictum that salacious pictures must go.

Asks Producers' Opinions of Bell

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. distributing organization, one of the witnesses whose testimony conclude the investigations of the tax committee, was called upon for his opinion of the statements made by Commissioner Bell. Benjamin B. Hampton, president of the General Film Company, in answer to a similar question, gave his unqualified indorsement to Commissioner Bell and his manner of keeping the screens of New York theaters clean. William A. Brady, head of the World Film Company and president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, declared that Commissioner Bell has worked out the most efficient and satisfactory method of censorship that he had ever seen.

As one who deals with exhibitors and knows their problems and knows what the public wants in pictures, Mr. Irwin declared that Commissioner Bell speaks the thought of the picture loving public. Vile and indecent films must be kept off the screen, said the distributor.

He said that he concurred with Commissioner Bell and Mr. Hampton, the two witnesses preceding him, in almost every particular, but he objected to a statement that the continued production of salacious pictures would put the industry out of business. Mr. Irwin said:

> The public does not want vile films. It already is beginning to differentiate between the producers of such productions and those who make clean pictures. In time the sensational manufacturer will lose so much patronage that he will be forced to alter his policy or close up. But only the latter man will be hurt.

Keeping New York's Screens Clean

Commissioner Bell went into details on the question of objectional pictures and said he believes the public backs his department against them. In this connection he said he had recently stopped the showing of five films considered indecent, and that the Exhibitors' League of Brooklyn and other organizations had sent congratulatory messages as a result.

Large manufacturers, said the Commissioner, are producing better pictures than three years ago, but there is still trouble with the small house manager. The penal provision which forbids the admission of children without their elders is still often violated, he said.

Commissioner Bell said he believed there should be one day's rest in seven, particularly for moving picture operators. For that reason, he believed in the Sunday observance, although he thought it was foolish to permit certain shows on Sunday and prohibit others.

He guessed the average daily attendance as about 600,000 in New York theaters and thought fifty per cent of the afternoon audiences consist of children, and that about ten per cent of the evening crowds are children.

Proper regulation by the state, under a commission that would follow the methods developed by Commissioner Bell in New York City, according to Mr. Hampton, would protect the industry against large losses that now occur through thefts and as a result of mutilation through inexperienced operating. He strongly indorsed the plan of having in every state a commission based on the ideas of Commissioner Bell. He expressed the view that all amusements and sports should come under such a control if the system could be extended with practical results.

Advises Against Tax on Exhibitors

Care must be exercised before any tax is imposed, said the witness, not to further burden the exhibitor, particularly the small exhibitor, because he is a necessity to the public and the producer. What is needed, he added, is a state machinery, imposing a small tax, which will keep clean the industry and drive out the licentious picture. He believed the short film, crowded out by a surfeit of features, would soon return.

Mr. Brady also advocated a system of state regulation based on Commissioner Bell's methods. On the subject of taxation he repeated his earlier contentions that the industry is not at this time in a condition to bear added tax burdens. He said:

> We are willing to do our share as citizens of the state, if only the entire amusement field is made to do its share. Baseball, the opera and the cabarets are far more able to bear a burden than we are. If you tax us we will have to let the courts decide whether this is discrimination, but your attitude has been so fair that we have lost all fear of you.

Licentious and vile pictures cannot by any chance survive public condemnation, Mr. Hampton stated at one point in his testimony. The unanimous avowal of the four witnesses to the same effect, which is the equivalent of saying that the manufacturers of objectionable films are dragging themselves and the exhibitors who show their pictures toward inevitable business ruin, marks the close in the investigations of the Wheeler committee. The report of the committee on the tax question is expected soon.

Urges Operators' Examinations

J. H. Hallberg, manufacturer of film projection machines, recently went into detail as to the reason of faulty projection and the damage done to prints. He explained that in most cases it was due to the carelessness or incompetence of the operator, and advocated a state examination and regulation for that branch of the trade. The operators' unions, he added, were doing a great deal to raise the standard of men employed in this occupation.

Association Directors Meet

The quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was held in the association's headquarters in the Times Building, New York, on Thursday, March 15. The directors held monthly meetings in September, October and November during the first days of the association and this is the first meeting at which the accumulated business of three months came up. The executive committee, which has been meeting at least every two weeks, on call, has full power to act, but considerable matter necessarily goes over to the board of directors. Motography will carry a complete report of the meeting in next week's issue.

INDIANA LAW INVALID

Error in Omission of Two O'clock Amendment in Sunday Bill Causes Governor to Veto It After Once Signing It

By a slip that went unnoticed for twenty-four hours, the Indiana law legalizing picture shows on Sunday, after being passed by the legislature and signed by the governor, went to the printer with an omission which has rendered the law inoperative. The newspapers on March 8 announced that the film men had won their fight for Sunday performances. It was true. They had won the struggle of weeks duration and Governor James P. Goodrich had affixed his signature to the bill.

Then it was discovered a day later that the house amendment stipulating that theaters could be opened at 2 o'clock on Sundays had been omitted in the haste of the closing session of the joint committee of the house and senate which considered the amendments.

Governor Goodrich Regrets the Error

As it stood the bill would have permitted all-day Sunday shows and, while the governor had announced that he favored Sunday pictures with restrictions contained in the bill, he was unwilling to let it become a law without the house amendment. Accordingly he vetoed it, expressing regret at the same time that he regarded such action as warranted and necessary.

The bill originated in the senate and to amend it to meet the approval of the governor it was necessary to have the senate refuse to concur in the house amendments, which included the 2 o'clock provision. The desired amendment was endorsed by the conference committee, but failed to get into the revised bill through an oversight.

President Frank J. Rembusch of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League has issued a statement announcing the intention of the exhibitors to renew their endeavors, in which he says:

Naturally Indiana exhibitors are disappointed but not discouraged. The whole industry make take inspiration from the possibilities. Our proposition was a clean-cut one; we proved that the people want pictures on Sunday if the pictures are especially clean and wholesome. If a particularly clean program is exhibited on Sunday in a short time every city in the United States will have Sunday pictures if they want them.

We apologize to no one. We demonstrated that the best people were in favor of it, even some ministers. The showing of pictures would give the business that impetus needed at the present time by adding one day. It would have made $5,000 more film rentals in Indiana and a quarter of a million dollars more to the exhibitors in box office receipts.

All the exhibitors of America need to do is to stand on their rights and do right; work to uplift the industry rather than degrade it, and we will all be more prosperous and better thought of.

Theaters and Women Co-operate

By William Noble
Special Correspondent for Motography.

Fourteen managers of motion picture theaters have agreed with the Collegiate Alumnae at Kansas City, Missouri, to exhibit at Friday night shows only pictures recommended and censored by the women. The agreement followed a long series of conferences between the alumnae, Frank L. Newman, proprietor of the Royal and Regent theaters, who will assist the women in obtaining the films, and the theater managers.

Under the agreement, fourteen approved films will be obtained by Mr. Newman. They will be run on Friday nights in the theaters in the "pictures for the family" pact. After that they will be interchanged to furnish each theater with a new program each Friday night. All obstacles that for a time threatened the plan have been overcome. The only great issue in the conferences was the first-run dispute between the theater managers. This is now settled, and fourteen managers are working enthusiastically to present clean and uplifting pictures.

Friday night was chosen by the Collegiate Alumnae because it is then that school children attend in greatest numbers. The managers say that for them and the parents or adults who accompany the children, they are going to do their best.

This Makes Us Feel Fine

Motography, Chicago:

My subscription has expired, but I do not want to "drop out" without expressing my sincere appreciation of your paper.

I never spent any money in my life which brought me as much value; I learned more than all the books and papers combined had taught me before, and I take the greatest pleasure in recommending your paper to all my friends.

You have my very best wishes for your continued success.—M. E. Weaver, Farmersville, O.

ACTORS' BENEFIT BAZAAR

Fair to Be Held May 12 to 21 at Grand Central Palace to Raise Funds for Relief Work Begun Thirty-Six Years Ago

The Actors' Fund of America, organized thirty-six years ago by the great men of the theatrical profession, among them Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson and others as well known and now deceased, is being maintained with difficulty, and to increase its resources, the officers are arranging to hold a benefit bazaar at the Grand Central Palace, New York, May 12 to 21.

The actor is the first to enlist his services in behalf of other charities by performances such as have yielded millions of dollars sent abroad to relieve the sufferers disabled in the war zone. Now the actor stands in need of aid.

It has been the custom every five years for the Actors' Fund to hold a bazaar by which its treasury was sufficiently replenished to aid in the financial activities to carry on this work, but these plans were abandoned when the war broke out, in order that the public's attention in connection with fairs and bazaars might be given directly and generously to the needs of the nations abroad, in which the theatrical profession itself has aided so largely. The present fair, it is hoped, will arouse sympathy and interest in all parts of America.

Ella Hall, plays the title role in a five-reel comedy-drama, "The Little Belgian," written by H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal company.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews Motography publishes in each week's issue the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

The Girl Philippa, with Anita Stewart, (Vitagraph)—"Audiences very well pleased and business good."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Ramona, (Clune)—"The audiences went wild about the beauty of this picture and business was big. We ran it two days."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

A Son of Erin, with Dustin Farnum, (Paramount)—"A very pleasing picture liked by all my patrons. Brought fair business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Each to His Kind, with Sessue Hayakawa, (Lasky-Paramount)—"A fairly pleasing picture which brought fair business. The star is very good."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Heir to the Hurrah, with Anita King, (Paramount)—"This well acted picture, with a good story, pleased my patrons. Business was fair."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Wax Model, with Vivian Martin, (Paramount)—"A picture which pleased the audiences very much. The star is becoming very popular and was well liked in this. Brought good business."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Little Brother, with Enid Bennett, (Triangle)—"This offering pleased. It made an especially good Sunday show."—E. Dlouhy, Vitagraph Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Little Brother, with Enid Bennett, (Triangle)—"Pleased the patrons and brought good business."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Promise, (Metro), Harold Lockwood and May Allison.—"This picture pulled big business for us. Both of the stars are attractive and very well liked here."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—In a well-to-do apartment house neighborhood.

One of Many, (Metro), Frances Nelson.—"Here is another very good Metro feature. It was a good bill for our box office."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—In a well-to-do apartment house neighborhood.

Patria, (International-Pathe serial), Mrs. Vernon Castle.—"Number three was an especially well liked chapter. People keep coming just to see Mrs. Castle."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—In a well-to-do apartment house neighborhood.

The Child of the Wild, (Fox), June Caprice.—"This is one of the best box office attractions we have had in a long time. Any manager that books 'The Child of the Wild' can be sure that he is going to have a feature that is going to make him good money."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—In a well-to-do apartment house neighborhood.

Love's Law, with Joan Sawyer, (Fox)—"Did not go over very well. Business poor."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Princess of Patches, with Vivian Reed, (Selig-K. E. S. E.)—"Every patron in the house went away satisfied. If there is any manager who does not satisfy his audience with this picture, I don't care what class he is catering to, I certainly sympathize with him. He has a hard job on his hands and had better not try."—Eugene Saunders, Palace Theater, Harvard, Illinois.

Idle Wives, with Lois Weber and Phillip Smalley, (Universal)—"Although it was shown since the beginning of Lent and there were union revival meetings being conducted here, we did the biggest business that the Palace has ever done with a matinee."—Eugene Saunders, Palace Theater, Harvard, Illinois.

Passion, with Shirley Mason, (McClure series, "Seven Deadly Sins")—"Business was poor and the patrons did not care for the picture."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Black Wolf, with Lou-Tellegen, (Paramount)—"Business only ordinary and the picture did not satisfy."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Hulda from Holland, with Mary Pickford, (Famous Players-Paramount)—"A very clever production which went over big. Well liked by patrons. From a box office standpoint, great."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

Miss Jackie of the Navy, with Margarita Fischer, (Pollard-Mutual)—"An excellent comedy drama which gave excellent satisfaction."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

The Great Secret, with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, (Metro serial)—"Our patrons do not care for Bushman in this serial and it has little drawing power.

I have lost many of my steady patrons since I have begun it."—S. K. Leen, Ruby Theater, Jamestown, North Dakota.

Kitty MacKay, with Lillian Walker, (Vitagraph)—"I have received a great many compliments on this production. Lillian Walker is always well received."—S. K. Leen, Ruby Theater, Jamestown, North Dakota.

A Daughter of the Poor, with Bessie Love, (Triangle)—"An ordinary production which played to fair business."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Little Brother, with Enid Bennett, (Triangle)—"Good business."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Dancer's Peril, with Alice Brady, (World)—"Brought good business and was well liked."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Winning of Sally Temple, (Paramount), with Fannie Ward.—"We ran this for two days, Monday and Tuesday. It was only a fair drawing card. Our people don't seem to care a great deal for these old style costume plays."—De Luxe Theater.—Drawing from a critical class of people.

The Girl Philippa, (Vitagraph), starring Anita Stewart.—"This is sure a mighty good picture—one of the best we have run in a long while. We kept it on two days to very good business. Any man who books this will make his box office happy."—De Luxe Theater.—Drawing from a critical class of people.

The American Consul, (Paramount), Theodore Roberts.—"This brought us a fair amount of trade, although we didn't hear any comment from patrons on it one way or the other."—De Luxe Theater.—Catering to a critical class of people.

The Gentle Intruder, (Mutual), Mary Miles Minter.—"That was a fine picture and it did a mighty good business for us. The people we have like Mary Miles very much and her name always pulls 'em in."—De Luxe Theater.—Catering to a critical class of people.

The Accomplice, (Art Dramas), with Jack Sherrill and Dorothy Bernard.—"We did an unusually good business with this feature. It was very well produced and made a good impression on our audiences."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—In a well-to-do apartment house neighborhood.

A Tale of Two Cities, with William Farnum, (Fox)—"Audiences are pleased with this and say it is great. It is playing a full week at the Rose Theater and attracting very good business."—H. C. Miller, Rose Theater.—Downtown house.

The Barricade, with Mabel Taliaferro, (Metro)—"Proved a good attraction and was well liked."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Empress, with Holbrook Blinn, (Art Dramas)—"The patrons say they like this picture. Business good."—H. C. Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Those Without Sin, with Blanche Sweet.—"This does not draw because it is a war play. The majority of patrons do not care for this subject and they have complained of this offering. The theme is the only thing they can complain of in this, however."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

A Square Deal, with Carlyle Blackwell, (World)—"Gave very good satisfaction. Business pretty good."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

One of Many, with Frances Nelson, (Metro)—"Went over fairly well with the audience. Most of them liked it. Business was fair."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

One Touch of Sin, with Gladys Brockwell, (Fox)—"The people seemed to like this. Business fairly good."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Darling of Paris, with Theda Bara, (Fox)—"Went over very well with the audience. Brought good business and the patrons were pleased."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton, (Triangle)—"Played to very good business and well pleased audiences."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Betsy's Burglar, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"This is not the sort of a picture my patrons like. Business was only medium because they were not attracted by the title. Those that came stated that they did not care for the picture."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Love and Hate, with Bertha Kalich, (Fox)—"This picture did not appeal to the audience for they did not care for its foreign theme."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Vermont Exhibitors Form League

Exhibitors in Vermont have responded to the recommendation of Ernest H. Horstman, president of the Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, that a state organization should be formed to combat harmful legislation against the industry in their state. The efforts of Mr. Horstman have led to the formation of a state league in Vermont. Application has been filed with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America for a state charter.

The president of the new organization is E. R. Hutchinson. J. J. Whalen has been named vice-president, and A. W. Kinne, treasurer. All are exhibitors of Burlington, Vermont.

The first problem tackled by the New League was the censorship situation. Vermont, like other states, is subject to legislative onslaughts against the business.

A meeting was held recently at Montpelier and officers elected for 1917. The following are members of the executive committee: A. Mariani, of Barre; E. F. Farrington, of Brattleboro; G. Valley, of Winooski; J. E. Leland, of Montpelier; A. J. Carpenter, of Windsor.

T. E. Crozier with Paramount

T. Emmett Crozier, formerly assistant city editor of the Kansas City Star, has just been appointed assistant director of publicity, under L. D. Balsley, in the Kansas City Paramount Exchange, of which A. D. Flinton is the head.

FOR THE YOUNGER PATRONS

National Board of Review Selects Pictures From the Month's Releases Well Suited for Boys' and Girls' Entertainment

As part of its monthly reports, the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures sends out a list of films suitable for children. Exhibitors interested in pleasing the youngsters of the neighborhood and their parents and teachers may be interested in this selection.

The latest list, together with an explanation follows:

This is a list of films selected for children from the pictures reviewed by the National Board during the past month. Those interested in providing programs for children may select from these lists the pictures especially suited for the particular group of children who are to see them. As the National Board reviews for the children of the entire country, the needs of any particular group cannot be considered. That must be left to those who know the needs of the particular group for whom programs are to be provided. (No. 12 means 12-16.)

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

	Name	Brand	Reels	Star	Character
‡12	Hazards of Helen—The Side-tracked Sleeper	Kalem	1	Gibson	R. R. Serial
‡12	Grant, Police Reporter — The Trap	Kalem	1	Larkin	Serial
‡12	The Saddle Girth	Selig	1		Rough Rider Story
‡12	A Strange Adventure	Selig	1		Comedy
	Caninated Nooz No. 24	Essanay	½		Cartoon
	American Travel Scenes	Essanay	½		Scenic
‡12	Efficiency Experts?	Kalem	1		"Ham" Comedy
‡12	For Reward of Service	Selig	1		Business Xmas Story
	Caninated Nooz No. 25	Essanay	½		Cartoon
	American Travel Scenes	Essanay	½		Scenic
‡12	A Daughter of Daring No. 2—The Registered Mail Pouch	Kalem	1	Holmes	R. R. Serial
‡12	A Brother's Sacrifice	Selig	1		R. R. Story

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

	See America First No. 74—Mississippi Coast	Gaumont	½		Scenic
	Komic Kartoon	Gaumont	½		Cartoon
	Mutual Tours No. 14—Holland. Luxor, Dalmatia	Gaumont	1		Travel
	Mutual Tours No. 15—France, Morocco, Italy	Gaumont	1		Travel
	Reel Life No. 41	Gaumont	1		Magazine
	See America First No. 75—Los Angeles, Cal.	Gaumont	½		Scenic
	Taming Tony	Gaumont	½		Cartoon
	Reel Life No. 42	Gaumont	1		Magazine
‡12	The Gentle Intruder	American	5	Minter	Domestic Story
	Mutual Tours No. 16—Heidelberg, Monte Carlo	Gaumont	1		Travel
	See America First No. 76—Vicksburg, Miss.	Gaumont	½		Scenic
	Polly's Day at Home	Gaumont	½		Cartoon
	Reel Life No. 43	Gaumont	1		Magazine
	Mutual Tours No. 17—Vienna, Sweden, Spain	Gaumont	1		Travel
	See American First No. 77—Chickamauga, Chattanooga	Gaumont	½		Scenic
	The Elusive Idea	Gaumont	½		Cartoon

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

	Name	Reels	Star	Character
	Avarice	1		Story
	The Good Fairy	2		Melodrama
	Her Great Desire	1		Drama
	His Family Tree	1		Broad Comedy
	Toto Takes a Hand	1		Comedy
‡12	Reformation of Tombstone Flat	1		West'n Comedy
	Grizzly Gulch Wakes Up	1		West'n Comedy
‡12	Man from Bombay	1		Comedy
‡12	Raiders	3	J. Eastman	West. Romance
	Tacky Sue, or The Little Warrior	2		Domestic Story

FEATURES.

‡12	The Deemster — Arrow State Rights	9	Caine	Manx Tragedy
‡12	Mutiny — Bluebird	5	Gonzales	Sea Story
‡12	Hearts and Saddles — Fox	2		Comedy
	A Child of the Wild — Fox	5	June Caprice	Rural Story
‡12	Tale of Two Cities — Fox	7	Farnum	Dickens' Tale
	Rex Beach in Central and South America — Grand Feature Film Co.	14
‡12	The Collie Market — Greater Vita.	2		Comedy
	Diary of a Puppy — Greater Vita.	1		Comedy
	The Little Strategist — Greater Vita.	2		Comedy
‡12	Intrigue — Greater Vita.	5	Hyland	Romance
‡12	Skinner's Dress Suit — Ess'y K.E.S.E.	5	Washburn	Society Story
‡12	Max Comes Across — Ess'y K.E.S.E.	2		Broad Comedy
‡12	The Promise — Metro	5	Allison	Lumbering Romance
	Pictograph No. 54 — Paramount	1		News
‡12	Fortunes of Fifi — Famous Players.	5	M. Clark	French Drama
	Pictograph No. 57 — Paramount	1		News
	Pots and Pans Peggie — Thanhouser	5	Hulette	Romance
	Vicar of Wakefield — Thanhouser	5	Warde	Goldsmith's Tale
‡12	Stagestruck — Fine Arts Triangle	5	D. Gish	Stage Romance
‡12	The Little Brother — Kay Bee Triangle	5	E. Bennett	Story
‡12	A Girl's Folly — World	5	Warwick and Kenyon	Motion Picture Studio Story

LISTED WITH DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

‡12	Grant, Police Reporter—Winged Diamonds — Kalem	1		Serial
‡12	Winning of Sally Temple — Lasky Paramount	5	F. Ward	17th Century Story
‡12	Stars and Bars — Keystone Triangle	2		Broad Comedy
‡12	Sunshine and Gold — Balboa Pathe	5	Osborne

To Make Screen Debut

Sylvia Bremer is the latest addition to the acting forces of Thomas H. Ince, and will make her first appearance on the Triangle program next month when she will appear as the heroine of the new baseball drama by C. Gardner Sullivan, starring Charles Ray.

Like Enid Bennett, Miss Bremer is a native of Australia, twenty years old. She is a brunette of unusual beauty and stands well above the average height. Patrons of the Triangle program will be accorded a pleasurable surprise in the screen debut of Miss Bremer, it is said, as she exhibits every quality essential to film success.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

FOR the finest and most authoratitive analysis of moral questions one would naturally turn to a board of picture censors, who have a great deal of practice in drawing fine distinctions. In fact some of their distinctions are so fine that there is difficulty in seeing them.

Here is a splendid example of the workings of the officially moral mind:

The title of one of the McClure's Seven Deadly Sins serics is "Passion." The Chicago censorial submarine didn't like that title. "It'll have to be changed," he frowned. And he suggested as a harmless substitute the title, "Indulgence."

It took a good deal of argument to convince him that he had added a bucket of red to an already rosy name.

There's one thing sure.

The Chicago Exhibitors' League is live.

The appointment of a new exposition chairman in Chicago can stir up more enthusiasm than some branches develop in a year.

PREPAREDNESS

Tell your wife right now that you'll have to take a trip over to Chicago for the big convention in July. Ver-r-y important.

HE SERVES WHAT IS SERVED

One of the most popular men in the Reel Fellows Club is Mr. C. W. Jones, former manager of Harry Miller's Rose.

There is at least one actor who sticks for censorship. He is Judge Newcomer, of Chicago, who appeared in "The Sins of the Sons."

The judge did his acting, he said, with the understanding that the film would not be shown unless passed by the New York and Chicago boards of censors.

But another judge has granted a writ ordering the city to permit the showing of the film, in spite of the censor board's objections.

And now the "acting judge" swears the movies will never catch him again without a regular Charlie Chaplin salary.

THE HOTEL CLERK COLLAPSED

When William Nigh's company of Fox players were in Chattanooga, Tennessee, recently, they found need for a large bag of stage, or more properly, "movie" money. Before retiring one night, Mr. Nigh gave the bag to the hotel clerk and cautioned him to be exceedingly careful of it, as it contained the salaries of his staff. Then he engaged the clerk in conversation, while a confederate made off with the "money," which was reposing in the open safe. The clerk closed the vault without noticing that the bag was gone.

The next morning, when he discovered the theft, the clerk phoned the police then collapsed.

They broke the truth to him after all the cops at the central station were on their way to the scene of the crime.

Introducing Yerza Dayne

There is a brand new motion picture leading lady out at Los Angeles, California. She is an unusual brand of leading lady as well, for she does not need to worry about her wardrobe or her pay check for a taxi to go from the Bryson Apartments, where her sumptuous rooms are located, to the studios of the Monogram Film Company, where she works every day.

Yerza Dayne. Yes, that's it—Yerza Dayne, daughter of a Montana millionaire, who plays leads in Mutual's Shorty Hamilton series.

When she needs a new gown, or a set of different furs, another hat or a pair of boots, all she does is to order her blue and gold limousine to the shop of one of the city's most exclusive outfitters. Then, when she is inside, she wanders about from one counter to another helping herself at will. There are no charges made nor no questions asked.

Yerza Dayne, the strikingly beautiful leading woman of "Shorty" Hamilton's series of adventures which is being released through the Mutual Film Corporation, is the wife of M. C. Levee, owner of the exclusive shop from which the actress pillages her wardrobe, and she is the daughter of one of Montana's influential millionaires.

Before her marriage to Los Angeles' wealthy merchant, Miss Dayne, as she has chosen to call herself professionally, was Miss Roze Hirshkowitz, one of the most sought after young women of the west. Today she is one of the favorite younger matrons of California society.

Miss Dayne is of an exceptional type of beauty. She is fascinatingly dark, with luminous brown eyes, regular features, and hands so unusually expressive that they have attracted a great deal of attention in the first few pictures of "The Adventures of Shorty" series—including "The Yellow Ring," "The Tiger's Den," and "Shorty at College"—which have been released.

Offers Reward for Film Thieves

Urged by the frequency and alarming increase of thefts of valuable films, the General Film Company has organized a detective bureau especially to overcome this growing evil and apprehend those responsible for it. Other large concerns combined to battle with the conditions complained of, but the General is the first large firm to wage organized warfare upon the film crooks.

A notice issued by the company offers a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of "any party or parties guilty of receiving property stolen from this company or its producers."

A $100 reward is also offered for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties. The General Film has asked the cooperation of its employes, exchanges and exhibitors in general to co-operate with it in stamping out a practice which has become a menace to the business.

SUBMIT FILMS TO JURIES

Reel Fellows of Kansas City Devise Substitute for Nebraska Censor Bill by Which Courts Review Protested Pictures

Instead of state censorship in Nebraska, the Reel Fellows Club of Kansas City, Missouri, and others interested in the problem propose that a law be passed providing that complaint may be made against a picture by a group of citizens who consider the picture immoral or objectionable, and that the case shall be decided by trial before a jury, which shall review the film.

Rose Tapley, the Vitagraph star who is making a tour of the United States, visiting legislatures in many states to speak in defense of the motion picture interests, aided in framing the amendment which the Reel Fellows Club offers in place of the pending state censor law in Nebraska. She has written a letter to the office of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., explaining the details of the substitute measure. She says:

I had the good fortune last week to be a guest of the Reel Fellows in Kansas City and to come in contact with the men who are instrumental in preventing a drastic censorship bill going through the Nebraska legislature. They were among the framers of a bill substituted in its place.

The substitute is practical and is, after all, only what every community should permit.

Upon the sworn complaint of twenty-five reputable citizens, the manager of a theater showing a picture which these twenty-five citizens consider immoral or injurious to the public welfare shall, within two weeks, show this picture to a jury of twelve men, chosen in the regular way, and the jury shall decide whether the complaint is just.

Thus the manager is given the same right to his property, as it were, as any other citizen would have—the right of trial by jury and of appeal.

This amendment was approved unanimously by the committee and reported to the legislature favorably.

Seeking Exhibitors' Opinions

Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. requests exhibitors all over the country to give their opinion of a new style of poster used to advertise "Apartment 29," in which Earle Williams is starred.

These "Apartment 29" posters are different from the usual one, three, and six-sheets issued on Blue Ribbon features. As always has been the vogue with Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. paper, the likenesses of the players have been preserved in the "Apartment 29" posters, but the backgrounds, costumes, and minor points are treated in a flat poster style. It is not the intention of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., however, to make the "Apartment 29" paper the set fashion for all of its feature program releases. Exhibitors should address replies to P. N. Lazarus, of the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. advertising department, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Director George Marshall is filming "When Piousface Struck Paris Green," a Universal western comedy in two reels.

Plans Made for Coming Convention

DEPOSIT SYSTEM DECISIVELY CONDEMNED BY NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' COMMITTEE

IT is a conservative statement to say that the National Convention and Exposition to be held by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America in Chicago, July 14 to 22, will be the biggest gathering of its kind the industry has ever seen.

It will also undoubtedly be the most important meeting ever held, due to the large number of measures affecting the industry pending in the legislatures of the various states, and due to the necessity of settling a large number of matters which have an important bearing on the future of the business.

Louis H. Frank, owner of the Coronada Theater, Chicago has resigned as exposition chairman, which position he held last year, and Ludwig Schindler, a well known film man of Chicago, has been appointed to succeed him. As is well known in local circles, this change was made with a number of difficulties. But with the pending injunctions dismissed and the national and local executive committees pulling together as they are at present, the road is clear for the biggest show the picture business ever staged.

The selection of the new exposition chairman was accomplished by the national executive committee of the M. P. E. L. at its meetings at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, March 9 and 10. The following members of the committee were present:

Alfred Hamburger, Chicago, chairman; Lee A. Ochs, New York, president M. P. E. L. of America; Thomas Furniss, Duluth; William J. Sweeney, treasurer Chicago local; W. Eisenberg, Greenville, Mississippi; Ernest Horsman, Boston; Judge A. P. Tugwell, Los Angeles; Peter J. Jeup, Detroit; Samuel Trigger, New York.

Deposit System Condemned

Other important actions taken were the official declaration against any and all forms of censorship and the passing of a resolution condemning the deposit system. The resolution reads:

Whereas, under this system the distributors of film have collected in deposits a total sum estimated at more than $5,000,000 from the motion picture exhibitors of the United States, and this money is supposedly held in trust by distributers and manufacturers of film as a guarantee of fulfillment of contracts on the part of exhibitors, and, in fact, is used to finance various manufacturing and producing enterprises, thus placing in jeopardy his money.

And whereas, the exhibitor of motion pictures, himself required to guarantee by absolute advance payment, the fulfillment of his entire contract, has come from the distributor no guarantee whatever of fulfillment of contract.

And whereas, the increasing rental price of film has forced the amount of the individual exhibitor's deposit with the various film companies with which he has business relations to an exorbitant figure.

And whereas, the expense of theater operation has risen out of proportion to the rapidly advancing cost of living, forcing exhibitor after exhibitor out of business, large houses and small houses; and the very nature of his business has prevented the exhibitor from advancing his prices in proportion to increased expenses.

And whereas, the deposit system has contributed to this condition within the industry.

"Deposit System Menace to Industry"

And whereas, more and more exhibitors are facing bankruptcy and more and more theaters are dark as a result of the narrowing margin of profit.

And whereas, the deposit system is, for the reasons set forth herein, unnecessary, unfair, unjust—a hardship on every exhibitor and a serious menace to the entire industry.

And whereas, in no other organized industry does such a system exist.

And whereas, if a condition ever existed in the motion picture industry which excused the establishment of the deposit system, that condition has been eliminated.

Therefore, be it resolved, by the national executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, in special session in Chicago, this ninth day of March, 1917, that the deposit system be condemned as unjust, unfair, vicious and dangerous.

And be it further resolved that this committee demand that the manufacturers and distributers of motion pictures act at once in the interests of the entire industry, to abolish the deposit system.

And be it further resolved that this committee calls upon the exhibitors within and without its organization to act unitedly and forcefully to eliminate the deposit system; to act unselfishly and with courage against this menace to their welfare.

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the secretary of each state branch and local of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, to the head of each manufacturing and distributing company and to the trade press.

All Oars Pulling Together

One of the most satisfactory results of the national executive committee meeting was that it adjusted matters in the official circles so that everybody is pulling at the oars together with one intention—the progress of the motion picture "ship of state."

"Everybody is working together now," said President Joseph Hopp of the Chicago Exhibitors' League to MOTOGRAPHY. The alleged differences of opinion are cleared away. All the forces are now adjusted in harmony and everybody is working to make the coming exposition a big one that will outdistance all that have been held before.

Exposition Finance Committee Appointed

An exposition finance committee was appointed, consisting of Peter J. Schaefer, Nathan Ascher and Joseph Trinz. This committee will supervise all financial matters relating to the exposition. Both the convention and the exposition are to be held this year in the Chicago Coliseum. Last year the executive sessions took place in the Sherman Hotel.

During some of its deliberations the national executive committee co-operated with the local executive committee, consisting of Robert Levy, Alfred Hamburger, M. S. Ludick, Max Schwartz, M. S. Johnson, George P. Hopkinson and John Frundt.

The two important committees, representing hundreds of exhibitors throughout the United States, also enjoyed luncheon together on March 9 at which the following were present, besides the members of the above mentioned committees:

A. Karzas; N. D. Burford, Aurora; Edgar Hopp, Louis Frank, Maurice Choynski; Sid Smith, secretary Chicago local; H. W. Ricker, H. A. Hill; Fred W. Hartmann, former member Chicago executive committee; Fred W. Schaefer, chairman political action committee; C. W. Brown, Trade Review; A. E. Curtis, MOTOGRAPHY.

English Embargo Exempts Pictures

Much interest has centered about the recent embargo announced in England, which has been said to cover the importation of motion pictures into Great Britain. A contradictory report was received in New York last week from reliable sources to the effect that although this embargo specifies photographic materials, it does not include motion pictures under this classification.

Improvement in Express Service

As a result of a conference held March 6 between the traffic managers of the big express companies and the transportation committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, it is announced that the Adams and Wells Fargo companies will put into immediate effect the same method of handling shipments of films which has been in use by the American Express Co. for some time. This is a system which keeps a full record of every transfer of the package from the time it leaves the shipper until it is delivered to the consignee. Heretofore, except in the case of the American, film shipments were not recorded from the time they left the shipper's office until it was delivered at the other end, and if lost, there was no way of tracing it. This method of handling shipments of film has heretofore been applied only to valuables, but it has proven both important and vital to the express companies and the exchanges and exhibitors and as a result of the representation of the National Association, the practice will now be universal. It is one of the greatest steps yet made to solve the transportation problems of the industry.

Present at this conference were E. E. Bush, traffic manager of the American; J. Edward Cronin, traffic manager of the Adams; G. S. Lee, traffic manager of the Wells Fargo; F. G. Airy, secretary of the express conference; William L. Sherrill, chairman of the transportation committee of the National Association; Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the Association; P. H. Stilson, of the Paramount Pictures Corp., and J. S. Clark, of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Co.

Another important improvement which will be considered is the collection of all the films from one exchange by one wagon, to be separated for shipment of the various express companies after collection. This will apply particularly to New York City, Chicago and other large exchange centers.

The attention of the exchange men and exhibitors was called to the fact that the color of the labels on the packages indicated whether or not charges had been paid, white indicating "Collect" and yellow meaning "prepaid."

"Butterfly," the equine Anettekellerman, leaping into a tank to make one of the thrillers in a recent Triangle Keystone chuckle film.

A. H. WOODS TO PRODUCE

Capitalizes New Motion Picture Concern for $1,000,000—Will Present Many of His Former Legitimate Stage Successes

And now A. H. Woods is in the game.

The A. H. Woods Motion Picture Corporation, with a capital of $1,000,000, has just been organized. According to the present plans of the new concern both an Eastern and a Western studio will be opened in the near future.

Mr. Woods has been studying motion picture conditions for several years. On various occasions he has been on the verge of merging his interests with one of the large established film companies, but has finally decided to take personal charge of his motion picture producing.

The chief purpose of the new company is to present on the screen the accumulation of plays which have been produced by Mr. Woods in the past. Among those scheduled for filming are "Common Clay," "The Yellow Ticket." "Innocent," and "Cheating Cheaters." Prominent stage stars will be employed in each picture.

So far as his activities on the regular stage are concerned, Mr. Woods will confine his efforts chiefly to the larger cities. He will continue to produce at the Eltinge and Republic theaters in this city, and at the new house now building for him in Chicago. He does not believe, however, that there remains much profit in the traveling attraction in small towns. When his plays have outlived their popularity in the large cities Mr. Woods says he will transfer them to the screen, and book them for tours of the country as films.

Vitagraph's Feature Program

The features which will be released in the next eight weeks from the Vitagraph studios are of unusual interest in the diversity of their stories, their splendid casts, and the magnificence of their staging.

"Aladdin from Broadway," featuring Edith Storey, Antonio Moreno, and William Duncan, will follow on March 18.

Anita Stewart and Charles Richman are co-starred in "The More Excellent Way," which will be released on March 26. Incidentally, Anita Stewart really does get married in this picture—and the bridal scenes are unusually sumptuous.

"Babette," with Peggy Hyland and Marc MacDermott, follows on April 2. Then comes "Apartment 29," showing Earle Williams in an unusually fascinating dilemma. "What Shall It Profit?" co-starring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey, will be released on April 16.

These features make a splendid array of story and dramatic talent in the Blue Ribbon pictures for the next eight weeks, and there is promise of unusual attractiveness to the theater-going public in all of them.

Lesser in Chicago

Sol L. Lesser, president All Star Features, of San Francisco, was in Chicago the week of March 5 in consultation with William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company. The All Star Features control the territorial rights for Selig's "The Garden of Allah" for California, Nevada, and Arizona. Mr. Lesser is planning an elaborate premier for "The Garden of Allah" in Los Angeles and elsewhere.

What Theater Men Are Doing

AN OPEN FORUM FOR EXHIBITORS

This is a department of, by and for exhibitors. We want YOU represented here. Other managers and proprietors of picture theaters want to hear YOUR experiences, your opinions and your advice. Write to this department telling us your story, how you started, how you grew and all about your theater and how you manage it. Mention your advertising methods and your lobby displays. If possible send in photographs of yourself and your house. Address, The Forum MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

Growth of Chicago Firm

THE Orpheum Theater on State Street, Chicago, occupies a unique position in the amusement world. It was the first of a brood of theaters hatched by Messrs. Jones, Linick & Schaefer and being their first child immediately became their favorite one. This most particularly owing to the fact that the Orpheum in its twelve years of motion pictures has never made a yearly profit of less than $142,000. The unique position referred to is the fact that the Orpheum became the nucleus of the vast holdings of this trio of successful Chicago showmen.

From the profits of the Orpheum and the inspiration of its success, arose the desire to conquer the amusement business of this city. After capturing single handed outlying theater situations, Messrs. Jones, Linick & Schaefer vaulted into the loop and tacked their name onto McVicker's and Colonial Theaters. Soon they added the Studebaker and La Salle and they have just erected and opened to the play-going public, Chicago's newest $600,000 playhouse—the Rialto. All this came from the Orpheum Theater in the beginning.

Incidently, Jones, Linick & Schaefer operate a theatrical booking agency and are the proprietors of the Central Film Corporation which is distributing the Selznick pictures in this community. The Orpheum is the only daily change, first run picture playhouse in Chicago. It is securing the biggest features produced on pro-releases with an entire change of program every day. Incidently, George N. Moore, who began his career as house officer of the Orpheum twelve years ago on meager wages, is now manager of that house and receiving one of the highest salaries paid to theatrical managers in Chicago.

Portland Oregon Crystal Theater

The People's Amusement Company of Portland, Oregon, built the Crystal Theater four years ago, and it is one of the few theaters in that locality to make money and to weather the motion picture boom, and has remained when surrounding theaters closed.

The seating capacity is 400, all on the lower floor, is fireproof construction and is equipped in first class manner throughout. The projection is furnished by two motor-driven Edison machines.

Henry Harcke, manager up to several weeks ago, has gone East, leaving the management in the hands of Mrs. W. Ashworth.

Parent-Teachers' Association Stages Film Show

On a recent Saturday afternoon the Parent-Teachers' Association of Seattle, which has been trying for the past few weeks to make arrangements to run special programs regularly for the children, booked the version of "Snow White" in which all the parts are taken by children, and put it on at the Moore theater. The showing was very well attended, but might have been even more successful had it been better advertised.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of that city has been trying out the plan of giving special motion picture matinees in the residential theaters of the different localities about Seattle, but their lack of funds has somewhat handicapped them in getting good children's films. These are not so easy to find, anyway, on account of the very few releases intended specially for child audiences. The Association was very much pleased when A. T. Lambson, of Lambson Film Company, obtained this child picture of "Snow White" and offered it to them at a very reasonable rental. Mr. Lambson is now making a specialty of children's films, and the problems of the Association will be somewhat simplified.

Exhibitor Uses Novel Advertising Methods

Mr. Pittmon, the proprietor of the Rosebud Theater of Portland, Oregon, believes in advertising the productions shown at his theater in a way that will startle the attention and keep the people talking.

Peeps at Australian theaters. The Crystal Palace is on the left and the others are views of the Lyceum. All are in Sidney. Photos especially for MOTOGRAPHY.

While playing Pathe's "The Shielding Shadow" he ran a slide reading as follows:

"Watch the way the wind blows Saturday." Then each Saturday he sent up a dozen balloons with passes to his theater attached to each one, and naturally the children all over the neighborhood would chase the balloons far and wide in order to get the passes as they came down.

Another "stunt" which he used was as follows: He ran a slide to the effect that all children under the age of 15 would be admitted to the opening matinee of "The Shielding Shadow" on whispering in his ear the password which was "The Shielding Shadow."

By such means as these he had the entire neighborhood talking about the serial and in consequence his attendance was most noteworthy.

Cooling Theater Costs $15 Daily

The management of the West End Theater, a new and commodious theater located in an outlying residence section of Chicago, will spend as much for ice next summer to use in cooling the theater as it spends in winter for coal to heat the building.

$15 a day to keep it warm; the same to keep it cool.

With coal prices mounting to unprecedented figures, the theaters of Chicago have been paying prices forty per cent higher than last winter. It costs the West End Theater approximately $15 a day to heat the house at the present cost of coal. It will cost about $15 a day for ice next summer to make the West End one of the coolest houses in the city. It is one of the houses of the Lubliner and Trinz chain.

Adjoining the operating room is an enclosed chamber which was not originally utilized for any purpose in designing the building. The owners instructed the architect to make allowance for the installation of a fan and air duct, with an intake, and the linking up of the air duct with the ducts of the heating system. Ice will be stored in the closed chamber and fresh air from outdoors drawn through the chamber by the fan. The intake supply of air to the heating plant will be shut off and the cooling system connected up in its place. The air will enter through registers placed in the floor and the cool air intake will take the place of the intakes which would be necessary otherwise as part of the ventilating system. When heating the theater, the incoming air passes over steam coils before entering the hall.

It is estimated that the daily requirements for ice in hot weather will amount to 1,500 pounds. At one cent a pound the ice will cost about $15, or nearly the same as coal at war prices.

Wades Through Fire and Failure

J. Louis Rome, manager of the Broadway Theater, Baltimore, Maryland, speaking at the luncheon given to the Baltimore exhibitors by George M. Mann, manager of the Famous Players Exchange, Washington, D. C., gave some very interesting ideas as to the success of the Broadway Theater. He said:

I had a peculiarly hard proposition to handle. In the first place I am a lawyer and I did not know anything about exhibiting pictures, but the owners of the theater seemed to think I was the man to tackle a losing proposition so I divided some of my time during the day putting the ideas that came to me into execution. All of my competitors were charging a nickel. I determined to raise my price to ten cents at the very start, with the result that for at least six weeks our regular patrons would come up to the window, see the ten-cent sign and pass down the street to some other house. In fact, owing to this policy and other conditions, I played to a losing business in this house for something over six months.

Just as we were getting so that we met our expenses the theater burned down and we had the disheartening experience of building the house over again with the added necessity of again establishing our clientele. At this time I started a house organ which not only contained a program of the coming productions, but I offered to print in this house organ signed contributions which were sent in by my subscribers.

If I had known how much work this house organ would have entailed and what it would cost me in the way of time, labor and postage, I think I would not have had the courage to go into it, but once I started I could not stop because there was so much interest in this publication. My postage per week at the start cost me $60. I could not seem to delegate to anyone else the responsibility of getting up and continuing this publication so I attended to it myself, but it paid. I now have a constantly increasing mailing list, and I am getting advertisements from all over town for this little publication. People are becoming correspondingly interested in the Broadway Theater.

Two points of special interest are the personal touch with the patron through the printing of their communications in the house organ and the courage of the manager in standing a loss for six months until the principle of increased prices had been demonstrated to the financial satisfaction of his stockholders and himself.

New Albany Theater

One of the largest theaters in Albany, New York, is the Arbor on North Swan street, owned by James B. Dolan and William F. Reilly. The seating capacity of this theater is 1,000 persons.

The color scheme of the interior is light and dark brown. The screen is attractively painted on either side. The lighting system is indirect light. A $5,000 Wurlitzer organ is used. The management of the theater has been given to William H. Buck.

"Dimples' Baby" is to be the first subject of General Film's new Vitagraph two-reel comedies featuring Lillian Walker. This picture will give Miss Walker exceptional opportunity, showing her as a young girl full of maternal instinct, whose adoption of a baby brings happiness to all concerned.

Mark Twain's historical romance, "Joan of Arc," is said by the authorities of the New York public library to be more in demand at the present than any other book. The reason for this increased interest, they say, is undoubtedly the exhibition in that city of the motion picture play representing the life of France's warrior-maid and saint.

Director W. W. Beaudine, of Joker, is filming a one-reel comedy, "What the —?"

"Split Reel" Notes for Theater Men

HOW OTHERS ARE STEERING THE SHIP

A BILL is pending in the Texas legislature which provides for placing a special tax of four per cent on the gross receipts of all picture shows in the state.

Rudyard and Engardine, Michigan, may soon have motion picture theaters. These towns are on the Soo line.

The Grand Theater of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, was packed for three matinees and night performances when Mary Pickford in Artcraft's "Pride of the Clan" was exhibited.

The Strand Theater of New York offers for the week of March 11 Pauline Frederick in a photo-dramatic adaptation of Alphonse Daudet's "Sapho," produced by Famous Players.

Anticipating a capacity run for the New York Rialto during the run of "Mothers of France," the Sarah Bernhardt feature, the theater opens its doors at ten o'clock daily.

A committee which was chosen to circulate petitions for Sunday motion pictures in Orange, California, reports that the sentiment against Sabbath shows is too strong and that it would be useless to circulate the petitions.

Harry Edel, managing director of the New York Strand, announces that the gross receipts of the theater on the afternoon of March 21 are to be donated to the American Jewish Relief Committee.

A jury at Huntington, Indiana, returned a verdict against the Huntington Motion Picture Company for operating Sunday pictures. The court ordered the company to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

The Irwin Theater of Goshen, Indiana, a motion picture house owned by Judge Francis E. Baker of the United States circuit court of appeals, was burned recently at midnight, an hour after 1,000 persons had left. The loss was $30,000.

A motion picture machine has been installed in the City Temple church at Fort Worth, Texas, by the pastor, the Rev. J. Frank Smith. He expects to show pictures in the church every Friday night. The reels will include religious dramas and educational pictures.

The city commissioners at Fort Worth, Texas, have just appointed a motion picture censor board to serve for the ensuing two years. The members of the new board are John B. Rawlings, Mrs. J. W. Kuykendall, Mrs. J. V. Brewer, Miss Margaret McLean and A. C Wilson.

Herschel Stuart of Dallas, Texas, for several years in charge of the checking and publicity departments of the Hulsey Amusement Company, operating a chain of theaters over Texas, was promoted recently by General Manager E. H. Hulsey to the position of assistant general manager. Mr. Stuart has had charge of all of the publicity and advertising work of his concern. His company now operates ten theaters as follows: Old Mill and Queen, Dallas; Grand Opera House, Queen, Crystal Number 1 and Crystal Vaudeville, Galveston; Queen, Zoe and Liberty, Houston; and Hippodrome, Waco.

W. W. Cole, manager of the Krug Theater, of Baltimore, Maryland, has resigned, and the management has been turned over to the musicians, stage hands, bill posters and engineers in consideration of discharge of obligations amounting to $500. The theater is to be managed by a committee of union men.

Manager Gross of the Columbia Theater, Dayton, Ohio, issued a limited number of season tickets for the seven weekly installments of "Seven Deadly Sins." The tickets were sold at fifty cents and were good only until six o'clock on days that the "sins" were shown. A Dayton druggist disposed of the tickets.

B. S. Moss, who says that a place of public entertainment is not suitable for patriotic demonstrations and flag waving, announces that "The Star Spangled Banner" and the American flag will no longer have a place on the vaudeville and motion picture programs of the Moss Theaters.

The Suburban Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association has been formed in New Orleans, Louisiana, with N. I. Ehrlich, of the Isis Theater, as president. B. F. Brennan is secretary and treasurer. The purpose of the organization is to escape what are said to be the excessive state and city licenses.

A parade and band concert were held on the occasion of the opening of the new Godard Theater at Sacramento, California. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the J Street Improvement Club, through its committee on street demonstrations. The Godard Theater fronts on J street.

As a result of a private showing prior to the performation of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," the Old Mill Theater at Dallas, Texas, secured the opinions of educators, ministers, public officials and business men, who consented to the use of their comments of approval for advertising the picture.

The uniformed staff of the Strand Theater, New York, is drilling one hour every morning on the roof of the theater building, learning the manual of arms. A picture showing the Strand boys drilling is flashed on the screen in the theater as part of the program during the week of March 11.

A city ordinance forbidding picketing by labor unions in front of places of business in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, is rendered null by a recent decision in the case of the Lyric Theater of that city against Eva Swietzer, the defendant in a test case instituted in connection with a strike of Oklahoma City theater employes. The defendant was arrested and fined ten dollars in the police court on a charge of acting as picket in front of the Lyric Theater. Justice Rutherford Brett of the criminal court of appeals has written an opinion, concurred in unanimously by the appeals court, declaring that labor has the right under the constitution to organize and use any peaceable means to protect its interests.

A committee from the chamber of commerce of Pullman, Washington, co-operating with officials of the college Y. M. C. A., teachers, and the Y. W. C. A., has presented a petition to the city council asking that an ordinance be passed providing that only the films approved by the national board of review be shown in Pullman.

At the instance of patriotic organizations of Seattle, Washington, two measures have been introduced in the city council, one of which prohibits the use of the flag in theaters merely for the purpose of gaining applause. The other is to prohibit the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" except as a separate piece, and the players and audience must stand.

Three large rooms on the third floor of the Rialto Theater building, New York, have been appropriated by Manager Samuel Rothapfel for use each week in preparing his presentation of the program for the week following. One room will be used for projecting the scores of films which are submitted constantly for his consideration.

The Strand Theater at Minneapolis held a benefit performance for soldiers' families upon the return of the First Minnesota infantry from the border recently. Bryant Washburn attended in person and entertained the Strand patrons at an informal reception. The feature of the day was the Essanay production, "Skinner's Dress Suit," in which Bryant Washburn stars.

Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman" greets Chicago audiences March 28 at the Colonial Theater, where David W. Griffith's "Intolerance" completes its long run March 24. Jones, Linick & Schaefer, who operate the Colonial, have purchased the state rights for Illinois and Indiana for "Joan the Woman." The consideration to be paid for the rights in the two states is reported to be $150,000.

A woman at Lawton, Oklahoma, not having the proper change to admit her to a local picture show, presented a large potato at the ticket window and was given a ticket. Realizing the great worth of the potato, the proprietor eagerly accepted the spud as the price of admission and announced that in the future "spud matinees" will be given occasionally for school children.

A majority of the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin, Texas, in a ruling in the Fort Worth motion picture cases, affirms the decision of the lower courts, that motion pictures are amusements and cannot be operated on Sunday, and that the Fort Worth ordinance permitting motion picture shows to operate from 2 p. m. to midnight on Sundays is in conflict with the state law.

At Okmulgee, Oklahoma, the motion picture theaters give children's motion picture performances every Saturday morning. "Snow White" was recently exhibited at five cents admission. Other pictures that have proven popular subjects at Okmulgee are: "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Hiawatha," "Rumpelstiltskin," "Enoch Arden," "His Majesty the King," "The Love Girl," "Little Mary Sunshine," "Alice in Wonderland," "The Right to Be Happy," "The Nature Man," "Jewell," "Little Sunset," "A Prince of Yesterday," "Salisbury," "Wild Life in America," "Joy and the Dragon," and "Little Mary Sunshine."

That the mayor should call out the fire department and the members of the police force to appear in a parade given in honor of a motion picture actor who recently visited Kansas City, Missouri, while scores of actors on the stage come and go without such honors being paid them, started a fuss in the city on the banks of the Kaw. A handful of complaints were printed in the newspapers, addressed to the mayor by indignant citizens who resented the apparent discrimination.

Kansas City's second movie parade in little more than a week took place March 6 at noon, when the film stars who took part in the motion picture ball in Convention hall rode down from the Union station. There were about thirty cars and floats filled with girls and men connected with the local film exchanges. The stars were Vivian Rich, Crane Wilbur and Mary Miles Minter. Rose Tapley and Don Meaney were unable to take part in the parade.

The Mothers' Club and Parent-Teachers' Association of Kansas City, Kansas, have completed arrangements for special children's programs to be given in six motion picture houses in all parts of the city. Each show will give the educational program Saturdays under the supervision of the women, who will select the films. The theaters co-operating with the mothers' clubs are the Electric, Grubel's, Gene Gauntier, Twelfth Street, and the Lautz.

Loss of life in a fire which broke out suddenly in a picture house at Ottawa, Kansas, was prevented by the presence of mind of a pianist, Harry Mapes, who played throughout the panic that followed the discovery of the flames, and by the work of several men in the audience who assisted in quieting the women and children. About 250 people were in the theater when the flames started near the operating booth. The audience escaped through the three exits in safety. The loss is estimated at $6,000.

None but productions handled under the state rights plan will be shown in the future at the New Center Theater, of Kansas City, Missouri. Beginning with the recent showing of "The Crisis," the management abandoned the program system and announced that only the notable motion picture spectacles produced on a generous scale and not released on the regular programs, will be booked. The change means a departure from the ten-cent admission also, which has been the rule at the New Center in the past.

W. E. Lang, manager of the Scenic Theater, at Sioux City, Iowa, was repaid for the time and effort expended recently in devising a few unusual advertising stunts by the biggest box-office receipts in several weeks. He began by sending a banner through the streets bearing the name of the attraction, "Damaged Goods," recently released by Mutual. Then in several places where he knew crowds would be passing he placed barrels on which were signs reading "Do not look in this barrel." Scarcely any one passed without looking inside. In the barrel were broken beer and whiskey bottles and the sign "Damaged Goods."

Not only have a number of large distributing organizations recognized the logic of Chicago's location and facilities as a distributing center but the Windy City is gradually becoming a producing center also.

This roomy structure now houses the Emerald Motion Picture Company of Chicago. It is splendidly equipped and has many modern appliances which are lacking in the studios of some of the older and bigger producers.

Emerald Completes Chicago Studio

NEW PLANT CONTAINS 35,000 FEET OF SPACE—MAKES DRAMAS AND INDUSTRIALS

By Genevieve Harris

EFFICIENTLY prepared to turn out pictures of the highest technical standard, completely equipped to do the work well and economically, the new studio and laboratory of the Emerald Motion Picture Company of Chicago is finished and ready for use.

In a building well chosen for the purpose of picture making, and most conveniently located for picture taking, the plant leaves little to be desired in the way of practical utility for the work that is soon to begin. Careful planning is evident in the construction and arrangement of each department, from employment desk to shipping room, and even in minor details such as the working out of the telephone system, efficiency has been the watchword.

The Emerald plant, which is at 1717-1729 North Wells street, is a three-story building containing 35,000 feet of working space. Executive offices, laboratories, carpenter shops, studios, store-rooms, etc., are all arranged in the most practical and useful fashion. "Economy, and efficiency" is the slogan of the organization.

The stage floor of the studio is 125 feet by 70 feet, large enough to furnish working space for at least six companies. Twenty scene sets can be operated at one time. The height of the studio is fifty feet and the lighting system is arranged so that advantage may be taken of this unusual height. The electric installation and artificial lighting, which is up to the minute in every respect, was furnished by the Cooper-Hewitt Electric Company and the Chicago Stage Lighting Company, and installed by the Electric Service Construction Company.

Efficiency in Equipment

Efficiency has been the watchword generally in equipping the studio, from the mechanical contrivances for the handling of scenery to the arrangement of the dressing rooms, which are built to accommodate three hundred players and extras. All facilities for interior picture making have been provided in the studio, while for exterior scenes the plant has an unusually fine location, close to a beautiful residence district, one block from Lincoln Park with its picturesque and varied scenery, and with Lake Michigan to provide background for sea pictures.

But the efficiency which has perfected the studio departments reaches even a higher point in the extremely important technical division, the laboratories. The Emerald Company states that its laboratory, by its equipment and efficient arrangement, will save thirty-three to forty per cent in the cost of each release. A careful examination shows that the builders have made every effort to eliminate waste time and effort and that everything has been provided for swift, thorough work. The advantage in the close connection between laboratory and studio will be at once apparent, since the success or failure of a scene may be tested in record time and any necessary re-takes ordered at once.

Laboratories Can Handle 40,000 Feet Per Day

The laboratories are equipped to handle 40,000 feet of film a day and the company guarantees the high standard of the output. The Eagle Tank Company and the U. S. Cinematograph Company have supplied the laboratory equipment. The fire-proof rooms were furnished and installed by the U. S. Gypsum Fireproofing Company, and the fire prevention apparatus by the Pyrene Manufacturing Company.

This motion picture plant, in short, has been constructed according to plans carefully worked out so that each minute detail has received consideration. Waste of effort, of time or material has been as watchfully guarded against as in any manufacturing plant running under the alert attention of an efficiency expert. The plant is compact, yet spacious, well built and adaptable. It is like a well constructed machine, each part fitting smoothly into the work of the whole.

The purpose of the Emerald Motion Picture Company is to produce pictures for independent companies.

Where paint houses, paint trees and paint rooms are built. Chicago Emerald studio.

Industrial motion pictures will form much of the output, but features and shorter length dramas and comedies will also be made, although definite announcement regarding these cannot be made at this time.

Frederick J. Ireland, President

The men who are most active in carrying out these plans are Frederick J. Ireland, president of the Emerald Motion Picture Company, and M. E. Oberdorfer, secretary and treasurer of the company. Both are experienced in all phases of the motion picture business. Mr. Ireland was long associated with the legitimate stage before turning his attention to the pictures. His standards are of the highest and finest. He has given much thought to the problems of picture making, both from the artistic and technical standpoints.

Industrial films and their wonderful future especially interest Mr. Oberdorfer. The manner in which industrial, educational and advertising films may be united and the system by which exhibitors, manufacturers and public may share in the benefit has engaged his attention particularly. The value and the need of high class educational pictures for schools and colleges as well as for the general public of the motion picture theater, is generally appreciated but in many respects not fully met by the present output.

Develop Industrial Films

On the other hand, industrial films may be made with such skill that they are at once an excellent advertisement of a plant and of unusual educational interest and value. These, Mr. Oberdorfer declares, are sure to become more and more important. This is a phase of the industry which has received too little attention, and it is one of the most fascinating in its possibilities. To the making of these films, therefore, Mr. Oberdorfer believes in giving as much attention to artistic details as in feature productions. He also advocates the introduction, whenever possible, of the story and human interest element.

With the efficient equipment of the well-located plant, backed by the experience, skill and enthusiasm of the management, the Emerald Motion Picture Company is in a position to do unusually good work which will not only measure up well with the best the industry has produced but may set new standards of achievement. It has everything in its favor for the production of a high grade product, both in the industrial and educational and the amusement fields.

Children Will Like This

Ena and Lulu, two elephants, are the latest addition to the Cub Comedy players. These two pachyderms have the most important roles, next to George Ovey and Claire Alexander in "Jerry's Triple Alliance," released through Mutual on March 15.

The elephants first rescue the imprisoned lovers, then calmly enter a restaurant, scatter all the guests and proceed to have a good time themselves. Lulu does a tango to the accompaniment played by Ena on the bass drum; they help themselves to dinner, and after the last course Ena takes a smoke with her big pipe. One of the elephants is wounded in a fight in the restaurant but manages to romp around on a peg leg in the final scenes of jollification.

Exhibitors who are running special programs will find this combination of stunts performed by animals and a comedy a great drawing card with the kiddies.

A pair of glimpses into the splendid interior arrangements of the new Emerald studio at Chicago.

PAUL H. WOODRUFF, Editor
ARTHUR E. CURTIS, Associate Editor

NEW YORK OFFICE: 1022 LONGACRE BUILDING, Forty-second Street and Broadway Telephone Bryant 7030
CHARLES R. CONDON, Eastern Representative

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 1504 GOLDEN GATE AVE.
MABEL CONDON, Western Representative

This publication is free and independent of all business or house connections or control. No manufacturer or supply dealer, or their stockholders or representatives, have any financial interest in MOTOGRAPHY or any voice in its management or policy.

Entered at Chicago Post Office as Second Class Mail Matter

MOTOGRAPHY
THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY
ELECTRICITY MAGAZINE CORPORATION
E. R. MOCK, President and Treasurer
MONADNOCK BUILDING
CHICAGO, ILL.
Telephone: Harrison 3014—All Departments

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
Changes of advertising copy should reach the office of publication not less than fifteen days in advance of date of issue. Regular date of issue every Saturday. New advertisements will be accepted up to within ten days of date of issue, but proof of such advertisements can not be shown in advance of publication.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE
Per Year $3.00

Canada - -	Per year $4.00
Foreign - -	Per year 5.00
Single copy - - - -	.15

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS
REMITTANCES—Remittances should be made by check, New York draft or money order in favor of MOTOGRAPHY. Foreign subscriptions may be remitted direct by International Postal Money Order.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS—The old address should be given as well as the new, and notice should be received two weeks in advance of the desired change.

If Your News Dealer Will Not Supply You—Please Notify Us

Volume XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 24, 1917 Number 12

Outgrowing the Every-Day Patron

BEFORE motion picture days there was no class or kind of entertainment that attracted the same people night after night. Two shows of any sort in a week was regarded as mild dissipation. The picture, therefore, is directly responsible for the development of the every-night fan, and he remains a peculiarity of this business.

We have no statistics to prove that the number of every-night fans is diminishing, but we believe it is. The five cent show was most conducive to the development of the species. The general raise to ten cents put a little strain upon those of scant means, especially when attendance meant the purchase of two or three tickets.

That there will always be a good many ten cent shows and some five cent ones we still hold. It is desirable that there should be. The service of the cheap show to mankind has been incalculable. To those who have poverty thrust upon them—particularly the women of the poor—entertainment is a necessity where to the affluent it may be but one of many luxuries. So long as it is possible to show pictures at the minimum price to those who have no more than that to spend, it would be cruel to remove them.

But the business end of this industry is intent upon the production of constantly better films at better admission prices. Already a fifteen cent admission price is accepted without comment, and the twenty-five cent picture house in every sizable community is but a year or so away. Its advance guard, indeed, is here now.

We pay no idle compliment to the industry when we say that the logical twenty-five cent program is even now available to every exhibitor. The pictures, in that respect, have run ahead of some of their theaters. It is a safe bet that the exhibitors who are now successful in getting fifteen cents (and some of them who are getting ten) could get twenty-five cents without changing their film service in one particular. A little better advertising, perhaps a little more careful projection, possibly the addition of one usher to the payroll, and most important of all MUSIC, and the trick would be done.

But there is one point about the twenty-five cent house—and it applies with equal logic to the fifteen cent show—that is apt to be overlooked by the exhibitor to whom the usual system has become second nature. The point we mean is the frequency with which the program is changed.

The daily change system in a house charging more than ten cents is of no value. In a house charging more than fifteen cents it is not only useless but actually harmful.

The only possible virtue of the daily change is that it encourages the daily patron. That particular type of patron was, as we said before, made especially for this business, and it seems a shame to discourage him. But we cannot avoid the thought that show-going every night is unnatural, and a business dependent upon the continuance of such devotion is unstable.

Even granting that the every-day fan will remain loyal to the shows within his means, it is quite evident that the fifteen to twenty-five cent show is beyond his means as a daily diet—that is, any worth-while quantity of him.

The higher-price exhibitor, once he has got the daily visitor out of his mental system, can proceed to the contemplation of business possibilities with a clear head. It will then be apparent to him that tomorrow night's crowd is not the same people who came last night, and tonight's patronage will be still different. There is no reason why they should all see different programs. There is very good reason why they should all see the same program.

When our next door neighbor tells us what a good picture he saw at the Rialto last night, we are moved by a desire to see it ourselves. But we are not allowed to see it. It is gone. Tonight's show may be equally good; but what we particularly want to see is last night's show. It has been "sold" to us by word-of-mouth advertising—and sold to hundreds of others the same way. But the goods we are eager to pay for have disappeared.

When we consider the untold value of this word-of-mouth advertising to the motion picture industry, we can conceive of nothing more illogically extravagant and wasteful than the daily change system. We might almost call it a plan of paying a higher service price for the privilege of disappointing patrons and losing the asset of their praise.

It costs a lot of money to get as much advertising by way of the print shop as may be had gratis through the words of pleased patrons. And it must be realized that the pleased patron talks to his friends not about the theater or the piano player or the pretty cashier, but about THE PICTURE HE SAW LAST NIGHT.

A few weeks ago we said, in discussing this same subject, that the time for the elimination of the daily change was not yet ripe. But it will be ripe as soon as the exhibiting industry escapes from the fetish of the every-day patron—and that time is coming soon.

We still refuse to recognize any one law as good for all classes of theaters. The theater whose patronage is naturally limited must continue to rely upon the daily change to get full capacity. But the first class house in a good neighborhood is throwing away money at both the purchasing and the selling ends of its business by denying patron number two the article that patron number one bought and recommended.

Statistics of the National Association show not only that the number of theaters is decreasing all over the country, but that the seating capacity is also decreasing. Twenty important cities show a total decrease in one year of 378 theaters. New York and Chicago alone show a decrease of 223 theaters. Chicago shows a decrease in total seating capacity of 29,000—a loss to the industry, at ten cents a seat, of over two million dollars a year in one city.

That condition can only be met by higher admission prices. And higher admission prices can only be successful when the exhibitor forgets the every-day patron and takes advantage of the millions of dollars' worth of word-of-mouth advertising he is now throwing away.

A Duty to the Nation

THE real European war picture that occasionally reaches our shores has assumed a new function. In 1915 it was but a "topical"—an interesting, educational bit of current history. In 1917 it is a warning. It gives us, as no writer can do, however expert, a terrible glimpse of what we ourselves may yet face.

It is only when war threatens that one realizes the state of idealism in which the American people live. Preparedness is but a term of rhetoric—they are asleep. If newspaper editorials would awaken them, we would have had an army and a navy before this. The only alarm clock that can arouse them is the motion picture.

In this time of need, the picture has a value beyond the box office. Presented not merely as an emotional piece of visual fiction, but as an object lesson in the duties of citizenship, the war film can do more for the United States than any other agent of truth.

Every exhibitor who believes in preparedness should do his part in awakening his audiences to the actualities of life. The future of America rests in his hands to an extent he does not yet realize. Just as it is a newspaper's duty to convince its readers of the truths they cannot appreciate in their sheltered circles of existence, it is the duty of exhibitors to show the people with the unanswerable logic of demonstration the necessity for preparation.

And it is not a thankless duty, because the war films and the preparedness films are good attractions, even from the most sordid of commercial viewpoints.

"Aladdin from Broadway," Vitagraph Blue Ribbon for March 19, is full of shivery Oriental stuff. Edith Storey, Antonio Moreno and William Duncan furnish the dramatic dynamite.

GREATER VITAGRAPH'S GROWTH

Increase in Producing Facilities at West Coast Studio Become Imperative by Reason of Larger Clientele of Exhibitors

The response of the public month after month at the box offices where theater patrons are accustomed to seeing the advertisements of Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features has at last made it imperative that the Vitagraph Company once more add to its studio facilities. The upbuilding of the producing branches of the Vitagraph organization to match the growth in the selling division, goes forward under the guidance of President Albert E. Smith.

President Smith has journeyed to Los Angeles to spend three weeks, the purpose of his trip at this time being to arrange for the contemplated increase in the producing facilities and resources of the California studios, with particular regard to Blue Ribbon program features. Productions released under the Blue Ribbon brand will be distributed as heretofore solely through Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

Presenting Players in New Settings

The increase in the number of persons who see the Blue Ribbon features on the screen and the regular releases of Vitagraph that are handled through the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., of which there is evidence in the growing number of theaters which use these films, has made it advisable for the company, now that the Brooklyn studios have been placed on a firm schedule of production, to increase the western studios likewise.

The Vitagraph Company acknowledges that much credit is due to Walter W. Irwin, manager of the selling organization, for building up the clientele of exhibitors who use Blue Ribbon features, and their public, which patronizes the theaters using the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. service.

Consequent upon the re-alignment of Vitagraph stars in new and permanent teams, it is expected that the eastern and western Vitagraph studios will be so conducted as to permit of the stars working in the east to be sent west and those in the west to be brought east, from time to time, so as to present these players in new surroundings and locations.

Upon the completion of "The Maelstrom," in which Dorothy Kelly and Earle Williams are co-starred, Anita Stewart and Mr. Williams will begin the resumption of their co-starring productions, as arranged for by Mr. Smith.

Four Teams of Blue Ribbon Players

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey, Peggy Hyland and Marc MacDermott, and Dorothy Kelly with Evart Overton, with Anita Stewart and Mr. Williams, will then constitute the four teams in Vitagraph's eastern studios.

Charles Brabin, director of a number of Vitagraph successes, has returned to the scenes of his former endeavors. His latest production is "Babette," in which Peggy Hyland and Marc MacDermott are seen. Mr. Brabin has begun work with Miss Hyland and Mr. MacDermott on "The Sixteenth Wife."

Perry N. Vekroff remains as a Blue Ribbon feature director. He is both author and director of "The Third Party," now in course of production, in which Alice Joyce and Harry Morey are co-starred.

TRIANGLE MAKES OFFER TO U. S.

Secretary of Navy Accepts Ince's Offer to Make Pictures for Instruction of Army Recruits and Volunteers

That the motion picture is destined to play a highly important part in the United States preparation for war, is clearly indicated in the prompt acceptance by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, of Thomas H. Ince's telegraphed offer placing himself, his studios, equipment, and skilled camera men at the service of the Government for the making of films for instruction of recruits and student officers.

Mr. Ince sent the following telegram to the President:

To the Honorable Woodrow Wilson, President of the United State, Washington, D. C.

Sir: I hereby offer to our Government as my contribution to the emergency that has arisen with Germany, the facilities and skilled employes of my studio in the preparation of moving pictures suitable for the rapid instruction of the great numbers of army and navy recruits that will be needed. I believe that the motion picture is of great value and rapid assistance in presenting the standardized instruction, and I desire to place at the service of my country whatever skill and experience I have attained in this development of modern industry.—Very respectfully, Thomas H. Ince.

Mr. Ince also sent the telegram to Secretary of the Navy Daniels, and received this immediate response:

Navy Department expresses its hearty appreciation of your generous offer of thirteenth instant placing at its disposal all facilities of your studio for making films of training of recruits. The Department accepts your offer and has directed Captain Durrel, Commandant Naval training station, San Francisco, to confer with you and to make necessary preparation for taking pictures of recruits under training at his station.—Josephus Daniels.

"I believe that films can be prepared that will save much valuable time in the instruction of recruits and in visualizing the actual practice of war in the field," said Mr. Ince. "Good teachers, having the gift of instruction, are always rare, drill instructors and army and navy specialists are urgently needed for the actual duties confronting us in our national emergency. To withdraw them for purposes of instruction means—to just that extent of withdrawal—the handicapping of the work for which they have been training and are specialists. Much of this can be done independently by the visualization on the screen."

Officers have been designated by the Navy Department to confer with Mr. Ince regarding a program of pictures of this type, and the best facilities of the Navy are to be used in the preparation of the series. The first conferences have already been held in San Francisco to map out a detailed program.

Coming Fox Play

A really brilliant cast and story have been furnished George Walsh for "High Finance," the athletic Fox star's newest production, which William Fox will release for the week of March 26.

The principals in the picture, besides Mr. Walsh, are Doris Pawn, the young screen beauty who has been re-engaged to play opposite the star in his forthcoming features; Charles Clary, the distinguished "heavy;" Rosita Marstini, the Madame de Farge of "A Tale of Two Cities;" William Marr, a newcomer to Fox Films; and the ever-good Willard Louis.

Special Cast for Ten-Reeler

Supporting H. B. Warner in "God's Man," coming ten-reel super-photoplay production of George Bronson Howard's remarkable story of New York's Broadway and night life, Director George Irving has assembled a remarkable cast of favorites.

Mr. Warner plays the role of "Arnold L'Hommedieu," heir apparent to the pastorate of a village church, and completing "the trio" or modern "Three Musketeers," which play a most important part in the story, are Edward Earle, the former Edison and Metro star, who plays "Archie Hartogensis"; and Walter Hiers, the jovial star of Thanhouser pictures and featured player with Metro, who plays "Hugo Waldemar."

Jack Sherrill, who is rapidly assuming a position as one of the screen's most popular juveniles, will be seen as "Pink," one of the "Sons of Subterranea" and as his colleague "Beau," Dan Jarrett, Jr., has been cast.

Of the fairer sex, beauty seems to run rampant with beautiful Barbara Castleton playing "Bobbie" and Betty Bellairs to be seen as "Bertie," two of the "Scarlet Host"—Barbara Gilroy plays "Eunice Chasserton," a waif of the city's wiles, a loser in the bitter fight for sheer existence; Jean Stuart as "Sonia," a co-worker of "Pink" and "Beau," and Marion Forche delineates Carol Caton, the pampered daughter of mock aristocracy.

Sherman-Elliott Open Chicago Office

The Sherman-Elliott, Inc., of which Harry A. Sherman is president, has opened Chicago offices at 611 Schiller Building, from which all of the state rights purchases of the corporation will be handled for the state of Illinois.

Minneapolis is the headquarters of Sherman-Elliott, Inc. The corporation now has offices at 218 West Forty-second street, New York City, which are in charge of M. E. Mazur, the Chicago office is temporarily in charge of Nat S. Stronge, and Jack Elliott is in charge of the Minneapolis office.

Jack Brahaney, the widely known theatrical and motion picture man, is general manager of the corporation under the direct supervision of President Sherman, who spends his time almost equally divided between the three offices.

The trade has heard rumors for some time that Sherman-Elliott, Inc., has plans for extending its operations to such an extent that its ramifications will be country wide. When the corporation purchased the world rights to "The Crisis" a spreading of operations was forecast. President Sherman says that the time is not ripe to let the industry in on his plans, but he expects to be in a position to make some announcement within a few weeks.

The Chicago office has started a campaign to handle "The Crisis" in Illinois. An option has been obtained on one of the large loop theaters. A huge advertising campaign has been arranged to assure the exhibitors good box office returns.

Goldwyn Publicity Encircles World

ADVERTISING COVERS ALL CONTINENTS—MARY GARDEN WILL PLAY IN "THAIS"

THE Goldwyn Pictures Corporation does not stop at boundary lines. Whatever the language, wherever the land, if motion pictures be known there at all, the advertising and publicity campaign of the Goldwyn Corporation extends there and is preparing the peoples of all continents for the advent of Mae Marsh, Mary Garden, Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Madge Kennedy in the cinemagraphic creations of the new producing company.

Not as some in America might suppose has the Goldwyn advertising been confined to the motion picture journals of this country. For the first time in the history of the industry a promotional campaign has been projected into all languages simultaneously and the productions and stars of the new company given an introduction simultaneously in all the populous regions of the globe. Heretofore the foreign campaigns have followed months, or even years, after the original introduction of productions in the United States.

We don't need to tell you that these celebrated faces are those of Goldwyn stars.

The trade press of the motion picture industry in all the scattered lands of the British domain, of Japan, China, and the far East, of Spain, Italy and the other nations, has become a vehicle through which to spread the announcement of Mary Garden's appearance in Goldwyn pictures around the world; to let the exhibitors on every continent know that Mae Marsh has joined the Goldwyn group of stars with Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Madge Kennedy.

Pictorial campaigns for all of the Goldwyn stars are being made in the British publications and throughout the British colonial possessions. In London, Manchester, Leeds, Birmingham; in Adelaide, Sydney, Victoria, Wellington, Brisbane, Christchurch and Pretoria and Johannesburg as well as in the principal cities of Canada, the great population centers are being told of the Goldwyn celebrities and of the Goldwyn plans for them. Out in the east the campaign is under way in Manila, Honolulu, Tokio, Shanghai, Peking and in the greater and lesser cities of the East both the English language publications and native press are co-operating with the Goldwyn organization.

Mary Garden has just admitted that her first Goldwyn picture will be a camera version of the powerful operatic masterpiece of Anatole France, "Thais." As exhibitors in the United States first learn the fact, their fellow exhibitors in countries abroad read the announcement in foreign languages.

In line with the world-wide promotional publicity of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, the statement is authorized that Goldwyn, after negotiations by cable and with his agents in New York, has bought the complete world rights to "Thais" from Anatole France, the French author.

Miss Garden made both the opera and its title role sensationally famous throughout the world. When produced, "Thais" was the sensation of two continents, and it helped make this famous woman one of the most talked about stars in the entire realms of music and drama.

"Thais" has been chosen by "referendum." The selection was determined upon only after the tabulation of thousands of letters received from motion picture patrons and theater owners in every section of the United States and Canada, and from South American and British exhibitors. The letters came in such volume that newspapers adopted the plan of shipping the mail in large boxes by express.

"Salome" Third Choice in Balloting

"Thais" was not selected without competition from the other famous operatic vehicles in which Miss Garden has appeared. The pathos and beauty of "The Juggler of Notre Dame" appealed to hundreds of persons who cast their vote for it. "Salome" came third in the voting.

A few minutes before Mary Garden sailed for Europe she talked of the result of the balloting and said: "I think that there are many more who would prefer to see me in 'Salome' but who would perhaps be too embarrassed to sign their names to the request for it."

Miss Garden told a New York editor, who came to the boat to see her off, that while in Paris she will evolve a sensational new dance for her production of "Thais" that will be one of the most astounding things ever done in pictures.

Goldwyn announces to exhibitors and the public that the "referendum" method of appealing to picture lovers will be adopted in the selection of Miss Garden's other pictures and that the management will be guided entirely by the public's choice.

Samuel Goldfish Recovers from Injury

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, is recovering rapidly from his recent accident, which resulted in the fracturing of the bones of his left ankle. While playing handball at the City Athletic Club, Mr. Goldfish turned abruptly and his ankle gave way. His physicians assure him that in a few days he can go out.

During his confinement both distributors and exhibitors from all sections of the United States have had conferences with him at home.

"Silas Marner" Appeals to Schools

In most of the cities and towns of the country, "Silas Marner," that masterpiece of fiction written by George Eliot, is studied by high school pupils. They as well as their parents and teachers will be very much interested in the Mutual Film Corporation's screen version of "Silas Marner," with Frederick Warde, the Shakespearean actor, in the title role. This story was produced for Mutual release a year ago.

At the General Federation of Women's Clubs in New York last spring, one woman, a Chicago teacher, got up at a meeting of several thousand women held to discuss motion pictures and said that she considered "Silas Marner" not only an unforgettable masterpiece, but an actual blessing to the teacher of English literature.

Mutual's "Silas Marner," with Frederick Warde.

FORUM FILMS, INC.

Locked Five-Reel Program of Conquest Pictures Will Be Distributed in Twenty Cities by Edison-Hodkinson Exchanges

Exchanges are to be established shortly in about twenty cities by the Forum Films, Inc., through which the distribution of Edison Conquest Pictures will soon be commenced. Kenneth L. Hodkinson, general manager of the company, has just opened offices in New York in the Times building. The exchanges elsewhere are expected to begin business by April 1.

Conquest pictures, made possible by a coalition of the Edison and Hodkinson interests, and the organizing of the Forum Films, Inc., for the purpose of releasing a series of well known books in features of 3,000 feet, will have as its initial production, Ralph Henry Barbour's "The Half Back," one of the most popular high school novels of recent times, in which Yale Boss, known as the greatest boy actor a few years ago, will venture forth to conquer leading juveniles as completely as he has his boy roles in former days.

Thomas A. Edison serves on the advisory board and promises to give what attention he can to the work of production. W. W. Hodkinson, formerly president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, is president of the Forum Films, Inc. Mr. Edison is vice-president, and Raymond Pawley secretary and treasurer. Mr. Pawley has been associated with Mr. Hodkinson in the past while they were with Paramount.

Forum Films, Inc., will release its pictures in what is called a locked program. The program will be shown in its entirety and will consist of subjects contained in five reels. A feature in three or four reels will be supplemented by something of a comedy or scientific and educational nature. Mr. Hodkinson states that the primary desire of the company is to furnish a clean, balanced program that will please right-thinking people and arouse no sentiment against motion pictures.

The exchanges to be opened at once will be located in New York, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, Boston, Portland, Me., Detroit, Cincinnati, Chicago, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Kansas City, Salt Lake, Denver, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle.

Third "Fortune Photoplay"

Ruth Roland, who has few peers for popularity upon the screen, stars in the General Film Company's third "Fortune Photoplay," "The Devil's Bait." The scenario of this striking photo-dramatic presentation of the ruby mines of India and the drawing rooms of modern society was written from the original story by Will M. Ritchey, chief of staff of the Balboa Company's scenario department. Miss Roland plays the character of Doris Sheldon, a beautiful young girl who inherits a passion for jewels (the devil's bait) which almost wrecks her life. It affords her a splendid opportunity to display her marked emotional gifts in a portrayal that is strikingly powerful and convincing.

In Miss Roland's support appear William Conklin, Edward J. Brady, Lucy Blake, Henry King, Myrtle Reeves, Gordon Sackville, Lucille Serwill, Zada Marlo and Charles Dudley.

NEW MUTUAL SERIAL

"Jimmie Dale" Series a Prescription of Thrills—Deals With Adventures of a Bold Modern Robin Hood

Made to a success formula of sure fire material "Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal," a series of sixteen two reelers, will be released by the Mutual Film Corporation weekly beginning March 23.

The "Jimmie Dale" series was admittedly and avowedly made a popular product—for mass consumption.

The "Jimmie Dale" series is full of the biff, bang, bing.

Thousands of rounds of ammunition are fired. Heroes leap. Heroines dare and suffer. Villains scheme. Plotters plot. Roughhouses and battles abound.

Complications come thick and, of course, fast.

There is something doing all the while. Troubles multiply.

Suspense suspends with remarkable and unending endurance.

They "Get the Money"

"Made for the exhibitor as 'get the money film,'" is the description offered by Jules Burnstein, of Monmouth Film Corporation, the producing concern. The pictures present E. K. Lincoln, stage and screen star of fame. They were made under the direction of Harry McRae Webster, president of Monmouth.

The plays are built about the burglarious adventures of Jimmie Dale, a millionaire socialist, whose obsession a la Robin Hood or Raffles, is robbing the rich to provide for the poor, an enterprise carried out by the polite malefactor with such extraordinary skill and adroitness that he escapes capture while the police and secret service departments of two continents are hot on his trail.

Each of the sixteen plays constitutes a complete episode and every one, from the first, "The Grey Seal," to "The Victory," last of the series, is a succession of thrills involving hairbreadth escapes from capture in wild riot or car chases with the police often right on the heels of the handsome fugitive.

Mr. Lincoln, "that handsome devil," as he is called in the studios, has for leading woman charming Edna Hunter who made such a hit in "The Common Law."

Other distinguished actors in the supporting company are Paul Panzer, who played the heavy villain in "The Perils of Pauline," and Doris Mitchell, the famous vampire lady.

Edna Hunter Opposite E. K. Lincoln

Mr. Lincoln made much of his fame as the star in George Barr McCutcheon's famous romance, "Graustark," and in that equally popular production "The Million Bid," another Broadway production that enjoyed a tremendous run. It was after the latter success that Mr. Lincoln organized the E. K. Lincoln Players, a combination that achieved great celebrity.

In the "Jimmy Dale, alias The Grey Seal" series, Mr. Lincoln has an opportunity to display that subtle genius of interpretation which permits him to portray characters whose normal social status is ostracism, not only without offense with withal so fascinatingly as to disarm criticism and inspire enthusiastic approval.

While the plays all deal with the adventures of a burglar, Mr. Lincoln's burglar is so odd a freak of his own strange philosophy—so palpably not a robber for profit and so plainly a philanthropist at heart, that after spending an hour in his company one does not accuse one's self of having compounded a felony, but is forced to admit having been thrillingly entertained.

There is something uncanny yet vastly fascinating about the four-cornered grey seal which Jimmie Dale always leaves to identify his work. It is a defiance to the police and a bold bad man is invariably popular.

"TWIN KIDDIES" BREAKS RECORD

Stillman Theater, Cleveland, Arranges Novel Contest in Co-operation with Leading Department Store and Big Newspaper

Baby Marie Osborne, Pathe's child star in "Twin Kiddies," recently broke the matinee attendance record at the splendid Stillman Theater, Cleveland. The picture was run for a full week at a top admission of fifty cents.

In connection with it a splendid stunt was arranged with Stern's department store, the best in Cleveland, which is next door to the Stillman. A window display showing all sorts of toys for children, including a number of very attractive dolls, was arranged with a card announcing that the store would give first, second and third prizes in the contest conducted by the photoplay editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer for the best letter of not more than 150 words written by children under ten years of age telling what they would do if they were Baby Marie Osborne. The Stillman put on an especially fine lobby display.

Induce Your Paper to Do Likewise

The contest pleased every child in town and naturally interested all the grown-ups too.

The following extract from the Cleveland Plain Dealer will give a complete idea of the newspaper end of the contest:

Only two days remain for children under ten years of age to compete for the dolls, tools and guns, etc., in the Baby Marie Osborne contest. Write your letter of not more than 150 words telling what you would do if you were Baby Marie Osborne or a famous young star and send or deliver it to the Baby Marie Osborne contest editor, Stillman Theater, so he will get it not later than Saturday night, when the contest closes.

Yesterday afternoon Baby Marie Osborne in "Twin Kiddies" broke the record matinee attendance of the Stillman Theater. Hundreds of children took advantage of the holiday to see their tiny favorite. The unanimous opinion of the child contestants has been that Marie makes children and grown folks happy, a great work for a little child.

Other theaters throughout the country can use this idea to advantage. Baby Marie Osborne is just becoming one of the best drawing cards on the screen. Such showmanship as this cannot but reap full benefit.

New Ethel Clayton Picture

Ethel Clayton's next picture play for World-Brady is now titled "Man's Woman," in place of "The House Cat." The change was made by Director General William A. Brady to eliminate speculation to the effect that the play might be a dramatized domestic zoo. In reality it is a powerful drama in which a loving wife is sidetracked in favor of business until she finally revolts. Rockcliffe Fellowes is "featured" in the cast.

Goldwyn Captures Robert Harron

ROBERT HARRON has signed the artistic pledge with Goldwyn. The former Triangle star has already started work in the second Mae Marsh picture. It is expected that he will also play opposite Miss Marsh in other features.

The signing of Harron by Goldwyn reunites "Bobby" and "Mae," who have worked together since early Biograph days. The boy star is added to the notable Goldwyn list including Mary Garden and Maxine Elliot.

COMING VITAGRAPHS

April, May and June Blue Ribbon Releases in Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. Weekly Program—Big Range of Subjects

The Blue Ribbon feature releases in the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. program for April, May and June can now be definitely announced. They include a tremendous range of subjects, with intense drawing-room and outdoors drama in the preponderance. In some instances the productions were made before the new teaming of Vitagraph stars had been arranged by Albert E. Smith, president of the company.

"Babette," whose first showing to the sales force of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., while the production still was in the rough, evoked unstinted praise and applause, will be released on April 2. Peggy Hyland, the little English actress, and Marc MacDermott are co-starred in this unusual story of modern life, with a delicious French atmosphere, dramatized from the novel by E. Berkely Smith.

Earle Williams Feature, April 29

"Apartment 29," an intense drama starring Earle Williams, with Ethel Grey Terry as his leading woman, follows on April 9. Alice Joyce and Harry Morey come next, in "The Third Party," a strong modern story of western and eastern life, written and directed by Perry N. Vekroff. "The Third Party" will be released on April 16.

"Caste," a film version of the famous stage play which for almost thirty years has been the subject of all-star speaking stage revivals, in which the most famous of English and American actresses and actors have appeared, features Peggy Hyland as the little wife of the aristocratic British soldier. "Caste" will be released on April 23.

"The Hawk," with Earle Williams playing the role used by William Faversham in a recent New York presentation of this electric play, will follow on April 30. Ethel Grey Terry plays the role, opposite Mr. Williams, in which Mlle. Dazian appeared first on the Paris and then the New York speaking stage.

Lillian Walker's last appearance as a Vitagraph feature star is made in "Sally in a Hurry," which will be released on May 7.

Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno are co-starred in a spectacular film version of "The Captain of the Grey Horse Troop," which is a stirring story of western American life a few years ago, when even to railroad the continent was a great adventure. It will be released on May 14.

Peggy Hyland and Marc MacDermott make their re-appearance next in "The Sixteenth Wife," which will be released on May 21. This is a story wholly different from anything Miss Hyland ever has done, and Mr. MacDermott, as a sort of Terrible Turk, also has a role unique in his long and unusually varied screen experience.

"A Son of the Hills," starring Antonio Moreno, will be released on June 4. Then comes, a week later, "The Maelstrom," co-starring Dorothy Kelly and Earle Williams. "The Maelstrom" is the production with which it had been intended to mark the return of Anita Stewart and Earle Williams as co-stars, an intention which came to naught owing to Miss Stewart's nervous breakdown.

Many of these pictures are already scheduled for their premier New York appearance at the Rialto Theater, where Samuel L. Rothapfel uses the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. Blue Ribbon feature program as the basis of his whole entertainment. Probably the first of these forthcoming Vitagraph releases to be shown there will be "Babette."

More Skinner of Dress Suit

There will be more of Mr. Skinner of the dress suit. Following the great success which met "Skinner's Dress Suit" in film form, President George K. Spoor has contracted with Henry Irving Dodge, the author, for three more features dealing with the great moments in the life of the clerk who bought a dress suit and found himself. The titles of the forthcoming features are: "Skinner's Big Idea," "Skinner's Baby," and "Skinner's Waterloo."

Bryant Washburn will be featured in all of them and will be supported by the identical cast which helped him make such a hit of "Skinner's Dress Suit." Harry Beaumont, who directed the first, will direct the new plays.

"Skinner's Dress Suit" was taken from Henry Irving Dodge's famous story in The Saturday Evening Post. Critics were delighted with Essanay's film version and that their attitude was shared by the general public is proven by the extensive bookings recorded by the picture.

Lasky Engages Tourneur for Year

One of the most important directorial acquisitions made by any member of the Paramount group was announced today when it became known that Jesse L. Lasky has engaged Maurice Tourneur, the celebrated French director, for at least one year. Mr. Tourneur's first picture for Paramount will have Mme. Petrova as its star and he will also direct the famous Russian actress's second Lasky production.

Mr. Tourneur will direct nine pictures during the year for Lasky, work on the Petrova photoplay beginning within the next two weeks.

FAIRBANKS ANNOUNCES PLANS

Will Stage Two Artcraft Subjects in New York and Others in Wyoming, California and Honolulu —First Release in April

Douglas Fairbanks announced his plans for the immediate future which involve trips to Wyoming, California and Honolulu. The title of the initial Fairbanks-Artcraft release now being staged at the temporary studio on West Fifty-fourth street, New York City, has been changed to "In Again, Out Again." This is a story dealing with the spectacular career of a young New Yorker who goes through many trials and tribulations to win the girl of his choice, portrayed in the typical Fairbanks style. There are several twists to the story which are being kept secret in order to affect the desired surprises when displayed.

This will appear in April, following George M. Cohan's initial screen play, "Broadway Jones" which will be first given its public showing on March 26.

John Emerson, director of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in "Macbeth," as well as various Fairbanks successes, will supervise the production of the forthcoming Fairbanks-Artcraft pictures. Anita Loos, the authoress of "In Again, Out Again," and many other Fairbanks hits will be responsible for all the stories.

She Vamps "De Luxe"

Louise Glaum, the "vampire de luxe," soon will return to the Triangle program in a new and startling characterization, when she is presented by Thomas H. Ince in "Sweetheart of the Doomed."

"Sweetheart of the Doomed" is described as being a cyclonic chapter from the life of a siren, whose contrition God rewarded in her hour of need. It narrates the heart-throbs of Honore Zonlay, a French adventuress, who, nursing a bitter hatred of all mankind for men pay.

Vitagraph Promotions

Under the supervision of A. E. Smith the eastern Vitagraph studios have been divided into seven main departments. Victor Smith is, as before, the studio manager, in charge of the whole plant. W. P. S. Earle becomes production manager. Eugene Mullin is editor-in-chief of the scenario department. R. F. Van Velzer is the factory manager. John Ickes remains the purchasing agent, Walter Bunyon the manager of the accounting department, and J. B. French the superintendent.

Art Dramas Booming in Middle West

Art Dramas are hitting the high spots in the middle west, recent reports from the territories embracing Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana indicating that exhibitors are rapidly waking up to the opportunities for profitable bookings presented by the new program. The uniform merit of all of the productions released by Art Dramas is causing widespread comment throughout this section of the country, as it has everywhere else where pictures are shown.

As an instance of how the wise film showmen of the city of Detroit alone have grasped the Art Dramas idea, no less than fifty-three houses are presently booking into the service. In view of the fact that the inception of Art Dramas is of such recent origin and that competition in Detroit is particularly keen the unusual booking record is highly significant. The smaller cities throughout Michigan are likewise reported as booking the Art Dramas program heavily.

While the audience appeal of the productions of the Art Dramas program has been the primary reason for its speedy success a surprising number of requests for photographs and publicity matter pertaining to the popular screen artists appearing in these consistently entertaining photodramas, plainly evidences that picture players such as Alma Hanlon, Jean Sothern, Anna Q. Nillson, Viola Dana, Marion Swayne, Bigelow Cooper and Leo Delaney possess drawing powers that mean much to that unerring indicator of real merit—the box office.

"Big Grin" Douglas Fairbanks, Anita Loos, his scenario writer, and Director John Emerson are over at the right.

On invitation by Frank Lascelles, director of the new Photoplay League, and Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, society viewed Mary Pickford in "A Poor Little Rich Girl" at the Sonora Studio on Fifth Avenue, New York. The group includes: Lord Aberdeen, ex-governor general of Canada, Lady Aberdeen, Mrs. Chas. Dana Gibson, Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Hy de Coppett and Viscount de Coppett, Louis Keller, Frank Lascelles, Waldo J. Morse, Chas. Wade, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Chas. Phelps, Schuyler Warren, Mars Hamilton and Henry Fairfield Osborn.

High Lights in "Fighting Gentleman"

The atmosphere of the South fifty years ago is most carefully carried out in "My Fighting Gentleman," the latest Mutual-American production in which William Russell is starred. Clever comedy scenes are introduced showing the life of the care-free, happy negroes with their dances and music and ready laughter.

William Russell is at his best in "My Fighting Gentleman."

William Russell is afforded a splendid opportunity to show his ability as a fighter when he stands alone against a mob of angry negroes urged on by the carpetbaggers. Led to believe he has killed one of their number on no provocation they are clamoring for his death, but he managers to keep them at bay until his arm is shattered by a bullet.

The same mob figures in a very exciting scene when, evading his pursuers, the bloodhounds are brought out to try to trail Russell, and a spectacular chase through the swamp ensues.

Francelia Billington makes her first appearance in American productions in "My Fighting Gentleman." She makes a most charming little leading lady.

Exhibitors to Get "Deemster" Dates

Dr. W. E. Shallenberger will shortly made announcements of release dates for "The Deemster." This production has attracted great attention among state rights buyers who have been quick to realize that this photo-drama will possess exceptional drawing power from the fact that it is a picture version of a novel that has been read by people throughout this country during the past thirty years.

A well-known book-seller, in estimating the probable number of readers of this story, has stated that it cannot have been read by less than ten million people during the past thirty years. The author, Hall Caine, has been constantly before the public.

The Arrow Company has made a wonderfully artistic production of "The Deemster," and in the interpretation of its leading character presents Derwent Hall Caine, an actor who, in youth and personality and in dramatic interpretation completely fulfills the conception of the character gained by the reading of the book. As the son of the author of the story his acting of the character of Dan possesses additional interest.

Exhibitors are displaying a great deal of interest in this picture, and not a day passes but what many inquiries reach the Arrow office asking when and from whom bookings can be made. A statement as to these points in connection with territorial rights will not be made until the entire country has been disposed of, and then every exhibitor will receive direct information from whom to book "The Deemster" for his city or town.

JAXON FILM CORPORATION

Enters Field to Distribute Features on Open Market. First Production "Strife" Starring George LeGuere Ready for Release

The Jaxon Film Corporation, the newest of the film companies to enter the producing field will distribute its productions through the medium of independent exchanges, according to an announcement given out by the company at its New York offices in the Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second street. The first production to be released by this company is a five-reel picture starring George LeGuere, who is also being starred in the McClure series, "The Seven Deadly Sins." The picture which is to be released under the terse, yet compellingly dramatic title "Strife," was produced at the Jaxon studios in Florida, under the direction of Lambert Hillyer. Supporting George LeGuere in the production is a cast of well-known players that includes Jean Stuart, Herbert Bostwick, Dean Raymond, Martha Burlingham, Alfred Swenson, Malachi Kelley, Katherine Patch and Frank Andrews.

Speaking of the entrance of the Jaxon Film Corporation into the film industry, one of the officials of the company made the following statement:

The only new thing about our company is the name. Our organization is composed entirely of experienced people, each one a specialist in his or her particular branch of the business. It will be the policy of our company to take the greatest care in the selection of stories. Popular players, whose names mean something at the box office, will be featured in Jaxon Films. The engagement of George LeGuere in our first production "Strife" is a good example of what this company means by the phrase "a popular player." Mr. LeGuere has received more advertising and publicity recently than almost any other male star now appearing before the public, and his work on the "Seven Deadly Sins" series has firmly established him as a screen favorite.

Jaxon Films will be distributed on the open market through the medium of independent exchanges.

Triangle's President on Tour

W. W. Hodkinson, president of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, has left New York on a tour which will take in all the big cities of the west. Mr. Hodkinson's first stop will be Chicago, and from there on he will visit all of the Triangle western exchanges, and most of the important exhibitors using Triangle pictures.

It is his intention to take up matters of vital interest to the development of Triangle service along original and progressive lines, and to inculcate a spirit of co-operation in the various branches.

Mr. Hodkinson first came into prominence as an exhibitor in Utah, Idaho and California, and no figure in the industry is better known or better liked in that part of the country.

It was Mr. Hodkinson who made it possible to show the first big features on the Pacific Coast at a standard price, and any movement for the betterment of conditions and the improvement of film service as a whole that bears the stamp of his inception will be sure to gain an impetus that will insure its success.

"A Poor Little Rich Girl" Praised

That Mary Pickford's latest Artcraft release, "A Poor Little Girl" presents the crowning achievement in the brilliant career of this famous little actress is the unanimous expression of the many thousands of screen patrons who have already seen the production throughout the country as well as the press and the profession in general.

Douglas Fairbanks, the newest Artcraft star, highly praised the picture and lost no time in sending the following wire to "Little Mary" at Los Angeles. "Saw private run of 'A Poor Little Rich Girl.' Think it perfectly bully. One of the best feature films I have ever seen. Your acting is marvelous. Never once did you look more than twelve years of age in your finished characterization." The New York dailies gave Miss Pickford's new picture unusual display space despite the fact that no more than the usual amount of advertising was placed. Every criticism was of a laudatory nature. The Evening Mail headed its review: "'Little Mary' Charming in Eleanor Gates' Play. 'A Poor Little Rich Girl' Shows Miss Pickford in Her Best Screen Part." The N. Y. Sun said: "There seems to be no limit to the illusion of extreme youth which Miss Pickford is capable of producing." The Times said: "Miss Pickford has never given a finer performance than in this role." The reviewers on the trade papers also extended themselves in praising the work of Miss Pickford and the picture in general.

Speed in Dorothy Gish Play

In the Triangle-Fine Arts production "Her Official Fathers," Dorothy Gish, in the leading role, has an exciting episode in an attempt to rescue her suitor, who is in apparent danger of arrest through misrepresentation. Miss Gish does some daring stunts in a Stearns Eight, and after safely driving the car over the roughest roads in the country, eludes her pursuers. But in the joy of the moment Miss Gish speeds up as she nears home and Fred Hamer, the motorcycle cop, gives chase. The cop earns his money, for Miss Gish leads him a merry chase; in fact, Mr. Hamer took a peach of a header over his handle bars in his haste to nab the speeders, and his cyclometer registered 115 miles when the chase was over.

Elmer Clifton and Joseph Henabery are co-directing this production, the scenario of which was adapted by Roy Somerville from a story written by Hugh S. Miller, entitled "A La Arabella."

Special Music for Mutual Pictures

Coincident with its establishment of the "big stars only" policy, the Mutual Film Corporation under President John R. Freuler has begun a campaign of special service to the exhibitor. A part of this service is a music cue sheet, or musical suggestion schedule representing more than ordinary effort.

The Mutual's music cue sheets, the first of which was issued in connection with the release of "The Greater Woman," are prepared by Joseph O'Sullivan, a composer and operatic expert who has been added to the staff for the purpose.

The Mutual's music cues have no strings tied to them—that is they are not a part of the promotion of any music publisher and the cues are so indicated that the picture can be presented with the numbers available in any reasonably well equipped orchestra library.

Texas Metro Agency Sold

By William Noble

One of the largest deals ever made in the motion picture field of the Southwest was completed at Dallas, Texas, last week when Albert Russell and David Reed sold the Metro Picture Corporation of Texas to I. C. Rickel and others of Oklahoma City for a cash consideration of $50,000. The corporation distributes feature films in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

Fine Arts Director Elmer Clifton, Cameraman Karl Brown and their crew in action with Dorothy Gish during the creation of "Her Official Father." In the big calico tent is Winifred Westover of the Fine Arts constellation.

Above is the sparkling Sylvia Bremer, Triangle Ince star.

Dorothy Kelly. Edith Storey. Anita Stewart Alice Joyce. Peggy Hyland.

A feminine quintette of very well known and very charming Vitagraph stars. Any one of these faces on your screen means a well satisfied cash box.

"Fatty" Arbuckle Closes Big Tour

Finishing one of the biggest publicity stunts ever pulled off in the film industry, "Fatty" Arbuckle, will long remember the cylonic finish he had at Boston, March 6. He has been dined and wined and entertained in every large city from the Pacific to the Atlantic, by the big men in each city both in the exhibitors' ranks as well as big men and women in political, social and business life. As he himself remarked he never knew until this trip was at an end how well known and popular he was, for it seemed to him as if it was a sort of perpetual "Old Home Week," from the time he left California, February 17, until he was tucked away in his berth, March 7, about 3 a m., at Boston.

The Boston Arbuckle reception and banquet was one which will long be remembered by the New England exhibitors, and the guests of honor who were sumptously entertained by the Famous Players Film Company of New England.

Among the entertainers at the big banquet for "Fatty" was manager Johnson of the Globe Theater, who rendered many fine selections. After the tables had been cleared, speaking was in order. The toastmaster of the occasion was the Hon. Joseph Levenson, and among the speakers were Attorney General Henry C. Atwell, president of the Massachusetts state senate; Hon. Henry Wells; Hon. Charles F. Wright, member of the governor's council; Hon. Edward F. Slattery, secretary to Mayor Curley; Adolph Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Hiram Abrams, Walter E. Greene, Harry Asher, Marcus Loew, Emil Ludwig, attorney for Paramount Pictures Corporation, and last but not least Mr. Arbuckle.

Exhibitors from all over New England were present and all said nothing was lacking. But perhaps "Fatty" voiced best the sentiments of his own party, "Some start, some trip, some finish."

New Mary Charleson Play

Reports from trade showings of "Satan's Private Door," indicate that this feature is one of the strongest productions put out this season by Essanay. It was released through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service, March 19.

Mary Charleson, who has been seen as Henry B. Walthall's leading woman in many of his recent successes, is featured for the first time under Essanay's banner in this picture. Those who have found her past work pleasing will be doubly delighted with her in "Satan's Private Door," for it is said her role here is much stronger, offering a far wider field for tensely dramatic acting.

Miss Charleson is pictured as a pious little girl—innocent of the ways of the great city—who finds herself unexpectedly plunged into a maelstrom of evil. Webster Campbell, of the University of Michigan, makes his debut in Essanay feature production in the role of Joe. Hazel Daly, who played opposite Bryant Washburn in "Skinner's Dress Suit," is the spitfire Anne. U. K. Houpt and John Cossar are other well known actors in the well-balanced company. J. Charles Haydon directed the production. "Satan's Private Door" has a screen time of one hour twelve minutes.

Brenon Film at Broadway Theater

"The Eternal Sin," Herbert Brenon's second Selznick-Picture, will be shown at the Broadway Theater, New York, for two weeks beginning March 18. In this magnificent photodrama, the star is Miss Florence Reed, who has created a furore in New York this season by her acting in the spectacular production of "The Wanderer." The Broadway run of "The Eternal Sin" has been limited because of previous bookings for that house. The dollar scale of prices which has ruled at the Broadway ever since the Selznick-Brenon-Laemmle regime began, will continue for this engagement as well.

"The Eternal Sin" will be still another demonstration of the broad scope of the Brenon genius. It is in marked contrast to "War Brides," in that it goes back to the most magnificent period in the history of the world, the Italian renaissance, and tells a story of love and intrigue in the court of the notorious Borgias.

The central figure is Lucretia Borgia herself, a name synonymous with "poisoner" in the minds of everyone. This story, however, is taken from the great drama by Victor Hugo, which sheds a new light upon this remarkable woman's character. The better side of her nature is brought to the surface through her affection for a mysterious youth, but her motives are misinterpreted, and in self-defense she takes dire vengeance upon her enemies. The manner in which her deeds recoil upon the head of the young man in whom she takes so deep an interest, provides one of the most terrific tragedies ever presented upon the stage or the screen.

Mr. Brenon will not be able to be present at the premiere of his production, as he has already left for New Orleans to begin work on his next Selznick-Pictures offering, "The Lone Wolf," adapted from Louis Vance's "best seller."

The Man Inside the Booth

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT, CONDUCTED BY E. C. SCOBEY

THIS department is a permanent feature of MOTOGRAPHY. Its editor, Mr. Scobey, is a former secretary and treasurer of the Motion Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 194, I. A. T. S. E., and was formerly associated with the Central Film Service Company of Indianapolis. He was recently elected vice-president of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, the first operator to be so honored. The idea is to make this department just as helpful as possible to operators and exhibitors. Send your questions and problems to Mr. Scobey. He is sure to give you some valuable information. Address, MOTOGRAPHY, Chicago.

I see that you also are an Indiana operator or rather were formerly. I am having considerable trouble with the breaking of condensers. I am running a Power's 6 B with A. C. current 110 volt and run on an average with 60 ampers. I have tried several makes of condensers but they all break the same place, that is up and down. Can you suggest anything that will help me to remedy the trouble?

Are there any Unions in northern Indiana? If so can you give me a little information on the subject?—Harry Evans, Albion, Indiana.

There are several causes for condenser breakage but I don't believe that anyone could give you all the causes, but I will try and give you a few of them and how to remedy the trouble. Lens fitted too tight in the mounts. Lens clamped against metal mounts. Too much heat in the lamphouse, caused by poor ventilation of the lamphouse or allowing a draft to strike the hot condenser. Never allow a fan to be turned direct on the lamphouse or have a window open at the rear of the booth where the draft will come direct upon the rear of the lamphouse. Operators using the round mounts should be sure that the condenser fits so that there is at least one-sixteenth of an inch play between the condenser and the mount.

If there is not that much play, take the lens and grind down the edge on a grindstone. Lens that fit too tight in the mount expand with the heat and that is the cause of the breakage. In mounts like those used in the Power's machines be sure that the lens fits loose under the clamps. If they do not fit loose, then take a pair of pliers and bend the clamp out enough so that the condenser will fit loose in the mount.

It is a very good idea to put an asbestos ring next to the condenser mount and a small piece of asbestos under each one of the clamps. This keeps the condenser from coming in contact with the metal of the mount. Cut the asbestos rings from a sheet of one-eighth-inch asbestos. Cut the ring 4½ inches in diameter on the outside and 4 inches in diameter on the inside. Keep the wire gauze in the top of the lamphouse clean and free from dirt. Keep the door on the far side of the lamphouse open about two inches. Too much heat in the lamphouse and the sudden cooling of the condenser is the main cause of condenser breakage.

There are several I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. Locals in northern Indiana. There is an operators' local at Ft. Wayne, Ind., Local No. 466, and another one at Michigan City, Local No. 616.

Address a letter to the secretary of the nearest one of these two locals and I am sure that he will give you the information that you desire. I am still an Indiana operator and my headquarters is at Indianapolis. I have visited the following cities this week and find the operators all working and very little to complain about: Peru, Kokomo, Elwood, Muncie, Anderson and Frankfort.

Praises "Man Inside the Booth" Department

I have been reading MOTOGRAPHY for about one year. I have not found anything wrong with it. And "The Man Inside the Booth" Department is sure good for any operator to read. My machine is running in good order. I think it is the way that I handle it. It is about three years old and is a Nicholas Power's 6B. It has a motor drive. I have had five years' experience on a Power's 5 and 6B, but there is one question that I would like to ask: How many revolutions does the fly wheel on a Power's 6B and a shutter make in a minute? I hope to see an answer in MOTOGRAPHY real soon and thanking you for the shutter and fly wheel suggestion and then I know it all about operating.—P. A. D., Operator, Family Theater, Reynoldsville, Pa.

Your welcome letter at hand and you may rest assured that I am very glad to hear that you have not found anything wrong with MOTOGRAPHY and that you think that the projection department is a help to any operator. I am also glad to hear that you keep your machine in such good running condition. You are surely a valuable man to your manager and he should be very proud of you. I believe, though, that you have made one mistake in your letter and that is where you say that you are running a Power's 6B machine and it is three years old. I will have to correct you there, for the Power's 6B has only been on the market since April, 1915. No doubt your machine is a Power's 6A.

In asking the question as to how many revolutions the fly wheel and shutter shaft make a minute you fail to state how fast the machine is running, so I take it for granted that you meant at the average speed, which is from sixty to sixty-five revolutions a minute of the crank. At sixty revolutions a minute of the crank, the fly wheel and shutter shaft will make nine hundred and sixty revolutions a minute. The fly wheel and shutter shaft make sixteen revolutions to the crank's one, so you can figure out the number they make a minute by the speed of the crank. I hope that the above information will be of great help to you and that it will complete your knowledge on projection and make you a more valuable man to the profession and that you will continue to contribute to the projection department of MOTOGRAPHY from time to time with your interesting letters.

I am having light trouble and would like your assistance. Am using ⅝" soft cored carbons top and bottom and am using 110 volts 50 amperes A. C. current and the arc travels around the carbon and the light gets dim and remains so for a minute or more, then returns to its proper stage and at times the carbons burn flat on each side instead of in front and the light is poor and shows blue streaks on the curtain. What shall I do to overcome this trouble and where is my trouble?—A. E. PERCIVAL, Operator, Strand Theater, Nevga, Ill.

The first place to look for your trouble is in the setting of the carbons. Have your carbons set so that the bottom carbon projects about one-eighth inch in front of the top carbon and be sure that the carbons are in line with each other as you look at them through the condenser opening. I believe that you will find this the best way to set carbons on A. C. as well as D. C. current. After setting the carbons as suggested above, try them out and if you still have trouble with your light you will find that the carbons you are using are too soft or that you are using more than 50 amps. of current. Five-eighth-inch carbon will carry as high as 60 amps. of current but when you go over that you should use larger carbons. Try a three-quarters-inch carbon in the top with a five-eighths-inch in the bottom and see if that helps you. Possibly the brand of carbons that you are using are not of the best grade. There are some good carbons on the market and then there are some awful poor ones, too.

Be sure that all connection from the switch to the machine are tight and making a good contact and that the terminals at the lamp are clean and making a good contact. Keep the jaws of the lamp clean by taking them apart and filing them and the clamps so that they both make a perfect contact with the carbon. Nearly all of the operator's troubles with the light is caused from loose connections and bad carbon jaws. Have your local electric company test the voltage and amperage at the lamp so that you will know just what you are getting in the way of current. Possibly you are not getting enough voltage; do not guess at the voltage or let the company guess, either; make them give you a correct reading and then you know exactly.

Here is a good example of a simple, inexpensive and effective program cover. It was printed in black from a zinc cut made from a simple pen and ink drawing. One of its chief virtues is its avoidance of "fancyness." This program is issued by Max Schwartz general manager of the Chicago Cinematograph Company, which owns and operates the Halfield, Beach and Harper Theaters. If you would be interested in a similar cover write Motography, Chicago, and we will give you cost figures.

Improve "Stills" for Lobbies

In an effort to give exhibitors the best possible "still" pictures for lobby display, the Rolfe and Columbia studios of the Metro Pictures Corporation have retained Clark W. Thomas as supervising technician of photography and lighting and have instructed him to work out several ideas now in the experimental stage.

One of the first innovations that will be inaugurated in the Metro studios under Mr. Thomas' supervision will be the making of "action stills" that will be just what the term implies. The "still" picture as now obtained is especially posed. In a short time the "still" pictures will be made during the action of the scene while the motion picture camera is at work.

It is Mr. Thomas' plan that each of the cameramen or his assistant shall have a specially devised camera with him, and will take all the big moments in the play. Mr. Thomas and Edward J. Shulter, technical director of the Rolfe and Columbia studios, of the Metro group, are co-operating in the experiments.

Another important departure occurs in regard to the development of films. When the sets are ready for photography, Mr. Thomas is consulted, and the lighting that is used by the cameraman is known by him. Many different light effects may be made on the one strip of film.

Something New in Hell

Ralph Godfrey, technical director, and Max Alexander, scenic artist, of the Pollard Picture Plays Company, are responsible for the statement that "something different in 'Hell' styles has been the rage for some years." They believe, however, that in "The Devil's Assistant," fourth of the Margarita Fischer series of Mutual Star Productions they have created a set which will be a mark for some years for other creative geniuses to work to. By the aid of paint and canvas these two men built a reproduction of the popular conception of the infernal regions which was more realistic than is possible to believe. So many of these "imitation hells" are built to look realistic but have no photographic qualities. This latter feature was kept uppermost in the building of this set, and the care and thoroughness with which they worked resulted in a piece of artistic reproduction that will puzzle most of the well informed picture makers and will remain a mystery to the layman.

"Dare-Devil" Riding in Fine Arts Play

A number of dare-devil riding scenes are features of the Triangle Fine Arts western drama, "Hands Up," directed by Tod Browning and featuring Wilfred Lucas. Colleen Moore, who plays the leading feminine role opposite to Lucas, is kidnapped and rushed down a mountain side on the back of a broncho in truly western style. These scenes were staged in Santa Ynez Canyon and one of the steepest parts of the canyon were utilized for staging this scene. Monte Blue, who plays the heavy, rides along at full speed and leaning from his saddle grasps Colleen Moore and swings her bodily in front of him on the saddle. He then gallops up this steep hill with the utmost speed, performing one of the most thrilling scenes of its kind ever staged.

Colleen Moore is a new addition to the Fine Arts studio, recently coming here from Chicago. After the scene was taken, during which time Miss Moore was shaken up considerably, she said she had one of the best times she had had for a long while. Monte Blue, who is an expert horseman, does some spectacular riding stunts in this production.

Al Artcraft Lichtman

One of filmdom's best known pioneers, Al Lichtman, has played an important part in the advancement of the big-time photoplay. His sales and exploitation methods have won him wide recognition throughout the trade and there are few persons representative of any branch of the industry with whom he is not personally acquainted.

Al. Lichtman, general manager, Artcraft.

Upon the formation of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation he was immediately offered the important position of general manager and that he is largely responsible for the rapid strides which this organization has evidenced during the short time it has been in business is readily appreciated by all who are familiar with the activities of virile and rapidly growing concern.

Mr. Lichtman's keen sense of equity in all his dealings with exhibitors has made him countless stanch friends among the film showmen throughout the country. The best test of a man's merit and capabilities is displayed in what his business associates and employees have to say about him. Everyone who comes in contact with "Al" has a good word to say about his progressive business ideas as well as his genial personality and there is not an employee in the Artcraft office that would not be glad to go far out of the way to please him.

Open Booking for Keystones

R. W. France, general manager of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, has the following statement to make regarding the relation between the Triangle Program and the Keystone Comedies:

There seems to have been a misapprehension in the minds of some exhibitors to the effect that they cannot book the Mack Sennett Keystone comedies except in connection with the Triangle program. We desire to make the situation clear so that every exhibitor may understand that he is entirely free to book the Keystone comedies irrespective of whether he uses the entire Triangle program or not. We are satisfied that both the Triangle program and the Keystone comedies will stand alone on their own merits. We believe that we are supplying in our Triangle program the best balanced and most acceptable program which it is possible to obtain. In addition to the five-reel features we are supplying two one-reel comedies each week to complete our program.

The Keystone comedies, however, are quite distinct from our program and can be booked separately by any exhibitor without reference to whether he books the Triangle program or not. These Keystone comedies have attained a unique reputation for themselves. They are the premier feature comedies that have set the standard in the industry, and exhibitors throughout the country are booking them with great rapidity to feature them as they deserve.

Our plan of distribution on these comedies is so regulated that any exhibitor can ultimately get them at a price which will fit the conditions of his theater and his pocketpook.

We had an interesting indication of the great popular demand for these comedies during the past week. A circular containing a return postal card went out to a list of about 17,500 exhibitors. Within three days from the time that the circular letter left our office over a thousand replies had been received, and they are still coming in daily.

Ultra Sets High Standard

The tendency of the entire country seems to be in the direction of better and higher grade feature productions. The public has been gradually educated to the point where they are not to be satisfied with an average production but insist that the particular exhibitor which they patronize give them the best there is in the market.

The Ultra Pictures Corporation has taken advantage of this opportunity and will release only the very best features that can be secured. Judging from their initial release "The Woman Who Dared" they are setting a high standard for their following productions but with the facilities with which they have equipped themselves they will not only keep up the pace but will go beyond.

First O. Henry Picture

Much interest has been created by the General Film Company's announcement of the first of the O. Henry series of photo-drama, "Past One at Rooney's," a photoplay based upon one of the most famous of this most famous author's stories. Made by the Broadway Star Features Company, it details the adventures of one "Cork" McManus, a gangster, who is falsely accused of attempt to murder. Then he meets a girl who is the most wonderful being on earth to him. "Cork's" regeneration follows but not till the course of the screen drama has led through an inextricable chain of plot, counterplot and sudden surprises such as one always expects in O. Henry stories.

Lou Tellegen Becomes Director

Lou Tellegen, celebrated stage and screen star, who has appeared recently in numerous Lasky-Paramount productions, and husband of Geraldine Farrar, will hereafter change his relations with the camera and forsake the screen to become a director. The announcement comes from Jesse L. Lasky that the action was taken at the suggestion of Mr. Tellegen who has long desired to take up directing on this side of the water.

Though the distinguished actor is chiefly known in America both on the screen and on the stage simply as an actor, he was as a matter of fact one of the first directors of successful photoplays on a large scale in Europe. It was Mr. Tellegen who directed Sarah Bernhardt when the great French tragedienne made her debut on the screen in the Famous Players Film Company's adaptation of "Queen Elizabeth" in 1912.

Griffith to London?

David Wark Griffith, who is said to have directed some motion picture plays, has, according to the New York press, sailed for London on the Baltic.

Mr. Griffith did not officially announce his departure, it is said, and little is known of the purpose of the game of tag with the U boats.

Nell Shipman Off for West Indies

Nell Shipman has sailed for Cuba and the islands of the Caribbean Sea where she will absorb sufficient local color to work into a romance of the Danish West Indies which is already bespoken by a New York publisher. Before returning to New York Miss Shipman will burn quite a big hole in a fat check recently paid her by a leading film company for a special ten-reel feature. Miss Shipman stated that she was pledged not to divulge the name of the company nor the theme of the photoplay.

FROM MUTUAL STUDIOS

Crane Wilbur Leads Mutual Releases for Week of March 19—"Jimmie Dale" Series Starts March 23

Crane Wilbur will make his reappearance as a star in the Mutual array during the week of March 19. The vehicle selected for his return is "The Painted Lie."

The exhibitor who knows that Crane Wilbur has a strong following among the patrons of his theater can make capital of the fact that this is entirely a Crane Wilbur feature and is marked by his personality from every angle. The scenario was written by Mr. Wilbur, he directed the production and also is the starred player.

"The Painted Lie" deals with a subject which always starts an argument pro and con wherever mentioned—circumstantial evidence. It shows the great wrong that can be done and how lives are wrecked through too hasty condemnation of a person with no proof of their guilt. It is a play which will send the people away thinking, a play that presents a strong moral and will make every person in the audience ponder over their own shortcomings in not giving the other person a fair chance to explain his seemingly wrong actions.

Shorty Hamilton as a Real Detective

Jewelers Suffer Great Loss! Several Bars of Bullion Disappear on Way From U. S. Mint to Manufacturing Jewelers! Small Boy Furnishes Clue to Thieves and Their Method of Securing Bullion! Statements such as these put in an advertisement in a newspaper or a theater program will arrest the attention of every person in the town and arouse their interest in No. 10 of the Mutual "Adventures of Shortly Hamilton" series, "Shorty Bags the Bullion Thieves." This two-reeler will appeal to every amateur detective and boy in the town as well as the older people. There is a fascination for almost everyone in watching a mystery unravelled by the secret service and having the clever methods of thieves explained to them.

Girl Reporter Foils Political Crooks

The idea of getting behind the scenes and seeing how things are really done always appeals and one reason for the great success which has been attending "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters" series is that the audience like to find out how the stories which they read in a newspaper are really obtained. Story No. 13 of this series "The Schemers" not only gives inside information adventures which befall the the newspaper woman when she starts out to get information which will help in the campaign for the elimination of crooked politics, but also some of the schemes which are hatched by these political gangs in the lower wards of the cities.

New Series Starts March 23

The first of a new series "Jimmie Dale alias the Grey Seal," will be released on March 23. This series consists of sixteen two-reel detective story pictures, each complete. These stories are the sort that will make the people sit on the edge of their chairs and hold their breath. The exhibitor who gets the people to see the first story will be sure of their attendance for sixteen weeks on the night he shows the Grey Seal. Give these stories a good start and they will carry themselves.

These pictures are an adaptation of the stories written by Frank L. Packard and now appearing in Peoples Magazine under the title of "The Professional Adventures of Jimmie Dale." They afford the exhibitor a splendid chance to co-operate with the local news dealer in advertising both the magazine stories and the film.

An all star cast plays in this series. E. K. Lincoln has the role of Jimmie Dale, supported by Edna Hunter, Paul Panzer and Doris Mitchell.

The Cub Comedy, featuring George Ovey, will be released on March 22. The title of this "funny" is "Minding the Baby." The Vogue comedy for the week, ready March 24, is "A Studio Stampede," and Ben Turpin is the principal laugh manufacturer.

Topicals for Fillers

On March 20 comes "Mutual Tours Around the World," giving views of three nations. Mutual Weekly No. 116, the news reel, comes to the screen on March 21. Because of its foreign connections through the Societe des Etablissements Gaumont, the Gaumont Company is able to supply this reel at the earliest possible date with important news pictures from all over the world.

Reel Life, the magazine of the screen, ready March 22, is made up of five subjects—"Making Food Cheaper," "Artificial Exercise," "A Snail Race Under Water," "Pineapples Under Glass," and "A Winter Outdoor Pageant in California."

These topicals are serviceable for exhibitors who are running special programs for children and they are recommended for this purpose by the Parent-Teachers Associations and Women's Clubs, and likewise are very popular with the children.

"His Father's Son," by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, will be the March 19 release of Metro Pictures Corporation, with Lionel Barrymore and Irene Howley as stars.

Essanay Star at Theaters

Exhibitors in and around Chicago who are running Essanay's feature, "Skinner's Dress Suit," are making a big hit with their patrons by having Bryant Washburn, the star, appear in person during the shows. Mr. Washburn, attired in the "original Skinner's Dress Suit," stands with the proprietor of each theater in the lobby meeting the patrons as they enter and, following each run of the picture, makes a short address to the crowds. Having advertised extensively beforehand that the screen star positively would appear at the showings, it is needless to say that exhibitors fortunate enough to obtain Mr. Washburn have been enabled to run return dates on "Skinner's Dress Suit." E. C. Bostick, proprietor of the Merrill Theater, Milwaukee, "put over" this stunt, and in one day drew 8,490 admissions—2,000 more than the previous house record.

Art Dramas Add Two Exchanges

Due to the ever increasing volume of bookings on Art Dramas, the Standard Film Corporation of Kansas City, distributers of the new program throughout Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas, announces the opening of additional exchanges in St. Louis and Des Moines. The St. Louis exchange of the Standard is already established in the Empress Theater building in that city and the Des Moines exchange will be installed in a central part of the town in a few days. While arranging for permanent quarters in Des Moines the Standard Film Corporation is doing a record business in its temporary offices.

New Helen Holmes Chapter Novel

The first chapter of the new Helen Holmes photo-novel, "The Railroad Raiders," will go to the public on April 9. Each of the fifteen chapters will be in two parts and will be released weekly through Mutual.

J. P. McGowan is directing this production which promises to even surpass "A Lass of the Lumberlands," the last Mutual-Signal serial which has been bringing crowded houses wherever shown and meeting the demands of the public in every respect.

"The Railroad Raiders" deals with the operations of two separate gangs of crooks each acting independently of the other, and each thinking it is getting away with the haul. It is a case of "Greek meeting Greek," and offers many comedy as well as dramatic situations.

This new chapterplay promises even more than the usual quota of sensational happenings expected in a Helen Holmes picture. Mr. McGowan has worked out a number of unusual and spectacular scenes taken at night in and around a railroad train and during severe storms presenting a weird spectacle of trains traveling through blackness with only lighted car windows, the steam of the engine and the glare beneath it showing.

Helen Holmes in her new Mutual serial, "The Railroad Raiders."

Stars Protest Re-Issues

There is shortly to be launched a campaign against certain producing organizations, by some of the best known stars of the screen and a number of prominent directors, asking that the practice of re-issuing of pictures of four years or more vintage be discontinued, as is now being carried on by several large film corporations.

The movement found its birth at a recent luncheon at which J. Warren Kerrigan, the noted star and one of the pioneers of the silent drama, was the guest of honor. It was his suggestion which furnished the food for considerable discussion and resulted in the promise of others present to back him up in any procedure on the re-issuing subject.

According to Kerrigan and his colleagues, the method now employed by producers in re-issuing films of aged vintage is an injustice to the public, and on the other hand very unfair to the star and all persons connected with such pictures.

Products which were first exploited as far back as six years ago are being floated on the market under the mask of a new title.

Doris Kenyon with Wharton

Miss Doris Kenyon has been recently engaged by Wharton, Inc., of Ithaca, N. Y., to star in their first super-feature production, "The Great White Trail." The company is now at Saranac Lake taking some of the winter scenes. Leo. D. Wharton is personally directing the work assisted by a picked staff from the Wharton studios.

"The Great White Trail" will be the best of releases of the Whartons under their policy of one super-feature each month. Miss Kenyon will have exceptional support in Thomas Holding and Paul Gordon. About two weeks will be required to finish the work at Saranac Lake and then the company will return to Ithaca to complete the picture at the studios.

Big New Chicago Concern

As another proof that Chicago is fast becoming a film center, there has just been organized in that city a new $250,000 motion picture concern.

It is to be known as the Mena Film Company and was incorporated in New Jersey by Dr. L. W. Jones of 4100 Michigan avenue and others who are interested in the project with him. Motography will print full details regarding the new company as soon as they are available.

Milwaukee's Regent Theater O. K.

Newspapers, it seems, are human-made and bound to err betimes. Even trade journals have been known to deviate from the hair line of scientific accuracy and the intricacies of fine tooth facts. So when several newspaper clippings were sent in to Motography last week from Milwaukee concerning a theater and censorship a story was written to serve the readers of this journal which did not give the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Newspapers reported that the Regent of Milwaukee had been closed on account of protests from the public and press on a certain film which is supposed to have been booked.

The president of the F. I. L. M. club of Milwaukee states to Motography there was nothing in the story. We are glad to report that Milwaukee's beautiful Regent was not concerned in such an affair and is continuing to serve its public in its usual praiseworthy manner.

FOX OFFICIAL RETURNS

Winfield Sheehan, General Manager Fox Film Corporation, Back from London, Makes Enlightening Report on Film Conditions Abroad

Winfield Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, after a five weeks' trip to England, returned on the Carmania, which, after eluding a cordon of German U-boats around Great Britain, arrived without incident.

Winfield Sheehan, general manager, Fox Film Corporation.

Mr. Sheehan went abroad to inspect the foreign offices of the corporation and to introduce to the British exhibitors "A Daughter of the Gods," with Annette Kellermann. On his return he said:

"A Daughter of the Gods" was most enthusiastically received in London. The trade and newspaper press praised the production most highly, and the London Times for the first time in its history devoted space to a review of a cinema production. The Kellermann production will be shown in a theater near Piccadilly about May 1.

Motion pictures are rapidly growing in favor throughout Great Britain. Attendance in all theaters is large, and it now appears to be the chief form of entertainment.

Owing to the reduction in train service, and the increased rates of fare on all British railroads, the touring companies have abandoned routes, and as a result the larger theaters are filling in with film dramas. William Fox pictures are firmly established.

In France the motion picture business is not so good as in England. Because of the necessity for utilizing electricity in the manufacture of munitions the motion picture houses are only allowed to open three nights a week.

Fox Version of Shakespeare Praised

The committee in charge of the celebration at Stratford-upon-Avon of the anniversary of Shakespeare's birth, April 23, 1564, viewed all motion picture productions of his plays and selected the William Fox production of "Romeo and Juliet" with Theda Bara as the most excellent. In this production Miss Theda Bara plays the part of "Juliet." It will be shown in the Shakespeare Cinema during the celebration.

Their selection of "Romeo and Juliet" is not only a great compliment to the Fox Corporation, but also to Director J. Gordon Edwards. The entire production was made in the Fox studios at Fort Lee, New Jersey, yet the committee found that in accuracy of detail it was not approached by any other pictures of a Shakespearean play.

The Fox production of "Carmen" with Theda Bara is to be shown in Madrid and Saville during the coming season.

There were just thirty-one passengers returning on the Carmania, and in consequence each passenger had about 750 tons of ship to themselves. Conditions in the dining room were reversed. Ordinarily there are seven passengers to each officer at table, but on this trip there were seven officers to each passenger.

Exhibitors Strong for Mutual

Exhibitors of Des Moines, Iowa, are enthusiastic in their praise of Mutual productions. Here are a few comments received in the last week:

"The Margarita Fischer productions are pleasing the patrons of our house and have considerable drawing power. All comments are most favorable and always have a number of inquiries when the next production will be seen. Personally, I think they are exceptionally fine offerings."—Manager Tom Arthur.

"William Russell in 'The Twinkler' is sure a fine picture. But then, they are all good, so what's the use telling you how good each one is."—Vogt & Maylan.

"We ran the 'Pearl of Paradise,' featuring Margarita Fischer, here January 28 to capacity houses. Every patron went away well pleased."—Edward Awe, manager.

"Regarding the picture, 'Pearl of Paradise,' with Margarita Fischer star, it pleased my people. I may say that it proved a sure fire audience pleaser."—Fletcher Russell, manager F. A. R. Theater.

"Regarding the Mary Miles Minter productions, wish to say that I consider them excellent, and on the nights we play same always see an increase of business, so from this and from the many comments heard from patrons I think I can safely say that the productions are more than pleasing. They please and get money for me and therefore am personally strong for them."—Manager Tom Arthur.

"I played Margarita Fischer in 'Miss Jackie of the Navy,' some few weeks ago, and it was well received by my patrons; in fact, it went so well that I have been thinking of securing it for a return showing. I, myself, think that it is the kind of comedy that the larger per cent of the show-going public are wanting."—R. W. Morton, manager G. O. E. Amusement Company.

Inaugural Film in Dramas

Five cameramen accompanied William A. Brady to Washington for the inauguration ceremonies, which the director general of the World Film Corporation attended with a two-fold purpose in mind. First, Mr. Brady, being a personal friend of Mr. Wilson and a strong supporter of the president, desired to be present for the ceremony. Second, as a motion picture producer, he has some ideas for bringing the actual scenes of such events as the inauguration into the dramatic productions of the World Film Corporation. Mr. Brady speaks of his idea as follows:

Many persons would doubtless be drawn to see our Washington photographs merely as a series of illustrations, but I aim to give them a greater value to the public by employing them as the background of one of our strong dramatic plays of the moment, the story of which is laid in Washington.

When I determined upon this action for the inauguration events it was only as a part of a general plan for future World pictures, that is to say, to visualize all really great public happenings as added features for our plays, particularly those happenings which lend themselves to adaptation of this kind.

I can see no reason, for example, why any scenario of Washington life should not be made to take in the inaugural episodes, as in the present instance. The plan appears to me to be readily applicable to the motion picture business, and I will certainly try it out.

F. F. Nine Wins Promotion

Forrest F. Nine, for some time city salesman in the Kansas City exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., has been promoted to the branch managership to succeed W. C. Cookin, who recently resigned in order to return to the business in which he formerly was engaged. Mr. Nine is known as having built up his company's bookings until he had reached that rare state in the industry, of a salesman exceeding the quota allotted him by his branch manager. Mr. Cookin, in retiring, points out that the Kansas City exchange of Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. has increased its annaul contracts considerably in the last three months and that it is now exceeding, in actual daily and tri-weekly shipments, any other branch in that city.

David Powell Supports Ann Murdock

David Powell, with his most recent characterization now attracting the attention of motion picture first-nighters viewing "The Price She Paid," in which his work as the hero of Clara Kimball Young's latest vehicle is receiving the unstinted praise of critics in all parts of the country, is working upon what is probably the most interesting role of his brilliant career as a leading man—the part of Geoffrey in the Charles Frohman stage success, "Outcast," which is now being produced in pictures by the Empire All Star Corporation for Mutual release with Ann Murdock as the star.

At the same time, Mr. Powell is scoring high as Mary Pickford's leading man in "Less than the Dust" and is also frollicking through the chapters of "Gloria's Romace" with Billie Burke. It was his remarkable success in support of these stars, added to his former record as a stage and screen favorite, which led to his selection as an important member of Ann Murdock's company.

Ann Murdock in "The Outcast" with David Powell and a strong supporting cast, is rapidly nearing completion at the Empire-Mutual studios at Glendale, Long Island, under the direction of Dell Henderson.

Rotogravure Weekly for Triangle

There is no more attractive publication issued by a film company for the use of exhibitors and theater patrons than the Photoplay Weekly Mirror, which is gotten out by the Triangle Distributing Corporation.

Eight large pages, printed by the Rotogravure process, are filled each week with portraits of stars and striking scenes from Fine Arts, Ince and Keystone releases, selected and captioned with unusual discrimination by Don W. Bartlett, who would soon make the other art editors in this field look to their laurels if he should devote all of his time to the task. However, Mr. Bartlett holds down a good job in the Triangle scenario department, and editing the Mirror is the form of relaxation he likes best.

Exhibitors report that this Triangle publication is the most popular souvenir they have been able to offer their patrons up to date.

Marguerite Clark in "Sub-Deb"

Another distinguished American writer was added to the list of those who have contributed to the motion picture screen, when arrangements were completed by which Marguerite Clark is to be starred by the Famous Players Film Company in an adaptation of the celebrated "Sub-Debutante" stories written by Mary Roberts Rinehart and now current in the Saturday Evening Post. Mrs. Rinehart is one of the few successful American authors who has thus far refused to permit any of her works to appear on the screen.

Buys Rights to Beach's Play

The Central Film Company of Chicago, through Aaron Jones and Nathan Ascher, has purchased from Sol L. Lesser, the rights for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin for "The Ne'er Do Well," Rex Beach's powerful feature picture made by Selig which recently has been exploited by Vitagraph. The spirit of competition ran the bid to a large figure.

Ida Netia Brenner, a new Vitagraph player who will vamp in an early Blue Ribbon release.

The company releases the picture beginning March 16. Ten prints have been secured for the campaign in these three states.

Liquid Air Pictured

The stir created in scientific circles when air was first liquefied has not yet subsided, and even the layman has been unable to appreciate some of the wonderful things which can be done with liquid air. The Gaumont Company has caught some of these for the screen in its highly entertaining and instructive picture called "The Air." A goldfish swimming in a bowl is dropped into a liquid air bath and immediately removed so hard that it is broken with a hammer as if made of marble. The same process is repeated with the blossoms of flowering plants. Other experiments with air show how one can be asphyxiated with his own breath, how nitrogen is a diluent of the oxygen in the air, and how a substance burns in pure oxygen. The pictures are in "Reel Life" No. 38.

Another entertaining subject on the same reel visualizes the orange industry in California. There is a view of a 6,000-acre orange grove, and then follow pictures of the processes of picking and handling. It may come as a surprise to some that the oranges are given a bath and disinfected before they are sorted.

Midwestern Amusement Company, Ardmore, Okla., has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000. The incorporators are Harry Lowenstein, et al., all located at Ardmore.

Linder in California

Max Linder has gone to the California coast to produce the remainder of his Essanay comedies. The noted European comedian's second American-made fun film, "Max Wants a Divorce," has been completed and will be released March 26.

The Thomas H. Ince studio at Culver City, Calif., has been obtained and Max is ready to start production of his third comedy at once.

Max and his company got away from Chicago in three private cars. He took with him his entire supporting company which appeared in "Max Comes Across" and "Max Wants a Divorce."

The real reason for Max's departure was gleaned from Essanay officials at the train. It was pressure for floor space at the Chicago studio.

Since Max has been at the Chicago plant, one of the three big studios there has been held solely for his use. This left but two other studios available for other producing activities at Essanay. Essanay is putting out two or three features and twelve short productions each month—in addition to the Max Linder comedies, for which all available floor space is needed.

"Max Wants a Divorce" is being given trade showings at all branch offices of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

"God's Man" Coming

The Frohman Amusement Corporation's ten-reel super-photoplay production of Anthony P. Kelly's adaptation of George Bronson Howard's remarkable novel of New York's elite underworld, its night life and wild old Broadway, which the author has most comprehensively entitled, "God's Man," is rapidly nearing completion under the direction of George Irving, the Frohman supervising director, who was also at the helm of production of "The Witching Hour."

It is probable that "God's Man" will have a special showing prior to its release, in New York City.

Triangle Cancels Booking Contract

R. W. France, general manager of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, has given out the following statement at the offices of the Triangle Company.

The Triangle Distributing Corporation has cancelled the contract with the Philadelphia Booking Company for distribution of Triangle films in Philadelphia. We have taken this action because we believe that it is to the interest of our exhibitors that we should deal with them directly through our own exchange. Hereafter exhibitors in Philadelphia who desire to do business with us will have the opportunity to do so without the intervention of any intermediary whose methods of booking and general methods of conducting their business we are unable to control.

Audiences are now enjoying Lenore Ulrich in Paramount's "Her Own People."

$35,000 FOR "BLACK STORK"

Special Sheriott Eugenics Feature Purchased for Illinois by C. J. Bulliet—Ohio Rights Sold to H. E. Smith

C. J. Bulliet, widely known in the motion picture industry for his publicity and promotion work, has formed a co-partnership under the name of "The Black Stork Company of Illinois," and has purchased the Illinois rights for Dr. H. J. Haiselden's eugenic photoplay, "The Black Stork," for the record price of $35,000.

Immediately upon closing the purchase from the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, which holds the country rights for the photoplay, Mr. Bulliet began dickering for a loop theater in Chicago at which to exploit his picture.

Unlike many state rights purchasers Mr. Bulliet expects to work directly with the exhibitors of Illinois and purposes to give them every assistance in making money after booking the picture. Many state rights buyers spend large sums of money exploiting a picture, and after it has been booked by numerous exhibitors, ceased the advertising campaign. Mr. Bulliet says:

This is all wrong. The exhibitors should be given an opportunity to profit through the original advertising. I not only will let the bookers of the picture in on the original advertising campaign, but will assist them further through the use of billboards, banners and spotters. From every available space "Black Stork" advertising will be conspicuous for the purpose of interesting the fans.

Several of the central west state rights buyers had been dickering for the Illinois rights to the photoplay but had reached their limit at the $25,000 bid. When Mr. Bulliet offered $35,000 the sale was closed immediately.

The other bidders endeavored to persuade Mr. Bulliet that he was offering too much for the picture, but his answer was that he would be very much surprised if Chicago alone did not pay at least $50,000 to see the picture. In this regard Mr. Bulliet said:

Before going into this thing, I made a careful canvass of the women of the territory and discovered, according to the law of percentages, that ninety per cent of the women of Chicago wish to see this picture. All of them remember the hundreds of dollars' worth of free advertising Dr. Haiselden received when he refused to perform an operation to save the life of a deformed baby. To my mind every women in the country is interested in this question. When the picture is released it will cause a sensation, not one particle less than the sensation caused throughout the country when Dr. Haiselden defied medical ethics in refusing to perform the operation.

Mr. Bulliet plans to show the six-reel photoplay at a minimum price of twenty-five cents.

H. E. Smith, who purchased the state rights on "The Black Stork" for a period of twenty-four weeks in the state of Ohio, was requested to screen the photoplay for the benefit of the members of the legislature of Ohio. The request was made by legislators who are endeavoring to force the passage of a eugenic marriage law in the state.

The picture was screened on March 9 for the benefit of the legislators. So far as records show this is the first time a film has been used in an effort to force the passage of any law.

"The Black Stork" will be shown at the Alhambra Theater, Cincinnati, for two weeks, beginning March 31, and the run may be extended.

Direct Advertising for Exhibitors

Harry Day, editor of Paramount Progress, the exhibitors' house organ issued weekly by the Paramount Pictures Corporation, has been conducting a campaign among exhibitors, showing them how by the use of proper methods in the "selling of their show," they may greatly increase their box office receipts. His articles are particularly timely and of the greatest interest.

Recently in an article on "What About Direct Advertising?" he has the following to say:

Direct advertising material must make a clear and definite impression upon the minds of the prospects. It must convey the thought to them of what you want them to do and what pleasure and benefits they will receive from doing it.

Before you can consider direct advertising at all, you must lay out your plans as to what you are going to do with it when you get it.

In other words, how is it to be distributed?

Of all the schemes which have been tried out for the distribution of direct advertising, the mailing list has proven in the long run to be the most successful.

The mailing list requires lots of thought. But one doesn't need to get brain fever over it. The one thing you have got to watch is to keep it alive. This can be done by inserting request slips in your mailing matter, using slides on your screen and various other comparatively easy methods.

The second item to screen up on is the actual pieces of mail matter themselves. We can think of a few: House programs, postals, return postals, envelope stuffers, dodgers, news letters.

Of course outside of these there is a wad of special stunts which can be used discreetly and at infrequent intervals; these usually costing more than any of the other or more permanent forms.

From time to time we have discussed the various forms of advertising in progress.

The house program can be news style, magazine or vest-pocket folder.

Postals with illustrations of stars and notices of coming features when well set up and carefully printed are always worth while.

Return postals can be used as a double post card with a request to be placed on your mailing list or in the form of return postal cards inserted in your house program for mailing list and other purposes.

Envelope stuffers is an advertising name for slip inserts used either as an addition to your house program or sent out with your letters or other correspondence which goes through the mail.

The news letter is a modification of the house program and is used only for occasional pictures. Do not get out such a letter unless you make it personal and do it in a high-class way.

The frequency with which you send out your direct-by-mail material should be studied out carefully. If you print and distribute a news style of house program it should go out at regular intervals. The patron gets used to receiving it and considers it as part of his week.

The prospective patron is influenced by the pounding regularity of its appeal—whether consciously or unconsciously. Special advertising matter should be sent only on very special occasions; otherwise it is likely to wear away its effectiveness at some cost to you.

How much to spend on direct advertising is a question that exhibitors and distributors have been puzzling over for years.

Cheap things produce cheap results and too expensive. So your appropriation for this form of advertising has got to strike a middle ground where it will get the best returns.

For months we have watched the exhibitor's house organ and the surprising and sometimes awe-inspiring results accomplished by the exhibitor against almost impossible odds in getting out a house organ of the newspaper style. This form must pay.

Regular programs sufficiently attractive are an asset and a large proportion of them will be taken home.

To our mind the house organ or program should be put on a self-supporting basis by securing local advertising.

Theaters Conduct Contest

The Land Show Association of the southeast will put on a motion picture contest to ascertain which young woman is the most beautiful in appearance on the southeast.

The following tentative details are announced in regard to the contest.

The candidate to be allowed to enter the contest from each city of the southeast are to be selected by some one theater through a popularity contest conducted for two weeks. Only the winning candidates in these contests will be eligible to enter the final contest in Atlanta on the opening day of the Land Show.

Franklyn Farnum has the star role in a five-reel comedy drama, "The Clock," recently filmed at Universal City.

Them Was the Days

Henry Otto, the Metro director, and Harold Lockwood often laugh over the first time they occupied similar positions. It was over five years ago, they had a little money and lots of nerve and not too much experience. They took a little studio at Glendale and put on a one reel picture which Otto wrote, and they sold it to the Great Northern, and then closed shop! Lockwood was a Spaniard and wore a moustache and Otto's mother sat up all night making a velvet suit for Harold. Them was the happy days.

Director George Cochrane of the Universal Company is beginning to believe that, like the proverbial cat, he has nine lives. While at Huntington Lake with his company several weeks ago little Molly Malone, his leading lady, saved him from certain death under a falling giant of the forest.

And this same leading lady killed a rattlesnake which was about to strike at him near Hollywood a few days after the return of the company from the north. For the third time within a few weeks Cochrane's life has been saved, Jack Nelson, who plays opposite Miss Malone, preventing the director from being washed overboard from a launch at Balboa while the company was making scenes for the production, "The Beach Combers," last week.

A heavy sea caught the launch broadside and then swept over the boat, the water killing the engine. Cochrane was on the edge of the launch giving instructions to Miss Malone, who was swimming through the breakers, when the boat commenced to keel over. Nelson leaped to Cochrane's side and seized the director just as he was about to go over the side. At the same time the launch fortunately righted itself. Cochrane, Nelson and Cameraman Peck were drenched to the skin and work had to be suspended until all could secure dry clothes.

"The Whip" Rights Sold

"The Whip" rights for the New England States have been sold to Louis B. Mayer for $25,000.00, who controls "The Birth of a Nation" for the same territory. The picture was given a special showing at the Broadway Theater, New York. It's more than likely that "The Whip" will be housed shortly on Broadway at one of the legitimate theaters where at present a stage production is holding the fort. State right buyers who are aware of the live offerings of the season are making every effort to secure "The Whip" for their territories and according to present indications, it will not be many days before the entire country will be sold.

Lois Weber is filming her own photoplay, in which Miss Weber and Phillips Smalley play the leads.

The Foxfilm, "Her Father's Station" is evidently a comedy in six squeals, with Anna Luther as the attractive support. Some creatures that make hogs of themselves are lucky.

Picture Trade in Southern France

By Vice Consul Paul H. Cram, Marseille, in Commerce Reports.

Marseille has about 50 motion picture theaters, most of which are small. The larger establishments have seating capacities of 800 to 1,100 persons each. The entrance fees in equivalent American currency vary from 2.8 cents to 23 cents, the average being about 5.7 cents. The present volume of business is as large if not larger than that of 1912 and 1913.

Large Paris Firms Maintain Agencies

The trade in motion-picture machines and supplies is largely in the hands of large Paris firms, which have established agencies throughout the provinces. Producers frequently exhibit their films in the Paris offices, which purchase, usually on a cash basis, the greater part of the production. These films are then exhibited to representatives of the theaters. In this city the larger establishments, which usually change their programs weekly, rent films which have not been locally exhibited. The price per meter (3.28 feet) for such films may vary from 0.2 franc ($0.038) to 2 francs ($0.386) per week, the average being about 0.4 franc ($0.077). These films are then rented to small theaters, which generally change their programs twice a week. In such cases, the price per meter (3.28 feet) for three or four days' exhibition varies from 0.05 franc ($0.0096) to 0.08 franc ($0.0154).

Prior to the war the weekly production in France of new films was estimated at 25,000 meters (82,020 feet) to 30,000 meters (98,425 feet), while at present probably it does not exceed one-third of that amount. In consequence French firms are importing films in larger quantities, particularly from Italy and the United States. There is a large and growing demand for American films in comic, sentimental, and detective subjects. Those representing cowboy or frontier life are less popular than formerly.

Two firms in Paris manufacture the greater proportion of the French motion picture machines and supplies sold in this region. Shortly after the commencement of the war prices rose 25 per cent, and at present they are at least 40 per cent above the prices ruling early in 1914.

Extension of American Trade

American firms should either send a competent agent to Paris, with power to appoint subagents in the provinces, or grant concessionary rights to large French concorns. The latter method has already been used with considerable success in exploiting American films. If it is a question of selling not only American films but also machines and supplies, together with the purchase of French films, the former method, perhaps, would be preferable. Films should be packed in tin boxes. Explanatory texts should be in French. The French customs duties on machines and films are as follows, per kilos (220 pounds) net weight:

Articles.	General tariff.	Minimum tariff.
Films:
Exposed	165 francs ($31.84)	110 francs ($21.23)
Unexposed	300 francs ($57.90)	200 francs ($38.60)
Machines	150 francs ($28.95)	100 francs ($19.30)

American films and machines are subject to the general tariff.

[Names and addresses of motion-picture theaters, trade periodicals, and dealers in films and supplies may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, its district or co-operative offices.. Refer to file No. 81274.]

Fifty New Lasky Dressing Rooms

Following are the announcements concerning the progress now being made in the additions to the Lasky studio at Hollywood, California:

Concrete flooring has been laid for the fourteen new garages to house the Lasky motor cars. In addition to the garages there will be a complete repair shop and special washing platforms.

Fifty new dressing rooms have been erected at the Lasky studio by the side of stage number three. These rooms will be used to house the minor members of the company.

Plumbing is now being put in the 18 aerial dressing rooms for the principal members of the Lasky Company and they are all drawing to see who will occupy them—the rooms, not the plumbing.

Sarah Bernhardt at Actors' Fair

Sarah Bernhardt is to take an active part in the Actors' Fund Fair at the Grand Central Palace, New York, May 12 to 21. She is to be chairman of a booth to be maintained by French actors.

It was stated that the French actors of New York volunteered to co-operate in the bazaar as a return for the many courtesies they have received from their cousins of the American stage.

Here's Something New

Oscar Day, of Greencastle, Indiana, has invented a device for use on a projection machine that promises to be valuable It is an automatic affair which warns the operator when a film's end is near. It works by electricity and rings a bell. It prevents holes being punched in the film and is a great help to the operator. Mr. Day has been working on his patent for nearly a year and has one working in a local machine.

Current Releases Reviewed

"The Square Deal Man"

Triangle-Ince-Kay Bee Western Drama Released March 18. Reviewed by George W. Graves.

WILLIAM S. HART is again seen as the virile, dauntless type of Westerner in this entertaining story by J. G. Hawks, author of several notable Hart successes. That the author's creative ability still abounds freshly with typical and effective Hart situations is demonstrated by this film. The story is not quite as probable as some that have gone before, several turns of the action not being convincing as to motive, but it is the hot-right-off-the-griddle William S. Hart stuff all through. The alert Jack O'Daniels, champion gambler and peerless scrapper, shows his proficiency in both respects—by beating a blustering big-money gambler out of cash and real estate and by fighting off a band of Mexican bandits from the ranch of which he is overseer. In one of the exciting scenes Hart picks one of the villainous crew up by the clothing and smashes a table with his body.

Wm. S. Hart in "The Square Deal Man."

The inimitable western atmosphere which one has grown to expect in the Hart offering is as pronouncedly good in this as it was in "Truthful Tulliver" and some of the others. The card game for high stakes between Jack and the cattle dealer is one of the many well-produced scenes. The ending, where Jack holds off a band of bloodthirsty halfbreeds singlehanded until the rangers, madly dashing across the plains to his rescue, arrive, is both thrilling and conventional. Joseph J. Dowling does some delightful character work as the picturesque "Two Spot," while Thomas Kurihara is a superb type and entirely convincing as Anastacio, the slinking, shifty-eyed miscreant. Mary MacIvar's work in the role of Virginia Ransome, the supercilious and unreasoning ranch owner, is impressive. The presence of Mary Jane Irving, a child actress, adds interest to many scenes. Others in a cast which interprets the story capitally are J. Frank Burke, Darrell Foss, Milton Ross and Charles O. Rush. "The Square Deal Man" is sure fine "audience stuff," with the popular star in a characteristic role.

At the outset of the story Gambler Jack's kindness of heart is established. It is shown how he has protected and cared for "Two Spot," his partner, who has not always enjoyed prosperity. The opening scene marks a very unusual event in the history of Hart pictures, in that it shows the popular star indulging in a generous, expansive smile, a happening which, if one stops to think of it, comes to pass only "once in a dog's age" in the stern Hart western portrayals. The star's smile is even more convincing, if possible, than his look of grim determination. But back to the story: Jack O'Diamonds, a shrewd and successful gambling house manager, is known by everyone as on the square. Preaching Dan, the minister, makes him see that the term "gambler" is synonymous with the term "thief."

Jack, honest at heart, is considering seriously the minister's words and thinking of casting about for some new means of livelihood, when into the gambling room comes Colonel Ransome, a cattle dealer, inflated with the returns of a cattle sale. The Colonel insists on a game for high stakes, and Jack's gameness defied, he reluctantly decides to play. The result is that the Colonel loses all his money, together with a deed to his ranch near the border. Inflamed with drink, Ransome accuses Jack of false playing and a general fight is precipitated. Anastacio, Ransome's foreman and enemy, seeing his chance to get even, shoots the Colonel from the window, first shooting out the lights. Jack, in self-defense has shot at the Colonel's gun hand, but in view of the general fracas nobody is apprehended, although Jack is generally suspected.

Jack now decides to take up a different form of life, and leaves at once for the ranch to which he holds the deed. After a violent process of subduing the Mexican menials who have overrun the place, winning the lasting enmity of Anastacio, the foreman, he sends for Virginia, daughter of the murdered Colonel, who is living in the East. The girl turns out to be pampered and snobbish, seeing true worth through a glass darkly. She treats Jack, who has been managing the ranch, as a mere servant.

Anastacio plans a rebellion against Jack intending to both put him out of the way and abduct the girl. The way that the ex-gambler defeats the villainous crew and holds them off until the arrival of the rangers notified by "Two Spot," provides snappy action. The girl is forced to readjust her opinions of her overseer, and the story closes with a mutual love understanding formed, each of the two accepting half-ownership of the ranch, although it really belongs to Jack.

"As Man Made Her"

Five-Reel World Film Subject Released March 26. Reviewed by George W. Graves.

THIS release is a good example of what a well-balanced scenario and good direction will do towards putting over a story with continuous absorbed interest. Besides, the story itself, by Helen Beare, is well calculated to go over big on the screen. It is a society drama, true, but far superior to many plays of this stamp with which the public is surfeited, in that each of the four principal players concerned constitutes an intelligent exposition of character. In other words, the picture does not rely on mere surface action, but delves into deeper, more engrossing realms. Gail Kane has a part of excellent sympathy as an innocent woman whose love is trifled with and who metes out a fitting punishment to the man who has heartlessly and shamelessly deserted her. The portrayal is vivid, exquisitely delicate and fully convincing in the subtler details. It is one of the finest pieces of work Miss Kane has done for the screen.

Supporting the star, Frank Mills, Gerda Holmes and Edward Langford give performances out of the ordinary. Director

This story is well calculated to go over big on the screen.

George Archainbaud supervised the work of the cast intelligently as well as creating a good atmosphere, including restaurant scenes with what appears to be a genuine Hula Hula dancer, etc. With a story of splendid engrossing power, a genuine human type of acting and forceful direction, this offering on the World program presents about all that is necessary to satisfy an audience. It may be true that people are tired of problem plays, but this one is far more dramatic and far more in rapport with life as it is than the average.

Claire Wilson, an innocent girl just graduated from college, is tricked by Mason Forbes and then left to battle with the world alone, while he marries another woman. In time Claire has a chance to marry Mason's brother, Harold, and she does so to gain her vengeful ends. Neither couple are anywhere near happy, Mason having been disillusioned by a wife whose love is not broad enough to include anything more than her pet puppy. With Claire out of his reach, Mason realizes the love he has scorned and desires her more than ever, while the woman metes out a slow and galling punishment to him. Harold is wrapt up in their baby, but Claire is minus the mother love, which does not appear until the child's life is in danger. But after Claire has learned to love her husband and child, Mason, in a drunken mood, traps and attacks her. Harold arrives on the scene and the brothers clinch in a mortal struggle in which Mason is bested. The result is that the erring brother is turned out by his own wife, sinking lower and lower, where the story leaves him.

"Sapho"

Famous Players-Paramount Drama in Five Reels. Reviewed by George W. Graves

PAULINE FREDERICK is seen as "Sapho" in this picture, based on Alphonse Daudet's novel of the same name, which has as its central character a woman whose love for the elegant and beautiful overshadows the realization, inculcated through a drab, unhappy childhood life unaccompanied by instruction in morals, of what the inevitable cost must be. In producing the photoplay, Director Hugh Ford has excluded much that might prove too lurid and distasteful to the American pictureplay-goer. He has given the star due prominence and put a sheen of exquisite artistry over the whole picture. Miss Frederick charms at all times, and in her work may be found the picture's real attraction. The part is a sympathetic one if one stops to analyze it and consider the things which went to form her character, but otherwise one cannot have any great sympathy for her or her lovers, except whatever sympathy is excited by pitiful human weakness.

Suspense is an element which is exceedingly latent until the fifth reel, when Sapho's downfall is imminent. For much of its length the story takes the form of a procession of events, the full significance of which is not felt until the climax and the interest does not become fully aroused until then. A moderatcly happy ending, prepared for the sake of the American spectator's reputed demands, supplants the unpleasant one of the novel. John Sainpolis and Pedro de Cordoba appear to advantage as the woman's momentarily successful lovers, while Thomas Meighan has the part of the man she really loves, but loses. Hugh Ford fulfilled his duties as director with credit to himself and the picture. As a whole, "Sapho" is not remarkable from a story interest standpoint. Its greatest asset lies in the presence of the star, and good acting in general.

Pauline Frederick in "Sapho."

At the outset the picture proceeds to make clear the origin of Sapho's biased moral outlook. In the first few scenes we are introduced to her as the model of an elderly French artist. These are followed by a visualization of past events, lasting a reel, showing how the girl has been maltreated at home by a cruel father and how she finally closed the door of her home behind her for the last time. We then see how the girl, with all the innocence imaginable, takes up life at the artist's dwelling and throughout the picture how her insatiable love of finery precipitates dealings with two other men. One of these, whom she learns to love, is sent to prison for forgery. Finally "Sapho" meets the one man on earth calculated to arouse her dormant feelings and pure love—a provincial lad, Jean, who, though already engaged, falls a victim to her brilliant charms. Fearing to lose Jean the woman keeps the past from him, but when he does learn the truth the shock kills his passion. A scene of violent emotion is that in which Jean casts the woman, mad with love, from him. In her frenzy she clutches at his legs—anything, to keep him from going away. The story comes to an end with Jean's return to his simple country sweetheart and Sapho's reformation.

"A Tale of Two Cities"

William Fox's Photodramatic Adaptation of Dickens' Novel. Reviewed by George W. Graves

CHARLES DICKENS' celebrated book has been done into pictures by the Fox producers in a way that is highly satisfying, both with regard to acting and production, all of its deep pathos and high tension situations being made poignantly vivid on the screen. The comprehensiveness of the subject's treatment is a new departure in program releases and it can be confidently affirmed that the dignity of Dickens' work has not been vitiatcd. Sevcral of the "mob scenes" are not far behind those of the most pretentious Broadway moving picture successes in magnitude. The story itself, to get to the most vital thing, compels an uninterrupted and ever increasing line of interest in the spectator's mind until the climax, which is heart-rending and gruesome. The fearful rioting, the lawless cruelty which attended the suppression of the poor and their frenzied efforts to gain redress, are delineated in their hideous aspects.

William Farnum in "A Tale of Two Cities."

Director Frank Lloyd has secured very remarkable scenic effects. The street in Paris with the gloomy formidable Bastille at the farthermost end, is perhaps the most impressive set. The interiors have been handled with consummate taste also. Whether it is a voluptuous chamber or a dingy, rat-infested dungeon cell, art and realism walk hand in hand. Some of the over-realistic touches could have been foregone without dramatic loss. One of these in particular, where the guillotine is shown smeared with the blood of its victim, is needlessly and abhorrently gruesome as much so, in a degree, as would be a view of the decapitated head itself.

William Farnum plays two roles, each of which are dissimilar characters, as is usually the case. Without the help of artificial make-up Mr. Farnum differentiates nicely the temperaments of the two men, Charles Darnay and Sidney Carton. The star truly sets new records for himself. A thing entirely unusual concerning these roles is that both of the characters are likable and sympathetic.

The novelty of double exposure work has more or less subsided in the eyes of the movie "rounder," but thc latter has something a little different awaiting him in this respect in "A Tale of Two Cities." It is evident that the double exposure problem was one of the most difficult the director had to deal with. Jewel Carmen is a very appealing figure as Lucie Manette. Charles Clary, as ever, is a villain supreme. Others whose work stands out notably are Herschal Mayall and Rosita Marstini. The complete case includes William Clifford, Ralph Lewis, Josef Swickard, Marc Robbins, Olive White, Willard Louis and Harry De Vere.

"A Tale of Two Cities" is one picture out of many that may be termed real "lump-in-the-throat" stuff. In fact, the tension is so strong in the last few scenes that one feels a satisfied relief when all is over and realizes that after all "it was only a picture." Tense drama by the way, is a not too common cause for post-movie play relief.

"The Mortal Sin"

Five-Reel Metro-Columbia Photodrama. Released March 12. Reviewed by George W. Graves

VIOLA DANA is interesting to watch upon the screen; she is an actress of no meagre power of expression and she photographs well. The actress does some of her best work in this picture, but the story, being a familiar one without the advantage of sufficient new twists to freshen it, lends her only a faint support. It is the visualization of an author's dream, based on a book he is writing. The "Mortal Sin" concerns a wife's infidelity to her husband in order to secure money to keep him alive in dire sickness. The husband returns unexpectedly from the sanitarium, discovers his wife's infidelity, refuses to credit her explanation and murders her in cold blood. He then goes through trial, is sentenced to death and finally finds himself in the prison death house. At this juncture the author is awakened by his wife and the night-mare is over.

Viola Dana in "The Mortal Sin."

While the climax and the events directly leading up to it have an one-the-surface melodramatic power, the first part of the story is very tedious in its telling, the prolonged and fruitless search for work and all of the girl's misfortunes, while true to life, not interesting the spectator because of a lack of dramatic energy. The picture is not a very satisfactory one, but with the graces of the petite star and a rather good supporting cast it may be called just ordinary movie stuff. Those who come to see Viola Dana will not be disappointed with her sincere work. Augustus Phillips as the libertine, is very acceptable and Robert Walker, the author-husband, gives an adequate performance. Others seen in the film are Lady Thompson, Henry Loone, Louis B. Foley and Ricca Allen.

"Polly Redhead"

Ella Hall in Bluebird Photoplay. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS is a pleasing play, especially suited for family or children's program. Ella Hall plays a dual child role very cleverly. The story is based on the well known "Pollyooly" stories by Edgar Jepson. They form very interesting photoplay material. Jack Conway directed the play, which was prepared for the screen by E. J. Clawson. There is plenty of action, as well as clever playing. The setting of the story in London and some of the quaint characters introduced add to the interest of the story.

In short, the offering is a delightful one, which should draw because of the following of Ella Hall, the popularity of the stories on which the play is based, and the general attractiveness of a bright, happy story which the whole family can enjoy.

The play is especially well cast and the acting is notably good. Miss Hall seems a genuine little girl. George Webb is well suited for the role of John Ruffin. James McCandless as the young Lord Ronald is clever, and Mrs. L. A. Emmons contributes a very good character sketch as Mrs. Meekin. Others in the play are Gertrude Aster, Gretchen Lederer, Helen Wright, Charles Mailes, Richard Le Reno and William Worthington, Jr., who plays "The Lump."

The Story: Polly Redhead is a little London waif whose ambition is to keep herself and her baby brother, "The Lump," out of the poorhouse. When her aunt dies, Polly takes her place as housekeeper for John Ruffin, a young lawyer. Complications begin when Lady Caroline, a friend of Ruffin's discovers a great similarity between Polly and his own little niece. The parents of this niece have separated and the child's mother, Lady Caroline's sister, is trying to claim her little daughter. Lady Caroline suggests that Polly be exchanged for the niece in the latter's home while the real heiress is smuggled away by her mother.

The plan is put into operation, but in spite of the careful coaching, Polly arouses suspicion. Several exciting situations arise. They are all cleared up at the end when the quarreling husband and wife become reconciled. John Ruffin and Lady Caroline discover their love for each other, while a childish affair between Polly and the young Lord Ronald completes a trio of romances.

"The Money Mill"

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature. Released March 5. Reviewed by George W. Graves

CAPABLE acting and high-tension situations in spots are winning virtues of this play. The interest is attributable to an original plot by Roy L. McCardell, which makes a picture of good general entertainment in spite of a few glaring discrepencies in probability, faults which might be chargeable to either the scenarioist or the director. The natural, convincing acting is the work of a cast at the head of which is the irresistible Dorothy Kelly and which includes Vitagraphers of no less fame than Evart Overton, Gordon Gray, Edward Elkas and Charles Kent. Outside of the few implausible things allowed to creep in, the direction, which involves the producing of some difficult scenes, is capable. "The Money Mill" is an average program release, all told. Neither remarkable nor poor, it hits the indicator on the half-way mark, which might be styled "acceptable." Dorothy Kelly's name, together with that of the story itself, which suggests something exciting, ought to pull in the business.

Helen Ogden, a wealthy young mine owner, becomes interested in charities. She meets a down-and-outer and helps him to the position of reporter. A love interest is conceived between the two, but Jack regards with apprehension the barrier of money that stands between them. Helen's mine is taken from her by a swindling process, and the story deals with the united efforts of the lovers to get the goods on the dishonest operators, efforts which are ultimately crowned with success. The girl's inheritance once more intact, the old question of "the barrier" comes up once more, but common sense rules out foolish sentiment this time, and a happy marriage completes the play.

"A picture of good general entertainment."

"Mentioned in Confidence"

Second of General Film's "Fortune Photoplays" in Four Reels. Reviewed by George W. Graves

SNAPPY, well-balanced action is characteristic of this four-reel subject, the second of the "Fortune Photoplay" series which inaugurates the policy of less footage and more story per foot. The pictures in this series are based upon fiction stories published in the Street & Smith magazines. In response to the general cry that few stories are worthy of being stretched into five reels, while many a so-called five-reel story is much more presentable in four reels or less, "Mentioned in Confidence" demonstrates that action may be speeded up in many instances and interest kept more keenly alive through such a process. The selection of good filmable stories and efficient players portends success for these shorter length features.

This new "Fortune Photoplay" is "snappy and well balanced."

The story, from the pen of Howard Fielding has been coherently and effectively produced through the joint efforts of Capt. Leslie Peacock, scenarioist, and Edgar Jones, the director. It makes a subject which lends itself advirably to the requirements of the screen, there being no dearth of exciting situations. The story's theme upholds the proposition that the poor man is at least worthy of his rich neighbor's friendship and respect. The melodramatic development at the end is too highly seasoned for the average spectator, the electric chair scene being rather repulsive. Just leading up to this scene and during it there is a high-strung note of suspense, all manner of exasperating things happening to delay the governor's pardon in its passage to the death chamber. The story's only serious weak spot lies in the numerous coincidental happenings.

In the cast are effective players, R. Henry Grey and Melvin Mayo giving finished performances, while Vola Vale makes a delectable, convincing heroine.

"Aladdin from Broadway"

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature in Five Parts. Released March 19. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A WINNING production is this from the audience standpoint, and therefore from the box-office standpoint. Most potent among its various points of merit is the note of novelty, something which, when found to such an extent as it is in this picture, ought to insure popularity everywhere. The story, telling of an ambitious young American's visit to Mecca, the holy city, to prove that he can do anything an Englishman can do, and incidentally win a fifty thousand dollar bet, and the thrilling adventures he has in the Far East in company with an American girl who has been held in captivity since childhood, is filled with interesting developments from first to last. The story, too, has the advantage of a generous sprinkling of legitimate comedy.

Edith Storcy is always the center of attraction, playing the part of a thoroughly alive young miss, who, though in captivity, has a decided mind of her own. In the light and heavy moods of the part Miss Storey is equally charming, again giving proof that she is still one of our best screen actresses. Antonio Moreno is all of a dashing type of a young American such as the part delineates, while Otto Lederer is convincing as Amad, the bewhiskered old diamond merchant who loses his fair prey. The Eastern atmosphere of the play is unsurpassed in beauty and effectiveness. To people who have an eye for art, the picture is worth going to see for the splendid sets alone. William Wolbert directed from a story by Frederick Isham.

This Vitagraph release is a finely rounded product, having the proper ingredients in proper proportions. It can be recommended as a fine attraction for the "high-brow," or the middle class audience. The picture never goes outside the bounds of clean, enjoyable entertainment.

"A Daughter of the Poor"

Triangle-Fine Arts Five-Reel Subject Features Bessie Love. Reviewed by George W. Graves

A WHOLESOME, attractive picture dealing with several very well-defined types of every-day humans, and exhibiting a rich undercurrent of comedy, which is to be expected from the pen of Anita Loos, the author, "A Daughter of the Poor" is a piece of the lighter, more frivolous sort, possessing comedy situations which are dramatic and vice-versa. Bessie Love's work is remarkable in its naturalness, quite eclipsing her previous roles. In her close-ups is this especially noticeable. Her simple ingenuousness ought to rank the dainty star away up around the head of the popularity list. Max Davidson, whose quaint human comedy was a feature of "The Heiress at Coffee Dan's," again appears to advantage as a comedian whose humor is inherent in himself, not forced or even pretended. Mr. Davidson's work is a study in human nature. Others assisting in the story's telling are Carmel Myers, George Beranger, Carl Stockdale and Roy Stewart. Edward Dillon's direction is entirely adequate.

Bessie Love and Roy Stewart in a new story.

Rose, an orphan living with her uncle, has his queer ideas, together with those of a young friend interested in socialism, engrafted on her young impressionable mind, with odd results. Joe, the uncle, a sufferer from chronic laziness, although he holds the position of janitor in a small factory, is against the rich, individually and collectively, while young Randolph, the socialist writer, shares his opinions. Rose falls in love with a man she thinks is a chauffeur, but who finally turns out to be an aristocrat. She scorns him at first and various complications set in, involving the safety of a publisher whom the fanatic Rudolph attempts to kill for not publishing his book. But misunderstandings are finally cleared up, Rudolph learns that he is at fault and Rose finds that the rich are not such contemptible people after all. So she forgives her lover and all ends joyfully.

"Out of the Wreck"

Morosco-Paramount Drama in Five Reels. Released March 16. Reviewed by George W. Graves

MAUD E. CORSAN'S story, "Out of the Wreck," carries with it a certain conviction of trueness to life. It is a human story constructed around sympathetic characters, and produced with a uniqueness of directorial touches. Its construction depends upon a visualization of the past, after the events of the present have been gone into for half the picture's length, such a construction being effective in this case. The latter part of the visualization develops some throbbing melodrama, when the wife, after being infinitely patient with a bestial drunk of a husband for months, finally kills him in self-defense.

The dependent visualization within the main story tells of a seamy side of life in a way quite irksome to those familiar with the twice-told plot concerning the helpless worthy wife of the glowering brute husband who forces her to the depths of shame. The reason for taking this look into the past is that the woman, now wife of a candidate for United States Senator, is seized upon by politicians who are eager to "hang something on" her, knowing it is impossible to get anything on the candidate himself. The opposing politicians' agent gets the information he seeks and accuses Agnes of being a murderess, whereupon she tells her story in her own way. The agent, who, in company with Agnes' husband, has heard her story, is so convinced afterward of the woman's purity and justification in defending herself, that he calls up his boss, the political adversary, and tells him that Agnes' past is irreproachable.

Kathlyn Williams acts the part for all the sympathetic power in it, adding more laurels to her screen fame. Miss William's work is better than her average in this. William Clifford and William Conklin give a good character of performance, the former carrying his melodramatic scenes with all the reckless brutality needed. Director William D. Taylor gave the picture's production the very highest that is known to moving picture artistry.

To those who don't go to the movies too often, "Out of the Wreck" will prove interesting.

"The Wifeless Husband"

Release in Essanay "Is Marriage Sacred?" Series. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

ONE of the pleasing features of this series is its variety. There has been no monotony or sameness about the releases and one never knows whether to expect a grim tragedy or a comedy-drama. This number is distinctly of the latter classification. A caricature of the ultra-modern woman, who prefers to go into business and let her husband carry on the domestic side of the establishment, forms the theme, and this subject always seems to amuse an audience. The story is presented in a gay, clever fashion, sure to "go across" well in any house. The players have caught the spirit of the comedy especially well and work together pleasingly. The result is a clean-cut, rapid comedy sketch, good enough for any program.

The Story: Minerva Stratton and her daughter, Virginia, (Lillian Drew) engage in real estate business, and the latter's marriage to Milton Booth (Edward Arnold) interferes not at all with her business career. She follows her mother's example in putting home life into the background. At last the men rebel. Not only do they block a pet business deal, but they allow their wives to believe they are carrying on a secret flirtation. The scheme works out as the men intend. The women decide to reform their ways and the story ends happily when they discover that their supposed rival is a five-year-old girl one of their friends has adopted.

"The Painted Lie"

Crane Wilbur in Horsley-Mutual Offering of March 26. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS is one of those productions whose appeal is consistently to one class of audience. In this case it is to the sort of patrons for whom the old "ten, twent', thirt'," melodramas were designed. Many of these patrons, who cannot appreciate delicate character drawing, subtle plots and true humor and pathos, who prefer broadly drawn characters, melodramatic situations and breathless excitement, these will declare the play "great."

There is plenty of excitement and the play does not drag. There is also a military flavor contributed by the introduction of the recent Mexican border expedition. This may be made an advertising point in communities which were particularly interested in these events. The featuring of Crane Wilbur will also win the attention of his followers, and of course the rather sensational, melodramatic nature of the story will attract many.

For only one class of theater, therefore, this production is satisfactory. However, one element in the offering, the use of the nude model and painting should be cut. It is introduced in a clumsy fashion and is in very poor taste. The cast of players, led by the star, greatly over-acts. They fall into distinct types, the very heroic hero, the suave, smiling villain, his discarded mistress, the conventional heroine, etc. But uncritical audiences will overlook this in favor of the swift action and the easily followed, romantic plot.

The Story: Crane Wilbur, as a lieutenant of the national guard, is engaged to marry a social favorite (Mae Gaston). The girl commissions a famous artist (Harrish Ingraham), to paint her portrait. The artist sends away his model (Mae Gaston), who was also his mistress. He tries to win the society girl. When she refuses him, he plans to ruin her reputation by exhibiting a nude painting, using for the head the portrait of her he has done.

The lieutenant learns of the scheme and challenges the artist to a duel. He wins and takes the painting away from the artist, sending it to the girl. Then he leaves with his army for Mexico, where he wins honor for his bravery. The artist in the meantime has been killed by his model. The police, learning of the duel, believe the lieutenant guilty of murder. He is arrested on his return home, but the dying confession of the wronged girl clears away suspicion and the lovers are reunited.

"The Finish"

Recent Number of the Essanay "Black Cat" Series. Reviewed by Genevieve Harris

THIS is as clever a presentation of the surprise ending as the writer has ever seen on the screen. A dramatic situation is built up, smoothly and effectively acted. Then at the tensest moment the walls of the scene tumble down and the audience learns that it has been watching a play in a motion picture studio. This surprise is complete, and we hope no exhibitor in his advertising and billing reveals the secret too soon to his patrons. The picture itself does not give a hint of the surprise, and the first part is as seriously and dramatically acted as in any feature play, or more so.

The morning paper reveals the story to the world.

Ernest Maupain is the particular star of the offering, ably assisted by Mabel Bardine. The directing is fine and the technical details are up to standard.

The Story: Norman Jarret (Ernest Maupain), a man of wealth, becomes suspicious of his wife's friendship for Robert Travis, a young clubman, and employs detectives to learn the truth in the affair. He learns of their intimacy and plots revenge. He announces that he is leaving the city. Returning home unexpectedly, he surprises his wife and the young man in each other's arms. He telephones for a newspaper reporter and gives the story to the public. When the early editions of the paper arrive, the wife learns that the man she loves has committed suicide because of the scandal. She prepares to follow his example. Then a careless property man knocks over the scenery and the scene for a problem picture is ruined.

With the return of Monroe Salisbury, and the engagement of Ralph Lewis, Charles Clary, Henry C. Barrow, Howard Davies and William Eagle Shirt for the rest of the supporting cast, R. A. Walsh has completed the company for Miriam Cooper's first Fox program picture. The players are now in Truckee, Nev., "shooting" snow scenes. Charles Clary will play the role of a hero—an event which is unique in his notable film career.

Complete Record of Current Films

This record is intended to give, for the convenient use of the exhibitor in booking films, all the information about each film that it is possible to present in a space limited to one line. The classification is indicated by the letter at the left (D for drama, C for comedy, T for topical, S for scenic, E for educational, etc.). Next comes the date and the title, followed by the names of the stars in parentheses. At the extreme right hand end of the line is the distributor's booking number, preceded by the name of the producing company. The figure appearing just before this name indicates the number of reels—the italic letter S meaning a split reel.

General Program

Released Week of March 5.

T The Battle of Somme (Second Episode).....
D The Invisible Web.....Essanay
C Tiny Slim and Fat.....Essanay
D The Vanishing Woman (Marguerite Clayton) (Is Marriage Sacred Series).....Essanay
D The Five Dollar Bill.....Essanay
T Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 26.....Essanay
D The Pulse of Madness (Is Marriage Sacred)...Essanay
D In the Path of Peril (Helen Gibson) (First Episode in "A Daughter of Daring").....Kalem
D The Mirror of Fear (Grant Police Reporter Series)... .....Kalem
C Efficiency Experts (Ham & Bud).....Kalem
D The Black Rider of Tasajara ("The American Girl" Series) .....Kalem
D An Actress' Romance.....Selig 2000
C No Place Like Home.....Selig 1000
C The Newlywed's Mistake (Geo. Larkin).....Vim
C Art and Paint.....Vim
T Selig Tribune No. 16.....
T Selig Tribune No. 17.....
D Dimples' Baby (Lillian Walker).....Vitagraph

Released Week of March 12.

T The Battle of Somme (Third Episode).....
D The Phantom Mine (Marin Sais) (Second Episode of "The American Girl" Series).....Kalem
D The Registered Pouch (Helen Gibson) (Second Episode of "A Daughter of Daring").....Kalem
D In the Web of the Spider (George Larkin) ("Grant Police Reporter" Series).....Kalem
C Bulls or Bullets (Ham & Bud).....Kalem
D The Borrowed Engine (Helen Gibson) ("A Daughter of Daring" Series).....Kalem
C Melies .....Vim
C This Is Not My Room (Ethel Teare).....Vim
C Dimples the Diplomat (Lillian Walker).....Vitagraph
D Up and Down (Dangers of Doris No. 8).....Vitagraph
D The Old Fourth Ward (Dangers of Doris, No. 9)..... .....Vitagraph
T Selig Tribune No. 18.....
T Selig Tribune No. 19.....
The Fire .....

Released Week of

The Inspiration of Harry Larrabee.....
Official Government Pictures (Fourth Episode The Great British Navy) .....
The Fate of Juan Garcia (An Episode of "The American Girl") (Marin Sais) .....Kalem
The College Boys (Daughter of Daring) (Helen Gibson) SPECIAL .....Kalem
The Veiled Thunderbolt (Grant, Police Reporter, Episode) (George Larkin).....Kalem
The Bogus Bride (Ham and Bud).....Kalem
Aladdin Up-to-Date (Bryant Washburn).....Essanay
The Lucky One .....Essanay
The Pallid Dawn (Is Marriage Sacred?).....Essanay
A Question of Honesty.....Selig
Everybody Was Satisfied.....Selig
Selig Tribune, No. 21.....Selig
Selig Tribune, No. 22.....Selig

V. L. S. E. Program

1-22 Capt. Jinks' Nephew's Wife (Frank Daniels)..... 1,000
1-29 Blind Justice (Benj. Christie)..... 5,000
1-29 Captain Jinks' Better Half (Frank Daniels)..... 1,000
1-29 Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels)..... 1,000
2-26 Masks and Mishaps (Hughie Mack)..... 1,000
2-26 Captain Jinks' Explosive Temper (Frank Daniels)..... 1,000
2-26 A Goat Without Horns (Tenth Episode of The Secret Kingdom) 5,000
2-26 Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams)..... 5,000
3-5 The Intrigue (Peggy Hyland) 5,000
3-19 Footlights and Fakers (Hughie Mack)..... 1,000
3-19 Captain Jinks, the Plumber (Frank Daniels)..... 1,000
3-19 Shark's Nest (Secret Kingdom, No. 12)..... 5,000
3-19 Aladdin from Broadway (Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno) 5,000

Mutual Program

Thursday.

C 3-8 The Flying Target (George Ovey).....1, Cub 05360
T 3-8 Reel Life .....1, Gaumont 05361

Friday.

3-9 Title Not Given 3 05362–63–64

Saturday.

C 3-10 His Bogus Boast (Ben Turpin).....2, Vogue 05365–66

Monday.

D 3-12 Shorty Trails the Moonshiners (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 9).....2, Monogram 05367–68

Tuesday.

T 3-13 Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont 05369

Wednesday.

T 3-14 Mutual Weekly No. 115.....1, Mutual 05370
T 3-14 See America First (Kartoon Komics).....1, Gaumont 05371

Thursday.

C 3-15 Jerry's Triple Alliance (George Ovey).....1, Cub 05372
T 3-15 Reel Life .....1, Gaumont 05373

Friday.

D 3-16 The Lonesome Mariner (Ed Coxen).....1, American 05374
C 3-16 A. Ram-Bunctious (Endeavor) (Wallace Reid)..... .....1, American 05375

Saturday.

C 3-17 A Matrimonial Shock.....2, Vogue 05376–77
V L S E
3-12 The More Excellent Way (Anita Stewart)..... 5,000

Monday.

D 3-19 Shorty Bags the Bullion Trieves (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 10).....2, Monogram 05678–79

Tuesday.

T 3-20 Mutual Tours Around the World.....1, Gaumont 05680

Wednesday.

T 3-21 Mutual Weekly, No. 116.....1, Mutual 05681
C 3-21 Cupid and a Button (J. Warren Kerrigan)..1, American 05682

Thursday.

C 3-22 Minding Baby (George Ovey).....1, Cub 05683
T 3-22 Reel Life .....1, Gaumont 05684

Friday.

D 3-23 Jimmy Dale Alias the Gray Seal, Chapter 1.2, Monmouth 05685–86

Saturday.

C 3-24 A Studio Stampede (Ben Turpin) .....2, Vogue 05687–88

Universal Program

Sunday.

D 3-11 It Makes a Difference (Dorothy Davenport)....1, Rex 02234
3-11 No Release This Week.....
C 3-11 Mr. Fuller Pep (His Day of Rest).....s, Powers 02235
T 3-11 The Mysterious City.....s
D 3-11 The Man of Mystery (King Baggot).....2, Imp 02236
D 3-11 The Purple Mask No. 11 (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....2, Universal 02237
(The Garden of Surprise) SPECIAL.....

Monday.

C 3-12 Some Specimens (Eddie Lyons).....1, Nestor 02239

Tuesday.

D 3-13 The Common Sin (Helen Gardner).....3, Gold Seal 02240
C 3-13 A Woman in the Case (Eileen Sedgwick).....1, Victor 02241

Wednesday.

D 3-14 Where Glory Waits (Allin Holubar).....2, Laemmle 02242
C 3-14 Love on Crutches (Hank Man).....L-Ko 02243
T 3-14 Animated Weekly No. 63.....Universal 02244
D 3-14 Sins of a Brother (Herbert Brenon).....1, Imp 02245

Thursday.

C 3-15 The Hash House Mystery (Harry Myers)....2, Victor 02246
3-15 No Release This Week.....Big U
3-15 No Release This Week.....Powers
D 3-15 For Honor's Sake.....Big U 02247

Friday.

D 3-16 The Clash of Steel (Perils of the Secret Service) (Kingsley Benedict) ....2, Imp 02248
C 3-16 Summer Boarders (Phil Dunham)....1, L-Ko 02249
T 3-16 Universal Screen Magazine No. 10.... 02250

Saturday.

C 3-17 Roped In (Neal Hart)....2, Bison 02251
3-17 No Release This Week....Laemmle
C 3-17 Art Aches (Gale Henry)....1, Joker 02252
D 3-17 Racing Death (Robt. Leonard)....1, Laemmle 02253

Sunday.

3-18 No Release This Week....Rex
3-18 No Release This Week....Imp
3-18 The Mystery of the Noisless Soup....s 02254
Palaces of the Forbidden City....s
D 3-18 The Hidden Danger....2, Big U 02255
D 3-18 The Purple Mask, No. 12 (The Vault of Mystery) (SPECIAL) (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford).... ....2, Universal 02256
D 3-18 The Voice on the Wire, No. 1(The Oriental Death Punch) (Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber).2, Universal 02257

Monday.

C 3-19 When the Cat's Away (Eddie Lyons)....1, Nestor 02259

Tuesday.

D 3-20 The Raid (Neal Hart)....3, Gold Seal 02260
3-20 No Release This Week....1, Victor
C 3-20 Black Magic....s, Victor 02261
T 3-20 Landmarks of France....s, Victor

Wednesday.

3-21 No Release This Week....Laemmle
C 3-21 Defective Detectives (Phil Dunham)....2, L-Ko 02262
T 3-21 Universal Animated Weekly, No. 64.... 1-02263
D 3-21 Old Faithful (Leah Baird)....1, Laemmle 02264

Thursday

D 3-22 The Hash House Mystery (Harry Myers)....1, Victor 02265
3-22 No Release This Week....Big U
T 3-22 The Strangest Army in the World....1, Powers 02266

Friday

D 3-23 The Dreaded Tribe (Perils of the Secret Service, No. 3) (Kingsley Benedict) ....2, Imp 02267
3-23 No Release This Week....1, Rex
T 3-23 Universal Screen Magazine, No. 11....1 02268
C 3-23 In Again, Out Again (Eddie Lyons)....1, Nestor 02269

Saturday

D 3-24 Goin' Straight (Harry Carey) ....2, Bison 02270
3-24 No Release This Week....1, Laemmle
C 3-24 Whose Baby? (Gale Henry)....1, Joker 02271
D 3-24 The Boyhood He Forgot (Phillips Smalley)....Rex 02272

Sunday.

D 3-25 The Grudge (Wm. V. Mong)....2, Rex 02273
3-25 No Release This Week....1, Imp
C 3-25 The Love Affair of Ima Knutt ....s, Powers 02274
T 3-25 Artistic China and Japan....s
D 3-25 The Rebels' Net (Grace Cunard)....Big U 02275
D 3-25 The Leap (The Purple Mask, No. 13) (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard) ....2, Universal 02276
SPECIAL
D 3-25 The Mysterious Man in Black (The Voice on the Wire, No. 2) (Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber) SPECIAL ....2, Universal 02277

Miscellaneous Features

Artcraft Pictures

3-5 The Poor Little Rich Girl (Mary Pickford)..... 5,000

Art Dramas

2-22 The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson)....Erbograph 5,000
3-1 Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon)..... 5,000
3-8 The Cloud 5,000

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

3-5 The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau).....
3-12 Mutiny (Myrtle Gonzalez) ....Bluebird 5,000
3-19 Polly Redhead (Ella Hall)....Bluebird 5,000

Fox Film Corporation

Released Week of

3-5 Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson)..... 5,000
3-12 North of Fifty-Three (Dustin Farnum)..... 5,000
3-12 The Siren (Valeska Suratt)..... 5,000
3-12 The Tale of Two Cities (Wm. Farnum)..... 5,000
3-5 Her Father's Station (Anna Luther)..... 5,000
3-19 The House of Terrible Scandals (Lehrman and Billy Ritchie) 2,000
3-12 Hearts and Saddles (Tom Mix) 2,000

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Released Week of

3-5 Burning the Candle (Henry B. Walthall)....Essanay 5,000
3-12 Little Lost Sister....Selig 5,000
3-19 Satan's Private Door (Mary Charles)....Essanay 5,000

McClure Pictures

2-26 Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere) 5,000
3-5 Seven Deadly Sins, "Sloth" (Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, George Le Guere)..... 5,000
3-12 Seven Deadly Sins, "The Seventh Sin" (George Le Guere and Shirley Mason) 5,000

Metro Features

Released Week of

3-5 The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen)....Rolfe 5,000
3-5 A Modern Romance (Max Figman)....Metro-Rolma 5,000
3-5 The Barricade (Mabel Taliaferro)....Rolfe 5,000
3-12 Locked Out (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)....Metro 5,000
3-12 The Beautiful Lie (Frances Nelson)....Rolfe 5,000
3-12 The Mortal Sin (Viola Dana)....Columbia 5,000

Mutual Master-Pictures

Released Week of

2-26 The Greater Woman (Marjorie Rambeau)..5, Powell-Mutual
3-12 My Fighting Gentleman (William Russell)....American 5,000
3-19 The High Cost of Living (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew) .... Metro-Drew 5,000
3-19 The Hidden Children (Harold Lockwood).Yorke Film Corp. 5,000
3-19 His Father's Sin (Lionel Barrymore)....Metro 5,000

Mutual Serials

Keefe and Earl Metcalf)..... 2,000
3-12 Outwitted (Perils of Our Girl Reporters No. 12) (Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalf).....
3-19 The Schemers (Perils of Our Girl Reporters, No. 13) (Zena Keefe and Earl Metcalf) 2,000
3-19 The Cure (Chaplin, No. 10)....Mutual 2,000
3-16 The Painted Lie (Crane Wilbur) 5,000

Paramount Features

Released Week of

2-26 Exquisite Lake Louise.... Burton Holmes 1,000
2-26 The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark)....Famous Players 5,000
3-1 Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet)....Lasky 5,000
3-5 Castles for Two (Marie Doro)....Lasky 5,000
3-5 The Yoko Valley ....Burton Holmes 1,000
3-8 Out of the Wreck (Kathryn Williams)....Morosco 5,000
3-12 Sapho (Pauline Frederick)....Famous Players 5,000
3-12 On the Great Glacier....Burton Holmes 1,000
3-15 The Prison Without Walls (Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman) ....Lasky 5,000
3-19 The Magic Vest ....Black Diamond 1,000
3-19 Thru Canadian Canyons....Burton Holmes 1,000
3-19 The Dummy (Jack Pickford)....Famous Players

Pathe

Released Week of

3-18 Jerry on the Job (Artificial Flower Making) ..International 5,000
3-18 Pots and Pans Peggie (Gladys Hulette)....Thanhouser
3-18 Patria, No. 10 (Mrs. Vernon Castle)....International 2,000
3-18 Mystery of the Double Cross, No. 1....Astria 2,000
3-18 Florence Rose Fashion, No. 23....Rose S
3-18 Nomads of the North (Know America, the Land We Love) .... Pathe S
3-18 Lonesome Luke's Lively Wife....Rolin 2,000
3-21 Hearst-Pathe News, No. 24..... 1,000
3-24 Hearst-Pathe News, No. 25..... 1,000

Red Feather Productions

Released Week of

3-5 The Gates of Eden (Claire McDowell)..... 5,000
3-12 The Girl Who Lost (Cleo Madison)..... 5,000
3-12 Border Wolves (Neal Hart)..... 5,000
3-19 The Scarlet Crystal (Herbert Rawlinson)....Red Feather 5,000

Triangle Film Corporation

Released Week of

3-4 Her Circus Night (Ora Carew)....Keystone 2,000
3-11 A Love Sublime (W. Lucas)....Fine Arts 5,000
3-11 Caught With the Goods....Triangle Komedy 1,000
3-11 The Little Brother (Enid Bennett)....Kay Bee 5,000
3-11 Hobbled Hearts ....Triangle Komedy 1,000
3-18 A Daughter of the Poor (Bessie Love)....Fine Arts 5,000
3-18 His Rise and Tumble....Triangle Komedy 1,000
3-18 Blood Will Tell (Wm. Desmond)....Kay Bee 5,000
3-18 A Self-Made Hero ....Triangle Komedy 1,000

Unicorn Program

Released Week of

12-20B Lost in the Shuffle....1, Hippo 1146B
12-21 The Voice in the Night....2, Utah 1147A
12-21 Blowing Up Broadway....1, Jockey 1147B
12-22 The White Man's Squaw....2, Hiawatha 1148A
12-22 Algernon's Affinity....1, Gaiety 1148B
12-23 Shackles of Conscience....2, Supreme 1149A
12-24 Some Girls Do and Some Girls Dont.... 1, Judy 1150A
12-24 The Prodigal Son....2, Buffalo 1150B

Unity Sales Corporation

Released Week of

12-1 Land Just Over Yonder....6
12-15 Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
1-15 Glory 7

World Features

Released Week of

2-19 A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell)....World 5,000
2-26 A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick)....World 5,000
3-5 The Web of Desire (Ethel Clayton)....World 5,000
3-12 The Dancer's Peril (Alice Brady)..... 5,000
3-19 The Social Leper (Carlyle Blackwell)....World 5,000

Brief Stories of the Week's Film Releases

General Program

Official Government Pictures—The Great British Navy.—The mechanism of the submarine, the loading of deadly torpedoes are shown on this film, ending with a grand view of the Great British Navy, steaming in the North sea, waiting for the enemy.

The Inspirations of Harry Larrabee—Fortune Photoplays—General—(Four Reels).—Margaret Landis, beautiful and talented painter of miniatures, shares the apartment of Mme. Batonyi, a famous singer. Under the same roof lives Harry Larrabee, a young playwright, who now and then has an "inspiration." Harry and Margaret fall in love and the sunshine of happiness beams on them, when a dark shadow falls on the household. Dr. Stettine, a brother of Mme. Batoyni, one day receives a letter from a man he had thought dead —the husband of Mme. Baytonyi, and a famous criminal. In due time the "Wolf," as this notorious criminal is called, arrives. His eyes are soon attracted by the jewels of Caroline. He uses his strange influence over Dr. Stettine to compel him to plot with him to secure the jewels. Their plans go astray and the jewels land in the hands of a taxi driver. Batonyi, under the spell of jealousy, tracks his wife and Stettine, and when his suspicions are realized, he kills Stettine; but, at the same time receives a mortal blow. Then Harry has another of his famous inspirations, the jewels are found and there is a chorus of wedding bells.

The Fate of Juan Garcia—American Girl Series —Kalem.—Featuring Marin Sais. Madge King is photographed on one of her fine Western horses, and the photographer has brought his cameras to the San Remo ranch. Juan Garcia, one of the helpers is told to bring her horse. He in reality is a famous revolutionary leader, and has been killed by Colonel Sarka, who has to give proof of his death to claim a large reward. The photographer, on his way home from the ranch, is held up and forced to enter a house blindfolded and take a picture. By mistake Sarka takes Madge's picture out of the camera, and leaves the one just taken. Madge goes to the photographer's to get the plate, and he has not developed it. She does so, and finds to her horror that the picture is of the dead face of Juan.

The College Boy's Special—Daughter of Daring Series—Kalem.—Featuring Helen Gibson. Bob Cutter and his chums, fresh from college go to Lone Point on a camping trip and give Helen a lively time for a few hours. First Bob tries to kiss her, and in the struggle the plaything of a little child is kicked out on the track. Just as the train thunders by the little child toddles out on the track and Helen saves it. This shames the boys and they are ready to celebrate to show their contrite spirit. They wire for ice cream, which does not arrive and they start after it in an auto. On the way the machine breaks down and they steal a freight car, release the breaks and start coasting for Lone Point. Helen gives chase on a pony and finally saves the runaway car, for which Bob gives her his "frat pin," the highest honor he could pay her.

The Veiled Thunderbolt—Grant, Police Reporter Series—Kalem.—Featuring George Larkin. Grant is sent out by his city editor to get a statement from Mrs. Blanchard, the widow of a powerful stock operator. One of the first things that Mrs. Blanchard shows Grant is her late husband's diary. It intimates that "If the 'Spider' is behind this, I'm done for." Grant insists that the widow accompany him to the private hospital where her husband died. The doctor and the nurse attribute the broker's death to congestion. Grant returns to the hospital to investigate further. Meantime the bogus doctor and nurse have been frantically working to clear away the last vestige of incriminating evidence. They have even ripped out certain electric wiring in the cellar. As Grant finally gains an entrance into the room where the tragedy occurred, he is set upon. Marguerita, the "Spider's" trusted agent, uses electricity with telling effect upon the reporter. When the detectives burst into the room, Marguerita escapes by sliding down a rope ladder. Grant soon recovers from the shock administered to him and is able to write his story.

The Bogus Bride—Kalem—Ham and Bud Comedies.—Ham and Bud decide that they could grab more free eats, more free homesteads and more free goods all around if they used a little team work. A twice-over shave, a little of the cosmetic of the feminine persuasion, and a little Paris style and Presto! Bud qualifies for the job of posing as Ham's wife. The parson is visited and Ham produces a ring, apparently out of the air. They set off for the home donated by the Anti-Aingle League of Pottsville, Crocodile county, where their domestic bliss is disturbed by the propensity of Ham's wife to use tobacco. Ham is thrown into the village lockup, after a fight, and Bud manages to get him out by some adroit flirting. They make for the railroad and get on a passing freight, thereby pulling off Bud's dress, while the chagrined villagers shake their fists wildly.

Animated Nooz Pictorial No. 27. Cartoon with Canadian Scenic—(Screen Time Fifteen Minutes)—Essanay.—Miss Lotta Spuds, the belle of Palm Beach is caught by the Canimated camera rejecting the proposals of a bunch of poor millionaires whose only wealth consists of dollars. Miss Spuds recently inherited 1,000,000 potatoes from her late uncle, Peck O. Spuds. At Hard Tack, Minn., is shown Algernon Percival Van Roquefort, champion baggage smasher of the world. He carries 1,000 trunks on his back at a time. The only thing he cannot handle is his wife. Jacques de Tripe, the famous chef, shows how eggs can be boiled in five ways—provided they are fresh eggs. Loading cotton on a "land scow" for shipment is pictured at Snowball, Ala. The High Cost of Living getting higher and higher in Jinks' family concludes the cartoon. How the arid plains of Alberta, Canada, producing luxuriant vegetation, forms the other half of the reel.

The Wifeless Husband—Is Marriage Sacred Series—Essanay—(Screen Time Thirty Minutes).—Reviewed in this issue.

The Finish—Black Cat Feature—Essanay—(Screen Time Twenty-nine Minutes).—Reviewed in this issue.

The Ham What Was—Black Cat Feature—(Screen Time Twenty-nine Minutes)—Essanay. —Abigail, a trained pig, is the principal attraction of the McNulty's vaudeville act. The jinx seems to follow Tom and his wife, however. They finally get a week's work, but Tom, in celebration, spends his salary in getting "pickled." More than that, he trades off Abigail for more liquor. Maizie, his wife, recovers the pig, but the jinx is still on the job. The McNulty's are on the verge of starvation when a telegram comes offering them another week's work. To celebrate the occasion they make a "square meal" off Abigail. When they arrive for the work, however, they discover that all the manager wanted was the trained pig. They had literally eaten their act.

The Shooting Star—Essanay—(Screen Time Fifteen Minutes).—Comedy and Educational Scenic. The Beau Brummel of the beach sees something attractive and promptly engages in a flirtation. The lady's husband and father-in-law precipitate the gay young man into the ocean, but meanwhile, his wife and mother-in-law handle the girl in the same manner. In the end all of the party have enough of salt water and the flirting pair have enough flirting. Harvesting the wheat crop in Alberta, Can., makes up the other half of the reel.

Meddling with Marriage—Is Marriage Sacred Series—Essanay—(Screen Time Thirty Minutes).—The question of whether Marion Heath shall wed Fred Ransom or Andrew Tavish has divided the Heath home against itself. Marion loves Ransom, who though in moderate circumstances, has good prospects. Socially ambitious, Mrs. Heath prefers Tavish, who has convinced her that he is wealthy. Her father wants the girl to marry the man she loves. The dominating mother finally triumphs, and Tavish leads Marion to the altar. Meantime, however, Ransom has been investigating Tavish's claims to wealth and found he is an embezzler. As the minister prepares to perform the marriage ceremony, Ransom enters the church with an officer. Tavish is arrested and Ransom weds Marion.

Everybody Was Satisfied—Selig.—John McKnutt, a wealthy and eccentric bachelor plays the good Samaritan to Weary Hikes, a hobo, giving him some old clothing, from which he neglects to remove a wallet and some valuable papers. Professor Astor, a fortune teller, is assisted by his sister Sara. Business is anything but good when they read in the papers that John McKnutt will chose a wife in a novel way. Weary visits Astro and Sara, examining the hat believes that the hobo is John McKnutt. Astro, put wise by his sister, tells Weary that the first woman he meets will be wealthy and willing to marry him. Sara plans to meet Weary, but Goldie Lox, a wealthy maiden lady meets him instead. John McKnutt, meanwhile, has missed his wallet and follows Weary to Astro's house. He falls in love with Sara at first sight. He wins her in a card game, while Goldie Lox bestows her affections on Weary Hikes.

A Question of Honesty—Selig.—Jim Wilson, searching for work, sees "Flinty" O'Neal, a crook, take a dollar bill away from Pierre, a crippled beggar. Wilson, after a fierce struggle with O'Neal rescues the beggar's stolen bill. Burns, a wealthy contractor, has seen Wilson rush to the rescue of the cripple, and rewards Wilson with a position in the Burns company.

Jared Keeney, head clerk for Burns, and a sneak, resolves to plot against Wilson, and secure his discharge, for he is jealous of the young man, and of the advancement Wilson wins for himself in Burns' office. He tells Burns that he suspects Jim Wilson of being a crook. Burns is confident that Jim is straight. However, he marks several bills and placing them in the safe, awaits developments. Keeney abstracts several of the bills for his own use, not knowing they are marked. He places the balance in Wilson's coat pocket, denounces him as a thief, and has the satisfaction of seeing Burns convinced that Jim Wilson is crooked. Enroute home that night, Keeney purchases a cigar and pays for it with one of the marked bills. Burns entering the cigar store at that juncture, recognizes the money as some that he had marked, and has Keeney jailed for the real thief. Jim Wilson is exonerated, and made chief clerk, and the little ones at the Wilson home and the faithful wife are rewarded for many hardships that they have encountered.

The Road to Eternity—Broadway Star Features Company—Danger of Doris Series.—Doris gets word that her parents are worrying about her and decides to return home. Bob takes her in his car. They race with another car, beat it, and then begin to descend a steep grade, Doris driving. They hear the whistle of a train, and stop just in time to avoid smashing into a backing freight car and engine, coming off a spur of an old quarry. Doris knows the engineer from her home town, and gets into the engine cab. Later, while the fireman and brakeman are fussing with the refractory spur switch which will not close, and Bob is chatting with the engineer at the gangway, Doris starts the engine so sharply that it breaks loose from the car and takes the switch to the spur, which ends in a washout in the quarry. Bob chases in his car—there is nerve-racking suspense until he catches up with the engine. There is no way to stop it, and the end of the spur is near. At Bob's direction Doris climbs to the running board of the cab, and makes a successful jump to the tonneau. Later, at home, she is told she must give up adventure and marry Bob—"But that's the greatest adventure of all."

Selig-Tribune No. 20.—Poland Springs, Me.—Horse Racing on the frozen lakes, and tobogganing, make Maine winters worth while. Palm Beach, Fla.—Mrs. Octyen's turtle catch weighing 600 pounds and Mr. Fred Woodman who tips the scales at 530 pounds. Boston, Mass.—Mlle. Nile Devi, and Mlle. Madrienne dancing in the snow. New Orleans, La.—Harry Gardiner, known as the "Human Fly," climbs the outside of a 15-story building. Washington, D. C.—Dr. Paul Ritter, Swiss ambassador to the United States. El Paso, Texas.—Local Red Cross unit does some intensive recruiting for dollars.

Selig-Tribune No. 21.—New York, N. Y.—Steeple jack crawls along horizontal flag staff of the Municipal Building, 300 feet above the ground to untwist halyards. Houston, Texas.—A typical Hawaiian scene is enacted when pretty Myrtle Vail gives her interpretation of the hula hula. Boston, Mass.—Hand-cuffed king, crawls out of a straight jacket to the amazement of spectators. Washington, D. C.—Suffragists parade around the White House. New York, N. Y.—Onions are accepted as an admission fee to a movie show. Washington, D. C.—President Wilson is inaugurated a second term.

Mutual Pictures

Shorty Bags the Bullion Thieves—(Two Reels) —Adventures of Shorty Hamilton—Monogram Studios—March 19.—Shorty and Anita are completing plans for their wedding when they receive word from a jewelery firm that they are mystified over thefts of bullion bars from their vaults. Shorty and Anita leave for San Francisco and are there confronted with one of the most mysterious crimes they have ever handled. The gold bullion bars are kept in a vault, which cannot be entered any way at all. After some time Shorty hits upon a plan to catch the thieves. He has a fake gold bar made and into it has a death dealing machine hidden. Anita thinks she has discovered the thieves and sends word to Shorty and then follows her prey. She is discovered and held captive. Later Shorty rescues the girl and just as they escape from the thieve's den, the machine, which had been stolen, in the supposed gold bar explodes and blows the entire thieving gang into the air.

Mutual Tours Around the World—(One Reel Featurette)—Gaumont—March 20.—Travel reel, picturing Montenegro, Britain's Island of Guernsey and Central Portugal.

Minding Baby—(One Reel Featurette)—Horsley Studios—March 22.—Featuring George Ovey. Jerry, while waiting in the railroad station is asked by a woman to mind her baby. He does and getting tired puts the baby in a basket by his side. Meanwhile an old colored mammy comes up and holds the colored baby. The first mother rushes up and grabs the bundle from Jerry's arms and goes out to meet her husband, who proves to be a friend of Jerry's. They insist that Jerry accompany them home. This he does and when they arrive and discover they have a colored baby, they chase Jerry out of the house. In the meantime a couple of crooks carry off the basket with the white baby and the colored woman goes to the police station to report the loss of her infant. Matters are finally adjusted and we last see Jerry with a crooning infant in each arm.

Reel Life—(One Reel Featurette)—Gaumont—March 22.—Magazine reel picturing "Making Food Cheaper," "Artificial Exercise," "A Snail Race Under Water," "Pine-Apples Under Glass," and "A Winter Outdoor Pageant in California."

A Studio Stampede—(Two Reels)—Vogue—March.—Featuring Ben Turpin. Ben falls in love with Dora Darling, the star in a motion picture. He finds some money and starts for the studios. He is followed by the crooks, whose money he has appropriated. He is put to work in the studio as assistant property man, after giving them some of his money. Ben cannot make any progress with Dora because she and Demon Desmonde are already in love with each other. After many funny situations Ben is blown up by the crooks, but manages to escape alive and the crooks are arrested.

The Schemers—Perils of Our Girl Reporters Series—Niagara Film Studios—(Two Reels)—March 22.—Palmer, a newspaper reporter, is assigned to get an interview with one Richard Hunt, reform politician. Unable to get an appointment with him the girl climbs through the window one night and awaits his arrival. While there, she sees one of the rival candidate's tools, try to steal some important papers. She attempts to thwart the theft and is struggling with the man, when Hunt arrives. Later the girl saves Hunt's life and then he asks her to marry him. Because she felt that he was innocent of an attempt to poison his rival candidate, but because the evidence seems to be against him, the girl promises to marry Hunt, rather than have to testify against him. Later everything is cleared up satisfactorily.

Universal Program

When the Cat's Away—Nestor—March 19.—With Lee Moran, Eddie Lyons and Edith Roberts. Eddie's aunt cuts off his allowance, but asks him to take care of her house while she is away. Eddie and Lee, the butler, put a sign on the house reading, "Dr. Lyon, Specialist in all diseases." Edith is hurt in an accident and goes to Eddie for treatment. He takes entire charge of her. Eddie is worn out with the exertion of keeping the patients from the halls and from each other. Eddie's aunt arrives. Lee tells the patients the house is on fire and sends them down a chute. Edith and her mother are talking with aunty. Eddie comes in and all become friendly.

Black Magic—(Split Reel)—Victor—March 20.—Parson Johnson is preaching to his congregation, when they become distracted by the passing of a load of watermelons. He is inspired and asks the driver to deliver a bag. A small darky has been put in the bag. On the way over he gets out of the bag and throws melons off to the people. When he thinks they have enough, he jumps off and they all have a real party. On the same reel is:

Old Faithful — Laemmle — March 21. — With Leah Baird and William Shay. Gertrude lives with her father, who is the lighthouse keeper. She loves Ned, but is betrothed to John. Ned's ship is on the way to the island and John, knowing this, fails to turn on the light. Gertrude and her father return to the house. John fights the old man to prevent him from switching on the light. They struggle together, John falls down stairs and is killed. Gertrude opens the lamp and Ned's ship is saved.

Defective Detective—(Two Reels)—L-Ko—March 21.—With Charles Inslee and Phil Dunham. Phil is about to graduate at the "School of Detecatufs," and he and the chief are trying the effect of various disguises on each other. A suspicious party is registered at the hotel and the detectives are called in. They dress as porters and busy themselves with the trunks. The trunks are hopelessly confused, each one getting the wrong trunk. Somehow the two detectives find themselves on the roof, where they do stunts with the trunks over the edge. One trunk lands on the telegraph wires, with the detectives and guests after it. There is a battle for the possession of it. At last trunk, detectives and guests fall together in a heap and the comedy comes to an end.

The Hash House Mystery—(Two Reels)—Victor—March 22.—Witb Harry C. Myers and Rosemary Theby. Rufe Eldridge is informed that his aunt has died and left him her boarding-house, "The Broken Shutter." Though ignorant of the ways of managing a boarding-house, Rufe decides to take a chance. Susie applies to him and is hired as a waitress. Rufe gets an idea. With the help of Susie, he poses as a fortune-teller. Many exciting scenes take place. Finally Rufe's old landlord is persuaded to buy "The Broken Shutter," as he thinks his fortune depends on it. Rufe and Susie, with the money thus received, leave to get married.

The Strangest Army in the World—Powers—March 22.—The ski army, fighting high up in the mountains between Austria and Italy, have earned the title of the strangest army in the world. We see them in maneuvers, maintaining a discipline as strict as that in any other body of troops. They ascend and descend the icy mountain slopes. The men are picked for their hardihood, but they sometimes succumb to the intense cold of the Alpine heights. Often they use snowshoes similar to those of the Indians in our country. The sudden snowstorms are more to be feared than an attack from the enemy.

In Again, Out Again—Nestor—March 23.—With Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran. The star reporter failing to get a report of conditions in the State Asylum, the job is given to a "cub." The young fellow falls in love with the warden's daughter, but deplores the fact that she is weak-minded. After a talk with the steward and a secret inspection of the books he makes his escape. The guards persue him to the office of the paper, where he is protected by the editor. The next day the girl calls to return his possessions, except his heart, which is permanently lost.

Universal Screen Magazine—Issue No. 11—March 23.—The growing and harvesting of peanuts starts the reel. Then comes views of the famous "Bill' Snyder of the zoo in Central Park, New York, with many of his friends. A locomotive in the making is shown next, the pictures having been obtained in the Baldwin works at Philadelphia. A few minutes of Animated Sculpture, with Willie Hopkins, closes this issue.

The Dreaded Tube—Adventure No. 3 of the Perils of the Secret Service—(Two Reels)—Imp—March 23.—With Kingsley Benedict, Jay Belasco, L. C. Shumway and Elise Jane Wilson. The Red Brotherhood, an anarchist society, have determined to spread germs of the bubonic plague throughout New York, if one of their members is executed. Rose Lee, secretary to the Governor, in her search for opium, is met by the chief of the society. He promises to secure it for her if she will keep him informed what the Governor intends doing about the Xabra case. Norry and his assistant learn what the brotherhood are up to and determine to prevent them from carrying out the rash act. Norry seeks Rose and finds she is innocent. She declares she will be glad to help them. Rose entices Boissevan to her house and in her struggle with him the tube is broken. The house takes fire and the two perish. Norry tries to save the girl but is unsuccessful.

Whose Baby—Joker—March 24.—With Gale Henry and William Franey. While his wife is away, Bill flirts with Lillian. The baby has been left in his charge so he takes it to a checking station and leaves it. Gale comes upon her husband and Lillian in the park. Bill rushes for his child, leaving Lillian to the tender mercies of Gale. In his haste, Bill grabs the wrong baby. Many complications ensue. Finally the babies are restored to their respective parents.

The Boyhood He Forgot—Rex—March 24.—With Philips Smalley and Antrim Short. Philips is so wrapped up in his business that he neglects his two motherless boys, except to punish them. George, the oldest boy, runs away. This causes the stern parent to reflect upon his own boyhood and its many faults. When a policeman brings back his son, he forgives him without punishing him. They resolve to understand each other better.

Goin' Straight—(Two Reels)—Bison—March 24.—With Harry Carey, Vesta Pegg, Teddy Brooks and Priscilla Dean. Billy Carter, with the help of two Mexicans, smuggle onium across the border into the United States. The authorities are unable to apprehend them, so "Pinnacle" Bill and "Cheyenne" Harry of the Arizona Ranger Service are sent to assist the sheriff in their search. Late in the night they surprise the smugglers as they are about to cross the river. The sheriff's party begin to fire. Billy, trying to get away, is pursued by Harry, who seeing that he is the brother of his sweetheart, allows him to escape. He knows his Ranger badge must be forfeited.

The Love Affair of Ima Knutt—(Split Reel)—Powers—March 25.—Ima Knutt falls in love with a fat woman. She does everything possible to make her thin, but the more she exercises the fatter she grows. At last they find a patent medicine, which she tries. This makes her so thin that when Ima calls her up on the phone, she comes right through the instrument into his room. That is too much for Ima and he determines to remain a bachelor. On the same reel is:

The Grudge—(Two Reels)—Rex—March 25.—With William Mong, Irene Hunt and Alfred Allen. Judge Thurman begrudges the small amount necessary to send his niece to college. He is beartless in his business association and refuses to help Thos. Hardy, president of a bank. This causes Hardy to kill himself. At the college Dora meets Alan Hardy and the two are married secretly. Alan returns home and learns the cause of his father's death. Dora, unable to keep her secret longer, is forced to leave the school and find employment in the city. Alan is successful in his endeavor to break the old man. Later he finds his wife and child at the home of the Judge. At first he is obdurate, but is persuaded by Dora to forgive.

The Rebel's Net—Big U—March 25.—With Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Curtis, commander of the American forces in a Phillipine village, saves a native girl, who is attacked in her cabin. He is lured by Dolores, sweetheart of the leader of the revolution, to her home. There he finds the girl who he befriended. She tells him of the plot against him and he escapes in time to marshal his forces and quell the uprising. Later the girl saves his life at the risk of her own.

The Raid—(Three Reels)—Gold Seal—March 30.—With Neal Hart, Raymond Whitaker and Janet Eastman. Henry Arthur, with his daughter Evelyn, visit his ranch in Texas. Neal Lawton, foreman of the ranch, immediately falls in love with the girl. She refuses to listen to him, realizing that he can not give her the things she has been used to. At the ranch is a Mexican in the guise of a servant. With his gang of outlaws, he succeeds in taking Evelyn and her father prisoners. Neal and his men trace them to the Mexican camp, where he rescues them from the bandits. The two visitors are soon on the train going East. The next morning Neal receives word that Evelyn has disappeared from the train. He goes out in search of her. At last he finds her in the desert on her way back to the ranch. She tells Neal she had changed her mind and was coming back to him.

Landmarks of France.—Beautiful scenes of La Beaume, in the Rhone Valley are shown. The houses at the foot of the hills are very old and built of stone. The gate and fountain of the old abbey are shown. In this country oxen are still used as beasts of burden. There are picturesque grottoes and cascades in the neighborhood.

The Mysterious Man in Black—Episode No. 2 of the Voice on the Wire.—With Ben Wilson and Ernie Shields. Howard Van Cleft receives a warning that he will be a victim if he does not stop trying to find the murderer of his father. William Grimsby, an aged financier and roue, also receives a warning of death. John Shirley approaches him with a scheme to save his life. He poses as Grimsby and goes to see an actress. He is attacked hy a muffled figure, but manages to escape. Shirley, when he goes back to Grimsby's house, finds him dead. The death warning is sent to Shirley, but he is only more determined to solve the mystery.

Artistic China and Japan—As seen by Dr. Dorsey.—The palaces of the Imperial family in Pekin are shown, with the entrance to the throne-room of the "Son of Heaven," as the Emperor was called. We pass then to views of Japanese craftsmen at their delicate tasks—damascene work, transferring the gold leaf to the prepared design, inserting the wire into the prepared grooves, and tapping it into place. The specimens shown in the picture were later exhibited at the San Francisco fair.

The Leap—Episode No. 13 of the Purple Mask.—With Grace Cunard and Francis Ford. Kelly and his men are released from the room where Pat had trapped them. Suddenly the house is shaken by a violent explosion, Kelly investigates and finds that the Apaches have blown up the safe and taken all the money. Pat leads him a merry chase over the roofs and house-tops, she finally eludes him and once more Kelly is baffled by the clever girl. Pat next hears that some anarchists are going to wreck New York's financial district. The episode closes just as the girl starts on her task of stopping the anarchists from their mission of revenge and destruction.

At the left is "The Mystery of the Rose Gown" and next, "Dimples, the Diplomat," with Lillian Walker. Both are Broadway Stars on the General program. At the right are Director Brinsley Shaw and his company producing two reel Broadway Star features for General release.

Feature Programs

Blue Bird

Mutiny—Bluebird—(Five Reels)—March 12.—Featuring Myrtle Gonzales. When Aaron Whitaker, master of the Alden Besse, decreed that his daughter, Esther, should marry the first mate of his ship, the girl feigned submission to his will and arranged to marry Jacob Babcock when the Alden Besse returned from her forthcoming voyage to China. But the barkentine had barely cleared the harbor bar, outward bound, when Esther married Caleb Tilden, the man of her heart's choice. This action set the stage for a melodramatic twelve-month before the horizon cleared and bride and groom were left to lead a life of happiness. Meanwhile Whitaker, who believed that Tilden died as a result of his blows in a knock-down fist fight, had forced Esther to to sail in the Alden Besse, tried to marry her, at sea, to Babcock and thereby started a rebellion among the sailors to supplement Esther's mutiny of love. Then came a hurricane to wreck the vessel, and toss her upon the cruel rocks, permitting only Esther and her babe of all those on board to escape. Tilden heads the villagers who go to the rescue and is the one who wades into the water and secures a raft upon which Esther and her baby have been lashed by the cook. The reunion follows and the final cruise of the Alden Besse becomes tradition.

Polly Redhead — (Five Reels) — Released March 19.—Ella Hall is featured in a dual child role. An adaptation of the popular "Pollyooly" stories. Reviewed in this issue.

Christie Comedies

Sauce for the Goose—(One Reel)—Christie Comedy—March 19.—Neal and Betty, young and happy though married, have no clouds on their horizon until the Swami Bumba appears and Betty embraces his strange religion—the mysteries of the sacred word "O-o-o-m." Neal's house is the meeting-place for all the "culters" and the Swami drinks up all his liquor when the ladies aren't looking. Then Betty begins feeding Neal exclusively on rice, as the Swami recommends. Neal rebels, but it does no good as Betty is absorbed in the "cult of beauty." Neal has an idea and offers Betty an agreement providing "complete liberty of religious observance" for both parties, which Betty gladly signs. Then Neal goes to an agency, gets a bunch of chorus-girls in Egyptian costume, takes them home and installs there the worship of Isis. The noise of the kettle-drums interrupts the ceremony of Bumba, and Betty rushes into the living-room to find Isis being honored by tinkling cymbals and sinuous dances. She is horrified and indignant, but Neal recalls the agreement. Bumba, seeing the jig is up, decamps with the silver, but a policeman brings him back and one of the Isis priestesses recognizes him as a former husband, who owes her back alimony. Betty is disillusioned and when Neal proposes that Isis and Bumba be fired out together, Betty is more than willing and the agreement is torn up.

Fox

A Tale of Two Cities—(Seven Reels)—March 11.—Featuring William Farnum in a double role. An accurate and satisfying screen exposition of Dickens' famous novel. An excellent cast and production on a large scale characterize the offering. Reviewed in this issue.

K. E. S. E

Little Lost Sister—Selig—(Five Reels)—March 12.—Featuring Vivian Reed. Within the modest home of the Wellcomes, old Tom Wellcome is dying. His electrical device had been stolen from him by John Boland, who has since gained wealth through it. Harry Boland, his son, has met and fallen in love with Patience Wellcome, housekeeper for the little family. Elsie Wellcome, very, very pretty, toils in Millville's button factory. Martin Druce, from the city persuades Elsie to go to the city with him upon a promise of marriage. Mary Randall, known for her welfare work, has become disgusted with the hypocritical attitude of certain vice committees. She surprises the members of the vice committee by saying she is going into action against the wolves of the tenderloins. John Boland owns certain vice properties. Mary Randall becomes his stenographer and becomes armed with knowledge concerning his leases. Miss Wellcome and Patience come to the city in search of little Elsie, and after some heartbreaking scenes, and with the loyal friendship of Harry Boland, they are present at the raid on the Cafe Sinister, which was led by Mary Randall. Elsie, meanwhile, has been forced out onto the streets, and she also returns to the Cafe Sinister, just as the raid occurs. Later, in Millville, the mother wishes for her little Elsie, and raises her eyes to the door to see the Little Lost Sister standing there.

Satan's Private Door—(Five Reels)—March 19.—Reviewed in the next issue.

Mary Charleson—(Five Reels)—Essanay—March 19. Reviewed in the next issue.

Metro

The High Cost of Living — Metro-Drew — March 12.—Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. The wedding presents of the unfortunate Sidney and his wife, due to the high cost of living, consist of useless bric-a-brac, flowers and well wishes unaccompanied by the material object. The result is that husband and wife have a strenuous time making ends meet with eggs at seventy-two cents a dozen, shoes at twenty dollars a pair, etc. In anticipation of worse times to come Sidney and his wife lay in stores, only to be visited by a burglar. They are rudely awakened in the middle of the night apprehensive of losing their various necessities of life. But to their mutual joy the happy people discover that the burglar has only taken the diamonds; foodstuffs, clothing, shoes, etc., are intact. The comedy is a clever little travesty on life as it pitifully is—or is getting to be.

The Mortal Sin—(Five Reels)—Metro—Released March 12.—This picture, featuring Viola Dana, tells of the sacrifice a wife makes to save her sick husband from passing on, and the way the husband later fails to understand his wife's sincere purity and murders her in a moment of blind rage. The story turns out to be merely the visualization of an author's disturbed dream. Reviewed in this issue.

The Mortal Sin—(Five Reels)—Metro—March 12.—Featuring Viola Dana. The story tells of a wife's sacrifice to gain money to save her sick husband, her death at his hands, and his near execution for murder, which is cut off by the revelation of the whole story as a dream. Reviewed in this issue.

A Daughter of the Poor—(Five Reels)—Fine Arts.—Featuring Bessie Love. A comedy-drama in which a poor girl, brought up by her uncle with a biased outlook on life, especially wealthy "life," falls in love with a man she thinks is a chauffeur, but who turns out to be a son of the rich. The events revolving around the climatic situation are both humorous and dramatic.

Mutual Star Production

The Painted Lie—(Five Reels)—Horsley—Released March 19.—Crane Wilbur is featured. Play reviewed in this issue.

Triangle

The Square Deal Man—(Five Reels)—Triangle-Ince.—Featuring William S. Hart. An entertainingly told Western with the star seen to advantage in a typical role. The story tells of how an ex-gambler saves a ranch belonging to an Eastern girl from the depredations of a band of bandits and how, more important, he saves the girl herself from becoming the victim of their leader. Reviewed in this issue.

Paramount

Sapho — (Five Reels) — Famous Players — Paramount—March 5.—Featuring Pauline Frederick in the title role. The story, based on Daudet's novel, tells of a woman's trifling in love and her final meeting with the first man she has only cared for, only to have her sins find her out. Having important parts in the support are Frank Losee, John Sainpolis, Pedro de Cordoba and Thomas Meighan. Hugh Ford directed.

Out of the Wreck—(Five Parts)—Morosco—March 16.—Featuring Kathlyn Williams. The story tells of an attempt made by unscrupulous politicians to "hang something on" the wife of the opposing candidate for senator, since they can dig up nothing wrong in the past of the man himself. How the attempt seems to become successful through the discovery of something hidden in the wife's past, and how the pathos of her story influences the politician to abandon his method as useless, makes the story. Reviewed in this issue.

The Magic Vest—Black Diamond Comedy—(One Reel)—Paramount—March 19.—The story tells of two wandering sons of rest, thoroughly discouraged, who are about to leave the highway and seek seclusion, when they discover coming down the road, a runaway team attached to a gypsy wagon. A passenger train is approaching, and in a moment the wagon will be upon the track; they hurriedly grasp the horses within two feet of the track, just as the train shoots by. The old gypsy whose life they saved, in gratitude gives them a vest which had been given to his grandfather by a great prophet. This vest was guaranteed to bring great luck to the wearer. This is proven, for Journeying Jim had scarcely donned the vest, when an automobile halts, and they are requested to ride. The luck continues, bringing them many meals, drinks, etc. Finally they meet a discouraged young man who tells them that he has lost his position as cashier of a bank. They secure the position and their efforts to run the bank, the run on the bank and the deposits of millions which restored confidence brings, provide comedy of a wholesome sort. At the end Journeying Jim, seeking relief from the heat, removes the vest and their luck departs.

Vitagraph-V. L. S. E.

The Money Mill—(Five Reels)—Vitagraph—March 5.—Featuring Dorothy Kelly. A story of the rescue of a girl's fortune from the hands of swindlers. "The Money Mill" makes an average program release. The story was by Roy McCardell and John Robertson directed. Reviewed in this issue.

Aladdin from Broadway—(Five Reels)—Vitagraph—March 19.—Featuring Edith Storey and Tony Moreno. A fascinating play transpiring in the Orient. It is replete with interesting developments, both dramatic and of a suppressed comedy nature. Reviewed in this issue.

Mutual-Chaplin Specials

The Cure—(Two Reels).—Announcement of release date later. Featuring Charles Chaplin. Charlie goes to Health Resort to overcome his liking for liquor. His baggage consists of a trunk full of booze, a collar, toothbrush and shirt. He meets Edna and falls in love with her. The hotel proprietor discovers the trunk full of booze and throws it out of the window, the contents landing in the well. Chaplin finds all of the hotel patrons at the well, drinking freely of the water and feeling very gay. He and Edna join the crowd and the result is that all the hotel guests become intoxicated and a fine time ensues.

KITTY KELLY WITH CHICAGO EXAMINER

THE Chicago Examiner has announced that Kitty Kelly is now conducting the motion picture department of that newspaper. Kitty Kelly is regarded as an authority on the motion pictures and she enjoys the acquaintance of practically every prominent figure in the various branches of industry. Her work in the Chicago Tribune brought favorable comment from every direction.

Miss Kelly enters upon her new work with a broader field and greater opportunity than she has ever before had.

In a recent letter to Kitty Kelly Aaron J. Jones of Jones, Linick & Shaefer said: "I only wish that all critics were like you and would criticise the picture exactly as it is, regardless of whom the manufacturer may be, or in whose theater shown."

Of Kitty Kelly's work David Wark Griffith said, "You have the most remarkable memory of any person I ever met."

Another interesting criticism of Kitty Kelly's work is found in a letter from James R. Quirk of Photoplay Magazine.

"Your viewpoint is wonderfully clear and sane, and you always reflect the feelings of the average intelligent movie patron."

Many prominent players have also expressed their appreciation of Kitty Kelly's keen criticisms.

HUNTER BENNETT IN EAST

Hunter Bennett, exchange supervisor of the Mutual Film Corporation, with headquarters in Chicago, is making a trip embracing all of the eastern offices of his company.

Mr. Bennett is holding sales conferences in the various offices he visits, laying plans to inaugurate strenuous sales campaigns in each territory, in accordance with new ideas in exploiting Mutual products.

While in the east, Mr. Bennett is making his headquarters at the Mutual Film Exchange, 71 West Twenty-third street, New York City.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

CAREY HASTINGS, who plays Deborah with Frederick Warde in "The Vicar of Wakefield," the Thanhouser-Pathe feature which was shown at the Rialto Theater, New York, recently, gives an appearance of meekness and even timidity that is very deceptive. She is so thoroughly the vicar's quiet wife that no one would ever accuse her of being at all daring, although as a matter of fact she has performed a series of "stunts" during her long association with the Thanhouser forces that would do credit to Douglas Fairbanks.

A few of them are: dropping upon the back of a horse from the roof of a two story house; being hurled from a row boat by collision with a fast motor launch; and then clinging to the overturned boat, despite a swift tide, while the rescuers approach in "background"; climbing across a clothes-line from one tenement window to another, with a nice fifty foot fall if she dropped; jumping on a fast moving freight train with "the chee-ild;" climbing into a coal scoop and being swung high in the air. This last "stunt" was part of a comedy and was supposed to be very funny and the audience laughed uproariously when they saw it on the screen, but Miss Hastings did not laugh when the scene was being taken for the scoop started to open when it was high in air above the very dirty waters at the coal deck, and if she had fallen!

So the role of Deborah was quite a change from the usual order of her parts. It is "all in a day's work" in pictures, but Miss Hastings has had some goshawful days.

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, visiting the Lasky studio in Hollywood during his recent tour. He was just in time to see Margaret Illington in the first scene of her picture debut in the Lasky-Paramount adaption of Basil King's "The Inner Shrine." The other folks are members of the cast.

NEW PUBLICITY MAN

Patrick Kearney, formerly editor of the Motion Picture Mail and photoplay editor of the Evening Mail, has been added to the publicity department of Art

FILM MARKET QUOTATIONS

Supplied by Butler, Small & Co., Chicago

	Bid	Asked
American Film Company, Inc.	70	76
Biograph Company.	10	16
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.	95	110
Lone Star Corporation, pref..	97	99
Lone Star Corporation, com..	35	38
Mutual Film Corporation, pref.	29	33
Mutual Film Corporation, com.	20	23
North American Film Corporation, com.	20	25
Randolph Film Corporation, pref. (with 50% com.)	60	75
States Film Corporation, com.	24	30
Thanhouser Film Corporation	1¼	2¼*
Triangle Film Corporation	2	2½*
Universal Film Manufacturing Company	150	..

*Par $5.00.

(Exclusive to Motography)

American Film Company: Sales of this stock were made recently between 75 and 80. This company is now preparing "Environment" with Mary Miles Minter and George Fischer; "High Play" with William Russell, and "Whose Wife" with Gail Kane in leading role.

Biograph Company: Inquiries for this stock met with but few offerings, all of which were above recent quotations.

Lone Star Corporation: Trading in the securities of this company has been fairly good. Common has changed hands around 36, and preferred around 99. It is now reported that Charlie Chaplin is negotiating with the Lone Star people for a new contract to run one year and to produce only eight comedies instead of twelve which the present contract provides for.

Mutual Film Corporation: The long expected statement showing condition of company as of December 31 has been issued. The figures show a little improvement compared with former statement, but not enough to influence any buying of the stock of the company. Both common and preferred have declined a little since the figures were issued.

States Security Corporation: On January 1 this company had advanced to the Mutual Film Corporation $201,904.18 on feature films. The business seems to have been about up to expectations.

World Film Corporation: This company now has about fifteen completed pictures made under the direction of William A. Brady which have not yet been released.

Unique Film Corporation: This company has been organized to produce pictures for the Roman Catholic Church, under the direction of Signor Cammiller, formerly of Italia Films of Turin, Italy, producers of "Cabiria," "Fall of Rome," etc.

Dramas, Inc., to work with Harry Ennis. Mr. Kearney has had a wide experience in newspaper work, having been special writer, reporter, editor and dramatic critic on numerous magazines and dailies.

AD. MEN HONOR PICTURE MAN

E. H. Philippi, Rothacker Film Manufacturing Co. man, who was honored by Chicago Advertising Association

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chicago Advertising Association the following resolution was adopted and presented to Ed. H. Philippi, chairman of the Industrial Movies committee of that club:

"Whereas E. H. Philippi is a member of the Advertising Association of Chicago who has manifested an earnest and untiring interest in the advancement and progress of this organization and by virtue of his actual achievements has materially added, in a most philanthropic manner, to the valuable equipment and possessions of the Association:

"Whereas, his sincere and persistent efforts, to produce high class moving pictures in the Club rooms have been rewarded with success which means much added education and entertainment to the members of aforesaid organization, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Advertising Association of Chicago do here and now express our sincere thanks and appreciation to E. H. Philippi for ourselves and fellow club members, and direct that this resolution be spread upon the minutes and published in the next issue of Chicago Advertising.

Mr. Philippi is sales manager for the Rothacker Film Co. of Chicago, and was recently elected an officer.

UNTRUTHFUL INTERVIEWS

By Dick Willis

Howard Hickman—"The cause of the war? Well 'Civilization' is not popular."

Mack Sennett—"Yes, I made all of my money by exploiting speaking-stage stars."

Mabel Normand—"I will appear in one five-reeler every month."

Jay Belasco—"Billie Rhodes and I Mutually agree to playing in emotional dramas."

Mrs. Vernon Castle—"I will never have another photograph taken."

Marguerite Clark—"Oh, gee! I wish I could get some mail."

Herbert Rawlinson—"I want to play tragic roles."

De Wolf Hopper—"Most embarrassing; all the big film concerns are offering me contracts."

Louise Glaum—"I believe in simple raiment; nothing outlandish."

Dustin Farnum—"The very idea of an outdoor life makes me shudder."

William Stowell—"They always pick on little chaps like me."

REPRESENTING LONDON FIRM

One of the most active foreign rights buyers in New York is John Wild, American representative for Fred Bolton of London and his numerous connections. Mr. Wild started in the film business about twelve years ago in Glasgow, Scotland, where he managed the Wellington Palace Theater, a fifteen hundred seat house.

During the next few years his experience in the moving picture industry covered about every angle in the business except production. He took turns at running a projection machine, booking film, selling pictures, and managing theaters. In the fall of 1912 Mr. Wild came to New York as American representative of the New Century Film Service of Leeds, England.

Upon the completion of these transactions, Mr. Wild accepted an offer from the Eclair company. Later he became affiliated with the Gaumont Company. He gave up his position as sales manager of this concern to join the Hepworth-American forces as sales and publicity manager. His next connection was in the serial department of the home office of the Mutual Film Corporation.

When the executive offices of Mutual were transferred to Chicago, Mr. Wild was appointed by Fred Bolton as his sole American representative, having in charge in this country the operation of the Anglo Film Agencies, Ltd., and its affiliations throughout the world.

John Wild, formerly of Glasgow, now representing a London firm in America.

ATLANTIC COAST NOTES

Eileen McCarron, the two-year-old daughter of Charles McCarron, the song writer, has been engaged by the Fox Film Corporation for several of their future film releases.

Edwin Carewe, having fully recovered after his recent operation, is again at his post on the directorial staff of the Metro Corporation and will soon begin work on on a feature with Ethel Barrymore.

From a football star at Cornell to a "rough and tumble" actor for the screen is the career of Louis R. Wolheim, who appears in Metro plays. He was fullback on Cornell's eleven in 1904 and 1905 and distinguished himself as an all-around athlete.

Franklyn Hanna, who plays the part of the physician in "The Great Secret," is a close relative of the late Mark Hanna.

Mme. Cora Blakeslee, recently appointed head of the costume department of the Metro Rolfe-Columbia studios, was formerly associated with the costume and designing departments of the International and Universal companies. Before that she toured the country with Wright Lorimer's stage production of "The Shepherd King."

Wallace C. Clifton, one of Metro's expert scenario staff, was formerly an advertising man. He began the writing of scenarios as a diversion from his regular work of writing advertising "copy," and soon found it holding his interest and filling his pocketbook. Mr. Clifton made the screen adaptation of "Bridges Burned," "The Secret of Eve," "Extravagance," "The Devil at His Elbow,' "The Spell of the Yukon," and "The Weakness of Strength."

Sybil Carmen, the fascinating dancer in Flo Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic," will be seen every week in the fashion department of the Mutual Weekly, which is produced by the Gaumont company.

A. L. Davis, the famous Alaskan traveler, Mrs. Davis and daughter, with a few other members of the New York Civic Forum, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew at the Metro-Rolfe studios recently and watched their rehearsal.

Burton L. King, director for Popular Plays and Players, has been breaking records of late. In the time elapsing from January first to February eighth he has completed three five-reel pictures—"The Waiting Soul," "To the Death" and "Silence Sellers."

June Mathis, Metro scenario writer, was so busy that she had no time to shop for a spring hat. So she bought one over the telephone. And it proved to be very becoming.

Mrs. Sidney Drew has had her dressing room redecorated at the Metro-Rolfe studios, in a happy combination of blue and jonquil yellow.

The Famous Players studio has lost one of its most frequent and most interested visitors in the departure of Margaret Illington for the Lasky studio in California. Ever since she decided to become a photoplayer, Miss Illington has been studying the motion picture at close range and has been given the freed[illegible] the Famous Players establishment.

ATTENTION PATRIOTIC EXHIBITORS and ALL Amusements, CLOSE EVERY SHOW WITH THE STARS AND STRIPES—A 60-foot strip (or longer) of a waving flag tinted red, white and blue, at 5 foot intervals, showing dissolves of our three greatest Presidents and closing with the most intense lines of our National Anthem, can be purchased from us at 10 cents per foot. Chicago Exhibitors and those who come to the city for their shows can purchase these flags at the Regal Film Company, Room 315 Mallers Building, No. 5 South Wabash Avenue.
J. E. WILLIS, Pres. & General Manager AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY, INC. 6242 Broadway, CHICAGO

PACIFIC NOTES

Tsuri Aoki has been engaged to co-star with Frank Borzage, and under the direction of the latter, in the Essanay multiple-reel feature being made at the Culver City studio.

Hector Dion, well known in eastern film circles for his work with the Vitagraph and Thanhouser Companies in dramatic leads, has arrived in the Los Angeles film colony.

William V. Mong, the director, is producing a big special feature at Monrovia. Colorado capital is at the back of the enterprise, but the object and subject of the feature is being kept a secret at present.

Director Howard Mitchell, who came out from New York with the Kalem Company, has severed his connection with that firm.

Myrtle Stedman has recovered sufficiently to be able to work before the camera again as soon as she is called on and to consent to sing at a Red Cross concert.

The Pollard Picture Plays will continue to be made at the studio on the Fair grounds at San Diego, for a few months at least, when a permanent studio at San Diego will be built. Harry Pollard will continue as director and Margarita Fischer as the star.

At the annual meeting of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Directors' Association, William D. Taylor of the Morosco company was elected "director"; Raymond B. West, "assistant director"; Murdock MacQuarrie, "technical director," Charles Swickard, treasurer, and Roy Clements, secretary.

Al E. Christie has been presented with a Belgian police dog. The animal takes a very keen interest in everything around the studio, and is now studying makeup and having a few tests made preparatory to his film debut.

Neal Burns, featured juvenile in Christie comedies, has just sold his twelfth scenario to Al E. Christie. The name of it is "Father's Bright Idea," and it will be a spring release.

Ruth Stonehouse is all settled for the summer in a roomy, picturesque house in the mountains, just one-half hour's ride from Universal City. Ruth's object was that Raymond, the little boy she has adopted, and the stray dogs and cats that Raymond has adopted, may have plenty of play-ground.

That Dorothy Holmes McGowan, the adopted daughter of Helen Holmes and J. P. McGowan, can walk now can be verified when the fifth chapter of "Railroad Raiders" is exhibited. Miss Dorothy appears in one or two of the scenes and goes her stolid way unmindful of the camera or of the actors.

Ruth Ann Baldwin, who directs pictures at Universal City, and Leo Pierson, an actor, were married recently.

Waldemar Young, the former San Francisco dramatic critic and later in vaudeville with the sketch, "When Caesar Ran a Newspaper," has joined the scenario staff of the Universal Company.

MABEL CONDON EXCHANGE GROWS

AN annexation just made by the Mabel Condon Exchange of Los Angeles is the distinctive personality of Miss M. E. M. Gibsone, who for the past three years has been manager of the Kalem Company's Hollywood studio. A woman of keen mind, thorough business experience and a wide friendship among west coast studio managers, players, photographers and others in all lines of the picture industry, Miss Gibsone is a decided asset to the photoplay exchange, the object of which is to give both manufacturers and players conscientious service. The exchange itself has been in existence for but a year. Just recently it affiliated with Ouida Bergere of the American Play Company, whose offices are at 33 West Forty-second street, New York. Miss Bergere is a well-known quantity in the eastern end of filmdom. Miss Condon has spent four years in both the eastern and west-coast colonies.

Miss M. E. M. Gibsone, banker, short story writer and former manager of the Kalem studio, who has joined the personnel of the Mabel Condon exchange.

Miss Gibsone brings into the firm four years of wide experience in the industry's every department. From the University of Toronto she went into the largest bank of that city, and for four years managed its woman's department. Two other banks had her services in an executive capacity. Going to New York, she assumed the responsibilities of secretary to the president of the General Electric Company. Possessing a knowledge of law, she undertook special work in the suit of the United States Government against the electrical trust. Retiring from the business world, she spent two years in the study of all angles of the picture industry. It was then that she went to California.

A writer of short stories, Miss Gibsone was able to furnish considerable of the picture material used by the Kalem Company. She also cared for certain personal publicity accounts.

Plans for new offices for the Mabel Condon exchange are under way.

SOME NEW THEATERS

Alabama

Plans have been completed and contract will be awarded in a few days to transform the Bijou Theater at Birmingham into a modern playhouse. Plans were made by Architect Harry Wheelock.

Plans are being drawn by a San Francisco architect for new picture theater which J. M. Seropian is to erect in the near future at J and Merced streets.

Arkansas

Fred Berry and Clyde Hudson have bought the Electric theater at Yellville from E. V. Lay.

Fred Berry and Clyde Hudson have bought the Electric Theater at Yellville.

California

Unless the present plans of John D. Spreckles miscarry, a new vaudeville theater will be built at San Diego to house the Hippodrome shows now playing at the Spreckles Theater. The seating capacity will be 3,400.

Florida

The foundation for H. C. Goldstein's new theater building in Punta Gorda are all in place.

Georgia

Plans for converting the old Mitchell house at Thomasville into a theater have been made.

Illinois

Manager Joseph May of the Grand Theater at Shawneetown gave a benefit performance for the baseball club.

Moving picture theaters of Rockford assisted in the campaign to raise $60,000 for club house for the Boys' club.

Indiana

The old building of the Christian church at Newcastle is being converted by Cicero M. Bailey into a picture theater.

Iowa

J. H. Colvin is the sole owner now of the Orpheum Theater at Essex, having bought out the interest of J. C. Overmeier.

C. C. Cartwright of Paton has purchased the business and fixtures of the Star Theater at Spencer and will continue the business.

Dr. B. H. McKeeby will erect a new theater on First avenue, Cedar Rapids, to cost about $12,000.

Taylor Grimes and Bert Teale of Mt. Ayr purchased the Orpheum Theater at Clarinda from Carl Hamilton and J. W. Burch. Improvements will be made.

Negotiations are now under way for a fine new opera house at Shenandoah, and A. M. Beardsley, who is now operating a picture theater there, will take a long time lease on the building.

Frank G. King has a project in view to have a theater building erected on the corner of Eighth and Lincoln streets, Estherville.

KITTY KELLY

Now Conducts the MOTION PICTURE DEPARTMENT

OF THE

Chicago Examiner

Read what foremost figures in the industry have to say about Kitty Kelly.

Aaron J. Jones, Linick & Schaefer, says:
"I only wish that all critics were like you and would criticize the picture exactly as it is, regardless of whom the manufacturer may be, or in whose theatre shown."

David Wark Griffith says:
"You have the most remarkable memory of any person I ever met."

J. R. Quirk, of Photoplay, says:
"Your viewpoint is wonderfully clear and sane, and you always reflect the feelings of the average intelligent movie patron."

Wm. S. Hart says:
"I want to tell you how easy it makes it all when we know that our efforts are being reviewed and appreciated by such a brainy little lady as you are."

The Chicago Examiner should be in your hands Every Day.

Chicago Examiner

Eastern Office:
1834 Broadway, New York
Publication Office:
Hearst Building, Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE

Mailing Lists

MOVING PICTURE THEATRES

Every State—Total 25,000
Price, $3.50 per M.

1400 Film Exchanges $4.00
206 Manufacturers and Studios ... 1.50
235 Picture Machine and Supply Dealers..... 1.50

Particulars.

A. F. WILLIAMS, 168 W. Adams St., Chicago

CHICAGO NEWS

THE Culver Military Academy in Indiana has arranged with the Chicago Metro office to obtain features for use at the school.

Samuel Greenebaum, manager of the Garden, Family, and Casino Theaters at Davenport, Illinois, made some calls to the exchanges of the city recently.

C. W. Price, McClure's active manager in the Chicago territory, wrote from the Pacific coast that he would be back in the streets of the Windy Village this week.

Alfonso Liguori, director of the Wolverine Film Company, which has been producing its first feature at Grand Rapids, Michigan, arrived in Chicago recently with a copy of the company's initial film to arrange for its distribution.

W. D. Hodkinson, president of Triangle, was in the city for two days last week conferring with Manager Seerey of the local Three-cornered office. Mr. Hodkinson is on a tour of all his main exchanges and is working out some efficiency plans and boosting in general.

Mrs. Drum, proprietor of the Princess Theater at Moline, Illinois, made her first visit to Chicago recently. She has been an exhibitor for many years. She paid her respects to Manager Cresson E. Smith of the Metro exchange and others whom she has known only through the mails heretofore.

Charles Hoy, of the Hoy Reporting Service, was in the city from New York for a few days recently. He is assisting the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club in its arrangements for the coming national convention of exchangemen. He says that New York exchangemen are going to be among the liveliest boosters present.

On the wall back of the speakers' table at the recent Paramount-Fatty Arbuckle banquet at the Sherman Hotel, which was attended by about two hundred exhibitors, film and press people, there was a big color reproduction in oil of the familiar features of the plump screen comedian. This portrait was created in record time by the Universal Art Studios of 17 Quincy street.

W. E. Brimmer, who for a year was manager of the General Film Company's branch in Milwaukee and previously conducted the Milwaukee office of Universal, has completed arrangements with McClure Pictures to represent them in that city. He is working in co-operation with the Chicago office. He will have headquarters in Milwaukee at 610 Murray avenue.

Director George L. Cox, formerly producer for the Selig Polyscope Company, and later general manager of the Advance Motion Picture Company, is convalescing from a severe illness at one of Chicago's fashionable hotels. He was hurried to Chicago after an operation for producing a special film for the Rocktonsilitis in New York. He has been efeller Institute.

Although it more than a month yet before the first Mack Sennett Keystone comedy will be released, more than eighty-five contracts, many with deposits attached, have piled up on the desk of C. E. Bond, who is handling the comedies for Triangle. Mr. Bond states that all exhibitors do not understand yet that the comedies can be booked whether the Triangle program is being used or not.

William K. Jenner, who was absent from the manager's desk at the K. E. S. E exchange for several days lately, returns from Milwaukee to say that "Skinner's Dress Suit" was a fit in many ways for Milwaukee theaters. It looked well from the box-office. Mr. Jenner accompanied Benjamin Judell, of the Essanay Company, on a trip northward to give the Wisconsin exhibitors a special showing of Max Linder comedies.

Chicago has a brand new scenario writer, and a very attractive one, too. She is Mildred Considine, of New York, daughter of the well known theatrical manager. She has contributed to the screen a number of feature stories and is now writing the comedies being produced in Chicago by the Sunshine Film Corporation. She has also written a special article on film stories which will appear later in MOTOGRAPHY. It is aimed particularly at exhibitors.

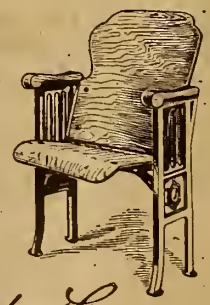
E. Schwartz, of the E. S. Film Service, has purchased the rights in the Illinois territory to the Chicago Tribune's war films. He has several four-reel subjects which he has just acquired also, among them "The Triumph of Right," made by the Pan-American Film Company; "The Tyranny of the Mad Czar," produced by the Coigne Feature Company; "Storms of the Heart" with Betty Nansen, made by the Great Northern Film Company.

UNIVERSAL BOOK IT PROGRAM

NO program on earth begins to measure up in any detail with the Mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, pronounced by thousands of shrewd Exhibitors all over the country as the biggest and surest year round Box Office Attraction on the market—If you can get it now BOOK IT—if you can't get it now, watch your first opportunity. Write your nearest Universal Exchange or the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO., CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - - - NEW YORK

A SNAP For SOMEBODY



We have on hand a few hundred used chairs. Some veneer—some upholstered. All in good condition. Must dispose of them in a hurry. This is YOUR opportunity Write for description and prices today.

THE A. H. Andrews Co.

115-117 South Wabash Avenue
Dept. M 1 CHICAGO, ILL.

MOTOGRAPHY

The MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 31, 1917 No. 13

LIBRARY MAR 24 1917 MOTION PICTURE DIVISION

BESSIE LOVE, TRIANGLE-FINE ARTS

More Than 9,000 Exhibitor Circulation Guaranteed

MARY GARDEN

A supreme artist, wholly without an equal; one of the world's greatest dramatic artists; a magnificent, vital, regal woman with fire, spirit and zest. She, too, is exclusively a star of Goldwyn Pictures. About what other artist have such things as these been said:

PHILA. EVENING LEDGER: Truly she is "Mary the Magnificent"—a favorite everywhere.

BOSTON RECORD: 60,000 persons wrote to Goldwyn in two weeks naming plays in which they preferred to see Mary Garden starred. . . . There's a fine test of her wonderful popularity.

NEW YORK HERALD: Mary Garden is a heroine of the opera and of the first pages of all newspapers, . . . a vital artist with a genius for keeping before the public.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD: Mary Garden has been regarded by all producers as the biggest woman star holding out against the screen.

CINCINNATI INQUIRER: And Mary Garden, too. What a colossal ambition Goldwyn seems to have for cornering the big-star market.

SALT LAKE TELEGRAM: Mary Garden is the best advertised woman on earth. She is a perfume; a candy bears her name; she is on musical records in hundreds of thousands of homes, thanks to the phonograph; she is a pre-eminent favorite of the opera in three countries and now Goldwyn gets her to introduce her pictorially to the world's millions.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS: Mary Garden has been more widely exploited than any woman in modern history.

LOS ANGELES HERALD: Mary Garden's genius is revealed in her first act for Goldwyn. "Tell me what you wish me to play," she asked the people of America and 60,000 persons wrote her in two weeks. Mary Garden understands the people.

WINNIPEG FREE PRESS: Truly, she is Mary, the ever-interesting. A genius, a wonder and a great artist.

LOS ANGELES TIMES: Miss Garden will have tremendous drawing power as a screen star.

Advisory Board:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

Exhibitors may care to know that Goldwyn has several thousand comments like these from every important country in the world

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation

16 EAST 42nd ST., NEW YORK CITY

Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

TRIANGLE

TRIANGLE PROGRAM

Mr. Exhibitor: You know that "Wid's" reports are not controlled or influenced by any manufacturer or distributor.

We reproduce the "batting averages" (tabulated percentage reports from exhibitors) as published in the last issue of Wid's Magazine, March 8, 1917

THE BATTING AVERAGES

These are the averages of the companies having 200 reports or more.

Reports		% P. P.	% B. O.	Repeat
1525	Triangle	74.1	67.0	317
587	Fox	72.0	69.0	81
435	Metro	71.5	67.8	42
326	Vitagraph	71.1	67.7	63
1683	Paramount	71.9	66.1	293
395	World	67.0	61.1	36

The number before the brand name indicates the number of reports received and tabulated on pictures of that brand, according to the following scale: Exceptional 100%, Excellent 80%, Good 60%, Fair 40%, Poor 20%, Bad 0%.

The first column ("P. P.") carries the percentage of pleased patrons. The second column ("B. O.") shows the box office percentage. The figures in the third column ("Repeat") indicate the number of reports which recommend pictures as worthy of return dates.

You will note that Triangle leads in pleased patrons and that there are 317 Triangle repeat recommendations, out of a total of 1525 reports, a higher percentage than is shown by any competitor. Draw your own conclusions.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
1457 Broadway - - - - New York City

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

OVER 9,000 EXHIBITOR CIRCULATION GUARANTEED.

Marjorie Rambeau in a scene from "Motherhood," a Powell-Mutual drama of war and peace. Released March 26.

MOTOGRAPHY

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE NICKELODEON

Vol. XVII CHICAGO, MARCH 31, 1917 No. 13

New York Legislators Defer Tax

PROFITS OF EXHIBITORS AND PRODUCERS DO NOT JUSTIFY NEW LEVY

Conclusions

A STATE tax upon the exhibitors of New York, the Wheeler committee reports, would be unjust and detrimental at this time.

* * *

The committee finds that the owners of small theaters, wherever located in the state, are making profits which would be termed exceedingly small.

The average of admission prices for the entire state of New York falls slightly below ten cents. Prices have steadily advanced and still are advancing.

The limitations on profits may be traced to wastefulness in management in all branches of the industry, to cut-throat competition, to the incapacity of some individuals in the business, and to the war.

* * *

None of the three departments of the industry—exhibitor, producer or distributor, is earning sufficient profits at present to warrant the state in levying taxes upon the business.

* * *

The industry is practically on a cash basis as between exhibitor and distributor, the report states. Producers and distributors divide on a percentage basis as a rule, though methods vary.

THE contentions of exhibitors and producers that the motion picture business in the state of New York cannot at this time assume heavier tax burdens, as some have advocated, are borne out by the facts disclosed in the investigations carried on by the Wheeler committee of the New York legislature, which has just submitted a report that virtually exempts both exhibitors and producers from a tax levy by the state, for the present.

But with the return of better conditions following the war and the re-alignment of the business under the stress of readjustments now in process, it is declared advisable to bring the motion picture business, along with the whole amusement world, into the scheme of taxation that has been the object under consideration.

Raises Question of Improper Pictures

Well toward the beginning of the report the committee declares that it has encountered a condition in the producing field, where a few concerns devote themselves to making "improper, smutty and indecent pictures," that is regarded by the committee as a menace to the better element of the business.

To eliminate the traffic in this class of pictures, as well as to promote a more methodical and economical manner of conducting the theaters and exchanges, the committee advises the establishment of a state license bureau with powers and duties similar to the license bureau of New York City, which is headed by License Commissioner George H. Bell. Commissioner Bell was recently a witness before the legislative committee. His methods were indorsed by producers and representatives of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. In consideration of the support which men in the industry have given the New York official, the Wheeler committee strongly favors similar regulation of the film business in the state.

Such a bureau would exercise supervision over films with the powers that are extended to the license bureau of New York City by the police ordinance, thus becoming in its actual administration a censor body.

The Advantage of Licensing Operators

In addition, a state bureau would be given authority to license operators. The need of licensing operators is emphasized as an economic advantage to the producer, distributor and exhibitor. Inexperienced and incompetent operators now are the cause of many films being mutilated and rendered useless long before what would be the case if more care was observed in their handling and projection. The findings of the committee

Proposals

THE Wheeler committee recommends the creation of a state license bureau in New York, patterned after that in New York City.

* * *

One function of the state bureau would consist in suppressing the indecent films which appear from time to time with injurious effect on the business.

* * *

Those in the business who desire the advancement of the motion picture and the respect of the public for their profession should be protected against the producers of smutty, indecent pictures.

* * *

Supervision of projection by state authorities and examination of operators by the license bureau would eliminate waste and damage caused by mutilation of films and lengthen the life of films, thus reducing producers' overhead and rental prices.

* * *

The committee is of the opinion that upon the return of normal conditions, following the war, the motion picture business can well be made a partner in the tax burdens which it has not shared heretofore.

in this regard are based on careful analysis of the subject obtained with the assistance of experts.

The important passages of the committee's report are given in full below. It is stated in the concluding section of the report that when present conditions in the business have become readjusted to meet changing conditions and when a normal state of affairs has been restored following the war, a special tax may properly be placed upon the business. The committee says:

Pictures Which Injure the Business

Early in our investigation it developed that two or three comparatively large concerns were engaged quite largely in the production and distribution of improper, smutty and indecent pictures. Some of the best and most representative men connected with the industry testified that the motion picture industry, which they believe to be capable of accomplishing great good, was being substantially injured by that class of pictures, and that while, in comparison with the total output, the percentage of such pictures was small, the evil effects on the industry and upon the public, particularly upon the young, were deplorable. In some instances the producers and distributors of these smutty, immoral and indecent pictures have been able to obtain the support of so-called purists, reformers and uplifters on the ground that such pictures "teach great moral lessons." Careful investigation proves that the audiences who witness them have not gone to see the exhibitions of these pictures for the purpose of being taught a "great moral lesson," and that the effect of such pictures instead of being beneficial is baneful. The necessity for the creation of some means whereby the production, distribution and exhibition in this state of that class of pictures could be prohibited and prevented was so great, both from the standpoint of the industry and of the public, that the committee has given particular attention to that branch of the investigation, in which it was materially aided by representative men connected with the industry, with a view to devising a system of regulation by licenses and license taxes as hereinafter particularly set forth.

Leading men in the industry pointed out that there was a very large loss to the business in the mutilation of and other damage to the film in this operation, and which loss they believed could be substantially lessened by proper supervision of the business of exhibiting motion pictures.

The Short Life of Prints

With proper care and treatment of the film the period during which the prints of a given picture ordinarily continue to earn income from being exhibited varies from one to two years, the income therefrom being much larger immediately after the prints are released and gradually lessening until the picture has covered the territory and exhausted its ability to earn any substantial sum and is therefore withdrawn from exhibition.

The industry is practically on a cash basis as between the exhibitor and distributor.

The method of dividing between the producer and the distributor the gross rentals received from pictures varies, but it is usually on a percentage basis.

The average daily attendance at motion picture theaters in the state of New York is about one million. The average price of admission to such exhibitions is slightly less than ten cents. Such prices have steadily advanced and are still advancing. This advance in price charged by exhibitors has been made necessary by the constantly increasing cost to him of the positive films and the better surroundings required in connection with the exhibition of these pictures. The cost to the exhibitor of the pictures has increased much more rapidly and to a greater extent proportionately than he has been able to increase his price of admission. The committee is satisfied from its investigation that as a rule the proprietor or owner of the small motion picture theater, wherever located, is making an exceedingly small profit from his business, and in many cases none whatever, and that it would be an injustice to him to attempt to impose any substantial additional burden.

Profits Decreased by the Film Cost

The cost of production of motion pictures in the last two or three years, particularly the so-called special feature pictures, has increased enormously, due to the ridiculously high salaries of the so-called "star" actors and actresses, and others connected with the production of pictures.

Taken as a whole the condition of the industry at present, however, is not as spectacularly prosperous as it was a few years ago. This is due in part to wastefulness in management, to reckless cut-throat competition, to the incapacity of many of those who have sought quick profits and also very largely to the European war. The termination of the European war and the establishment of sounder financial methods should bring a return of prosperity.

The committee believes that the public welfare demands the immediate creation in this state of a department or bureau which shall take and have charge of the licensing of the various persons, firms, corporations and associations engaged in this state in the production, distribution, or exhibition of motion pictures, and the operation of the machines used in such exhibitions, and to regulate, as is done in the city of New York, the character of pictures so to be exhibited; and that a suitable license tax or fee be imposed.

Summary of New York Report

THE Wheeler committee closes its report of investigations into the conditions of the motion picture industry in New York with the following statement of its conclusions and recommendations:

"That while in the past enormous profits have been made by concerns engaged in the production and distribution of motion pictures, and while such concerns have not been paying their just share and proportion of the burden of government, and while some are doing well now, yet the conditions due to the present European war, and the transformation which is now going on in the business, make it inadvisable now to single out that particular industry as a subject for special taxation. The committee, however, is of the opinion that upon the return of normal conditions, this industry, as well as the whole amusement field, may well be brought within such a scheme of taxation in this state.

"The committee believes that the public welfare demands the immediate creation in this state of a department or bureau which shall take and have charge of the licensing of the various persons, firms, corporations and associations engaged in this state in the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures, and the operation of the machines used in such exhibitions, and to regulate, as is done in New York City, the character of pictures so to be exhibited and that a suitable license tax or fee be imposed.

"The committee also recommends legislation making the theft or intentional mutilation or destruction of any motion picture film, apparatus or device cause for the cancellation of the license of the person guilty of such act.

"In addition to the foregoing matters, the committee calls attention to stock jobbing propositions, with advertising of a fraudulent character, with relation to moving picture machines and profits in the business."

F. I. L. M. Convention May 8

The date of the national conference of exchange managers, to be held at the invitation of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club with a view to organizing a national exchange managers' body, has been set for May 8. The executive committee at its last regular weekly meeting decided to notify the F. I. L. M. Clubs of other cities that the second week in May seems to be the most suitable time for the representatives from the twenty or more cities interested. The selection of a hotel or headquarters has not been made.

About four hundred exchange managers are expected to attend. The program is now receiving the consideration of the executive committee. Practically every important question with which the manager of an exchange has to meet from day to day will be discussed.

Most of the subjects to be treated upon closely affect exhibitors. Systems of picking up films that are employed in various cities will be considered.

Mayor Stops Sunday Pictures

Mayor James M. Boutwell of Montpelier, Vermont, has placed the ban on Sunday pictures, and at his direction Chief of Police P. J. Connolly served notice on owners to discontinue them.

Mobilize Motion Pictures

ASSOCIATED MOTION PICTURE ADVERTISERS SWING INDUSTRY TO AID UNCLE SAM

MOBILIZE motion pictures!

This is the war cry with which the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers has started to swing the tremendous influence of the great industry into line for patriotism and preparedness. The association comprises the publicity men of virtually all the producing companies, who, when the present national crisis arose, saw in the machinery of the motion picture activities the most powerful and direct appeal possible, to arouse the citizens of the United States to a realization of their privileges and responsibilities. The formation of a National Duty committee followed.

Upon placing the suggestion before the executive heads of the great corporations which they represented, the publicity men were immediately given, not merely endorsement, but carte blanche to call upon any member of each of the organizations at any time and for any purpose along the line suggested, for national propaganda. Accordingly President Wilson was notified of the instrument at his command and he promptly acknowledged the association's plan.

One of the designs to be used by the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers for posters, etc., in its national duty campaign.

But, most important of all, for the first time in the history of the world, a government has at its disposal a means of presenting to the most unlettered person a clear and convincing statement of the situation at an hour when the real peril is that the peril may not be understood. The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers believe that the only danger in which the republic may find itself is the same as that which existed in England for almost two years after the great war began—apathy. The first intention, therefore, is to make every man who possibly can be reached by screen, understand that this is his country, and if the country is forced into war, it is his personal war. Following are the various divisions of the campaign, as outlined:

1. Motion Pictures. The organization of a quick acting, easily handled, fully responsible bureau in New York City, which shall immediately prepare two feature motion pictures to be shown before twenty million people in the twenty thousand motion picture theaters in the United States. The immediate use of smaller reels, picturing army manoeuvres, navy manoeuvres, battleships with their crews, views of the West Point and Annapolis cadets on review, and other patriotic subjects, now available from the libraries of the motion picture companies. The idea is to secure these without cost and to secure their exhibition with the co-operation of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Exhibitors' League of America and all its locals in various states of the Union.

2. Screen Slides. The preparation of fourteen slides with proper slogans and patriotic appeal which will induce recruiting. These slides to be changed daily and two to be used each day.

3. Posters. The preparation of 24-sheets, 6-sheets, 3-sheets and 1-sheets by poster artists of exceptional ability, and this art service to be voluntary. The securing of the co-operation of bill posting companies throughout the United States, so that such posters should be given the right of way over all commercial and theatrical posters. This to reach into every state, city and town of the United States. The posters would bear, for example, such appeals as "Every man who is a man will do his duty"; a second one picturing a woman with a child in her arms standing at a cottage door, with the inscription beneath, "It is for these your country needs you"; a third, with the American flag and the inscription, "All you can do for it is none too much"; and a fourth, also with the American flag, with the words, "If it's worth living under it's worth fighting for." All the designs for the above and similar posters will be executed immediately so that there will be no delay in putting the plan into operation when the necessity arises.

4. Newspaper and Magazine Advertising. The preparation of page, half-page and quarter-page advertisements by expert advertising men. This service also to be voluntary in behalf of recruiting. The drawing up of a full schedule for the placing of these advertisements so that they can be published on the receipt of a telegram from New York simultaneously with the opening of special recruiting stations in the various sections.

5. Newspaper Publicity Co-operation. Immediately getting in touch with the editors of the newspapers in the United States and arranging for the publication on notice of material to crystallize public sentiment on the subject of recruiting. Also there will be secured the co-operation of such news agencies as the Associated Press, the Publishers' Press, the American Press Association, the Western Newspaper Union and all the larger advertising agencies of the country.

This plan of action was first submitted to an official high in the councils of the war department, and who has rendered America signal service on several memorable occasions, but whose name, for political reasons, it is necessary to withhold. His comment was that the plan was the most practical and valuable for the purpose in view, that he ever had encountered. With this encouragement the enthusiasm of the members of the organization was redoubled, particularly upon receiving such letters of endorsement as the following:

Producers Encourage Movement

Adolph Zukor, Famous-Lasky: We wish to compliment the Association of Motion Picture Advertisers upon the initiative and patriotic interest in the country's welfare at this critical period, which it has displayed by offering its services and those of its various members to the government to assist, in whatever manner is possible, the stimulation of a recognition of everyone's duty to the country, and for the inducement of obtaining enlistments in various volunteer organizations of the country's defensive branches. We wish to take this means of assuring you that we are very glad to have any members of your organization that are employes of this company devote all the time that is necessary to the work which your organization is planning in this direction.

Walter W. Irwin, Vitagraph: Permit me to congratulate you upon this praiseworthy action which necessarily increases the pride of all of us in the fact that we are members of an industry which can, and will be of great service to the people of this country, and the members of which, whether they be Republicans or Democrats, are to a man back of the president at all times, in the country's foreign relations. Therefore, call upon every officer or member of this organization for any and all assistance any of us may be able to render in the carrying out of your object.

J. A. Berst, Pathe: I am familiar with the project which your association has of furnishing aid to the national government in the promotion of recruiting and of arousing a proper patriotic spirit in the citizens of this country in the event of war with Germany. I shall be most happy to extend to your body in this laudable enterprise whatever assistance I can in general and specifically whatever motion pictures that we may have that will illustrate and aid in the promotion of this campaign, I shall be most happy to furnish.

Similar letters were received from R. A. Rowland, president of Metro; Hiram Abrams, president of Paramount, and Ben B. Hampton, president of General Film, and many others. President Wilson was thereupon notified in a letter signed by the members of the National Duty committee: Arthur James of Metro, president; E. Lanning Masters of Vitagraph, P. A. Parsons of Pathe, A. S. LeVino of Rolfe, Victor B. Johnson of Kalem, Paul Gulick of Universal and Charles E. Moyer of Paramount.

Many Men Active

The following sub-committees have been organized and are working rapidly in their respective departments of activity:

Trade Paper committee: Charles Burr, Paul Gulick, Randolph Bartlett, Jacques Kopfstein, P. A. Parsons.

Posters and Cartoons: Charles E. Moyer, Paul Lazarus.

Newspaper and Magazine Publicity: Paul Gulick, Randolph Lewis, A. S. LeVino, Randolph Bartlett, E. Richard Schayer, Peter J. Schmid.

Display Advertising: E. Lanning Masters, P. A. Parsons, Arthur James, Charles Burr.

Slides: Jacques Kopfstein, Julian Solomon.

Finance: Ben Schulberg, A. S. LeVino, Nat. Rothstein, Jacques Kopfstein.

Emblem committee: Ben Zeidman, E. J. O'Donnell, Bernard Fineman.

Organizations: Carl Pierce, Wallace Thompson, Harry Tootle, Victor B. Johnson, Theodore S. Dietrich, S. B. VanHorn.

So, with the general plan approved by a high governmental authority, the facilities for putting it into effect provided freely by the moving picture corporations, and a full corps of highly specialized volunteers enthusiastically working in these eight different directions, it can be truthfully said that motion pictures are mobilized.

Message To Public

The essence of the campaign is that it is to be as wide as the horizon and as personal as a letter or a conversation. The message is to be so definite that it will call for a definite answer and an alignment of all to whom it is addressed, for or against their country. In effect, this message will be:

Your country may be forced into war. You have accepted citizenship under the American flag. You have enjoyed the privileges of freedom from the political conditions which have embroiled Europe in disaster. Those privileges need defenders. You can defend them in several ways. Our army needs men. Our navy needs men. Our government needs a united people. The time has come to forget our neighborhood quarrels, our domestic differences. Are you an American, or just living in America? If you believe in American ideals the time has come to decide what one thing you can do to prove your faith. Your country needs you. You need your country. What are you going to do?

MAYOR THEIR GUEST

St. Louis Exhibitors Entertain City Executive and Hear Address by Rabbi Harrison at Regular Weekly Luncheon

Mayor Kiel of St. Louis has accepted an invitation of the Theater Managers' and Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of that city to attend the weekly meeting and luncheon to be held March 22. He will be accompanied by Building Commissioner McKelvey and City Counsellor Daus. The luncheon is to be held at the Mercantile Club. The principal speaker of the occasion is to be Rabbi Harrison.

The bulletin of the association issued under date of March 14 states that burglars broke the booth of the Mozart Airdome at Delmar avenue and Buyard street and stole the following articles:

One No. 1217 Victor A. C. motor, 110 volts, 60 cycles. marked Electric Specialty Company, Stamford, Conn.

One No. 12717 Victor A. C. motor, 110 volts, 60 cycles.

Exhibitors are requested if they have any information or the articles to them for sale to notify the association.

The membership applications of the Pestalozzi Theater and Central Film Company were accepted, the former as an active member and the latter as associate member.

A motion was carried that in future all regular Friday meetings of the Association shall commence promptly at 11 o'clock.

St. Louis exhibitors and exchange managers who are acquainted with A. B. Flinton, manager of the Kansas City Feature Film Company, had the opportunity to say "Howdoyoudo" to him a few days ago. He stopped off in St. Louis on his way home from the East. Mr. Flinton was formerly manager of the General Exchange in St. Louis.

Theaters Join Patriotic Move

The motion picture exhibitors of New York City have fallen into line enthusiastically with the Mayor's Committee on National Defense in the interest of national preparedness. Through a circulation of declarations of patriotism among audiences of the theaters in Greater New York, Mayor Mitchel's committee believes it will obtain between four hundred thousand and five hundred thousand signatures to be forwarded to President Wilson.

Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, was invited by the mayor's committee to act as chairman of the motion picture division of the patriotic campaign. At a meeting in the Manhattan Hotel, Mr. Lasky's plan of co-operation of the motion picture industry was outlined and unanimously accepted.

Letters were sent to all exhibitors of the city together with slides for exhibition on their screens and posters for their lobbies. Exhibitors by the score telephoned or wrote their willingness to help.

Illinois State Censor Bill

The complete Guernsey censorship bill, which provides for a state censor and eliminates all local censorship, and which has been introduced into the Illinois legislature, will be found on page 683 of this issue. This bill has been characterized by film men as the fairest censor bill which has thus far been drawn.

NATIONAL EXPOSITION PLANS

Ludwig Schindler, Chairman of Big Chicago Show, Coming July 14 to 22, Inclusive, Makes Arrangements for Several Innovations

Within a week of his appointment by the national executive committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America to the managership of the 1917 exposition, Ludwig Schindler has started active preparations to make it a bigger affair than any of the six which have preceded it.

Mr. Schindler has signed a lease for the noted Chicago Coliseum, the scene of so many national political conventions and the home of the Chicago automobile show, for the motion picture exposition. The date of the exposition has been changed from July 7-14 to July 14-22.

The new manager of the exposition has announced several innovations. For one thing, the annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, as announced last week in MOTOGRAPHY, is to be held in the same building with the exposition instead of in a hotel some miles distant. The Coliseum will be, in every sense of the word, the center of the industry during the week of the convention and exposition.

To carry out this plan he has secured the Coliseum Annex that there may be plenty of room for the convention as well as for the exhibits and that the crowd of fans who will swarm the building will have room to turn around.

The exposition will be the seventh to be held under the auspices of the Exhibitors' League and the third to be held in Chicago. Last year's exposition was held in the middle western metropolis and was so successful that it was decided to held the 1917 show in the same city.

Ludwig Schindler, to whom the national committee has intrusted the management of the exposition, has a record of successful achievement. He is a self-made man in every sense of the word. He is recognized as one of the foremost exhibitors in the city of Chicago and holds high rating in business and financial circles.

Mr. Schindler first came into prominence in the amusement world as a German actor. For many years he managed and played leads in his own company. He built Schindler's Theater, which became noted for German drama. In the early nineties he managed successfully three companies of German players who played but one night each week, and made money, which is considerable feat in the show world.

With the arrival of the motion picture, Mr. Schindler turned his theater over to films. He now owns both the Schindler Theater and the Plaza and has other business connections outside of the motion picture industry.

As a committee assisting Mr. Schindler in the preliminaries for the exposition are: Peter J. Schaefer of Jones, Linick & Schaefer; Nathan Ascher of Ascher Bros., and Joseph Trinz of Lubliner & Trinz. Alfred Hamburger of the Hamburger Enterprises is a member of the national committee. Thus the four big firms of exhibitors in Chicago are behind Mr. Schindler in his undertaking.

Henrik Ibsen's famous problem play, "The Doll House," is half completed by Director Joseph DeGrasse at Universal City.

Screenshine

By Mel Ody

THE OTHER FELLOW'S JOB

THE exhibitor: "Gee whiz! I'd like to get a chance to make a picture or two, myself!"

The producer: "Why the exhibitors don't know how to get the good out of a picture. We spend thousands making a fine feature and then they don't advertise it so it pulls half what it's worth."

The exchangeman: "And they give us stuff like that and expect us to sell it!"

The star: "Oh I'd just love to manage a picture house. I would have a full orchestra and run only special features. I should have a little perfume fountain in the lobby and I'd give every lady a bunch of violets or sweet peas. Oh, I think it would be delightful!"

You know the old saying: The grass on the other side of the fence always looks greenest.

"MUSIC HATH CHARMS"

Good music "soothes the savage beast" and pulls the patrons in. Witness the following verse written to the organist of Harry Miller's Boston Theater, Chicago. The title is the words of the illuminated sign used in the theater to announce the name of the musician:

"NOW AT THE ORGAN, MILDRED FITZPATRICK"

Now at the organ is Mildred FitzPatrick;
For holding her hearers she surely has that trick.
We sit by the hour and listen untiring,
What matters the weather or if we're perspiring?
We even forget the handsome screen hero;
We don't give a hoot if its ninety or zero.
When Mildred FitzPatrick is playing so sweetly
We loose track of pictures and weather completely.
Hats off to you, Mildred, you sure are a treasure;
The time that we spend here are hours of pleasure.
And here's to your Boss, let him mind what we're saying
We'll crowd his theater when ever you're playing.

Gertrude Lucas, 15 South Wabash Ave., Chicago.

EVER ENTERTAINED A FLAME SPOUTER?

Edward Murphy, a 14-year-old Chicago youngster, a messenger boy, learned the trick of exhaling fire and thought he would try it one night in the Monogram Theater at 3520 South Halsted street.

He put kerosene in his mouth and then ignited the gas he blew out.

Patrons, seeing the shaft of flame, began to rush for the exits. Manager L. D. Nichols had to collar the boy and escort him to the open air where he could spout flame without endangering anybody.

Probably no one was so deeply moved by the pro and con censorship discussion at the Reel Fellows Club last week as Bill Heaney. Ask Bill about it.

THINGS THEY ARE PROUD OF

George Luttrell, of Jacksonville, president of the Illinois Branch of the M. P. E. L.—his golf scores.
Joe Hopp, president Chicago League—his vocabulary.
Bill Sweeney and Alfred Hamburger—their wives.
Harry Miller—his Elgin (car, not watch).
"Watty" Watkins, vice-president Reel Fellows—his baby.
E. Schwartz—his eyes.
Billy Hamburg, secretary Reel Fellows—his size.
Jack Haag—his complexion.
Jack O'Toole—his tummy.

Here's a good one from Clark Irvine's Screamer of Loose Angeles:

Bessie Love had a bunch of beautiful violets the other day. Scotty McKee remarked that before he was married violets were his favorite flower.

Bessie asked him what his favorite flower was since he got married, and he said Gold Medal or A1.

There's one particularly bright spot in the Reel Fellows' rooms, and that is the table top dressed up in the scarf donated by Mrs. Bill Sweeney.

Use Motography Cuts Free

Motography often prints illustrations that would be useful to use on your program cover or in your other advertising matter. If at any time you see a cut in Motography that you would like to use, just say the word and it will be sent to you, to be returned to us when you have finished with it. But please remember that we must be notified of the cut you wish immediately after you receive the issue in which the cut appears. The half-tones accumulate so rapidly that it is impossible to keep them very long on file.

Watch the pictures in Motography, and remember this service is absolutely free to you.

Michigan Bill in Committee

The Eaton censor bill proposing the establishment of a board of censors in the state of Michigan has gone to the ways and means committee, where film men say the measure is not having such an easy career as heretofore. The bill was reported out by the state affairs committee of the house with the recommendation that it be passed. Speaker Rice declined to place it on the calendar at that time, although Representative Eaton so requested. The speaker declared that the nature of the bill requires that the finance committee be given a chance to pass upon it.

Clean Pictures and Profits

An editorial on "Cleaner Movies" appears in the Times, of Oswego, New York, in which is stated concisely the financial side of the question from the exhibitors' standpoint in the matter of clean pictures versus salacious or risque films. The Times says:

It runs up against the feeling of many managers, that salacious shows pay better. Many theater owners say frankly that whenever they announce a risque film, their attendance immediately begins to swell.

There are a few fundamental considerations, however, which they ignore. They may gain an increase temporarily through having the normal audience of people who want clean shows, while attracting also the special class that looks for morbid sensation. But if the place keeps on, a great mass of people become disgusted and stay away. Finally the theater will have to depend wholly on the dirt seekers who are not the best financial basis.

If exhibitors will co-operate with the women's clubs, the social settlements, and other betterment agencies, for an intelligent control of film production, they will in the long run place their business on the most permanent foundation.

To Regulate Seat Sales

Two more bills affecting motion picture theaters have made their appearance in the New York legislature in the last fortnight. Representative Greenberg introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor for any person, or corporation, managing or controlling a theater where dramatic performances are given, or motion pictures are exhibited, to sell tickets for admission at a time when all seats in such theaters are occupied without first conspicuously posting in the lobby of the theater a notice setting forth such conditions. Each violation is to be considered a misdemeanor.

Senator Carroll, of Brooklyn, presented a measure proposing a tax on theater and other amusement tickets, sold in excess of the prices prevailing at the box office of the theaters, where admissions of one dollar or more are charged. A stamp would be attached to tickets sold at box offices. Tickets sold elsewhere would be subject to a fifty per cent tax. Sale of such tickets without payment of the tax would constitute a misdemeanor.

CHICAGO EXHIBITORS MEET

Question of Censorship Discussed and Deposit System Condemned by Exhibitors of Local Branch of M. P. E. L.

A meeting of the Chicago local branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of American was held on March 16 at their headquarters in the Masonic Temple, and the pressing questions of censorship and the deposit system were taken up and discussed at some length. President Joseph Hopp presided and some lively and interesting talks marked the meeting.

Dr. Sam Atkinson of Los Angeles, formerly a clergyman in New York City, was present at the meeting and gave an interesting talk on censorship. A special exhibitors' censorship committee was appointed, consisting of Dr. Atkinson, George Laing and Robert Levy, to represent the exhibitors at the Reel Fellows meeting where the Guernsey censorship bill was discussed. President Hopp was also authorized to appoint a committee to go to Springfield later to oppose the censor bills which have been introduced into the state legislature, particularly the Guernsey bill, which creates a state censor and does away with all local censorship, and which has the best chance of becoming a law. The exhibitors' reiterated their former stand as being absolutely opposed to censorship of any form.

In the matter of deposits the exhibitors took action condemning the system and will notify the producers to that effect. This notification will take substantially the same form as the resolutions passed at the recent meeting of the national executive committee of the M. P. E. L. which were printed in full in last week's (March 24) issue of Motography.

Exhibitors Arrange Youngster Matinees

Many exhibitors of New York City are co-operating with the National Juvenile Motion Picture Board in arranging matinee performances for children. These special showings are also indorsed by the Board of Education.

According to this system, the regular price of admission to the theater is charged. The Board asks no part in the receipts, but promotes the exhibition on the condition that the exhibitor uses the pictures of which the Board approves. It also asks that it be allowed to chaperone the children when unaccompanied by their parents, which it does by having some of its representatives present at each matinee. These exhibitions are held in the morning so that they do not interfere with the regular afternoon performance.

The method of promotion is chiefly through the schools of the neighborhood. Circulars are sent to each school, a coupon attached to each circular which is signed by the parents and presented with a nickel by the children at the door of the theater. Exhibitors declare that many of these performances are given to capacity houses. They not only are financially profitable but are good advertisements for the house and prove to the parents and teachers that the theater is willing to co-operate in providing the right sort of entertainment for the children.

Among the prominent exhibitors who are giving these matinees are Samuel Trigger, Sydney Ascher and William Haring.

Director Worthington is filming at Universal City "The Clock," in five reels.

"What the Picture Did for Me"

ACTUAL CRITICISM OF FILMS BY EXHIBITORS, FROM A BUSINESS STANDPOINT

(Editorial Note:—"The trade paper that can give the most accurate information about current features is the paper every exhibitor wants," said a prominent manager recently. In addition to its regular reviews Motography publishes in each week's issue the actual unvarnished opinions of exhibitors on films they have run in their houses, with the idea of aiding other exhibitors in making up their programs. The theaters mentioned here are in Chicago, unless otherwise noted. Managers and bookers like to get various opinions concerning a feature before they run it. Upon request Motography will gladly furnish the opinion of men who have run the feature in question. Give both titles and makers of pictures about which you inquire. Simply address, Motography, Chicago.)

The Poor Little Rich Girl, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"This is the best thing Mary Pickford has ever done. It broke all previous box office records for us."—Harold Edel, managing director, Strand Theater, New York City.

The Poor Little Rich Girl, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"This is a box-office record-breaker. With it we 'held them out' at ten o'clock in the morning at an increased admission price. The offering pleases the patrons."—M. J. Weil, Castle Theater.—Downtown house.

The Poor Little Rich Girl, with Mary Pickford, (Artcraft)—"A splendid production. Drew exceptionally well for the two days it has been shown and we expect a big week with this production."—H. Clark Mooney, managing director, Triangle Theater, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Passion, fifth of the "Seven Deadly Sins," (Mcclure)—"The best so far of the 'Seven Deadly Sins.' Business was better on this one than any one of the others preceding it. The weather was unfavorable. It is a good picture."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater. —Catering to middle class audiences.

Little Shoes, with Henry Walthall and Mary Charleson, (Essanay)—"A very good picture. We showed it on a rainy day, but had a full house. Walthall is just as popular as he ever was."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Dancer's Peril, with Alice Brady, (World-Brady)—"A good picture. Business was good."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

The Lamb, with Douglas Fairbanks, (Triangle)—"I ran this picture when it first came out, and ran it again last week. It is a fine picture and went great. As this was Douglas Fairbanks' first picture, it was not seen by everybody as are his recent productions. I believe that exhibitors, whether or not they ran this picture before, will pack their houses with it."—William Brandt, Albany Theater, Brooklyn, New York.—Neighborhood house; high class patronage.

The Girl Phillipa, with Anita Stewart, (Vitagraph)—"We ran this picture two days and on the first day did very good business. On account of disagreeable weather, business on the second day was bad." Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

A Dream or Two Ago, with Mary Miles Minter, (Mutual)—"This is a fine picture. We had record house on Friday and Saturday."—L. Coyle, manager King George Theater, St. Catherines, Canada.

The Little Brother, with Enid Bennett, (Triangle)—"A very good picture that did pretty fair business, although the weather was inclement."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.—Catering to middle class audiences.

Patria, with Mrs. Vernon Castle, (Pathe serial)—"Mrs. Vernon Castle is still standing up. Mrs. Castle and a Triangle picture on any day make an ideal program that can't be beat."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater. —Catering to middle class audiences.

The Blue Streak, with William Nigh, (Fox)—"The Chicago censor board gave this a 'pink permit,' (no children allowed), but the picture proves to be an unusually good one which brought big business and pleased the audiences."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Square Deal Man, with William S. Hart, (Kay Bee-Triangle)—"This is running for a week at the Rose Theater. The first day's business has broken the box-office record. The picture is liked by the audience." —Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

The Square Deal Man, with William S. Hart, Kay Bee-Triangle)—"This brought big business and was exceptionally well received, even for a Hart picture." —S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

The Mortal Sin, with Viola Dana, (Metro)—"This star is popular and the picture pleased. On a three days' run, business was good."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Betsy's Burglar, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"A fairly good picture. It pleased some people. An ordinary program feature. We showed it on Sunday to fair business."—Edward Trinz, West End Theater.— Catering to middle class audiences.

The Social Leper, with Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge, (World)—"A very good attraction. For the past six months World pictures have formed the most consistent program that an exhibitor could buy, which speaks well for W. A. Brady."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

A Lass of the Lumberlands, with Helen Holmes, (Mutual)—"This is the best serial Mutual has released yet."—John C. Green, Temple Theater, Galt, Ontario.

The Social Leper, with Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge, (World)—"Brought fair business and pleased the audiences,"—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class audiences.

Miss Jackie of the Navy, with Margarita Fischer, (Pollard-Mutual)—"One of the most pleasing pictures of the season. It pleased our patrons immensely. Proved a good box-office attraction. I have arranged for a return booking."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—High class patronage.

The Dancer's Peril, with Alice Brady, (World)—"Patrons were very well pleased with this."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—High class patronage.

The Secret of Eve, with Mme. Petrova, (Metro)—"A picture which was well liked by my patrons. Mme. Petrova is a great favorite in this locality."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—High class audiences.

Patria, No. 8, with Mrs. Vernon Castle, (Pathe serial)—"This went over big. The serial seems to please the audiences more and more as it continues."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—High class audiences.

Sister Against Sister, with Virginia Pearson, (Fox)—"Went over well with the audience and brought good business."—Charles E. Hagen, Kenmore Theater.—High class audiences.

Little Lady Eileen, with Marguerite Clark, (Famous Players-Paramount)—"A very pleasing picture which brought fair business. Miss Clark is an especial favorite among my patrons."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

The Brand of Cowardice, with Lionel Barrymore, (Metro)—"The scenes along the border are very good, and those showing our men along the Rio Grande are excellent. Fine stills go with this production, which make it an A1 box office attraction. Patrons were enthusiastic."—Chris. C. Taylor, Rialto and Dreamland Theaters, Kewanee, Illinois.

A Child of the Wild, with June Caprice, (Fox)—"This brought good business and the audience was well pleased."—B. Perlmutter, New Strand Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Back of the Man, with Dorothy Dalton and Charles Ray, (Triangle)—"The audience was well pleased with this picture. Dorothy Dalton is very good and is becoming more popular all the time. Charles Ray is also a drawing card."—B. Perlmutter, New Strand Theater.—Middle class audiences.

The Scarlet Letter, with Stuart Holmes, (Fox)—"Pretty good business."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Betsy's Burglar, with Constance Talmadge, (Triangle)—"This was satisfactory to the audience and brought pretty good business."—B. Perlmutter, New Strand Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Miss Jackie of the Navy, with Margarita Fischer, (Mutual)—"Without restrictions of any kind I think 'Miss Jackie of the Navy' is the most delightful of anything I ever screened."—H. W. Barnes, manager Forum Theater, Hillsboro, Ohio.

Miss Jackie of the Navy, with Margarita Fischer, (Pollard-Mutual)—"This went over great. This is the class of films which brings good business. The Highest Bid, with William Russell, also pleased splendidly."—W. Stewart, Patricia Theater, London, Ontario.

The Masque of Life, (Signet)—"This brought good business and the audience was not disappointed in it."—B. Perlmutter, New Strand Theater.—Middle class audiences.

Blood Will Tell, with William Desmond, (Triangle)—"Brought good business and proved to be a pleasing picture."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class patronage.

Blood Will Tell, with William Desmond, (Triangle)—"Fair business. Gave fair satisfaction."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

A Winning Loser, (Triangle Comedy)—"A conglomeration of such comedy elements as the French count, the old maid, a boarding school and a crazy comedian, pretty well done. Went over well."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

Pots and Pans Peggy, with Gladys Hulette, (Thanhouser-Pathe)—"This title is fine for a neighborhood theater, but not a good drawing one for a downtown house. As an attraction for a theater whose patrons are mostly men, this did not bring good business."—Harry Miller, Boston Theater.—Downtown house.

On Record, with Mae Murray, (Lasky-Paramount)—"A very good picture which brought good business. Mae Murray's work was especially pleasing."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class patronage.

The Winning of Sally Temple, with Fanny Ward, (Lasky-Paramount)—"Fair business. Picture ordinary,"—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class patronage.

Wrath, with H. B. Warner, (McClure "Seven Deadly Sins" series)—"This brought good business. Proved to be the best drawng card of the series."—S. Trinz, Covent Garden Theater.—High class patronage.

A Girl's Folly, with Robert Warwick, (World)—"My patrons did not care for this. Business was fair."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Promise, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison, (Metro)—"Brought big business and pleased the patrons."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

A Love Sublime, with Wilfred Lucas, (Triangle)—"Fair offering."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

The Accomplice, (Art Dramas)—"This went pretty well."—M. J. Weil, Lake Shore Theater.—High class audiences.

Thresh Out Censorship Question

EXHIBITORS AND EXCHANGEMEN DISCUSS ILLINOIS BILL WHICH WILL PROBABLY PAS

THE film men of Chicago and the state legislature got together on March 16 at the meeting of the Reel Fellows Club at their new headquarters in the College Building.

Senator Guy Guernsey, who introduced the Guernsey state censorship bill into the Illinois legislature, was present and gave a thorough explanation of the proposed measure and made several changes in it upon the suggestions made by the film men present. The discussions of the bill, pro and con, lasted until far into the night and even touched the edge of the morning. Senator Guernsey assured the film men that before the bill is acted upon, Governor Lowden is going to seek a great deal of advice on the subject and is going to see that the side of the motion picture industry is well represented.

Would Eliminate Local Censors

The main question in regard to the bill was whether or not it would eliminate local censorship. Senator Guernsey stated that it absolutely would do this, because the state gave the cities their police powers and have the right to take some of these powers away at any time it sees fit.

Section 13 of the bill as introduced, stated that any person aggrieved by any decision of the state censor could make an appeal to the courts within three days. The film men pointed out that this really made local censorship possible. Senator Guernsey then stated that he would amend the section to state that—instead of any person—any owner or lessor aggrieved could make an appeal to the courts. The three days allowed for the appeal was increased to thirty days.

There was a good deal of discussion about section sixteen in the bill, which states that educational and religious institutions should be exempt from having their films censored. Senator Guernsey suggested a committee of three representatives of the motion picture industry draw up a new section as a substitute for the present one and submit it to him. He stated that it would be fairly certain that the new section if just, would be inserted in the bill.

Exhibitors' Representatives Speak

Upon the suggestion of President Joseph Hopp of the local motion picture exhibitors' league, the league's committee on cesorship—Robert Levy, Dr. Sam Atkinson of Los Angeles and George Laing—expressed their views upon the subject. These men, in line with the recent action taken by the M. P. E. L., declared themselves as absolutely opposed to the principle of censorship and felt that the passage of this bill, even though it were the lesser of all the censorship evils, would be a recognition of censorship and might lead to future difficulties.

Senator Guernsey stated that while the bill purports to create a one man state censorship, as a matter of fact, the function would be performed by several men. He explained that the state government is now divided into nine departments, the head of each of which is directly responsible to the governor. One of these departments is that of education and registration. Among other things, this department passes on state licenses, including those for professional men, etc. Under the head of this department will be the proposed state censor. This censor will not be able to see all of the pictures according to Senator Guernsey, but a board will really do the censoring. The idea is to have about three men on this board from different walks of life and representing different attitudes of mind.

The Senator also pointed out that the state censor's appointment can be jerked out from under him at any time on a moment's notice. While the proposed Illinois bill is modeled upon the bills of Ohio and Pennsylvania, the local measure provides for a number of things not taken into consideration by the bills now in force in the other states.

Improper Pictures Not Necessary to Profit

One of the striking statements made by Dr. Sam Atkinson of Los Angeles in speaking for the exhibitors, was this: "Every exhibitor knows that we do not have to show improper pictures to make money." He continued, "There will always be some who demand censorship, but that demand will not come from the people who visit our theaters. This industry has done for the sobriety of the working man of this country more than the church has done and that can be proved by statistics. It will be the working class and the common people who will be affected by censorship."

Attorney David T. Alexander spoke in favor of the Guernsey Bill. "There is an insistent demand for censorship of pictures" he said, "because this is a commercialized age. Some of the black sheep of the industry have taken advantage of the commercial possibilities of improper pictures and will continue to do so until we reach an ideal state of civilization. The minds of children are reached by films in a manner in which they are not reached by the press or the stage."

The original hearing for the proposed bill was set for Wednesday, March 28. Senator Guernsey postponed this hearing in order to give the film men a chance to take whatever actions they see fit. He stated that there are three other bills to be introduced into the state legislature, all bearing on the same subject, one of these is fostered by Major Funkhouser, the present Chicago censor, and provides for state censorship with also a Chicago censor.

New Members for Reel Fellows

President Ralph O. Proctor presided at the Reel Fellows' meeting, which overflowed the attractive club rooms. Chairman Harry C. Miller of the membership committee, reported the following new members of the club: Maurice M. Rubens, Joliet; Paul Sittner, Criterion Theater; Aaron Jones, Chicago; Charles Clarke, Essanay; C. E. Smith, Metro manager; F. H. Frank, proprietor California Theater; Kenneth S. Fitzpatrick, Jr., president Fitzpatrick McElroy Theater; Harry James, Wynclift Inn; Attorney Myricle Whipple, secretary Crystal Photo-

Illinois State Censor Bill

The complete Guernsey censorship bill, which provides for a state censor and eliminates all local censorship, and which has been introduced into the Illinois legislature, will be found on page 683 of this issue. This bill has been characterized by film men as the fairest censor bill which has thus far been drawn.

plays Co.; Nathan Ascher, Chicago; David Meyer, Chicago; William Baker, John Burnham Company; William A. Cook, Artcraft office.

Among those present at the meeting were the following:

Joseph Hopp, president Chicago branch, M. P. E. L.; Fred J. Schafer, Schafer Bros. Theater Co.; David T. Alexander, attorney; Wm. J. Sweeney, treasurer local league and member national executive committee; Alfred Hamburger, Hamburger Theatrical Enterprises; George Laing; Robert Levy and Dr. Atkinson, members local league censor committee; W. D. Barford, Aurora; Wm. Heaney, Virginia Theater; H. A. Hill, Star and Glen Theaters; Harry C. Miller, Alcazar, Boston and Rose Theaters; Ralph O. Proctor, Art Dramas, president Reel Fellows Club; "Billy" Hamburg, secretary Reel Fellows Club; A. E. Curtis, Motography, assistant secretary; George Booth, Bridgeport Theater; Richard C. Travers; M. G. Watkins, American Standard, vice-president Reel Fellows Club; A. Teitel; F. H. Frank, California Theater; T. Krebs, Trade Review; Floyd Broekell, and Harry Weiss, Central Film Co.; J. L. Friedman, president F. I. L. M. Club; Maurice Rubens, Rubens Theaters, Joliet; Max Levy, Metro; W. C. Benson and W. McHenry, Exhibitors' Herald; A. Krug, Park Manor Theater; Jack Haag, Bandbox Theater; Si. Griever, General Feature Film Co.; D. Russakov, Russakov Can Co.; A. H. Fulton, Harrison Theater, Waukegan; Mack Edmonds; Adolph Powell; Wm. Buckley; President Joseph Hopp, of the Chicago Exhibitors' League; William J. Sweeney, treasurer and member of the National Executive Committee, M. P. E. L.; and Ralph O. Proctor, president of the Reel Fellows Club of Chicago, are among those who expressed the opinion to Motography that while they are absolutely opposed to censorship, the Guernsey bill appears to be the fairest yet drawn.

President Freuler Goes A-visiting

